May R. Hodgdon.
SELECT

Orations of Cicero

(Allen & Greenough's Edition)

Revised by

J. B. Greenough and G. L. Kittredge

With a Special Vocabulary

By

J. B. Greenough

Ginn & Company, Publishers
The Athenæum Press
1897
Preface.

The treatment of the orations rhetorically and logically has been very much extended, with the hope of making the book more useful, not only for the study of Latin, but also for the study of rhetorical composition generally. The very numerous illustrations have not been inserted merely to make a picture-book, but to give the pupil some sense of the reality of the orations as a part of history. Teachers and others who take a more intelligent interest in these ancient memorials, will find much explanatory and critical comment in the numbered list of illustrations. A very large increase of introductory matter has seemed desirable in view of the growing interest in the study of the history of civilization.

The plan of the Roman Forum has been taken from the admirable plan in Middleton's Remains of Ancient Rome (Black, London, 1892), without alteration, except that some details have been omitted to make it simpler for young students.

As in the previous edition, the text of Baiter and Kayser has been strictly followed, as a recent textus receptus, even where the revisers would personally prefer a different reading. They have, however, rejected the doubled i in the genitive of the second declension, which must have been unknown to Cicero.

It is hoped that the new and improved features will commend themselves to teachers and tend to improve Latin scholarship in this country.

J. B. G.
G. L. K.
CONTENTS

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Section</th>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>List of Illustrations</td>
<td>vii</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Description of the View of the Forum</td>
<td>xii</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Plan of the Forum</td>
<td>xii</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Life of Cicero</td>
<td>xiii</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>List of Oration and Other Works</td>
<td>xxvii</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Chronological Table</td>
<td>xxxi</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Roman Oratory</td>
<td>xxxiv</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Cicero as an Orator</td>
<td>xliii</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Latin and English Style</td>
<td>xlv</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ancient Oratorical Delivery</td>
<td>lix</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The Roman Constitution</td>
<td>1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Defence of Roscius</td>
<td>1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Impeachment of Verres</td>
<td>26</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The Plunder of Syracuse</td>
<td>48</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Crucifixion of a Roman Citizen</td>
<td>59</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Pompey's Military Command (Pro Lege Manilia)</td>
<td>66</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The Conspiracy of Catiline</td>
<td>98</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1. Invective against Catiline</td>
<td>99</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2. Character of the Conspiracy</td>
<td>113</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3. How the Conspiracy was Suppressed</td>
<td>126</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>4. Sentence of the Conspirators</td>
<td>141</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The Citizenship of Archias</td>
<td>154</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Defence of Milo</td>
<td>169</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Contents

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Title</th>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>The Pardon of Marcellus</td>
<td>213</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Plea for Ligarius</td>
<td>225</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The Struggle against Antony (Philippica XIV)</td>
<td>239</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Notes</td>
<td>259</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Vocabulary</td>
<td>1</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
LIST OF ILLUSTRATIONS.

ABBREVIATIONS.

Bernouilli. — J. J. Bernouilli, Römische Ikonographie, 1882–94.

Poole. — A Catalogue of the Greek Coins in the British Museum. Edited by R. S. Poole. London, 1873, etc.

IN THE TEXT.

Cicero. Bust in the Museum at Madrid. Bernouilli. ... Frontispiece Plan of the Forum and adjacent buildings. Founded on plan in Middleton's Remains of Ancient Rome. ... xi Ruins of the Roman Forum. Photograph ... xiii
The Forum (restored). von Falke. ... i Allegorical statue of the Tiber (showing also Romulus and Remus with the wolf). In the Louvre, Paris. Brunn. ... 1 Jupiter. Bust in the Vatican. Photograph ... 18
View of Messina (Messana). Med. Illustr. ... 26
Q. Hortensius, Bust in the Villa Alhani, Rome. Visconti. ... 40
List of Illustrations.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Illustration</th>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Coin of Syracuse. Obverse: head of Persephone. Reverse: victor in quadriga.</td>
<td>49</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Head.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Coin of Hiero II. Obverse: head of Hiero with diadem. Reverse: Nike (Victory) in quadriga.</td>
<td>50</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Head.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>M. Claudius Marcellus. From coins (somewhat enlarged). Bernoulli.</td>
<td>51</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Cathedral of Syracuse, formerly Temple of Minerva. Med. Illust.</td>
<td>52</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The Quarries at Syracuse (Dionysius' Ear). Photograph.</td>
<td>59</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Coin of the Mamertini. Obverse: head of Ares (Mars). Reverse: eagle on thunderbolt. Poole.</td>
<td>60</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Coin of Rhegium. Obverse: lion's scalp. Reverse: sitting male figure. Poole.</td>
<td>63</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Pompey. Bust in the Vatican (Museo Chiaramonti). Uncertain. Photograph.</td>
<td>66</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Fanaraky d’Europe (entrance to the Black Sea by the Bosporus). Laurens, Voyage en Turquie.</td>
<td>66</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mithridates VI. (from a coin). Head.</td>
<td>69</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Tigranes, King of Armenia (from a coin). Head.</td>
<td>69</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Site of Corinth (Acrocorinthus in background). Stackelberg, La Grèce.</td>
<td>71</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Antiochus III., King of Syria (from a coin). Head.</td>
<td>73</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Philip V., King of Macedonia (from a coin). Head.</td>
<td>73</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>View of Mt. Argeus in Cappadocia. Texier, Asie Mineure.</td>
<td>75</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Lucullus. Bust in the Hermitage, St. Petersburg. Identification uncertain (see Arch. Zeit., N. F., XXIII, 9 ff.). D'Escamps.</td>
<td>77</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>View near Cape Misenum. Med. Illust.</td>
<td>80</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ruins of the Port of Ostia. Photograph.</td>
<td>81</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>View in Pamphylia (Port of Adalia). Lanckoronski, Les Villes de la Pamphylie et de la Pisidie.</td>
<td>82</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Galley. From the Prænestæ relief. Baumeister.</td>
<td>85</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Coin of Rhodes. Obverse: head of Helios (perhaps from the Colossus). Reverse: rose. Head.</td>
<td>90</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Coin of Perseus (Perses). Head.</td>
<td>91</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Roman sacrificial procession. Relief in the Galleria degli Uffizi, Florence. Brunn.</td>
<td>98</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ruins of the Temple of Jupiter Stator. Photograph.</td>
<td>112</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The Mulvian Bridge. Photograph.</td>
<td>128</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Marcus Aurelius sacrificing in front of the Temple of Jupiter Capitoli-</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Illustration</td>
<td>Page</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-----------------------------------------------------------</td>
<td>------</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Relief from the Arch of M. Aurelius. Palazzo dei Conservatori, Rome</td>
<td>Photograph</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Roman Sacrificial Procession. Relief in the Galleria degli Uffizi, Florence</td>
<td>Brunn</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Temple of Jupiter Capitolinus at Rome (restored). Hirtorff, Architecture antique de la Sicile</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ruins of the House of the Vestals. Photograph</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Church of S. Maria in Aracoeli (site of the Roman Arx). Photograph</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>P. Scipio Africanus. Photograph</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Muses with Homer and Socrates. Ancient sarcophagus in the Louvre. De Clarac</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>C. Marius. Impression of a coin. Visconti</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Alexander the Great, represented as the god Ammon (hence the horns). From a coin, enlarged. Imhoof-Blumer, Porträt Köpfe</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>View on the Appian Way. Photograph</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Pallas' casting vote. The order of the figures (beginning at the left) is: Orestes, a Fury, Pallas (voting for acquittal), Erigone (the accuser). On the pillar is a sun-dial. Relief on a silver vessel found in the harbor of Antium. Overbeck, Bildwerke zum thebischen und troischen Heldenkreis</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Coin of M. Lepidus and C. Caesar Octavianus (afterwards Augustus), as triumvirs. Cohen</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>View on the Appian Way. Photograph</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Aristogeiton. Statue in the Naples Museum. Brunn</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>C. Julius Caesar. Bust in the Louvre. Photograph</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The Piræus (restored) with the Long Walls. von Falke</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Site of Carthage. Montpensier, Voyage en l'Orient.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mark Antony. Bust in the Vatican. Uncertain. Photograph</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Siege. Trajan's Column at Rome. Brunn</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Coin of D. Brutus. Cohen</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Coin of Mark Antony and his brother Lucius. Visconti</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Coin of Pansa. (The head is that of Pan, in punning allusion to the family name). Cohen</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Coin of Mark Antony and Octavia. Head</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
List of Illustrations.

IN THE NOTES.

Fig.

11. Doors of Temple of Romulus, with bullae. Photograph.
18. Rostra. From a coin.
List of Illustrations.

32. Bust of L. Junius Rusticus (Stoic philosopher of the time of Domitian), showing a rough "philosophic beard." Visconti.
33. Statue of an unknown Roman with the toga. Brunn.
35. Writing implements: atramentarium (for black and red ink); papyrus letter sealed and addressed; tabellae and stilus. Wall painting. Overbeck’s Pompeii.
39. Pompeian shop (restored).
40. Plan showing the arrangement of Pompeian shops along the streets.
41. Bronze focus (brazier), from the baths of Pompeii. Photograph.
42. Sarcophagus of Scipio Barbatus. With a bust formerly identified with Ennius. Photograph.
48. Voting on a law. From a coin struck in honor of Cassius Longinus by one of his descendants. (The V on the tablet stands for veto.) Cohen.
49. Figures with tubae. From the Arch of Titus. Photograph.
List of Illustrations.

FIG.

Explanation of the View of the Forum.

The background shows the southeasterly side of the Capitoline hill. The blank wall in the centre is the rear of the Palazzo dei Senatori, which stands on the saddle between the two summits (inter duos lucos). The lower part of this wall is very old, and is commonly supposed to be the wall of the Tabularium, or Record Office.

The modern buildings on the right occupy the site of the ancient Citadel (Arx); those on the left, that of the Capitolium. In front, projected against the wall of the Tabularium, is, on the right, the Column of Phocas, a late monument of slight importance; at the left of that are the ruins of the Temple of Vespasian (three Corinthian columns, of which only two show in the view); farther to the left is a ruin with eight Ionic columns,—the Temple of Saturn, built in the time of the Empire on the site of the earlier Temple of Saturn, which served during the Republic as the Aenarium, or Treasury. Below, at the right of the picture, is the Arch of Septimius Severus: this probably occupies part of the space of the earlier Senaculum, or gathering-place of the Senators. Below the Temple and in front of the Arch is the open space of the Forum, distinguishable by the flagging: here stood the Rostra. To the left, below the Temple of Saturn, are the ruins of the Basilica Julia. At the extreme left of the picture, in the foreground, are three Corinthian columns, the only remains of the famous Temple of Castor. Near the point where the spectator is supposed to stand are the ruins of the Atrium Vestae and the Regia.
many kinds of composition, but his most important means of education, as he tells us, was translation from the Greek.

At the age of sixteen (B.C. 90), Cicero received the toga virilis (the "coming out" of a Roman boy), and from that time he devoted himself to law and statesmanship as well as oratory. For this purpose he was put under the charge of Mucius Scævola, the augur, and later he attached himself to the no less celebrated Pontifex of the same name. In B.C. 89 he served one campaign in the army under Cn. Pompeius Strabo. After this short military experience, he returned with still greater vigor to his literary and political studies. He studied philosophy under Phædrus and Philo, oratory under Molo of Rhodes, and all the branches of a liberal education under Diodotus the Stoic.

When about twenty-five years of age, Cicero began his active career. It was customary to win one's spurs by attacking some political opponent; but this was contrary to Cicero's pacific nature, and throughout his life he prided himself on always taking the side of the defence. His first oratorical efforts have not been preserved to us. The earliest of his orations which we possess is his defence of P. Quinctius in a civil action (B.C. 81). This suit involved no political question; but no case at that time could be entirely free from politics in one form or another, and nothing is more significant of Cicero's character than the skill with which he constantly used political bias for his client's advantage without seeming to take sides. To defend Quinctius was a bold undertaking for a young advocate; for the opposing counsel was the great orator Hortensius, backed by powerful influence on behalf of the plaintiff. The case, too, was a somewhat dry one; but Cicero's skill as an advocate is shown by the fact that he raises it above the ordinary business and technical level into a question of universal justice and the rights of common humanity.

1 See p. xxxix.
Next year occurred the trial of Sextus Roscius of Ameria for parricide (B.C. 80), a case growing out of the abuses of Sulla’s dictatorship. Cicero showed his courage by undertaking the defence, and his forensic skill by converting his plea into a powerful attack on the accusers in the regular manner of Roman invective. In B.C. 79 he came into still more daring antagonism with Sulla in the case of a woman of Arretium. The oration has not come down to us, but from its boldness it must have added greatly to the orator’s fame. The same year — either on account of his health or, less probably, from fear of Sulla — he went to Greece and the East to continue his studies; for at that time such a journey was like “going to Europe” among us. He visited the greatest orators, rhetoricians, and philosophers of the East, especially at Rhodes, then a seat of the highest culture. After an absence of two years, he returned to Rome, with an improved style of oratory, and again engaged in law cases, in which he had as opponents his two great rivals Hortensius and Cotta.

II. From the Quæstorship in Sicily to the Consulship (B.C. 75–64).

In B.C. 76 Cicero began his political career, becoming candidate for the quæstorship (the lowest grade of the cursus honorum), while Cotta was candidate for the consulship and Hortensius for the prætorship. All three were elected, and Cicero’s lot assigned him to the province of Sicily under Sextus Pددقئس. It was in this administration that his ability and honesty gained the favor of the Sicilians, which gave him the great opportunity of his life in the impeachment of Verres, in B.C. 70. This prosecution he undertook in the interests of his own ambition, in spite of the fact that the 1 See pp. 1, 2, below (Introduction to the Oration).

2 See p. lix.
3 See p. lix.
4 See pp. 26–28, below.
Senate was as a class on the side of the accused, who was also supported by many of the most influential men of the state. But it was, on the other hand, a popular cause, and many of the most decent of the nobility favored it. The orator's success, by force of talent and honest industry, against the tricks of Verres and his counsel Hortensius broke the domination of this rival in the courts,¹ and made Cicero the first advocate of his time.

In B.C. 69 Cicero became curule ædile, and in B.C. 67 he was elected prætor with great unanimity. In the latter year began the agitation for the Manilian Law,² by his advocacy of which Cicero endeared himself to the people and gained the favor of Pompey, whose powerful support was a kind of bulwark against the envious and exclusive nobility. In his prætorship (B.C. 66) he was allotted to the presidency of the Court for Extortion,³ and in this, as in all his public offices, he was honest and unselfish. During all these years he had continued his career as an advocate, engaging in such cases as seemed likely to extend his political influence and advance him most rapidly in the regular succession of curule offices. After his prætorship he refused a province ⁴ in order to remain at home and canvass for his consulship.

III. Consulship (B.C. 63).

For the consulship of B.C. 63 there were six candidates, but of these only Cicero, Catiline, and C. Antonius were prominent. The contest was not merely one of personal ambition. The first and second conspiracies of Catiline, as well as his notorious character, could have left no doubt that his aims were treasonable. Antonius had combined with him for mutual support in securing election by illegal means, and was himself a weak and unprincipled man. On the other hand, Cicero was a novus homo, a champion of the Equites (though without being an enemy of the senatorial order), and had had an unusually clean record in his office as well as in the Forum. Thus the cause of Cicero’s ambition was, at the same time, the cause of good government against both the worthless and debauched members of the senatorial order on the one hand, and the dregs of the people on the other. It was also the cause of the great middle class against the patricians and the official nobility, who were so entrenched in power that for many years no novus homo had been elected consul. The success of Cicero unquestionably prolonged the existence of the already doomed republic. Antonius, the less dangerous of his two rivals, was elected as his colleague.

¹ See p. 303, below. ² See p. 66, below. ³ See p. lxv, N.¹ ⁴ See p. lxi.

Cicero had now reached the goal for which he had striven from his earliest youth. His administration is famous for the overthrow of the Catilinarian conspiracy, which has cast into obscurity all his other consular acts. These, however, were of such a character, in relation to the needs of the times, as to be unimportant. By birth an eques, but by virtue of his offices a member of the senatorial order, Cicero had always been eager to reconcile and unite these, the two upper classes in Roman society and politics. He failed to see that the real needs of the commonwealth, as well as its real strength, centred in the interests of the common people. His association with Pompey, and his own rise in official rank, made him incline more and more to the side of the Senate, and he seems to have thought it his mission to restore that body, now thoroughly effete, to its former purity and political importance. The minor acts of his administration were dictated by such sentiments as these,

1 See p. 50, below.
2 On the strife between the Senate and the Equites, see p. lxv.
3 Such were his opposition to the agrarian law proposed by the tribune Rullus, his support of the Lex Roscia, which gave the equites fourteen rows of seats in the theatre, and his laws against bribery at elections.
and are significant only as illustrating his character and opinions.

The history of Catiline's conspiracy is given in the Introduction to the four Orations against Catiline,¹ and need not be repeated here. The conspirators were completely thwarted, and five of them were, in accordance with a resolution of the Senate, put to death by the consul without a trial. This victory was the climax of Cicero's career, and he always regarded it as one of the greatest of human achievements. In fact, however, it marked the beginning of his downfall.

IV. Consulship to Banishment (B.C. 63–58).

The execution of the conspirators without the forms of law was a blunder, and grievously did Cicero answer for it. He had distinctly violated the constitution, and thus he had laid himself open to the attacks of his enemies. At the end of his consulate, one of the tribunes, Q. Metellus Nepos, prevented him from making the customary speech to the people "because he had put to death Roman citizens without a trial." The next year, when he was defending P. Sulla, the accuser (L. Torquatus) upbraided him as a tyrant, "the third foreign king of Rome." A year later P. Clodius ² began to speak of him in the same terms. Clodius, indeed, continued to pursue him till he accomplished his banishment and the confiscation of his property. Almost the whole time from his consulship till the year of his banishment was spent in seeking support against his enemies. He attached himself more closely to Pompey, and pleaded causes of all kinds to win friends, but his efforts were useless.

In B.C. 60 Roman politics took a turn extremely unfavorable to Cicero. Pompey, who on his return from the East had been

¹ See pp. 98, 113, 126, 141, below.
² For the character of Clodius, see p. 169, below.
unfairly treated by the extreme senatorial party, allied himself with the democratic leaders, Cæsar and Crassus, in a coalition often called the First Triumvirate. As a result, the Senate became for a time almost powerless, and everything was in the hands of the popular party. The next year, Cæsar, as consul, procured the passage of an iniquitous law for dividing the fertile and populous territory of Campania among needy citizens of Rome. Cicero refused to serve on the board appointed to execute this law. Thus he not only exasperated the mob, but brought down upon himself the resentment of the triumvirs, who, though two of them, Cæsar and Pompey, still professed to be his personal friends, refused to protect him against the attacks of his enemies. Accordingly, in b.c. 58, Clodius, then tribune, brought forward a law that whoever had put to death a Roman citizen, without trial, “should be denied the use of fire and water” (the Roman formula for banishment). This bill was obviously aimed at Cicero’s action in the case of the Catilinarians. Cicero at once took alarm, and after appealing in vain to the consuls of the year, L. Calpurnius Piso and A. Gabinius, as well as to Pompey, left Rome about March 20, just as the affair was coming to blows. Immediately after his departure, Clodius procured the passage of a special bill against him, forbidding him, by name, the use of fire or water anywhere within four hundred miles of Italy. At the same time his house on the Palatine and his Tuscan villa were pillaged and destroyed by a mob. Upon receiving news of these proceedings, Cicero prepared to leave Italy altogether. He embarked from Brundisium, April 29, and arrived at Thessa-

1 In order to be eligible for this office, Clodius, by birth a patrician, had procured his adoption into a plebeian family. His express purpose in the whole transaction was to accomplish the ruin of Cicero. For the cause of his animosity, see note on Defence of Milo, sect. 13 (p. 176, l. 14).

2 See note on Cat. i., sect. 1, p. 99, l. 4.

3 Cf. note on Plunder of Syracuse, sect. 12, p. 54, l. 27.
Life of Cicero.

Corinna on the 23d of May.\(^1\) Here he remained as the guest of his friend Plancius, then quaestor of Macedonia, until November, when he removed to Dyrrachium. His friends at Rome were constantly agitating for his recall, but without success.

The next year, however, B.C. 57, it suited the designs of Pompey, then once more inclining to the senatorial party, to allow his return. His influence with the nobility as well as with the equestrian order, was a point to be secured in the great game of politics. On the 1st of January, the consul L. Cornelius Lentulus Spinther brought forward a bill for his recall. This was vetoed by a tribune. Other attempts were made by his friends, which resulted only in riot and disorder. Finally, partly through the efforts of T. Annius Milo, who met the violence of Clodius with opposing violence, partly through the partisanship of Pompey and the Senate, which brought to the city the citizens of the Municipia and the Italian colonies ("the country members"),\(^2\) a law was passed, Aug. 4, B.C. 57, revoking the decree of exile. Cicero arrived in Rome September 4. His journey through Italy was like a continuous triumphal procession, and to his exalted imagination, freedom, which had departed with him, was now returned to Rome. But in fact his restoration had been merely a piece of selfish policy on the part of the great leaders. He remained the most consummate rhetorician of all time, but his prominence in the state was gone forever. He had never been a statesman, and now he had not the chance to be even a politician.

\(^1\) For the exact chronology of Cicero’s flight, see C. L. Smith, Harvard Studies in Classical Philology, VII. 65 ff.

\(^2\) See p. liii.
V. FROM CICERO'S RECALL TO THE BREAKING OUT OF THE CIVIL WAR (B.C. 56-49).

Upon his return he delivered two famous speeches (one in the Senate and one before the people), in which he thanked the state for restoring him, and lauded Pompey to the skies. The "triumvirs" were still all-powerful at Rome, and Cicero, like the rest, was forced to conform to their wishes and designs. In this same year he proposed a measure which gave Pompey extraordinary powers over the provincial grain market, for the purpose of securing the city against scarcity of provisions. Next year (B.C. 56) he spoke strongly in favor of continuing Caesar's proconsular authority in Gaul. With Crassus, the third "triumvir," Cicero had never been on good terms, but, at the request of the other two triumvirs, he became reconciled with him in B.C. 55, shortly before the latter set out on his fatal expedition against the Parthians.

During these years, becoming less and less important in politics, Cicero began to devote himself more to literature, and wrote the De Oratore, the Republic, and the treatise De Legibus. He also continued his activity at the bar on his own behalf and that of his friends, as well as at the request of the powerful leaders. He secured the restoration of his property, and defended Sestius, who had been active in his recall. Toward the end of this period he also defended Milo for the murder of Clodius. His defence of Gabinius and Vatinius (B.C. 54), creatures of Pompey and Caesar respectively, was less honorable to him; but he was hardly a free agent in these matters. "I am distressed," he writes to his brother Quintus, "I am

---

1 Post Reditum: i. (in Senatu); ii. (ad Quirites).
2 See the oration De Consularibus Provinciis.
3 Pro Domu Sua (B.C. 57).
4 Pro P. Sestio, on a charge of assault (B.C. 56).
5 B.C. 52. For the circumstances, see pp. 169, 170, below.
Life of Cicero.

distressed that there is no longer any government nor any courts, and that this time of my life, which ought to be brilliant with the prestige of a Senator, is either worn out in the labors of the Forum, or made endurable by literature at home. Of my enemies, some I do not oppose, and others I even defend. I am not only not free to think as I will, but not even to hate as I will.”

The disturbances following the death of Clodius led to the appointment of Pompey as consul without colleague (practically dictator), in B.C. 52. One of his acts was to pass a law postponing the provincial administration of consuls and praetors until five years after their year of office. The interval was to be filled by such former magistrates as had never held a province. Among these was Cicero, who therefore had to submit to the lot. He drew Cilicia, in which an inroad of the Parthians was expected.

About May 1, B.C. 51, he set out for this province. His administration was in accord with the principles expressed in his writings, — clean and honest, — a thing worthy of notice in an age of corruption and greed. He had the good fortune to escape the test of a formidable war, but he was successful in overcoming some tribes of plundering mountaineers. For this he was hailed as imperator, according to custom, and he even hoped for the honor of a triumph, the highest conventional distinction which a Roman could obtain. He returned to Rome late in B.C. 50, and was still endeavoring to secure permission to celebrate his triumph when the great Civil War between Caesar and Pompey broke out (B.C. 49).

---

1 Ad Quintum Fratrem, iii. 5 (6).
2 See p. 170, below.
3 These efforts were unsuccessful.
VI. From the Beginning of the Civil War to the Murder of Cæsar (B.C. 49–44).

Cicero was now in a very difficult position. It became necessary for every man of importance to take sides; yet he could not see his way clear to join either party. For some time he vacillated, while both Cæsar and Pompey made earnest efforts to secure his support. His great hope was to mediate between them; and, after Pompey had left Italy, he remained behind with this end in view. Finally, however, he decided for Pompey as the champion of the senatorial party, and set out, though with great reluctance, to join him at Dyrrachium (June 11, B.C. 49). In the camp he found things even worse than he had expected, and he gave up the cause of the Republic for lost.¹ On account of illness he was not present at the Battle of Pharsalia (Aug. 9, B.C. 48). After the fate of the contest was decided, he refused to continue the struggle or to follow the adherents of the lost cause to Africa, but returned to Italy (September, B.C. 48), to make terms with the conqueror. He remained at Brundisium until Cæsar’s return from Egypt in September, B.C. 47, when he at once sought an interview. Cæsar received him with great kindness and respect, and allowed him once more to return to Rome.

From this time until the assassination of Cæsar in B.C. 44, Cicero remained for the most part in retirement at his Tuscanian villa, absorbed in literary pursuits, though in B.C. 46 he delivered his Oration for Marcellus² (remarkable for its praise of Cæsar), and his Defence of Ligarius,³ and, in the following year, his Defence of King Deiotarus of Galatia, charged with attempting the murder of Cæsar. The chief literary fruits of this period of leisure were three works on oratory (De Claris Orato-

¹ See the passages from Cicero’s letters quoted in note to The Pardon of Marcellus, sect. 16 (p. 219, l. 4).
VII. FROM THE MURDER OF CÆSAR TO THE DEATH OF CICERO

(b.c. 44–43).

Though Cicero had no share in the conspiracy against Cæsar, his sympathy was counted on by Brutus and Cassius, and he hailed the death of the Dictator as the restoration of the republic. But the conspirators had made no adequate provision for carrying on the government, and Cicero soon felt that his hopes were doomed to disappointment. Bitterly chagrined by the disorderly scenes that followed, he retired once more to the country, and in July, b.c. 44, set out for a journey to Greece, but, changing his plans in consequence of better news from Rome, he returned to the city in the following month. The chief power was now in the hands of the surviving consul, Mark Antony, whose principal rival was Octavianus (afterwards the Emperor Augustus), Cæsar's adopted son. Cicero appeared again in the Senate and began his celebrated series of orations against Antony with the First Philippic (Sept. 2). Once more he took an active part in politics, apparently assuming his old position as leader, and speaking with all the charm and effectiveness of his earlier days. But he had fallen upon evil times; arms could no longer yield to the gown, and it soon became clear that there could be no peace except by the complete victory of a single aspirant for the supremacy.

1 About this time were written the De Divinatione, De Fato, De Amicitia, and De Officiis.

2 For further details see Introduction to the Fourteenth Philippic, pp. 239–241, below.

Octavianus at first joined with the Senate against Antony, but he soon broke with the constitutional authorities, and, in B.C. 43, formed with Antony and Lepidus the coalition known as the Second Triumvirate. A merciless proscription at once began. Octavianus had every reason to be grateful to Cicero, but he was of a cold and ungenerous nature, and when Antony demanded his death he made no objection. Cicero's name was accordingly placed on the list of proscribed citizens. Cicero was at this time at his Tusculan villa. He made a half-hearted attempt to escape from Italy, but was overtaken near his villa at Formiae by the soldiers of the triumvirs, and met his death with firmness (Dec. 7, B.C. 43). Antony satisfied his hatred by indignities to the mangled remains.

The career of Cicero is a remarkable example of a sudden rise, followed by an utter collapse and fall. His rise was the natural result of his own ability, industry, and ambition; his fall was as naturally caused by his defects, coupled with his good qualities,—a mixture that produced a certain weakness of character. Had he been less timid or less scrupulous, or, on the other hand, had he been more far-sighted, he might have remained on the pedestal to which he was proud to have raised himself and on which he was ambitious to stand. But the times needed a different kind of man, and others, far less worthy, but able and willing to cope with the contending forces in the state, supplanted him. One quality was particularly instrumental both in his rise and his fall. He excelled in forcible and witty abuse. He dearly loved a bitter jest, and he lived among a people that were constitutionally inclined to abusive language. No doubt it was this talent for invective that made him popular when it happened to be directed in accordance with the people’s taste. But it also alienated his friends, and embittered his enemies. He was called a Scurra and a Cynic, and it was perhaps a pun that cost him the favor of Octavianus; certainly it was his abuse of Antony and Fulvia that cost him his life. But he was the first orator of all time, a literary worker of the rarest gifts, and according to his lights a lover and servant of the state.

The following list gives the titles and subjects of all of Cicero’s orations (except fragments) which have survived:

B.C. 81. Pro P. Quinctio: Defence of Quinctius in a prosecution by Sex. Nævius, to recover the profits of a partnership in some land in Gaul, inherited from his brother C. Quinctius.

B.C. 80. Pro Sex. Roscio Amerino: Defence of Roscius on a charge of parricide brought by Ercius as professional prosecutor, at the instigation of Chrysogonus.

B.C. 76 (?). Pro Q. Roscio Comodeo: Defence of the actor Roscius from the claim of C. Fannius Chærea to half the profits of certain lands taken as the value of a slave held by them in partnership, and killed by C. Flavius.

B.C. 72 (or 71). Pro M. Tullio: Plea for damages for an assault made by a rival claimant on Tullius’ estate.

B.C. 70. In Caecilium (“Divinatio”): Plea on the technical right of Cicero to conduct the prosecution against Verres.

—— In C. Verrem: Impeachment of Verres for plunder and oppression in Sicily. Six Orations. — (1) The general charge (“Actio Prima”); (2) De Praetura Urbana: earlier political crimes of Verres; (3) De Jurisdictione Siciliana: his administration in Sicily; (4) De Frumento: peculation and fraud as to the supplies of grain;
Introduction.

(5) De Signis: the plunder of works of art; (6) De Suppliciis: cruelties of his government.

B.C. 69. Pro M. Fonteio: Defence of Fonteius' administration of Gaul during Pompey's campaign against Sertorius, about B.C. 75.

— Pro A. Caecina: Defence against Aebutius of Caecina's right to an estate received by inheritance from his wife Caesennia, widow of a rich money-lender, M. Fulcinius.

B.C. 66. Pro Lege Manilia, vel De Imperio Cn. Pompei: Defence of the proposal of Manilius to invest Pompey with the command of the war against Mithridates.

— Pro A. Cluentio Habito: Defence of Cluentius against the charge of poisoning his stepfather Oppianicus, brought by the younger Oppianicus, instigated by Sassia, the mother of Cluentius.

B.C. 63. De Lege Agraria: Against the Agrarian Law of Rullus. Three orations: the first delivered in the Senate and the others before the people.

— Pro C. Rabirio: Defence of Rabirius on the charge of killing Saturninus, about B.C. 100.

— In L. Catilinam: On the Conspiracy of Catiline. Four orations: the first and last delivered in the Senate, the second and third before the people.

— Pro L. Murena: Defence of Murena on a charge of bribery brought by Sulpicius, the defeated candidate for the consulship. (Following previous orations on the same side by Hortensius and Crassus.)

B.C. 62. Pro P. Cornelio Sulla: Defence of Sulla from the charge of sharing in Catiline's conspiracy.

— Pro A. Licinio Archia: Defence of the claim of the poet Archias to Roman citizenship.

B.C. 59. Pro L. Valerio Flacco: Defence of Flaccus on a charge of maladministration as propraetor in Asia.

B.C. 57. Post Reditum: Thanks for Cicero's recall from exile. Two orations: (1) In Senatu; (2) Ad Quirites.

— Pro Domo Sua: Appeal to the pontifices against the alienation of Cicero's estate by Clodius.

— De Haruspicum Responsis: Invective against the impieties of Clodius.
Works of Cicero.

B.C. 56. Pro P. Sestio: Defence of Sestius, a partisan of Cicero, on a charge of assault, the attack having been made on Sestius by the dependants and partisans of Clodius.

— In P. Vatinium ("Interrogatio"): A personal attack on Vatinius, one of the witnesses against Sestius.

— Pro M. Caelio: Defence of the character of Cælius (a dissolute young friend of Cicero) against a vindictive charge of stealing and poisoning, brought by Atratinus, at the instigation of Clodia.

— De Provinciis Consularibus: Advocating the recall of Piso and Gabinius, and the retaining of Cæsar in the proconsulate of Gaul.

— Pro Cornelio Balbo: Defence of Balbus (a citizen of Gades) in his right of Roman citizenship, granted by Pompey.

B.C. 55. In L. Calpurnium Pisonem: Retaliation for an attack made by Piso after his return from the proconsulate of Macedonia.

B.C. 54. Pro Cn. Plancio: Defence of Plancius on the charge of corrupt political bargaining, brought by M. Junius Laterensis, the defeated candidate for ædile.

— Pro C. Rabirio Postumo: Defence of Rabirius, in a prosecution to recover money alleged to have been received from Ptolemy, King of Egypt, in corrupt partnership with Gabinius.

B.C. 46. Pro M. Marcello: Speech of thanks to Cæsar for the pardon of Marcellus.

— Pro Q. Ligario: Petition of pardon for Ligarius, charged with conducting the war in Africa against Cæsar.

B.C. 45. Pro Rege Deiotaro: Defence of Deiotarus, King of Galatia, charged with attempting the murder of Cæsar.

B.C. 44–43. In M. Antonium: Orationes Philippicae XIV.—

B.C. 44. (1) (Sept. 2) Reply to an invective of Antony: exhortation to the consuls Antony and Dolabella; (2) Reply to a bitter invective: a review of Antony’s public and private life; (3) (Dec. 20) Urging the support of Octavianus (Augustus) and D. Brutus against Antony, now in Hither Gaul; (4) (Dec. 20) Exposition to the people of the acts of the Senate, and praise of D. Brutus, B.C. 43; (5) (Jan.
Introduction.

1) Protest against treating with Antony: he should be declared a public enemy; (6) (Jan. 4) Appeal to the people: the embassy to Antony would be in vain; (7) (end of January) Protest against those who clamored for peace: Antony must not be suffered to escape; (8) (February) The war against Antony is justum bellum: his partisans should be required to submit before the 1st of March; (9) (February) Eulogy of Sulpicius, who had died while on the mission to Antony; (10) (February) Thanks to Pansa, and praise of M. Brutus; (11) (about March) That Asia should be assigned to Cassius, to conduct the war against Trebonius; (12) (about March) Declining to serve, with P. Servilius, on an embassy to Antony; (13) (March 20) There can be no peace with Antony: praise of Sex. Pompey; (14) (April 22) Thanksgiving proposed, and honors to the dead, after the defeat of Antony at Bononia.

The titles of Cicero’s other writings (exclusive of some fragments and lost works) are as follows:

B.C.

(7) Phaenomena. (Translation from Aratus, in verse.)
84. De Inventione Rhetorica, 2 Books. 1

1 The Rhetorica ad C. Herennium (in four Books), once ascribed to Cicero, is certainly not from his hand.

55. De Oratore, 3 Books.
54–52. De Re Publica.
52 (and later). De Legibus.
46. De Claris Oratoribus (Brutus).
46. Paradoxa. (A treatment of six Stoic paradoxes in the manner of that school.)
46. Orator.
46 (or 45). De Partitione Oratoria.
45. De Finibus Bonorum et Maleorum, 5 Books. (On the ultimate foundations of ethics.)
45. Academica, 2 Books. (Defence of the philosophy of the New Academy.)
45–44. Tusculanae Quaestiones, 5 Books. (Incidental questions concerning ethics.)
Chronological Table

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>B.C.</th>
<th>Work</th>
<th>Details</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>45 (or 44)</td>
<td>Timaeus. (Free translation from Plato.)</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>45-44</td>
<td>De Natura Deorum, 3 Books.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>45 (or 44)</td>
<td>De Senectute (Cato Major).</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>44</td>
<td>De Divinatione, 2 Books.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>44</td>
<td>De Fato.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>44</td>
<td>Topica.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>44</td>
<td>De Amicitia (Laelius).</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>44</td>
<td>De Officiis, 3 Books.</td>
<td>(A treatise on practical ethics.)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>44 (?)</td>
<td>De Optimo Genere Oratorum.</td>
<td>(On the Attic and the Asiatic style.)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>62-43</td>
<td>Epistolae ad Familiares (Ad Diversos), 16 Books.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>60-54</td>
<td>Ad Quintum Fratrem, 3 Books.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>68-43</td>
<td>Ad Atticum, 16 Books.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

CHRONOLOGICAL TABLE

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Year</th>
<th>Event</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>106</td>
<td>Birth of Cicero (Jan. 3). Birth of Pompey (Sept. 30). Marius finishes the Jugurthine War.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>102</td>
<td>Birth of Quintus Cicero. The Teutones defeated by Marius at Aquae Sextiae.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>101</td>
<td>The Cimbri defeated by Marius at Vercellae.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>100 (perhaps 102)</td>
<td>Birth of Caesar (July 12).</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>99</td>
<td>Death of Saturninus and Glaucia.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>91</td>
<td>Murder of M. Livius Drusus. Social (or Marsic) War begins.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>90</td>
<td>Cicero assumes the toga virilis.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>89</td>
<td>Cicero serves under Cn. Pompeius Strabo in the Social War.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>87</td>
<td>Conflict between Cinna and Octavius. Marius returns to Rome. Massacre of the senatorial party.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>84</td>
<td>Sulla ends the First Mithridatic War. Murder of Cinna.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>83</td>
<td>Sulla returns to Italy. Second Mithridatic War (ends 82).</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>82</td>
<td>Sulla overthrows the Marian party. The Proscription (ends June 1, 81). Sulla appointed Dictator.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Introduction.

81. Reforms of Sulla: the courts reorganized, etc. Cicero's Defence of P. Quintius (his first extant oration).
79. Sulla resigns the dictatorship. Cicero goes to Greece.
77. Cicero returns from Greece. He marries Terentia (perhaps earlier).
76. War with Sertorius (ends 72).
75. Cicero quaestor in Sicily.
74. Third Mithridatic War begins. Lucullus goes to the East. Cicero returns from Sicily to Rome.
73. War with Spartacus (ends with the death of Spartacus, 71). Successes of Lucullus against Mithridates.
72. End of the Sertorian War in Spain (Pompey defeats Perperna).
70. First consulship of Pompey and Crassus. Cicero's Impeachment of Verres. Courts restored to the equites. Tribuniciian power re-established.
69. Cicero curule aedile. Lucullus defeats Tigranes at Tigranocerta.
68. Successes of Mithridates against the lieutenants of Lucullus.
65. Birth of Cicero's only son, Marcus. First Conspiracy of Catiline.
61. Trial of Clodius for violating the mysteries. Cicero's strife with him in the Senate.
Chronological Table.

60. The First Triumvirate (coalition of Cæsar, Pompey, and Crassus).
59. First consulship of Cæsar (with Bibulus). Clodius is chosen tribune.
58. Tribunate of Clodius. His legislation. Cicero driven into exile. Beginning of Cæsar's conquest of Gaul (finished in 51).
57. Cicero recalled from exile (law passed Aug. 4).
56. Cicero's Defence of Sestius.
55. Second consulship of Pompey and Crassus. Cæsar's command in Gaul renewed. His first invasion of Britain.
54. Cæsar's second invasion of Britain.
53. Cicero made augur. Crassus and his army destroyed by the Parthians (Battle of Carrhæ).
52. Clodius killed (Jan. 20). Burning of the Senate-house. Pompey elected consul without colleague (Feb. 25). Cicero's Defence of Milo.
51. Cicero proconsul in Cilicia. His successful campaign against the mountaineers.
50. Cicero returns to Italy.
49. Cæsar crosses the Rubicon. Beginning of the Great Civil War (ends 46). Cicero's efforts for peace. Pompey retires to Epirus, where Cicero joins him. Cæsar acquires Spain.
    Cæsar dictator.
    (Alexandrine War). Cæsar re-appointed dictator.
47. Cæsar returns to Rome. He pardons Cicero. He sails for Africa against the Pompeians.
46. Battle of Thapsus. Cato kills himself at Utica. Cæsar returns to Rome, undisputed master of the Empire. He is made dictator for ten years. His reform of the calendar.
    Revolt of the sons of Pompey in Spain. Cicero divorces Terentia and marries Publilia. Cicero's Oration for Marcellus; for Ligarius.
45. Cæsar defeats the sons of Pompey (Battle of Munda). Death of Cicero's daughter, Tullia. Tusculan Questions, etc.
Introduction.

B.C.

Cicero divorces Publilia. Caesar appointed dictator for ten years.

42. Battle of Philippi.

II. ROMAN ORATORY.

From the earliest times of which we have historical knowledge, up to the establishment of the Empire as the result of Civil War, the constitution of Rome was republican, in so far that all laws were passed and all magistrates elected by a vote of all the citizens. The principle of "representation," however, which to us seems inseparable from republican institutions, was unknown to the Romans. All laws were passed, and all officers were elected, at what we should call a mass meeting of the entire body of citizens, convened at the central seat of government. The absence of newspapers, also, made a distinct difference between ancient political conditions and those of our own times. Conversation and public addresses were the only means of disseminating political ideas. And even the scope of public addresses was much limited; for meetings could be called by a magistrate only, and could be addressed by only such persons as the presiding magistrate would permit. Obviously, under such a régime, public speaking, which even now has a distinct potency in state affairs, must have been far more efficacious as a political instrument than it is to-day.

To this must be added the fact that under Roman polity the only means of social advancement was success in a political career. The Senate, the Roman peerage,¹ consisted practically only of persons who had been elected to one or more of the three graded magistracies, quaestorship, praetorship, consulship (the cursus honorum).² Hence every ambitious Roman, of high or low estate, had to become a politician and follow the regular course of office-holding. The curule magistrates were at once generals, judges, and statesmen. To achieve success, therefore, a politician had to show ability in all of these directions. Occasionally, to be sure, a man succeeded by virtue of a single talent,—like Marius, who owed his advancement solely to his valor and military skill; but such instances were rare. Next to military fame, the strongest recommendation to the favor of the people was oratorical ability. Then, as now, the orator’s power to move the multitude in public affairs was the readiest means of advancement. Further, political prosecutions, and private suits prompted by political motives, were of the commonest occurrence, and these afforded an eloquent advocate abundant opportunity to make himself known and to secure the favor of large bodies of supporters. Again, the Senate was a numerous and somewhat turbulent body, always more or less divided in a partisan sense; and, though it had no legislative functions, it still exercised a very strong influence on politics. To be able to sway this large assembly by force of oratory was of great moment to an aspiring Roman. Finally, though the contention for office ceased with the consulship, there still continued among the consulares, who formed almost a distinct class in society and public life, a vehement rivalry to be regarded as the leading man in the state.³ For all these reasons, the art of oratory was perhaps more highly esteemed and of greater practical value in the later period of the Roman Republic than at any other time in the history of the world.

Introduction.

But even from the very establishment of the commonwealth, oratory was highly prized, and Cicero gives a long roll of distinguished orators from the First Secession of the Plebs (B.C. 494) to his own time. The most eminent of those whose art was still uninfluenced by Greek rhetoric, was Cato the Censor (died B.C. 149), who may be called the last of the natural Roman orators. His speeches are lost, but more than a hundred and fifty of them were known to Cicero, who praises them as acuta, elegantes, facetae, breves.

It was in Cato’s lifetime that the introduction of Greek art and letters into Rome took place; and oratory, like all other forms of literature, felt the new influence at once. The oration, though still valued most for its effectiveness, soon came to be looked on as an artistic work as well. The beginning of this tendency is seen in Ser. Sulpicius Galba (consul B.C. 144) and M. Lepidus (consul B.C. 137). Galba, in the words of Cicero, “was the first of the Latins to employ the peculiar arts of the orator,—digressions to introduce ornament, the art of captivating the minds of his hearers, of moving them with passion, of exaggerating a case, of appealing to pity, and the art of introducing commonplace.” It was in Lepidus, however, that the full effect of Greek art first manifested itself, not to such a degree as to destroy originality, but sufficiently to foster native talent and develop a truly national school of speaking. Cicero, who had many of his orations, declares that he was “the first Roman orator to show Greek smoothness and the unity of the period.”

1 That is, digressions on general subjects which would fit any particular oration when a point of the kind arose.

2 For the Latin period, see p. xlvi.
passing genius" and of unequalled excellence, whose early death was a heavy loss to Latin literature.¹

In the generation immediately preceding Cicero, in which oratory was enthusiastically cultivated and carried to a high pitch of perfection, two figures tower above all others, Marcus Antonius (the grandfather of Mark Antony) and L. Crassus. Both were Cicero's masters in his youth,² and he finds it hard to prefer one to the other; but, on the whole, he seems to regard Crassus as the greater orator. "The lofty earnestness and dignity of his nature were relieved by the brightest humor and the wittiest vein of genius. His diction was as choice and elegant as it was free and unaffected, and with the mastery of tasteful exposition he united the clearest logical development of thought."³

Crassus appears in the De Oratore as the exponent of Cicero's own views of the aim, function, appointments, and preparation of the orator. To Crassus the orator was no mere handicraftsman, confined to manipulating juries and popular assemblies, but statesman and philosopher as well, requiring for his equipment all the knowledge that could be gained on the highest subjects that interest mankind. He was himself familiar with all the ancient systems of philosophy as expounded by the wise from Plato to Diodorus, and had discussed the nature and functions of oratory with the philosophers of his time in person at Athens. This ideal of the orator, contrasted with Cato's definition vir bonus dicendi peritus, shows the

¹ A little fragment of one of his speeches became classic at Rome and used to be learned by heart. "Wretched man that I am! Whither shall I go? In what direction shall I turn? To the Capitol? But it is reeking with the blood of my brother. To my home? To see there my mother crushed with grief and lamentation?" — "These words," says Cicero, "were delivered in such a way, by the help of eyes, voice, and gesture, that even his enemies could not restrain their tears."

² See p. xiv.

³ Cicero's testimony, as summed up by Piderit.
Introduction.

advance of the art as such between the earliest times and those of Cicero.

Yet in the Roman orations, addressed as they were to an intensely practical people, matter had always been more attended to than manner, effective force than artistic elegance. Even Cicero himself, in his public addresses, conceals, and even disparages, his knowledge of Greek art, philosophy, and literature. But in his time the study of oratory as an art began to be pursued for a definite end,—the acquiring of a distinct style. And in this study two different styles offered themselves to the choice of the aspiring young Roman,—namely, the Asiatic and the Attic.

The precise difference between the two styles cannot be exactly determined; but from the middle of the first century B.C., both were advocated and practised by enthusiastic partisans in a controversy like that between realism and romanticism, or Wagnerism and classicism.

It would seem, in a general way, that Atticism stood for directness, force, and naturalness, while Asiaticism (or Asianism) represented display and affectation in all its forms. Cicero says in one place,¹ “The styles of Asiatic oratory are two,—one epigrammatic and pointed, full of fine ideas which are not so weighty and serious as neat and graceful; the other with not so many sententious ideas, but voluble and hurried in its flow of language, and marked by an ornamented and elegant diction.” From these hints, as well as from the practice of imperial times (in which this style had full sway), we may gather that the “Asiatic” orators sought the applause of the audience and a reputation for smartness, and were overstrained and artificial.²

About Cicero's time a reaction had set in, and a school had arisen which called itself Attic, and attempted to return to the simplicity of Xenophon and Lysias. But in avoiding the Eastern exaggeration, it had fallen into a meagreness and baldness very different from the direct force of Demosthenes. Probably this tendency was really no more sincere than the other, for both styles alike aimed to excite the admiration of the hearer rather than to influence his mind or feelings by the effective presentation of ideas.

¹ Brutus, xcv, 325.
² This Asiatic oratory was the decayed development of the highly ornamented style cultivated by Isocrates (B.C. 436-338).

Hortensius, the great contemporary and rival of Cicero, was a special example of the Asiatic school. He was a somewhat effeminate person, with a dandified air both in composition and delivery. "His voice," we read, "was resonant and sweet, his motions and gestures had even more art than is suitable for an orator."

The extreme Attic school was represented by C. Licinius Calvus. "Though he handled his style with knowledge and good taste," writes Cicero, "yet being too critical of himself, and fearing to acquire unhealthy force, he lost even real vitality. Accordingly, his speaking, repressed by too great scrupulousness, was brilliant to the learned and those who listened to him attentively, but by the crowd and the Forum it was swallowed like a pill."

It is important to settle Cicero's own position in this contest. He himself fancied that he followed the true and best form of Atticism. We see by his oratorical works that his ideas were formed on the best models; that he was familiar with all the rhetorical systems of the Greeks of the best period, and fully appreciated all the excellencies of the earlier Roman orators, as well as the simplicity and directness of Demosthenes. But taste had declined, and everything had to be overdone to satisfy the public. Cicero seems to have taken a

---

1 Brutus, xcv, 326.
2 Born May 28, B.C. 82; died before B.C. 67.
3 Brutus, lxxxii, 284.
middle course, following the style of the Rhodian school, a branch or outgrowth of the Asiatic, with strong Attic tendencies. It professed to abhor the luxuriance and affectation of Asianism and to aim at the old directness and true feeling; but Cicero was assailed in his own time for exaggeration, false pathos, and artificial rhetoric, such as were characteristic of Asianism. Nor could we expect anything else. He could not restore a style which the age could not appreciate, nor rise to a height for which his native genius was insufficient. With him, however, Latin oratory reached the acme of its development.

Immediately after Cicero, came the Empire with its suppression of free thought, and in this the extreme style of Asiatic exaggeration and posing became the rage. Many literary men endeavored to stem this tide, but in vain. The younger Pliny attempted to take Cicero as his model, but the only oration of his that we possess is merely a fulsome rhetorical exercise. Quintilian wrote a treatise on the education of the orator, full of sound learning and good sense. Oratory was the favorite study of all literary men, and even emperors entered the lists to contend for pre-eminence. But "art for art's sake" had become the aim in literature generally; and oratory, now divorced from real feeling, could not but end in affected brilliancy and false emotion, such as mark all we know of later Roman work.

Before the Romans came into contact with Greek oratory, that art had been reduced to a very elaborate and even pedantic science. All the principles by which a public speaker could proceed had been formulated into rules which even to this day, with or without the speaker's knowledge, guide all discussion. Without going into the minute details of the system, one may well notice the scientific principles which had been carefully mastered by Cicero, and which formed the basis of his skill as an orator.
Roman Oratory.

Naturally the first matter to be attended to was the settlement of the question at issue (constitutio causae). As the ancient science of rhetoric had to do with discourse of every kind, all questions that might arise were divided into two classes: those whose discussion was directed to acquiring knowledge merely (quaestiones cognitionis), and those directed to determining what action should be taken as the result of the enquiry (quaestiones actionis). With the former we have nothing to do here. They are confined to philosophical discussion only, and the orations of Cicero are all on practical subjects.

The practical questions included under the quaestiones actionis were of several different kinds: they might be judicial questions coming before some form of court (genus judiciale); they might be deliberative and come before an assembly or senate (genus deliberativum); or they might be questions of praise or blame in reference to some particular person or act not under judicial investigation (genus demonstrativum). The last class would include eulogies and the like.

The oration itself had also its divisions, which were established particularly in regard to the genus judiciale as the most important of the three kinds. The exordium contained necessary preliminary remarks and the approach to the subject. The narratio gave the facts on which the argument was founded. The propositio was the statement of the theme or view to be maintained, and often contained a partitio or division of the proposition. The argumentatio embraced the confirmatio or arguments for the main thesis, and the confutatio (refutatio) or refutation of real or supposed arguments of the opponent. The address ended with the peroratio, the place for such application of the argument, or appeal to the hearers, or general remarks, as were suitable to the occasion. Naturally, as the art of speaking came before the science, and was at all times more or less free from scientific trammels, these divisions could not well cover the whole ground, and each of them was accordingly subdivided into several smaller parts, which varied according to the character of the oration. Thus the exordium contained a principium and an insinuatio (the suggestions to be made in order to gain the favorable attention of the hearer), and all the various forms of proof had their place as well as their names in the confirmatio. Even the main divisions are not all clearly marked, but generally they can be made out in Cicero's speeches. For examples, see the summary and the running analysis of each oration in the notes.

With the same particularity were the necessary duties of the orator divided, and furnished each with its technical name: inventio, the gathering of material; dispositio, the arrangement; elocutio, the suitable expression in language; memoria, the committing to memory; actio, the delivery. Under each of these, again, was a body of lore with its technical phrases. Elocutio embraced the whole doctrine of what we should call style, and the use of all rhetorical devices, ornaments (lumina), and forms of speech. So that no science was ever more completely digested and labelled than this of oratory.

Of the orations in the present edition, Roscius, Verres, Archias, Milo, and Ligarius belong purely to the genus judiciæ; the Manilian Law and the four Orations against Catiline belong to the genus deliberativum; the Fourteenth Philippic belongs, in the first part, to the genus deliberativum, but in the eulogy on the generals and their soldiers it gives a specimen of the genus demonstrativum; and the Marcellus belongs almost entirely to this last class.
III. CICERO AS AN ORATOR.

Cicero’s success as an orator was due more than anything else to his skill in effectively presenting the strong points of a case and cleverly covering the weak ones. For this he had extraordinary natural talents, increased by very diligent study and practice, and never, even in his greatest success, did he relax the most careful study of his cases to this end. Attention is called throughout the notes to his felicities in this branch of his art, which, because it is not strictly literary, is likely to be overlooked, and all the more because such art must always be carefully concealed. It is sufficient, however, to call attention to it here generally, referring the student to the notes for details.

On the literary side of oratory, Cicero’s only rival is Demosthenes, to whom he is superior in everything except moral earnestness and the power that comes from it, a quality which belongs to the man rather than the orator. Teuffel (Gesch. der Röm. Lit.) ascribes to him an extraordinary activity of intellect, a lively imagination, quickness and warmth of feeling, a marvellous sense of form, an inexhaustible fertility of expression, an incisive and diverting wit, with the best physical advantages. As to his “form,” he speaks of it as “clear, choice, clean, copious, appropriate, attractive, tasteful, and harmonious.” The whole range of tones from light jest even to tragic vehemence was at his command, and especially did he excel in an appearance of conviction and emotion, which he increased by an impassioned delivery. Of course he is not always at his best, but it is never safe to criticise his compositions without a careful study of the practical necessities of the occasion.

Thus Cicero’s style is often criticised as redundant and tautological, a criticism which must proceed either from ignorchance or inattention. One of the great arts of the public speaker is to keep before his audience a few points in such a way that they cannot be lost sight of. To accomplish this, these points must be repeated as many times as possible, but with such art that the fact of repetition shall not be noticed. Hence the same thing must often be said again and again, or else dwelt upon with a profusion of rhetoric, in order to allow time for the idea to gain a lodgement. It was to this art that the late Rufus Choate owed his success as an advocate, though the literary critic would fain reduce his speeches to one-half their length. Literary tautology is in fact a special oratorical virtue.
A spoken word you hear but once unless it is repeated, and there are things which have to be heard many times before they can have their effect.

Again, apart from "repetitional" tautology, it must be remembered that the Latin language was in a sense a rude tongue, lacking in nice distinctions. Such distinctions must be wrought out by a long-continued effort to express delicate shades of thought. Hence it often becomes necessary in Latin point the exact signification of a word or phrase capable of several meanings, either by contrasting it with its opposite, or else by adding another word which has an equally general meaning, but which, like a stereoscopic view, gives the other side of the same idea, and so rounds out and limits the vagueness of the first. Thus the two together often produce as refined distinctions as any language which has a larger and more precise vocabulary.

In the oration for the Manilian Law (l. 3), for instance, we have singulari eximiaque virtute. Here singulari might mean simply odd (not found in others). This of itself is not necessarily a compliment any more than peculiar is in English, but when Cicero adds eximia the two words together convey the idea that the virtus is not only peculiar to Pompey, but exemplary and of surpassing merit. At the same time the two words allow the orator to dwell longer on a point that he wishes to emphasize.

In the same oration (v. 12) the words periculum et discrimen occur. In a treatise on synonyms it would be impossible to distinguish between these two, because each is very often used for the other with precisely the same meaning. But when the two are used together, as in this passage, they are not tautological, as would at first appear to a microscopic critic. The first refers to the immediate moment of doubt, the question whether it (the salus) shall be preserved or not; the second, to the ultimate decisive moment, which determines that doubt and finally decides. In English we should ordinarily put the whole into one (modified) idea, and say "most dangerous crisis," or the like. But the Latin has a habit of dividing the two parts of an idea and stating each separately. Hence we have the figure that we call hendiadys, which simply means that one language, or age, states separately and co-ordinately what another language, or age, unites into one complex.

In gloriam . . . tueri et conservare (the same oration, v. 12), tueri, the first word, refers to the action of the subject, the effort to maintain; conservare, the second, to the result [to be] attained, the preservation of the glory. To complete the idea both are necessary, because from the general turn of the thought both the effort and the result are alike important. In this way the same general idea can be artfully repeated from two different points of view without the hearer's suspecting a repetition.

To such causes as these is to be attributed the frequent use of words in a manner often called tautological.
IV. LATIN AND ENGLISH STYLE.

Two differences between Latin and English prose are noticeable. Latin prose is periodic in its structure; i.e. the main idea, instead of being expressed at once, briefly followed or preceded by its modifications, all in short detached sentences (as in English), is so put as to embrace all its modifying clauses with itself in one harmonious whole. This is also done at times in formal discourse in English, but in Latin it was the prevailing style. Though this method of presentation seems to us involved, yet it is after all only an artistic elaboration of the loose parenthetical way of speaking habitual with unlettered persons, or, in other words, it simply follows the natural processes of the human mind. But when developed it allows and stimulates an antithetic balance of thought both in sound and sense, so that each element of an idea is brought into notice by an opposing one, or is so embroidered on the level surface of the main idea or injected into it that it cannot fail to get its true effect at the instant when that effect is required.¹

If we take the opening period of the oration for Roscius (p. 2), the main clause is credo ego; the rest of the sentence is all the object of credo in the indirect discourse. The main verb of the indirect discourse is mirari (changed from miramini), with vos in the accusative as its subject. The object of mirari is the indirect question quid sit quod, etc., embracing all the rest (changed from a direct question quid est quod, etc.). Again, the subject of sit is all that follows, being a clause with quod, of which surrexerim is the main verb and all the other clauses are modifiers. The clause cum . . . seseant is a kind of adverbial modifier of surrexerim, while the clause qui . . . sim . . . comparandus is a kind of adjective modifier of ego the subject of surrexerim, and qui seseant is a kind of adjective modifier of his.

Omnes hi, etc., is an independent sentence, but is connected in thought with the preceding, and explains the fact at which the jurors are supposed to be surprised, i.e. I suppose you wonder, etc., but the fact is, etc.

In another sentence, the beginning of the Manilian Law, we have a good example of the antithetic balancing of one word or clause against another which marks the Latin periodic style. The sentence consists of two parts,—the first concessive, introduced by quamquam; the second adversative, introduced by tamen. So, in the first, conspectus balances locus, which is brought into relief by autem ("and again"); while ad agendum amplissimus and ad dicendum ornatissimus are balanced in like manner each other. In the second part, the relative clause qui . . . patuit (virtually concessive) is, as usual, embodied in the main clause, bringing the relative as near as possible to its antecedent aditu; voluntas and rationes are set in antithesis by sed; while the main verb, prohibuerunt, comes last as usual. The logical form of the whole is, "Though political speaking has its advantages, yet I have been prevented," etc.

By stating first the leading thought (hoc aditu, etc.), and putting the verb at the end, Latin is able to make the main clause active, thus partly disguising the art of the antithesis. Here, as elsewhere, it is of great help in reading to observe these two rules: (1) that Latin puts first the main idea, the key to the whole; and (2) that it constantly deals in antitheses, often forcing them when they do not naturally occur (as in amplissimus and ornatissimus), each thought or expression having its pendant, like ornaments which go in pairs.

The second main difference between Latin and English prose style is that in English the emphasis gravitates towards the end, while in Latin the more emphatic word always comes first. This is not, like the corresponding usage in English, a mere tendency, but a universal practice, which can be and is managed by the writer with exquisite skill, so that a Latin prose sentence bears on its face its own emphasis, giving the same effect to the eye that the best reader or speaker in English can to the ear.

Thus the first paragraph of the oration for Roscius (above cited) shows its emphasis as follows: "I SUPPOSE (conceding something he will presently contradict or explain) you (who do not, as I do, know or think of the state of things) wonder why it is that, etc., but the fact is (implied as the antithesis of the emphatic credo)," etc. Again, omnes is emphatic, i.e. "I am not the only one, but all would speak were it not for circumstances," which he proceeds to mention. Even videtis has an emphatic position: "who, as you see, are in attendance." Again, putant oportere defendi, i.e. "THINK (though they do nothing) ought to be averted by a defence, but to make the defence themselves," etc.

If we take the beginning of the oration for Milo, there is the same artistic arrangement: "Though I am AFRAID,¹ gentlemen, that it is not quite BECOMING, when I get up to speak for a very brave man, to be alarmed, and that it is particularly unbecoming, when TITUS ANNIUS himself is more alarmed for the welfare of the state than for his own, that I in his case cannot show an equally lofty spirit, nevertheless this strange form of a strange court terrifies me as I gaze on it, for wherever my eyes fall they miss the customary appearance of the Forum and the old established style of courts."

It is only by attention to this feature of Latin style that the full force of the author, with all the implications, connotations, and hints, can be clearly seen.

¹ As we might say, "I am afraid you won't like it, but I have done so and so."
V. DELIVERY.

The delivery of a Latin oration was marked by a fire and force of which we have small conception. Though the Romans were an extremely dignified and formal race, yet beneath the surface they had all the violent emotions which we in modern times associate with the Mediterranean nations. The actio or delivery occupies one of the first places in ancient treatises on oratory (actio in dicendo una dominatur, de Or. III, lvi, 213). The range of expressed emotion was much wider than is usual with us, not only in pitch of voice and inflection of tone, but also in bodily activity, sometimes going beyond what the best orators of the time regarded as becoming. Violent movements of the arms, stamping of the feet, changes of position, gestures of the whole body, so that sometimes the knee would touch the ground, were not infrequent. The Latin language, however, did not have that violent and sudden stress with which we are familiar, and on which we depend for spasmodic force. It had instead a more sustained and singing tone, capable of infinite variations. The syllabic accent, too, was very slight, and almost merged in a kind of rhythmic ictus depending on the quantity of the syllables.

Hence particular attention was paid to the numerus, or succession of long and short syllables, so as to give, along with varying tones of emphasis, an agreeable musical cadence which is foreign to the spirit of most modern languages. The most emphatic words were indicated by an intensity of tone throughout, as in modern music, and the less emphatic, coming at the end, were pronounced with a full, orotund utterance, so as to round out the period, but with a descending stress rather than with a rising one such as we have in English. Such a close as témérítás fili cómpróbavit was regarded as especially effective. So quin éjús dēm hōminis sit qui imprōlōs prōbēt prōbōs imprōbārē is praised by Cicero as an ideal cadence.
VI. THE ROMAN CONSTITUTION.

In the time of Cicero the Roman "State" had technically a republican constitution, that is, every citizen had a share in the government. But not every citizen had an equal share, partly from fixed constitutional principles, and partly from differentiations in social prominence which affected constitutional rights.

I. CITIZENSHIP AND ORDERS IN THE STATE.

Accordingly there were among Roman citizens three social (and in a manner political) ranks (ordines): the Senatorial Order (ordo senatorius), the Equestrian Order (ordo equestris), and the People (populus, in the narrower sense). The first two of these made up the Roman aristocracy.

I. SENATORIAL ORDER.—The Ordo Senatorius was strictly speaking only another name for the Senate, the members of which, by virtue of their life tenure of office, their privileges and insignia, and their esprit de corps, formed a kind of Peerage. The list of Senators, regularly numbering 300, was in early times made up by the Censors at their discretion from among those who had held high magistracies. But after the reforms of Sulla (B.C. 86) every person who had held the questorship — the lowest grade of the regular magistracy (see below, p. lix) — was lawfully entitled to a seat in the Senate. This aristocracy was therefore an official or bureaucratic class. Their number fluctuated, running up to five or six hundred.

Nobility, however, did not really depend on holding offices oneself, but on being descended from an ancestor who had held a curule office.¹ When any person not so descended was chosen a magistrate, he was called a novus homo,² and, though he of course became a member of the Senatorial Order, he was not regarded as a noble. His posterity, however, would belong to the nobility. But such instances were very uncommon; for the Senate and the magistrates had such control over the elections that it was very difficult for any person not already a member of the nobility to be chosen to any office entitling him to enter the Senate. Hence the Senatorial Order and the Nobility were practically identical, and "new men" became necessarily identified with the class to which their posterity would belong, rather than that from which they themselves had come. This double relation of Cicero—a member of the Senate, but sprung from the Equestrian Order—goes a great way to explain what is inconsistent and vacillating in his political career.

¹ Whoever held any curule office — that is, dictator, consul, interrex, praetor, magister equitum, or curule ædile — secured to his posterity the jus imaginum: that is, the right to place in the hall and carry at funeral processions a wax mask of this ancestor, as well as of any other deceased members of the family of curule rank. (See Def. of Milo, sect. 33, p. 185, l. 14.)

² Examples are Cato the Censor, Marius, and Cicero.
The Roman Constitution.

II. EQUESTRIAN ORDER. — The title Equites was originally applied to the members of the eighteen centuries equitum equo publico under the Servian constitution, to whom a horse was assigned by the state, together with a certain sum of money yearly for its support, and who constituted the old Roman cavalry. Those who served equo publico had to have the equestrian census, i.e. possess a fortune of 400,000 sesterces ($20,000); and the horses were assigned by the Censors, as a rule, to the young men of senatorial families. These centuriae equitum were therefore composed of young noblemen. When they entered the Senate, they were (in the later years of the republic) obliged to give up the public horse. Therefore, on becoming Senators, they voted in the centuries of the first class, not with the Equites (see p. lv, below). This aristocratic body had, however, long before Cicero's time, ceased to serve in the field; they formed a parade corp.: (somewhat like the Royal Guards in England), from which active officers of the legion, tribuni militum, were taken.

During the time that the equites equo publico still served in the field as cavalry, another body grew up by their side, consisting of equites equo privato: that is, persons of the equestrian census (having a property of 400,000 sesterces), who had not received a horse from the state, but who volunteered with horses of their own. This body consisted mainly of young men of wealth who did not belong to noble (that is, senatorial) families. No very distinct line was, however, drawn between the two classes until the Lex Judicia of C. Gracchus (B.C. 123), which prescribed that the judices should not, as heretofore, be taken from the Senators (see p. lxxv), but from those who possessed the equestrian census, and at the same time were not members of the Senate. This law did not formally exclude nobles who were not members of the Senate; but the entire body of nobility was so far identified in spirit and interest with the Senate, that an antagonism immediately grew up between them and this new judicial class. A principal cause of the antagonism was that members of the Senate were prohibited from being engaged in any trade or business;

---

1 This requirement grew up only after the establishment of the equites equo privato.

2 When the Roman equites ceased to serve as cavalry, troops of horse were demanded of the allies; and in the time of Caesar we find that the Roman legion consisted exclusively of infantry, the cavalry being made up of such auxiliaries.
while, as has been shown above, the Senate, by its control over the elections, virtually filled its own vacancies, of course from the ranks of the nobility. Hence, as rich men of non-senatorial families were excluded from a political career, and so from the nobility, while Senators were excluded from a business life, there were formed during the last century of the republic two powerful aristocracies, — the nobles, or Senatorial Order, a governing aristocracy of rank, and the Equestrian Order, an aristocracy of wealth, corresponding to the moneyed aristocracy of our day. The name Ordo Equestris was given to the latter body because its members possessed the original equestrian census: that is, that amount of property which would have entitled them to a public horse. From the ranks of the nobility were taken the oppressive provincial governors: the Equestrian Order, on the other hand, furnished the publicani, the equally oppressive tax-gatherers.

The Equestrian Order, Ordo Equestris, is therefore not merely distinct from the centuriae equitum, but strongly contrasted with them. The former is the wealthy middle class, the latter are the young nobility. The term equites is sometimes applied to both indiscriminately, although the strictly correct term for the members of the Equestrian Order was judices.

III. Populus. — Below these two aristocratic orders, in estate and so in social position, were all the rest of the free-born citizens not possessing a census of 400,000 sesterces. Among these there was naturally great variety in fortune, cultivation, and respectability; but they all had a status superior to that of the libertini (freedmen) and the foreign residents. It was this third class which was under the control of the tribuni plebis and which by its turbulence brought on all the disturbances which ultimately resulted in the overthrow of the republic. It must not be supposed, however, that these humbler citizens were debarred from political preferment except by their want of money, and in fact many of them rose to positions of wealth and influence.

The populus (in the narrower sense) was often confounded with the plebs, but in reality the distinction between the plebs and the patricians was in Cicero's time historical rather than political. The patricians had been originally a privileged class of hereditary nobility, entirely different from the later senatorial nobility; but only a few patrician families remained, and these, though still proud of their high birth, had no special privileges and had been practically merged in the Senatorial Order. Opposed to the patricians had been originally the plebs, a class of unknown origin (probably foreign residents) destitute of all political rights. These had gradually, in the long controversies of the earlier Republican times, acquired all the rights and privileges of full citizens, and a majority of the Senatorial and Equestrian Orders were of plebeian origin. In time plebs in an enlarged sense and populus in its narrower acceptation had become synonymous, meaning the "third estate" or, in other words, all citizens not Senators or equites. Officially, however, Populus (in its wider sense) includes all Roman citizens.¹
The Roman Constitution.

Roman Citizenship.—Roman citizenship, like all rights that have grown up in a long period of time, included many minute details. The important points, however, may be included under two heads: (i) political rights, including those of voting (jus suffragii) and holding office (jus honorum), and (ii) civil rights, especially those securing personal freedom by the right of appeal (jus provocacionis), etc., and by other privileges limiting the arbitrary power of magistrates (see remarks on the imperium, p. lviii, below). Among the civil rights were those of trade (commercia), intermarriage (connubia), making a will (testamenta), and others, which, though affecting the status of a man before the law, were unimportant in comparison with the great political and civil privileges first mentioned. Full citizens of Rome (cives optimo jure) enjoyed not only all the civil rights referred to, but also the jus suffragii et honorum; but many persons, not cives optimo jure, had important civil rights without being entitled to vote or hold office. The jus provocacionis was especially sought after by foreigners as affording a powerful protection all over the world in times when the rights of common humanity were scantily recognized.

Italian Towns.—Roman citizenship was originally restricted to the inhabitants of the city and a small amount of adjacent territory. But as Rome enlarged her boundaries the rights of citizenship were extended, in different degrees, to the conquered Italians.

A native Italian town which lost its original independence and was absorbed in the Roman state, ceased to be a separate civitas, and became a municiplum; its citizens now possessed Roman citizenship as well as that of their own town. This Roman citizenship was possessed in various degrees. Some municiplia lost all rights of self-government, without receiving any political rights at Rome in their place: that is, their political existence was extinguished, and their citizens became mere passive citizens of Rome, with civil rights, but no political ones. A second class of towns retained their corporate existence, with the right of local self-government, but without the Roman franchise. The condition thus established was called jus Caeritum, because the Etruscan town of Cære was taken as the type. The most favored class of municiplia retained all powers of self-government, with magistrates of their own election, at the same time being full citizens of Rome. If, as happened in many cases, colonists were sent from Rome (or Latium) to occupy the conquered territory, these retained their full Roman citizenship though living at a distance from the city. Thus a class of towns called coloniae, possessing special privileges, grew up.

¹ So in the formula for the Roman government: Senatus Populusque Romanus.
Introduction.

After the Social War, which resulted (B.C. 90) in giving full Roman citizenship to the inhabitants of all the Italian towns not already enjoying it, there were practically but three classes of such towns: coloniae, municipia, and praefecturae. There was no longer any real distinction between the coloniae and the municipia, though the former were looked upon with more respect. The praefecturae, however, had not full rights of self-government, for the administration of justice was in the hands of prefects (praefecti) sent from the capital.

Provincials.—The foreign conquests of Rome were organized as fast as possible as provinces (provinciae). The native inhabitants of these would not be Roman citizens at all, unless citizenship, usually of the lowest grade, was specially conferred upon them. Thus St. Paul was a free-born citizen of Tarsus, for his father had in some way secured the lesser Roman citizenship, which conferred civil rights but did not carry with it the right of suffrage or any other political privileges (see p. liii, above).

Freedmen.—Besides the free-born citizens (ingenius), the Roman state included a large class of libertini or freedmen. Manumitted slaves became citizens, but their exact status was a standing subject of controversy in politics. In Cicero’s time they voted in the four city tribes, though there had been various attempts to make them eligible for membership in all the tribes so that their suffrages might count for more (see under Assemblies, p. lv, below). Throughout the history of the republic, there was a constant tendency to extend the suffrage, in spite of the efforts of the upper classes.

The government of this complex assemblage of citizens was in the hands of a still more complex system of magistrates and assemblies. As in our own day, we must distinguish the Legislative, the Executive, and the Judicial, though these various branches of the state authority were not so scrupulously kept separate as with us.

II. THE PUBLIC ASSEMBLIES.

The Legislative (or law-making) power proper resided in the Public Assemblies (comitia). There were, in Cicero’s time, two principal assemblies, both of them having as their basis the thirty-five local tribes into which the whole people were divided for administrative purposes.

I. Comitia Centuriata.—The Comitia Centuriata, or great comitia, was established at the foundation of the republic upon the basis of the military organization of Servius Tullius. At a later period it was reorganized upon the basis of the thirty-five tribes. There is no precise statement as to either the time or the manner of this reorganization. It must, however, have taken place between the First and Second Punic Wars, and, according to one theory, was carried out in the following manner. The old division of the people into five classes (according to wealth) being retained, for each tribe there were formed two centuries of each class, one of seniores (above 45), one of juniore, making in all 350 centuries. To these were added 18 centuries of equites (the young men of senatorial families, see p. li), guilds of smiths, carpenters, hornblowers, and trumpeters, and a century of freedmen and capite censi (those who had no property) — 373 in all. Each century had one vote, determined by the majority of its voters. These comitia were regularly presided over by the consul; they elected all the higher magistrates, and had full power of making laws, as well as jurisdiction in criminal cases so far as this had not been transferred to the Quaestiones Perpetuae.

II. Comitia Tributa. — Legislation had, before Cicero's time, however, practically passed into the hands of the tribal assembly (Comitia Tributa). There were two distinct assemblies which passed under this name:

(a) The Comitia Tributa proper, an assembly of the entire people according to the thirty-five tribes (each tribe having one vote), which elected the inferior magistrates (curule ædile, quaëstor, etc.), and was presided over by the praetor.

(b) The far more important tribal assembly of the plebeians exclusively, presided over by the Tribune of the People. Strictly speaking, this latter was not comitia, inasmuch as it was not composed of the whole people, populus,—the patricians being excluded from it. But these were now reduced to a few noble families, whose members would not have cared to take part in this democratic assembly even if they had been permitted; and by the Hortensian Law (B.C. 287) acts of this assembly, plebiscita, had received the validity of laws. This plebeian assembly elected the plebeian magistrates (tribunes, plebeian ædiles). It was also the principal organ for making laws.

The Comitia Centuriata, which elected the higher magistrates, being originally a military organization, could only be convened outside the city, and accordingly met in the Campus Martius or parade-ground. The Comitia Tributa, however, being purely a civil assembly, usually met in the Forum, but could be convened in any suitable place.

III. Comitia Curiata. — A third assembly, the Comitia Curiata, more ancient than the other two, retained only certain formal functions,

1 See p. lxii.
2 See p. lxv.
especially that of ceremonially investing the consuls with the imperium or military authority (see p. lii, below).\(^1\) It had no longer any real power or political importance. Membership in the comitia curiata was originally confined to patricians, but it is not clear whether this restriction was continued in Cicero's time.

Contio.—Besides these assemblies, there were meetings, theoretically for discussion, called contiones. A contio could be called by any magistrate who had a matter to lay before the people, and was held regularly in the Comitium or the Forum.\(^2\) After a rogatio (proposition of a law) had been offered, such a meeting was regularly convened in order that the voters might hear the arguments on both sides. After that, on the same or a subsequent occasion, the comitia voted on the bill, Yes or No, at a regular meeting for that purpose.

III. THE SENATE.

The Roman Senate (senatus), as its name indicates, was originally the "council of elders" (cf. the Homeric βούλη γεγονων), advisers of the king. It had, therefore, strictly speaking, no authority to make laws or to enforce their execution, and its votes were simply consulta, i.e. matters agreed upon as advisable, and its power was auctoritas. When annual magistracies succeeded the regal power, this advisory function continued, but the influence of the Senate increased, and, the increase went on until, in the third century B.C., this body came to be the actual (though not formal) governing power in the state, and its consulta became ordinances, by which the Senate directed the administration of the whole state, though it still had no power to pass laws, and was itself subject to the laws. The organization of a new province, for example, was an executive measure, put in force not by a law of the people, but by an ordinance of the Senate; and in this ordinance was embodied the entire authority of Rome over the province, except so far as this was defined by general laws passed by the whole people.

It will thus be seen that the Senate, though originally a "council," had by the time of Cicero absorbed a great part of the legislative as well as the executive power in the state.

For membership in the Senate, see p. 1, above.

The Senate could only be called together by some magistrate regularly

---

\(^1\) This was done annually by passing a law called lex curiata de imperio. On such occasions the thirty curiae were represented by bailiffs (lictores).

\(^2\) For an example of an address at such a meeting see the Oration for the Manilian Law.
The Roman Constitution.

possessing the imperium (usually the Consul), or by the tribunes of the people (tribuni plebis): the magistrate who summoned it also presided, and laid before it (referre) the business for which it was convened. He might at this point give his own judgment. He then proceeded to ask (rogare) the Senators individually their opinions (sententiae). The order was to ask in their turns the consulares, prae torii, and aedilicii (that is, those who sat in the Senate by virtue of having held these offices respectively). It has been disputed whether the senatores pedarii — i.e. those who had held no curule office — had the jus sententiae, or right to debate. There are, however, numerous instances of their having taken part in discussion. If the annual election had already taken place, — which was usually in July, six months before the new magistrates assumed their offices, — the magistrates elect (designati) were called upon before their several classes. The princeps Senatus (see note, Cat. iii., sect. 10) was called upon first of all, when there were no consules designati. The presiding officer, however, had it in his power to vary the order, and honor or slight any Senator by calling upon him extra ordinem. For a deliberative oration, delivered in the Senate, see Catiline iv.

As the Senate was primarily a body of councillors, its business was as a rule laid before it in general terms, not in any special form for action: each Senator could, as he chose, give his judgment in full, by argument (sententiam dicere), or by simply expressing his assent to the judgment of another (verbo adsentiri). No Senator had a right to introduce any matter formally by motion, as with us, but it was possible for a Senator, when called on, to give his opinion on any subject not included in the questions referred. The vote was taken by a division (discessio), i.e. the Senators went to one side or the other of the house. When a majority had decided in favor of any sententia, it was written out in proper form by the secretaries (scribæ), under the direction of the presiding magistrate, in the presence of some of its principal supporters (adesse scribendo), and promulgated. Cf. the closing sections of the Fourteenth Philippic (pp. 255, 256, below).

IV. THE EXECUTIVE.

The Consuls. — After the expulsion of the kings, their absolute authority (imperium), both in peace and war, was vested in two Consuls (originally praetores). Gradually, however, these autocratic powers were limited by various checks, so that in one sense a Consul had no more power than the president of a modern republic. He could, it is true, do anything in his year of office without lawful question from anybody; yet, as he could be called to account at the end of his term, any violation of the constitution was extremely dangerous. Particularly was this true in regard to objections from any one of the ten tribunes.\(^1\) The danger of transgressing this limitation was so immediate that it was rarely incurred, and practically in almost all cases the "veto" (intercessio) of a tribune was sufficient to stop any action on the part of the curule magistrates. Another limitation on the consular power came from the curious Roman arrangement of co-ordinate magistrates or "colleagues." The objection of one consul was sufficient to annul any act of the other. This principle also applied to other magistracies, so that the wheels of government could be stopped by any colleague of equal rank. To override such an objection was an act of unconstitutional violence, which, however, was often practised when public opinion could be relied on to sustain the illegal action. In practice, the two consuls either took turns in the administration (sometimes alternating month by month) or agreed upon a division of functions.

The consuls were regularly elected in July and entered upon their office on the first day of the following January. They possessed two kinds of authority, — potestas, or power in general (which all magistrates had in some degree), and imperium,\(^2\) military or sovereign power, as of a general in the field. This imperium was originally exercised by the consuls, not only in the army but in the city, so that they had absolute authority of life or death; but this was limited, early in the history of the republic, by the Lex Valeria, which gave every citizen the right of appeal (jus provocatorium) to the comitia centuriata (see p. 100, below) against a sentence of capital or corporal punishment, and later by the Lex Porcia, which forbade the scourging of citizens. By the Lex Sempronia of Caius Gracchus the right of appeal in capital cases was established even against the military imperium.\(^3\) In other respects, however, the military imperium remained practically absolute, but it could not be exercised inside the walls, except by virtue of the senatus consultum, "Dent operam consules ne quid res publica detrimenti capiat," which revived the ancient powers of the consuls and was equivalent to a declaration of martial law.\(^4\) After the Sullan reforms (B.C. 80) the consuls did not receive the military imperium until their year of office had expired and they were about to set out for their provinces.\(^5\) The civil powers of the consuls were analogous to those of any chief

---

1 See p. lxii.

2 Of the other regular magistrates only the praetors possessed the imperium (see p. lix). The imperium was formally conferred on the consuls by the comitia curiata (see p. lvi).

3 Cf. Crucifixion of a Roman Citizen, sect. 6.

4 See note on Cat. i., sect. 2 (p. 100, l. 12).

5 Sec p. lxi.
magistrate. Most important among them were the right to call together, consult, and preside over the Senate, and the right to convene the comitia centuriata and preside over the election of the higher curule magistrates. For the consular auspicia, see p. lxiii, below.

Praetors.—Praetor was the original Italic title of the consuls, but, as the result of the agitation for the Licinian Laws, in B.C. 366, a special magistrate of that name was elected "who administered justice, a colleague of the consuls and elected under the same auspices."¹ Gradually other praetors were added, until in the time of Cicero there were eight. They were essentially judicial officers, and their functions were assigned by lot.² As curule magistrates, however, they could on occasion command armies or assist the consuls in emergencies (see Cat. iii. 5), and were assigned as propretors to provinces abroad after their year of office.³ Like the consuls, they were regularly elected at the comitia centuriata in July and began to serve on the first of the following January.

Quaestors.—The quaestors (quaestores), or public treasurers, were in Cicero's time twenty in number. Two (called quaestores urbi) had charge of the treasury and archives at Rome, while the others were assigned to the several military commanders and provincial governors, to serve as quartermasters and paymasters. The quaestors entered upon office on Dec. 5, when they drew lots to determine their respective places of service.⁴

Cursus Honorum.—No one could be chosen praetor until he had been quaestor, or consul until he had been praetor. These three magistracies, then, formed a career of office — the so-called cursus honorum — which it was the aim of every ambitious Roman to complete as soon as possible. To be elected quaestor a man had to be at least 30 years old,⁵ and the lowest legal ages for the praetorship and the consulship were 40 and 43 respectively. The consulship could in no case be held until three years after the praetorship. Consuls and praetors were curule magistrates, but this was not the case with the quaestor. The office of curule ædile (see below) was often held between the quaestorship and the praetorship, but it was not a necessary grade in the cursus honorum. The minimum age for this office was the twenty-seventh year.

¹ He was, however, inferior in rank to the consul, who had major potestas.
² See p. lxxv.
³ See p. lxxi.
⁴ They were originally appointed by the consuls, but in Cicero's time were elected by the comitia tributa. The practical management of the treasury was with the clerks (scribae quaestorii), as in our modern civil service. These formed a permanent and powerful corporation. Cf. Cat. iv., sect. 15 (p. 149, ll. 10, 11).
⁵ In the time of the Gracchi the age was 27.
Introduction.

ÆDILES.—The Ædiles (from ædes, a temple) were four magistrates, who had the general superintendence of the police of the city, criminal jurisdiction with the power of imposing fines, the care of the games, public buildings, etc. They did not form a board (collegium), but were of two grades, two being necessarily plebeians, while the other two, the curule ædiles, who ranked with the higher magistrates, might be patricians. The ædiles'hip was not a necessary step in a political career, but it was eagerly sought, between the quaestorship and the prætorship, by ambitious men, for the reason that the superintendence of the public games gave great opportunity for gaining popular favor. A certain sum was appropriated from the public treasury for these games; but an ædile who wished to rise to higher positions, and not to be thought mean, took care to add a good sum from his own pocket.¹

LICTORS, INSIGNIA, etc.—The consuls and prætors were accompanied by special officers called lictors (lictores), who were at the same time a symbol of the supreme power and the immediate ministers of the will of the magistrates. They carried a bundle of rods and an axe bound together (the fasces),² to inflict the punishment of flogging and death according to the regular Roman mode of execution. Each consul had twelve lictors, each prætor had six. After the right of appeal was established (see p. lviii, above), the lictors did not carry the axe inside the city. Besides the "imperial" lictors, all magistrates were attended by ministers of various kinds, viatores (summoners), praecones (criers), and slaves. All the curule magistrates wore as a mark of authority the toga praetexta (white with a crimson border), and the latus clavus (or broad stripe of crimson) on the front of the tunic. As commanders of armies, they wore instead of the toga the paludamentum, a kind of cloak entirely of crimson. In fact, the majesty of the law was symbolized in the most striking manner in the case of all magistrates except the tribunes,³ who, as champions of the plebs, wore no distinguishing dress.

PROCONSULS and PROPRÆTORS.—All the magistrates so far mentioned were elected annually. When it was desired to retain the services of a consul or a prætor after his term had expired, his imperium was extended (prorogatum) by the Senate, and he was known as a proconsul or prætor. It was only the military imperium that was thus prorogued,⁴ not the civil

¹ Cf. Impeachment of Verres, sects. 37–40 (pp. 41, 42); Plunder of Syracuse, sect. 19 (p. 58, ll. 2–5).
² See Fig. 25, p. 340, below.
³ See p. lxii.
⁴ Sometimes a private citizen was invested with the imperium and called proconsul (see Manil. Law, sect. 62).
power. Thus the proconsul had no authority within the city, and could not, like the consul, call together the Senate or an assembly of the people.

As the "state" grew, it became customary to commit the government of conquered provinces to proconsuls and praetors, and to this end the prorogation of the imperium for a second year became regular. After the time of Sulla, all provinces were so governed,\(^1\) one of his laws providing that the consuls and praetors should set out for their provinces immediately on the expiration of their term of office in the city.\(^2\) No difference was made between the power of a proconsul and that of a praetor. Both officers had the full military and civil command and were almost absolute monarchs, except for their liability to be afterwards called to account (cf. p. lvii, above). Their opportunities for plunder were almost unlimited.\(^3\) Their power, however, did not extend to the city itself, in which they were mere private citizens. Hence it often happened that a commander, on returning from his province, remained outside the city so as to retain his military imperium for some reason or other.

Censors. — The censors (censores) were two in number, elected from men of consular dignity (consulares), originally at a minimum interval of four years, afterwards once in five years, — the interval called a lustrum, — and holding office for eighteen months. They ranked as magistratus maiores, but did not possess the imperium, and had no power to convene either the Senate or an assembly of the people. Their functions were — (1) to inspect the registry of citizens of every class and order; (2) to punish immorality, by removal from the Senate, the equestrian centuries, or the Tribe (nota censoria, infamia, ignominia); (3) to superintend the finances (giving out contracts for collecting the revenues) and the public works. In the intervals of the censorship, these last were under the care of the aediles (see p. lx, above). Sulla tactfully abolished the office of censor, but it was revived in the consulship of Pompey and Crassus, B.C. 70.

The property registration, of which the censors had charge, was called census, and on it depended not only taxation but the position of a citizen in the centuriae (see p. lv, above, on the comitia centuriata). The classes under the census were divided as follows:

1 After the Sullan reforms (B.C. 80) the military imperium was not enjoyed by the consuls and praetors until their year of civil magistracy had expired.

2 This arrangement was changed by a law of Pompey (B.C. 52) which provided that five years should intervene between the magistracy and the provincial government. See Life of Cicero, p. xxiii, above.

3 Cf. Impeachment of Verres.
Introduction.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Class</th>
<th>Property Value</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>First class</td>
<td>100,000 asses or more.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Second class</td>
<td>75,000</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Third class</td>
<td>50,000</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Fourth class</td>
<td>25,000</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Fifth class</td>
<td>11,000</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

The census of a Roman eques was, in Cicero’s time, 400,000 sesterces, and this provision was one of long standing.

Tribuni Plebis.—Side by side with the "kingly" magistrates there had arisen a class of magistrates of the people whose only privileges originally were prohibitive, but who had come to have great power in the state.

The Tribuni Plebis (or Plebi), ten in number and elected by the Comitia Tributa, were the magistrates of that portion of the people (a state within the state) known as the Plebs. The plebeians at this epoch, however, composed the whole people, with the exception of the few families of the patrician aristocracy (such gentes as the Cornelian, Julian, Æmilian, Claudian).\(^1\) Not being technically magistrates of the city or the whole people, but only of a single class, the tribunes did not possess the imperium, but only potestas, had no real executive power, and indeed were not magistrates at all in the strict sense of the term. On the other hand, their persons were held sacred, and they had two very important and wide-reaching functions: 1. The right of interfering, jus intercedendi ("veto"), to arrest almost any act of another magistrate. (This right practically extended to a veto on legislation, elections, and ordinances of the Senate, these being all under the direction of magistrates.) 2. The right to hold the assembly of the plebs, organized by tribes. In this assembly, known as comitia tributa, the plebeian magistrates (tribunes and plebeian aediles)\(^2\) were chosen, and laws were passed, plebiscita, which of course were originally binding only upon the plebs, but which, by the Hortensian Law (B.C. 287), received the force of leges (see p. lv, above); fines were likewise imposed by this assembly.

Out of these original powers had been developed a very extensive criminal jurisdiction, which made the tribunes and aediles the chief prosecuting officers of the republic, the tribunes acting in cases of a political character. This order of things continued until the time of Sulla, when the administration of criminal justice was entrusted to the standing courts, quaestiones perpetue, established by him (see p. lxv, below). But Sulla’s provisions were abolished by Pompey (B.C. 70), the people fancying that the corruptions of the courts could be remedied by restoring this power to the tribunes. The tribunes also had authority to convene the Senate and bring business before it, preside, and take part in debate. These privileges they acquired very early, by irregular practice passing into custom, rather than by any special enactment.

\(^1\) See p. lii. \(^2\) See p. lx.

The Auspices.—The absolute continuity of the government, which was more necessary at Rome than elsewhere, on account of a kind of theocratic idea in the constitution, was secured by a curious contrivance. The "regular succession" in Roman magistrates was as rigid as later in the Church. The welfare of the state was supposed to depend upon the favor of the gods, and this could only be transferred from one officer to another by an election which was practically a religious ceremony in which both officers took part. This favor, technically known as the auspicia, would lapse unless the election and inauguration were rightly performed. The ceremony consisted in taking the auspices, a regular process of religious divination by the flight of birds, etc., according to a very antiquated ritual (see below).

Augurs.—The magistrates alone were authorized to consult the auspices, that is, to observe the various signs by which the gods were supposed to declare their will with regard to the state. The interpretation of the auspices, however, which had been developed into an extremely technical science (jus augurium), was in the hands of a much honored body (collegium) of distinguished citizens, called augurs (augures). These were not themselves magistrates,¹ but simply the official interpreters of the jus augurium, which they alone were supposed to know. Since all important public acts (especially the holding of the comitia) were done auspicato (i.e., under authority of the auspices), the augurs naturally came to have great political influence. Their interpretation and advice could be disregarded, but such disregard was at the risk of the magistrate and was almost sure to affect his popularity, especially if misfortune followed. The augurs held office for life. Originally they had the right to fill vacancies on their board, but later such vacancies were sometimes filled by election by the people.² Cicero himself became an augur, B.C. 53.

Interrex.—Whenever there was a suspension of legal authority, by vacancy of the chief magistracy, it was understood that the auspicia—which were regularly in possession of the magistrates—were lodged (in accordance with the most ancient custom) with the patrician members of the Senate until new magistrates should be inaugurated. The renewal of the regular order of things was begun by the patrician senators coming together and appointing one of their own number as interrex. He held office for five days, as chief magistrate of the commonwealth and possessor of the auspicia; then he created a successor, who might hold the comitia for the election of consuls, but who usually created another successor for that purpose.

¹ See Philippic xiv., sect. 14, and note.
² The rule in this matter was several times changed by law.

Dictator. — The dictator was an extraordinary magistrate, possessing absolute power, appointed by the consuls, at the instance of the Senate, in times of great public danger. Properly he held office for but six months. The laws of appeal, and other safeguards of individual liberty, had at first no force against this magistrate. In later times (after B.C. 202) dictators were no longer appointed, but instead the Senate, when occasion arose, invested the consuls with dictatorial power. Sulla, and afterwards Caesar, revived the name and authority of the dictatorship; but in their case the office became equivalent to absolute sovereignty, since each of them was appointed dictator for life (perpetuo). The Magister Equitum, appointed by the Dictator, stood next in command to him and also had the imperium.

V. THE COURTS.

Our division of legal business into civil and criminal, though not exactly corresponding to the Roman classification of cases as causae privatae and causae publicae, still affords the most convenient basis for an understanding of the ancient courts.

In Civil Cases between individual citizens as well as foreign residents, the jurisdiction, originally belonging to the king, was, on the establishment of the Republic transferred to the consuls, but in the times with which we are especially concerned, it rested with the prætors. The prætor urbanus had charge of all civil cases between Roman citizens; the prætor peregrinus, of all civil suits to which an alien was a party. Civil processes were various and complicated, and, since none of the orations in this edition were spoken in such cases, they may be left out of account here.

Criminal Jurisdiction also originally rested with the king, and, later, with the magistrates (consuls, etc.) who succeeded him. But by the various laws concerning appeal, the trial of all important offences was transferred to the assemblies of the people. In accordance with its origin the jurisdiction of these bodies was always theoretically an appellant jurisdiction. The case was supposed first to be decided by the magistrate, who, having given notice (diem dicere) to the defendant (reus), brought forward a bill (rogatio) enacting the punishment. If the case was a capital one, i.e. involving the life or status of a Roman citizen, it was brought before the comitia centuriata convened by the magistrate for the purpose, and decided like any other question. It would appear that any curule magistrate as well as the tribunes could take such action. If the case involved only a fine, it was tried before the comitia tributa by an ædile or tribune.

\footnote{See p. lvi.}

These methods of trial were practically superseded after the time of Sulla by the establishment of the standing courts (see below). They were, however, sometimes revived, as in Cicero’s own case.

It had always been competent for the people to establish a quaestio or investigation to try persons suspected of crimes (quaestiones extraordinariae). After the analogy of this proceeding, Sulla established standing courts (quaestiones perpetuae) differing from previous quaestiones only in that they were continuous instead of being appointed upon any particular occasion. It was before these that most crimes were tried. Examples of such trials are found in Rosc. Am. (p. 1) and Verres (p. 26).

Such a court consisted of a presiding judge, quaesitor (prætor, or judex quaestionis), who caused a jury (judices) to be impanelled and sworn (hence called jurati), varying in number in the different courts and at different times, to try the case under his presidency. These judices were drawn by lot from a standing body (judices selecti), the exact number of which is unknown, and a right of challenging existed as with us. This body was originally made up from the Senatorial Order, but a law of C. Gracchus (b.c. 123) provided that the judices should be taken from non-Senators who possessed the equestrian census (see p. lxii, above). From this time the Senators and the Equites contended for the control of the courts. Sulla restored to the Senators the exclusive privilege of sitting as judices (b.c. 80), but the Aurelian Law (b.c. 90) provided that the jurors should be taken, one-third from the Senators and two-thirds from the Equestrian Order, and that one-half of the Equites chosen (i.e. one-third of the whole number of judices) should have held the office of Tribunus Aerarius (i.e. president of one of the thirty-five local tribes, see p. liv, above). This regulation remained in force until the dictatorship of Cæsar, b.c. 45, when this decuria of Tribuni Aerariorum was abolished. A majority of the jurors decided the verdict. The president had no vote, nor did he decide the law of the case: he had merely charge of the proceedings as a presiding magistrate. (Cf. Verr. i. 32, for a hint at his powers.) For the method of voting, see note on Defence of Milo, p. 177, l. 19.

1 Sulla's quaestiones perpetuae were eight or ten in number. Six of these—Repetundae (extortion), Ambitus (bribery), Peculatus (embezzlement), Majestas (treason), de Sicariis et Veneficiis (murder), and probably Falsi (counterfeiting and fraud)—were presided over by six of the eight prætors. For the other two (or four), ex-ædiles (aedilicii) were appointed to preside as judices quaestionis.

2 For cases of extortion the number was specially fixed by the Lex Acilia at four hundred and fifty, from whom fifty were chosen as jurors.
THE FORUM.

(Restored.)
SELECT ORATIONS OF CICERO.

DEFENCE OF ROSCIUS.

(PRO Sex. Roscio Amerino.)

B.C. So.

SEXTUS ROSCIUS was a rich and respected citizen of Ameria, an Umbrian town (municipium) about fifty miles north of Rome. He had a taste for city life, and spent most of his time at the capital, where he was on intimate terms with some of the highest families, especially the Metelli and Scipios. Meantime his son Sextus, who certainly lacked his father's cultivated tastes, and who was accused by his enemies of rudeness and clownishness, had charge of the extensive family estates at Ameria.

Sometime during the dictatorship of Sulla (probably in the autumn of 81 B.C.) the elder Roscius was murdered one evening as he was returning from a dinner party. The murder was no doubt procured, or at least connived at, by one Titus Roscius Magnus, his fellow-townsman and enemy. However that may be, the name of the murdered man was put upon the proscription-list by a freedman and favorite of Sulla, one Chrysogonus, who bought his confiscated estates at auction at a nominal price. Three of these estates (there were thirteen in all) he transferred to a certain Titus Roscius Capito, another-townsmen and enemy of the deceased, and a leading man at Ameria; the remainder he put in charge of Magnus as his agent. The younger Sextus, a man of forty, thus robbed of his patrimony, had recourse to his father's friends in Rome for protection and help. The three conspirators, fearing that they might be compelled to disgorge, resolved to secure themselves by accusing him of his father's murder. This they did through a professional prosecutor (accusator) named Erucius, who undertook the legal formalities of the prosecution.

The aristocratic friends of Roscius, not daring to brave the creature of the dictator, but unwilling to leave their guest-friend (hospes) undefended, prevailed upon Cicero, then young and ambitious, to undertake the case. To oppose Chrysogonus was an act that called for disinterested courage, and nothing in Cicero's career is more to his credit. By his successful conduct of the case he obtained the well-merited rank of a leader among the rising advocates of Rome. The Defence of Roscius was the first of Cicero's public orations or pleas; and it is criticised by the author himself in his Orator, ch. 30.

Cicero's Apology for Appearing in the Defence.

CREDO ego vos, judices, mirari quid sit quod, cum tot summi oratores hominesque nobilissimi sedeant, ego potissimum surrexerim, qui neque aetate neque ingenio neque auctoritate sim cum his, qui sedeant, comparandus. Omnes hi, quos videtis adesse, in hac causa injuriam novo scelere conflatam putant oportere defendi, defendere ipsi propter iniquitatem temporum non audent; ita fit ut adsint pro-terea quod officium sequuntur, taceant autem idcirco quia periculum vitant.

At tanto officiosior quam ceteri? Ne istius quidem laudis ita sim cupidus, ut aliis eam praeruptam velim. Quae me igitur res praeter ceteros impulit, ut causam Sex. Rosci reciperem? Quia, si quis horum dixisset, quos videtis adesse, in quibus summa auctoritas est atque amplitudo, si verbum de re publica fecisset, — id quod in hac causa fieri necesse est, — molto plura dixisse quam dixisset puta-
Defence of Roscius.

retur: 3. ego etiamsi omnia quae dicenda sunt libere dixero, nequaquam tamen similiter oratio mea exire atque in volgus emanare poterit. Deinde, quod ceterorum neque dictum obscurum potest esse, propter nobilitatem et amplitudinem, neque temere dicto concedi, propter aetatem et prudentiam: ego si quid liberius dixero, vel occultum esse, properterea quod nondum ad rem publicam accessi, vel ignosci adulterantium poterit,—tametsi non modo ignoscendi ratio, verum etiam cognoscendi consuetudo jam de civitate sublata est.

4. Accedit illa quoque causa, quod a ceteris forsitan ita petitum sit ut dicerent, ut utrumvis salvo officio facere se posse arbitrarentur: a me autem ei contenterunt, qui apud me et amicitia et beneficis et dignitate plurimum possunt, quorum ego nec benevolentiam erga me ignorare, nec auctoritatem asperrari, nec voluntatem neglegere debeam. His de causis ego huic causae patronus exstiti, non electus unus qui maximo ingenio, sed relictus ex omnibus qui minimo periculo possem dicere; neque uti satis firmo praesidio defensus Sex. Roscius, verum uti ne omnino desertus est.

Character of the Elder Roscius, the Murdered Man.

VI. 5. Sex. Roscius, pater hujusce, municeps Amerinus fuit, cum genere et nobilitate et pecunia non modo sui municipi verum etiam ejus vicinitatis facile primus, tum gratia atque hospitiis florens hominum nobilissimorum. Nam cum Metellis, Servilis, Scipionibus erat ei non modo hospitium, verum etiam domesticus usus et consuetudo: quas (ut aequum est) familias honestatis amplitudinisque gratia nominó. Itaque ex omnibus suis commodis hoc solum filio reliquit: nam patrimonium domestici praedones vi ereptum possident, fama et vita innocentis ab hospitibus amicisque paternis defenditur. 6. Is cum omni tempore nobilitatis fautor fuisset, tum hoc tumultu proximo, cum omnia nobilium dignitas et salus in discrimen veniret, praeter ceteros in ea vicinitate eam partem causamque opera, studio, auctoritate defendit: etenim rectum putabat pro eorum se pugnare, propter quos ipse honestissimus inter suis numerabatur. Posteaquam victoria constituta est, ab armisque recessimus, — cum proscriberentur homines, atque ex omni regione caperentur ei qui adversarii fuisse putabantur, — erat ille Romae frequens; in foro et in ore omnium cotidie versabantur, magis ut exultare victoria nobilitatis videretur, quam timere ne quid ex ea calamitatis sibi accideret.

His Old Feud with the Titi Rosci.

7. Erant ei veteres inimicitiae cum duobus Rosciis Aemernis, quorum alteram sedere in accusatorum subselliiis video, alterum tria hujusce praedia possidere audio. Quas inimicitias si tam cavere potuisset, quam metuere solebat, viveret. Neque enim, judices, injuria metuebat. Nam duo isti sunt T. Roscii, quorum alteri Capitoni cognomen est, iste qui adest Magnus vocatur, homines hujus modi: alter plurimarum palmarum vetus ac nobilis gladiator habetur, hic autem nuper se ad eum lanistam contulit; quique ante hanc pugnam tiro esset, [quod sciam,] facile ipsum magistrum scelere audaciaque superavit.

The Murder.

VII. 8. Nam cum hic Sex. Roscius esset Americae, T. autem iste Roscius Romae, — cum hic filius adsiduus in praeidiis esset, cumque se voluntate patris rei familiaris vitaeque rusticae dedisset, iste autem frequens Romae esset, — occiditur ad balneas Palacinas rediens a cena Sex. Roscius. Spero ex hoc ipso non esse obscurum, ad quem suspicio malefici pertineat: verum id, quod adhuc est suspiciosum, nisi perspicuum res ipsa fecerit, hunc adfinem culpae indicatote,
Defence of Roscius.

The News Brought to his Enemies at Ameria.

The Conspiracy to Seize his Property.

Sulla not Implicated.

12. Haec omnia, judices, imprudente L. Sulla facta esse certo scio; neque enim mirum — cum eodem tempore et ea quae praeterita sunt et ea quae videntur instare praeparet, cum et pacis constituendae rationem et belli gerendi potestatem solus habeat, cum omnes in unum spectent, unus omnia gubernet, cum tot tantisque negotiis distentus sit ut respirare libere non possit — si aliquid non animadvert, cum praesertim tam multi occupationem ejus observent tempusque aucupentur, ut, simul atque ille despererit, aliquid hujusce modi moliantur. Huc accedit, quod quamvis ille felix sit, sicut est, tamen [in] tanta felicitate nemo potest esse, in magna familia qui neminem neque servum neque libertum improbum habeat.

The Younger Roscius Dispossessed.

13. Interea iste T. Roscius, vir optimus, procurator Chrysogoni, Ameriam venit; in praedia hujus invadit; hunc miserum, luctu perditum, qui nondum etiam omnia paterno funeri justa solvisset, nudum eicit; domo atque focis patriis disque penatibus praecipitam, judices, exturbat; ipse amplissimae pecuniae fit dominus. Qui in sua re fuisset egentissimus, erat, ut fit, insolens in aliena. Multa palam domum suam auferebat, plura clam de medio removebat; non pauca suis adjutoribus large effuseque donabat; reliqua constituta auctione vendebat; quod Amerinis usque eo visum est indignum, ut urbe tota fletus gemitusque fieret.

Protest by Delegates of America.

IX. 14. Etenim multa simul ante oculos versabantur: mors hominis florentissimi Sex. Rosci crudelissima, fili autem ejus egestas indignissima, cui de tanto patrimonio praedo iste nefarius ne iter quidem ad sepulcrum patrium reliquisset, honorum emptio flagitiosa, possessio, furta, rapinae, donationes. Nemo erat qui non ardere illa omnia mallet, quam videre in Sex. Rosci viri optimi atque honestissimi bonis jactantem se ac dominantem T. Roscium. 15. Itaque decurionum decretum statim fit, ut decem primi pro-
Defence of Roscius.

ficiscantur ad L. Sullam, doceantque eum qui vir Sex. Roscius fuerit; conquerantur de istorum scelere et injustis; orent ut et illius mortui famam et fili innocentis fortunas conservatas velit. Atque ipsum decretum, quæeso, cognoscite. [Decretum Decurionum.]

The Delegates Hoodwinked by the Conspirators.

Legati in castra veniunt. Intellegitur, judices, id quod jam ante dixi, imprudente L. Sulla scelera haec et flagitia fieri. Nam statim Chrysogonus et ipse ad eos accedit et homines nobilis adlegat, ab eis qui peterent ne ad Sullam adirent, et omnia Chrysogonum quae vellent esse facturum pollicerentur. 16. Usque adeo autem ille pertimuerat, ut mori mallet quam de his rebus Sullam doceri. Homines antiqui, qui ex sua natura ceteros fingerent, cum ille confirmaret sese nomen Sex. Rosci de tabulis exempturum, praedia vacua filio traditurum, cumque id ita futurum T. 15 Roscius Capito, qui in decem legatis erat, appromitteret, crediderunt: Ameriam re inorata reverterunt. Ac primo rem differre cotidie ac procrastinare isti coeperunt; deinque aliquanto lentius, nihil agere atque deludere; postremo—id quod facile intellectum est—insidias vitae hujusce [Sex. 20 Rosci] parare, neque sese arbitrari posse diutius alienam pecuniam domino incolumi obtinere.

The Younger Roscius Takes Refuge with Friends at Rome.

X. 17. Quod hic simul atque sensit, de amicorum cognatorumque sententia Romam confugit, et sese ad Caeciliam [Nepotis filiam], quam honoris causa nominò, contulit, qua 25 pater usus erat plurimum; in qua muliere, judices, etiam nunc (id quod omnes semper existimaverunt) quasi exempli causa vestigia antiqui offici remanent. Ea Sex. Roscium inopem, ejectum domo atque expulsum ex suis bonis, fugientem latronum tela et minas, recepti domum, hospitique 30 oppresso jam desperatoque ab omnibus opitulata est. Eius virtute, fide, diligentia factum est, ut hic potius vivus in reos quam occisus in proscriptos referretur.

A Trumped-up Charge of Parricide is Brought.

18. Nam postquam isti intelleixerunt summa diligentia vitam Sex. Rosci custodiri, neque sibi ullam caedis faci- undae potestatem dari, consilium ceperunt plenum sceleris et audaciae, ut nomen hujus de parricidio deferrent, ut ad eam rem aliquem accusatorem veterem compararent, qui de ea re posset dicere aliquid, in qua re nulla subesset suspicione; denique ut, quoniam crimen non poterant, tempore ipso pugnarent. Ita loqui homines: quod judicia tam diu facta non essent, condemnari eum oportere, qui primus in judicium adductus esset; huic autem patronos propter Chrysogoni gratiam defuturos; de bonorum venditione et de ista societate verbum esse facturum neminem; ipso nomine parricidi et atrocitate criminis, fore ut hic nullo negotio tolleretur, cum ab nullo defensu esset. Hoc consilio atque adeo hac amentia impulsi, quem ipsi cum cuperent non potuerunt occidere, eum jugulandum vobis tradiderunt.

Wretched Condition of the Defendant.

20 X1. 19. Quid primum querar? aut unde potissimum, judices, ordiar? aut quod aut a quibus auxilium petam? Deorumne immortalium, populine Romani, vestrane, qui summam potestatem habetis, hoc tempore fidem implorem? Pater occisus nefarie, domus obsessa ab inimicis, bona adempta, possessa, direpta, fili vita infesta, saepe ferro atque insidiis appetita, — quid ab his tot maleficiis sceleris abesse videtur? Tamen haec aliis nefariis cumulant atque adaugent: crimen incredible confingunt, testis in hunc et accusatores hujusce pecunia comparant. Hanc condicionem miserō ferunt, ut optet, utrum malitervices Roscio dare, an, insutus in culeum, per summum dedecus vitam amittere. Patronos huic defuturos putaverunt: desunt: qui libere dicat, qui cum fide defendat, — id quod in hac causa est satis, — quoniam quidem suscepi, non deest profecto, judices.

Three Things Make against the Defendant.

Enormity of the Charge.

21. Occidisse patrem Sex. Roscius arguitur. Sceleustum, di immortales! ac nefarium facinus, atque ejus modi, quo uno maleficio scelera omnia complexa esse videantur. Etenim si, id quod praecclare a sapientibus dicitur, voltu saepe laeditur pietas, quod supplicium satis acre reperietur in eum qui mortem obtulerit parenti, pro quo mori ipsum, si res postularet, jura divina atque humana cogebant? In hoc tanto, tam atroci, tam singulari maleficio, quod ita raro extitit ut, si quando auditum sit, portenti ac prodigi simile numeretur, quibus tandem tu, C. Eruci, argumentis accusatorem censes uti oportere? Nonne et audaciam ejus qui in crimen vocetur singularum ostendere, et mores feros, immemque naturam, et vitam vitiiis flagitiisque omnibus deditam, Orations of Cicero.

Improbability from the Character of the Defendant.

Absence of Motive.

23. Quae res igitur tantum istum furem Sex. Roscio objectit? 'Patri' inquit 'non placebat.' Quam ob causam? Necesse est enim eam quoque justam et magnum et perspicuum fuisset: nam, ut illud incredibile est, mortem oblatam esse patri a filio sine plurimas et maximis causis, sic hoc veri simile non est, odio fuisset parenti filium, sine causis multis et magnis et necessariis. Rursus igitur eodem rever tamur, et quae ramus quae tanta vita fuerint in unico filio, quare is patri disipliceret. At perspicuum est nullum fuisset. Pater igitur amens, qui odisset eum sine causa quem procrearat. At is quidem fuit omnium constantissimus. Ergo illud jam perspicuum profecto est, si neque amens pater neque perditus filius fuerit, neque odi causam patri neque sceleris filio fuisset.
Defence of Koscius.

Necessity of Showing a Motive.

XXII. 24. De parricidio causa dicitur: ratio ab accusatore reddita non est, quam ob causam patrem filius occiderit. Quod in minimis noxiis, et in his leviortibus peccatis quae magis crebra et jam prope cotidiana sunt, maxime et primum quaeritur, — quae causa malefici fuerit, — id Erucius in parricidio quaerit non putat oportere. In quo scelere, judices, etiam cum multae causae convenisse unum in locum atque inter se congruere videntur, tamen non temere creditur, neque levi conjectura res penditur, neque testis incertus auditur, neque accusatoris ingenio res judicatur: cum multa antea commissa maleficia, cum vita hominis perditissima, cum singularis audacia ostendatur necesse est, neque audacia solum, sed summus furor atque amentia.

Necessity of Direct Evidence.

25. Haec cum sint omnia, tamen existent oportet expressa sceleris vestigia, — ubi, qua ratione, per quos, quo tempore maleficium sit admissum: quae nisi multa et manifesta sunt, profecto res tam scelusta, tam atroxa, tam nefaria credi non potest. Magna est enim vis humanitatis: multum valet communio sanguinis: reclamitat istius modi suspicionibus ipsa natura: portentum atque monstrum certissimum est, esse aliquem humana specie et figura, qui tantum immantate bestias vicerit, ut propter quos hanc suavissimam lucem aspexerit, eos indignissime luce privarat, cum etiam feras inter sese partus atque educatio et natura ipsa conciliet.

Examples from Other Cases.

XXIII. 26. Non ita multis ante annis, auint T. Caelium quendam Tarracinensem, hominem non obscurum, cum cenatus cubitum in idem conclave cum duobus adulescentibus filiis isset, inventum esse mane jugulatum. Cum nequeservus quisquam reperiretur, neque liber, ad quern ea suspicio pertineret, id aetatis autem duo filii propter cubantes ne sensisse quidem se dicerent, nomina filiorum de parri-cidio delata sunt. Quid poterat tam esse suspiciosum?
Neutrumne sensisse? Asum autem esse quemquam se in id conclave committere, eo potissimum tempore, cum ibidem essent duo adulescentes filii, qui et sentire et defendere facile possent? 27. Erat porro nemo in quem ea suspicio conveniret. Tamen cum planum judicibus esset factum, aperto ostio dormientis eos repertos esse, judicio absoluti adulescentes et suspicione omni liberati sunt.
Nemo enim putabat quemquam esse, qui, cum omnia divina ataque humana jura scelere nefario polluisset, somnum statim capere potuisset; propterea quod, qui tantum facinus commiserunt, non modo sine cura quiescere, sed ne spirare quidem sine metu possunt.

Need of Strongest Proof Shown by the Severity of the Penalty.

28. Quare hoc quo minus est credibile nisi ostenditur, eo magis est, si convincitur, vindicandum. Itaque cum multis ex rebus intellegi potest maiores nostros non modo armis plus quam ceteras nationes, verum etiam consilio sapientiaque potuisse, tum ex hac re vel maxime, quod in impios singularum supplicium invenerunt: insui voluerunt in culeum vivos, atque in flumen deici. O singularem sapientiam, judices! Nonne videntur hunc hominem ex rerum natura sustulisse et eripuisse, cui repente caelum, solem, aquam terramque ademerint: ut qui eum necasset, unde ipse natus esset, careret eis rebus omnibus, ex quibus omnia nata esse dicuntur? 29. Noluerunt feris corpus obicere, ne bestiis quoque, quae tantum scelus attigissent, immanioribus uteremur: non sic nudos in flumen deicer, ne, cum delati essent in mare, ipsum polluerent, quo cetera, quae violata sunt, expiari putantur. Denique nihil tam vile neque tam volgare est cujus partem ullam reliquerint. Etenim quid est
Defence of Roscius.

tam commune quam spiritus vivis, terra mortuis, mare fluctuantibus, litus ejectis? Ita vivunt, dum possunt, ut ducere animam de caelo non queant. Ita moriuntur, ut eorum ossa terra non tangat. Ita jactantur fluctibus, ut nunquam adlulantur. Ita postremo eiciuntur, ut ne ad saxa quidem mortui 5 conquescant. 30. Tanti malefici crimen, cui maleficium tam insigne supplicium est constitutum, probare te, Eruci, censes posse talibus viris, si ne causam quidem malefici protuleris? Si hunc apud bonorum emptores ipsos accusares, eique judicio Chrysogonus praeesset, tamen diligentius paratiusque 10 venisses. Utrum quid agatur non vides, an apud quos agatur? Agitur de parricidio, quod sine multis causis suscipi non potest; apud homines autem prudentissimos agitur, qui intellegunt neminem ne minimum quidem maleficium sine causa admittere.

No Opportunity to Commit the Crime.

his vestigiis ad caput malefici perveniri solet? Et simul tibi in mentem veniat facito, quem ad modum vitam hujusce depinxeris: hunc hominem ferum atque agrestem fuisse; numquam cum homine quoquam conlocatum esse; numquam in oppido constitisse.

33. Qua in re praetereo illud, quod mihi maximo argumento ad hujus innocentiam poterat esse, in rusticis moribus, in victu arido, in hac horrida incoltae vita, istius modi maleficia gigni non solere. Ut non omnem frugem neque arborem in omni agro reperire possis, sic non omne facinus in omni vita nascitur. In urbe luxuries creatur: ex luxuria existat avaritia necesse est, ex avaritia erumpat audacia: inde omnia scelera ac maleficia gignuntur. Vita autem haec rustica, quam tu agrestem vocas, parsimoniae, diligentiae, justitiae magistra est.

No Agents Available.

34. Verum haec missa facio. Illud quaero,—is homo, qui, ut tute dicis, numquam inter homines fuerit, per quos homines hoc tantum facinus tam occulte, absens praesertim, conficere potuerit. Multa sunt falsa, judices, quae tamen argui suspiciose possunt; in his rebus si suspicio reperta erit, culpam inesse concedam. Romae Sex. Roscius occiditur, cum in agro Amerino esset filius. Litteras, credo, misit alicui sicario, qui Romae noverat neminem. 'Arcessivit aliquem.' Quem aut quando? 'Nuntium misit.' Quem aut ad quem? 'Pretio, gratia, spe, promissis induxit aliquem.' Nihil horum ne confingi quidem potest, et tamen causa de parricidio dicitur.'

If Committed by Slaves, by whose Slaves?

35. Reliquum est ut per servos id admiserit. O di immortales! rem miseram et calamitosam, quod in tali crimine quod innocenti saluti solet esse, ut servos in Sulla's Favorite, Chrysogonus, Implicated.

XLIII. 36. Venio nunc ad illud nomen aureum [Chryso- goni], sub quo nomine tota societas latuit: de quo, judices, neque quo modo dicam neque quo modo taceam reperire possum. Si enim taceo, vel maximam partem relinquo; sin autem dico, vereor ne non ille solus, id quod ad me nihil attinet, sed alii quoque plures laesos se esse putent. Tametsi ita se res habet, ut mihi in communem causam sectorum dicendum nihil magno opere videatur; haec enim causa nova profecto et singularis est.

He is the Purchaser of the Property.

37. Bonorum Sex. Rosci emptor est Chrysogonus. Primum hoc videamus: ejus hominis bona qua ratione venierunt, aut quo modo venire potuerunt? Atque hoc non ita quaeram, judices, ut id dicam esse indignum, hominis innocentis bona venisse; si enim haec audientur ac libere dicentur, non fuit tantus homo Sex. Roscius in civitate, ut de eo potissimum conqueramur. Verum [ego] hoc quae: qui potuerunt ista ipsa lege, quae de proscriptione est,—sive Valeria est, sive Cornelia, non enim novi nec scio,—verum ista ipsa lege bona Sex. Rosci venire qui potuerunt? Scriptum enim ita dicunt esse, ut corum bona veneant, qui proscripti sunt—quo in numero Sex. Roscius non est—aut corum qui in adversariorum praesidiis occisi sunt. Dum praesidia ulla fuerunt, in Sullae praesidiis fuit; postea quam ab armis recessum est, in summo otio rediens a cena Romae occisus est. Si lege, bona quoque lege venisse fateor; sin autem constat, contra omnis non modo veteres leges verum etiam novas occisum esse, bona quo jure aut quo more aut qua lege venierint quaero.

XLIV. 38. In quem hoc dicam quaeis, Eruci? Non in eum quem vis et putas; nam Sullam et oratio mea ab initio et ipsius eximia virtus omni tempore purgavit. Ego haec omnia Chrystogonum fecisse dico, ut ementiretur, ut malum civem Roscium fuisse fingeret, ut eum apud adversarios occisum esse diceret, ut his de rebus a legatis Amerinorum doceri L. Sullam passus non sit. Denique etiam illud suspicor, omnino haec bona non venisse: id quod postea, si per vos, judices, licitum erit, aperietur.

The Sale by Proscription Illegal.

non ullius rationem sui commodi ducit; facile egestatem suam se laturum putat, si hac indigna suspicione et ficto crimen liberatus sit.

40. Verum quaeso a vobis, judices, ut haec paucia quae restant ita audiatis, ut partim me dicere pro me ipso putetis, partim pro Sex. Roscio. Quae enim mihi indigna et intolerabilia videntur, quaque ad omnis, nisi providemus, arbitror pertinere, ea pro me ipso ex animi mei sensu ac dolore proununto; quae ad hujus vitae [casum] causam[que] pertinieant, et quid hic pro se dici velit, et qua condicione contentus sit, jam in extrema oratione nostra, judices, audietis. XLV. 41. Ego haec a Chrysogono, mea sponte, remoto Sex. Roscio, quaero: primum, qua re civis optimi bona venierint; deinde, qua re hominis ejus, qui neque proscriptus neque apud adversarios occisus est, bona venierint, cum in eos solos lex scripta sit; deinde, quare aliquanto post eam diem venierint, quae dies in lege praefinita est; deinde, cur tantulo venierint. Quae omnia si, quem ad modum solent liberti nequam et improbi facere, in patronum suum voluerit conferre, nihil egerit: nemo est enim qui nesciat propter magnitudinem rerum multa multos furtim imprudente L. Sulla commississe.

Sulla not Responsible.

42. Placet igitur in his rebus aliquid imprudentia praeteriri? Non placet, judices, sed necesse est. Etenim si Juppiter optimus maximus, cujus nutu et arbitrio caelum terra mariaque reguntur, saepe ventis vehementioribus aut immoderatis tempestatibus aut nimo calore aut intolerabili frigore hominibus nocuit, urbis delevit, fruges perdidit, quorum nihil pernicii causa divino consilio, sed vi ipsa et magnitudine rerum factum putamus; at contra, commoda quibus utimur lucemque qua fruimus spiritumque quem ducimus ab eo nobis dari atque imperti videmus, — quid miramur L. Sullam, cum solus rem publicam regeret, orbemque terrarum gubernaret, imperique majestatem quam armis receperat legibus confirmaret, aliqua animadvertere non potuisse? Nisi hoc mirum est, quod vis divina adsequi non possit, si id mens humana adepta non sit.
The Cause of the Nobility not Involved.

43. Vereor, judices, ne quis imperitior existimet me causam nobilitatis victoriamque voluisset laedere: tametsi meo jure possum, si quid in hac parte mihi non placeat, vituperare; non enim vereor ne quis alienum me animum habuisse a causa nobilitatis existimet. XLVII. Sciunt ei qui me norunt, me pro mea tenui infirmaque parte,—postea quam id quod maxime volui fieri non potuit, ut componeretur,—id maxime defendisse, ut ei vincerent qui vicerunt. Quis enim erat, qui non videret humilitatem cum [dignitate de] amplitudine contendere? Quo in certamine perditi civis erat non se ad eos jungere, quibus incolumibus, et domi dignitas et foris auctoritas retineretur. Quae perfecta esse et suum cuique honorem et gradum redditum gaudeo, judices, vehementerque laetor; eaque omnia deorum voluntate, studio populi Romani, consilio et imperio et felicitate L. Sullae, gesta esse intellego.

44. Quod animadversum est in eos qui contra omnirationem pugnarunt, non debelo reprehendere; quod viris fortibus, quorum opera eximia in rebus gerendis exstitit, honos habitus est, laudo. Quae ut fient, idcirco pugnatum esse arbitror, meque in eo studio partium suisse confiteor. Sin autem id actum est, et idcirco arma sumpta sunt, ut homines postremi pecuniis alienis locupletarentur, et in fortunas uniuscujusque impetum, facerent, et id non modo re prohibere non licet, sed ne verbis quidem vituperare, tum vero in isto bello non recreatus neque restitutus, sed subactus oppressusque populus Romanus est. Verum longe aliter est; nihil horum est, judices: non modo non laedetur causa nobilitatis, si istis hominibus resistetis, verum etiam ornabitur.

Chrysogonus’ Cause not that of the Nobility.

XLVIII. 45. Quapropter desinant aliquando dicere male aliquem locutum esse, si qui vere ac libere locutus sit; desinant suam causam cum Chrysogono communicare; desinant, si ille laesus sit, de se aliquid detractum arbitrari; videant ne turpe miserumque sit eos, qui equestrem splendorem pati non potuerunt, servi nequissimi dominationem ferre posse. Quae quidem dominatio, judices, in aliis rebus antea versabatur; nunc vero quam viam munitet, quod iter adfectet videtis, — ad fidem, ad jusjurandum, ad judicia vestra, ad id, quod solum prope in civitate sincerum sanctumque restat. Hicine etiam sese putat aliquid posse Chrysogonus? Hic etiam potens esse volt? O rem miseram atque acerbam! Neque, mehercules, hoc indigne fero, quod verear ne quid possit; verum quod ausus est, quod speravit sese apud talis viros aliquid posse ad perniciem innocentis, id ipsum queror.

XLIX. 46. Idcircone exspectata nobilitas armis atque ferro rem publicam recipieravit, ut ad libidinem suam liberti servolique nobilium bona, fortunas possessionesque nostras vexare possent? Si id actum est, fateror me errasse qui hoc maluerim; fateror insanisse qui cum illis senserim. Tametsi inermis, judicibus, sensi. Sin autem victoria nobilium ornamento atque emolumento rei publicae populoque Romano debet esse, tum vero optimo et nobilissimo cuique meam rationem gratissimam esse oportet. Quod si quis est qui et se et causam laedi putet cum Chrysogonus vituperetur, is causam ignorat; se ipsum probe novit. Causa enim splendidior fiet, si nequissimo cuique resistetur. Ille improbissimus Chrysogoni fator, qui sibi cum illo rationem communicatam putat, laeditur, cum ab hoc splendore causae separatur.

The Attack on Chrysogonus is Cicero's: Roscius Asks only for Life.

47. Verum haec omnis oratio, ut jam ante dixi, mea est, qua me uti res publica et dolor meus et istorum injuria coēgit. Sex. Roscius horum nihil indignum putat, neminem
Defence of Roscius.

accusat, nihil de suo patrimonio queritur. Putat homo imperitus morum, agricola et rusticus, ista omnia, quae vos per Sullam gesta esse dicitis, more, lege, jure gentium facta. Culpa liberatus et crimen nefario solutus, cupit a vobis discedere. Si hac indigna suspicione careat, animo aequo se carere suis omnibus commodis dicit. Rogat orate te, Chrysogone, si nihil de patris fortunis amplissimis in suam rem convertit, si nulla in re te fraudavit, si tibi optima fide sua omnia concessit, adnumeravit, appendit, si vestitum quo ipse tectus erat, anulumque de digito suum tibi tradidit, si ex omnibus rebus se ipsum nudum neque praeterea quicquam exceptit, ut sibi per te liceat innocenti amicorum opibus vitam in egestate degere. L. 48. 'Praedia mea tu possides, ego aliena misericordia vivo: concedo, et quod animus aequus est, et quia necesse est. Mea domus tibi patet, mihi clausa est: fero. Familia mea maxima tu uteris, ego servum habeo nullum: patior et ferendum puto. Quid vis amplius? Quid insequeris? Quid oppugnas? Qua in re tuam voluntatem laedi a me putas? Ubi tuis commodis officio? Quid tibi obsto?' Si spoliorem causa vis hominem occidere, quid quae quis amplius? Si inimiciarum, quae sunt tibi inimicitiae cum eo, cujus ante praediam posse diviso cognovisti? Si metus, ab eone aliquid metuis, quem vides ipsum ab se tam atrocius injuriarum propulsare non posse? Sin quod bona quae Rosci fuerunt tua facta sunt, idcirco hunc illius filium studes perdere, nonne ostendis id te vereri, quod praeter ceteros tu metuere non debeas, ne quando liberis proscriptorum bona patria reddantur?

Pretended Appeal to Chrysogonus for Mercy.

49. Facis injuriam, Chrysogone, si majorem spem emptionis tuae in hujus exitio ponis, quam in eis rebus quas L. 30 Sulla gessit. Quod si tibi causa nulla est cur hunc miserum tanta calamitate adfici velis, si tibi omnia sua praeter ani-mam tradidit, nec sibi quicquam paternum ne monumenti quidem causa clam reservavit, per deos immortalis, quae ista tanta crudelitas est? Quae tam fera immanisque natura? Quis umquam praedō fuit tam nefarius, quis pirata tam barbarus, ut, cum integram praedam sine sanguine habere posset, cruenta spolia detrāhere mallet? 50. Scis hunc nihil habere, nihil audere, nihil posse, nihil umquam contra rem tuam cogitasse; et tamen oppugnas eum quem neque metuere potes, neque odisse debes, nec quicquam jam habere reliqui vides quod ei detrāhere possis. Nisi hoc indignum putas, quod vestitum sedere in judicio vides, quem tu e patrimonio tamquam e naufragio nudum expulisti; quasi vero nescias hunc et ali et vestiri a Caecilia, [Baliarici filia, Nepotis sorore,] spectatissima femina, quae cum clarissimum patrem, amplissimos patruos, ornatissimum fratrem haberet, tamen, cum esset mulier, virtute perfecit ut, quanto honore ipsa ex illorum dignitate adficeretur, non minora illis ornamenta ex sua laude redderet.

Powerful Friends of the Defendant.

LI. 51. An quod diligenter defenditur, id tibi indignum facinus videtur? Mihi crede, si pro patris hujus hospitiis et gratia vellent omnes hujus hospites adesse, et auderent libere defendere, satis copiose defenderetur: sin autem pro magnitudine injuriae, proque eo quod summa res publica in hujus periculo temptatur, haec omnes vindicarent, consistere mehercule vobis isto in loco non liceret. Nunc ita defenditur, non sane ut moleste ferre adversarii debeant, neque ut se potestia superari potent. 52. Quae domi gerenda sunt, ea per Caeciliam transiguntur; fori judicique rationem M. Messala, ut videtis, judices, suscepit. Qui, si jam satis aetatis atque roboris haberet, ipse pro Sex. Roscio diceret: quoniam ad dicendum impedimento est aetas et pudor qui ornat aetatem, causam mihi tradidit, quam sua causa cupere ac debere intellegebat; ipse adsiduitate, consilio, auctoritate, diligentia perfecit, ut Sex. Rosci vita, erepta de manibus sectorum, sententiis judicium permitteretur. Nimirum, judices, pro hac nobilitate pars maxima civitatis in armis fuit; haec acta res est, ut ei nobiles restituerentur in civitatem, qui hoc facerent quod facere Messalam videtis,—qui caput innocentis defenderent, qui injuriae resisterent, qui quantum possent in salute alterius quam in exitio mallent ostendere: quod si omnes qui eodem loco nati sunt facerent, et res publica ex illis et ipsi ex invidia minus laborarent.

Appeal to the Court against Chrysogonus.

LII. 53. Verum si a Chrysogono, judices, non impetramus, ut pecunia nostra contentus sit, vitam ne petat,—si ille adduci non potest, ut, cum ademerit nobis omnia quae nostra erant propria, ne lucem quoque hanc, quae communis est, eripere cupiat,—si non satis habet avaritiam suam pecunia explere, nisi etiam crudelitati sanguis praebitus sit,—unum perfugium, judices, una spes reliqua est Sex. Roscio, eadem quae rei publicae, vestra pristina bonitas et misericordia. Quae si manet, salvi etiam nunc esse possimus; sin ea crudelitas, quae hoc tempore in re publica versata est, vestros quoque animos—id quod fieri profecto non potest—duriores acerbioresque reddidit, actum est. judices: inter feras satius est aetatem degere, quam in hac tanta immanitate versari. 54. Ad eamne rem vos reservati estis, ad eamne rem delecti, ut eos condemnaretis, quos sectores ac sicarii jugulare non potuissent? Solent hoc boni imperatores facere, cum proelium committunt, ut in eo loco quo fugam hostium fore arbitrentur milites conlocent, in quos, si qui ex acie fugerint, de improviso incidant. Nimirum similiter arbitrantur isti bonorum emptores,—vos hic, talis viros, sedere, qui excipiat eos qui de suis manibus effugerint. Di prohibeant, judices, ut hoc, quod majores consilium publicum vocari voluerunt, praesidium sectorum existimetur.

Real Danger to Roscius Comes from Greed of Dominant Party.

55. An vero, judices, vos non intellegitis nihil aliud agi nisi ut proscriptorum liberi quavis ratione tollantur, et ejus rei initium in vestro jurejurando atque in Sex. Rosci periculo quaeri? Dubiumne est ad quem maleficium pertineat, cum videatis ex altera parte sectorem, inimicum, sicarium eundemque accusatorem hoc tempore; ex altera parte egentem, probatum suis filium, in quo non modo culpa nulla, sed ne suspicio quidem potuit consistere? LIII. 56. Numquid huic aliud videtis obstare [Roscio], nisi quod patris bona venierunt? Quodsi id vos suscipitis, et eam ad rem operam vestram profitemini, si idcirco sedetis, ut ad vos adducantur eorum liberi quorum bona venierunt, cavete, per deos immortalis, judices, ne nova et multo crudelier per vos proscriptio instaurata esse videatur. Illam priorem, quae facta est in eos qui arma capere potuerunt, tamen senatus suscipere noluit, ne quid acrius quam more majorum comparatum esset publico consilio factum videretur. Hanc vero, quae ad eorum liberos atque ad infantium puерorum incunabula pertinet, nisi hoc judicio a vobis reicitis et aspernamin, videte, per deos immortalis, quem in locum rem publicam perventuram putetis.

The Court Implored to Rescue him.

Defence of Roscius.

Hanc pati nolite diutius in hac re publica versari. Quae non modo id habet in se mali, quod tot civis atrociissime sustulit, verum etiam hominibus lenissimis ademit misericordiam consuetudine incommodorum. Nam cum omnibus horis aliquid atrociter fieri videmus aut audimus, etiam qui natura mitissimi sumus, adsiduitate molestiarum sensum omnem humanitatis ex animis amittimus.
IMPEACHMENT OF VERRES.

(In C. Verrem.)

B.C. 70.

CAIUS VERRES, a man of noble birth, but notorious for his crimes and exactions in the civil war and in the offices he had held since, was city prætor (praetor urbanus) B.C. 74. At the close of his term of office, he went, in accordance with the law, as proprætor, to govern the province of Sicily. By reason of the disturbed condition of Italy, from the revolt of Spartacus, he was not relieved at the end of a year, as the law required, but continued two years longer in the government of the province, when he was succeeded by Lucius Cæcilius Metellus. During these three years he was guilty of the most abominable oppressions and exactions; and the Sicilians, as soon as they were relieved of his presence, brought suit against him in the court of Repetundae (that for the trial of cases of Extortion), then presided over by the prætor Manius Acilius Glabrio. To conduct the prosecution they had recourse to Cicero, who already stood high among Roman advocates, and who was personally known and trusted by the Sicilians on account of his honorable administration of the quæstorship in their island in B.C. 77. Cicero willingly took charge of the case, the more so as the counsel for Verres was Hortensius, the leading lawyer of the time, against whom he was eager to measure his strength.

Although the cruelty and rapacity of Verres were notorious, yet his relations to the Roman nobility insured him the same kind of support at home which recently, under somewhat similar circumstances, was afforded to Governor Eyre in England, on his return from Jamaica: not only Hortensius, but Curio, a man of excellent reputation, with members of the eminent families of Scipio and Metellus, stood firmly by him. The only hope of Verres lay in preventing a fair and speedy trial. First he tried to obtain a prosecutor who should be in collusion with him, and would not push him too hard. For this purpose one Caecilius was put forward, an insignificant person, but a native of Sicily.
Cicero's first speech in the case (In Q. Caecilium) was therefore a preliminary argument before the praetor Glabrio in person, to show that he, rather than Caecilius, should be allowed to conduct the case. This it was not hard to do, and he set out at once for Sicily to collect evidence, for which purpose he was allowed one hundred and ten days.

To consume time the opposition had planned to bring before the same court a trumped-up action against another provincial governor which should have precedence of the trial of Verres. To this end they had procured for the prosecutor in the rival suit an allowance of one hundred and eight days for collecting evidence in Achaia — or two days less than the time which Cicero was expected to need. This intrigue was foiled by Cicero's industry and skill. He used not quite half of the time allowed him, arriving in Rome, with ample evidence, not only before the prosecutor in the rival case was ready, but even before the latter had left Italy on his pretended tour of investigation. The trial of Verres was now fixed for Aug. 5, B.C. 70 (consulsip of Pompey and Crassus).

Meantime (in the latter part of July) the elections were held for the next year. As was the custom in Rome, these occurred several months before the newly elected magistrates were to enter upon their offices.
The successful candidates, under the title of designati, enjoyed a dignity almost equal to that of the actual magistrates, although with no real power (see ch. ix.). In these elections Cicero was designated aedile; but his rival Hortensius was chosen consul, with Quintus Metellus Creticus, Verres' fast friend, as his colleague. More than this, Marcus Metellus, brother of Quintus, was chosen praetor, and the lot fell to him to preside the next year in the court of Repetundae. If now the trial could be put over till the next year, when Hortensius and the two Metelli would be in the three most influential positions in the State, Verres felt quite sure of getting clear. Neither did it seem as if this would be very hard to bring about; for the last six months of the Roman year were so full of festivals and other days on which the court could not sit, that the case would be liable to constant interruptions and delays. The postponement would have disappointed Cicero sorely, for, by good luck in drawing the names, and sagacity in challenging, he had a jury that he could trust, and he was not willing to run the risk of a change.

Under these circumstances Cicero made the second speech of the Verrine group—that which is known as the Actio Prima (included in the present edition, pp. 28-47 below). In this oration he declared his intention of departing from the usual course of procedure in order to push the trial through before the New Year. It was customary for the prosecutor, after opening the case (as in the present speech), to present his proofs and arguments in a long connected oration (or a series of orations); there followed a reply from the defendant’s counsel, and then the witnesses were introduced. Cicero, omitting the long statement just described, proceeded to bring forward his witnesses immediately. Since the only hope of the defence lay in putting off the trial, Cicero’s promptitude was decisive: Hortensius soon threw up his case, and Verres went into exile, with a name forever associated with extortion and misgovernment. Full restitution of the plunder was, however, not obtained: a compromise was made, by which a less sum was paid in satisfaction of the claims. The five speeches known as the "Accusation" proper (Actio Secunda) were never delivered, but were written out and published in order to put on record the facts which Cicero had gathered with so much pains, and to give a specimen of his powers in the way of forensic composition.

The Senatorial Jurors have a Chance to Retrieve their Reputation.

Quod erat optandum maxime, judicès, et quod unum ad invidiam vestri ordinis infamiamque judiciorum sedandam maxime pertinebat, id non humano consilio, sed prope divinitus datum atque oblatum vobis summo rei publicae tempore videtur. Inveteravit enim jam opinio perniciosa rei publicae, vobisque periculosa, quae non modo apud populum Romanum, sed etiam apud exterias nationes, omnium sermone percrebruit: his judiciis quae nunc sunt, pecuniosum hominem, quamvis sit nocens, neminem posse damnari. 2. Nunc, in ipso discrimine ordinis judiciorumque vestrorum, cum sint parati qui contentionibus et legibus hanc invidiam senatus inflammare contentur, [reus] in judicium adductus est [C. Verres], homo vita atque factis omnium jam opinione damnatus, pecuniae magnitudine sua spe et praedicatione absolutus.

Huic ego causae, judices, cum summa voluntate et exspectatione populi Romani, actor accessi, non ut augerem invidiam ordinis, sed ut infamiae communi succurrerem. 10 Adduxi enim hominem, in quo reconciliare existimationem judiciorum amissam, redire in gratiam cum populo Romano, satis facere exteris nationibus, possetis; depeculatorem aerari, vexatorem Asie atque Pamphyliae, praedonem juris urbani, labem atque perniciem provinciae Siciliae. 3. De quo si vos vere ac religiose judicaveritis, auctoritas ea, quae in vobis remanere debet, haeret; sin istius ingentes divitiae judiciorum religionem veritatemque perfregerint, ego hoc tamen adsequar, ut judicium potius rei publicae, quam aut reus judicibus, aut accusator reo, defuisse videatur. 20

Bribery the Defendant’s Only Hope.

II. Equidem, ut de me confitear, judices, cum multae mihi a C. Verre insidiae terra marique factae sint, quas partim mea diligentia devitarim, partim amicorum studio officioque repulerim; numquam tamen neque tantum periculum mihi adire visus sum, neque tanto opere pertimui, 25 ut nunc in ipso judicio. 4. Neque tantum me exspectatium accusationis meae, concursusque tanta multitudinis (quibus ego rebus vehementissime perturbor) commovet, quantum istius insidiae nefariae, quas uno tempore mihi, vobis, M. Glabrioni, populo Romano, sociis, exteris nati-30 onibus, ordini, nomini denique senatorio, facere conatur: qui ita dictitat, eis esse metuendum, qui quod ipsis solis satis esset surripuisse; se tantum eripuisse, ut id multis satis esse posset; nihil esse tam sanctum quod non violari, nihil tam munitum quod non expugnari pecunia possit.

His Designs Patent.

5. Quod si quam audax est ad conandum, tam esset obscurus in agendo, fortasse aliqua in re nos aliquando fesellisset. Verum hoc adhuc percommode cadit, quod cum incredibili ejus audacia singularis stultitia conjuncta est. Nam, ut apertus in corripiendis pecuniis fuit, sic in spe corrumpendi judici, perspicua sua consilia conatusque omnibus fecit. Semel, ait, se in vita pertimuisse, tum cum primum a me reus factus sit; quod, cum e provincia recens esset, invidiaque et infamia non recenti, sed veterae ac diuturna flagraret, tum, ad judicium corrumpendum, tempus alienum offenderet. 6. Itaque, cum ego diem in Siciliam inquirendi perexiguam postulavissem, invenit iste, qui sibi in Achaian biduo breviorem diem postularet,—non ut is idem conficeret diligentia et industria sua quod ego meo labore et vigiliiis consecutus sum, etenim ille Achaicus inquisitor ne Brundisium quidem pervenit; ego Siciliam totam quinquagesim diebus sic obii, ut omnium populorum privatorumque literas injuriasque cognoscerem; ut perspi-cuum cuivis esse posses, hominem ab isto quaesitum esse, non qui reum suum adduceret, sed qui meum tempus obsideret.

He is Intriguing for Postponement.

III. 7. Nunc homo audacissimus atque amentissimus hoc cogitat. Intellegit me ita paratum atque instructum in judicium venire, ut non modo in auribus vestris, sed in oculis omnium, sua furta atque flagitia defixurus sim.
Videt senatores multos esse testis audaciae suae; videt multos equites Romanos frequentis praeterea civis atque socios, quibus ipse insignis injurias fecerit. Videt etiam
Impeachment of Verres.

tot tam gravis ab amicissimis civitatibus legationes, cum publicis auctoritatibus convenisse. 8. Quae cum ita sint, usque eo de omnibus bonis male existimat, usque eo senatoria judicia perdita profligataque esse arbitratur, ut hoc palam dictitet, non sine causa se cupidum pecuniae 5 fuisse, quoniam in pecunia tantum praesidium experiatur esse: sese (id quod difficillimum fuerit) tempus ipsum emisse judici sui, quo cetera facilius emere postea posset; ut, quoniam criminum vim subterfugere nullo modo poterat, procellam temporis devitaret.

But the Court is Incorruptible.

9. Quod si non modo in causa, verum in aliquo honesto praesidio, aut in alicujus eloquentia aut gratia, spem aliquam conlocasset, profecto non haec omnia conlieret atque aucuparetur; non usque eo despiceret contemneretque ordinem senatorium, ut arbitratu ejus deligeretur ex senatu, qui 15 reus fieret; qui, dum hic quae opus essent compararet, causam interea ante eum diceret. 10. Quibus ego rebus quid iste speret et quo animum intendat, facile perspicio. Quam ob rem vero se confidat aliquid perficere posse, hoc praetore, et hoc consilio, intellegere non possum. Unum 20 illud intellego (quod populus Romanus in rejectione judicium judicavit), ea spe istum fuisse praeditum ut omnem rationem salutis in pecunia constitueret; hoc erepto praesidio, ut nullam sibi rem adjumento fore arbitraretur.

Earlier Crimes of Verres.

His Reckless Career in Sicily.

Jam vero omnium vitiorum suorum plurima et maxima constituit monumenta et indicia in provincia Sicilia; quam iste per triennium ita vexavit ac perdidit ut ea restitui in antiquum statum nullo modo possit; vix autem per multos annos, innocentisque praetores, aliqua ex parte recreari aliquando posse videatur. 13. Hoc praetore, Siculi neque suas leges, neque nostra senatus-consulta, neque communia jura tuerunt. Tantum quisque habet in Sicilia, quantum hominis avarissimi et libidinosissimi aut imprudentiam subterfugit. aut satietati superfuit.

V. Nulla res per triennium, nisi ad nutum istius, judicata est: nulla res cujusquam tam patria atque avita fuit. quae non ab eo, imperio istius, abjudicaretur. Innumera-biles pecuniae ex aratorum bonis novo nefarioque instituto coactae; socii fidelissimi in hostium numero existimati: cives Romani servilem in modum cruciati et necati; homines nocentissimi propter pecunias judicio liberati; honestissimi atque integerrimi, absentem rei facti, indicta causa damnati et ejecti; portus munitissimi, maximae tutissimae-que urbes piratis praedonibusque patefactae; nautae militesque Siculorum, socii nostri atque amici, fame necati; classes optimae atque opportunissimae, cum magna ignominia populi Romani, amissae et perditae. 14. Idem iste praetor monumenta antiquissima, partim regum locupletissimorum, quae illi ornamento urbis esse voluerunt, partim etiam nostrorum imperatorum, quae victores civitatis Siculis aut dederunt aut reddiderunt, spoliavit, nudavitque omnia. Neque hoc solum in statuis ornamentisque publicis fecit; sed etiam delubra omnia, sanctissimis religionibus consecrata, depeculatus est. Deum denique nullum Siculis, qui ei paulo magis adfabre atque antiquo artificio factus videretur, reliquit. In stupris vero et flagitiis, nefarias ejus libidines commemorare pudore deterreor: simul illorum cala- mitatem commemorando augere nolo, quibus libros conjugescque suas integras ab istius petulantia conservare non licitum est.

His Guilt is Notorious.

15. At enim haec ita commissa sunt ab isto, ut non cognita sint ab hominibus? Hominem arbitror esse neminem, qui nomen istius audierit, quin facta quoque ejus nefaria commemorare possit; ut mihi magis timendum sit, ne multa crimina praetermittere, quam ne qua in istum fingere, exister. Neque enim mihi videtur haec multitudo, quae ad audiendum convenit, cognoscere ex me causam voluisse, sed ea, quae scit, mecum recognoscere.

Hence he Trusts in Bribery Alone.

VI. Quae cum ita sint, iste homo amens ac perditus alia mecum ratione pugnat. Non id agit, ut alicujus eloquentiam mihi opponat; non gratia, non auctoritate cujusquam, non potentia nititur. Simulat his se rebus confidere, sed video quid agat (neque enim agit occultissime): proponit inania mihi nobilitatis, hoc est, hominum adrogantium, nomina; qui non tam me impedient quod nobiles sunt, quam adjuvant quod noti sunt. Simulat se eorum praesidio confidere, cum interea aliud quiddam jam diu machinetur.

Previous Attempts at Bribery.

17. Praeclare se res habebat. Libelli nominum vestrorum, consilique hujus, in manibus erant omnium. Nulla nota, nullus color, nullae sordes videbantur his sententiis adlini posse: cum iste repente, ex alacri atque laeto, sic erat humilis atque demissus, ut non modo populo Romano, sed etiam sibi ipse, condemnatus videretur.

The Election Gives him Fresh Courage.

20. Ecce autem repente, his diebus paucis comitiis consularibus factis, eadem illa vetera consilia pecunia majore repetuntur; eademque vestrae famae fortunisque omnium insidiae per eosdem homines comparantur. Quae res primo, judices, pertenue nobis argumento indicioque patefacta est: post, aperto suspicionis introitu, ad omnia intima isterum consilia sine ullo errore pervenimus.

VII. 18. Nam, ut Hortensius, consul designatus, domum reducebatur e Campo, cum maxima frequentia ac multitudine fit obviam casu ei multitudini C. Curio; quem ego hominem honoris [potius quam contumeliae] causa nominatum volo.
Impeachment of Verres.

Etenim ea dicam, quae ille, si commemorari noluisset, non tanto in conventu, tam aperte palamque dixisset: quae tamen, a me pedentim cauteque dicentur; ut et amicitiae nostrae et dignitatis illius habitas ratio esse intellegatur.

His Friend Metellus is to be Judge Next Year.

istius hominis perditī subita laetitia, quam hominis amplissimi nova gratulatio, commovebat. Cupiebam dissimulare me id moleste ferre: cupiebam animi dolorem vultu tegere, et taciturnitate celare. Ecce autem, illis ipsis diebus, cum praetores designati sortirentur, et M. Metello obtigisset, ut is de pecuniis repetundis quaereret, nuntiatur mihi tantam isti gratulationem esse factam, ut is domum quoque pueros mittet, qui uxori suae nuntiarent.

Attempt to Defeat Cicero's Election as AEdile.

22. Sane ne haec quidem mihi res placebat: neque tamen, tanto opere quid in hac sorte metuendum mihi esset, intellegebam. Unum illud ex hominibus certis, ex quibus omnia comperī, reperiebam: fiscos compluris cum pecunia Sicilensi, a quodam senatore ad equitem Romanum esse translatos: ex his quasi decem fiscos ad senatem illum relictos esse, comitiorum meorum nomine: divisores omnium tribuum noctu ad istum vocatos. 23. Ex quibus quidam, qui se omnia mea causa debere arbitrabatur, eadem illa nocte ad me venit: demonstrat, qua iste oratione usus esset: commemorasse istum, quam liberaliter eos tractasset [etiam] antea, cum ipse praeturam petisset, et proximis consularibus praetoriusque comitiis: deinde continuo esse pollicitum, quam vellent pecuniam, si me aedilitate dejecissent. Hic alios negasse audere; alios respondisse, non putare id perfici posse: inventum tamen esse fortem amicum, ex eadem familia, Q. Verrem, Romilia, ex optima divisorum disciplina, patris istius discipulum atque amicum, qui, HS quingentis miliibus depositis, id se perfecturum policeretur: et fuisset tum non nullus, qui se una facturos esse dicerent. Quae cum ita essent, sane benevolo animo me, ut magno opere caverem praemonebat.
Impeachment of Verres.

Cicero Made Anxious, but Finally Elected.

IX. 24. Sollicitabar rebus maximis uno atque eo per-exiguo tempore. Urgebant comitia; et in his ipsis oppugnabat grandi pecunia. Instabat judicium: ei quoque negotio fisci Sicilienses minabantur. Agere quae ad judicium perti-nebant libere, comitiorum metu deterrebar: petitioni toto animo servire, propter judicium non licebat. Minari denique divisoribus ratio non erat, propterea quod eos intellegere videbamus me hoc judicio districtum atque obligatum futurum.

25. Atque hoc ipso tempore Siculis denuntiatum esse audio, primum ab Hortensio, domum ad illum ut venirent: Siculos in eo sane liberos fuisset; qui quam ob rem arcesserentur cum intellexerent, non venisset. Interea comitia nostra, quorum iste se, ut ceterorum hoc anno comitiorum, dominum esse arbitrabatur, haberis coepta sunt. Cursare iste homo potens, cum filio blando et gratioso, circum tribus: paternos amicos, hoc est divisores, appellare omnes et convenire.
Quod cum esset intellectum et animadversum, fecit animo libentissimo populus Romanus, ut cujus divitiae me de fide ducere non potuissent, ne ejusdem pecunia de honore deiceret.

Consuls Elect Intrigue for Postponement.

26. Postea quam illa petitionis magna cura liberatus sum, animo coepi multo magis vacuo ac soluto, nihil aliud nisi de judicio agere et cogitare. Reperio, judices, haec ab istis consilia inita et constituta, ut, quacumque posset ratione, res ita duiceretur, ut apud M. Metellum praeorem causa 25 diceretur. In eo esse haec commoda: primum M. Metellum amicissimum; deinde Hortensium consulem non * [solum, sed] etiam Q. Metellum, qui quam isti sit amicus attendite:
dedit enim praerogativam suae voluntatis ejusmodi, ut isti pro praerogativis eam reddidisse videatur.
27. An me tacitum tantis de rebus existimavistis? et me, in tanto rei publicae existimationisque meae periculo, cuium consalitum potius quam officio et dignitati meae? Arcetit alter consul designatus Siculon veniunt non nulli, propterea quod L. Metellus esset praetor in Sicilia. Cum iis ita loquitur: se consulem esse; fratrem suum alterum Sicilian provinciam obinere, alterum esse quaeiturnum de pecuniis repetundis; Verri ne noceri possit multis rationibus esse provisum.

X. 28. Quid est, quaeso, Metelle, judicium corrumpere, si hoc non est? testis, praesertim [Siculon], timidos homines et adfiictos, non solum auctoritate deterrire, sed etiam consulari metu, et duorum praetorum potestate? Quid faceres pro innocente homine et propinquum, cum propter hominem perditissimum atque alienissimum de officio ac dignitate decedis, et committis, ut, quod ille dictitat, alicui, qui te ignoret, verum esse videatur?

29. Nam hoc Verrem dicere aiebant, te non fato, ut ceteros ex vestra familia, sed opera sua consulem factum. Duo igitur consules et quaeior erunt ex illius voluntate. 'Non solum effugiemus' inquit 'hominem in quaeerendo nimium diligentem, nimium servientem populi existimationi, M'. Glabrionem: accedet etiam nobis illud. Judex est M. Caesonius, conlega nostri accusatoris, homo in rebus judiciis spectatus et cognitus, quem minime expediat esse in eo consilio quod conemur aliqua ratione corrumpere: propterea quod jam antea, cum judex in Juniano consilio fuisset, turpissimum illud facinus non solum graviter tuliit, sed etiam in medium protulit. Hunc judicem ex Kal. Januariis non habebimus. 30. Q. Manlium, et Q. Cornificium, duos severissimos atque integerrimos judices, quod tribuni plebis tum erunt, judices non habebimus. P. Sulpi-
Impeachment of Verres.

Cicero's Plan for Despatch.

XI. Nunc ego, judices, jam vos consulo, quid mihi faciendum putetis. Id enim consili mihi profecto taciti dabitis, quod egomet mihi necessario capiendum intellego. Si utar ad dicendum meo legitimo tempore, mei laboris, industriae, diligentiaeque capiam fructum; et [ex accusa-tione] perficiam ut nemo umquam post hominum memorium paravior, vigilantior, compositior ad judicium venisse videatur. Sed, in hac laude industriae meae, reus ne 5 elabatur summum periculum est. Quid est igitur quod fieri possit? Non obscum, opinor, neque absconditum.
33. Fructum istum laudis, qui ex perpetua oratione percipi potuit, in alia tempora reservemus: nunc hominem tabulis, testibus, privatis publicisque litteris auctoritatibusque accusemus. Res omnis mihi tecum erit, Hortensi. Dicam 10 aperte: si te mecum dicendo ac diluendis criminibus in hac causa contendere putarem, ego quoque in accusando atque in explicandis criminibus operam consumerem; nunc, quoniam pugnare contra me instituisti, non tam ex tua natura quam ex istius tempore et causa [malitiose], necesse 15 est istius modi rationi aliquo consilio obsistere. 34. Tua ratio est, ut secundum binos ludos mihi respondere incipias; mea, ut ante primos ludos comprehendinem. Ita fit ut tua ista ratio existimetur astuta, meum hoc consilium necessa-20 rium.

Corrupt Influence of Hortensius Dangerous.

XII. Verum illud quod institueram dicere, mihi rem tecum esse, hujus modi est. Ego cum hanc causam Siculorum rogatu recepissem, idque mihi amplum et praecae-rae existimasse, eos velle meae fidei diligentiaeque periculum 25 facere, qui innocentiae abstinentiaeque fecissent; tum sus-cepto negotio, majus quiddam mihi proposui, in quo meam in rem publicam voluntatem populus Romanus perspicere posset. 35. Nam illud mihi nequaquam dignum industria conatuque meo videbatur, istum a me in judicium, jam omnium judicio condemnatum, vocari, nisi ista tua intolera-bilis potestia, et ea cupiditas qua per hosce annos in qui-busdam judiciis usus es, etiam in istius hominis desperati causa interponeretur. Nunc vero, quoniam haec te omnis
Impeachment of Verres.

dominatio regnumque judiciorum tanto opere delectat, et sunt homines quos libidinis infamiaeque suae neque pudeat neque taedeat,—qui, quasi de industria, in odium offensiodemque populi Romani inruere videantur,—hoc me profiteor suscepisse, magnum fortasse onus et mihi periculosissimum. verum tamen dignum in quo omnis nervos aetatis industriaeque meae contenderem.

36. Quoniam totus ordo paucorum improbitate et audaccia premitur et urgetur infamia judiciorum, profiteor huic generi hominum me inimicum accusatorem, odiosum, adsiduum, acerbum adversarium. Hoc mihi sumo, hoc mihi deposco, quod agam in magistratu, quod agam ex eo loco ex quo me populus Romanus ex Kal. Januariis secum agere de re publica ac de hominibus improbis voluit: hoc munus aedilitatis meae populo Romano amplissimum pulcherrimum-que polliceor. Moneo, praedico, ante denuntio; qui aut deponere, aut accipere, aut recipere, aut polliceri, aut sequestres aut interpretes corrumpendi judicii solent esse, quique ad hanc rem aut potentiam aut impudentiam suam professi sunt, abstineant in hoc judicio manus animoque ab hoc scelere nefario.

This influence must be Met by Proofs of Corruption.

XIII. 37. Erit tum consul Hortensius cum summo imperio et potestate; ego autem aedilis, hoc est, paulo amplius quam privatus. Tamen hujus modi haec res est, quam me acturum esse polliceor, ita populo Romano grata atque jucunda, ut ipse consul in hac causa prae me minus etiam (si fieri possit) quam privatus esse videatur. Omnia non modo commemorabuntur, sed etiam, expositis certis rebus, agentur, quae inter decem annos, postea quam judicia ad senatum translata sunt, in rebus judicandis nefarie flagitio-oseque facta sunt. 38. Cognoscet ex me populus Romanus quid sit, quam ob rem, cum equester ordo judicaret, annos prope quinquaginta continuos, in nullo judice [equite Romano judicante] ne tenuissima quidem suspicio acceptae pecuniae ob rem judicandam constituta sit: quid sit quod, judiciis ad senatorium ordinem translatis, sublataque populi Romani in unum quemque vestrum potestate, Q. Calidius damnatus dixerit, minoris HS triciens praetorium hominem honeste non posse damnari: quid sit quod, P. Septimio senatore damnato, Q. Hortensio praetore, de pecuniiis repetundis lis aestimata sit eo nomine, quod ille ob rem judicandam pecuniam accepisset; 39. quod in C. Herennio, quod in C. Popilio, senatoribus, qui ambo peculatus damnati sunt; quod in M. Atilio, qui de majestate damnatus est, hoc planum factum sit, eos pecuniam ob rem judicandam accepisse; quod inventi sint senatores, qui, C. Verre praetore urbano sortiente, exirent in eum reum, quem incognita causa condemnarent; quod invenitus sit senator, qui, cum judex esset, in eodem judicio et ab reo pecuniam acciperet quam judicibus divideret, et ab accusatore, ut reum condemnaret. 40. Jam vero quomodo illam labem, ignominiam, calamitatemque totius ordinis conquerar? hoc factum esse in hac civitate, cum senatorius ordo judicaret, ut discoloribus signis juratorum hominum sententiae notarentur? Haec omnia me diligenter severeque acturum esse, polliceor.

Acquittal of Verres Subversive of Whole Judicial System.

XIV. Quo me tandem animo fore putatis, si quid in hoc ipso judicio intellexero simili aliquo ratione esse violatum atque commissum? cum planum facere multis testibus possum, C. Verrem in Sicilia, multis audientibus, saepe dixisse, 'se habere hominem potentem, cujus fiducia provinciam spoliaret: neque sibi soli pecuniam quaerere, sed ita triennium illud praeturae Siciliensis distributum habere, ut secum praeclare agi diceret, si unius anni quaeestum in rem suam converteret; alterum patronis et defensoribus traderet; ter-
Impeachment of Verres.

41. Ex quo mihi venit in mentem illud dicere (quod apud M'. Glabronem nuper cum in reiciundis judicibus commemorassem, intellexi vehementer populum Romanum comnoveri), me arbitrari, fore uti nationes exterae legatos ad populum Romanum mitterent, ut lex de pecuniis repetundis judiciumque tolleretur. Si enim judicia nulla sint, tantum unum quemque ablaturum putant, quantum sibi ac liberis suis satis esse arbitretur: nunc; quod ejus modi judicia sint, tantum unum quemque auferre, quantum sibi, patronis, advocatis, praetorii, judicibus, satis futurum sit: hoc profecto infinitum esse: se avarissimi hominis cupiditatii satisfacere posse, nocentissimi victoriae non posse.

42. O commemoranda judicia, praecclaremque existima- tionem nostri ordinis! cum socii populi Romani judicia de pecuniis repetundis fieri nolunt, quae a majoribus nostris sociorum causa comparata sunt. An iste umquam de se bonam spem habuisset, nisi de vobis malam opinionem animo imbibisset? Quo majore etiam (si fieri potest) apud vos odio esse debet, quam est apud populum Romanum, cum in avaritia, scelere, perjurio, vos sui similis esse arbitretur.

Jurors Urged to Vindicate the Courts.

XV. 43. Cui loco (per deos immortalis!), judices, consulite ac providete. Moneo praedicoque—id quod intel- 25 lego—tempus hoc vobis divinitus datum esse, ut odio, invidia, infamia, turpitudine, totum ordinem liberetis. Nulla in judiciis severitas, nulla religio, nulla denique jam existimantur esse judicia. Itaque a populo Romano con- temnimus, despicimus: gravi diuturnaque jam flagramus 30 infamia. 44. Neque enim ullam aliam ob causam populus Romanus tribuniciam potestatem tanto studio requisivit; quam cum poscebat, verbo illam poscere videbatur, re vera judicia poscebat. Neque hoc Q. Catulum, hominem sapientissimum atque amplissimum, fugit, qui (Cn. Pompeio, viro fortissimo et clarissimo, de tribunicia potestate referente), cum esset sententiam rogatus, hoc initio est summa cum auctoritate usus: 'Patres conscriptos judicia male et flagitiose tueri: quod si in rebus judicandis, populi Romani existimationi satis facere voluisset, non tanto opere hominesuisse tribuniciam potestatem desideratus.' 45. Ipse denique Cn. Pompeius, cum primum contionem ad urbem consul designatus habuit, ubi (id quod maxime expectari videbatur) ostendit se tribuniciam potestatem restituturum, factus est in eo strepitus, et grata contionis admurmuratio. Idem in eadem contione cum dixisset 'populatas vexatasque esse provincias; judicia autem turpia ac flagitiosa fieri: ei rei se providere ac consulere velle:' tum vero non strepitu, sed maximo clamore, suam populus Romanus significavit voluntatem.

All Rome is on the Watch.

XVI. 46. Nunc autem homines in speculis sunt: observant quem ad modum sese unus quisque nostrum gerat in retinenda religione, conservandisque legibus. Vident adhuc, post legem tribuniciam, unum senatum hominem vel tennissimum esse damnatum: quod tametsi non reprehendunt, tamen magno opere quod laudent non habent. Nulla est enim laus, ibi esse integrum, ubi nemo est qui aut possit aut conetur corrumpere. 47. Hoc est judicium, in quo vos de reo, populus Romanus de vobis judicabit. In hoc homine statuetur, possitne, senatoribus judicantibus, homo nocentissimus pecuniosissimusque damnari. Deinde est ejus modus reus, in quo homine nihil sit, praeter summa peccata maximaque pecuniam; ut, si liberatus sit, nulla alia suspicio, nisi ea quaet turpissima est, residere possit. Non gratia, non cognitione, non aliis recte factis, non denique aliquo mediocris vitio, tot tantaque ejus vitia sublevata esse videbuntur.
Corruption Sure to be Detected.

48. Postremo ego causam sic agam, judices: ejus modi res, ita notas, ita testatas, ita magnas, ita manifestas proferam, ut nemo a vobis ut istum absolvatis per gratiam conetur contendere. Habeo autem certam viam atque rationem, qua omnis illorum conatus investigare et consequi possim. Ita res a me agetur, ut in corum consiliis omnibus non modo aures hominum, sed etiam oculi [populi Romani] interesse videantur. 49. Vos aliquot jam per annos conceptam huic ordini turpitudinem atque infamiam delere ac tollere potestis. Constat inter omnis, post haec constituta judicia, quibus nunc utimur, nullum hoc splendore atque hac dignitate consilium fuisse. Hic si quid erit offensum, omnes homines non jam ex eodem ordine alios magis idoneos (quod fieri non potest), sed alium omnino ordinem ad res judicandas quaerendum arbitrabuntur.

XVII. 50. Quapropter, primum ab dis immortalibus, quod sperare mihi videor, hoc idem, judices, opto, ut in hoc judicio nemo improbus praeter eum qui jampridem inventus est reperiat: deinde si plures improbi fuerint, hoc vobis, hoc populo Romano. judices, confirmo, vitam (meherecule) mihi prius, quam vim perseverantiamque ad illorum improbitatem persequeandam defuturam.

Glabrio Urged to Stand Firm.

51. Verum, quod ego laboribus, periculis, inimicitiiisque meis, tum cum admissum erit dedesus severe me persecuturum esse polliceor, id ne accidat. tu tua auctoritate, sapientia, diligentia, M'. Glabrio, potes providere. Suscipe causam judiciorum: suscipe causam severitatis, integritatis, fidei, religionis: suscipe causam senatus, ut is, hoc judicio probatus, cum populo Romano et in laude et in gratia esse possit. Cogita qui sis, quo loco sis, quid dare populo Romano, quid reddere majoribus tuis, debeas: fac tibi paternae legis [Aciliae] veniat in mentem, qua lege populus Romanus de pecuniis repetundis optimis judiciis severissimisque judicibus usus est. 52. Circumstant te summae auctoritates, quae te oblivisci laudis domesticae non sinant; quae te noctis diesque commoneant, fortissimum tibi patrem, sapientissimum avum, gravissimum socerum fuisset. Qua re si [Glabrionis] patris vim et acrimoniam ceperes ad resistendum hominibus audacissimis; si avi [Scaevolae] prudentiam ad prospekiendas insidias, quae tuae atque horum famae comparantur; si socii [Scauri] constantiam, ut ne quis te de vera et certa possit sententia demovere; intellegept populus Romanus, integerrimo atque honestissimo praetore, delectoque consilio, nocenti reo magnitudinem pecuniae plus habuisse momenti ad suspicisionem criminis quam ad rationem salutis.

Cicero will Push the Trial.

XVIII. 53. Mihi certum est, non committere ut in hac causa praetor nobis consiliumque mutetur. Non patiar rem in id tempus adduci, ut [Siculi], quos adhuc servi designatorum consulum non moverunt, cum eos novo exemplo universos acresserent, eos tum lictores consulum vocent; ut homines miseri, antea socii atque amici populi Romani, nunc servi ac supplices, non modo jus suum fortunasque omnis eorum imperio amittant, verum etiam deplorandi juris sui potestatem non habeant. 54. Non sinam profecto, causa a me perorata [quadraginta diebus interpositis], tum nobis denique respondere, cum accusatio nostra in oblivionem diuturnitate adducta sit: non committam, ut tum haec res judicetur, cum haec frequentia totius Italiae Roma discesserit; quae convenit uno tempore undique, comitiorum, ludorum, censendique causa. Hujus judici et laudis fructum, et offensionis periculum, vestrum; laborem sollicitudi-nemque, nostram; scientiam quid agatur, memoriamque quid a quoque dictum sit, omnium puto esse oportere.

His Plan for Despatch.

55. Faciam hoc non novum, sed ab eis qui nunc principes nostrae civitatis sunt ante factum, ut testibus utar statim: illud a me novum, judices, cognoscetis, quod ita testis constitutam, ut crimen totum explicem; ut, ubi id [interrogando] argumentis atque oratione firmavero, tum testis ad crimen accommodem: ut nihil inter illam usitatem accusationem atque hanc novam intersit, nisi quod in illa tunc, cum omnia dicta sunt, testes dantur; hic in singulas res dabuntur; ut illis quoque eadem interrogandi facultas, argumentandi dicendique sit. Si quis erit, qui perpetuam orationem accusationemque desideret, altera actione audiet: nunc id, quod facimus—ea ratione facimus, ut malitiae illorum consilio nostro occurramus—necessario fieri intellegat. Haec primae actionis erit accusatio.

Brief Statement of the Charges.

56. Dicimus C. Verrem, cum multa libidinose, multa crudeliter, in civis Romanos atque in socios, multa in deos hominesque nefarie fecerit tum praeterea quadringentiens sestertium ex Sicilia contra leges abstulisse. Hoc testibus, hoc tabulis privatis publicisque auctoritatibus ita vobis planum faciemus, ut hoc statuatis, etiam si spatium ad dicendum nostro commodo, vacuosque dies habuissemus, tamen oratione longa nihil opus fuisse.

Dixi.
THE PLUNDER OF SYRACUSE.

(In C. Verrem: Actio II., Lib. IV., ch. 52-60.)

The passage which follows is from the fourth oration of the Accusatio, the most famous of all, known as the De Signis because it treats chiefly of the works of art stolen by Verres. Cicero has been describing the plundering of many temples and public buildings, and in this passage he recounts in detail the case of one chief city, Syracuse, as a climax. Syracuse was by far the largest and richest of all the Greek cities of Italy and Sicily. It was a colony of Corinth, founded B.C. 734, and in course of time obtained the rule over the whole eastern part of Sicily. It remained independent, with a considerable territory, after the western part of the island (far the larger part) passed under the power of Rome in the First Punic War; but in the Second Punic War (B.C. 212) it was captured by Marcellus, and ever after was subject to Rome. It was at this time the capital of the province.

Verres the Governor: Marcellus the Conqueror.

UNIUS etiam urbis omnium pulcherrimae atque ornatisimae, Syracusanorum, direptionem commemorabo et in medium proferam, judices, ut aliquando totam hujus generis orationem concludam atque definiam. Nemo fere vestrum est quin quem ad modum captae sint a M. Marcelllo Syracusae saepe audierit, non numquam etiam in annalibus legerit. Conferte hanc pacem cum illo bello, hujus praetoris adventum cum illius imperatoris victoria, hujus cohortem impuram cum illius exercitu invicto, hujus libidines cum illius continentia: ab illo, qui cepit, conditas, ab hoc qui constitutas accepit, captas dicetis Syracusas.

2. Ac jam illa omitto, quae disperse a me multis in locis dicentur ac dicta sunt: forum Syracusanorum, quod introitu Marcelli purum caede servatum esset, id adventu Verris Siculorum innocentium sanguine redundasse: portum Syracusanorum, qui tum et nostris classibus et Karthaginiensium clausus fuisse, eum isto praetore Cilicum myoparoni praedonibusque patuisse: mitto adhibitam vim ingenuis, matres familias violatas, quae tum in urbe capta commissa non sunt neque odio hostili neque licentia militari neque more belli neque jure victoriae: mitto, inquam, haec omnia, quae ab isto per triennium perfecta sunt: ea, quae conjuncta cum illis rebus sunt, de quibus antea dixi, cognoscite.

Description of Syracuse.

LIII. 4. Ea tanta est urbs, ut ex quattuor urbibus maximis constare dicatur: quarum una est ea quam dixi Insula, Orations of Cicero.

quae duobus portubus cincta; in utriusque portus ostium aditumque projecta est, in qua domus est, quae Hieronis regis fuit, qua praetores uti solent. In ea sunt aedes sacrae complures, sed duae quae longe ceteris antecellant: 5 Dianae, et altera, quae fuit ante istius adventum ornatisima, Minervae. In hac insula extrema est fons aquae dulcis, cui nomen Arethusa est, incredibili magnitudine, plenissimus piscium, qui fluctu totus operiretur, nisi munitione ac mole lapidum dijunctus esset a mari. 5. Altera autem est urbs Syracusis, cui nomen Achradina est: in qua forum maximum, pulcherrimae porticus, ornatisimum prytaneum, amplissima est curia templumque egregium Jovis Olympii ceteraeque urbis partes, quae una via lata perpetua multisque transversis divisae privatis aedificiis continentur. 10 Tertia est urbs, quae, quod in ea parte Fortunae fanum antiquum fuit, Tycha nominata est, in qua gymnasium amplissimum est et complures aedes sacrae: coliturque ea pars et habitatur frequentissime. Quarta autem est, quae quia postrema coaedificata est, Neapolis nominatur: quam ad summam theatrum maximum: praeterea duo templum sunt egregia, Clereris unum, alterum Liberae signumque Apollinis, qui Tenemites vocatur, pulcherrimum et maximum: quod iste si portare potuisset, non dubitasset auferre.
LIV. 6. Nunc ad Marcellum revertar, ne haec a me sine causa commemorata esse videantur: qui cum tam praecclaram urbem vi copiisque cepisset, non putavit ad laudem populi Romani hoc pertinere, hanc pulchritudinem, ex qua praesertim periculi nihil ostenderetur, delere et exstinguere. Itaque aedificiis omnibus, publicis privatis, sacris profanis, sic pepercit, quasi ad ea defendenda cum exercitu, non oppugnanda venisset. In ornatu urbis habuit victoriae rationem, habuit humanitatis. Victorie putabat esse multa Romam deportare, quae ornamentum urbi esse posseunt, humanitatis non plane exspoliare urbem, praesertim quam conservare voluisset. 7. In hac partitione ornatus non plus victoria Marcelli populo Romano appetit quam humanitas Syracusanis reservavit. Romam quae apportata sunt, ad aedium Honoris et Virtutis itemque aliis in locis videmus. 15 Nihil in aedibus, nihil in hortis posuit, nihil in suburbano: putavit, si urbem ornamenta domum suam non contulisset, domum suam ornamentum urbi futuram. Syracusis autem permulta atque egregia reliquit: deum vero nullum violavit, nullum attigit. Conferte Verrem: non ut hominem cum 20 homine comparetis, ne qua tali viro mortuo fiat injuria, sed ut pacem cum bello, leges cum vi, forum et juris dictionem cum ferro et armis, adventum et comitatum cum exercitu et victoria conferatis.
Verres Plundered even Temples.

LV. 8. Aedis Minervae est in Insula, de qua ante dixi: quam Marcellus non attigit, quam plenam atque ornatam reliquit: quae ab isto sic spoliata atque direpta est, non ut ab hoste aliquo, qui tamen in bello religionum et consuetu-

5 dinis jura retineret, sed ut a barbaris prædonibus vexata esse videatur. Pugna erat equestris Agathocli regis in tabulis picta: his autem tabulis interiores templi parietes vestiebantur. Nihil erat ea pictura nobilium, nihil Syracuseis quod magis visendum putaretur. Has tabulas M. Marcellus 10 cum omnia victoria illa sua profana fecisset, tamen religione impeditus non attigit: iste, cum illa jam propter diuturnam pacem fidelitatemque populi Syracusani sacra religiosaque accepisset, omnes eas tabulas abstulit: parietes, quorum ornatus tot saecula manserant, tot bella effugerant, nudos ac deformatos reliquit. 9. Et Marcellus, qui, si Syracusas cepisset, duo templum se Romae dedicaturum voverat, is id, quod erat aedificaturus, iis rebus ornare, quas ceperat, noluit: Verres, qui non Honori neque Virtuti, quem ad modum ille, sed Veneri et Cupidini vota deberet, is Minervae templum spoliare conatus est. Ille deos deorum spoliis ornari noluit: hic ornementa Minervae virginis in meretri-ciam domum transtulit. Viginti et septem praeterea tabulas pulcherrime pictas ex eadem aede sustulit: in quibus erant imaginum Siciliae regum ac tyrannorum, quae non solum pictorum artificio delectabant, sed etiam commemoratione hominum et cognitione formarum. Ac videte quanto tae-trior hic tyrannus Syracusanus fuerit quam quisquam supe-riorum: cum illi tamen ornarint tempia deorum immortalium, hic etiam illorum monumenta atque ornementa sustulerit.
The Plunder of Syracuse.

Robberies Detailed.

LVI. 10. Jam vero quid ego de valvis illius templi com-memorem? Vereor ne, haec qui non viderint, omnia me nimis augere atque ornare arbitrentur: quod tamen nemo suspicari debet, tam esse me cupidum, ut tot viros primarios velim, praesertim ex judicium numero, qui Syracusis fuerint, qui haec viderint, esse ternerati et mendacio meo conscios. 25 Confirmare hoc liquido, judices, possum, valvas magnificen-tiores, ex auro atque ebore perfectiores, nullas umquam ullo in templo fuisse. Incredibile dictu est quam multi Graeci de harum valvarum pulchritudine scriptum reliquerint. Nium forsitan haec illi mirentur atque efferant. Esto: 30 verum tamen honestius est rei publicae nostrae, judices, ea quae illis pulchra esse videantur impetaturem nostrum in Orations of Cicero.

bello reliquisse, quam praetorem in pace abstulisse. Ex ebore diligentissime perfecta argumenta erant in valvis: ea detrahenda curavit omnia. 11. Gorgonis os pulcherrimum, cinctum anguibus, revellit atque abstulit et tamen indicavit se non solum artificio, sed etiam pretio quaestuque duci. Nam bullas aureas omnes ex iis valvis, quae erant multae et graves, non dubitavit auferre: quarum iste non opere delectabatur, sed pondere. Itaque ejus modi valvas reliquit, ut quae olim ad ornandum templum erant maxime, nunc tantum ad claudendum factae esse videantur. Etiamne gramineas hastas — vidi enim vos in hoc nomine, cum testis diceret, commoveri, quod erat ejus modi, ut semel vidisse satis esset; in quibus neque manu factum quicquam neque pulchritudo erat ulla, sed tantum magnitudo incredibilis, de qua vel audire satis esset, nimium videre plus quam semel — etiam id concupisti?

Statue of Sappho Stolen.

LVII. 12. Nam Sappho, quae sublata de Prytaneo est, dat tibi justam excusationem, prope ut concedendum atque ignoscendum esse videatur. Silanionis opus tam perfectum, tam elegans, tam elaboratum quisquam non modo privatus, sed populus potius haberet quam homo elegantissimus atque eruditissimus, Verres? Nimimum contra dici nihil potest. Nostrum enim unus quisque — qui tam beati quam iste est non sumus, tam delicati esse non possumus — si quando aliquid istius modo videre volet, eat ad aedem Felicitatis, ad monumentum Catuli, in porticum Metelli; det operam ut admittatur in alicujus istorum Tusculanum; spectet forum ornatum, si quid iste suorum aedilibus commodarit: Verres haec habeat domi, Verres ornamentorum fanorum atque oppidorum habeat plenam domum, villas refertas. Etiamne hujus operari studia ac delicias, judices, perferetis? qui ita natus, ita educatus est, ita factus et animo et corpore, ut multo appositor ad ferenda quam ad auferenda signa esse videatur. 13. Atque haec Sappho sublata quantum desiderium sui reliquerit dici vix potest. Nam cum ipsa fuit egrégie facta, tum epigramma Graecum pernobile incisum est in basi: quod iste eruditus homo et Graeculus, qui haec subtiliter judicat, qui solus intellegit, si unam litteram Graecam scisset, certe non tulisset. Nunc enim, quod scriptum est inani in basi, declarat quid fuerit, et id ablatum indicat.

Other Thefts.

Statue of Jupiter.

16. Ut saepius ad Marcellum revertar, judices, sic habetote: plures esse a Syracusanis istius adventu deos, quam victoria Marcelli homines desideratos. Etenim ille requisisse etiam dicitur Archimede illum, summo ingenio hominem ac disciplina, quem cum audisset interfec tum, permolest estulisse: iste omnia, quae requisivit, non ut conservaret, verum ut asportaret requisivit.
The Plunder of Syracuse.

Even Trifles Carried off.

LIX. 17. Jam illa quae leviora videbuntur ideo prae-teribo,—quod mensas Delphicas e marmore, crateras ex aere pulcherrimas, vim maximam vasorum Corinthiorum ex omnibus aedibus sacris abstulit Syracusis. Itaque, judices, ei qui hospites ad ea quae visenda sunt solent ducere, et unum quidque ostendere, quos illi mystagogos vocant, conversam jam habent demonstrationem suam.
Nam, ut ante demonstrabant quid ubique esset, item nunc quid undique ablatum sit ostendunt.

Feelings of the Citizens Outraged.

18. Quid tum? mediocrine tandem dolore eos affectos esse arbitramini? Non ita est, judices: primum, quod omnes religione moventur, et deos patrios, quos a majoribus acceperunt, colendos sibi diligenter et retinendos esse arbi-trantur: deinde hic ornatus, haec opera atque artificia, signa, tabulae pictae, Graecos homines nimio opere delec-tant. Itaque ex illorum querimonii intellegere possumus, haec illis acerbissima videri, quae forsitan nobis levia et contemnenda esse videantur. Mihi credite, judices,—tametsi vosmet ipso haec eadem audiure certo scio,—cum multas acceperint per hosce annos socii atque exterae nationes calamitates et injurias, nullas Graeci homines gravius ferunt ac tulerunt, quam hujusce modi spoliationes fanorum atque oppidorum.

Empty Pretence of Purchase.

19. Licet iste dicat emisse se, sicuti solet dicere, credite hoc mihi, judices: nulla umquam civitas tota Asia et Graecia signum ullam, tabulam pictam, ullam denique ornamentum urbis. sua voluntate cuiquam vendidit, nisi forte existimatis.
postea quam judicia severa Romae fieri desierunt, Graecos hominum haec venditare coepisse, quae tum non modo non venditabant, cum judicia fiebant, verum etiam coëmebant; aut nisi arbitramini L. Crasso, Q. Scaevolae, C. Claudio, potentissimis hominibus, quorum aedilitates ornatissimas vidimus, commercium istarum rerum cum Graecis hominibus non fuisse, 5 eis qui post judiciorum dissolutionem aediles facti sunt fuisse.

Works of Art Held Priceless by Greeks.

Gavius Scourged.

He is Threatened with the Cross.

5. Caedebatur virgis in medio foro Messanae civis Romanus, judices; cum interea nullus gemitus, nulla vox alia
THE QUARRIES OF SYRACUSE.

(Dionysius' Ear.)
Crucifixion of a Roman Citizen.

illius miseri inter dolorem crepitumque plagarum audiebatur, nisi haec, Civis Romanus sum! Hac se commemoratione civitatis omnia verbera depulsurum, cruciatumque a corpore dejecturum, arbitrabatur. Is non modo hoc non perfecit, ut virgarum vim deprecaretur; sed, cum imploraret saepius, usurparetque nomen civitatis, crux — crux, inquam — infelici et aerumnoso, qui numquam istam pestem videbat, comparabatur.

Rights of a Roman Citizen Outraged.

8. Nunc, quoniam exploratum est omnibus quo loco causa tua sit, et quid de te futurum sit, sic tecum agam: Gavius istum, quem repentinum speculatorem fuisses dicis, ostendam in lautumias Syracusis abs te esse conjectum. Neque id solum ex litteris ostendam Syracusanorum, ne possis dicere me, quia sit aliquis in litteris Gavius, hoc fingere et eligere nomen, ut hunc illum esse possim dicere: sed ad arbitrium tuum testis dabo, qui istum ipsum Syracusis abs te in lautumias conjectus esse dicant. Producam etiam Consanos, municipes illius ac necessarios, qui te nunc sero doceant, judices non sero, illum P. Gavium. quem tu in crucem egisti, civem Romanum et municipem Consanum, non speculatorem fugitivorum fuisset.

His Claim of Citizenship Deserved Inquiry.

Crucifixion of a Roman Citizen.

Roman Citizenship a Protection Anywhere.

10. Hoc teneo, hic haereo, judices. Hoc sum contentus uno; omitto ac neglego cetera; sua confessione induatur ac juguletur neesse est. Qui esset ignorabas; speculatorem esse suspicabare. Non quaero qua suspicione: tua te accuso oratione. Civem Romanum se esse dicebat. Si tu, apud Persas aut in extrema India deprehensus, Verres, ad supplicium ducerere, quid aliud clamitares, nisi te civem esse Romanum? Et, si tibi ignoto apud ignotos, apud barbaros, apud homines in extremis atque ultimis gentibus positos, nobile et inlustre apud omnis nomen civitatis tuae profuissest, — ille, quisquis erat, quem tu in crucem rapiebas, qui tibi esset ignotus, cum civem se Romanum esse diceret, apud te praetorem, si non effugium, ne moram quidem mortis, mentione atque usurpatione civitatis, adsequi potuit?

LXV. 11. Hominces tenues, obscuro loco nati, navigant; adeunt ad ea loca quae numquam antea viderunt; ubi neque noti esse eis quo venerunt, neque semper cum cognitoribus esse possunt. Hac una tamen fiducia civitatis, non modo apud nostros magistratus, qui et legum et exitationis periculo continentur, neque apud civis solum Romanos, qui et sermonis et juris et multarum rerum societate juncti sunt, fore se tutos arbitrantur; sed, quocumque venerint, hanc sibi rem praesidio sperant futuram. 12. Tolle hanc spem, tolle hoc praesidium civibus Romanis; constituie nihil esse opis in hac voce, Civis Romanus sum, posse impune praetorem, aut alium quemlibet, supplicium quod velit in eum constituere qui se civem Romanum esse dicat, quod eum quis ignorant: jam omnis provincias, jam omnia regna, jam omnis liberas civitates, jam omnem orbem terrarum, qui semper nostris hominibus maxime patuit, civibus Romanis ista defensione praecluseris. Quid si L. Raecium, equitem Romanum, qui tum in Sicilia erat, nominabat? etiamne id magnum fuit, Panhormum litteras mittere? Adservasses hominem; custodiis Mamertinorum tuorum vincum, clausum habuisse, dum Panhormo Raecius veniret; cognosceret hominem, aliquid de summo supplicio remitteres. Si ignoraret, tum, si ita tibi videretur, hoc juris in omnis constitueres, ut, qui neque tibi notus esset, neque cognitorem locupletem daret, quamvis civis Romanus esset, in crucem tolleretur.

Verres the Enemy of all Roman Citizens.

LXVI. 13. Sed quid ego plura de Gavio? quasi tu Gavio tum fueris infestus, ac non nomini, generi, juri civium hostis. Non illi (inquam) homini, sed causae communi libertatis, inimicus fuisti. Quid enim attribut, cum Mamertini, more atque instituto suo, crucem fixissent post urbem, in via Pompeia, te jubere in ea parte figere, quae ad fretum spectaret; et hoc addere—quod negare nullo modo potes, quod omnibus audientibus dixisti palam—te idcirco illum locum deligere, ut ille, quoniam se civem Romanum esse diceret, ex cruce Italianam cernere ac domum suam prospicer e posset? Itaque illa crux sola, judices, post conditam Messanam, illo in loco fixa est. Italiae conspectus ad eam rem ab isto delectus est, ut ille, in dolore cruciatuque moriens, perangusto fretu divisa ser-the tribune A. Gabinius, one of the most active demagogues of the time. Another law (lex Gabinius), proposed B.C. 67 by the same politician, required the Senate to appoint a commander of consular rank, with extraordinary powers for three years by land and sea, to suppress the piracy which infested every part of the Mediterranean, having its chief seat in Cilicia. It was understood as a matter of course that Gnaeus (or Cneius) Pompey, who had been living in retirement since his consulship, B.C. 70, would receive this appointment. Pompey accomplished his task with the most brilliant success, and in three months had the seas completely cleared. (See below, ch. xii.)

Meantime Glabrio had shown himself wholly incompetent to conduct the war against Mithridates, and early in B.C. 66, the tribune Caius Manilius proposed a law extending Pompey's command over the entire East. Power like this was quite inconsistent with the republican institutions of Rome and with the established authority of the Senate; so that the law was of course opposed by the aristocracy (optimates), led by Hortensius and Catulus. Cicero was now prætor. He was no democrat of the school of Gabinius and Cæsar; but on the other hand he had no hereditary sympathies with the Senate, and he probably failed to recognize the revolutionary character of the proposition and considered merely its practical advantages. He therefore advocated the passage of the Manilian Law with ardor.

The law was passed, and Pompey fulfilled the most sanguine expectations of his friends. He brought the Mithridatic War to an end, organized the Roman power throughout the East, and returned home, B.C. 61, with greater prestige and glory than had ever been won by any Roman before him.

The Oration on the Manilian Law was Cicero's first political speech. Till now he had been a public-spirited lawyer; from this time on he was essentially a politician, and it is not hard to see how unfavorably his character was influenced by contact with the corrupt politics of that day.

Cicero's Reasons for Addressing a Political Assembly.

QUAMQUAM mihi semper frequens conspectus vester multo jucundissimus, hic autem locus ad agendum amplissimus, ad dicendum ornatus est visus, Quirites, tamen hoc aditu laudis, qui semper optimo cuique maxime patuit, non mea me voluntas adhuc, sed vitae meae rationes ab ineunte aetate susceptae prohibuerunt. Nam cum antea per aetatem nondum hujus auctoritatem loci attingere auderem, statueremque nihil hoc nisi perfectum ingenio, elaboratum industria adferri oportere, omne meum tempus amicorum temporibus transmittendum putavi. 2. Ita neque hic locus vacuus umquam fuit ab eis qui vestram causam defenderent, et meus labor, in privatorum periculosi caste integreque versatus, ex vestro judicio fructum est amplissimum consecutus. Nam cum propter dilationem comitorum ter praetor primus centurii cunctis renuntiatus sum, facile intellexi, Quirites, et quid de me judicaretis, et quid alis praescriberetis. Nunc cum et auctoritatis in me tautum sit, quantum vos honoribus mandandis esse voluistis, et ad agendum facta tatis tautum, quantum homini vigilanti ex forensi usu prope cotidiana dicendi exercitatio potuit adferre, certe et si quid auctoritatis in me est, apud eos utar qui eam mihi dederunt, et si quid in dicendo consequi possum, eis ostendam potissimum, qui ei quoque rei fructum suo judicio tribuendum esse duxerunt. 3. Atque illud in primis mihi laetandum jure esse video, quod in hac insolita mihi ex hoc loco ratione dicendi causa talis obleta est, in qua oratio deesse nemini possit. Dicendum est enim de Cn. Pompei singulari eximiaque virtute: hujus autem orationis difficilium est exitum quam principium invenire. 25 Ita mihi non tam copia quam modus in dicendo quaerendus est.

The Situation in Asia.

II. 4. Atque, — ut inde oratio mea proficiscatur, unde haec omnis causa ducitur, — bellum grave et periculosum vestris vectigalibus ac sociis a duobus potentissimis regibus infertur, Mithridate et Tigrane, quorum alter relictus, alter lacessitus, occasionem sibi ad occupandam Asiam oblata esse arbitrantur. Equitibus Romanis, honestissimis viris, adferuntur ex Asia cotidie litterae, quorum magnae res aguntur in vestris vectigalibus exercendis occupatae: qui ad me, pro necessitudine quae mihi est cum illo ordine, causam rei publicae periculaque rerum suarum detulerunt: 5. Bithyniae, quae nunc vestra provincia est, vicos exustos esse compluris; regnum Ariobarzanis, quod finitimum est 5 vestris vectigalibus, totum esse in hostium potestate: L. Lucullum, magnis rebus gestis, ab eo bello discedere; huic qui successerit non satis esse paratum ad tantum bellum administrandum; unum ab omnibus sociis et civibus ad id bellum imperatorem deposci atque expeti, eundem hunc 10 unum ab hostibus metui, praeterea neminem.

Importance of the Mithridatic War.

6. Causa quae sit videtis: nunc quid agendum sit considerate. Primum mihi videtur de genere belli, deinde de magnitudine, tum de imperatore deligendo esse dicendum. Genus est belli ejus modi, quod maxime vestros animos 15 excitare atque inflammare ad perseverandi studium debeat: in quo agitur populi Romani gloria, quae vobis a majoribus cum magna in omnibus rebus tum summa in re militari tradita est: agitur salus sociorum atque amicorum, pro qua multa maiores vestri magna et gravia bella gesserunt; 20 aguntur certissima populi Romani vectigalia et maxima, quibus amissis et pacis ornamenta et subsidia belli requi-retis; aguntur bona multorum civium, quibus est a vobis et ipsorum et rei publicae causa consulendum.

III Success of the Former Wars in Asia.

III. 7. Et quoniam semper appetentes gloriae praeter ceteras gentis atque avidi laudis fuistis, delenda est vobis illa macula [Mithridatico] bello superiore concepta, quae penitus jam insedit ac nimirum inveteravit in populi Romani nomine,—quod is, qui uno die, tota in Asia, tot in civitatebus, uno nuntio atque una significatio [litterarum] civis Romanos necandos trucidandosque denotavit, non modo adhuc poenam nullam suo dignam scelere suscepit, sed ab illo tempore annum jam tertium et vicesimum regnat, et ita regnat, ut se non Ponti neque Cappadociae latebris occultare velit, sed emergere ex patrio regno atque in vestris vectigalibus, hoc est, in Asiae luce versari. 8. Etenim adhuc ita nostri cum illo rege contenderunt imperatores, ut ab illo insignia victoriae, non victoriam reportarent. Triumphavit L. Sulla, triumphavit L. Murena de Mithridate, duo fortissimi viri et summi imperatores; sed ida triumphantur, ut ille pulsus superatusque regnaret. Verum tamen illis imperatoribus laus est tribuenda quod egerunt, venia danda quod reliquerunt, propter quod ab eo bello Sullam in Italiem res publica, Murenam Sulla revocavit.

Strength of the Enemy.

IV. 9. Mithridates autem omne reliquum tempus non ad oblivionem veteris belli, sed ad comparationem novi consulit: qui [postea] cum maximas aedificasset ornansetque classis exercitusque permagnos quibuscumque ex gentibus potuisset comparasset, et se Bosporanis finitimis suis bellum inferre simularet, usque in Hispaniam legatos ac litteras misit ad eos duces quibuscum tum bellum gerebamus, ut, cum duoibus in locis disjunctissimis maximeque diversis uno consilio a binis hostium copiis bellum terra marique gereretur, vos ancipiti contentione districti de imperio dimicareantis. 10. Sed tamen alterius partis periculum, Sertorianae atque Hispaniensi, quae multo plus firmamenti ac roboris habebat, Cn. Pompei divino consilio ac singulari virtute depulsum est; in altera parte ita res a L. Lucullo summo viro est administrata, ut initia illa rerum gestarum magna atque praecula non felicitatij ejus, sed virtuti, haec autem extrema, quae nuper acciderunt, non culpae, sed fortunae tribuenda esse videantur. Sed de Lucullo dicam alio loco, et ita dicam, Quirites, ut neque vera laus ei detracta oratione mea neque falsa addicta esse videatur: 11. de vestri imperi dignitate atque gloria — quoniam is est exorsus orationis meae — videte quem vobis animum suscipiendum putetis.

Is the Roman Spirit Declining?

The Allies in Peril: they Call for Pompey.

Quid? quod salus sociorum summum in periculum ac discrimen vocatur, quo tandem animo ferre debetis? Regno est expulsus Ariobarzanes rex, socius populi Romani atque amicus; imminent duo reges toti Asiae non solum vobis inimicissimi, sed etiam vestris sociis atque amicis; civitates autem omnes cuncta Asia atque Graecia vestrum auxilium exspectare propter periculi magnitudinem coguntur; imperatorem a vobis certum deposcere, cum præsertim vos alium miseritis, neque audent, neque se id facere sine summio periculo possum arbitrantur. 13. Vident et sentiunt hoc idem quod vos,—unum virum esse, in quo summa sint omnia, et eum propter esse, quo etiam carent aegrius; cujus adventu ipso atque nomine, tametsi ille ad maritimum bellum venerit, tamen impetus hostium repressos esse intellegunt ac retardatos. Hi vos, quoniam libere loqui non licet, tacite rogant, ut se quoque, sicut ceterarum provinciarum socios, dignos existimetis, quorum saltem tali viro commendetis; atque hoc etiam magis, quod ceteros in provinciam ejus modi homines cum imperio mittimus, ut etiam si ab hoste defendant, tamen ipsorum adventus in urbis sociorum non multum ab hostili expugnatiune differant. 20 Hunc audiebant antea, nunc praesentem vident, tanta temperantia, tanta mansuetudine, tanta humanitate, ut ei beatis-simi esse videantur, apud quos ille diutissime commoratur.

The Revenues at Stake.

VI. 14. Qua re si propter socios, nullo ipsi injuria laces-siti, majores nostri cum Antiocho, cum Philippo, cum Aeto-lis, cum Poenis bella gesserunt, quanto vos studio convenit injuriis provocatos sociorum salutem una cum imperi vestri dignitate defendere, præsertim cum de maximis vestris vec-tigalibus agatur? Nam ceterarum provinciarum vectigalia, Quirites, tanta sunt, ut eis ad ipsas provincias tutandas vix contenti esse possimus: Asia vero tam opima est ac fertilis, ut et ubertate agrorum et varietate fructuum et magnitudine pastionis et multitudine earum rerum quae exportantur, facile omnibus terris antecellat. Itaque haec vobis provincia, Quirites, si et belli utilitatem et pacis dignitatem retinere voltis, non modo a calamitate, sed etiam a metu calamitatis est defendenda. 15. Nam in ceteris rebus cum venit calamitas, tum detrimentum accipitur; at in vectigalibus non solum adventus mali, sed etiam metus ipse adfert calamitatem. Nam cum hostium copiae non longe absunt, etiam si inruptio nulla facta est, tamen pecuaria relinquitur, agri cultura deseritur, mercatorum navigatio conquiescit. Ita neque ex portu neque ex decumis neque 10 ex scriptura vectigal conservari potest: qua re saepe totius anni fructus uno rumore periculi atque uno belli terrore amittitur. 16. Quo tandem igitur animo esse existimatis aut eos qui vectigalia nobis pensitant, aut eos qui exercent atque exigunt, cum duo reges cum maximis copiis propter 15 adsint? cum una excursio equitatus perbrevi tempore totius anni vectigal auferre possit? cum publicani familias maximas, quas in saltibus habent, quas in agris, quas in portibus atque custodiis, magno periculo se habere arbitrentur? Putatisne vos illis rebus frui posse, nisi eos qui vobis fructui 20 sunt conservaritis non solum (ut ante dixi) calamitate, sed etiam calamitatis formidine liberatos.

Financial Crisis at Rome.

VII. 17. Ac ne illud quidem vobis neglegendum est, quod mihi ego extremum proposueram, cum essem de belli genere dicturus, quod ad multorum bona civium Romanorum pertinet, quorum vobis pro vestra sapientia, Quirites, habenda est ratio diligenter. Nam et publicani, homines honestissimi atque ornatissimi, suas rationes et copias in illam provinciam contulerunt, quorum ipsorum per se res et fortunae vobis curae esse debent. Etenim si vectigalia nervos esse rei publicae semper duximus, eum certe ordinem, qui exercet illa, firmamentum ceterorum ordinum recte esse dicemus.

19. Deinde quod nos eadem Asia atque idem iste Mithridates initio belli Asiatici docuit, id quidem certe calamitate docti memoria retinere debemus. Nam tum, cum in Asia res magnas permulti amiserant, scimus Romae, solutione impedita, fidem concidisse. Non enim possunt una in civitate multi rem ac fortunas amittere, ut non plures secum in eandem trahant calamitatem. A quo periculo prohibete rem publicam, et mihi credite id quod ipsi videtis: haec fides atque haec ratio pecuniarum, quae Romae, quae in foro versatur, implicata est cum illis pecuniis Asiaticis et cohaeret. Ruere illa non possunt, ut haec non eodem labe-facta motu concidant. Qua re videte num dubitandum vobis sit omni studio ad id bellum incumbere, in quo gloria nomi-nis vestri, salus sociorum, vectigalia maxima, fortunae plurimorum civium conjunctae cum re publica defendantur.
Pompey's Military Command.

Exploits of Lucullus.

VIII. 20. Quoniam de genere belli dixi, nunc de magni-tudine pauca dicam. Potest hoc enim dici, belli genus esse 5 ita necessarium ut sit gerendum, non esse ita magnum ut sit pertimescendum. In quo maxime elaborandum est, ne forte ea vobis quae diligentissime providenda sunt, contemnenda esse videantur. Atque ut omnes intellegant me L.
Lucullo tantum impertire laudis, quantum forti viro et sapienti homini et magno imperatori debeatur, dico ejus adventu maximas Mithridati copias omnibus rebus ornatas atque instructas fuisse, urbeque Asiae clarissimam nobisque amicissimam, Cyzicenorum, obsessam esse ab ipso rege maxima multitudine et oppugnatam vehementissime, quam 15
L. Lucullus virtute, adsiduitate, consilio, summis obsidionis periculis liberavit: 21. ab eodem imperatore classem mag-nam et ornatam, quae ducibus Sertorianis ad Italiam studio atque odio inflammat me raperetur, superatam esse atque depressam; magnas hostium praeterea copias multis proeliis esse deletas, patefactumque nostris legionibus esse Pontum, qui antea populo Romano ex omni aditu clausus fuisse; Sinopen atque Amisum, quibus in oppidis erant domicilia regis, omnibus rebus ornatas ac refertas, ceteraque urbis Ponti et Cappadociae permultas, uno aditu adventuque esse 25 captas; regem, spoliatum regno patrio atque avito, ad alios se reges atque ad alias gentis supplicem contulisse; atque haec omnia salvis populi Romani sociis atque integris vectigalibus esse gesta. Satis opinor haec esse laudis, atque ita, Quirites, ut hoc vos intellegatis, a nullo istorum, qui huic 30 obtrectant legi atque causae, L. Lucullum similiter ex hoc loco esse laudatum.

Mithridates Defeated but not Subdued.

24. Hic jam plura non dicam. Fuit enim illud extremum ut ex eis locis a militibus nostris reditus magis maturos quam processio longior quæreretur. Mithridates autem et suam manum jam confirmarat, [et eorum] qui se ex ipsius regno conlegerant, et magnis adventiciis auxiliis multorum regum et nationum juvabatur. Jam hoc fere sic fieri solere accepiimus, ut regum adflictae fortunae facile multorum opes adliciant ad misericordiam, maximeque eorum qui aut reges sunt aut vivunt in regno, ut eis nomen regale magnum et sanctum esse videatur. 25. Itaque tantum victus efficere potuit, quantum incolmis numquam est ausus optare. Nam cum se in regnum suum recepisset, non fuit eo contentus, quod ei praeter spem acciderat, — ut illam, postea quae pulsus erat, terram umquam attingeret, — sed in exercitum nostrum clarum atque victorem impetum fecit. Sinite hoc loco, Quirites, sicut poëtae solent, qui res Romanas scribunt, praeterire me nostram calamitatem, quae tanta fuit, ut eam ad auris [Luculli] imperatoris non ex proelio nuntius, sed ex sermone rumor adferret.

Lucullus Superseded.

26. Hic in illo ipso malo graviissimaque belli offensione, L. Lucullus, qui tamen aliqua ex parte eis incommodis mederi fortesse potuisset, vestro jussu coactus, —qui imperi diuturnitati modum statuendum vetere exemplo putavistis,— partem militum, qui jam stipendiis confecti erant, dimisit, partem M'. Glabrioni tradidit. Multa praetereo consulto, sed ea vos conjectura perspicite, quantum illud bellum factum putetis, quod conjungant reges potentissimi, renovent agitatae nationes, suscipiant integrae gentes, novus imperator noster accipiat, vetere exercitu pulso.

Who shall be Appointed Commander?

27. Satis mihi multa verba fecisse videor, qua re esset hoc bellum genere ipso necessarium, magnitudine periculo- sum. Restat ut de imperatore ad id bellum deligendo ac tantis rebus praeficiendo dicendum esse videatur.

Pompey’s Military Experience.

Utinam, Quirites, virorum fortium atque innocentium copiam tantam haberetis, ut haec vobis deliberatio difficilis esset, quemnam potissimum tantis rebus ac tanto bello praeficiendum putaretis! Nunc vero—cum sit unus Cn. Pompeius, qui non modo eorum hominem qui nunc sunt gloriam, sed etiam antiquitatis memoriem virtute superarit—quae res est quae cujusquam animum in hac causa dubium facere possit? 28. Ego enim sic existimo, in summo imperatore quattuor has res inesse oportere,—scientiam rei militaris, virtutem, auctoritatem, felicitatem. Quis igitur hoc homine scientior umquam aut fuit aut esse debuit?
Pompey's Military Command.

qui e ludo atque e pueritiae disciplinis bello maximo atque acerrimis hostibus ad patris exercitum atque in militiae disciplinam profectus est; qui extrema pueritia miles in exercitu fuit summi, imperatoris, ineunte adulescentia maximis ipse exercitus imperator; qui saepius cum hoste conflit quam quisquam cum inimico concertavit, plura bella gessit quam ceteri legerunt, plures provincias confecit quam alii concupiverunt; cujus adulescentia ad scientiam rei militaris non alienis praecipientis sed suis imperiis, non officionibus belli sed victoriis, non stipendiis sed triumphis est erudita. Quod denique genus esse belli potest, in quo illum non exercerit fortuna rei publicae? Civile, Africanum, Transalpinum, Hispaniense [mixtum ex civitatibus atque ex belli- cosissimis nationibus], servile, navale bellum, varia et diversa genera et bellorum et hostium, non solum gesta ab hoc uno, sed etiam confecta, nullam rem esse declarant in usu positam militari, quae hujus viri scientiam fugere possit.

His Former Successes.

est. Testis est Hispania, quae saepissime plurimos hostis ab hoc superatos prostratosque conspexit. Testis est iterum et saepius Italia, quae cum servili bello taetro periculosoque premeretur, ab hoc auxilium absente expetivit: quod bellum exspectatione ejus attenuatum atque imminutum est, adventu sublatum ac sepultum.

His Recent Success against the Pirates.

31. Testes nunc vero jam omnes orae atque omnes exterae gentes ac nationes, denique maria omnia cum universa, tum in singulis oris omnes sinus atque portus. Quis enim toto mari locus per hos annos aut tam firmum habuit praeidium ut tutus esset, aut tam fuit abditus ut lateret? Quis navigavit qui non se aut mortis aut servitutis periculo committeret, cum aut hieme aut referto praedonum mari navigaret? Hoc tantum bellum, tam turpe, tam vetus, tam late divisum atque dispersum, quis umquam arbitraretur aut ab omnibus imperatoribus uno anno aut omnibusannis ab uno imperatore confici posse? 32. Quam provinciam tenuistis a praedonibus liberam per hosce annos? quod vectigal vobis tutum fuit? quem socium defendistis? cui praesidio classibus vestris fuistis? quam multas existimatis insulas esse desertas? quam multas aut metu relictas aut a praedonibus captas urbis esse sociorum?

XII. Sed quid ego longinquam commemo? Fuit hoc quondam, fuit proprium populi Romani, longe a domo bel-lare, et propugnaculis imperi sociorum fortunas, non sua tecta defendere. Sociis ego nostris mare per hos annos 10 clausum fuisse dicam, cum exercitus vestri numquam a Brundisio nisi hieme summa transmiserint? Qui ad vos ab exteris nationibus venirent captos querar, cum legati populi Romani redempti sint? Mercatoribus tutum mare non fuisse dicam, cum duodecim secures in praedonum potestatem 15 pervenerint? 33. Cnidum aut Colophonem aut Samum, nobilissimas urbis, innumerabilisque alias captas esse commemorem, cum vestros portus, atque eos portus quibus vitam ac spiritum ducitis, in praeconum fuisse potestatem scitis? An vero ignoratis portum Cajetae celeberrimum ac plenissimum navium inspectante praetore a praeconibus esse direptum? ex Miseno autem ejus ipsius liberos, qui cum praeconibus anteab ibi bellum gesserat, a praeconibus esse sublatos? Nam quid ego Ostiense incommodum atque illam labem atque ignominiam rei publicae querar, cum, prope inspectantibus vobis, classis eae, cui consul populi Romani praepositus esset, a praeconibus capta atque oppressa est?

!Port of Ostia.

The Celerity of his Movements.

Pro di immortales! tantamne unius hominis incredibilis ac divina virtus tam brevi tempore lucem adferre rei publicae potuit, ut vos, qui modo ante ostium Tiberinum classem hostium videbatis, ei nunc nullam intra Oceani ostium praeconum navem esse auditis? Atque haec qua celeritate gesta sint quamquam videtis, tamen a me in dicendo praetereunda non sunt. Quis enim umquam aut obeundi negoti aut consequendi quaestus studio tam brevi tempore tot loca adire, tantos cursus conficere potuit, quam celeriter Cn. Pompeio duce tanti belli impetus navigavit? Qui nondum tempestivo ad navigandum mari Siciliam adiit, Africam exploravit; inde Sardiniam cum classe venit, atque haec tria frumentaria subsidia rei publicae firmissimis praesidiis classibusque munivit 35. inde cum se in Italiam recepisset, duabus Hispanis et Gallia [transalpina] praesidiis ac navibus confirmata, missis item in oram Illyrici maris et in Achaiam omnemque Graeciam navibus, Italiae duo maria maximis classibus firmissimisque praesidiis adornavit; ipse autem ut Brundisio prefectus est, undequinquagesimo die totam ad imperium populi Romani Ciliciam adjunxit; omnes, qui ubique praedones fuerunt, partim capti interfectique sunt, partim unius hujus se imperio ac potestati dediderunt. Idem Cretensibus, cum ad eum usque in Pamphylia legatos deprecatoresque misissent, spem deditis non ademit, obsidesque imperavit. Ita tantum bellum, tam diuturnum, tam longe lateque dispersum, quo bello omnes gentes ac nationes premebantur, Cn. Pompeius extrema hieme apparavit, ineunte vere suscepit, media aestate confecit.

Pompey's Military Command. 83

Pompey has all the Qualities of a General.

aut amplum de re publica cogitare, qui pecuniam, ex aerario depromptam ad bellum administrandum, aut propter cupiditi-tatem provinciae magistratibus diviserit, aut propter avar-tiam Romae in quaestu reliquerit? Vestra admururatio facit, Quirites, ut agnoscre videamini qui haec fecerint:
ego autem nomine neminem; qua re irasci mihi nemo poterit, nisi qui ante de se voluerit confiteri. Itaque propter hanc avaritiam imperatorum quantas calamitates, quocumque ventum est, nostri exercitus ferant quis ignorat? 38. Itinera quae per hosce annos in Italia per agros atque oppida civium Romanorum nostri imperatores fecerint recordamini:
tum facilius statuetis quid apud externas nationes fieri existimetis. Utrum pluris arbitramini per hosce annos militum vestrorum armis hostium urbis, an hibernis sociorum civi-tates esse deletas? Neque enim potest exercitum is continere imperator, qui se ipse non continet, neque severus esse in judicando, qui alios in se severos esse judices non volt.
39. Hic miramur hunc hominem tantum excellere ceteris, cujus legiones sic in Asiam pervenerint, ut non modo manus tanti exercitus, sed ne vestigium quidem cu quam pacato nocuisse dicatur? Jam vero quem ad modum milites hiber-nent cotidie sermones ac litterae perferuntur: non modo ut sumptum faciat in militem nemini vis adfertur, sed ne cupienti quidem cu quam permittitur. Hiemis enim, non avaritiae perfugium majores nostri in sociorum atque amicorum tectis esse voluerunt.

His Self-RestRAINT and Consequent Popularity.

XIV. 40. Age vero: ceteris in rebus quali sit temperantia considerate. Unde illam tantam celeritatem et tam incredi-ibilem cursum inventum putatis? Non enim illum eximia vis remigum aut ars inaudita quaedam gubernandi aut venti aliqui novi tam celeriter in ultimas terras pertulerunt: sed eae res quae ceteros remorari solent, non retardarunt: non avaritia ab instituto cursu ad praeadam aliquam devocavit, non libido ad voluptatem, non amoenitas ad delectationem, non nobilitas urbis ad cognitionem, non denique labor ipse ad quietem; postremo signa et tabulas ceteraque ornamenta Graecorum oppidorum, quae ceteri tollenda esse arbitrantur, ea sibi ille ne visenda quidem existimavit. 41. Itaque omnes nunc in eis locis Cn. Pompeium sicut aliquem non ex hac urbe missum, sed de caelo delapsum intuentur. Nunc denique incipiunt credere fuisset homines Romanos hac quondam continentia, quod jam nationibus exteris incredibile ac falsa memoriae proditum videbatur. Nunc imperi vestri splendor illis gentibus lucem adferre coepit. Nunc intelligunt non sine causa majores suos, tum cum ea temperantia magistratus habebamus, servire populo Romano quam imperare alius maluisse. Jam vero ita faciles aditus ad eum privatorum, ita liberae querimoniae de aliorum injuriis esse dicuntur, ut is, qui dignitate principibus excellit, facilitate infinis par esse videatur. 42. Jam quantum consilio, quantum dicendi gravitate et copia valeat,—in quo ipso inest quaedam dignitas imperatoria,—vos, Quirites, hoc ipso ex loco saepe cognovistis. Fidem vero ejus quantam inter socios existimari putatis, quam hostes omnes omnium generum sanctissimam judicarint? Humanitate jam tanta est, ut difficile dictu sit utrum hostes magis virtutem ejus pugnantes timuerint, an mansuetudinem victi dilexerint. Et quisquam dubitatit quin huic hoc tantum bellum transmitendum sit, qui ad omnia nostrae memoriae bella conficienda divino quodam consilio natus esse videatur?

His Prestige as a Commander.

XV. 43. Et quoniam auctoritas quoque in bellis administrandis multum atque in imperio militari valet, certe nemini dubium est quin ea re idem ille imperator plurimum possit. Vehementer autem pertinere ad bella administranda quid hostes, quid socii de imperatoribus nostris existiment quis ignorat, cum sciamus homines in tantis rebus, ut aut contemnant aut metuant aut oderint aut ament, opinione non minus et fama quam aliqua ratione certa commoveri? Quod igitur nomen unquam in orbe terrarum clarius fuit? cujus res gestae pares? de quo homine vos,—id quod maxime facit auctoritatem,—tanta et tam praeclara judicia fecistis?

44. An vero ullaque esse oram tam desertam putatis, quo non illius diei fama pervaserit, cum universus populus Romanus, referto foro completisque omnibus templis ex quibus hic locus conspici potest, unum sibi ad commune omnium gentium bellum Cn. Pompeium imperatorem depoposcit? Itaque—ut plura non dicam, neque aliorum exemplis confirmem quantum [hujus] auctoritas valeat in bello—ab eodem Cn. Pompeio omnium rerum egregiarum exempla sumantur: qui quo die a vobis maritimo bello praepositus est imperator, tanta repente vilitas annonae ex summa inopia et caritate rei frumentariae consecuta est unius hominis spe ac nomine, quantam vix in summa ubertate agrorum diuturna pax efficere potuisset. 45. Jam accepta in Ponto calamitate ex eo proelio, de quo vos paulo ante invitus admonui,— cum socii pertimuissest, hostium opes animique crevissent, satis firmum praeсидium provincia non haberet,—amisissetis Asiam, Quirites, nisi ad ipsum discrimen ejus temporis divinitus Cn. Pompeium ad eas regiones fortuna populi Romani attulisset. Hujus adventus et Mithridatem insolita inflammatum victoria continuat, et Tigranem magnis copiis minitantem Asiae retardavit. Et quisquam dubitabit quid virtute perfecturus sit, qui tantum auctoritate perfecerit? aut quam facile imperio atque exercitu socios et vectigalia conservaturus sit, qui ipso nomine ac rumore defenderit?

His Special Reputation in the East.

XVI. 46. Age vero, illa res quantam declarat ejusdem 15 hominis apud hostis populi Romani auctoritatem, quod ex locis tam longinquis tamque diversis tam brevi tempore omnes huic se uni dediderunt? quod a communi Cretensium legati, cum in eorum insula noster imperator exerci-tusque esset, ad Cn. Pompeium in ultimas prope terras 20 venerunt, eique se omnis Cretnensium civitates dedere velle dixerunt? Quid? idem iste Mithridates nonne ad eundem Cn. Pompeium legatum usque in Hispaniam misit? eum quem Pompeius legatum semper judicavit, ei quibus erat [semper] molestum ad eum potissimum esse missum, speculatorem quam 25 legatum judicari maluerunt. Potestis igitur jam constitue, Quirites, hanc auctoritatem, multis postea rebus gestis magisque vestris judiciis amplificatam, quantum apud illos reges, quantum apud exterar nationes valituram esse existimetis.

His Lucky Star.

47. Reliquum est ut de felicitate (quam praestare de se 30 ipso nemo potest, meminisse et commemorare de altero possumus, sicut aequum est homines de potestate deorum) timide et paucu dicamus. Ego enim sic existimo : Maximo, Marcello, Scipioni, Mario, et ceteris magnis imperatoribus non solum propter virtutem, sed etiam propter fortunam saepius imperia mandata atque exercitus esse commissos. Fuit enim profecto quibusdam summis viris quaedam ad amplitudinem et ad gloriem et ad res magnas bene gerendas divinitus adjuncta fortuna. De hujus autem hominis felicitate, de quo nunc agimus, hac utar moderatione dicendi, non ut in illius potestate fortunam positam esse dicam, sed ut praeterita meminisse, reliqua sperare videamur, ne aut invisa dis immortalibus oratio nostra aut ingrata esse videatur. 48. Itaque non sum praedicaturus quantas ille res domi militiae, terra marique, quantaque felicitate gessorit; ut ejus semper voluntatibus non modo cives adsenserint, socii obtemperarent, hostes obedierint, sed etiam venti tempestatesque obsecundarint. hoc brevissime dicam, neminem unquam tam impudentem fuisset, qui ab dis immortalibus tot et tantas res tacitus auderet optare, quot et quantas di immortales ad Cn. Pompeium detulerunt. Quod ut illi proprium ac perpetuum sit, Quirites, cum communis salutis atque imperium ipsius hominis causa, sicii facitis, velle et optare debitis.

49. Qua re, — cum et bellum sit ita necessarium ut neglegi non possit, ita magnum ut accuratissime sit administrandum: et cum ei imperatorem praeficere possitis, in quo sit eximia belli scientia, singularis virtus, clarissima auctoritas, egregia fortuna,—dubitis Quirites, quin hoc tantum boni, quod vobis ab dis immortalibus oblatum et datum est, in rem publicam conservandum atque amplificandum conferatis?

He is on the Spot.

XVII. 50. Quod si Romae Cn. Pompeius privatus esset hoc tempore; tamen ad tantum bellum is erat deligendus Pompey's Military Command.

atque mittendus: nunc cum ad ceteras summas utilitates haec quoque opportunitas adjungatur, ut in eis ipsis locis adsit, ut habeat exercitum, ut ab eis qui habent accipere statim possit, quid exspectamus? aut cur non ducibus dis immortalibus eidem, cui cetera summa cum salute rei publicae commissa sunt, hoc quoque bellum regium commit-tamus?

Objection of Hortensius and Catulus.

51. At enim vir clarissimus, amantissimus rei publicae, vestris beneficiis amplissimis adfectus, Q. Catulus, itemque summis ornamentiis honoris, fortunae, virtutis, ingeni praeditus, Q. Hortensius, ab hac ratione dissentiet. Quorum ego auctoritate apud vos multis locis plurimum valuisset et valere oportere confiteor; sed in hac causa, tametsi cognoscitis auctoritates contrarias virorum fortissimorum et clarissimorum, tamen omissis auctoritatibus ipsa re ac ratione exquirere possimus veritatem, atque hoc facilius, quod ea omnia quae a me adhuc dicta sunt, eidem isti vera esse concedunt, — et necessarium bellum esse et magnum, et in uno Cn. Pompeio summa esse omnia. 52. Quid igitur ait Hortensius? Si uni omnia tribuenda sint, dignissimum esse Pompeium, sed ad unum tamen omnia deferri non oportere. Obsolevit jam ista oratio, re multo magis quam verbis refutata. Nam tu idem, Q. Hortensi, multa pro tua summa copia ac singulari facultate dicendi et in senatu contra virum fortem, A. Gabinium, graviter ornateque dixisti, cum is de uno imperatore contra praedones constituendo legem promulgasset, et ex hoc ipso loco permulta item contra eam legem verba fecisti.

Hortensius Answered by Facts.

53. Quid? tum (per deos immortalis !) si plus apud populum Romanum auctoritas tua quam ipsius populi Romani salus et vera causa valuisset, hodie hanc gloriam atque hoc orbis terrae imperium teneremus? An tibi tum imperium hoc esse videbatur, cum populi Romani legati quaestores praetoresque capiebantur? cum ex omnibus provinciis commeatu et privato et publico prohibebamur? cum ita clausa nobis erant maria omnia, ut neque privatam rem transmarinam neque publicam jam obire possemus?

XVIII. 54. Quae civitas antea umquam fuit, — non dico Atheniensium, quae satis late quondam mare tenuisse dicitur; non Karthaginiensis, qui permultum classe ac maritimis rebus valuerunt; non Rhodiorum, quorum usque ad nostram memoriam disciplina navalis et gloria remansit, — sed quae civitas umquam antea tam tenuis, quae tam parva insula fuit, quae non portus suos et agros et aliquam partem regionis atque orae maritimae per se ipsa defenderet? At (hercule) aliquot annos continuos ante legem Gabiniam ille populus Romanus, cujus usque ad nostram memoriam nomen invictum in navalis pugnis permanserit, magna ac multo maxima parte non modo utilitatis, sed dignitatis atque imperi caruit. 55. Nos, quorum majores Antiochum regem classe Persenque superarunt, omnibusque navalis pugnis Karthaginiensi, homines in maritimis rebus exercitatisimos paratissimosque, vicerunt, ei nullo iis loco jam praedonibus pares esse poteramus: nos, qui antea non modo Italian tutam habebamus, sed omnis socios in ultimis oris auctori-tate nostri imperi salvos praestare poteramus, — tum cum insula Delos, tam procul a nobis in Aegaeo mari posita, quo omnes undique cum mercibus atque oneribus commeabant, referata divitiis, parva, sine muro, nihil timebat, — eidem non modo provinciis atque oris Italiae maritimis ac portubus nostris, sed etiam Appia jam via carebamus; et eis temporibus non pudebat magistratus populi Romani in hunc ipsum locum descendere, cum eum nobis maiores nostri exuviiis, nauticis et classium spoliis ornatum reliquisserant.

Brilliant Success of the Gabinian Law.

XIX. 56. Bono te animo tum, Q. Hortensi, populus Romanus et ceteros qui erant in eadem sententia, dicere existimavit ea quae sentiebatis: sed tamen in salute communi idem populus Romanus dolori suo maluit quam auctoritate vestrae obtemperare. Itaque una lex, unus vir, unus annus non modo nos illa miseria ac turpitudine liberavit, sed etiam efficit, ut aliquando vere videremur omnibus gentibus ac nationibus terra marique imperare. 57. Quo mihi etiam indignius videtur obrectatum esse adhuc, — Gabinio dicam Anne Pompeio, an utrique, id quod est verius? — ne legaretur A. Gabinius Cn. Pompeio expetenti ac postulanti. Utrum ille, qui postulat ad tantum bellum legatum quem velit, idoneus non est qui impetret, cum ceteri ad explandos socios diripiendasque provincias quos voluerunt legatos eduxerint; an ipse, cujus lege salus ac dignitas populo Romano atque omnibus gentibus constitueta est, expers esse debet gloriae ejus imperatoris atque ejus exercitus, quia consilio ipsius ac periculo est constitueta? 58. An C. Falcidius, Q. Metellus, Q. Caelius Latiniensis, Cn. Lentulus, quos omnis honoris causa nomino, cum tribuni plebi fuisse, anno proximo legati esse potuerunt: in uno Gabinio sunt tam diligentia, qui in hoc bello, quod lege Gabinia geritur, in hoc imperatore atque exercitu, quem per vos ipse constituist, etiam praepiu jure esse deberet? De quo legando consules spero ad senatum relatiros. Qui si dubitabant aut gravabantur, ego me profiteor relaturum. Neque me impediet cujusquam inimicum edictum, quo minus vobis fretus vestrum jus beneficiumque defendam; neque praeter intercessionem quicquam audiam, de qua (ut arbitror) isti ipsi, qui minuantur, etiam atque etiam quid liceat conside-rabant. Mea quidem sententia, Quirites, unus A. Gabinius belli maritimis rerumque gestarum Cn. Pompeio socius ascribitur, propterea quod alter uni illud bellum suscipiendum vestris suffragiis detulit, alter delatum susceputumque con-fecit.

Catulus Answered: Breach of Precedent not Unheard of.

XX. 59. Reliquum est ut de Q. Catuli auctoritate et sententia dicendum esse videatur. Qui cum ex vobis quaereret, si in uno Cn. Pompeio omnia poneretis, si quid eo factum esset, in quo spem essetis habituri, — cepit magnum suae virtutis fructum ac dignitatis, cum omnes una prope voce in [eo] ipso vos spem habituros esse dixistis. Etenim talis est vir, ut nulla res tanta sit ac tam difficilis, quam ille non et consilio regere et integritate tueri et virtute conficere pos-sit. Sed in hoc ipso ab eo vehementissime dissentio, quod, quo minus certa est hominum ac minus diurna vita, hoc magis res publica, dum per deos immortalis licet, frui debet summi viri vita atque virtute. 60. 'At enim ne quid novi fiat contra exempla atque instituta majorum.’ Non dicam hoc loco majores nostros semper in pace consuetudini, in bello utilitati paruisse; semper ad novos casus temporum novorum consiliorum rationes accommodasse: non dicam duo bella maxima, Punicum atque Hispaniense, ab uno imperatore esse confecta, duaque urbis potentissimas, quae huic imperio maxime minitabantur, Karthaginem atque Numantiam, ab eodem Scipione esse deletas: non commemorabo nuper ita vobis patribusque vestris esse visum, ut in uno C. Mario spes imperi poneretur, ut idem cum Jugurtha. idem cum Cimbris, idem cum Teutonis bellum administraret. In ipso Cn. Pompeio, in quo novi constitui nihil volt Q. Catulus, quam multa sint nova summa Q. Catuli voluntate constituta recordamini. Quid tam novum quam adulescentulum privatum exercitum difficili rei publicae tempore confiscere? Conficit. Huic praesesse? Praefuit. Rem optime ductu suo gerere? Gessit. Quid tam praeter consuetudinem quam homini peradulescenti, cujus aetas a senatorio gradu longe abesset, imperium atque exercitum dari, Sicilian permitti, atque Africam bellumque in ea provincia administrandum? Fuit in his provinciis singulari innocentia, gravitate, virtute: bellum in Africa maximum confecit, victorem exercitum deportavit. Quid vero tam inauditem quan equitem Romanum triumphare? At eam quoque rem populus Romanus non modo vidit, sed omnium etiam studio visendam et concelebrandum putavit. Quid tam inuitatum quam ut, cum duo consules clarissimi fortissimique essent, eques Romanus ad bellum maximum formidolosissimumque pro consule mitteretur? Missus est. Quo quidem tempore, cum esset non nemo in senatu qui diceret non oportere mitti hominem privatum pro consule, L. Philippus dixisse dicitur non se illum sua sententia pro consule, sed pro consulibus mittere. Tanta in eo rei publicae bene gerendae spes constituebatur, ut duorum consulum munus unius adu-lescentis virtuti committeretur. Quid tam singulare quam ut ex senatus consulto legibus solutus consul ante fieret, quam ullum alium magistratum per leges capere licuisset? quid tam incredibile quam ut iterum eques Romanus ex senatus consulto triumpharet? Quae in omnibus hominibus nova post hominum memoriam constituta sunt, ea tam multa non sunt quam haec, quae in hoc uno homine vide mus. 63. Atque haec tot exempla, tanta ac tam nova, prospecta sunt in eundem hominem a Q. Catuli atque a ceterorum ejusdem dignitatis amplissimorum hominum auctoritate.
Orations of Cicero.

Judgment of the People should Overrule such Objections.

XXII. Qua re videant ne sit periniquum et non ferundum, illorum auctoritatem de Cn. Pompei dignitate a vobis comprobatam semper esse, vestrum ab illis de eodem homine judicium populiique Romani auctoritatem improbari; praeertim cum jam suo jure populus Romanus in hoc homine suam auctoritatem vel contra omnis qui dissentiant possit defendere, propter quod, isdem istis clamantibus, vos unum illum ex omnibus delegistis quem bello praedonum praeponeretis. 64. Hoc si vos temere fecistis, et rei publicae parum consuluisse, recte isti studia vestra suis consiliis regere conantur. Sin autem vos plus tum in re publica vidistis, vos eis repugnabitis per vosmet ipsos dignitatem huic imperio, salutem orbi terrarum attulistis, aliquando isti principes et sibi et ceteris populi Romani universi auctoritati parendum esse fateantur.

Pompey Alone can Retrieve the Roman Reputation.

Atque in hoc bello Asiatico et regio non solum militaris illa virtus, quae est in Cn. Pompeio singularis, sed aliae quoque virtutes animi magnae et multae requiruntur. Difficile est in Asia, Cilicia, Syria regnisque interiorum nationum ita versari nostrum imperatorem, ut nihil aliud nisi de hoste ac de laude cogitetur. Deinde etiam si qui sunt pudore ac temperantia moderatiores, tamen eos esse talis propter multitudinem cupiditatem hominum nemo arbitratur. 65. Difficile est dictu, Quirites, quanto in odio simus apud exteram nationes propter eorum, quos ad eas per hos annos cum imperio misimus, libidines et injurias. Quod enim fanum putatis in illis terris nostris magistratibus religiosum, quam civitatem sanctam, quam domum satis clausam ac munitam fuisset? Urbes jam locupletes et copiosae requiruntur, quibus causa belli propter diripiendi cupiditatem inferatur. 10 66. Libenter haec coram cum Q. Catulo et Q. Hortensio, summis et clarissimis viris, disputarem. Noverunt enim sociorum volnena, vident eorum calamitates, querimonias audiant. Pro sociis vos contra hostis exercitum mittere putatis, an hostium simulacione contra socios atque amicos? Quae civitas est in Asia quae non modo imperatoris aut legati, sed unius tribuni militum animos ac spiritus capere possit?

XXIII. Qua re, etiam si quem habetis qui conlatis signis exercitus regios superare posse videatur, tamen nisi erit idem, qui [se] a pecuniis sociorum, qui ab eorum conjubibus ac liberis, qui ab ornamentis fanorum atque oppidorum, qui ab auro gazaque regia manus, oculos, animum cohibere possit, non erit idoneus qui ad bellum Asiaticum regiumque mittatur. 67. Ecquam putatis civitatem pacatam fuisset quae locuples sit? ecquam esse locupletem quae istis pacata esse videatur? Ora maritima, Quirites, Cn. Pompeium non solum propter rei militaris gloriam, sed etiam propter animi continentiam requisivit. Videbat enim praetores locupletari quot annis pecunia publica praeter paucos; neque eos qui quicquam aliud adsequi, classium nomine, nisi ut detrimentis accipiendis majore adfici turpitudine videremur. Nunc qua cupiditate homines in provincias, quibus jacturis et quibus condicionibus proficiscantur, ignorant videlicet isti, qui ad unum deferenda omnia esse non arbitrantur? Quasi vero Cn. Pompeium non cum suis virtutibus tum etiam alienis vitiis magnum esse videamus. 68. Qua re nolite dubitare quin huic uni credatis omnia, qui inter tot annos unus inventus sit, quem socii in urbis suas cum exercitu venisse gaudeant.

Favorable Opinions of Leading Men.

Quod si auctoritatibus hanc causam, Quirites, confirmandam putatis, est vobis auctor vir bellorum omnium maxiarumque rerum peritissimus, P. Servilius, cujus tanta res gestae terra marique extiterunt, ut cum de bello deliberetis, auctor vobis gravior nemo esse debeat; est C. Curio, summis vestris beneficiis maximisque rebus gestis, summo ingenio et prudencia praeditus; est Cn. Lentulus, in quo omnes pro amplissimis vestris honoribus summum consilium, summam gravitatem esse cognovistis; est C. Cassius, integritate, virtute, constantia singulari. Qua re videte ut horum auctoritatibus illorum orationi, qui dissentiant, respondere posse videamur.

Peroration.

XXIV. 69. Quae cum ita sint, C. Manili, primum istam tuam et legem et voluntatem et sententiam laudo vehementissimeque comprobo: deinde te hortor, ut auctore populo Romano maneas in sententia, neve cujusquam vim aut minas pertimescas. Primum in te satis esse animi perseverantiaeque arbitror: deinde cum tantam multitudem cum tanto studio adesse videamus, quantum iterum nunc in eodem homine praeficiendo videmus, quid est quod aut de re aut de perficiendi facultate dubitemus? Ego autem quicquid est in me studi, consili, laboris, ingeni, quicquid hoc beneficio populi Romani atque hac potestate praetoria, quicquid auctoritate, fide, constantia possum, id omne ad hanc rem conficiendam tibi et populo Romano polliceor ac Pompey's Military Command.

defero: 70. testorque omnis deos, et eos maxime qui huic loco temploque praesident, qui omnium mentis eorum qui ad rem publicam adeunt maxime perspiciunt, me hoc neque rogatu facere cujusquam, neque quo Cn. Pompei gratiam mihi per hanc causam conciliari putem, neque quo mihi ex cujusquam amplitudine aut praesidia periculis aut adjumenta honoribus quaeram; propterea quod pericula facile, ut hominem praestare oportet, innocentiam tecti repellemus, honorem autem neque ab uno neque ex hoc loco, sed eadem illa nostra laboriosissima ratione vitae, si vestra voluntas feret, consequemur. 71. Quam ob rem quicquid in hac causa mihi susceptum est, Quirites, id ego omne mei rei publicae causa suscepisse confirmo; tantumque abest ut aliquam mihi bonam gratiam quaesisse videar, ut multas me etiam simul- tates partim obscuras, partim apertas intellegam mihi non necessarias, vobis non inutilis suscepisse. Sed ego me hoc honore praeditum, tantis vestris beneficiis adfictum statui, Quirites, vestram voluntatem et rei publicae dignitatem et salutem provinciarum atque sociorum meis omnibus commodis et rationibus praeferre oportere.
THE CONSPIRACY OF CATILINE.

B.C. 63.

Lucius Sergius Catiline was a Roman noble of ruined fortunes and the vilest character; he was an intimate friend of Verres, the plunderer of Sicily, and was, like him, distinguished for an infamous career in the army of Sulla. Fearless, ambitious, and unscrupulous, such a man was well adapted to act as ringleader in arraying the discontented elements of Roman society in any desperate enterprise against the state.

The absence of Pompey in the East, by removing from Rome the only man powerful enough to maintain order, gave Catiline his opportunity. He expected, probably, to make himself tyrant, as Dionysius and Agathocles — men no better than he — had done in Syracuse; but it was suspected at the time, and is believed by many at the present day, that he was, after all, only a tool of Cæsar and Crassus, the leaders of the democratic party.

Catiline’s plan was to make use of the consulship as a stepping-stone to absolute power; and accordingly he desired to be a candidate for this office for the year B.C. 65. He was shut out both that year and the next, on account of a charge of repetundae pending against him; but of this he was at last acquitted in season to present himself for the year B.C. 63. There followed a very exciting canvass, which resulted in the election of Cicero, the candidate of the moderate party, by an overwhelming majority, while a confederate of Catiline, Caius Antonius,—who was son of the distinguished orator, and uncle of the triumvir,—was elected as his colleague. Catiline, nothing daunted, offered himself again at the next election. This time, however, he found himself opposed by both consuls. For Cicero had transferred the rich province of Macedonia, which had fallen to him for his proconsular year, to Antonius, and had thus obtained the coopération of the latter in procuring the defeat of Catiline.
First Oration against Catiline.

Catiline now gave up the attempt to gain his ends by means of the consulship, and conspired with other men of desperate fortunes for an immediate outbreak. As a private citizen he had lost the advantages which the consulship would have given him, and even among his associates the only conspirator who held a magistracy was the vain and indolent Lentulus, prætor and of consular rank. In the course of October, B.C. 63, a body of troops was collected at Faesulae (now Fiesole, close to Florence) by the conspirators; this was put in command of the centurion Caius Manlius, Catiline himself remaining in the city to direct operations there. Cicero, however, had kept track of every move of the conspiracy, and, in consequence of his representations, the Senate, October 21, invested the consuls with dictatorial power. On November 7 Cicero called a special meeting of the Senate in the temple of Jupiter Stator. Catiline had the effrontery to appear in his usual place, whereupon Cicero burst upon him with the fiery invective which follows,—the first of his four "Orations against Catiline."

This speech, probably the best known of all Roman orations, is a striking example both of Cicero's power and of that violent invective which was one of the characteristics of Roman oratory.

I. INVECTIVE AGAINST CATILINE.

(In L. Catilinam Oratio I.)

In the Senate, Nov. 7.

Effrontery of Catiline.

Quo usque tandem abutère, Catilina, patientia nostra? Quam diu etiam furor iste tuæ nos eludet? Quem ad finem sése effrenata jactabit audacia? Nihilne te nocturnum praesidium Palati, nihil urbis vigiliae, nihil timor populi, nihil concursus bonorum omnium, nihil hic munitissimus habendi senatus locus, nihil horum ora voltus-que moverunt? Patere tua consilia non sentis? constrictam jam horum omnium scientia teneri conjurationem tuam non vides? Quid proxima, quid superiore nocte egeris, ubi fueris, quos vocaveris, quid consili ceperis, quem nostrum ignorare arbitraris?

Culpable Weakness of the Consuls.

Contrast with Former Magistrates.

II. 4. Decrevis quondam senatus, ut L. Opimius consul videret ne quid res publica detrimenti caperet. Nox nulla intercessit: interfecst est propter quasdam seditionum suspiciones C. Gracchus, clarissimo patre, avo, majoribus; occi- 30 sus est cum liberis M. Fulvius consularis. Simili senatus consulto C. Mario et L. Valerio consilibus est permissa res publica: num unum diem postea L. Saturninum tribunum plebis et C. Servilium praetorem [mors ac] rei publicae poena remorata est? At nos vicesimum jam diem patimur hebescere aciem horum auctoritatis. Habemus enim hujusce modi senatus consultum, verum inclusum in tabulis, tamquam in vagina reconditum, quo ex senatus consulto confestim te interfecum esse, Catilina, convenit. Vivis, et vivis non ad deponendum, sed ad confirmandum audaciam. Cupio, patres conscripti, me esse clementem: cupio in tan- ro tis rei publicae periculis me non dissolutum videri; sed jam me ipse inertiae nequitiaeque condemno.
First Oration against Catiline. 101

The Situation Calls for Immediate Action.

5. Castra sunt in Italia contra populum Romanum in Etruriae fauces conlocata: crescit in dies singulos hostium numerus: eorum autem castrorum imperatorem ducemque hostium intra moenia atque adeo in senatu videmus, intestinam aliquam cotidie perniciem rei publicae molientem. Si te jam, Catilina, comprehendi, si interfici jussero, credo, erit verendum mihi ne non hoc poius omnes boni serius a me, quam quisquam crudelius factum esse dicat.

Reasons for the Delay.

Verum ego hoc, quod jam pridem factum esse oportuit, certa de causa nondum adducor ut faciam. Tum denique interficiere, cum jam nemo tam improbus, tam perditus, tam tui similis inveniri poterit, qui id non jure factum esse fateatur. 6. Quam diu quisquam erit qui te defendere audeat, vives: et vives ita ut vivis, multis meis et firmis praestidii oppressus, ne commoverete te contra rem publicam possis. Multorum te etiam oculi et aures non sentientem, sicut adhuc fecerunt, speculabuntur atque custodient.
The Consuls fully Informed of the Conspiracy.

IV. Recognosce tandem mecum noctem illum superiorem: jam intelleges molto me vigilare acrius ad salutem quam te ad perniciem rei publicae. Dico te priore nocte venisse inter falcarios—non agam obscure—in M. Laecae domum; convenisse eodem compluris ejusdem amentiae scelerisque socios. Num negare audes? quid taces? convincam, si negas. Video enim esse hic in senatu quosdam, qui tecum una fuerunt.\hbar \text{9}. O di immortales! ubinam gentium sumus? in qua urbe vivimus? quam rem publicam habemus? Hic, hic sunt, in nostro numero, patres conscripti, in hoc orbis terrae sanctissimo gravissimoque consilio, qui de nostro omnium interitu, qui de hujus urbis atque adeo de orbis terrarum exitio cogitent. Hos ego video [consul] et de republica sententiam rogo, et quos ferro trucidari oportebat, eos nondum voce volnero. Fui est igitur apud Laecam illa nocte, Catilina: distribuisti partis Italiæ; statuisti quo quemque proficiscì placeret; delegisti quos Romae relinquques, quo tecum educerés; descripsisti urbis partis ad incendia: confirmasti te ipsum jam esse exiturum: dixisti paulum tibi esse etiam nunc morae, quod ego viverem. Reperti sunt duo equites Romani qui te ista cura liberarent, et sese illa ipsa nocte paulo ante lucem me in meo lectulo interfecturos esse pollicerentur. \hbar \text{10}. Haec ego omnia, vixdum etiam coetu vestro dimisso, comperì: domum meam majoribus præsidiis munivi atque firmavi; exclusi eos quos tu ad me salutatum miseræs, cum illi ipsi venissent, quos ego jam multis ac summis viris ad me id temporis venturos esse praedixeram.

Why does not Catiline Leave the City?

\textbf{11}. Magna dis immortalibus habenda est, atque huic ipsi
Jovi Statori, antiquissimo custodi hujus urbis. gratia, quod hanc tam taetram, tam horribilem tamque infestam rei publicae pestem totiens jam effugimus. Non est saepius in uno homine summa salus periclitanda rei publicae. Quam diu mihi consuli designato, Catilina, insidiatus es, non publico me praesidio, sed privata diligentia defendi. Cum proximis comitiis consularibus me consulem in Campo et competitores tuos interficere voluisti, compressi conatus tuos nefarios amicorum praesidio et copiis, nullo tumultu publice concitato: denique, quotiensemque me petisti, per me tibi obsitii, quamquam videbam perniciem meam cum magna calamitate rei publicae esse conjunctam. V12. Nunc jam aperte rem publicam universam petis: templo deorum immortuum, tecta urbis, vitam omnium civium. Italian totam ad exitium ac vastitatem vocas. Qua re, quoniam id quod est primum, et quod hujus imperi disciplinaneque majorum proprium est, facere nondum audeo, faciam id quod est ad severitatem lenius, et ad communem salutem utilius. Nam si te interfici jussero, residebit in re publica reliqua conjuratorium manus. Sin tu, quod te jam dudum hortor, exieris, exhaurietur ex urbe tuorum comitum magna et perniciosa sentina rei publicae.

Life There should be Intolerable to him.

13. Quid est, Catilina? num dubitas id me imperante facere, quod jam tua sponte faciebas? Exire ex urbe jubet consul hostem. Interrogas me, num in exsilium? Non jubeo: sed, si me consulis, suadeo. V1. Quid est enim, Catilina, quod te jam in hac urbe delectare possit? in qua nemo est extra istam conjugationem perditorum hominum qui te non metuat, nemo qui non oderit. Quae nota domesticae turpitudinis non inusta vitae tuae est? Quod priva tarum rerum dedecus non haeret in fama? quae libido ab oculis, quod facinus a manibus umquam tuis. quod flagitium
First Oration against Catiline.

a toto corpore affuit? Cui tu adolescentulo, quem corruptellarum incelebris inretisses, non aut ad audaciam ferrum aut ad libidinem facem praetulisti? 14. Quid vero? nuper cum morte superioris uxoris novis nuptiis domum vacuefecisses, nonne etiam alio incredibili scelere hoc scelus cumulasti? quod ego praetermitto et facile patior sileri, ne in hac civitate tanti facinoris immanitas aut extitisses aut non vindicata esse videatur. Praetermitto ruinas fortunarum tuarum, quas omnis impendere tibi proximis Idibus senties. Ad illa venio, quae non ad privatam ignominiam vitiorum tuo rum, non ad domesticam tuam difficultatem ac turpitudinem, sed ad summam rem publicam atque ad omnium nostrum vitam salutemque pertinent. 15. Potestne tibi haec lux, Catilina, aut hujus caeli spiritus esse jucundus, cum scias horum esse neminem qui nesciat te pridie Kalendas Janu arius Lepido et Tullo consulibus stetisse in comitio cum telo? I manum consulum et principum civitatis interficiendorum causa parvisse? sceleri ac furori tuo non mentem aliquam aut timorem [tuum], sed fortunam populi Romani obstitisses? Ac jam illa omitt— neque enim sunt aut obscura aut non multa comissae—quotiens tu me designatum. quotiens consulem interficere conatus es! quot ego tuas petitiones, ita conjectas ut vitari posse non viderentur, parva quadam declinatione et (ut aiunt) corpore effugi! [Nihil agis,] nihil adsequeris, [nihil moliris,] neque tamen conari ac velle desistis. 16. Quotiens tibi jam extorta est ista sica de manibus! quotiens vero excidit casu aliquo et elapsa est! [Tamen ea carere diutius non potes,] quae quidem quibus abs te initiata sacris ac devota sit nescio, quod eam necesse putas esse in consulis corpore defigere.

All Good Citizens Fear and Hate him.

VII. Nunc vero quae tua est ista vita? Sic enim jam tecum loquar, non ut odio permutus esse videar, quo debeo, sed ut misericordia, quae tibi nulla debetur. Venisti paulo ante in senatum. Quis te ex hac tanta frequentia, tot ex tuis amicis ac necessariis salutavit? Si hoc post hominum memoriam contigit nemini, vocis exspectas contumeliam, cum sis gravissimo judicio taciturnitatis oppressus? Quid, quod adventu tuo ista subsellia vacuefacta sunt? quod omnes consulares, qui tibi persaepe ad caedem constituti fuerunt, simul atque adsedisti, partem istam subselliorum nudam atque inanem reliquerunt, quo tandem animo tibi ferendum putas? 17. Servi (mehercule) mei si me isto pacto metuerent, ut te metuunt omnes cives tui, domum meam relinquentam putarem: tu tibi urbem non arbitraris?
et, si me meis civibus injuria suspectum tam graviter atque offensum viderem, carere me aspectu civium quam infestis omnium oculis conspici mallem. Tu, cum conscientia scel-rum tuorum agnoscas odium omnium justum et jam diu tibi debitum, dubitas quorum mentis sensusque volneras, eorum aspectum praesentiamque vitare? Si te parentes tимерent atque odissent tui, neque eos ulla ratione placare posses, tu (opinor) ab eorum oculis aliquo concederes. Nunc te patria, quae communis est parens omnium nostrum, odit ac metuit, et jam diu te nihil judicat nisi de parricidio suo cogitare: hujus tu neque auctoritatem verebere, nec judicium sequere, nec vim pertimesces?

His Native City Begs him to be Gone.

18. Quae tecum, Catilina, sic agit, et quodam modo tacita loquitur: 'Nullum jam aliquot annis facinus exstitit nisi per ta, nullum flagitium sine te: tibi uni multorum civium neces, tibi vexatio direptioque sociorum impunita fuit ac libera: tu non solum ad neglelegandas leges et quaestiones, verum etiam ad evertendas perfringendasque valuisti. Superiora illa, quamquam ferenda non fuerunt, tamen, ut potui, tuli: nunc vero me totam esse in metu propter unum te, quicquid increpuerit Catilinam timeri, nullum videri contra me consilium iniri posse quod a tuo scelere abhorreet, non est ferendum. Quam ob rem disced, atque hunc mihi timorem eripe: si est verus, ne opprimar; sin falsus, ut tandem aliquando timere desinam.' VIII.19. Haec si tecum, ut dixi, patria loquatur, nonne impetrare debeat, etiam si vim adhibere non possit? Quid, quod tu te ipse in custodiem dedisti? quod vitandae suspiciosis causa, ad M'. Lepidum te habitare velle dixisti? a quo non receptus etiam ad me venire ausus es, atque ut domi meae te adservarem rogasti. Cum a me quoque id responsum tulisses, me nullo modo posse isdem parietibus tuto esse tecum, qui magno in periculo essem quod isdem moenibus contineremur, ad Q. Metellum praetorem venisti: a quo repudiatus ad sodalem tuum, virum optimum, M. Marcellum demigrasti; quem tu videlicet et ad custodiendum [te] diligentissimum et ad suspicandum sagacissimum et ad vindicandum fortissimum fore putasti. Sed quam longe videtur a carcere atque a vinculis abesse debere, qui se ipse jam dignum custodia judicaret? 20. Quae cum ita sint, Catilina, dubitas, si emori aequo animo non potes, abire in alius terras, et vitam istam, multis suppliciis justis debitisque ereptam, fugae solitudinique mandare?

All Good Men Urgent for his Departure.

'Refer' inquis 'ad senatum:' id enim postulas, et, si hic ordo placere decreverit te ire in exsilium, obtemperaturum te esse dicis. Non referam, id quod abhorret a meis moribus; et tamen faciam ut intellegas quid hi de te sentiant. Egregere ex urbe, Catilina; libera rem publicam metu; in exsilium, si hanc vocem exspectas, proficiscere. Quid est, Catilina? ecquid attendis? ecquid animadvertis horum silentium? Patiuntur, tacent. Quid exspectas auctoritatem loquentium, quorum voluntatem tacitorum perspicis? 21. At si hoc idem huic adulescenti optimo P. Sestio, si fortissimo viro M. Marcello dixisse, jam mihi consuli, hoc ipso in templo, senatus jure optimo vim et manus intulisset. De te autem, Catilina, cum quiescunt, probant: cum patriuntur, decernunt: cum tacent, clamant. Neque hi solum,— quorum tibi auctoritas est videlicet cara, vita vilissima,—sed etiam illi equites Romani, honestissimi atque optimi viri, ceterique fortissimi cives, qui circumstant senatum, quorum tu et frequentiam videre et studia perspicere et voces paulo ante exaudire potuisti. Quorum ego vix abs te jam diu manus ac tela contineo, eosdem facile adducam, ut te haec, quae vastare jam pridem studes, relinquentem usque ad portas prosequantur.

The Consul Entreats him to Go.

IX. 22. Quamquam quid loquor? Te ut ulla res frangat? tu ut umquam te corrigas? tu ut ullam fugam meditere? tu ut exsilium cogites? Utinam tibi istam mentem di immortalis duint! tanetsi video; si mea voce perterritus ire in exsilium animum induxeris, quanta tempestas invidiae nobis—si minus in praesens tempus, recenti memoria scelerum tuorum, at in posteritatem—impendeat: sed est tanti, dum modo ista sit privata calamitas, et a rei publicae periculis sejungatur. Sed tu ut vitiis tuis commoveare, ut legum poenas pertimescas, ut temporibus rei publicae cedas, non est postulandum. Neque enim is es, Catilina, ut te aut pudor umquam a turpitudine aut metus a periculo aut ratio a furore revocarit. 23. Quam ob rem, ut saepe jam dixi, proficiscere; ac, si mihi inimico (ut praedicis) tuo confiare vis invidiam, recta perge in exsilium: vix feram sermones hominum si id feceris; vix molem istius invidiae, si in exsilium jussu consulis ieris, sustinebo. Sin autem servire meae laudi et gloriae mavis, egredere cum importuna scele-ratorum manu: confer te ad Manium, concita perditos civis, secern te a bonis, infer patriae bellum, exsulta impio latrocinio, ut a me non ejectus ad alienos, sed invitatus ad tuos isse videaris.

But he will Go Out only as a Declared Enemy.

XI. Nunc, ut a me, patres conscripti, quandam prope justam patriae querimoniam detester ac deprecer, percipite, quaeso, diligentem™ quae dicam, et ea penitus animis vestris mentibusque mandate. Etenim si mecum patria, quae mihi vita mea multo est carior, si cuncta Italia, si omnis res publica, loquatur: 'M. Tulli, quid agis? Tune eum, quem esse hostem comperisti, quem ducem belli futurum vides, quem exspectari imperatorem in castris hostium sentis, aut rem sceleris, principem conjurationis, evocatorem servorum et civium perditorum, exire patiere, ut abs te non emissus ex urbe, sed immissus in urbem esse videatur? Non hunc in vincula duci, non ad mortem rapi, non summo supplicio mactari imperabis? : 28. Quid tandem te impedit? Mosne majorum? At persaepe etiam privati in hac re publica perniciosos civis morte multaverunt. An leges, quae de civium Romanorum supplicio rogatae sunt? At numquam in hac urbe qui a re publica defecerunt civium jura tenuerunt. An invidiam posteritatis times? Praeclaram vero populo Romano refers gratiam, qui te hominem per te cognitum, nulla commendatione majorum, tam mature ad summum imperium per omnis honorum gradus extulit, si propter invidiae aut alicujus periculi metum salutem civium tuorum neglegis. 29. Sed si quis est invidiae metus, num est vehementius severitatis ac fortitudinis invidia quam inertiae ac nequitiae pertimescenda? An cum bello vastabitur Italia, vexabuntur urbes, tecta ardebunt, tum te non existimas invidiae incendio conflagraturum?'

XII. His ego sanctissimis rei publicae vocibus, et eorum hominum qui hoc idem sentiunt mentibus, paucae respondebo. Ego, si hoc optimum factu judicarem, patres conscripti, Catilinam morte multari, unius usuram horae gladiatori isti ad vivendum non dedisset. Etenim si summi et clarissimi viri Saturnini et Gracchorum et Flacci et superiorem complurium sanguine non modo se non contaminaret, sed etiam honestarunt, certe verendum mihi non erat ne quid hoc parricida civium interfecto invidiae mihi in posteritatem redundaret. Quod si ea mihi maxime impenderet, tamen hoc animo fui semper, ut invidiam virtute partam gloriam, non invidiam putarem. \ 30. Quamquam non nulli sunt in hoc ordine, qui aut ea quae imminent non videant, aut ea quae vident dissimulent: qui spem Catilinae mollibus sententiis aluerunt, conjurationemque nascantem non credendo corroboraverunt: quorum auctoritatem secuti multi non solum improbi, verum etiam imperiti, si in hunc animadvertissetm, crudeliter et regie factum esse dicerent. Nunc intellego, si iste, quo intendit, in Manliana castra pervenerit, neminem tam stultum fore qui non videat conjurationem esse factam, neminem tam improbum qui non fateatur. Hoc autem uno interfecto, intellego hanc rei publicae pestem paulisper reprimi, non in perpetuum comprimi posse. Quod si se ejecerit, secumque suos eduxerit, et eodem ceteros undique conlectos naufragos adgregaret, exstinguetur atque delebitur non modo haec tam adulta rei publicae pestis, verum etiam stirps ac semen malorum omnium.

For Half-way Measures would have been of No Avail.

XIII. 31. Etenim jam diu, patres conscripti, in his periculis conjurationis insidiisque versamur, sed nescio quo pacto omnium scelerum ac veteris furoris et audaciae maturationis in nostri consulatus tempus erupit. Quod si ex tanto latrocinio iste unus tolletur, videbimus fortasse ad breve quoddam tempus cura et metu esse relevati; periculum autem residebit, et erit inclusum penitus in venis atque in visceribus rei publicae. Ut saepe homines aegri morbo gravi, cum aestivalique jactantur, si aquam gelidam biberint, primo relevari videntur, deinde multo gravius vehementiusque afflictantur; sic hic morbus, qui est in re publica, relevatus istius poena, vehementius reliquis vivis ingravescit. 32. Qua re secedant improbi, secernant se a bonis, unum in locum congregentur, muro denique [id] quod saepe jam dixi) discernantur a nobis: desinant insidiari domi suae consuli, circumstare tribunal praetoris urbani, obsidere cum gladiis curiam, malleolos et faces ad inflammandam urbem comparare: sit denique inscriptum in fronte unius cujusque quid de re publica sentiat. Pollicear hoc vobis, patres conscripti, tantam in nobis consolibus fore diligentiam, tantam in vobis auctoritatem, tantam in equitibus Romanis virtutem, tantam in omnibus bonis consensio nem, ut Catilinae profectione omnia patefacta, inlustrata, oppressa, vindicata esse videatis.

Appeal to Jupiter to Save Rome.

33. Hisce omnibus, Catilina, cum summa rei publicae salute, cum tua peste ac pernicie, cumque eorum exitio qui se tecum omni scelere parricidioque junxerunt, proficiscere ad impium bellum ac nefarium. Tu, Juppiter, qui isdem quibus haec urbs auspiciis [a Romulo] es constitutus, quem Statorem hujus urbis atque imperi vere nominamus, hunc et hujus socios a tuis ceterisque templis, a tectis urbis ac moenibus, a vita fortunisque civium [omnium] arcebis, et homines bonorum inimicos, hostis patriae, latrones Ituliae, scelerum foedere inter se ac nefaria societate conjunctos, aeternis suppliciiis vivos mortuosque mactabis.

II. CHARACTER OF THE CONSPIRACY.

(In L. Catilinam Oratio II.)

Before the People, Nov. 8.

When Cicero had finished his speech and taken his seat, Catiline attempted to reply, but was interrupted by the cries and reproaches of the Senators. With a few threatening words, he rushed from the temple, and left the city the same night, for the camp of Manlius. The next morning the consul assembled the people, and announced to them the news, in the triumphant speech which follows.

Catiline is Gone.

TANDEM aliquando, Quirites, L. Catilinam, furentem audacia, scelus anhelantem, pestem patriae nefarie molientem, vobis atque huic urbi ferro flammaque minitantem, ex urbe vel ejecimus vel emisisimus, vel ipsum egredientem verbis prosecuti sumus. Abiit, excessit, evasit, erupit. Nulla jam pernicies a monstro illo atque prodigio moenibus ipsis intra moenia comparabitur. Atque hunc quidem unum hujus belli domestici ducem sine controversia vicimus. Non enim jam inter latera nostra sica illa versa-bitur: non in campo, non in foro, non in curia, non denique intra domesticos parietes pertimescens. Loco ille motus est, cum est ex urbe depulsus. Palam jam cum hoste nullo impediente bellum [justum] geremus. Sine dubio perdidimus hominem magnificeque vicimus, cum illum ex occultis insidiis in apertum latrocinium conjecimus. 2. Quod vero non cruentum mucronem (ut voluit) extulit, quod vivis nobis egressus est, quod ei ferrum e manibus extorsimus, quod incolumis civis, quod stantem urbeb reliquit, quinto tandem illum maerore esse adfectum et proligatum putatis? Jacet ille nunc prostratusque est, et se percussum atque abjectum esse sentit, et retorquet oculos protecto saepe ad haec urbem, quam e suis saecibus ereptam esse luget: quae quidem mihi laetari videtur, quod tantam pestem evomuerit forasque projecerit.

He Ought to have been Put to Death.

II. 3. Ac si quis est talis, qualis esse omnis oportebat, qui in hoc ipso, in quo exsultat et triumphat oratio mea, me vehementer accuset, quod tam capitalem hostem non compreenderim potius quam emiserim, non est ista mea culpa, sed temporum. Interfectum esse L. Catilinam et gravissimo supplicio adfectum jam pridem oportebat, idque a me et mos majorum et hujus imperi severitas et res publica postulabat. Sed quam multos suisse putatis qui quae ego deferrem non crederent? [quam multos qui propter stultitiam non putarent?] quam multos qui etiam defenderent? [quam multos qui propter improbitatem faverent?] Ac si illo sublato depelli a vobis omne periculum judicarem, jam pridem ego L. Catilinam non modo invidiae meae, verum etiam vitae periculo sustulissem.
Second Oration against Catiline.

But the Time was not Ripe.

4. Sed cum viderem, ne vobis quidem omnibus re etiam tum probata, si illum, ut erat meritus, morte multassem, fore ut ejus socios invidia oppressus persequi non possem, rem huc deduxi, ut tum palam pugnare possetis, cum hostem aperte videretis. Quem quidem ego hostem quam vehementer foris esse timendum putem, licet hinc intellegatis, quod etiam moleste fero, quod ex urbe parum comitatus exierit. Utinam ille omnis secum suas copias eduxisset! Tongilium mihi eduxit, quem amare in prætexta coeperat, Publicium et Minucium, quorum aes alienum contractum in popina nullum rei publicae motum adferre poterat: reliquit quos viros! quanto aere alieno! quam valentis! quam nobilis!

His Worthless Partisans Remain, but are Powerless.

III. 5. Itaque ego illum exercitum præe Gallicanis legionibus, et hoc dilectu quem in agro Piceno et Gallico Q. Metellus habuit, et his copiis quae a nobis cotidie comparantur, magno opere contemno, conlectum ex senibus desperatis, ex agresti luxuria, ex rusticus decoctoribus, ex eis qui vadimonia deserere illum exercitum maluerunt: quibus ego non modo si aciem exercitus nostri, verum etiam si edictum praetoris ostendero, concident. Hos, quos video volitare in foro, quos stare ad curiam, quos etiam in senatum venire, qui nitent unguentis, qui fulgent purpura, mallem secum milites eduxisset: qui si hic permanent, mementote non tam exercitum illum esse nobis quam hos, qui exercitum deseruerunt, pertimescendos. Atque hoc etiam sunt timendi magis, quod quicquid cogitans me scire sentiunt, neque tamen permoventur. 6. Video cui sit Apulia attributa, quis habeat Etruriam, quis agrum Picenum, quis Gallicum, quis sibi has urbanas insidias caedis atque incendiorum depoposcerit: omnia superioris noctis consilia ad me perlata esse sentiunt: patefeci in senatu hesterno die: Catilina ipse pertimuit, profugit: hi quid exspectant? Ne illi vehementer errant, si illam meas pristinam lenitatem perpetuam sperant futuram.

Let them Follow him.

5 IV. Quod exspectavi, jam sum adsecutus, ut vos omnes factam esse aperte conjurationem contra rem publicam vide-retis: nisi vero si quis est qui Catilinae similis cum Catilina sentire non putet. Non est jam lenitati locus: severitatem res ipsa flagitat. Unum etiam nunc concedam: exeant, 10 profisciscantur; ne patiantur desiderio sui Catilinam miserum tabescere. Demonstrabo iter: Aurelia via profectus est: si adcelerare volent, ad vesperam consequentur.

He was the Ringleader of all Scoundrels and Profligates.

7. O fortunatam rem publicam, si quidem hanc sentinam urbis ejecerit! Uno (mehercule) Catilina exhausto, levata 15 mihi et recreata res publica videtur. Quid enim mali aut sceleris fingi aut cogitari potest quod non ille conceperit?

2 Quis tota Italia veneficus, quis gladiator, quis latro, quis sicarius, quis parricida, quis testamentorum subjector, quis circumscriptor, quis ganeo, quis nepos, quis adulter, quae 20 mulier infamis, quis corruptor juventutis, quis corruptus, quis perditus inveniri potest, qui se cum Catilina non familiarissime vixisse fatoatur? quae caedes per hosce annos sine illo facta est? quod nefarium stuprum non ad illum?

8. Jam vero quae tanta umquam inullo homine juventutis inlecebra fuit, quanta in illo? qui alios ipse amabat turpissime, aliorum amori flagitosissime serviebat: aliis fructum libidinum, aliis mortem parentum non modo impellendo, verum etiam adjuvando pollicebatur. Nunc vero quam subito non solum ex urbe, verum etiam ex agris ingentem 30 numerum perditorum hominum conlegerat! Nemo non modo Romae, sed ne ullo quidem in angulo totius Italiae oppressus aere alieno fuit, quem non ad hoc incredibile sceleris foedus asciverit.

V. 9. Atque ut ejus diversa studia in dissimili ratione perspicere possitis, nemo est in ludo gladiatorio paulo ad facinus audacior, qui se non intimum Catilinae esse fateatur; nemo in scaena levior et nequior, qui se non ejusdem prope sodalem fuisse commemoret. Atque idem tamen, stuprorum et scelerum exercitatione adsuefactus, frigore et fame et siti et vigiliis perferendis, fortis ab istis praedicabatur, cum industriae subsidia atque instrumenta virtutis in libidine audaciaque consumeret.

Let his Associates Depart or Take the Consequences.

10. Hunc vero si seuti sunt comites, si ex urbe exierint desperatorum hominum flagitiosi greges, O nos beatos! O rem publicam fortunatam! O praecclaram laudem consulatus mei! Non enim jam sunt mediocres hominum libidines, non humanae ac tolerandae audaciae: nihil cogitant nisi caedem, nisi incendia, nisi rapinas. Patrimonium sua profuderunt, fortunam suas obligaverunt: res eos jam pridem, fides nuper deficere coepit: eadem tamen illa, quae erat in abundantia, libido permanet. Quod si in vino et alea comissationes solum et scorta qu Nerent, essent illi quidem desperandi, sed tamen essent ferendi: hoc vero quis ferre possit, inertis homines fortissimis viris insidiari, sulttissimos pridentissimis, ebriosos sobriis, dormantis vigilanti bus? qui mihi accubantes in conviviis, complexi mulieres impudicas, vino languidi, conferti cibo, sertis redimiti, unguentis obliti, debilitati supris, eructant sermonibus suis caedem honorum atque urbis incendia. Quibus ego confido impedere fatum aliquod, et poenam jam diu improbitati, nequitiae, sceleri, libidini debitam aut instare jam plane, aut certe appropinquare. Quos si meus consulatus, orations of cicero.

quoniam sanare non potest, sustulerit, non breve nescio quod tempus, sed multa saecula propagarit rei publicae. nulla est enim natio quam pertimescamus, nullus rex qui bellum populo Romano facere possit. omnia sunt externa 5 unius virtute terra marique pacata: domesticum bellum manet; intus insidia sunt, intus inclusum pericum est, intus est hostis. cum luxuria nobis, cum amnesia, cum scelere certandum est. huic ego me bello ducem profiteor, quirites: suscipio inimicitias hominum perditorum. quae sanari poterunt, quacumque ratione sanabo; quae resecanda erunt, non patiari ad perniciem civitatis manere. proinde aut exant, aut quiescant, aut, si et in urbe et in eadem mente permanent, ea quae merentur exspectent.

catiline is not in exile: he has joined his hostile army.

vi. 12. at etiam sunt qui dicant, quirites, a me in exsilium ejectum esse catilinam. quod ego si verbo asequi possem, istos ipsos eicerem, qui haec loquuntur. homo enim videlicet timidus aut etiam permodestus vocem consulis ferre non potuit: simul atque ire in exsilium iussus est, paruit. quid? ut hesterno die, quirites, cum domi 15 meae paene interfecset essem, sénatum in aedem jovis statoris convocavi, rem omnem ad patres conscriptos detuli: quo cum catilina venisset, quis eum senator appellavit? quis salutavit? quis denique ita aspexit ut perditum civem, ac non potius ut importunissimum hostem? quin etiam principes ejus ordinis partem illam subselliorum, ad quam ille accesserat, nudam atque inanem reliquerunt. 13. hic ego vehemens ille consul, qui verbo civis in exsilium eicio, quaesivi a catilina in nocturno conventu ad m. laecam fuisse necne. cum ille, homo audacissimus, conscientia 20 convictus, primo reticuisset, patefeci cetera: quid ea nocte egisset, quid in proximam constituisset, quem ad modum esset ei ratio totius belli descripta, edocui. cum haesita-
Second Oration against Catiline.

1et, cum teneretur, quaesivi quid dubitaret proficisci eo, quo jam pridem pararet, cum arma, cum securis, cum fascis, cum tubas, cum signa militaria, cum aquilam illum argenteam, cui ille etiam sacrarium [scelerum] domi suae fecerat, scirem esse praemissam. 14. In exsilium eiciebam, quem jam ingressum esse in bellum videbam? Etenim, credo, Manlius iste centurio, qui in agro Faesulano castra posuit, bellum populo Romano suo nomine indixit, et illa castra nunc non Catilinam ducem exspectant, et ille ejectus in exsilium se Massiliam, ut aiunt, non in haec castra conferet.

Men Say the Consul has Driven him into Exile: Would the Charge were True!

VII. O condicionem miseram non modo administrandae, verum etiam conservandae rei publicae! Nunc si L. Catilina consiliis, laboribus, periculis meis circumclusus ac debilitatus subito pertimuerit, sententiam mutaverit, deseruerit suos, consilium belli faciendi abjecerit, ex hoc cursu sceleris ac belli iter ad fugam atque in exsilium convertetur, non ille a me spoliatus armis audaciae, non obtupefactus ac perterritus mea diligentia, non de spe conatuque depulsus, (sed indemnatus, innocens, in exsilium ejectus a consule vi et minis esse dicetur), et erunt qui illum, si hoc fecerit, non improbum, sed miserum, me non diligentissimum consulem, sed crudelissimum tyrannum existimari velint! 15. Est mihi tanti, Quirites, hujus invidiae falsae atque iniquae tempestatem subire, dum modo a vobis hujus horribilis belli ac nefarii periculum depellatur. Dicatur sane ejectus esse a me, dum modo eat in exsilium. Sed, mihi credite, non est iturus. Numquam ego a dis immortalius optabo, Quirites, invidiae meae levandae causa, ut L. Catilinam ducere exercitum hostium atque in armis voluntare audiatis: sed triduo tamen audietis: multoque magis illud timeo, ne mihi sit invidiosum aliquando, quod illum emiserim potius quam
Orations of Cicero.

quod ejecerim. Sed cum sint homines qui illum, cum profectus sit, ejectum esse dicant, eidem si interfactus esset quid dicerent? 16. Quamquam isti, qui Catilinam Massiliam ire dictitant, non tam hoc queruntur quam verentur.
5 Nemo est istorum tam misericors, qui illum non ad Man-lium quam ad Massiliensis ire malit. Ille autem, si (me hercule) hoc quod agit numquam antea cogitasset, tamen latrocinantem se interfici malleqt quam exsulem vivere. Nunc vero, cum ei nihil adhuc praeter ipsius voluntatem cogita-10 tionemque acciderit, nisi quod vivis nobis Roma profectus est, optemus potius ut eat in exsillium quam queramus.

Character of his Partisans.

VIII. 17. Sed cur tam diu de uno hoste loquimur, et de hoste qui jam fatetur se esse hostem, et quem, quia (quod semper volui) murus interest, non timeo: de eis qui dissi-15 mulant, qui Romae remanent, qui nobiscum sunt, nihil dicimus? Quos quidem ego, si ullo modo fieri possit, non tam ulcisci studeo quam sanare sibi ipsos, placare rei publicae, neque id qua re fieri non possit, si me audire volent, intellego. Exponam enim vobis, Quirites, ex quibus generibus 20 hominum istae copiae comparentur: deinde singulis medi-cinan consili atque orationis meae, si quam potero, adferam.

First: Rich Men in Debt.

18. Unum genus est eorum, qui magno in aere alieno majores etiam possessiones habent, quarum amore adducti dissolvi nullo modo possunt. Horum hominum species est 25 honestissima—sunt enim locupletes: voluntas vero et causa impudentissima. Tu agris, tu aedificis, tu argento, tu familia, tu rebus omnibus ornatus et copiosus sis, et dubites de possessione detrahere, adquirere ad fidem? Quid enim exspectas? bellum? Quid ergo? in vastatione omnium, tuas possessiones sacrosanctas futuras putas? An tabulas
Second Oration against Catiline.

Second: Men Eager for Power and Wealth.

IX. 19. Alterum genus est eorum qui, quamquam premuntur aere alieno, dominationem tamen exspectant, rerum potiri volunt, honores, quos quieta re publica desperant, perturbata se consequi posse arbitrantur. Quibus hoc praecipium videtur, — unum scilicet et idem quod reliquis omnibus, — ut deserent id quod conantur se consequi posse: primum omnium me ipsum vigilare, adesse, providere rei publicae; deininde magnos animos esse in bonis viris, magnum concordiam in maxima multitudo, magnas praeterea copias militum; deos denique immortalis huic invicto populo, clarissimo imperio, pulcherrimae urbi, contra tantam vim sceleris praesentis auxilium esse latoros. Quod si jam sint id, quod cum summo furore cupiunt, adepti, num illi in cinere urbis et in sanguine civium, quae mente conscelerata ac nefaria concupiverunt, se consules ac dictatores aut etiam reges sperant futuros? Non vident id se cupere, quod si adepti sint, fugitivo alicui aut gladiatori concedi sit necesse?

Third: Old Soldiers of Sulla.

20. Tertium genus est aetate jam adfectum, sed tamen exercitacione robustum; quo ex genere iste est Manlius, cui nunc Catilina succedit. Sunt homines ex eis coloniiis
Orations of Cicero.

quas Sulla constituit: quas ego universas civium esse optimorum et fortissimorum virorum sentio; sed tamen ei sunt coloni, qui se in insperatis ac repentinis pecuniis sumptuosius insolentiusque jactarunt. Hi dum aedificant tamquam beati, dum praediiis lectis, familiis magnis, conviviis apparatis delectantur, in tantum aes alienum inciderunt, ut, si salvi esse velint, Sulla sit [eis] ab inferis excitandus: qui etiam non nulos agrestis, homines tenuis atque egentis, in eandem illam spem rapinarum veterum impulerunt. Quos ego utrosque in eodem genere praedatorum direptorumque pono. Sed eos hoc moneo: desinant furere ac proscriptiones et dictaturas cogitare. Tantus enim illorum temporum dolor inustus est civitati, ut jam ista non modo homines, sed ne pecudes quidem mihi passaure esse videantur.

Fourth: Ruined Debtors.

X. 21. Quartum genus est sane varium et mixtum et turbulentum, qui jam pridem premuntur, qui numquam emergunt, qui partim inertia, partim male gerendo negotio, partim etiam sumptibus in vetere aere alieno vacillant; qui vadinmoniiis, judiciis, proscriptione bonorum defatigati, permulti et ex urbe et ex agris se in illa castra conferre dicuntur. Hosce ego non tam milites acris quam initiatores lentos esse arbitror. Qui homines primum, si stare non possunt, conruant; sed ita, ut non modo civitas, sed ne vicini quidem proximi sentiant. Nam illud non intellege, quam ob rem, si vivere honeste non possunt, perire turpiter velint; aut cur minore dolore perituros se cum multis, quam si soli pereant, arbitrentur.

Fifth and Sixth: Cut-throats and Debauchees.

22. Quintum genus est parricidarum, sicariorum, denique omnium facinorosorum: quos ego a Catilina non revoco; nam neque ab eo divelli possunt, et pereant sane in latro-cinio, quoniam sunt ita multi ut eos carcer capere non possit. Postremum autem genus est non solum numero, verum etiam genere ipso atque vita, quod proprium Catilinae est, —de ejus dilectu, immo vero de complexu ejus ac sinu; quos pexo capillo, nitidos, aut imberbis aut bene barbatos videtis, manicatis et talaribus tunicis, velis amictos non togis, quorum omnis industria vitae et vigilandi labor in antelucanis cenis expromitur. 23. In his gregibus omnes aleatores, omnes adulteri, omnes impuri impudicique versantur. Hi pueri tam lepidi ac delicati non solum amare et amari, neque saltare et cantare, sed etiam sicas vibrare et spargere venena didicerunt; qui nisi exeunt, nisi pereunt, etiam si Catilina perierit, scitote hoc in re publica seminarium Catilinarum futurum. Verum tamen quid sibi isti miseri volunt? Num suas secum mulierculas sunt in castra ducturi? Quem ad modum autem illis carere poterunt, his praesertim jam noctibus? Quo autem pacto illi Apenninum atque illas pruinas ac nivis perferent? nisi idcirco se facilius hiemem toleraturus putant, quod nudi in conviviis saltare didicerunt.

These Followers of Catiline Contrasted with the Defenders of the State.

XI. 24. O bellum magno opere pertimescendum, cum hanc sit habiturus Catilina scortorum cohortem praetoriam! Instruite nunc, Quirites, contra has tam praeceltas Catilinae copias vestra praedia vestrosque exercitus. Et primum gladiatori illi confecto et saucio consules imperatoresque vestros opponite; deinde contra illam naufragorum ejectam ac debilitatam manum florem totius Italiae ac robur educite. Jam vero urbes coloniarum ac municipiorum respondebunt Catilinae tumulis silvestribus. Neque ego ceteras copias, ornamenta, praesidia vestra cum illius latronis inopia atque egestate conferre debo. 25. Sed si, omissis his rebus, quibus nos suppeditamar, eget ille, — senatu, equitibus Romanis, urbe, aerario, vectigalibus, cuncta Italia, provinciis omnibus, exteris nationibus,—si, his rebus omissis, causas ipsas quae inter se confungunt contendere velimus, ex eo ipso quam valde illi jaceant intellegere possumus. Ex hac enim parte pudor pugnat, illinc petulantia; hinc pudicitia, illinc stuprum; hinc fides, illinc fraudatio; hinc pietas, illinc seclus; hinc constantia, illinc furor; hinc honestas, illinc turpitudo; hinc continentia, illinc libido; denique aequitas, temperantia, fortitudo, prudentia, [virtutes omnes,] certant cum iniquitate, luxuria, ignavia, temeritate [, cum vitiiis omnibus]; postremo copia cum egestate, bona ratio cum perdita, mens sana cum amentia, bona denique spes cum omnium rerum desperatione configit. In ejus modi certamine ac proelio, nonne, etiam si hominum studia deficiant, di ipsi immortales cogant ab his praeclarissimis virtutibus tot et tanta vitia superari?

Citizens Need not Fear: the Consul will Protect the City.

XII. 26. Quae cum ita sint, Quirites, vos, quem ad modum jam antea, vestra tecta custodiis vigiliisque defendite: mihi, ut urbi sine vestro motu ac sine ullo tumultu satis esset prae widi, consultum atque provisum est. Coloni omnes municipesque vestri, certiores a me facti de hac nocturna excursione Catilinae, facile urbis suas finisque defendent. Gladiatores, quam sibi ille manum certissimam fore putavit,—quamquam animo meliore sunt quam pars patriciorum,—potestate tamen nostra continebuntur. Q. Metellus, quem ego hoc prospeciens in agrum Gallicum Picenumque praemisi, aut opprimet hominem, aut omnis ejus motus conatusque prohibebit. Reliquis autem de rebus constituendis, maturandis, agendis, jam ad senatum referemus, quem vocari videtis.

The Conspirators Warned.

27. Nunc illos qui in urbe remanserunt, atque adeo qui contra urbis salutem omniumque vestrum in urbe a Catilina relictì sunt, quamquam sunt hostes, tamen, quìa sunt cives, monitos etiam atque etiam volo. Mea lenitas si cui adhuc solutior visa est, hoc exspectavit, ut id quod latebat erumpere. Quod reliquum est, jam non possum oblivisci meam hanc esse patriam, me horum esse consulem, mihi aut cum his vivendum aut pro his esse moriendum. Nullus est portis custos, nullus insidiator viae: si qui exire volunt, conivere possum. Qui vero se in urbe commoverit, cujus ego non modo factum, sed inceptum ullum conatumve contra patriam deprehendero, sentiet in hac urbe esse consules vigilantis, esse egregios magistratus, esse fortem senatum, esse arma, esse carcerem, quem vindicem nefariorum ac manifestorum scelerum majores nostri esse voluerunt.
Second Oration against Catiline.

There shall be No Disturbance.

XIII. 28. Atque haec omnia sic agentur, Quirites, ut maximae res minimo motu, pericula summa nullo tumultu, bellum intestine ac domesticum post hominum memoriam crudelissimum et maximum, me uno togato duce et imperatore sedetur. Quod ego sic administrabo, Quirites, ut, si ullo modo fieri poterit, ne improbus quidem quisquam in hac urbe poenam sui sceleris sufferat. Sed si vis manifestae audaciae, si impendens patriae pericum me necessario de hac animi lenitate deduxerit, illud profecto perficiam, quod in tanto et tam insidioso bello vix optandum videtur, ut neque bonus quisquam intereat, paucorumque poena vos omnes salvi esse possitis.

The People may Trust in the Immortal Gods.

29. Quae quidem ego neque mea prudentia neque humanis consiliiis fretus polliceor vobis, Quirites, sed multis et non dubiiis deorum immortalium significationibus, quibus ego ducibus in hanc spem sententiamque sum ingressus; qui jam non procul, ut quondam solebant, ab externo hoste 30 atque longinquus, sed hic praesentes suo numine atque auxilio sua templaque urbis tecta defendunt. Quos vos, Quirites, precari, venerari, implorare debitis, ut, quam urbem pulcherrimam florentissimamque esse voluerunt, hanc, omnibus hostium copiis terra marique superatis, a perditissimorum civium nefario scelere defendant.

III. HOW THE CONSPIRACY WAS SUPPRESSED.

(In L. Catilinam Oratio III.)

Before the People, Dec. 3.

Now that Catiline had been driven into open war, the conspiracy within the city was in the hands of utterly incompetent men. Lentulus, who claimed the lead by virtue of his consular rank, was vain, pompous, and inefficient. The next in rank, Cathegus, was energetic enough, but rash and bloodthirsty. The consul easily kept the run of events, and at last succeeded in getting the conspirators to commit themselves in writing, when he had no difficulty in arresting them and securing the documents. How this was accomplished is told in the third oration.

The Citizens Congratulated on their Deliverance.

REM PUBLICAM, Quirites, vitamque omnium vestrum, bona, fortunas, conjuges liberosque vestrors, atque hoc domicilium clarissimi imperi, fortunatissimam pulcherrimamque urbem, hodierno die deorum immortalium summo erga vos amore, laboribus, consiliis, periculis meis, e flamma atque ferro ac paene ex faucibus fati ereptam et vobis conservatam ac restitutam videtis. 2. Et si non minus nobis jucundi atque inlustres sunt ei dies quibus conservamur, quam illi quibus nascimur,—quod salutis certa laetitia est, nascendi incerta condicio; et quod sine sensu nascimur, cum voluptate servamur,—profecto, quoniam illum qui hanc urbem condidit ad deos immortalis benevolentia famaque sustulimus, esse apud vos posterosque vestros in honore debeat is qui eandem hanc urbem conditam amplificatamque servavit. Nam toti urbi, templis, delubris, tectis ac moenibus subjectos prope jam ignis circundatosque restinximus; idemque gladios in rem publicam destrictos rettudimus, mucronesque eorum a jugulis vestris dejecimus. 3. Quae quoniam in senatu inlustrata, patefacta, comperta sunt per me, vobis jam exponam breviter, Quirites, ut et quanta et qua ratione investigata et comprehensa sint, vos qui ignoratis et exspectatis scire possitis.

The Story of the Arrest.

Principio, ut Catilina paucis ante diebus erupit ex urbe, cum sceleris sui socios, hujusce nefarii belli acerrimos duces, Romae reliquisset, semper vigilavi et providi, Quirites, quem ad modum in tantis et tam absconditis insidiis salvi esse possemus. II. Nam tum, cum ex urbe Catilinam eiciebam, — non enim jam vereor hujus verbi invidiam, cum illa magis sit timenda, quod vivus exierit, — sed tum, cum illum exterminari volebam, aut reliquam conjuratorum manum simul exituram, aut eos qui restitissent infirmos sine illo ac debilis fore putabam. 4. Atque ego, ut vidi quos maximon furere et scelere esse inflammatos sciebam eos nobiscum esse, et Romae remansisse, in eo omnis dies noctisque consumpsi, ut quid agerent, quid molirentur, sentirem ac viderem; ut, quoniam auribus vestris propter incredibilem magnitudinem sceleris minorem fidem faceret oratio mea, rem ita comprehenderem, ut tum demum animis saluti vestrae provideretis, cum oculis maleficium ipsum videretis. Itaque, ut comperi legatos Allobrogum, belli Transalpini et tumultus Gallici excitandi causa, a P. Lentulo esse sollicitudes, eosque in Galliam ad suos civis, eodemque itinere cum litteris mandatisque ad Catilinam esse missos, comitemque eis adjunctum esse T. Volturcium, atque huic ad Catilinam esse datas litteras, facultatem mihi oblatam putavi, ut—quod erat difficillimum, quodque ego semper optabam ab dis immortalibus—tota res non solum a me, sed etiam a senatu et a vobis manifesto deprehenderetur.

At the Mulvian Bridge.

5. Itaque hesterno die L. Flaccum et C. Pomptinum praetores, fortissimos atque amantissimos rei publicae viros, ad me vocavi; rem exposui, quid fieri placeret ostendi. Illi autem, qui omnia de re publica praeclara atque egregia sentirent, sine recusatione ac sine ulla mora negotium suscepterunt, et, cum advesperasceret, occulte ad pontem Mulvium pervenerunt, atque ibi in proximis villis ita bipartito fuerunt, ut Tiberis inter eos et pons interesset. Eodem autem et ipsi sine cujusquam suspicione multos fortis viros eduxerant, et ego ex praefectura Reatina compluris deflectos adules-
Third Oration against Catiline.

centis, quorum opera utor adsidue in re publica praesidio, cum gladiis miseram. 6. Interim, tertia fere vigilia exacta, cum jam pontem Mulvium magno comitatu legati Allobrogum ingredi inciperent, unaque Volturcius, fit in eos impetus; educuntur et ab illis gladii et a nostris. Res praetoribus erat nota solis, ignorabatur a ceteris. 5

The Conspirators Arrested.

III. Tum, interventu Pomptini atque Flacci, pugna [quae erat commissa] sedatur. Litterae, quaecumque erant in eo comitatu, integris signis praetoribus traduntur; ipsi comprehensi ad me, cum jam dilucesceret, deducuntur. Atque horum omnium scelerum improbissimum machinatorem Cimbrum Gabinium statim ad me, nihil dum suspicantem, vocavi; deinde item arcessitus est L. Statilius, et post eum C. Cethegus; tardissime autem Lentulus venit, credo quod in litteris dandis praeter consuetudinem proxima nocte vigilarat. 7. Cum summis ac clarissimis hujus civitatis viris (qui audita re frequentes ad me mane convenerant) litteras a me prius aperiri quam ad senatum deferrem placeret,—ne, si nihil esset inventum, temere a me tantus tumultus injectus civitati videretur,—negavi me esse facturum, ut de periculo publico non ad consilium publicum rem integrum deferrem. Etenim, Quirites, si ea quae erant ad me delata reperta non essent, tamen ego non arbitrabar, in tantis rei publicae periculis, esse mihi nimiam diligentiam pertimescendam. Senatum frequentem celeriter, ut vidistis, coegi. 25

The Conspirators before the Senate.

IV. Introduxi Volturciun sine Gallis: fidem publicam jussu senatus dedi: hortatus sum, ut ea quae sciret sine timore indicaret. Tum ille dixit, cum vix se ex magnò 5 timore recreasset, ab Lentulo se habere ad Catilinam man-data et litteras, ut servorum praesidio uteretur, ut ad urbem quam primum cum exercitu accederet: id autem eo consilio, ut, cum urbem ex omnibus partibus quem ad modum descriptum distributumque erat incidissent, caedemque infinitam civium fecissent, praeesto esset ille, qui et fugientis exciperet, et se cum his urbanis ducibus conjungeret.
9. Introducti autem Galli jus jurandum sibi et litteras ab 10 Lentulo, Cethego, Statilio ad suam gentem data esse dixerunt, atque ita sibi ab his et a L. Cassio esse praescriptum, ut equitatum in Italiam quam primum mitterent; pedestris sibi copias non defuturae. Lentulum autem sibi confirmasse, ex fatis Sibyllinis haruspicumque responsis, se esse tertium 15 illum Cornelium, ad quem regnum hujus urbis atque imperiustum pervenire esset necesse; Cinnam ante se et Sullam fuisset; eundemque dixisse fatalem hunc annum esse ad interitum hujus urbis atque imperi, qui esset annus decimus post virginum absolutionem, post Capitoli autem incensio-20 nem vicesimus. 10. Hanc autem Cethego cum ceteris controv-ersiam fuisse dixerunt, quod Lentulo et aliis Saturnalibus caedem fieri atque urbem incendi placeret, Cethego nimium id longum videretur.

The Letters Produced.

V. Ac ne longum sit, Quirites, tabellas proferri jussimus, 25 quae a quoque dicebantur datae. Primum ostendimus Cethe-Erat scriptum ipsius manu Allobrogum senatui et populo, sese quae eorum legatis confirmasset facturum esse; orare ut item illi facerent quae sibi eorum legati recepissent.
30 Tum Cethegus, qui paulo ante aliquud tamen de gladiis ac sicis, quae apud ipsum erant deprehensa, respondisset dixissetque se semper bonorum ferramentorum studiosum fuisse, recitatis litteris debilitatus atque abjectus conscientia repente conticuit. Introductus est Statilius: cognovit et signum et manum suam. Recitatae sunt tabellae in eandem fere sententiam: confessus est. Tum ostendi tabellas Lentulo, et quaeisivi cognosceretne signum. Adnuit. 'Est vero,' inquam, 'notum quidem signum, imago avi tui, clarissimi viri, qui amavit unice patriam et civis suis; quae quidem te a tanto scelere etiam muta revocare debuit.' 11. Leguntur eadem ratione ad senatum Allobrogum populumque litterae.

Lentulus Confessus.

Si quid de his rebus dicere velit, feci potestatem. Atque ille primo quidem negavit; post autem aliquanto, toto jam indicio exposito atque edito, surrexit; quaesivit a Gallis quid sibi esset cum eis, quam ob rem domum suam venissent, itemque a Volturcio. Qui cum illi breviter constanterque respondissent, per quem ad eum quotiesque venissent, quaesissentque ab eo nihilne secum esset de fatis Sibyllinis locutus, tum ille subito; scelere demens, quanta conscientiae vis esset ostendit. Nam cum id posset infitiari, repente praeter opinionem omnium confessus est. Ita eum non modo ingenium illud et dicendi exercitatio, qua semper valuit, sed etiam propter vim sceleris manifesti atque deprehensi impudentia, qua superabat omnis, improbitasque defecit.

VI. Indiciis expositis atque editis, senatum consuli de summa re publica quid fieri placeret. Dictae sunt a principibus acerrimae ac fortissimae sententiae, quas senatus sine ulla varietate est secutus. Et quoniam nondum est perscriptum senatus consultum, ex memoria vobis, Quirites, quid senatus censuerit exponam. 14. Primum mihi gratiae verbis amplissimis aguntur, quod virtute, consilio, providentia mea res publica maximis periculis sit liberata: deinde L. Flaccus et C. Pomptinus praetores, quod eorum opera forti fidelique usus essem, merito ac jure laudantur; atque etiam viro fortī, conlegae meo, 5 laus impertitur, quod eos qui hujus conjurationis participes fuisset a suis et a rei publicae consiliis removisset. Atque ita censuerunt, ut P. Lentulus, cum se praetura abdicasset, in custodiam traderetur; itemque ut C. Cethegus, L. Statilius, P. Gabinius, qui omnes praesentes erant, in custodiam traderentur; atque idem hoc decretum est in L. Cassium, qui sibi procurationem incendendae urbis depoposcerat, in M. Ceparium, cui ad sollicitandos pastores Apuliam attributam esse erat indicatum, in P. Furium, qui est ex eius colonis quos Faesulas L. Sulla deduxit, in Q. Annium Chilonem, qui una cum hoc Furio semper erat in hac Allobrogum sollicitatione versatus, in P. Umbrenum, libertinum hominem, a quo primum Gallos ad Gabinium perduxerat esse constabat. Atque ea lenitate senatus est usus, Qui rites, ut ex tanta conjuratione, tantaque hac multitudine domesticorum hostium, novem hominum perditissimorum poena re publica conservata, reliquorum mentis sanari posse arbitraretur. 20 Atque etiam supplicatio dis immortalibus pro singulari eorum merito meo nomine decreta est, quod mihi primum post hanc urbem conditam togato contigit. Et his verbis decretae est:

quo urbem incendiis, caede civis, Italiam bello liberassem. Quae supplicatio si cum ceteris conferratur, hoc interest, quod ceterae bene gesta, haec una conservata re publica constituta est. Atque illud, quod faciendum primum fuit, factum atque transactum est. Nam P. Lentulus — quamquam patefactis indicis, confessionibus suis, judicio senatus non modo praetoris jus, verum etiam civis amiserat — tamen magistratu se abdicavit, ut, quae religio C. Mario, clarissimo viro, non fuerat, quo minus C. Glaucliam, de quo nihil nominatim erat decretum, praetorem occideret, ea nos religionem in privato P. Lentulo puniendo liberaremur.
Orations of Cicero.

The Conspiracy now Thwarted.

VII. 16. Nunc quoniam, Quirites, consceleratissimi perculesissimique belli nefarios duces captos jam et comprehendos tenetis, existimare debetis omnis Catilinae copias, omnis spes atque opes, his depulsis urbis periculis, consciisse. Quem quidem ego cum ex urbe pellebam, hoc providebam animo, Quirites,—remoto Catilina, non mihi esse P. Lentuli somnum, nec L. Cassi adipes, nec C. Cethegi furiosam temeritatem pertimescendam.

Character of Catiline.

Ille erat unus timendus ex istis omnibus, sed tam diu, urbis moenibus continebatur. Omnia norat, omnium aditus tenebat: appellare, temptare, sollicitare poterat, audirebat: erat ei consilium ad facinus aptum, consilio autem neque manus neque lingua deerrat. Jam ad certas res conficiendas certos homines delectos ac descriptos habebat. Neque vero, cum aliquid mandarat, confectum putabat: nihil erat quod non ipse obiret, occurreret, vigilaret, laboraret. Frigus, sitim, famem, ferre poterat. 17. Hunc ego hominem tam acri, tam audacem, tam paratum, tam callidum, tam in scelere vigilantem, tam in perditis rebus diligentem, nisi ex domesticis insidiis in castrense latrocinium compulsisset, —dicam id quod sentio, Quirites,—non facile hanc tantam molestiam a cervicibus vestris depulissem. Non ille nobis Saturnalia constituisset, neque tanto ante exsili ac fati diem rei publicae denuntiaviisset; neque com- misisset, ut signum, ut litterae suae testes manifesti sceleris deprehenderentur. Quae nunc illo absente sic gesta sunt, ut nullum in privata domo furtum umquam sit tam palam inventum, quam haec tanta in re publica conjuratio manifesto inventa atque deprehensa est. Quod si Catilina in urbe ad hanc diem remansisset, quamquam, quoad fuit, omnibus ejus consiliis occurri atque obstiti, tamen, ut levis-sume dicam, dimicandum nobis cum illo fuisset; neque nos umquam, cum ille in urbē hostis esset, tantis periculis rem publicam tanta pace, tanto otio, tanto silentio liberassmus.

Thanks Due to the Gods.

VIII. 18. Quamquam haec omnia, Quirites, ita sunt a me administrata, ut deorum immortalium nutu atque consilio et gesta et provisa esse videantur; idque cum conjectura consequi possimus, quod vix videtur humani consili antarum rerum gubernatio esse potuisse; fum vero ita paesentes his temporibus opem et auxilium nobis tulerunt, ut eos paene oculis videre possemus. Nam ut illa omittam, —visas nocturno tempore ab occidente faces, ardoremque caeli, ut fulminum jactus, ut terrae motus relinquam, ut omittam cetera, quae tam multa nobis consulibus facta sunt, ut haec, quae nunc sunt, canere di immortalis viderentur,
—hoc certe, quod sum dicturus, neque praeterrum quod
evere relinquendum neque relinquendum est.

Signs and Omens.

19. Nam profecto memoria tenitis, Cotta et Torquato consulibus, compluris in Capitolio res de caelo esse per-cussas, cum et simulacra deorum depulsa sunt, et statuae veterum hominum dejectae, et legum aera liquefacta: tactus est etiam ille qui hanc urbem condidit Romulus, quem inauratun in Capitolio, parvum atque lactentem, uberibus lupinis inhabitantem, fuisset meministis. Quo quidem tempore cum haruspices ex tota Etruria convenissent, caedes atque incendia et legum interitum et bellum civile ac domesticum, et totius urbis atque imperi occasum appropinquare dixerunt, nisi di immortalis, omni ratione placati, suo numine prope fata ipsa flexissent. 20. Itaque illorum responsis tum et ludi per decem dies facti sunt, neque res ulla quae ad placandos deos pertinseret praetermissa est; idemque jusserunt simulacrum Jovis facere majus, et in excelso conlocare, et (contra atque antea fuerat) ad orientem conver-tere; ac se sperare dixerunt, si illud signum, quod videtis, 5 solis ortum et forum curiamque conspiceret, fore ut ea con-silia, quae clam essent inita contra salutem urbis atque imperi, inlustrarentur, ut a senatu populoque Romano perspici possent. Atque [illud signum] conlocandum consules illi locaverunt; sed tanta fuit operis tarditas, ut neque 10 superioribus consulibus, neque nobis ante hodiernum diem, conlocaretur.

Jupiter Watches over the City.

IX. 21. Hic quis potest esse tam aversus a vero, tam praeceps, tam mente captus, qui neget haec omnia quae videmus, praecipueque hanc urbem, deorum immortalium 15 nutu ac potestate administrari? Etenim cum esset ita responsum, caedes, incendia, interitum rei publicae com-parari, et ea per civis, — quae tum propter magnitudinem scelerum non nullis incredibilia videbantur, — ea non modo cogitata a nefariis civibus, verum etiam suscepta esse sen-20 sistis. Illud vero nonne ita praesens est, ut nutu Jovis Optimi Maximi factum esse videatur, ut, cum hodierno die mane per forum meo jussu et conjurati et eorum indices in aedem Concordiae ducerentur, eo ipso tempore signum sta-tueretur? quo conlocato atque ad vos senatumque converso, 25 omnia [et senatus et vos] quae erant cogitata contra salu-tem omnium, inlustrata et patefacta vidistis. 22. Quo etiam majore sunt isti odio supplicioque digni, qui non solum vestris domiciliis atque tectis, sed etiam deorum templis atque delubris sunt funestos ac nefarios ignis inferre conati.
30 Quibus ego si me restitisse dicam, nimium mihi sumam, et non sim ferendus. Ille, ille Juppiter restitit: ille Capito-lium, ille haec templa, ille cunctam urbem, ille vos omnis salvos esse voluit. Dis ego immortalibus ducibus hanc mentem, Quirites, voluntatemque suscepi, atque ad haec tanta indicia pervenii.\(V\)am vero \(\text{illa Allobrogum sollicitatio}\) ab Lentulo ceterisque domesticiis hostibus tam dementer tanta \(\text{res creditae et ignotis et barbaris [commissae litterae]}\) numquam essent profecto, nisi ab dis immortalibus huic tantae audaciae consilium esset ereptum. Quid vero? ut homines Galli, ex civitate male pacata, quae gens una restat quae bellum populo Romano facere posse et non nolle videatur, spem imperi ac rerum maximarum ul tro sibi a patriciis hominibus oblatam neglegèrent, vestramque salu tem suis opibus anteponerent, id non divinitus esse factum putatis? praesertim qui nos non pugnando, sed tacendo superare potuerint?

Citizens Exhorted to Thanksgiving.

X. 23. Quam ob rem, Quirites, quoniam ad omnia pulvinaria supplicatio decreta est, celebratote illos dies cum \(\text{conjugibus ac libris vestris. Nam multi saepe honores dis immortalibus justi habiti sunt ac debiti, sed profecto justiores numquam. Erup} \)t enim estis ex crudelissimo ac miserrimo interitu; erupti sine caede, sine sanguine, sine exercitu, sine dimicatione. Togati me uno togato duce et \(\text{imperatore vicistis. 24. Etenim recordamini, Quirites, omnis civilis dissensiones: non solum eas quas audistis, sed eas quas vosmet ipsi meministis atque vidistis. L. Sulla P. Sulpicium oppressit; [eject in urbe]}\) C. Marium, custodem hujus urbis, multosque fortis viros partim eject ex civitate, \(25\) partim interemitt. Cn. Octavius consul armis expulit ex urbe conlegam: omnis hic locus acervis corporum et civium sanguine redundavit. Superavit postea Cinna cum Mario: tum vero, clarissimis viris interfectis, lumina civitatis exstincta sunt. Ullus est hujus victoriae crudelitatem postea \(30\) Sulla: ne dici quidem opus est quanta diminutio civium, et quanta calamitate rei publicae. Dissensit M. Lepidus a clarissimo ac fortissimo viro Q. Catulo: attulit non tam ipsius interitus rei publicae luctum quam ceterorum. 25. Atque illae tamen omnes dissensiones erant ejus modi, quae non ad delendam, sed ad commutandam rem publicam pertinenter. Non illi nullam esse rem publicam, sed in ea quae esset, se esse principes; neque hanc urbem conflagrare, sed se in hac urbe florerre voluerunt. [Atque illae tamen omnes dissensiones, quarum nulla exitium rei publicae quasesivit, ejus modi fuerunt, ut non reconciliatione concordiae, sed internecione civium dijudicatae sint.] In hoc autem uno post hominum memoriam maximo crudelissimo-que bello, quale bellum nulla umquam barbaria cum sua gente gessit, quo in bello lex haec fuit a Lentulo, Catilina, Cethego, Cassio constituta, ut omnes, qui salva urbe salvi esse possent, in hostium numero ducerentur, ita me gessi, Quirites, ut salvi omnes conservaremini; et cum hostes vestri tantum civium superfuturum putassent, quantum infinitae caedi restitisset, tantum autem urbis, quantum flamma obire non potuisset, et urbem et civis integros incolumisque servavi.

Cicero Asks for No Reward.

XI. 26. Quibus pro tantis rebus, Quirites, nullum ego a vobis praemium virtutis, nullum insigne honoris, nullum monumentum laudis postulo, praeterquam hujus diei memoriam sempiternam. In animis ego vestris omnis triumphos meos, omnia ornamenta honoris, monumenta gloriae, laudis insignia condi et conlocari volo. Nihil me mutum potest delectare, nihil tacitum, nihil denique ejus modi, quod etiam minus digni adsequi possint. Memoria vestra, Quirites, res nostrae alentur, sermonibus crescent, litterarum monumentis inveterascent et conroborabuntur; eademque diem intellego, quam spero aeternam fore, propagatam esse et ad salutem urbis et ad memoriam consulatus mei; unoque tempore in hac re publica duos civis exstitisse, quorum alter finis vestri imperi non terrae, sed caeli regionibus terminaret, alter ejusdem imperi domicilium sedisque servaret.

He Relies on the Devotion of the Citizens.

XII. 27. Sed quoniam earum rerum quas ego gessi non eadem est fortuna atque condicio quae illorum qui externa bella gesserunt,—quod mihi cum eis vivendum est quos vici ac subegi, isti hostis aut interfecstos aut oppressos reliquerunt,—vestrum est, Quirites, si ceteris facta sua recte prosunt, mihi mea ne quando obsint providere. Mentes enim hominum audacissimorum sceleratae ac nefariae ne vobis nocere possent ego providi ; ne mihi noceant vestrum est providere. Quamquam, Quirites, mihi quidem ipsi nihil ab istis jam noceri potest. Magnum enim est in bonis praesidium, quod mihi in perpetuum comparatum est; magna in re publica dignitas, quae me semper tacita defendet; magna vis conscientiae. quam qui neglegunt, cum me violare volent, se [ipsi] indicabunt.
He has No Fear for the Future.

28. Est etiam nobis is animus, Quirites, ut non modo nullius audaciae cedamus, sed etiam omnis improbos ultrl semper lacessamus. Quod si omnis impetus domesticorum hostium, depulsus a vobis, se in me unum convertit, vobis erit videndum, Quirites, qua condicione posthac eos esse velitis, qui se pro salute vestra obtulerint invidiae periculisque omnibus: mihi quidem ipsi, quid est quod jam ad vitae fructum possit adquiri, cum praeertim neque in honore vestro, neque in gloria virtutis, quicquam videam altius, quo mihi libeat ascendere? 29. Illud profecto perficiam, Quirites, ut ea quae gessi in consulatu privatus tuear atque ornem: ut si qua est invidia conservanda re publica suspecta, laedat invidos, mihi valeat ad gloriam. Denique ita me in re publica tractabo, ut meminerim semper quae gesserim. curremque ut ea virtute, non caso gesta esse videantur.

Fourth Oration against Catiline.

The Assembly Dismissed.

Vos, Quirites, quioniam jam nox est, venerati Jovem, illum custodem hujus urbis ac vestrum, in vestra tecta discedite; et ea, quamquam jam est periculum depulsum, tamen aeque ac priore nocte custodiis vigiliisque defendite. Id ne vobis diutius faciendum sit, atque ut in perpetua pace esse possitis, providebo.

IV. SENTENCE OF THE CONSPIRATORS.

(In L. Catilinam Oratio IV.)

IN THE SENATE, DEC. 5.

Two days later the Senate was convened, to determine what was to be done with the prisoners. It was a fundamental principle of the Roman constitution that no citizen should be put to death without the right of appeal to the people. Against the view of Cæsar, which favored perpetual confinement, Cicero urged that, by the fact of taking up arms against the Republic, the conspirators had forfeited their citizenship, and that therefore the law did not protect them. This view prevailed, and the conspirators—Lentulus, Cethegus, Statilius, Gabinius, and Cæparius—were strangled by the public executioners.

Solicitude of the Senate for Cicero.

VIDEO, patres conscripti, in me omnium vestrum ora atque oculos esse conversos. Video vos non solum de vestro ac rei publicae, verum etiam, si id depulsum sit, de meo periculo esse sollicitos. Est mihi jucunda in malis et grata in dolore vestra erga me voluntas: sed eam, per deos immortalis, deponite; atque oblii salutis meae, de vobis ac de vestris liberis cogitate. Mihi si haec condicio consulatus data est, ut omnis acerbitates, omnis dolores cruciatusque perferrem, feram non solum fortiter, verum etiam libenter, dum modo meis laboribus vobis popoloque Romano dignitas salusque pariatur. 2. Ego sum ille consul, patres conscripti, cui non forum, in quo omnis aequitas continetur, non campus consularibus auspiciis consecratus, non curia, sum-mum auxilium omnium gentium, non domus, commune perfugium, non lectus ad quietem datus, non denique haec sedes honoris [sella curulis] umquam vacua mortis periculo atque insidiis fuit. Ego multa tacui, multa pertuli, multa concessi, multa meo quodam dolore in vestro timore sanavi.
Nunc si hunc exitum consulatus mei 'di immortales esse voluerunt, ut vos populumque Romanum ex caede miserrima, conjuges liberosque vestros virginesque Vestalis ex acerbissima vexatione, templa atque delubra, hanc pulcher-rimam patriam omnium nostrum ex foedissima flamma, totam Itiam ex bello et vastitate eriperem, quaecumque mihi uni proponetur fortuna, subeatur. Etenim si P. Lentu-lus suum nomen, inductus a vatibus, fatale ad perniciem rei publicae fore putavit, cur ego non laeter meum consulatum ad salutem populi Romani prope fatalem exstitisse?

They Need not Fear for him.

II. 3. Qua re, patres conscripti, consulite vobis, prospicite patriae, conservate vos, conjuges, liberos fortunasque vestras, populi Romani nomen salutemque defendite: mihi parcere ac de me cogitare desinete. Nam primum debeo sperare omnis deos, qui huic urbi praesident, pro eo mihi ac mereor relatos esse gratiam; deinde, si quid obtigerit, aequo animo paratoque moriar. Nam neque turpis mors forti viro potest accidere, neque immatura consulari, nec misera sapienti. Nec tamen ego sum ille ferreus, qui fratri s carissimi atque amantissimi praequentis maerore non movear, horumque omnium lacrimis, a quibus me circumcessum videtis. Neque meam mentem non domum saepe revocat exanimata uxor, et abjecta metu filia, et parvolus filius, Quem mihi videtur amplecti res publica tamquam obsidem consulatus mei, neque ille, qui exspectans hujus exitum diei adstat in conspectu meo gener. Moveor his rebus omnibus, sed in eam partem, uti salvi sint vobiscum omnes, etiam si me vis aliqua oppresserit, potius quam et illi et nos una rei publicae peste pereamus.

4. Qua re, patres conscripti, incumbite ad salutem rei publicae, circumspicite omnis procellas, quae impendent nisi providetis. Non Ti. Gracchus, quod iterum tribunus plebis fieri voluit, non C. Gracchus, quod agrarios concitare conatus est, non L. Saturninus, quod C. Memmius occidit, in discriminem aliquod atque in vestrae severitatis judicium adducitur: tenentur ei qui ad urbis incendium, ad vestrarn omnium caedem, ad Catilinam accipiendum, Romae restituerunt; tenentur litterae, signa, manus, denique unius cuiusque confessio; sollicitantur Allobroges, servitia excitantur, Catilina accessit; id est initium consilium, ut interfectis omnibus nemo ne ad deplorandum quidem populi Romani nomen atque ad lamentandum tanti imperi calamitatem relinquatur.

How shall the Conspirators be Punished?

III. 5. Haec omnia indices detulerunt, rei confessi sunt, vos multis jam judiciis judicavistis: primum quod mihi gratias egistis singularibus verbis, et mea virtute atque diligentia perditorum hominum conjurationem patefactam esse decrevistis; deinde quod P. Lentulum se abdicare praetura coégistis; tum quod eum et ceteros, de quibus judicasti, in custodiam dandos censuistis; maximeque quod meo nomine supplicationem decretivistis, qui honos togato habitus ante me est nemini; postremo hesterno die praemia legatis Allobrogum Titoque Volturcio dedistis amplissima. Quae sunt omnia ejus modi, ut ei qui in custodiarn nominatim dati sunt sine ullæ dubitatione a vobis damnati esse videantur.

Silanus Proposes Death; Caesar, Imprisonment.

IV. 7. Video adhuc duas esse sententias: unam D. Silani, qui censet eos, qui haec delere conati sunt, morte esse multandos; alteram C. Caesaris, qui mortis poenam removet, ceterorum suppliciorum omnis acerbitates amplecitur. Uterque et pro sua dignitate et pro rerum magnitudine in summa severitate versatur. Alter eos qui nos omnis, [qui populum Romanum,] vita privare conati sunt, qui delere imperium, qui populi Romani nomen extingue, punctum temporis frui vita et hoc communi spiritu non putat oportere; atque hoc genus poenae saepe in improbos civis in hac re publica esse usurpatum recordatur. Alter intellegit mortem ab dis immortalibus non esse supplici causa constitutam, sed aut necessitatem naturae, aut laborum ac misericordiam quietem. Itaque eam sapientes numquam in-viti, fortis saepe etiam libenter oppetiverunt. Vincula vero et ea semipiterna certe ad singularem poenam nefarii sceleris inventa sunt. Municipiiis dispersitiri jubet. Habere videtur ista res iniquitatem si imperare velis, difficultatem si rogare. Decernatur tamen, si placet. 8. Ego enim suscipiam, et (ut spero) reperiam qui id quod salutis omnium causa statueritis, non putent esse suae dignitatis recusare. Adjungit gravem poenam municipibus, si quis eorum vincula ruperit: horribilis custodias circumdat, et dignas scelere hominum perditorum; sancit ne quis eorum poenam quos condemnat, aut per senatum aut per populum, levare possit; eripit etiam spem, quae sola hominem in miseriis consolari solet; bona praeterea publicari jubet; vitam solam relinquit nefariis 10 hominibus, quam si eripuisset, multos uno dolores animi atque corporis et omnis scelerum poenas ademisset. Itaque, ut aliqua in vita formido improbis esset posita, apud inferos ejus modi quaedam illi antiqui supplicia impios constituta esse voluerunt, quod videlicet intellegebant, eis remotis, non 15 esse mortem ipsam pertimescendam.
Fourth Oration against Catiline.

Caesar's Proposition Discussed.

V. 9. Nunc, patres conscripti, ego mea video quid intersit. Si eritis seuti sententiam C. Caesaris, quoniam hanc is in re publica viam quae popularis habetur secutus est, fortasse minus erunt — hoc auctore et cognitore hujusce sententiae 20 — mihi populares impetus pertimescendi: sin illam alteram, nescio an amplius mihi negoti contrahatur. Sed tamemorum periculorum rationes utilitas rei publicae vincat. Habemus enim a Caesare, sicut ipsius dignitas et majorum ejus amplitudo postulabat, sententiam tamquam obsidem 25 perpetuae in rem publicam voluntatis. Intellectum est quid interesset inter levitatem contionatorum et animum vere popularem, saluti populi consulentem. 10. Video de istis, qui se popularis haberis volunt, abesse non neminem, ne de capite videlicet civium Romanorum sententiam ferat. At 30 is et nuidius tertius in custodiam civis Romanos dedit, et supplicationem mihi decrevit, et indices hesterno die maxi-mis praemiis adfecit. Jam hoc nemini dubium est, qui reo custodiam, quae raeitor gratulationem, indici praemium decrevit, quid de tota re et causa judicarit. \ At vero C. Caesar intellegit legem Semproniam esse de civibus Romanis con-stitutam; qui autem rei publicae sit hostis, eum civem nullo modo esse posse; denique ipsum latorem Semproniae legis jussu populi poenas rei publicae dependisse. Idem ipsum Lentulum, largitorem et prodigum, non putat, cum de pernicie populi Romani, exitio hujus urbis tam acerbe, tam crudeliter cogitarit, etiam appellari posse popularem. Ita-que homo mitissimus atque lenissimus non dubitat P. Lentulum aeternis tenebris vinculisque mandare, et sancit in posterum, ne quis hujus supplicio levando se jactare, et in pernicem populi Romani posthac popularis esse possit:
adjungit etiam publicationem bonorum, ut omnis animi cru-ciator et corporis etiam egestas ac mendicitas consequatur.

Death None too Severe a Penalty.

VI. 11. Quam ob rem, sive hoc statueritis, dederitis mihi comitem ad contionem populo carum atque jucundum;
sive Silani sententiam sequi malueritis, facile me [atque vos] crudelitatis vituperatione exsolveritis, atque obtinebo eam multo leniorem fuisse. Quamquam, patres conscripti, quae potest esse in tanti sceleris immanitae punienda cru-delitas? Ego enim de meo sensu judico. Nam ita mihi salva re publica vobiscum perfrui liceat, ut ego, quod in hac causa vehementior sum, non atrocitate animi moveor — quis est enim me mitior? — sed singulari quadam humanitate et misericordia. Videor enim mihi videre hanc urbem, lucem orbis terrarum atque arcem omnium gentium, subito uno incendio coincidentem. Cerno animo sepulta in patria miseros atque insepultos acervos civium. Versatur mihi ante oculos aspectus Cethegi, et furor in vestra caede bacchantis.
12. Cum vero mihi proposui regnamento Lentulum, sicut ipse
Fourth Oration against Catiline.

ex fatis se sperasse confessus est, purpuratum esse huic Gabinium, cum exercitu venisse Catilinam, tum lamentationem matrum familias, tum fugam virginum atque puerorum ac vexationem virginum Vestalium perhorresco; et quia mihi vehementer haec videntur misera atque miseranda, idcirco in eos qui ea perficere voluerunt me severum vehementemque praebeo. Etenim quaero, si quis pater familias, liberas suis a servo interfectis, uxore occisa, incensa domo, supplicium de servo non quam acerbissimum sumpserit, utrum is clemens ac misericors, an inhumanissimus et cruelissimus esse videatur? Mihi vero importunus ac ferreus, qui non dolore et cruciato nocentis suum dolorem cruciaturumque lenierit. Sic nos in his hominibus, — qui nos, qui conjuges, qui liberos nostros trucidare voluerunt; qui singulas unius cujusque nostrum domos et hoc universum rei publicae domicilium delere conati sunt; qui id egerunt, ut gentem Allobrogum in vestigiis hujus urbis atque in cinere deflagrati imperi conlocarent, — si vehementissimi fuerimus, misericordes habebimus: sin remissiores esse voluerimus, summæ nobis crudelitatis in patriæ civiumque pernicie fama subeunda est.

Opinion of L. Caesar.

13. Nisi vero cuipiam L. Caesar, vir fortissimus et amantissimus rei publicae, crudelior nudiur tertius visus est, cum sororis suae, feminæa lectissimæ, virum praesentem et audiimentem vita privandum esse dixit, cum avum suum jussu consulis interfectum, filiumque ejus impuberem, legatum a patre missum, in carcere necatum esse dixit. Quorum quod simile factum? quod initum delendæ rei publicæ consilium? Largitionis voluntas tum in re publica versata est, et partium quaedam contentio. Atque eo tempore hujus avus Lentuli, vir clarissimus, armatus Gracchum est persecutus. Ille etiam grave tum volnus accepit, ne quid de summa re publica deminueretur: hic ad evertenda rei publicae fundamenta Gallos arcessit, servitia concitat, Catilinam vocat, attribuit nos trucidandos Cethego, et ceteros civis interficiendos Gabinio, urbem inflammandam Cassio, totam Italiam vastandum diripiendamque Catilinae. Vereamini, censeo, ne in hoc scelere tam immani ac nefando nimis aliquid severe statuisse videamini: multo magis est verendum ne remissione poenae crudeles in patriam, quam ne severitate animadversionis nimis vehementes in acerbissimos hostis, fuisse videamur.

Severe Measures will be Supported by the People.

VII. 14. Sed ea quae exaudio, patres conscripti, dissimulare non possum. Jaciuntur enim voces, quae perveniunt ad auris meas, eorum qui vereri videntur ut habeam satis praesidi ad ea quae vos statueritis hodierno die transigunda. Omnia et provisa et parata et constituta sunt, patres conscripti, cum mea summa cura atque diligentia, tum multo etiam majore populi Romani ad summum imperium retnendum et ad communis fortunas conservandas voluntate. Omnes adsunt omnium ordinum homines, omnium denique aetatum: plenum est forum, plena tempia circum forum, pleni omnes aditus hujus templi ac loci. Causa est enim post urbem conditam haec inventa sola, in qua omnes sintrem unum atque idem, praeter eos qui, cum sibi viderent esse pereundum, cum omnibus potent quam soli perire volunt. 15. Hosce ego homines excipio et secerno libenter, neque in improborum civium, sed in acerbissimorum hostium numero habendos puto.

All Orders in the State United.

Ceteri vero, di immortales! qua frequentia, quo studio, qua virtute ad communem salutem dignitatemque consentiunt! Quid ego hic equites Romanos commemorem? qui vobis ita summam ordinis consilique concedunt, ut vobiscum de amore rei publicae certent; quos ex multorum annorum dissensione hujus ordinis ad societatem concordiamque revocatos hodiernus dies vobiscum atque haec causa conjungit; quam si conjunctionem, in consulatu confirmatam meo, perpetum in re publica tenuerimus, confirmo vobis nullum posthac malum civile ac domesticum ad ullam rei publicae partem esse venturum. Pari studio defendundae rei publicae convenisse video tribunos aerarios, fortissimos viros; scribes item universos, quos cum casu hic dies ad aerarium frequentasset, video ab exspectatione sortis ad salutem communem esse conversos. 16. Omnis ingenuorum adest multitudo, etiam tenuissimorum. Quis est enim cui non haec templae, aspectus urbis, possessio libertatis, lux denique haec ipsa et [hoc] commune patriae solum, cum sit carum tum vero dulce atque jucundum?
Fourth Oration against Catiline.

The Humblest Citizens are Staunch.

VIII. Operaee pretium est, patres conscripti, libertinorum hominum studia cognoscare, qui, sua virtute fortunam hujus civitatis consecuti, hanc suam patriam judicant,—quam quidam hic nati, et summlo loco nati, non patriam suam sed urbem hostium esse judicaverunt. Sed quid ego hosce homines ordinesque commemoro, quos privatae fortunae, quos communis res publica, quos denique libertas, ea quae dulcissima est, ad salutem patriae defendendam excitavit? Servus est nemo, qui modo tolerabili condicione sit servitutis, qui non audaciam civium perhorrescat, qui non haec stare cupiat, qui non quantum audet et quantum potest conferat ad salutem voluntatis. 17. Qua re si quem vestrum forte commovet hoc, quod auditum est, lenonem quendam Lentuli concursare circum tabernas, preto sperare sollicitari posse animos egentium atque imperitorum,—est id quidem coeptum atque temptatum; sed nulli sunt inventi tam aut fortuna miseris aut voluntate perditi, qui non illum ipsum sellae atque operis et quaestus cotidiani locum, qui non cubile ac lectulum suum, qui denique non cursum hunc otiosum vitae suae salvum esse velint. Multo vero maxima 5 pars eorum qui in tabernis sunt, immo vero — id enim potius est dicendum — genus hoc universum, amantissimum est oti. Etenim omne instrumentum, omnis opera atque quaestus frequentia civium sustentatur, alitur otio: quorum si quaestus occlusis tabernis minui solet, quid tandem incensis futu-10 rum fuit?

The Senators Urged to Act Fearlessly.

18. Quae cum ita sint, patres conscripti, vobis populi Romani praesidia non desunt: vos ne populo Romano deesse videamini providete. IX. Habetis consulem ex plurimis periculis et insidiis atque ex media morte, non ad 15 vitam suam, sed ad salutem vestram reservatum. Omnes ordines ad conservandam rem publicam mente, voluntate, voce consentiunt. Obsessa facibus et telis impiae conjurationis vobis supplex manus tendit patria communis; vobis se, vobis vitam omnium civium, vobis arcem et Capitolium, vobis aras Penatium, vobis illum ignem Vestae sempiternum, vobis omnium deorum templum atque delubra, vobis muros atque urbis tecta commendat. Praeterea de vestra vita, de conjugum vestrarum atque liberorum anima, de fortunis omnium, de sedibus, de focis vestris, hodierno die vobis judicandum est. 19. Habetis ducem memorem vestri, oblitarum sui, quae non semper facultas datur: habetis omnis ordines, omnis homines, universum populum Romanum — id quod in civili causa hodierno die primum videmus — unum atque idem sentientem. Cogitate quantis laboribus fundatum imperium, quant claritate stabilitam libertatem, quant deorum benignitate auctas exageratasque fortunas, una nox paene delerit. Id ne umquam posthac non modo non confici, sed ne cogitari quidem possit a civibus, hodierno die providendum est. Atque haec non ut vos, qui mihi studio paene praecurritis, excitarem, locutus sum; sed ut mea vox, quae debet esse in re publica princeps, officio functa consulari videretur.
Fourth Oration against Catiline.

Cicero is Undismayed.

X. 20. Nunc, ante quam ad sententiam redeo, de me paucar dicam. Ego, quanta manus est conjuratorum, quam videtis esse permagnam, tantam me inimicorum multitudi nem suscepisse video: sed eam judico esse turpem et infirmam et abjectam. Quod si aliquando alicujus fure et scelere concita manus ista plus valuerit quam vestra ac rei publicae dignitas, me tamen meorum factorum atque consiliorum numquam, patres conscripti, poenitebit. Etenim mors, quam illi fortasse minitatur, omnibus est parata: vitae tantam laudem, quanta vos me vestris decretis honestastis, nemo est adsecutus. Ceteris enim semper bene gesta, mihi uni conservata re publica, gratulationem decrevistis.

His Fame is Secure.

21. Sit Scipio ille clarus, cujus consilio atque virtute Hannibal in Africam redire atque Italia decedere coactus est; ornetur alter eximia laude Africanus, qui duas urbis huic imperio infestissimas, Karthaginem Numantiumque, delevit; habeatur vir egregius Paulus ille, cujus currum rex potentissimus quondam et nobilissimus Perses honestavit; sit aeterna gloria Marius, qui bis Italiam obsidione et metu servitutis liberavit; anteponatur omnibus Pompeius, cujus res gestae atque virtutes isdem quibus solis cursus regionibus ac terminis continentur: erit profecto inter horum laudes alicuid loci nostrae gloriae,—nisi forte majus est patefacere nobis provincias quo exire possimus, quam curare ut etiam illi qui absunt habeant quo victores revertantur. 22. Quamquam est uno loco condicio melior externae victoriae quam domesticae,—quod hostes alienigenae aut oppressi serviunt, aut recepti in amicitiam beneficio se obligatos putant; qui autem ex numero civium, dementia aliqua depravati, hostes patriae semel esse coeperunt, eos cum a pernicie rei publicae repelleris, nec vi coercere nec beneficio placere possis. Qua re mihi cum perditis civibus aeternum bellum susceptum esse video. Id ego vestro bonorumque omnium auxilio, memoriaque tantorum periculorum,—quae non modo in hoc populo, qui Servatus est, sed in omnium gentium sermonibus ac mentibus semper haerebit,—a me atque a meis facile propulsare posse confido. Neque ulla profecto tanta vis reperietur, quae conjunctionem vestram equitumque Romanorum, et tantam conspirationem bonorum omnium, confringere et labefacere possit.
Let the Senate Dare to Act Rigorously.

XI. 23. Quae cum ita sint, pro imperio, pro exercitu, pro provincia, quam neglexi, pro triumpho ceterisque laudis insignibus, quae sunt a me propter urbis vestraeque salutis custodiam repudiata, pro clientelis hospitiisque provincia-libus, quae tamen urbanis opibus non minore labore tueor quam comparo, pro his igitur omnibus rebus, pro meis in vos singularibus studiis, proque hac quam perspicitis ad conservandam rem publicam diligentia, nihil a vobis nisi hujus temporis totiusque mei consulatus memoriam postulo: quae dum erit vestris fixa mentibus, tutissimo me muro saeptum esse arbitrabor. Quod si meam spem vis impro-borum fefellerit atque superaverit, commendo vobis parvum meum filium, cui profecto satis erit praesidi non solum ad salutem, verum etiam ad dignitatem, si ejus, qui haec omnia suo solius periculo conservavit, illum filium esse memineritis. 15

24. Quapropter de summa salute vestra populique Romani, de vestris conjugibus ac liberis, de aris ac focis, de fanis atque templis, de totius urbis tectis ac sedibus, de imperio ac libertate, de salute Italiae, de universa re publica, decernite diligenter, ut instituistis, ac fortiter. Habetis eum con-sulem qui et parere vestris decretis non dubitet, et ea quae statueritis, quoad vivet. defendere et per se ipsum praestare possit.
THE CITIZENSHIP OF ARCHIAS.

(Pro A. Licinio Archia Poeta.)

B.C. 62.

The case of Archias, though not a public one, yet had its origin in the politics of the time. The aristocratic faction, suspecting that much of the strength of their opponents was derived from the fraudulent votes of those who were not citizens, procured in B.C. 65 the passage of the Lex Papia, by which "all the strangers who possessed [neither Roman nor Latin burgess-rights were to be ejected from the capital]." Archias, the poet, a native of Antioch, but for many years a Roman citizen, a friend and client of Lucius Lucullus, was accused in B.C. 62, by a certain Gratius, under this law, on the ground that he was not a citizen. Cicero, a personal friend of Archias, undertook the defence, and the case was tried before the brother of the orator, Quintus Cicero, then praetor.

It was a very small matter to disprove the charge and establish Archias' claims to citizenship. The greater part of this speech, therefore, is made up of a eulogy upon the poet and upon poetry and literature in general. It is, for this reason, one of the most agreeable of Cicero's orations, and perhaps the greatest favorite of them all.

Cicero's Obligations to Archias.

Si quid est in me ingenii, judices, quod sentio quam sit exiguum, aut si qua exercitatio dicendi, in qua me non infitor mediocrum esse versatum, aut si hujusce rei
The Citizenship of Archias.

ratio aliqua ab optimarum artium studiis ac disciplina proflecta, a qua ego nullum confiteor aetatis meae tempus abhorruisse, earum rerum omnium vel in primis hic A. Licinius fructum a me repetere prope suo jure debet. Nam quoad longissime potest mens mea respicere spatium praeteriti temporis, et pueritiae memoriam recordari ultimam, inde usque repetens hunc video mihi principem et ad suscipiendam et ad ingrediendam rationem horum studiorum exsttisse. Quod si haec vox, hujus hortatu praecetisque conformata, non nullis aliquando saluti fuit, a quo id accepinus quo ceteris opitulari et alios servare possemus, huic profecto ipsi, quantum est situm in nobis, et opem et salu-tem ferre debemus. 2. Ac ne quis a nobis hoc ita dici forte miretur, quod alia quaedam in hoc facultas sit ingenii, neque haec dicendi ratio aut disciplina, ne nos quidem huic uni studio penitus umquam dediti fuimus. Etenim omnes artes, quae ad humanitatem pertinent, habent quoddam commune vinculum, et quasi cognitio quodam inter se continentur.

He Justifies the Unusual Tone of his Argument.

II. 3. Sed ne cui vestrum mirum esse videatur me in quastione legitima et in judicio publico — cum res agatur apud praetorem populi Romani, lectissimum virum, et apud severissimos judices, tanto convenit hominum ac frequentia — hoc uti genere dicendi, quod non modo a consuetudine judiciorum, verum etiam a forensi sermone abhorrebat; quaeo a vobis, ut in hac causa mihi detis hanc veniam, 25 adcommodatam huic reo, vobis (quem ad modum spero) non molestam, ut me pro summo poëta atque eruditissimo homine dicentem, hoc concursu hominum literatissimorum, hac ves-tra humanitate, hoc denique praetore exercente judicium, patiamini de studiis humanitatis ac litterarum paulo loqui liberius, et in ejus modi persona, quae propter otium ac studium minime in judiciis periculisque tractata est, uti prope novo quodam et inusitato genere dicendi. 4. Quod si mihi a vobis tribui concedique sentiam, perficiam profecto ut hunc A. Licinimum non modo non segregandum, cum sit civis, a numero civium, verum etiam si non esset, putetis 5 asciscendum fuisse.

Earlier Career of Archias.

III. Nam ut primum ex pueris excessit Archias, atque ab eis artibus quibus aetas puerilis ad humanitatem informari solet se ad scribendi studium contulit, primum Antiochiae—nam ibi natus est loco nobili—celebri quondam urbe et 10 copiosa, atque eruditissimis hominibus liberalissimisque studiis adfluenti, celeriter antecellere omnibus ingenii gloria contigit. Post in ceteris Asiae partibus cunctaeque Graeciae sic ejus adventus celebrabantur, ut famam ingenii exspectatio hominis, exspectationem ipsius adventus admi-

15 ratioque superaret. 5. Erat Italia tunc plena Graecarum artium ac disciplinarum, studiaque haec et in Latio vehementius tum coelebantur quam nunc eisdem in oppidis, et hic Romae propter tranquillitatem rei publicae non negebantur. Itaque hunc et Tarentini et Regini et Neapolitani civitate ceterisque praemiis donarunt; et omnes, qui aliquod de ingenii poterant judicare, cognitione atque hospitio dignum existimarunt. Hac tanta celebritate famae cum esset jam absentibus notus, Romam venit Mario consule et Catulo.

His Distinguished Patrons at Rome.

25 Nactus est primum consules eos, quorum alter res ad scribendum maximas, alter cum res gestas tum etiam studium atque aquis adhibere posset. Statim Luculli, cum praetextatus etiam tum Archias esset, eum domum suam receperunt. Sic etiam hoc non solum ingeni ac litterarum, 30 verum etiam naturae atque virtutis. ut domus, quae hujus adulescentiae prima fuit, eadem esset familiarissima senec-
The Citizenship of Archias.

IV. Interim satis longo intervallo, cum esset cum M. Lucullo in Siciliam profectus, et cum ex ea provincia cum eodem Lucullo decéderet, venit Heracliam: quae cum esset civitas aequissimo jure ac foedere, ascribi se in eam civitatem voluit; idque, cum ipse per se dignus putaretur, tum auctoritate et gratia Luculli ab Heracliensibus impetravit.

He is Enrolled as a Roman Citizen.

7. Data est civitas Silvani lege et Carbonis: Si qui foede ratis civitatis ascripti fuerint; si tum, cum lex ferebatur, in Italia domicilium habuissent; et si sexaginta diebus apud praetorem essent professi. Cum hic domicilium Romae multos annos haberet, professus est apud praetorem Q. Metellum familiarissimum suum. 8. Si nihil aliud nisi de civitate ac lege dicimus, nihil dico amplius: causa dicta est, Quid enim horum infirmari, Grati, potest? Heracliae esse tum ascriptum negabis? Adest vir summa auctoritate et religione et fide, M. Lucullus, qui se non opinari sed scire, non audisse sed vidisse, non interfuisse sed egisse dicit. Adsunt Heraclienses legati, nobilissimi homines: hujus judici causa cum mandatis et cum publico testimonio [venerunt]; qui hunc ascriptum Heracliensem dicunt. Hic tu tabulas desideras Heracliensium publicas: quas Italico bello incenso tabulario interisse scimus omnis. Est ridiculum ad ea quae habemus nihil dicere, quaeque quae habere non possimus; et de hominum memoria tacere, litterarum memoriam flagitare; et, cum habeas amplissimi viri religionem, integerrimi municipi jus jurandum fidemque, ea quae depravari nullo modo possunt repudiare, tabulas, quas idem dicis solere corrumpi, desiderare.

9. An domicilium Romae non habuit is, qui tot annis ante civitatem datam sedem omnium rerum ac fortunaram suarum Romae conlocavit? At non est professus. Immo vero eis tabulis professus, quae solae ex illa professione conlegioque praetorum obtinent publicarum tabularum auctoritatem. V. Nam — cum Appi tabulae neglegentius adseratae dicerentur; Gabini, quam diu incolamis fuit, levitas, post damnationem calamitas omnem tabularum fidem resi- nasset — Metellus, homo sanctissimus modestissimusque omnium, tanta diligentia fuit, ut ad L. Len[ulum praetorem et ad] judices venerit, et unius nominis litura se commotum esse dixerit. In his igitur tabulis nullam lituram in nomine A. Licini videtis.

Evidence of the Census not Necessary.

10. Quae cum ita sint, quid est quod de ejus civitate dubitetis, praeertim cum aliis quoque in civitatibus fuerit ascriptus? Etenim cum mediocribus multis et aut nulla aut humili aliqua arte praeditis gratuito civitatem in Graecia homines impertiebant, Reginos credo aut Locrensis aut Neapolitanos aut Tarentinos, quod scenicis artificibis largiri solebant, id huic summa ingeni praedito gloria noluisse! Quid? cum ceteri non modo post civitatem datam, sed etiam post legem Papiam aliquo modo in eorum municipiorum tabulas inreperunt, hic, qui ne utitur quidem illis in quibus est scriptus, quod semper se Heracliensem esse voluit, recietur? 11. Census nostros requiris scilicet. Est enim obscurum proximos censoribus hunc cum clarissimo imperatore L. Lucullo apud exercitumuisse; superioribus, cum eodem quaestoreuisse in Asia; primis Julio et Crasso nullam populi partem esse censam. Sed—quoniam census non jus civitatis confirmat, ac tantum modo indicat eum qui sit census [ita] se jam tum gessisse pro cive—eis temporibus quibus tu criminaris ne ipsius quidem judicio in civium Romanorum jure esse versatum, et testamentum saepe fecit nostris legibus, et adiit hereditates civium Romanorum, et in beneficiis ad aerarium delatus est a L. Lucullo pro con-sule. VI. Quaere argumenta, si qua potes: numquam enim hic neque suo neque amicorum judicio revincetur.
The Citizenship of Archias.

12. Quaeres a nobis, Grati, cur tanto opere hoc homine delectemur. Quia suppeditat nobis ubi et animus ex hoc forense strepitu reficiatur, et aures convicis defessae conquiescant. An tu existimas aut suppetercz nobis posse quod cotidie dicamus in tanta varietate rerum, nisi animos nostros doctrina excolamus; aut ferre animos tantam posse contentionem, nisi eos doctrina eadem relaxemus? Ego vero fateor me his studiis esse deditum: ceteros pudeat, si qui se ita litteris abdiderunt ut nihil possint ex eis neque ad communem adferre fructum, neque in aspectum lucemque pro-ferre: me autem quid pudeat, qui tot annos ita vivo, judices, ut a nullius umquam me tempore aut commodo aut otium meum abstraxerit, aut voluptas avocarat, aut denique somnus retardaris? 13. Qua re quis tandem me reprehendat, aut quis mihi jure suscenseat, si, quantum ceteris ad suas res obeundas, quantum ad festos dies ludorum celebrandos, quantum ad alias voluptates et ad ipsam requiem animi et corporis conceditur temporum, quantum alii tribuunt tempestivis conviviis, quantum denique alveolo, quantum pilae, tantum mihi egomet ad haec studia recolenda sumpsero? Atque hoc ideo mihi concedendum est magis, quod ex his studiis haec quoque crescit oratio et facultas; quae, quantacumque in me est, numquam amicorum periculis defuit. Quae si cui levior videtur, illa quidem certe, quae summa sunt, ex quo fonte hauriam sentio.

Literature a Source of Moral Strength.

14. Nam nisi multorum praeceptis multisque litteris mihi ab adolescentia suasissemm, nihil esse in vita magno opere expetendum nisi laudem atque honestatem, in ea autem persequenda omnis cruciatus corporis, omnia pericula mortis atque exsili parvi esse ducenda, numquam me pro salute vestra in tot ac tantas dimicationes atque in hos profligatorem hominum cotidianos impetus objecisse. Sed pleni omnes sunt libri, plenae sapientium voces, plena exemplorum vetustas: quae jacerent in tenebris omnia, nisi litterarum lumen accederet. Quam multas nobis imagines—non solum ad intuendum, verum etiam ad imitandum—fortissimorum virorum expressas scriptores et Graeci et Latini reliquierunt? Quas ego mihi semper in administranda re publica propo- nens, animum et mentem meam ipsa cogitatione hominum excellentium confirmabam.

All Famous Men have been Devoted to Letters.

VII. 15. Quaeret quispiam: 'Quid? illi ipsi summii viri, quorum virtutes litteris proditae sunt, istane doctrina, quam tu effers laudibus, eruditi fuerunt?' Difficile est hoc de omnibus confirmare, sed tamen est certe quod respondeam.
Ego multos homines excellenti animo ac virtute fuisse, et sine doctrina naturae ipsius habitu prope divino per se ipsos et moderatos et gravis extitisse, fateor: etiam illud adjungo, saepius ad laudem atque virtutem naturam sine doctrina quam sine natura valuisse doctrinam. Atque idem ego contendo, cum ad naturam eximiam atque illustrem accesserit ratio quaedam conformatioque doctrinae, tum illud nescio quid praeclarum ac singulare solere existere. 16. Ex hoc esse hunc numero, quem patres nostri viderunt, divinum hominem Africanum; ex hoc C. Laelium, L. Furium, moderatissimos homines et continentissimos; ex hoc fortissimum virum et illis temporibus doctissimum, M. Catonem illum senem: qui profecto si nihil ad percipiendam [colendam] virtutem litteris adjuvarentur, numquam se ad eorum studium contulissent. Quod si non hic tantus fructus ostenderetur, et si ex his studiis delectatio sola peteretur, tamen (ut opinor) hanc animi adversionem humanissimam ac liberalissimam judicaretis. Nam ceterae neque temporum sunt neque aetatum omnium neque locorum: haec studia adolescentiam alunt, senectutem oblectant, secundas res ornant, adversis perfugium ac solacium praebent, delectant domi, non impedient foris, pernoctant nobiscum, peregrinantur, rusticantur.

Great Artists are of Themselves Worthy of Admiration.

17. Quod si ipsi haec neque attingere neque sensu nostro gustare possemus, tamen ea mirari deberemus, etiam cum in aliis videremus. VIII. Quis nostrum tam animo agresti ac duro fuit, ut Rosci morte nuper non commoveretur? qui cum esset senex mortuus, tamen propter excellentem artem ac venustatem videbatur omnino mori non debuisse. Ergo ille corporis motu tantum amorem sibi conciliari at nobis omnibus: nos animorum incredibilis motus celeritatemque ingeniorum neglegemus? 18. Quotiens ego hunc Archiam
Orations of Cicero.

vidi, judices,—utar enim vestra benignitate, quoniam me in hoc novo genere dicendi tam diligentem attenditis,—quoto-tiens ego hunc vidi, cum litteram scripsisset nullam, magnum numerus optimorum versusum de eis ipsis rebus quae tum agerentur dicere ex tempore! Quotiens revocatum eandem rem dicere, commutatis verbis atque sententiis! Quae vero adcurate cogitateque scripsisset, ea sic vidi probari, ut ad veterum scriptorum laudem perveniret. Hunc ego non dili-gam? non admirer? non omni ratione defendendum putem?

The Poet Especially Sacred.

10 Atque sic a summis hominibus eruditissimisque accepmus, ceterarum rerum studia et doctrina et praeeptis et arte constare: poëtam natura ipsa valere, et mentis viribus excitari, et quasi divino quodam spiritu inflari. Qua re suo jure noster ille Ennius sanctos appellat poëtas, quod quasi 15 deorum aliquo dono atque munere commendati nobis esse videantur. 19. Sit igitur, judices, sanctum apud vos, humanissimos homines, hoc poëtæ nomen, quod nulla umquam barbaria violavit. Saxa et solitudines voci respondent;
bestiae saepe immanes cantu flectuntur atque consistunt:
20 nos, instituti rebus optimis, non poëtarum voce moveamur?
Homerum Colophonii civem esse dicunt suum, Chii suum vindicant, Salaminii repetunt, Smyrniæi vero suum esse con-firmant, itaque etiam delubrum ejus in oppido dedicaverunt:
permult aliis praeterea pugnant inter se atque contendunt.
25 IX Ergo illi alienum, quia poëta fuit, post mortem etiam expetunt: nos hunc vivum, qui et voluntate et legibus noster est, repudiabimus? praesertim cum omne olim studium atque omne ingenium contulerit Archias ad populi Romani gloriam laudemque celebrandam? Nam et Cimbricas res adolescens 30 attigit, et ipsi illi C. Mario, qui durior ad haec studia videbatur, jucundus fuit.
The Poet is the Herald of Fame.

20. Neque enim quisquam est tam aversus a Muis, qui non mandari versibus aeternum suorum laborum facile praeconium patiatur. Themistoclem illum, summum Athenis virum, dixisse auint, cum ex eo quaeeretur, quod acroama aut cujus vocem libentissime audiret:

\[ \text{Ejus, a quo sua virtus optime praedicaretur. Itaque ille Marius item eximie L. Plotium dilexit, cujus ingenio putabat ea quae gesserat posse celebrari.} \]

21. Mithridaticum vero bellum, magnum atque difficile et in multa varietate terra marique versatum, totum ab hoc expressum est: qui libri non modo 10 L. Lucullum, fortissimum et clarissimum virum, verum etiam populi Romani nomen inlustrant. Populus enim Romanus aperuit Lucullo imperante Pontum, et regis quondam opibus et ipsa natura et regione vallatum: populi Romani exercitus, eodem duce, non maxima manu innu- 15 merabilis Armeniorum copias fudit: populi Romani laus est urbem amicissimam Cyzicenorum ejusdem consilio ex omni impetu regio atque totius belli ore ac faucibus ereptam esse atque serravat: nostra semper feretur et prae-dicabitur. L. Lucullo dimicante, cum interfectis ducibus 20 depressa hostium classis, et incredibilis apud Tenedum pugna illa navalis: nostra sunt tropaea, nostra monimenta, nostri triumphi. Quae quorum ingeniiis efferuntur, ab eis populi Romani fama celebratur. 22. Carus fuit Africano superiori noster Ennius, itaque etiam in sepulcro Scipionum putatur is esse constitutus ex marmore. At eis laudibus certe non solum ipse qui laudatur, sed etiam populi Romani nomen ornatur. In caelum hujus proavus Cato tollitur:
magnus honos populi Romani rebus adjungitur. Omnes denique illi Maximi, Marcelli, Fulvii, non sine communi omnium nostrum laude decorantur. X. Ergo illum, qui haec fecerat, Rudinum hominem, maiores nostri in civitatem receperunt: nos hunc Heracliensem, multis civitatisbus expeditum, in hac autem legibus constitutum, de nostra civitate eiciemus?

Alexander at the Tomb of Achilles.

23. Nam si quis minorem gloriae fructum putat ex Grae-cis versibus percipi quam ex Latinis, vehementer errat:
propterea quod Graeca leguntur in omnibus fere gentibus,

Latina suis finibus, exiguis sane, continentur. Qua re si res eae quas gessimus orbis terrae regionibus definiuntur, cupere dèbemus, quo manuum nostrarum tela pervenerint, eodem gloriarm famamque penetrare: quod cum ipsis populis de quorum rebus scribitur, haec ampla sunt, tum eis certe, qui de vita gloriae causa dimicant, hoc maximum et periculorum incitamentum est et laborum. 24. Quam multis scriptores rerum suarum magnus ille Alexander secum habuisse dicitur! Atque is tamen, cum in Sigeo ad Achillis tumulum astitisset: O fortunato inquit adulescens, qui tuae virtutis Homerum praecoom inveneris! Et vere. Nam nisi Ilias illa exstitisset, idem tumulus, qui corpus ejus contexerat, nomen etiam obruisset. Quid? noster hic Magnus, qui cum virtute fortunam adaequavit, nonne Theophanem Mytileneaeum, scriptorem rerum suarum, in contione militem civitate donavit; et nostri illi fortes viri, sed rustici ac milites, dulcedine quadam gloriae commoti, quasi participes ejusdem laudis, magno illud clamore approbaverunt?

25. Itaque, credo, si civis Romanus Archias legibus non esset, ut ab aliquo imperatore civitate donaretur perficere non potuit. Sulla cum Hispanos donaret et Gallos, credo hunc petentem repudiasset: quem nos in contione vidimus, cum ei libellum malus poëta de populo subjecisset, quod epigramma in eum fecisset, tantummodo alternis versibus longiusculis, statim ex eis rebus quas tunc vendebat jubere ei praemia tribui, sed ea condicione, ne quid postea scriberet. Qui sedulitatem mali poëtae duxerit aliquo tamen praemio dignam, hujus ingenium et virtutem in scribendo et copiam non expetisset? 26. Quid? a Q. Metello Pio, familiarissimo suo, qui civitate multis donavit, neque per se neque per Lucullos impetravisset? qui praesertim usque eo de suis rebus scribi cuperet, ut etiam Cordubae natis poetis, pingue quiddam sonantibus atque peregrinum, tamen auris suas dederet.
XI. Neque enim est hoc dissimulandum (quod obscurari non potest) sed praeb nobis ferendum: trahimur omnes studio laudis, et optimus quisque maxime gloria ducitur. Ipsi illi philosophi, etiam in eis libellis quos de contemnenda gloria scribunt, nomen suum inscribunt: in eo ipso, in quo praedicationem nobilitatemque despiciunt, praedicari de se ac nominari volunt. 27. Decimus quidem Brutus, summus vir et imperator, Acci, amicissimi sui, carminibus templorum ac monumentorum aditus exornavit suorum. 10 Jam vero ille, qui cum Aetolis Ennio comite bellavit, Fulvius, non dubitavit Martis manubias Musis consecrare. Qua re in qua urbe imperatores prope armatæ poētarum nomen et Musarum delubra coluerunt, in eo non debent togati judices a Musarum honore et a poētarum salute abhorrere.

quae noctis ac dies animum gloriae stimulis concitat, atque admonet non cum vitae tempore esse dimittendam commemorationem nominis nostris, sed cum omni posteritate adaequandam.

Literature the Most Enduring of Monuments.

XII. 30. An vero tam parvi animi videamur esse omnes, qui in re publica atque in his vitae periculis laboribusque versamur, ut, cum usque ad extremum spatium nullum tranquillum atque otiosum spiritum duxerimus, nobiscum simul moritura omnia arbitremur? An statuas et imagines, non animorum simulacra sed corporum, studiose multi summi homines reliquerunt; consiliorum relinquire ac virtutum nostrarum effigiem nonne multo malle debemus, summis ingeniis expressam et politam? Ego vero omnia quae gerebam, jam tum in gerendo spargere me ac disseminare arbitrabar in orbis terrae memoriam sempiternam. Haec vero sive a meo sensu post mortem afutura est sive — ut sapientissimi homines putaverunt — ad aliquam mei partem pertinebit, nunc quidem certe cogitatione quadam speque detector.

Archias the Poet should be Protected in his Rights.

31. Qua re conservate, judices, hominem pudore eo, quem amicorum videtis comprobari cum dignitate tum etiam vetustate; ingento autem tanto, quantum id convenit existimari, quod summorum hominum ingeniis expetitum esse videatis; causa vero ejus modi, quae beneficio legis, auctoritate municipi, testimonio Luculli, tabulis Metelli comprobetur. Quae cum ita sint, petimus a vobis, judices, si qua non modo humana, verum etiam divina in tantis ingeniis commendatio debet esse, ut eum qui vos, qui vestros imperatores, qui populi Romani res gestas semper ornavit, qui etiam his recentibus nostris vestrisque domesticis periculis aeternum se testimonium laudis daturum esse profitetur, estque ex eo numero qui semper apud omnis sancti sunt habiti itaque dicti, sic in vestram accipiatam fidem, ut humanitate vestra levatus potius quam acerbitate violatus esse videatur. 32. Quae de causa pro mea consuetudine breviter simpliciterque dixi, judices, ea confido probata esse omnibus. Quae autem remota a mea judicialique consuetudine, et de hominis ingenio et communiter de ipsius studio locutus sum, ea, judices, a vobis spero esse in bonam partem accepta; ab eo qui judicium exercet, certo scio.
DEFENCE OF MILO.

(Pro Milone.)

B.C. 52.

T. ANNUS MILO was a young man of good family and a recognized leader, on the aristocratic side, in the turbulent politics of the time during the absence of Cæsar in Gaul and following the disastrous campaign of Crassus in the East. His bitterest opponent was P. Clodius, the leader of the popular party, a man of high birth and versatile talents, but of infamous life, and an unscrupulous partisan. Both sides depended to a great extent on organized violence. On the one side was the city mob, headed by Clodius. On the other, Milo maintained a band of professional bullies and prize-fighters (gladiatores).

Under these two leaders, the old political strife, always attended with some violence, became almost a succession of riots. The disorders were so great that the year B.C. 53 was half over before the consuls, who should have been chosen six months before the beginning of the year, could be elected. When finally, in July, 53, Cn. Domitius Calvinus and M. Valerius Messala were chosen, the campaign for the following year began at once. Milo was a candidate for the consulship, and Clodius for the praetorship. Riots were of almost daily occurrence, and no elections could be held. The year 52 began without either consuls or praetors in office, and it became obvious that peace could be restored only by the death of either Clodius or Milo. The latter was a candidate for the consulship, but his election had been successfully resisted by Clodius. On the 18th of January the quarrel came to a bloody crisis. Milo had set out from Rome, towards nightfall, with a large retinue, including his troop of armed guards, for Lanuvium, a village about twenty miles S.E. of Rome, where he held an office of some local dignity. He was met on the Appian Way, a few miles out, by Clodius, who was returning to the city from one of his estates on horseback, with thirty armed attendants. As they passed each other, their followers came to blows. Clodius was wounded, and driven into a shop or tavern by the wayside. Milo, unwilling to leave so dangerous an enemy alive, followed him up; and Clodius, with a dozen others, among them the owner of the tavern, was killed. The meeting was probably accidental on both sides; but each had openly threatened the other's life, and hence each party loudly accused the other of premeditated assault and actual or intended murder. Anarchy broke loose in Rome. The funeral of Clodius was an occasion of riot and conflagration. Other disorders followed. Quiet was only restored by the appointment of Pompey as "consul without colleague" (practically dictator), and for about six months the city was held by him under a sort of martial law. A special court was established for the trial of all cases arising out of the brawl in the Appian Way. The arraignment of Milo before this court on the charge of assault and homicide took place about the 10th of April. Cicero undertook his defence both from political motives and from personal regard. By Pompey's orders the court was surrounded by armed troops (a strange sight at that time in Rome) to protect it from the violence of the mob which raged outside. Cicero, whose nerves were shaken by the uproar, lost his self-command, and spoke "not with his usual firmness." Milo was condemned by thirty-eight votes out of fifty-one, and went into exile at Marseilles. Cicero, dissatisfied with the speech actually delivered, as taken down by short-hand, wrote out at his leisure the masterpiece of eloquence and specious argument which follows.
The Court Surrounded by Armed Men.

ETSI vereor, judices, ne turpe sit pro fortissimo viro dicere incipientem timere, minimeque deceat, cum T. Annius ipse magis de rei publicae salute quam de sua perturbetur, me ad ejus causam parem animi magnitudinem adferre non posse, tamen haec novi judici nova forma terret oculos, qui, quocumque inciderunt, consuetudinem fori et pristinum morem judiciorum requirunt. Non enim corona consessus vester cinctus est, ut solebat; non usitata frequentia stipati sumus: 2. non illa praesidia, quae pro templis omnibus cernitis, etsi contra vim conlocata sunt, non adferunt tamen [oratori] aliquid, ut in foro et in judicio, quamquam praesidiis salutaribus et necessariis saepti sumus, tamen ne non timere quidem sine aliquo timore possimus. Quae si opposita Miloni putarem, cederem tempori, judices, nec inter tantam vim armorum existimarem esse oratori locum. Sed me recreat et reficit Cn. Pompei, sapientissimi et justissimi viri, consilium, qui profecto nec justitiae suae putaret esse, quem reum sententiis judicum tradisset, eundem telis militum dedere, nec sapientiae, temeritatem concitatae multitudinis auctoritate publica armare.

But the Jurors Need not Fear.

3. Quam ob rem illa arma, centuriones, cohortes non periculum nobis, sed praesidium denuntiant; neque solum ut quieto, sed etiam ut magno animo simus hortantur; neque auxilium modo defensioni meae, verum etiam silentiolum pollicentur. Reliqua vero multitudo, quae quidem est civium, tota nostra est; neque eorum quisquam, quos undique intuentis, unde aliqua fori pars aspici potest, et hujus exitum judici exspectantis videtis, non cum virtuti Milonis favet, tum de se, de liberis suis, de patria, de fortunis hodierno die decertari putat.
II. Unum genus est adversum infestumque nobis, eorum quos P. Clodi furo rapinis et incendiis et omnibus exitiis publicis pavit: qui hesternae etiam contione incitati sunt, ut vobis voce praeirent quid judicaretis. Quorum clamor si qui forte fuerit, admonere vos debebit, ut eum civem retineatis, qui semper genus illud hominum clamoresque maximos prae vestra salutе neglexit.

They are Free to Maintain Justice.

4. Quam ob rem adeste animis, judices, et timorem si quem habetis deponite. Nam—si umquam de bonis et fortibus viris, si umquam de bene meritis civibus potestas [vobis] judicandi fuit, si denique umquam locus amplissimorum ordinum delectis viris datus est, ut sua studia erga fortis et bonos civis, quae volu et verbis saepe significasent, re et sententiis declararent—hoc profecto tempore eam potestatem omnem vos habetis, ut statuat utrum nos, qui semper vestrae auctoritati dediti fuimus, semper miseri lugeamus, an, diu vexati a perditissimis civibus, aliquando per vos ac per vestram fidem, virtutem, sapientiamque recreemur.

Unfortunate Position of the Defendant.

5. Quid enim nobis duobus, judices, laboriosius, quid magis sollicitum, magis exercitum dici aut fingi potest, qui, spe amplissimorum praemiorum ad rem publicam adducti, metu crudelissimorum suppliciorum carere non possimus? Equidem ceteras tempestates et procellas in illis dum taxat fluctibus contionum semper putavi Miloni esse subeundas, quia semper pro bonis contra improbos senserat; in judicio vero, et in eo consilio in quo ex cunctis ordinibus amplissimi viri judicarent, numquam existimavi spem ullam esse habituros Milonis inimicos, ad ejus non modo salutem extin- gendam, sed etiam gloriam per talis viros infringendam.
Clodius Aggressor in the Affray.

6. Quamquam in hac causa, judices, T. Anni tribunatu, rebusque omnibus pro salute rei publicae gestis ad hujus criminis defensionem non abutemur. Nisi oculis videritis insidias Miloni a Cludio factas, nec deprecaturi sumus ut crimen hoc nobis propter multa praeclara in rem publicam merita condonetis, nec postulaturi, ut si mors P. Clodi salus vestra fuerit, idcirco eam virtuti Milonis potius quam populi Romani felicitati adsignetis. Sed si illius insidiae clariores hac luce fuerint, tum denique obsecrabo obtestaborque vos, judices, si cetera amissimus, hoc saltem nobis ut relinquatur, ab inimicorum audacia telisque vitam ut impune liceat defendere.

Homicide not Always Unjustifiable.

III. 7. Sed ante quam ad eam orationem venio quae est prorsa vestrae quaestionis, videntur ea esse refutanda, quae et in senatu ab inimicis saepe jactata sunt, et in contione ab improbis, et paulo ante ab accusatoribus, ut omni errore sublato, rem plane quae veniat in judicium videre possitis. Negant intueri lucem esse fas ei qui a se hominem occisum esse fateatur. In qua tandem urbe hoc homines stultissimi disputant? nempe in ea quae primum judicium de capite vidit M. Horati, fortissimi viri, qui nondum libera civitate, tamen populi Romani comitiis liberatus est, cum sua manu sororem esse interfectam fateretur. 8. An est quisquam qui hoc ignoret, cum de homine occiso quaeratur, aut negari solere omnino esse factum aut recte et jure factum esse defendi? Nisi vero existimatis dementem P. Africanum fuisse, qui cum a C. Carbone [tribuno plebis seditiose] in contione interrogaretur quid de Ti. Gracchi morte sentiret, responderit jure caesium videri. Neque enim posset aut Ahala ille Servilius, aut P. Nasica, aut L. Opimius, aut C. 30 Marius, aut me consule senatus, non nefarius haberis, si sceleratos civis interfici nefas esset. Itaque hoc, judices, non sine causa etiam fictis fabulis doctissimi homines memoriae prodiderunt, eum qui patris ulciscendi causa matrem necavisset, variatis hominum sententiis, non solum divina,

5 sed etiam sapientissimae deae sententia liberatum. 9. Quod si duodecim tabulae nocturnum furem quoquo modo, diurnum autem, si se telo defenderet, interfici impune voluerunt, quis est qui, quoquo modo quis interfectus sit, puniendum putet, cum videat aliquando gladium nobis ad hominem occidendum ab ipsis purrigi legibus?

This is a Case of Self-Defence.

IV. Atqui si tempus est ullam jure hominis necandi, quae multa sunt, certe illud est non modo justum, verum etiam necessarium, cum vi vis inlata defenditur. Pudicitiam cum eriperet militi tribunus militaris in exercitu C. Mari, propinquus ejus imperatoris, interfectus ab eo est, cui vim adferbat. Facere enim probus adulescens periculose quam perpeti turpiter maluit. Atque hunc ille summus vir scelere solutum periculo liberavit. 10. Insidiatori vero et latroni quae potest inferri injusta nex? Quid comitatus nostri, 20 quid gladii volunt? quos habere certe non liceret, si uti illis nullo pacto liceret. Est igitur haec, judices, non scripta, sed nata lex; quam non didicimus, accepiimus, legimus, verum ex natura ipsa adripimus, hausimus, expressimus; ad quam non docti sed facti, non instituti sed imbuti sumus, — ut, si vita nostra in aliquas insidias, si in vim et in tela aut latronum aut inimicorum incidisset, omnis honesta ratio esset expediendae salutis. 11. Silent enim leges inter arma; nec se exspectari jument, cum ei qui exspectare velit, ante injusta poena luenda sit, quam justa repetenda. Etsi persapienter et quodam modo tacite dat ipsa lex potestatem defendendi, quae non hominem occidi, sed esse cum telo hominis occidendi causa vetat; ut, cum causa non telum quae reret, qui sui defendendi causa telo esset usus non hominis occidendi causa habuisse telum judicaretur. Qua propter hoc maneit in causa, judices: non enim dubito quin probaturus sim vobis defensionem meam, si id memineritis quod oblivisci non potestis, insidiatorem jure interfici posse.

Decree of the Senate Touches only the Riot.

V. 12. Sequitur illud, quod a Milonis inimicis saepissime dicitur, caedem in qua P. Clodius occisus est senatum judicasse contra rem publicam esse factam. Illam vero senatus non sententiis suis solum, sed etiam studiis comprobavit. Quotiens enim est illa causa a nobis acta in senatu! quibus adscriptionibus universi ordinis, quam nec tacitis nec occultis! Quando enim frequentissimo senatu quattuor aut summum quinque sunt inventi qui Milonis causam non probarent?
Declarant hujus ambusti tribuni plebis illae intermortuae contiones, quibus cotidie meam potentiam invidiose criminabatur, cum diceret senatum non quod sentiret, sed quod ego vellem decernere. Quae quidem si potentia est appellanda — potius quam aut propter magna in rem publicam merita mediocris in bonis causis auctoritas, aut propter hos officiosos labores meos non nulla apud bonos gratia, — appelletur ita sane, dum modo ea nos utamur pro salute bonorum contra amentiam perditorum.

The Guilty Party not Determined.

13. Hanc vero quaestionem, etsi non est iniqua, numquam tamen senatus constituerem et putavit. Erant enim leges, erant quaestiones vel de caede vel de vi; nec tantum maerorem ac luctum senatu mors P. Clodi adferrebat, ut nova quaestio constitueretur. Cujus enim de illo incepto stupro judicium decernendi senatu potestas esset erepta, de ejus interitu quis potest credere senatum judicium novum constituendum putasse? Cur igitur incendium curiae, oppugnationem aedium M. Lepidi, caedem hanc ipsam contra rem publicam senatus factam esse decrevit? quia nulla vis umquam est in libera civitate suscepta inter civis non contra rem publicam. 14. Non enim est illa defensio contra vim umquam optanda, sed non numquam est necessaria. Nisi vero aut ille dies quo Ti. Gracchus est caesus, aut ille quo Gaius, aut quo arma Saturnini oppressa sunt, etiam si e re publica oppressa sunt, rem publicam tamen non volnerarunt.
VI. Itaque ego ipse decrevi, cum caedem in Appia factam esse constaret, non eum qui se defendisset contra rem publicam fecisse, sed, cum inesset in re vis et insidiae, crimen judicio reservavi, rem notavi. Quod si per furiosum illum tribunum senatui quod sentiebat perficere licuisset, novam quaestionem nullam haberemus. Decernebat enim, ut veteribus legibus, tantum modo extra ordinem, quaereretur. Divisa sententia est, postulante nescio quo: nihil enim necesse est omnium me flagitia proferre. Sic reliqua auctoritas senatus empta intercessione sublata est.

Pompey's Action also not Prejudicial.

No Special Tribunals for Previous Homicides.

VII. Domi suae nobilissimus vir, senatus propugnator, atque illis quidem temporibus paene patronus, avunculus hujus judicis nostri, fortissimi viri, M. Catonis, tribunus plebis M. Drusus occisus est. Nihil de ejus morte populus consultus, nulla quaestio decreta a senatu est. Quaestum luctum in hac urbe fuisse a nostris patribus acceperimus, cum P. Africano domi suae quiescenti illa nocturna vis esset in-lata? Quis tum non gemuit? Quis non arsit dolore, quem 5 immortalem, si fieri posset, omnes esse cuperent, ejus ne necessarium quidem exspectatam esse mortem! Num igitur ulla quaestio de Africani morte lata est? certe nulla. 17. Quid ita? quia non alio facinore clari homines, alio obscuri necantur. Intersit inter vitae dignitatem summorum atque infimorum: mors quidem inlata per scelus isdem et poenis teneatur et legibus. Nisi forte magis erit parricida, si qui consularem patrem quam si quis humilem necarit: aut eo mors atrocior erit P. Clodi, quod is in monumentis majorum suorum sit interfactus — hoc enim ab istis saepe dicitur; 15 proinde quasi Appius ille Caecus viam muniverit, non qua populus uteretur, sed ubi impune sui posteri latrocinarentur!

Nor for Clodius' own Deeds of Violence.

18. Itaque in eadem ista Appia via cum ornatissimum equitem Romanum P. Clodius M. Papirium occidisset, non fuit illud facinus puniendum, homo enim nobilis in suis monumentis equitem Romanum occiderat: nunc ejusdem Appiae nomen quantas tragoedias excitat! Quae cruentata ante caede honesti atque innocentis viri silebatur, eadem nunc crebro usurpatur, postea quam latronis et parricideae sanguine imbuta est. Sed quid ego illa commemoro? Com- 20 prehensus est in templo Castoris servus P. Clodi, quem ille ad Cn. Pompeium interficiendum collocarat: extorta est ei conflenti sica de manibus: caruit foro postea Pompeius, caruit senatu, caruit publico: janua se ac parietibus, non jure legum judiciorumque texit. 19. Num quae rogatio 25 lata, num quae nova quaestio decreta est? Atqui si res, si vir, si tempus ullum dignum fuit, certe haec in illa causa summa omnia fuerunt. Insidiator erat in foro conlocatus, atque in vestibulo ipso senatus; ei viro autem mors parabatur, cujus in vita nitebatur salus civitatis; eo porro rei publicae tempore, quo, si unus ille occidisset, non haec solum civitas, sed gentes omnes concidissent. Nisi vero quia perfecta res non est, non fuit poenienda: proinde quasi exitus rerum, non hominum consilia legibus vindicentur. Minus dolendum fuit re non perfecta, sed poenidendum certe nihil minus. 20. Quotiens ego ipse, judices, ex P. Clodi telis et ex cruentis ejus manibus effugi! ex quibus si me non vel mea vel rei publicae fortuna servasset, quis tandem de interitu meo quaestionem tulisset?

Is the Death of Clodius such a Great Calamity?

VIII. Sed stulti sumus qui Drusum, qui Africanum, Pompeium, nosmet ipsos cum P. Cl odio conferre audeamus.
Tolerabilia fuerunt illa: P. Clodi mortem aequo animo ferre nemo potest. Luget senatus, maeret equester ordo, tota civitas confecta senio est, squalent municipia, afflictantur coloniae, agri denique ipsi tam beneficium, tam salutarem, tam mansuetum civem desiderant. 21. Non fuit ea causa, judices, profecto, non fuit, cur sibi censeret Pompeius quaestionem ferendum; sed homo sapiens atque alta et divina quadam mente praeditus multa vidit: fuisse illum sibi inimicum, familiararem Milonem; in communi omnium laetitia, si etiam ipse gauderet, timuit ne-videretur infirmior fides reconciliatae gratiae; multa etiam alia vidit, sed illud maxime, quamvis atrociter ipse tulisset, vos tamen fortiter judicaturos. Itaque delegit ex florentissimis ordinibus ipsa lumina: neque vero, quod non nulli dictitant, secretit in judicibus legendis amicos meos. Neque enim hoc cogitavit vir justissimus; neque in bonis viris legendis id adsequi potuisset, etiam si cupisset. Non enim mea gratia familiaritatibus continetur, quae late patere non possunt, propterea quod consuetudines victus non possunt esse cum multis; sed, si quid possimus, ex eo possimus, quod res publica nos conjunxit cum bonis: ex quibus ille cum optimos viros legeret, idque maxime ad fidem suam pertinere arbitraretur, non potuit legere non studiosos mei. 22. Quod vero te, L. Domiti, huic quaeestionis praeesse maxime voluit, nihil quaesivit [aliud] nisi justitiam, gravitatem, humanitatem, fidem. Tuit ut consularem necesse esset: credo, quod principum munus esse ducebatur resistere et levitati multitudinis et perditorum temeritati. Ex consularibus te creavit potissimum: dederas enim quam contemneres popularis insanas jam ab adolescentia documen-ta maxima.

Real Question: Which was the Aggressor?

IX. 23. Quam ob rem, judices, ut aliquando ad causam crimenque veniamus, — si neque omnis confessio facti est inusitata, neque de causa nostra quicquam aliter ac nos vellemus a senatu judicatum est, et lator ipse legis, cum esset controversia nulla facti, juris tamen dispectionem esse voluit, et ei lecti judices isque praepositus est quaestioni, qui haec juste sapienterque discpetet, — reliquum est, judices, ut nihil jam quaeerere aliud debeatis, nisi uter utri insidiaqecicerit. Quod quo facilitus argumentis perspicere possitis, rem gestam vobis dum breviter expono, quaeso, diligenter attendite.

Death of Milo Necessary to Clodius.

24. P. Clodius cum statuisset omni scelere in praetura 10 vexare rem publicam, videretque ita tracta esse comitia anno superiore, ut non multos mensis praeturam gerere posset, — qui non honoris gradum spectaret, ut ceteri, sed et L. Paulum conlegam effugere vellet, singulari virtute civem, et annum integrum ad dilacerandam rem publicam 15 quaeeret, — subito reliquit annum suum, seseque in annum proximum transtulit: non (ut fit) religione aliqua, sed ut haberet, quod ipse dicebat, ad praeturam gerendum, hoc est, ad evertendam rem publicam, plenum annum atque integrum. 25. Occurrebat ei mancam ac debilem prae- 20 turam futuram suam consule Milone: eum porro summo consensi populi Romanis consulem fieri videbat. Contulit se ad ejus competitores, sed ita, totam ut petitionem ipse solus etiam invitis illis gubernaret, tota ut comitia suis, ut dictitabat, umeris sustineret. Convocabat tribus, se inter- 25 ponebat, Collinam novam dilectu perditissimorum civium conscribecbat. Quanto ille plura miscerbat, tanto hic magis in diés convalescebat. Ubi vidit homo ad omne facinus paratissimus fortissimum virum, inimicissimum suum, certissimum consulem, idque intellexit non solum sermonibus, 30 sed etiam suffragiis populi Romani saepè esse declaratum, palam agere coepit, et aperte dicere occidendum Milonem.

Clodius Lay in Wait for Milo.

10 X. 27. Interim cum sciret Clodius—neque enim erat difficile scire—iter sollemne, legitimum, necessarium ante diem xiii. Kalendas Februarias Miloni esse Lanuvium ad flaminem prodendum, [quod erat dictator Lanuvi Milo,] Roma subito ipse prefectus pridie est, ut ante suum fundum, quod re intellectum est, Miloni insidias conlocaret. Atque ita prefectus est, ut contionem turbulentam, in qua ejus furor desideratus est, [quae illo ipso die habita est,] relinquueret, quam nisi obire facinoris locum tempusque voluisset, numquam reliquisset. 28. Milo autem cum in senatu fuisset eo die, quoad senatus est dimissus, domum venit; calceos et vestimenta mutavit; paulisper, dum se uxor (ut fit) comparat, commoratus est; dein prefectus id temporis cum jam Clodius, si quidem eo die Romam venturus erat, rodire potuisset. Ob viam fit ei Clodius, expeditus, in equo, nulla raeda, nullis impedimentis; nullis Graecis comitibus, ut solet; sine uxore, quod numquam fere: cum hic insidiator, qui iter illud ad caedem faciendam appassit, cum uxor vehetur in raeda, paenulatus, magno et impedito et muliebri ac delicato ancillarum puero rumque comitatu. 29. Fit ob viam Cladio ante fundum ejus hora fere undecima, aut non multo secus. Statim complures cum telis in hunc faciunt de loco superiore impetum: adversi raedarium occidunt. Cum autem hic de raeda rejecta paenula desiluisset, seque acri animo defenderet, illi qui erant cum Clodio, gladiis eductis, partim recurrere ad raedam, ut a tergo Milonem adorirentur; partim, quod hunc jam interfecit putarent, caedere incipiunt ejus servos, qui post erant: ex quibus qui animo fidei in dominum et praesenti fuerunt, partim occisi sunt, partim, cum ad raedam pugnari viderent, domino succurrere prohiberentur, Milonem occisum et ex ipso Clodio audirent et re vera putarent, fecerunt id servi Milonis—dicam enim aperte, non derivandi criminis causa, sed ut factum est—nec imperante nec sciente nec prae- sente domino, quod suos quisque servos in tali re facere voluisset.

But his Violence Recoiled on his Own Head.

XI. 30. Haec, sicuti exposui, ita gesta sunt, judices. Insidiator superatus est, vi victa vis, vel potius oppressa virtute audacia est. Nihil dico quid res publica consecuta sit, nihil quid vos, nihil quid omnes boni: nihil sane id prosit Miloni, qui hoc fato natus est, ut ne se quidem servare potuerit, quin una rem publicam vosque servaret. Si id jure fieri non potuit, nihil habeo quod defendam. Sin hoc et ratio doctis, et necessitas barbaris, et mos gentibus, et feris etiam beluis natura ipsa praescripsisit, — ut omnem semper vim, quacumque ope possent, a corpore, a capite, a vita sua propulsarent, — non potestis hoc facinus improbum judicare, quin simul judicetis omnibus, qui in latrones inciderint, aut illorum telis aut vestris sententiis esse pereundum. 31. Quod si ita putasset, certe optabilius Miloni fuit dare jugulum P. Clodio, non semel ab illo neque tum primum petitum, quam jugulari a vobis, quia se non jugulan- dum illi tradidisset. Sin hoc nemo vestrum ita sentit, non illud jam in judicium venit, occiunsne sit (quod fatemur), sed jure an injuria, quod multis in causis saepe quaesitum
est. Insidias factas esse constat, et id est quod senatus contra rem publicam factum judicavit: ab utro factae sint incertum est. De hoc igitur latum est ut quaereretur. Ita et senatus rem non hominem notavit, et Pompeius de jure non de facto quaestionem tulit. XII. Num quid igitur aliud in judicium venit, nisi uter utri insidias fecerit? Profecto nihil: si hic illi, ut ne sit impune; si illae huic, ut scelere solvamur.

Cui Bono?

- 32. Quonam igitur pacto probati potest insidias Miloni fecisse Clodium? Satis est in illa quidem tam audaci, tam nefaria belua, docere magnam ei causam, magnam sper in Milonis morte propositam, magnas utilitates suas. Itaque illud Cassianum 'cui bona fuerit' in his personis valeat; etsi boni nullo emolumento impelluntur in fraudem, improbi saepe parvo. Atqui Milone interfecto Clodium haec adsequatur, non modo ut praetor esset non eo consule quo sceleris nihil facere posset; sed etiam ut eis consulibus praetor esset, quibus si non adjuvantibus at conuentibus certe, speraret posse se eludere in illis suis cogitatis furoris: cujus illi conatus, ut ipse ratiocinabatur, nec cuperent reprimere si possent, cum tantum beneficium ei se debere arbitrentur; et, si vellent, fortasse vix possent frangere hominis sceleratissimi conroboratam jam vetustate audaciam.

Strong Motive in the Case of Clodius.

33. An vero, judices, vos soli ignoratis? vos hospites in hac urbe versamini? vestrae peregrinantur aures, neque in hoc pervagato civitatis sermone versantur, quas ille leges — si leges nominandae sunt ac non faces urbis, pestes rei publicae — fuerit impositurus nobis omnibus atque inusturus? Exhube, quaesoe, Sexte Clodi, exhibe librum illud legum vestrarum, quod te aiunt eripuisse e domo et ex mediis armis turbaque nocturna tamquam Palladium sustulisse, ut praeclarum videliçet munus atque instrumentum tribunatus ad aliquem, si nactus esses, qui tuo arbitrio tribunatum gereret, deferre posses. Atque per . . . an hujus ille legis quam Clodius a se inventam gloriatur, mentionem facere ausus esset vivo Milone, non dicam consule? De nostrum 5 enim omnium—non audeo totum dicere. Videte quid ea viti lex habitura fuerit, cujus periculosa etiam reprehensio est. Et aspexit me illis quidem oculis, quibus tum solebat cum omnibus omnia minabatur. Movet me quippe lumen curiae! XIII. Quid? tu me tibi iratum, Sexte, putas, 10 cujus inimicissimum multo crudelius etiam poenitus es, quam erat humanitatis meae postulare? Tu P. Clodi cruentum cadaver ejecisti domo; tu in publicum abjecisti; tu spoliatum imaginibus, exsequiis, pompa, laudatione, infelicitissimis signis semiustilatum, nocturnis canibus dilaniandum 15 reliquisti. Qua re, etsi nefarie fecisti, tamen quoniam in meo inimico crudelitatem exprompsisti tuam, laudare non possum, irasci certe non debeo.

Milo had No Motive.

34. Audistis, judices, quantum Clodi interfuerit occidi Milonem: convertite animos nunc vicissim ad Milonem. Quid 20 Milonis intererat interfici Clodium? Quid erat cur Milo non dicam admitteret, sed optaret? 'Obstabat in spe consulatus Miloni Clodius.' At eo repugnante fiebat, immo vero eo fiebat magis; nec me suffragatore meliore utebatis quam Clodio. Valebat apud vos, judices, Milonis erga me 25 remque publicam meritorum memoria; valebant preces et lacrimae nostrae, quibus ego tum vos mirifice moveri sentiebam; sed plus multo valebat periculum impendentium timor. Quis enim erat civium qui sibi solutam P. Clodi praeturam sine maximo rerum novarum metu proponeret? 30 Solutam autem fore videbatis, nisi esset is consul, qui eam auderet possetque constringere. Eum Milonem unum esse cum sentiret universus populus Romanus, quis dubitaret suffragio suo se metu, periculo rem publicam liberare? At nunc, Clodio remoto, usitatis jam rebus enitendum est Miloni, ut tueatur dignitatem suam: singularis illa et huic 5 uni concessa gloria, quae cotidie augebatur frangendis furoris Clodianis, jam Clodi morte cecidit. Vos adepti estis, ne quem civem metueritis: hic exercitationem virtutis, suffragationem consulatus, fontem perennem gloriae suae perdit. Itaque Milonis consulatus, qui vivo Clodie labe- 10 factari non poterat, mortuo denique temptari coptus est. Non modo igitur nihil prodest, sed obstet etiam Clodi mors Miloni.

35. 'At valuit odium, fecit iratus, fecit inimicus, fuit ultor 15 injuriae, poenitor doloris sui.' Quid? si haec non dico ma- jora fuerunt in Clodio quam in Milone, sed in illo maxima, nulla in hoc? quid voltis amplius? Quid enim odisset Clodium Milo, segetem ac materiem suae gloriae, praeter hoc civile odium, quo omnis improbos odimus? Ille erat ut odisset, primum defensorem salutis meae, deinde vexatorem furoris, domitorem armorum suorum, postremo etiam accusatorem suum: reus enim Milonis lege Plotia fuit Clodi, quoad vixit. Quo tandem animo hoc tyrannum illum tulisse creditis? quantum odium illius, et in homine injusto quam etiam justum fuisse?

Habitual Violence of Clodius.

XIV. 36. Reliquum est ut jam illum natura ipsius consuetudoque defendat, hunc autem haec eadem coarguat. Nihil per vim umquam Clodius, omnia per vim Milo. Quid? ego, judices, cum maerentibus vobis urbe cessi, judiciumne timui? non servos, non arma, non vim? Quae 30 fuisset igitur justa causa restituendi mei, nisi fuisset injusta eiciendi? Diem mihi, credo, dixerat, multam inrogarat, actionem perduellionis intenderat; et mihi videlicet in causa aut mala aut mea, non et praeclarissima et vestra, judicium timendum fuit. Servorum et egentium civium et facinororum armis meos civis, meis consiliis periculisque servatos, pro me obici nolui. 37. Vidi enim, vidi hunc ipsum Q. Hortensium, lumen et ornamentum rei publicae, paene interfici servorum manu, cum mihi adesset: qua in turba C. Vibienus senator, vir optimus, cum hoc cum esset una, ita est mulcatus, ut vitam amiserit. Itaque quando illius postea sica illa, quam a Catilina acceperat, conquirevit? Haec intentata nobis est; huic ego vos obici pro me non sum passus; haec insidiata Pompeio est; haec istam Appiam, monimentum sui nominis, nece Papiri cruentavit; haec eadem longo intervallo conversa rursus est in me: nuper quidem, ut scitis, me ad regiam paene confecit.

Opposite Character of Milo.

38. Quid simile Milonis? cujus vis omnis haec semper fuit, ne P. Clodius, cum in judicium detrahi non posset, vi oppressam civitatem teneret. Quem si interficere voluisset, quantae quotiens occasiones, quam praeclarae fuerunt! Potuitne, cum domum ac deos penatis suos illo oppugnante defenderet, jure se ulcisci? Potuitne, civi egregio et viro fortissimo, P. Sestio, conlega suo, vulnerato? Potuitne, Q. Fabricio, vire optimo, cum de reditu meo legem ferret, pulso, crudelissima in foro caede facta? Potuitne L. Caecili, justissimi fortissimique praetoris, oppugnata domo? Potuitne illo die, cum est lata lex de me; cum totius Italie concursus, quem mea salus concitarat, facti illius gloriam libens agnovisset, ut, etiam si id Milo fecisset, cuncta civitas eam laudem pro sua vindicaret?

Milo Appealed Only to the Laws.

XV. 39. At quod erat tempus? Clarissimus et fortissimus consul, inimicus Clodio, [P. Lentulus,] ultor sceleris illius, propugnator senatus, defensor vestrae voluntatis, patronus publici consensus, restitutor salutis meae; septem praetores, octo tribuni plebei, illius adversarii, defensores mei; Cn. Pompeius, auctor et dux mei reditus, illius hostis, cujus sententiam senatus [omnis] de salute mea gravissimam et ornatissimam secutus est, qui populum Romanum est cohortatus, qui cum de me decretum Capuae fecisset, ipse cunctae Italiae cupienti et ejus fidei imploranti signum dedit, ut ad me restituendum Romam concurrerent; omnium denique in illum odia civium ardebit desiderio mei, quem qui tum interemisset, non de impunitate ejus, sed de prae-miis cogitaretur. 40. Tamen se Milo continuuit, et P. Clodi-um in judicium bis, ad vim numquam vocavit. Quid? privato Milone et reo ad populum accusante P. Clodio, cum in Cn. Pompeio pro Milone dicentem impetus factus est, quae tum non modo occasio, sed etiam causa illius oppri-mendi fuit! Nuper vero cum M. Antonius summam spem salutis bonis omnibus attulisset, gravissimamque adullescens nobilissimus rei publicae partem fortissime suscepisset, atque illum beluam, judici laqueos declinantem, jam inretitam ten-eret, qui locus, quod tempus illud, di immortales, fuit! cum se ille fugiens in scalarum tenebris abdissit, magnum Miloni fuit conficere illum pestem nulla sua invidia, M. vero Antoni maxima gloria? 41 Quid? comitiis in campo quotiens potestas fuit! cum ille in saepa ruisset, gladios destringendos, lapides jaciendos curvisset; dein subito, voltu Milonis perterritus, fugeret ad Tiberim, vos et omnes boni vota faceretis, ut Miloni uti virtute sua liberet.

Milo had not Killed Clodius when he Might.

XVI. Quem igitur cum omnium gratia noluit, hunc voluit cum aliquorum querella? quem jure, quem loco, quem tem-pore, quem impune non est ausus, hunc injuria, iniquo loco, alieno tempore, periculo capitis, non dubitavit occidere?
42. praesertim, judices, cum honoris amplissimi contentio et dies comitiorum subesset, quo quidem tempore—scio enim quam timida sit ambitio, quantaque et quam sollicita sit cupiditas consulsatus—omnia, non modo quae reprehendi palam, sed etiam obscure quae cogitari possunt timemus, rumorem, fabulam factam, levem perhorrescimus, ora omnium atque oculos intuemur. Nihil est enim tam molle, tam tene-rum, tam aut fragile aut flexibile, quam voluntas erga nos sensusque civium, qui non modo improbitati irascurtur candidatorum, sed etiam in recte factis saepe fastidiunt. 10

43. Hunc igitur diem campi speratum atque exoptatum sibi proponens Milo, cruentis manibus scelus et facinus prae se ferens et confitens, ad illa augusta centuriarum auspicia veniebat? Quam hoc non credibile in hoc! quam idem in Cludio non dubitandum, cum se ille interfecto Milone 15 regnaturum putaret! Quid? (quod caput est [audaciae], judices) quis ignorat maximam inlecebram esse peccandi impunitatis spem? In utro igitur haec fuit? in Milone, qui etiam nunc reus est facti aut praeclari aut certe necessarii, an in Cludio, qui ita judicia poenamque contemptserat, ut eum 20 nihil delectaret quod aut per naturam fas esset, aut per leges liceret.

Actual Threats of Clodius and their Attempted Fulfilment.

Obvious Intent of Clodium.

XVIII. 47. Vide te, judices, quantae res his testimoniis sint confectae. Primum certe liberatur Milo non eo consilio prefectus esse, ut insidiaretur in via Cladio: quippe, si ille obvius ei futurus omnino non erat. Deinde—non enim video cur non meum quoque agam negotium—scitis, judices, fuisse qui in hac rogatione suadenda dicerent Milonis manu caedem esse factam, consilio vero majoris alicujus. Me videlicet latronem ac sicarium abjecti homines et perditii desciibebant. Jacent suis testibus [ei] qui Clodium negant eo die Romam, nisi de Cyro audisset, fuisse reediturum. Respiravi, liberatus sum; non vereor ne, quod ne suspicari quidem potuerim, videar id cogitasse. 48. Nunc persequar cetera. Nam occurrit illud: 'Igitur ne Clodius quidem de insidiis cogitavit, quoniam fuit in Albano mansurus.' Si quidem exiturus ad caedem e villa non fuisse. Video enim illum, qui dicatur de Cyri morte nuntiasse, non id nuntiasse, sed Milonem appropinquare. Nam quid de Cyro nuntiaret, quem Clodius Roma proficiscens reliquerat morientem? Una fui, testamentum simul obsignavi cum Cludio: testamentum autem palam fecerat, et illum heredem et me scripsaret. Quem pridie hora tertia animam efflantem reliquisset, eum mortuum postridie hora decima denique ei nuntiabatur?

Why did he Travel by Night?

XIX. 49. Age, sit ita factum. Quae causa cur Romam properaret? cur in noctem se coniceret? Ecquid adferebat 15 festinationis, quod heres erat? Primum, erat nihil cur properato opus esset: deinde, si quid esset, quid tandem erat quod ea nocte consequi posset, amitteret autem si postridie Romam mane venisset? Atque ut illi nocturnus ad urbem adventus vitandus potius quam expetendus fuit, sic Miloni, 20 cum insidiator esset, si illum ad urbem nocte accessurus sciebat, subsidendum atque exspectandum fuit. 50. Nemo ei neganti non credidisset, quem esse omnes salvy etiam confitentem voluit. Sustinuisset hoc crimen primum ipse ille latronum occultator et receptor locus, cum neque muta 25 solitudo indicasset neque caeca nox ostendisset Milonem; deinde ibi multi ab illo violati, spoliati, bonis expulsi, multi haec etiam timentes in suspicionem caderent, tota denique rea citaretur Etruria. 51. Atque illo die certe Aricia reidiens devertit Clodius ad Albanum. Quod ut sciret Milo illum 30 Ariciaeuisse, suspicari tamen debuit eum, etiam si Romam illo die reverteri velit, ad villam suam, quae viam tangeret, deversurum. Cur neque ante occurrit, ne ille in villa resideret, nec eo in loco subsedit, quo ille noctu venturus esset?

Conduct of Clodius and Milo Compared.

Video adhuc constare, judices, omnia:—Miloni etiam utile fuisset Clodium vivere, illi ad ea quae concupierat optatissimum interitum Milonis; odium fuisset illius in hunc acerbissimum, nullum huquis in illum; consuetudinem illius perpetuam in vi inferenda, huquis tantum in repellenda; mortem ab illo denuntiatam Miloni et praedicatam palam, nihil umquam auditum ex Milone; profectionis huquis diem illi notum, reditus illius huic ignotum fuisset; huquis iter necessarium, illius etiam potius alienum; hunc prae se tulisse illo die Roma exiturum, illum eo die se dissimulasse rediturum; hunc nullius rei mutasse consilium, illum causam mutandi consili finxisse; huic, si insidiaretur, noctem prope urbem exspectandam, illi, etiam si hunc non timeret, tamen accessum ad urbem nocturnum fuisset metuendum.

Milo Unprepared for an Affray.

XX. 53. Videamus nunc (id quod caput est) locus ad insidias ille ipse, ubi congressi sunt, utri tandem fuerit aptior. Id vero, judices, etiam dubitandum et diutius cogitandum est? Ante fundum Clodi, quo in fundo propter insanas illas substructiones facile hominum mille versabantur valentium, edito adversari atque excelsa loco, superiorese fore putarat Milo, et ob eam rem eum locum ad pugnam potissimum elegerat? an in eo loco est potius exspectatus ab eo qui ipsius loci spe facere impetum cogitarat? Res loquitur ipsa, judices, quae semper valet plurimum. 54. Si haec non gesta audiretis, sed picta videretis, tamen appare-ret uter esset insidiator, uter nihil cogitaret mali, cum alter vehetetur in raeda paenulatus, una sederet uxor. Quid horum non impeditissimum? vestitus an vehiculum an comes? Quid minus promptum ad pugnam, cum paenula
Defence of Milo.

Clodius fully Prepared.

XXI. 55. Age nunc; iter expediti latronis cum Milonis impedimentis comparate. Semper ille antea cum uxore, tum sine ea; numquam nisi in raeda, tum in equo; comites Graeculi, quocumque ibat, etiam cum in castra Etrusca properabat, tum nugarum in comitatu nihil. Milo, qui numquam, tum casu pueros symphoniaeos uxoris ducerat et ancillarum greges. Ille, qui semper secum scorta, semper exoletos, semper lupas duceret, tum neminem, nisi ut virum a viro lectum esse diceres. Cur igitur victus est? Quia non semper viator a latrone, non numquam etiam latro a viatore occiditur: quia, quamquam paratus in imparatos Clodius, tamen mulier inciderat in viros. 56. Nec vero sic erat umquam non paratus Milo contra illum, ut non satis fere esset paratus. Semper [ille] et quantum interesset P. Clodi se perire, et quanto illi odio esset, et quantum illi auderet cogitabat. Quam ob rem vitam suam, quam maximis praemiis propositam et paene addictam sciebat, numquam in periculum sine praesidio et sine custodia proiciebat. 25 Adde casus, adde incertos exitus pugnarum Martemque communem, qui saepe spoliabant jam et exsultantem evertit et percutit ab abjecto: adde inscitiam pransi, poti, oscitantis ducis, qui cum a tergo hostem interclusum reliquisset, nihil de ejus extremis comitibus cogitavit, in quos incensos ira 30 vitamque domini desperantis cum incidisset, haesit in eis poenis, quas ab eo servi fideles pro domini vita expetiverunt.

58. Dixit enim hic idem, qui omnia semper constanter et fortiter, M. Cato, et dixit in turbulenta contione, quae tamen hujus auctoritate placata est, non libertate solum, sed etiam omnibus praemiis dignissimos fuisses, qui domini caput defendissent. Quod enim praemium satis magnum est tam benevolis, tam bonis, tam fidelibus servis, propter quos vivit? Etsi id quidem non tanti est, quam quod propter eosdem non sanguine et vulneribus suis crudelissimi inimici mentem oculosque satiavit. Quos nisi manu misisset, tormentis etiam dedendi fuerunt conservatores domini, ulteres sceleris, defensores necis. Hic vero nihil habet in his malis quod minus molestis ferat, quam, etiam si quid ipsi accidat, esse tamen illis meritum praemium persolutum.

Testimony of Clodius' Slaves Untrustworthy.

de morte tamquam de caerimoniiis violatis quae ritur. Sed tamen maiores nostri in dominum [de servo] quaeriat runt, non quin posset verum inveniri, sed quia videbat indignum esse et [domini] morte ipsa tristius. In reum de servo accusatoris cum quaeritur, verum inveniri potest?

60. Age vero, quae erat aut qualis quaestio? ‘Heus tu, Rufio’ (verbi causa) ‘cave sis mentiaris. Clodius insidias fecit Miloni?’ ‘Fecit:’ ‘certa crux.’ ‘Nullas fecit:’
’sperata libertas.’ Quid hac quaestione certius? Subito abrepti in quaestionem, tamen separatunt a ceteris et in arca consciuntur, ne quis cum eis conloqui possit. Hi centum dies penes accusatorem cum fuissent, ab eo ipso accusatore producti sunt. Quid hac quaestione dici potest integrius, quid incorruptius?

Conduct of Milo after the Affray.

XXIII. 61. Quod si nondum satis cernitis, cum res ipsa tot tam claris argumentis signisque luceat, pura mente atque integra Milonem, nullo scelere imbutum, nullo metu perterritum, nulla conscientia examinatum, Romam revertisse, recordamini (per deos immortalis!) quae fuerit celeritas reditus ejus, qui ingressus in forum ardente curia, quae magnitudo animi, qui voltus, quae oratio. Neque vero se populo solum, sed etiam senatus commisit; neque senatus modo, sed etiam publicis praesidiis et armis; neque his tantum, verum etiam ejus potestati, cui senatus totam rem publicam, omnem Italiae pubem, cuncta populi Romani arma commiserat: cui numquam se hic profecto tradidisset, nisi causae suae confideret, praesertim omnia audienti,
magna metuenti, multa suspicanti, non nulla credenti.
Magna vis est conscientiae, judices, et magna in utramque partem, ut neque timeant qui nihil commiserint, et poenam semper ante oculos versari putent qui peccarent.
62. Neque vero sine ratione certa causa Milonis semper a senatu probata est. Videbant enim sapientissimi homines facti rationem, praesentiam animi, defensionis constantiam. An vero obliti estis, judices, recenti illo nuntio necis Clodiana, non modo inimicorum Milonis sermones et opiniones, sed non nullorum etiam imperitorum? Negabant eum Romam esse rediturum. 63. Sive enim illud animo irato ac percito fecisset, ut incensus odio trucidaret inimicum, arbitrabantur eum tanti mortem P. Clodi putasse, ut aequo animo patria careret, cum sanguine inimici explesset odium suum; sive etiam illius morte patriam liberare voluisset, non dubitaturum fortem virum quin, cum suo periculo salutem populo Romano attulisset, cederet aequo animo [legibus], secum auferret gloriem sempiternam, nobis haec fruenda relinqueret, quae ipse servasset. Multi etiam Catilinam atque illa portenta loquebantur: 'Erumpet, occupabit aliquem locum, bellum patriae faciet.' Miseros interdum civis optime de re publica meritos, in quibus homines non modo res praeclarissimas obliviscuntur, sed etiam nefarias suspicantur! 64. Ergo illa falsa fuerunt, quae certe vera exstitissent, si Milo admisisset aliquid quod non posset honeste vereque defendere.

Milo's Assurance of his Innocence.

XXIV. Quid? quae postea sunt in eum congeta, quae quemvis etiam mediocrium delictorum conscientia perculsit, ut sustinuit, di immortales! Sustinuit? immo vero ut contempsit ac pro nihilo putavit, quae neque maximo animo nocens neque innocens nisi fortissimus vir neglegere potuisset! Scutorum, gladiatorum, pilorumque etiam multitudo deprehendi posse indicabatur; nullum in urbe vicum, nullum angiportum esse dicebant, in quo Miloni conducta non esset domus; arma in villam Oriculum deiecta Tiberi, domus in clivo Capitolino scutis refta, plena omnia malleolorum ad urbis incendia comparatorum:
haec non delata solum, sed paene credita, nec ante repu-diata sunt quam quaesita. 65. Laudabam equidem incredi-bilem diligentiam Cn. Pompei, sed dicam ut sentio, judices.
Nmis multa audire coguntur, neque aliter facere possunt, ei quibus tota commissa est res publica. Quin etiam fuit audiendus popa Licinius nescio qui de Circo maximo, servos Milonis, apud se ebrios factos, sibi confessos esse de interficiendo Pompeio conjurasse, dein postea se gladio percus-sum esse ab uno de illis, ne indicaret. Pompeio in hortos nuntiavit; accessor in primis; de amicorum sententia rem defert ad senatum. Non poteram in illius mei patriaeque custodis tanta suspicione non metu examinari; sed mirabar 15 tamen credi popae, confessionem servorum audiri, volnus in latere, quod acu punctum videretur, pro ictu gladiatoris probari. 66. Verum, ut intellego, cavebat magis Pompeius quam timebat, non ea solum quae timenda erant, sed omnia, ne vos aliquid timeretis. Oppugnata domus C. Caesaris, 20 clarissimi et fortissimi viri, per multas noctis horas nuntiabatur. Nemo audierat tam celebri loco, nemo sensorat:
tamen audibatur. Non poteram Cn. Pompeium, prae-stantissima virtute virum, timidum suspiciari: diligentiam, tota re publica suspepta, nimiam nullam putabam. Frequintentissimo senatu nuper in Capitolio senator inventus est qui Milonem cum telo esse diceret. Nudavit se in sanctissimo templo, quoniam vita talis et civis et viri fidem non faciebat, ut eo tactente res ipsa loqueretur.

Pompey's Fear of Milo Groundless.

XXV. 67. Omnia falsa atque insidiose facta comperta 30 sunt. Cum tamen, si metuitur etiam nunc Milo, non jam hoc Clodianum crimen timemus, sed tuas, Cn. Pompei—te enim jam appello, et ea voce ut me exaudire possis — tuas, tuas, inquam, suspiciones perhorrescimus: si Milonem times; si hunc de tua vita nefarie aut nunc cogitare aut molitum aliquando aliquid putas; si Italiae dilectus (ut non nulli consquisitores tui dictitarunt), si haec arma, si Capito-lineae cohortes, si excubiae, si vigiliae, si dilecta juventus quae tuum corpus domumque custodit contra Milonis impe-tum armata est, atque illa omnia in hunc unum instituta, parata, intenta sunt,—magna in hoc certe vis et incredbilis animus, et non unius viri vires atque opes judicantur, si quidem in hunc unum et praestantissimus dux electus et tota res publica armata est. 68. Sed quis non intellegit ominis tibi rei publicae partis aegras et labantis, ut eas his armis sanares et confirmares, esse commissas? Quod si locus Miloni datus esset, probasset profecto tibi ipsi nem-nem umquam hominem homini cariorem fuisses quam te sibi;
nullum se umquam periculum pro tua dignitate fugisse; cum ipsa illa taeterrima peste se saepissime pro tua gloria contendisse; tribunatum suum ad salutem meam, quae tibi carissima fuisset, consiliis tuis gubernatum; se a te postea defensum in periculo capitis, adjutum in petitione praet-turae; duos se habere semper amicissimos sperasse, te tuo beneficio, me suo. Quae si non probaret, si tibi ita penitus inhaesisset ista suspicione nullo ut evelli modo posset, si deni-que Italia a dilectu, urbs ab armis sine Milonis clade numquam esset coniunctura, ne ille haud dubitans cessisset patria, is qui ita natus est et ita consuevit: te, Magne, tamen antestaretur, quod nunc etiam facit.

Pompey’s Action virtually Acquits Milo.

XXVI. 69. Vide quam sit varia vitae commutabilisque ratio, quam vaga volubilisque fortuna, quantae infidelitates in amiciis, quam ad tempus aptae simulationes, quantae in periculis fugae proximorum, quantae timiditates. Erit, erit illud profecto tempus, et inlucescet aliquando ille dies, cum tu—salutaribus, ut spero, rebus tuis, sed fortasse motu aliqvo communium temporum, qui quam crebro accidat experti scire debemus—et amicissimi benevolentiam et gravissimi hominis fident et unius post homines natos for-tissimi viri magnitudinem animi desideres. 70. Quamquam quis hoc credat, Cn. Pompeium, juris publici, moris majorum, rei denique publicae peritissimum, cum senatus ei commiserit ut videret Ne quid res publica detrimenti caperet (quo uno versiculo satis armati semper consules fuerunt, 10 etiam nullis armis datis), hunc exercitu, hunc dilectu dato, judicium expectaturum fuisse in ejus consiliis vindicandis, qui vi judicia ipsa tolleret? Satis judicatum est a Pompeio, satis, falsa ista conferri in Milonem, qui legem tulit, qua, ut ego sentio, Milonem absolvit a vobis oporteret, ut omnes 15 confitentur, liceret. 71. Quod vero in illo loco atque illis publicorum praesidiorum copiis circumfusus sedet, satis declarat se non terrorem inferre vobis—quid enim minus illo dignum quam cogere ut vos eum condemnatis, in quem animadvertere ipse et more majorum et suo jure posset? 20 sed praesidio esse, ut intellegatis contra hesternam illam contionem licere vobis quod sentiatis libere judicaret.

The Killing of Clodius a Service to the State.

XXVII. 72. Nec vero me, judices, Clodianum crimen movet, nec tam sum demens tamque vestri sensus ignarus atque expers, ut nesciam quid de morte Clodi sentiatis. 25 De qua, si jam nollem ita diluere crimen, ut dilui, tamen impune Miloni palam clamare ac mentiri gloriose liceret:
 'Occidi, occidi, non Sp. Maelium, qui annona levanda jactu-risque rei familiaris, quia nimis amplexi plebem videbatur, in suspicione incidunt regni appetendi; non Ti. Gracchum, 30 qui conlegae magistratum per seditionem abrogavit, quorum interfectores impleverunt orbem terrarum nominis sui gloria; sed eum — auderet enim dicere, cum patriam periculō suo liberasset — cujus nefandum adulterium in pulvinari- bus sanctissimis nihilissimae feminae comprehenderunt; 73. eum cujus supplicio senatus sollemnis religiones expi- andas saepe censuit; eum quem cum sorore germana nefari- rium stuprum fecisse L. Lucullus juratus se quaestionibus habitis dixit comperisse; eum qui civem quem senatus, quem populus Romanus, quem omnes gentes urbis ac vitae civium conservatorem judicarent, servorum armis extermini- navit; eum qui regna dedit, ademit, orbem terrarum qui- buscum voluit partitus est; eum qui, plurimis caedibus in foro factis, singuli virtute et gloria civem domum vi et armis compulsit; eum cui nihil umquam nefas fuit, nec in facinore nec in libidine; eum qui aedem Nymphaum incen- dit, ut memoriam publicam recensionis tabulis publicis impressam extinguere; 74. eum denique, cui jam nulla lex erat, nullum civile jus, nulli possessionum termini; qui non calumnia liti, non injustis vindiciis ac sacramentis alienos fundos, sed castris, exercitu, signis inferendis petebat; 20 qui non solum Etruscos — eos enim penitus contemperat — sed hunc P. Varium, fortissimum atque optimum civem, judicem nostrum, pellere possessionibus armis castrisque conatus est; qui cum architectis et decempedis villas mul- torum hortosque peragraban; qui Janiculo et Alpibus spem possessionum terminarcat suarum; qui, cum ab equite Ro- mano splendido et forti, M. Paconio, non impestrasset ut sibi insulam in lacu Prilio venderet, repente luntribus in eam insulam materiem, calcem, caementa, arma convexit, dominoque trans ripam inspectante, non dubitavit exstruere aedificium in alieno; 75. qui huic T. Furfanio,— cui viro, di immortales! quid enim ego de muliercula Scantia, quid de adolescente P. Apinio dico? quorum utrique mortem est minitatus, nisi sibi hortorum possessione cessissent,— sed ausum esse Furfanio dicere, si sibi pecuniam, quantam poposcerat, non dedisset, mortuum se in domum ejus inlaturum, qua invidia huic esset tali viro conflagrandum; qui Appium fratrem, hominem mihi conjunctum fidissima gratia, absentem de possessione fundi deject; qui parietem sic per vestibulum sororis instituit ducere, sic agere fundamenta, ut sororem non modo vestibulo privaret, sed omni aditu et limine.'

No Safety for Rome while Clodius Lived.

XXVIII. 76. Quamquam haec quidem jam tolerabilia videbantur, etsi aequabiliter in rem publicam, in privatos, in longinquos, in propinquos, in alienos, in suos inruebat; sed nescio quo modo jam usu obduruerat et perrucerat civitatis incredibilis patientia. Quae vero aderant jam et impendebant, quonam modo ea aut depellere potuisset aut ferre? Imperium ille si nactus esset, — omittam socios, externas nationes, reges, tetrarchias; vota enim facetis, ut in eos se potius immitteret quam in vestras possessiones, vestra tecta, vestras pecunias: — pecunias dico? a liberis (me dius fidius) et a conjugibus vestris numquam ille effrenatas suas libidines cohibuisset. Fingi haec putatis, quae patent, quae nota sunt omnibus, quae tenentur? servorum exercitus illum in urbe conscripturum fuisse, per quos totam rem publicam resque privatas omnium possideret? 77. Quam ob rem si cruentum gladium tenens clamaret T. Annius: 'Adeste, quaeo, atque audite, cives: P. Clodium interfeci; ejus furores, quos nullis jam legibus, nullis judiciis frenare pote-ramus, hoc ferro et hac dextra a cervicibus vestris repulsi, per me ut unum jus, aequitas, leges, libertas, pudor, pudicitia in civitate maneret!' esset vero timendum, quonam modo id ferret civitas! Nunc enim quis est qui non probet, qui non laudet, qui non unum post hominum memoriam 30 T. Annium plurimum rei publicae profuisse, maxima laetitia populum Romanum, cunctam Italiam, nationes omnis ad-

Tyrannicide a Virtue.

XXIX. Non, timeo, judices, ne odio inimicitiarum meum inflammatus libentius haec in illum evomere videar quam verius. Etenim si praecipuum esse debebat, tamen ita communis erat omnium ille hostis, ut in communi odio paene aequaliter versaretur odium meum. Non potest dici satis, ne cogitari quidem, quantum in illo sceleris, quantum exiti fuerit. 79. Quin sic attendite, judices. Nempe haec est quaestio de interitu P. Clodi. Fingite animis — liberae sunt enim nostrae cogitationes, et quae volunt sic intuentur ut ea cernimus quae videmus — fingite igitur cogitatione imaginem hujus condicionis meae, si possim efficere ut Milonem absolvatis, sed ita, si P. Clodius revixerit. Quid vult extimuistis? quonam modo ille vos vivus adsciceret, quos mortuos inani cogitatione percurrisset? Quid! si ipse Cn. Pompeius, qui ea virtute ac fortuna est ut ea potuerit semper quae nemo praeter illum, si is, inquam, potuisset aut quaestionem de morte P. Clodi ferre aut ipsum ab inferis excitare, utrum putatis potius facturum fuisset? Etiam si propter amicitiam velit illum ab inferis evocare, propter rem publicam non fecisset. Eius igitur mortis sedetis ulterum, cujus vitam si putetis per vos restitui posse, nolitis; et de ejus nece lata quaestio est, qui si lege eadem reviviscere posset, lata lex numquam esset. Hujus ergo interfecto si esset, in confitendo ab eisne poenam timeret quos liberavisset? Graeci homines deorum honores tribuunt eis viris qui tyrannos necaverunt. Quae ego vidi Athenis! quae aliis in urbibus Graeciae! quas res divinas talibus institutas viris! quos cantus, quae carmina! prope ad immortalitatis et religionem et memoriam consecravitur. Vos tanti conservatorem populi, tanti sceleris ulterum non modo honoribus nullis adficietis, sed etiam ad supplicium rapi patiemini? Confiteretur, confiteretur, inquam, si fecisset, et magno animo et libenter fecisse se libertatis omnium causa, quod esset ei non confitendum modo, verum etiam praedicandum.

If Milo were Guilty, he would Boast of his Guilt.

XXX. 81. Etenim si id non negat ex quo nihil petit nisi ut ignoscatur, dubitaret id fateri ex quo etiam praemia laudis essent petenda? nisi vero gratius putat esse vobis sui se capitis quam vestri defensorem fuisset, cum praesertim [in] ea confessione, si grati esse velletis, honores adsequeretur amplissimos. Si factum vobis non probaretur — quamquam qui poterat salus sua cuium non probari? — sed tamen si minus fortissimi viri virtus civibus grata cecidisset, magno animo constantiique cederet ex ingrata civitate. Nam quid esset ingratius quam laetari ceteros, lugere eum solum propter quem ceteri laetarentur? 82. Quamquam hoc animo semper omnes fuimus in patriae proditoribus opprimendis, ut, quoniam nostra futura esset gloria, periculum quoque et invidiam nostram putaremus. Nam quae mihi ipsi tribuenda laus esset, cum tantum in consulatu meo pro vobis ac liberis vestris ausus essem, si id, quod conabar sine maximis dimicationibus meis me esse ausurum arbitrarer? Quae mulier sceleratum ac perniciosum civem interficere non aderet, si periculum non timeret? Proposita invidia, morte, poena, qui nihil segnius rem publicam defendit, is vir vere putan-dus est. Populi grati est praemiiis adscriere bene meritos de re publica civis; viri fortis ne suppliciis quidem moveri ut fortiter fecisset paeniteat. 83. Quam ob rem uteretur eadem confessione T. Annius qua Ahala, qua Nasica, qua Opimius, qua Marius, qua nosmet ipsi; et, si grata res publica esset, laetaretur: si ingrata, tamen in gravi fortuna conscientia sua niteretur.

But the Death of Clodius was the Work of the Immortal Gods.

Sed hujus benefici gratiam, judices, fortuna populi Romani et vestra felicitas et di immortales sibi debere putant. Nec vero quisquam aliter arbitrari potest, nisi qui nullam vim esse ducit numenve divinum; quem neque imperi nostri magnitudo neque sol ille nec caeli signorumque motus nec vicissitudines rerum atque ordines movent, neque (id quod maximum est) majorum sapientia, qui sacra, qui caerimonias, qui auspicia et ipsi sanctissime coluerunt, et nobis suis posteris prodiderunt. XXXI. 84. Est, est profecto illa vis:
neque in his corporibus atque in hac imbicillitate nostra inest quiddam quoque vigeat et sentiat, et non inest in hoc tanto naturae tam praeclaro motu. Nisi forte idcirco non putant, quia non apparit nec cernitur: proinde quasi nostram ipsam mentem qua sapimus, qua providemus, qua haec ipsa agimus ac dicimus, videre aut plane qualis aut ubi sit sentire possimus. Ea vis igitur ipsa, quae saepe incredibilis huic urbi felicitates atque opes attulit, illam perniciem extinxit ac sustulit; cui primum mentem injicit, ut vi irritare ferroque laccere fortissimum virum aderet, vincereturque ab eo, quem si vicisset habiturus esset impunitatem et licentiam sempiternam.
85. Non est humano consilio, ne mediocri quidem, judices, deorum immortalium cura, res illa perfecta. Religiones me hercule ipsae, quae illam beluam cadere viderunt, commosse se videntur, et jus in illo suum retinuisse. Vos enim jam, Albani tumuli atque luci, vos, inquam, imploro atque obtestor; vosque, Albanorum obrutae arae, sacrorum populi Romani sociae et aequales, quas ille praecps amement, caesis prostratisque sanctissimis lucis, substructionum insanis molibus oppresserat. Vestrae tum [arae] vestrae religiones viguerunt; vestra vis valuit, quam ille omni scelere polluerat. Tuque ex tuo edito monte, Latiaris sancte Juppiter, cujus ille lacus, nemora finisque saepe omni nefario stupro et scelere macularat, aliquando ad eum pœniendum oculos aperuisti. Vobis illae, vobis vestro in conspectu serae, sed justae tamen et debitae poenae solutae sunt. 86. Nisi forte hoc etiam casu factum esse dicemus, ut ante ipsum sacrarium Bonae deae, quod est in fundo T. Sergi Galli, in primis honesti et ornati adolescentis, ante ipsam, inquam, Bonam deam, cum proelium commisisset, primum illud volnus acciperet, quo taeterrimam mortem obiret; ut non absolutus judicio illo nefario videretur, sed ad hanc insignem poenam reservatus. XXXII. Nec vero non eadem ira deorum hanc ejus satellitibus injecit amenantiam, ut sine imaginibus, sine cantu atque ludis, sine exsequiis, sine lamentis, sine laudationibus, sine funere, oblitus cruoere et luto, spoliatus illius supremi diei celebritate, cui cedere inimici etiam solent, ambureretur abjectus. Non fuisse credo fas clarissimorum virorum formas illi taeterrimo parricideae aliquid decoris adferre, nequeullo in loco potius mortem ejus lacerari quam in quo vita esset damnata.

Too Long had Clodius Vexed the Republic.

87. Dura (me dius fidi) mihi jam Fortuna populi Romani et crudelis videbatur, quae tot annos illum in hanc rem publicam insultare pateretur. Polluerat stupro sanc-

It was the Gods that Urged him on to his Doom.

Defence of Milo.

His Crimes had Become Intolerable.

90. An ille praetor, ille vero consul, — si modo haec templo atque ipsa moenia stare eo vivo tam diu et consularum ejus exspectare potuisset, — ille denique vivus mali nihil fecisset, qui mortuus, uno ex suis satellitus [Sex. Clodio] duce, curiam incenderit? Quo quid miserius, quid acerbius, quid luctuosius vidimus? Templum sanctitatis, amplitudinis, mentis, consili publici, caput urbis, aram sociorum, portum omnium gentium, sedem ab universo populo concessam uni ordini, inflammari, exscindi, funestari? neque id fieri a multitudine imperita — quamquam esset miserum id ipsum — sed ab uno? Qui cum tantum ausus sit ustor pro mortuo, quid signifer pro vivo non esset ausus? In curiam potissimum abjectit, ut eam mortuus incenderet, quam vivus everterat. 91. Et sunt qui de via Appia requantur, taceant de curia! et qui ab eo spirante forum putent potuisse defendi, cujus non restiterit cadaveri curia! Excitate, exicite ipsum, si potestis, a mortuis. Frangetis impetum vivi, cujus vix sustinetis fuias inseptuli? Nisi vero sustinuistis eos qui cum facibus ad curiam cucurrununt, cum falcibus ad Castoris, cum gladiis toto foro volitarunt. Caedi vidistis populum Romanum, contionem gladiis disturbari, cum audiretur silentio M. Caelius, tribunus plebis, vir et in re publica fortissimus, et in suscepta causa firmissimus, et honorum voluntati et auctoritati senatus deditus, et in hac Milonis sive invidia sive fortuna singulari, divina et incredibili fide.

Milo Deserves the Compassion of the Judges.

XXXIV. 92. Sed jam satis multa de causa: extra causam etiam nimis fortasse multa. Quid restat nisi ut orem obsteterque vos, judices, ut eam misericordiam tribuatis fortissimo viro, quam ipse non implorat, ego etiam repugnante hoc et imploro et exposco? Nolite, si in nostro omnium fletu nullam lacrimam aspexitis Milonis, si voltum semper eundem, si vocem, si orationem stabilem ac non mutatam videtis, hoc minus ei parcare: haud scio an multo sit etiam adjuvandus magis. Etenim si in gladiatoriis pugnis et infimi generis hominum condicione atque fortuna timidos atque supplices et ut vivere liceat obsecrantis etiam odisse solemus, fortis atque animosos et se acrier ipsos morti offerentis servare cupimus, eorumque nos magis miseret qui nostram misericordiam non requirunt quam qui illam efflagitant, — quanto hoc magis in fortissimis civibus facere debemus?

He Bids Farewell to the Ungrateful City.

93. Me quidem, judices, examinant et interimunt hae voces Milonis, quas audio adsidue et quibus intersum cotidie. 'Valeant,' inquit, 'valeant cives mei: sint incolumes, sint florentes, sint beati: stet haec urbs praecitra mihique patria carissima, quoquo modo erit merita de me. Tranquilla re publica mei cives, quoniam mihi cum illis non licet, sine me ipsi, sed propter me tamen perfruantur. Ego cedam atque abibo: si mihi bona re publica frui non licuerit, at carebo mala, et quam primum tetigero bene moratam et liberam civitatem, in ea conquiescam. 94. O frustra,' inquit, 'mihi suscepti labores! O spes fallaces et cogitationes inanes meae! Ego cum tribunus plebis re publica oppressa me senatui dedissem, quem extinctum acceperam, equitibus Romanis, quorum vires erant debiles, bonis viris, qui omnem auctoritatem Clodianis armis abjecerant, mihi umquam bonorum praesidium defuturum putarem? ego cum te — mecum enim saepissime loquitur — 'patriae reddissem, mihi putarem in patria non futurum locum? Ubis nunc senatus est, quem seuti sumus? ubi equites Romani illi [illi],' inquit, 'tui? ubi studia municipiorum? ubi Italiae voces? ubi denique tua illa, M. Tulli, quae plurimis fuit auxilio, vox atque defensio? mihi ne ea soli, qui pro te totiens morti me obtuli, nihil potest opitulari?'

Calmly Resigned, he Appeals to the Judgment of Posterity.

XXXV. 95. Nec vero haec, judices, ut ego nunc, flens, sed hoc eodem loquitur voltu quo videtis. Negat enim, egnat ingratissim civibus fecisse se quae fecerit; timidis et omnia circumspectionibus pericula non negat. Plebem et insimam multitudinem, quae P. Clodio duce fortunis vestris imminebat, eam, quo tutior esset vestra vita, se fecisse commemorat ut non modo virtute flecteret, sed etiam tribus suis patrimoniiis deleniret; nec timet ne, cum plebem mune-ribus placarit, vos non conciliari meritis in rem publicam singularibus. Senatus erga se benevolentiam temporibus his ipsis saeppe esse perspectam, vestras vero et vestrorum ordinum occasaciones, studia, sermones, quemcumque cursum fortuna dederit, se secum ablaturum esse dicit. 96. 15 Meminit etiam sibi vocem praeconis modo defuisse, quam minime desiderarit; populi vero cunctis suffragiis, quod unum cupierit, se consulem declaratum: nunc denique, si haec contra se sint futura, sibi facinoris suspicionei, non facti crimen obstare. Addit haec, quae certe vera sunt:
fortis et sapientis viros non tam praemia sequi solere recte factorum, quam ipsa recte facta; se nihil in vita nisi praecclarissime fecisse, si quidem nihil sit praestabilius viro quam periculis patriam liberare; beatos esse quibus ea res honori fuerit a suis civibus, 97. nec tamen eos miserios qui bene-ficio civis suos vicerint; sed tamen ex omnibus praemiis virtutis, si esset habenda ratio praemiorum, amplissimum esse praemium gloriam: esse hanc unam quae brevitate vitae posteritatis memoria consolaretur; quae efficeret ut absentes adessemus, mortui viveremus; hanc denique esse, 30 cujus gradibus etiam in caelum homines viderentur ascen-dere. 98. 'De me,' inquit, 'semper populus Romanus, semper omnes gentes loquentur, nulla umquam obmutescet vetustas. Quin hoc tempore ipso, cum omnes a meis inimiciis faces invidiae meae subiciantur, tamen omni in hominem coetu gratiss agendis et gratulationibus habendis et omni sermone celebramur.' Omitto Etruriae festos et actos et institutos dies: centesima lux est haec ab interim P. Clodi, et (opinor) altera. Qua fines imperi populi Romani sunt, ea non solum fama jam de illo, sed etiam laetitia peragravit. Quam ob rem 'Ubi corpus hoc sit non,' inquit, 'laboro, quoniam omnibus in terris et jam versatur et semper habitabit nominis mei gloria.'

Milo's Cause is Cicero's own.

XXXVI. 99. Haec tu mecum saepe his absentibus, sed isdem audientibus haec ego tecum, Milo: 'Te quidem, cum isto animo es, satis laudare non possum; sed, quo est ista magis divina virtus, eo majore a te dolore dvellor. Nec vero, si mihi eriperis, reliqua est illa tamen ad consolandum querella, ut eis irasci possim, a quibus tantum volvus accepsero. Non enim inimici mei te mihi eripient, sed amicissimi; non male aliquando de me meriti, sed semper optime.'

20 Nullum umquam, judices, mihi tantum dolorem inureatis — etsi quis potest esse tantus? — sed ne hunc quidem ipsum, ut obliviscar quanti me semper feceritis. Quae si vos cepit oblivio, aut si in me aliquid offendidistis, cur non id meo capite potius luitur quam Milonis? Praeclare enim vixero, si quid mihi acciderit prius quam hoc tantum mali videro.

100. Nunc me una consolatio sustentat, quod tibi, T. Anni, nullum a me amoris, nullum studi, nullum pietatis officium defuit. Ego inimicitias potentium pro te appetivi; ego meum saepe corpus et vitam objeci armis inimicorum tuorum; ego me plurimis pro te supplicem abjeci; bona, fortunas meas ac liberorum meorum in communionem tuorum temporum contuli: hoc denique ipso die, si quae vis est parata, si quae dimicatio capitis futura, deposco. Quid jam restat? Quid habeo quod faciam pro tuis in me meritis, nisi ut eam fortunam, quaecumque erit tua, ducam meam? Non recuso, non abnuo; vosque obsecro, judices, ut vestra beneficia, quae in me contulistis, aut in hujus salute augeatis, aut in ejusdem exitio occasura esse videatis.

His Exile will be a Calamity to the Defenders of Rome.

ei per quos essem restitutus? Nolite, obseco vos, acerbiorum mihi pati reditum esse, quam fuerit ille ipse descessus. Nam qui possum putare me restitutum esse, si distrahah ab his, per quos restitutus sum?

Happy the Country that Receives him!

5 XXXVIII. Utinam di immortales fecissent — pace tua, patria, dixerim; metuo enim ne scelerate dicam in te quod pro Milone dicam pie — utinam P. Clodius non modo viveret, sed etiam praetor, consul, dictator esset, potius quam hoc spectaculum viderem! 104. O di immortales! fortetm et a vobis, judices, conservandum virum! 'Minime, minime,' inquit. 'Immo vero poenas ille debitas luerit: nos subeamus, si ita necesse est, non debitas.' Hicine vir, patriae natus, usquam nisi in patria morietur? aut, si forte, pro patria? Hujus vos animi monumenta retinebitis, corporis in Italia nullum sepulcrum esse patierni? Hunc sua quisquam sententia ex hac urbe expellet, quem omnes urbes expulsuwn a vobis ad se vocabunt? 105. O terram illam beatam, quae hunc virum exceperit: hanc ingratam, si ejecerit; miseram, si amiserit!

Closing Appeal to the Court.

CAESAR.

(Bust in the Museum of the Louvre.)
its tone of eulogy in regard to Caesar, and for the hope it expresses of an era of good feeling and a restored republic.

Marcellus set out for Rome, but never arrived. He was assassinated at the Piræus, and buried in the Academy near Athens.

Cicero’s Long Silence Broken.

DIUTURNI silenti, patres conscripti, quo eram his temporibus usus—non timore aliquo, sed partim dolore, partim verecundia—finem hodiernus dies attulit, idemque initium quae vellem quaeque sentirem meo pristino more dicendi. Tantam enim mansuetudinem, tam inusitatam inauditamque clementiam, tantum in summa potestate re-rum omnium modum, tam denique incredibilem sapientiam ac paene divinam, tacitus praeferire nullo modo possum.

2. M. enim Marcellum vos, patres conscripti, reique publi-cae reddito, non illius solum, sed etiam meam vocem et auct-oritatem et vos in rei publicae conservatam ac restitutam puto. Dolebam enim, patres conscripti, et vehementer angebar, virum talem, cum in eadem causa in qua ego fuisset, non in eadem esse fortuna; nec mihi persuadere poteram, nec fas esse ducebam, versari me in nostro vetere curriculo, illo aemulo atque imitatore studiorum ac laborum meorum, quasi quodam socio a me et comite, distracto.

Caesar’s Pardon of Marcellus an Earnest of a Restored Republic.

Ergo et mihi meae pristinae vitae consuetudinem, C.
Caesar, interclusam aperuisti, et his omnibus ad bene de [omni] re publica sperandum quasi signum aliquod sustulisti. 3. Intellectum est enim mihi quidem in multis, et maxime in me ipso, sed paulo ante [in] omnibus, cum
M. Marcellum senatui rei publicae concessisti, com-memoratis praesertim ofisionibus, te auctoritatem hujus ordinis dignitatemque rei publicae tuis vel doloribus vel suspicionibus anteferre. Ille quidem fructum omnis ante actae vitae hodierno die maximum cepit, cum summo consensu senatus, tum judicio tuo gravissimo et maximo. Ex quo profecto intellegis quanta in dato beneficio sit laus, cum in accepto sit tanta gloria. Est vero fortunatus ille, cujus ex salute non minor paene ad omnis quam ad ipsum ventura sit laetitia pervenerit. 4. Quod quidem ei merito atque optimo jure contigit. Quis enim est illo aut nobilitate aut probitate aut optimarum artium studio aut innocentia aut ullo laudis genere praestantior?

This is the Greatest of Caesar's Deeds.

II. Nullius tantum flumen est ingeni, nullius dicendi aut scribendi tanta vis, tanta copia, quae non dicam exornare, sed enarrare, C. Caesar, res tuas gestas possit. Tamen adfirmo, et hoc pace dicam tua, nullam in his esse laudem ampliorem quam eam quam hodierno die consecutus es. 5. Soleo saepe ante oculos ponere, idque libenter crebris usurpare sermonibus, omnis nostrorum imperatorum, omnis extarerum gentium potentissimorumque populorum, omnis clarissimorum regum res gestas, cum tuis nec contentionum magnitudine nec numero proeliorum nec varietate regionum nec celeritate conficiendi nec dissimilitudine bellorum posse conferri; nec vero disjunctissimas terras citius passibus cujusquam potuisse peragri, quam tuis non dicam cursibus, sed victorius lustratae sunt. 6. Quae quidem ego nisi ita magna esse fatear, ut ea vix cujusquam mens aut cogitatio capere possit, amens sim: sed tamen sunt alia majora. 25 Nam bellicas laudes solent quidam extenuare verbis, easque detrahere ducibus, communicare cum multis, ne propriae sint imperatorum. Et certe in armis militum virtus, locorum opportunitas, auxilia sociorum, classes, commensus multum juvant: maximam vero partem quasi suo jure Fortuna sibi vindicat, et quicquid prospere gestum est, id paene omne dicit suum. 7. At vero hujus gloriae, C. Caesar,

His Other Exploits were Glorious Victories.

III. 8. Domuisti gentis immanitate barbaras, multitudine innumerabilis, locis infinitas, omni copiarum genere abundantis: sed tamen ea vicisti, quae et naturam et condicionem ut vinci possent habeant. Nulla est enim tanta vis, quae non ferro et viribus debilitari frangique possit. Animum vincere, iracundiam cohibere, victoriam temperare, adversarium nobilitate, ingenio, virtute praestantem non modo extollere jacentem, sed etiam amplificare ejus pristinam dignitatem, haec qui facit, non ego eum cum summis viris comparo, sed simillimum deo judico. 9. Itaque, C. Caesar, bellicae tuae laudes celebrabuntur illae quidem non solum nostris, sed paene omnium gentium litteris atque linguis, nec ulla umquam aetas de tuis laudibus conticescit. Sed tamen ejus modi res nescio quo modo etiam cum leguntur, obstrepi clamore militum videntur et tubarum sono.

This is the Conquest of Himself.

At vero cum aliquid clementer, mansuete, juste, moderate, sapienter factum—in iracundia praestim, quae est inimica consilio, et in victoria, quae natura insolens et superba est—audimus aut legitimus, quo studio incendimur, non modo in gestis rebus, sed etiam in fictis, ut eos saepe, quos numquam vidimus, diligamus! 10. Te vero, quem praesentem intuemur, cujus mentem sensusque et os cernimus, ut, quicquid belli fortuna reliquum rei publicae fecerit, id esse salvum velis, quibus laudibus efferemus? quibus studiis prosequemur? qua benevolentia complectemur? Parietes (me dius fidius) ut mihi videtur hujus curiae tibi gratias agere gestiunt, quod brevi tempore futura sit illa auctoritas in his majorum suorum et suis sedibus. IV. Equidem cum C. Marcelli, viri optimi et commemorabili pietate praediti, lacrimas modo vobiscum viderem, omnium Marcellorum meum pectus memoria obfudit, quibus tu etiam mortuis, M. Marcello conservato, dignitatem suam reddidisti, nobilissimamque familiam jam ad paucos redactam paene ab interitu vindicasti.

He Shares this Conquest with No One.

doleoque, cum res publica immortalis esse debeat, eam in unius mortalis anima consistere. 23. Si vero ad humanos casus incertosque motus valetudinis sceleris etiam accedit insidiarumque consensio, quem deum, si cupiat, posse opi-tulari rei publicae credamus?

The Wounds of War must be Healed.

VIII. Omnia sunt excitanda tibi, C. Caesar, uni, quae jacere sentis, belli ipsius impetu, quod necesse fuit, perculsa atque prostrata: constituen dudia, revocanda fides, comprimendae libidine, propaganda suboles: omnia, quae dilapsa jam difflexerunt, severis legibus vincienda sunt. 10
24. Non fuit recusandum in tanto civili bello, tanto animorum ardore et armorum, quin quassata res publica, quicumque belli eventus fuisset, multa perderet et ornamenta dignitatis et praesidia stabilitatis suae; multaque uterque dux faceret armatus, quae idem togatus fieri prohibuisset. 15 Quae quidem tibi nunc omnia belli volnera sananda sunt, quibus praeter te nemo mederi potest. 25. Itaque illam tuam praeclarissimam et sapientissimam vocem invitus audi vi: 'Satis diu vel naturae vixi vel gloriae.' Satis, si ita vis, fortasse naturae, addo etiam, si placet, gloriae: at, 20 quod maximum est, patriae certe parum. Qua re omitte istam, quaeso, doctorum hominum in contemnenda morte prudentiam: noli nostro periculo esse sapiens. Saepe enim venit ad auris meas te idem istud nimis crebro dicere, tibi satis te vixisse. Credo: sed tum id audirem, si tibi soli 25 viveres, aut si tibi etiam soli natus esses. Omnum salutem civium cunctamque rem publicam res tuae gestae complexae sunt: tantum abes a perfectione maximorum operum, ut fundamenta nondum quae cogitas jeceris. Hic tu modum vitae tuae non salute rei publicae, sed aequitate animi 30 definies? Quid, si istud ne gloriae tuae quidem satis est?
cujus te esse avidissimum, quamvis sis sapiens, non negabis.
26. Parumne igitur, inquies, magna relinquemus? Immo vero aliis quamvis multis satis, tibi uni parum. Quicquid est enim, quamvis amplum sit, id est parum tum, cum est aliquid amplius. Quod si rerum tuarum immortalium, C. Caesar, hic exitus futurus fuit, ut devictis adversariis rem publicam in eo statu relinqueres in quo nunc est, vide, quæeso, ne tua divina virtus admirationis plus sit habitura quam gloriam: si quidem gloria est inlustris ac pervagata magnorum vel in suos vel in patriam vel in omne genus hominum fama meritorum.

Cæsar’s Work not Done till the State is Restored.

IX. 27. Haec igitur tibi reliqua pars est: hic restat actus, in hoc elaborandum est, ut rem publicam constituas, eaque tu in primis summa tranquillitate et oti perfruare: tum te, si voles, cum et patriae quod debes solveris, et naturam ipsam expleveris satietate vivendi, satis diu vixisse dico. Quid est enim [omnino] hoc ipsum diu, in quo est aliquid extremum? quod cum venit, omnis voluptas praeterita pro nihilo est quia postea nulla est futura. Quamquam iste tuus animus numquam his angustiis, quas natura nobis ad vivendum dedit, contentus fuit: semper immortalitatis amore flagravit. 28. Nec vero haec tua vita ducenda est, quae corpore et spiritu continetur. Illa, inquam, illa vita est tua, quae vigebit memoria saeculorum omnium, quam posteritas alet, quam ipsa aeternitas semper tuebitur. Huic tu inserias, huic te ostentes oportet, quae quidem quae miretur jam pridem multa habet: nunc etiam quae laudet exspectat. Obstupescent posteri certe imperia, provincias, Rhenum, Oceanum, Nilum, pugnas innumerabilis, incredibilis victoribus, monimenta, munera, triumphos audientes et legentes tuos.
Only Then will his Fame be Secure.

29. Sed nisi haec urbs stabilita tuis consiliis et institutis erit, vagabitur modo tuum nomen longe atque late: sedem stabilem et domicilium certum non habebit. Erit inter eos etiam qui nascentur, sicut inter nos fuit, magna dissensio, cum alii laudibus ad caelum res tuas gestas efferent, alii fortasse aliquid requirent, idque vel maximum, nisi bellis civilis incendium salutem patriae restinxeris, ut illud fati fuisse videatur, hoc consili. Servi igitur eis etiam judicibus, qui multis post saeculis de te judicabunt, et quidem haud scio an incorruptius quam nos. Nam et sine amore et sine cupiditate et rursus sine odio et sine invidia judicabunt. 30. Id autem etiam si tum ad te, ut quidam falso putant, non pertinebit; nunc certe pertinet esse te talem, ut tuas laudes obscuratura nulla unquam sit oblivio.

The Civil War is Finished.

X. Diversae voluntates civium fuerunt, distractaeque sententiae. Non enim consiliis solum et studiis, sed armis etiam et castris dissidebamus. Erat enim obscuritas quaedam; erat certamen inter clarissimos duces: multi dubitabant quid optimum esset, multi quid sibi expediret, multi quid decreret, non nulli etiam quid liceret. 31. Perfuncta res publica est hoc misero fatalique bello: vicit is, qui non fortuna inflammaret odium suum, sed bonitate leniret; neque omnis quibus iratus esset, eosdem [etiam] exsilio aut morte dignos judicaret. Arma ab aliis posita, ab aliis erepta sunt. Ingratus est injustusque civis, qui, armorum periculo liberatus, animum tamen retinet armatum; ut etiam ille melior sit qui in acie cecidit, qui in causa animam profudit. Quae enim pertinacia quibudam, eadem aliis constantia videri potest. 32. Sed jam omnis fracta dissensio est armis, exstincta aequitate victoris: restat ut omnes unum velint, qui modo habent aliquid non solum sapientiae, sed etiam sanitatis. Nisi te, C. Caesar, salvo, et in ista sententia qua cum antea tum hodie vel maxime usus es manente, salvi esse non possumus. Qua re omnes te, qui haec salva esse volumus, et hortamur et obsecramus, ut vitae tuae et saluti consulas; omnesque tibi, ut pro aliis etiam loquar quod de me ipse sentio, quoniam subesse aliquid putas quod cavendum sit, non modo excubias et custodias, sed etiam laterum nostrorum oppositus et corporum pollicemur.

Boundless Gratitude Due to Caesar.

XI. 33. Sed, ut unde est orsa, in eodem terminetur oratio, — maximas tibi omnes gratias agimus, C. Caesar, maiores etiam habemus. Nam omnes idem sentiunt, quod ex omnium precibus et lacrimis sentire potuisti: sed quia non est omnibus stantibus necesse dicere, a me certe dici volunt, cui necesse est quodam modo, et quod fieri decet — M. Marcello a te huic ordini populoque Romano et rei publicae reddito — fieri id intellego. Nam laetari omnis non de unius solum, sed de communi omnium salute sentio. 34. Quod autem summae benevolentiae est, quae mea erga illum omnibus semper nota fuit, ut vix C. Marcello, optimo et amantissimo fratri, praeter eum quidem cederem nemini, cum id sollicitudine, cura, labore tam diu praestiterim, quam diu est de illius salute dubitatum, certe hoc tempore, magnis curis, molestiis, doloribus liberatus, praestare debeo. Itaque, 25 C. Caesar, sic tibi gratias ago, ut omnibus me rebus a te non conservato solum, sed etiam ornato, tamen ad tua in me unum innumerabilia merita, quod fieri jam posse non arbitrabar, maximus hoc tuo facto cumulus accesserit.
PLEA FOR LIGARIUS.

(Pro Q. Ligario.)

b.c. 46.

QUINTUS LIGARIUS, in the first year of the Civil War, had held a subordinate position in Africa, under the Pompeian general, P. Attius Varus. In this capacity it had fallen to him to prevent the landing of L. Ælius Tubero, whom the Senate had sent to take command in Africa, but to whom Varus refused to give up the post. When the war was over, Cæsar spared the life of Ligarius, but kept him in exile, until a personal application for his recall was made by his brother, T. Ligarius. Quintus Tubero (afterwards a distinguished jurist) came forward to oppose this, on the ground that Ligarius had not merely taken sides in the Civil War, but had stood with Juba and the foreign enemies of Rome against his native country. The case was argued in the Forum before Cæsar himself, sitting in judgment as Dictator. With characteristic magnanimity, Cæsar gave Ligarius a full pardon. This Ligarius requited, a year and a half later, by joining in the plot for his murder.

Though the case of Ligarius is of no importance in itself, the speech of Cicero in his defence ranks among the first of his orations in rhetorical merit, and is interesting, besides, for the glimpse it gives of the state of feeling in Rome during Cæsar’s dictatorship.
A Strange Charge, Forsooth, is this against Ligarius.

Novum crimen, C. Caesar, et ante hunc diem non auditum propinquus meus ad te Q. Tubero detulit, Q. Ligarium in Africa fuisse; idque C. Pansa, praestanti vir ingenio, fretus fortasse familiaritate ea quae est ei tecum, ausus est confiteri. Itaque quo me vertam nescio. Paratus enim veneram, cum tu id neque per te scires neque audire aliunde potuisses, ut ignorantione tua ad hominis miseri saltem abuterer. Sed quoniam diligentia inimici investigatum est quod latebat, confitendum est, opinor, praeertim cum meus necessarius Pansa fecerit ut id integrum jam non esset; omissaque controversia, omnis oratio ad misericordiam tuam conferenda est, qua plurimi sunt conservati, cum a te non liberationem culpae, sed errati veniam impetravissent. Habes igitur, Tubero, quod est accusatori maxime optandum, confitentem reum; sed tamen hoc confitentem, se in ea parte fuisse qua te, qua virum omni laude dignum, patrem tuum. Itaque prius de vestro delicto consiteamini necesse est, quam Ligari uillum culpam reprehendatis.

Ligarius Went to Africa in Time of Peace.

Q. enim Ligarius, cum esset nulla belli suspicio, legatus in Africam [cum] C. Considio profectus est. Qua in legatione et civibus et sociis ita se probavit, ut decedens Considius provincia satis facere hominibus non posset, si quemquam alium provinciae praefecisset. Itaque Ligarius, cum diu recusans nihil profecisset, provinciam accepit invitus: cui sic praefuit in pace, ut et civibus et sociis gratis sima esset ejus integritas ac fides. Bellum subito exarsit, quod qui erant in Africa ante audierunt geri quam parari. Quo audito, partim cupiditate inconsiderata, partim caeco quodam timore, primo salutis, post etiam studi sui quaerebant aliquem ducem; cum Ligarius, domum spectans, ad
Plea for Ligarius.

suos redire cupiens, nullo se implicari negotio passus est. Interim P. Attius Varus, qui praetor Africam obtinuerat, Uticam venit. Ad eum statim concursum est. Atque ille non mediocris cupiditate adripuit imperium,—si illud imperium esse potuit, quod ad privatum clamore multitudinis imperiae, nullo publico consilio, deferebatur. 4. Itaque Ligarius, qui omne tale negotium cuperet effugere, paulum adventu Vari conquievit.

His Remaining there a Plain Necessity.

II. Adhuc C. Caesar, Q. Ligarius omni culpa vacat. Domo est egressus non modo nullum ad bellum, sed ne ad minimam quidem suspicione belli: legatus in pace profectus est: in provincia pacatissima ita se gessit, ut ei pacem esse expediret. Profectio certe animum tuum non debet offendere: num igitur remansio? Multo minus. Nam profectio voluntatem habuit non turpem, remansio necessitatem etiam honestam. Ergo haec duo tempora carent crimen: unum cum est legatus profectus, alterum, cum ecflagitatus a provincia praepositus Africae est. 5. Tertium tempus est quod post adventum Vari in Africa restitit, quod si est criminosum, necessitatis crimine est, non voluntatis. An ille, si potuisset ullo modo evadere, Uticae quam Romae, cum P. Attio quam cum concordissimis fratribus, cum alienis esse quam cum suis maluisset? Cum ipsa legatio plena desideri ac sollicitudinis fuisset propter incredibilem quendam fratum amorem, hic aequo animo esse potuit, belli discidio distractus a fratribus?

Cicero Himself more Guilty than he.

litteris, monumentisque decorandam! cum M. Cicero apud tele defendit alium in ea voluntate non fuisse, in qua se ipsum confitetur fuisse; nec tuas tacitas cogitationes exti-mescit, nec quid tibi de alio audienti de se ipso occurrat reformidat. III. Vide quam non reformidem: vide quanta lux liberalitatis et sapientiae tuae mihi apud te dicenti obori-atur. Quantum potero, voce contendam ut [hoc] populus Romanus exaudiat. 7. Suscepto bello, Caesar, gesto etiam ex parte magna, nulla vi coactus, judicio ac voluntate, ad ea arma profectus sum quae erant sumpta contra te. Apud quem igitur hoc dico? Nempe apud eum, qui, cum hoc sciret, tamen me, ante quam vidit, rei publicae reddidit;
qui ad me ex Aegypto litteras misit, ut essem idem qui fuissem; qui cum ipse imperator in toto imperio populi Romani unus esset, esse me alterum passus est; a quo, hoc ipso C. Pansa mihi hunc nuntium perferente, concessos fascis laureatos tenui, quoad tenendos putavi; qui mihi tum denique se salutem putavit reddere, si eam nullis spoliatum ornamentis dedisset. 8. Vide, quaeso, Tubero, ut qui de meo facto non dubitem, de Ligari non audeam defiteri. Atque haec propterqua de me dixi, ut mihi Tubero, cum de se eadem dicerem, ignosceret: cujus ego industriae gloriaeque faveo, vel propter propinquam cognitionem, vel quod ejus ingenio studiisque delector, vel quod laudem adolescentis-propinquii existimo etiam ad meum aliquem fructum redundare.

Tubero, the Accuser, Took Arms against Caesar.

9. Sed hoc quaero: Quis putat esse crimen fuisse in Africa? Nempe is, qui et ipse in eadem Africa esse voluit, et prohibitum se a Ligario queritur, et certe contra ipsum Caesarem est congressus armatus. Quid enim tuus ille, Tubero, destrictus in acie Pharsalica gladius agebat? Cujus latus ille mucro petebat? Qui sensus erat armorum tuorum?
Plea for Ligarius.

IV. 10. Quid autem aliud egimus, Tubero, nisi ut quod hic potest nos possemus? Quorum igitur impunitas, Caesar, tuae Clementiae laus est, eorum ipsorum ad crudelitatem te acuit oratio. Atque in hac causa non nihil equidem, Tubero, etiam tuam, sed multo magis patris tui prudentiam desidero, quod homo, cum ingenio tum etiam doctrina excellent, genus hoc causae quod esset non viderit. Nam si 10 vidisset, quovis profecto quam isto modo a te agi maluissest.

But Now he Shows Ligarius No Mercy.

Orations of Cicero.

Perhaps his Intention is not Bloodthirsty.

15. cum voce prohibebis?

But his Action is Inhuman.

14. Si, cum hoc domi faceremus, — quod et fecimus et, ut spero, non frustra fecimus, — tu repente inruisses et clamare coeptisses: 'C. Caesar, cave ignoscas, cave te fratrum pro fratis salute obsecrantium misereat,' nonne omnem humanitatem exuisses? Quanto hoc durius, quod nos domi petimus, id te in foro oppugnare, et in tali miseria multorum perfugium misericordiae tollere! Dicam plane, Caesar, quod sentio. 15. Si in [hac] tanta tua fortuna lenitas tanta non esset, quam tu per te, per te inquam, obtines, — intellego quid loquar, — acerbissimo luctu redundaret ista victoria. Quam multi enim essent de victoribus qui te crudelem esse vellent, cum etiam de victis reperiantur! quam multi qui, cum a te ignosci nemini vellent, impedirent clementiam tuam, cum etiam hi, quibus ipse ignovisti, nolint te esse in alios misericordem! 16. Quod si probare Caesaris possemus in Africa Ligarium omnino non fuisse, si honesto et misericordi mendacio saluti civi calamitoso esse vellernus, tamen hominis non esset, in tanto discrimine et periculo civis, refellere et redarguere nostrum mendacium; et, si esset alicujus, ejus certe non esset, qui in eadem causa et fortuna fuisset. Sed tamen aliud est errare Caesarem nolle, aliud nolle misereri. Tunc diceres, ‘Caesar, cave credas: fuit in Africa, tuit arma contra te.’ Nunc quid dicis? ‘Cave ignoscas.’ Haec nec hominis nec ad hominem vox est: qua qui apud te, C. Caesar, utitur, suam citius abierit quam extorquebit tuam.

Caesar has Never Held his Opponents Criminal.

esse cupiebas, idne agebas, ut tibi cum sceleratis, an ut cum bonis civibus conveniret? 19. Mihi vero, Caesar, tua in me maxima merita tanta certe non viderentur, si me ut sceleratum a te conservatum putarem. Quo modo autem tu de re publica bene meritus esses, cum tot sceleratos incolumi dignitate esse voluisses? Secessione Tu illum existimaviisti, Caesar, initio, non bellum; neque hostile odium, sed civile discidium, utrisque cupientibus rem publicam salvam, sed partim consiliis, partim studiis a communi utilitate aberrantibus. Principum dignitas erat paene par, non par fortasse eorum qui sequabantur: causa tum dubia, quod erat aliquid in utraque parte quod probari posset; nunc melior ea judicanda est, quam etiam di adjuverunt. Cognita vero clementia tua, quis non eam victoriam probet, in qua occiderit nemo nisi armatus?

Even Tubero is Less Excusable than Ligarius.

Plea for Ligarius.

Tubero Went to Africa in Pompey's Behalf.

quem detulistis? Nempe ad eum, cujus auctoritatem secuti in societatem belli veneratis. Quod si Caesaris causa in provinciam veniebatis, ad eum profecto exclusi provincia venissetis. Venistis ad Pompeium. Quae est ergo apud Caesarem querella, cum eum accusetis, a quo queramini prohibitos esse vos contra Caesarem gerere bellum? Atque in hoc quidem vel cum mendacio, si voltis, gloriemini per me licet, vos provinciam fuisse Caesari tradituros. Etiam si a Varo et a quibusdam aliis prohibiti estis, ego tamen confiteor culpam esse Ligari, qui vos tantae laudis occasione privaverit.

His Fidelity to Pompey is Praiseworthy in Caesar's Eyes.

IX. 26. Sed vide, quae so, Caesar, constantiam ornatissimi viri [Tuberonis], quam ego, quamvis ipse probarem, ut probo, tamen non commemorarem, nisi a te cognovissem in primis eam virtutem solere laudari. Quae fuit igitur unquam in ullo homine tanta constantia? Constantiam dico?
nescio an melius patientiam possim dicere. Quotus enim istud quisque fecisset, ut, a quibus partibus in dissensione civili non esset receptus, esset etiam cum crudelitate rejectus, ad eos ipsos rediret? Magni cujusdam animi atque ejus viri est, quem de suscepta causa propositaque sententia nulla contumelia, nulla vis, nullum periculum possit depellere.
27. Ut enim cetera paria Tuberoni cum Varo fuissent, — honos, nobilitas, splendor, ingenium, quae nequaquam fuerunt, — hoc certe praecluum Tuberonis, quod justo cum imperio ex senatus consulto in provinciam suam venerat.
Hinc prohibitus non ad Caesarem, ne iratus, non domum, ne iners, non in aliquam regionem, ne condemmare causam illam quam secutus erat videretur: in Macedoniam ad Cn.
Pompei castra venit, in eam ipsam causam a qua erat rejectus inuria. 28. Quid? cum ista res nihil commovisset ejus animum ad quem veneratis, languidio re (credo) studio Plea for Ligarius.

in causa fuistis: tantum modo in praesidiis eratis, animi vero a causa abhorrebant: an, ut fit in civilibus bellis... nec in vobis magis quam in reliquis; omnes enim vincendi studio tenebamur. Pacis equidem semper auctor fui, sed tum sero: erat enim amentis, cum aciem videres, pacem cogitare. Omnes, inquam, vincere volebamus: tu certe praeципue, qui in eum locum veneras, ubi tibi esset pereundum nisi vicisses. Quamquam, ut nunc se res habet, non dubito quin hanc salutem anteponas illi victoriae.

Tubero has been Pardoned.

X. 29. Haec ego non dicerem, Tubero, si aut vos constantiae vestrae aut Caesarem benefici sui paeniteret. Nunc quae ro utrum vestras injurias an rei publicae perseveraminis: si rei publicae, quid de vestra in illa causa perseverantia respondebitis? si vestras, videte ne erretis, qui Caesarem vestris inimicus iratum fore putetis, cum ignoverit suis. 15 Itaque num tibi videor in causa Ligari esse occupatus? num de ejus facto dicere? Quicquid dixi, ad unam summam referri volo, vel humanitatis, vel clementiae, vel misericordiae tuae. 30. Causas, Caesar, egi multas equidem tecum, dum te in foro tenuit ratio honorum tuorum, certe numquam hoc modo: 'Ignoscite, judices: erravit, lapsus est, non putavit; si umquam posthac'—ad parentem sic agi solet: ad judices, 'Non fecit, non cogitavit: falsi testes, factum crimen.' Dic te, Caesar, de facto Ligari judicem esse; quibus in praesidiis fuerit quaere: taceo, ne haec quidem conligo, quae fortesse valerent etiam apud judicem: 'Legatus ante bellum profectus, relictus in pace, bello oppressus, in eo ipso non acerbus, jam est totus animo ac studio tuus.' Ad judicem sic, sed ego apud parentem loquor: 'Erravit, temere fecit, paenitet: ad clementiam tuam confugio, delicti veniam peto, ut ignoscatur oro.' Si nemo impetravit, adrofanter: si plurimi, tu idem fer opem, qui spem dedisti.
Then why should not Ligarius be Pardoned Also?

31. An sperandi Ligario causa non sit, cum mihi apud te locus sit etiam pro altero deprecandi? Quamquam nec in hac oratione spes est posita causae, nec in eorum studiis qui a te pro Ligario petunt, tui necessarii. XI. Vidi enim et 5 cognovi quid maxime spectares, cum pro alicujus salute multi laborarent: causas apud te rogantium gratiosiores esse quam voltus; neque te spectare quam tuus esset necessarius is qui te oraret, sed quam illius, pro quo laboraret. Itaque tribuis tu quidem tuis ita multa, ut mihi beatores illi videantur interdum qui tua liberalitate fruuntur, quam tu ipse, qui illis tam multa concedas. Sed video tamen apud te causas, ut dixi, valere plus quam preces; ab eisque te moveri maxime, quorum justissimum videas dolo- rem in petendo.

Many Friends Desire his Pardon.

32. In Q. Ligario conservando multis tu quidem gratum facies necessariis tuis, sed hoc, quaeso, considera, quod soles. Possum fortissimos viros, Sabinos, tibi probatissimos, totumque agrum Sabinum, florem Italiae ac robur rei publicae, proponere. Nosti optimos homines. Animadverte horum omnium maestitiam et dolorem: hujus T. Brocchi (de quo non dubito quid existimes) lacrimas, squaloremque ipsius et fili vides. 33. Quid de fratribus dicam? Noli, Caesar, putare de unius capite nos agere. Aut tres tibi Ligarii retinendi in civitate sunt, aut tres ex civitate exter- minandi: [nam] quodvis exsilium his est optatius quam patria, quam domus, quam di penates, uno illo exsulante. Si fraterne, si pie, si cum dolore faciunt, moveant te horum lacrimae, moveat pietas, moveat germanitas: valeat tua vox illa, quae vicit. Te enim dicere audiebamus nos omnis ad-versarios putare, nisi qui nobiscum essent; te omnis qui contra te non essent, tuos. Videsne igitur hunc splendorem omnium, hanc Brochorum domum, hunc L. Marcium, C. Caesetium, L. Corfidium, hos omnis equites Romanos, qui adsunt veste mutata, non solum notos tibi, verum etiam probatos viros, qui tecum fuerunt? Atque his irascebamus, hos requirebamus, his non nulli etiam minabamus. Conserva igitur tuis suos, ut, quem ad modum cetera quae dicta sunt a te, sic hoc verissimum reperiatur.

His Brothers have Always been Devoted to Caesar.

XII. 34. Quod si penitus perspicere posses concordiam Ligario rum, omnis frater tecum judicaresuisse. An potest quisquam dubitare quin, si Q. Ligarius in Italia esse putisset, in eadem sententia fuerit futurus, in qua fratres fuerunt? Quis est qui horum consensum conspirantem et paene conflatum in hac prope aequalitate fraterna [non] noverit, qui hoc non sentiat, quidvis prius futurumuisse, quam ut hi fratres diversas sententias fortunasque sequerentur? Voluntate igitur omnes tecum fuerunt: tempestate abruptus est unus, qui si consilio id fecisset, esset eorum similis, quos tu tamen salvos esse voluisti. 35. Sed ierit ad bellum, dissenserit non a te solum, verum etiam a fratribus: hi te orant tui. Equidem, cum tuis omnibus negotiis interessem, memoria teneo qualis T. Ligarius quaestor urbanus fuerit erga te et dignitatem tuam. Sed parum est me hoc meminisse: spero etiam te (qui oblivisci nihil soles nisi injurias, quoniam hoc est animi, quoniam etiam ingeni tui) te aliquid de hujus illo quaestorio officio, etiam de aliis quibusdam quaestoribus reminiscemter, recordari. 36. Hic igitur T. Ligarius, qui tum nihil egit aliud — neque enim haec divinabat — nisi ut tui eum studiosum et bonum virum judicares, nunc a te supplex fratris salutem petit: quam hujus admonitus officio cum utrisque his dederis, tris fratresoptimos et integerrimos non solum sibi ipsos, neque his tot talibus viris, neque nobis necessariis tuis, sed etiam rei publicae condonaveris.

Let Caesar Show his Customary Clemency.

37. Fac igitur, quod de homine nobilissimo et clarissimo fecisti nuper in curia, nunc idem in foro de optimis et huic omnium frequentiae probatissimis fratribus. Ut concessisti illum senatui, sic da hunc populo, cujus voluntatem carissimam semper habuisti; et, si ille dies tibi gloriosissimus, populo Romano gratissimus fuit, noli, obsecro, dubitare, C. Caesar, similem illi gloriae laudem quam saepissime quaerere. Nihil est tam popolare quam bonitas, nulla de virtutibus tuis plurimis nec admirabilior nec gratior misericordia est. 38. Homines enim ad deos nulla re propius accedunt quam salutem hominibus dando. Nihil habet nec fortuna tua majus quam ut possis, nec natura melius quam ut velis, servare quam plurimos. Longiorum orationem causa forsitan postulet, tua certe natura breviorem. Qua re cum utilius esse arbitrer te ipsum quam me aut quemquam loqui tecum, finem jam faciam: tantum te adminebo, si illi absenti salutem dederis, praesentibus his omnibus te daturum.
MARK ANTONY.
(Bust in the Vatican.)
monster of profanity and crime. He had married for his third wife Fulvia, widow of Publius Clodius, and shared, with her, that tribune's vindictive hate of Cicero. His colleague was P. Cornelius Dolabella, Cicero's son-in-law, who had assumed the consulship at Cæsar's death, on the ground that the latter had appointed him his successor in that office. Dolabella dallied with the conspirators, suppressed the violence of the mob that threatened them, and might have had some pretensions to the power, with the support of the aristocracy, but was easily outgeneralled or bought off by Antony. Lepidus, who had a military command, and in whom the aristocracy had some hope, was also gained over by him. Octavianus, now twenty years old, hastened from Epirus to claim his inheritance and take part in the conflict which he saw approaching. He was a young man of precocious talent, of cool and wary temper, of ambition equal to Antony's, and of a political sagacity which, through his long life, seems never to have been at fault.

Neither of the two chief claimants was strong enough alone to be quite independent of the other. At first, however, they stood in the attitude of rivals, and in their antagonism there seemed still some hope for the republic. Each endeavored to secure the countenance of the Senate and to gain control over the public armies; and each succeeded in attaching to himself a considerable force, though neither was strong enough to hold the capital against the other.

Meanwhile Cicero, who at first hailed the death of Cæsar as the restoration of the republic, lost courage, and set out in July for Greece. Detained, however, by contrary winds, and receiving more favorable news from Rome, he returned to the city at the end of August, to find that all his hopes were idle. Still, he made an effort at conciliation, in a speech in the Senate, on the 2d of September. In this he replied severely to an attack made upon him by Antony the day before, but still took pains to leave the door open for a restoration of good-will. It was to no purpose. Antony replied, September 19, with such bitterness — directly charging Cicero with the murder of Clodius and of Cæsar — that it was clear he meant there should be no alternative but civil war. Cicero did not venture to answer him in the Senate; but replied, ten weeks later, in a pamphlet — by many regarded as his masterpiece — as bitter and uncompromising as the consul's attack. From its likeness in tone to the famous invectives of Demosthenes against Philip of Macedon, this was called a "Philippic"; and the term has been extended to the entire series of fourteen orations against Antony, commencing with that of September 2, and ending with the triumphant speech (given below) with which Cicero's political career closed.
Fourteenth Philippic.

The winter was spent in attempts at negotiation, every stage illustrated by the running commentary of Cicero's Philippics. At last, in the spring of B.C. 43, diplomacy was at an end. Actual hostilities broke out first in Cisalpine Gaul, where Decimus Brutus—who had taken command of that province, according to Cæsar's last will—held the town of Mutina (Modena) against Antony. Octavianus, with his independent force, had also ranged himself on the side of the Senate. The consuls of that year, Aulus Hirtius and C. Vibius Pansa, had, after some hesitation, vigorously taken up the same cause. In April the consuls met Antony in two battles,—on the 15th at Bononia (Bologna), on the 27th near Mutina. In both he was defeated; but in the first Pansa was mortally wounded, and in the second Hirtius was killed. It was on the reception of the news of the victory at Bononia, while Pansa's fate was unknown, that Cicero, in the Senate, delivered his fourteenth and last Philippic (April 22).

The rejoicings were soon at an end. Octavianus found that his own interests were best served by uniting with Antony against the Senate. These two—with Lepidus as a third triumvirs—came easily into possession of supreme power. A remorseless proscription followed, in which the most illustrious victim was Cicero, sacrificed to Antony's resentment, the vindictive hate of Fulvia, and the cold ingratitude of Octavianus.

Of the fourteen Philippics, the Second is by far the most famous. It is a long and elaborate invective,—in some parts exceedingly bitter and coarse,—reviewing the domestic and political career of Mark Antony, and charging him with every personal vice and almost every public crime. In its allusions to the acts of Cæsar, its hostility is uncompromising, vindictive, often scornful. The revival of the title "perpetual dictator" seems to have inspired Cicero with hatred, horror, and fear; and his real enmity was no longer disguised after Cæsar's death.

The Fourteenth Philippic has a unique interest as the last free voice of the Roman Senate, and from its ill-timed confidence in the future emperor. It is also interesting as an example of labored and stately panegyric, after the manner of the Greeks, on patriots fallen in battle, and from the formal resolution of thanks and honor with which it closes. Its immediate occasion was a resolution of P. Servilius, that the citizens should lay aside the military garb and that a public thanksgiving should be celebrated in honor of the victory of Hirtius and Pansa at Bononia.
If Brutus were Safe, we might Lay Aside Military Attire.

SI, UT ex litteris quae recitatae sunt, patres conscripti, sceleratissimorum hostium exercitum caesum fusumque cognovi, sic id quod et omnes maxime optamus, et ex ea victoria quae parta est consecutum arbitramur, D. Brutum egressum jam Mutina esse cognovisse, propter cujus periculum ad saga issemus, propter ejusdem salutem redeundum ad pristinum vestitum sine alla dubitazione censerem. Ante vero quam sit ea res, quam avidissime civitas expectat, adlata, laetitia frui satis est maxime praeclarissimaeque pugnae: reditum ad vestitum confectae victoriae reservate. Confectio autem hujus belli est D. Bruti salus.

But till his Safety is Assured, Such Rejoicing is Premature.

2. Quae autem est ista sententia, ut in hodiernum diem vestitus mutetur, deinde cras sagati prodeamus? Nos vero cum semel ad eum quem cupimus optamusque vestitum redierimus, id agamus, ut eum in perpetuum retineamus. Nam hoc quidem cum turpe est, tum ne dis quidem immortalibus gratum, ab eorum aris, ad quas togati adierimus, ad saga sumenda discedere. 3. Atque animadverti, patres conscripti, quosdam huic favere sententiae, quorum ea mens idque consilium est, ut, cum videant gloriosissimum illum D. Bruto futurum diem, quo die propter ejus salutem redierimus, hunc ei fructum eripere cupiant, ne memoriae posterritatique prodatur propter unius civis periculum populum Romanum ad saga isse, propter ejsudem salutem redisse ad togas. Tollite hanc: nullam tam pravae sententiae causam reperietis. Vos vero, patres conscripti, conservate auctoritatem vestram, manete in sententia, tenete vestra memoria, quod saepe ostendistis, hujus totius belli in unius 5 viri fortissimi et maximi vita positum esse discrimen.

What, then, do the Despatches Mean?

6. Sed quoniam significatio vestra satis declarat quid hac de re sentiatis, ad litteras veniam, quae sunt a consulisibus et a propraetore missae, si paucia ante quae ad ipsas litteras pertineant dixeram. III. Imbuti gladii sunt, patres conscripti, legionum exercituumque nostrorum, vel madefacti potius duobus duorum consulum, tertio Caesaris proelio.
Si hostium fuit ille sanguis, summa militum pietas: nefarium scelus, si civium. Quo usque igitur is, qui omnis hostis scelere superavit, nomine hostis carebit? nisi mucrones etiam nostrorum militum tremere voltis, dubitantis utrum in cive an in hoste figantur. 7. Supplicationem decernitis; hostem non appellatis. Gratae vero nostrae dis immortalibus gratulationes erunt, gratae victimae, cum interfecta sit civium multitudo! 'De improbis' inquit 'et audacibus.' Nam sic eos appellat clarissimus vir: quae sunt urbanarum maledicta litium, non inustae belli intercivi notae. Testamenta (credo) subiciunt aut eiciunt vicinos, aut adulescentulos circumscribunt [: his enim vitis adfectos et talibus malos aut audacis appellare consuetudo solet].

Antony's War against the State.

plis interemit propudium illud et portentum, L. Antonius, insignis odium omnium hominum vel (si etiam di oderunt quos oportet) deorum.

His Brother's Horrible Cruelties at Parma.

Honor should be Voted to the Generals.

11. Itaque cum supplicationes justissimas ex eis litteris quae recitatae sunt decernere debeamus, Serviliumque decreverit, augebo omnino numerum dierum, praeoptem cum non uni sed tribus ducibus sint decernendae. Sed hoc primum faciam, ut imperatores appellem eos, quorum virtute, consilio, felicitate, maximis periculis servitutis atque interitus liberati sumus. Etenim cui viginti his annis supplicatio 5 decreta est, ut non imperator appellaretur, aut minimis rebus gestis aut plerumque nullis? Quam ob rem aut supplicatio ab eo qui ante dixit decernenda non fuit, aut usitatus honos pervolgatusque tribuendus eis, quibus etiam novi singularesque debentur. V. 12. An si quis Hispanorum aut Gallorum aut Threcum mille aut duo milia occidisset, eum hac consuetudine quae increbuit imperatorem appellaret senatus: tot legionibus caesis, tanta multitudine hostium interfecta — hostium dico? ita inquam, hostium, quamvis hoc isti hostes domestici nolint — clarissimis ducibus supplicationum hono- 15 rem tribuemus, imperatorium nomen adimemus? Quanto enim honore, laetitia, gratulatione in hoc templum ingredi debent illi ipsi hujus urbis liberatores, cum hesterno die propter eorum res gestas me ovantem et prope triumphantem populus Romanus in Capitolium domo tulerit, domum inde reduxerit?. 13. Is enim demum est (mea quidem sententia) justus triumphus ac verus, cum bene de re publica meritis testimonium a consensu civitatis datur. Nam sive in communi gaudio populi Romani uni gratulabantur, magnum judicium; sive uni gratias agebant, eo majus; sive 20 utrumque, nihil magnificentius cogitari potest.

Charges against Cicero himself Refuted.

'Tu igitur ipse de te?' dixerit quispiam. Equidem invitus, sed injuriae dolor facit me praeter consuetudinem gloriosum. Nonne satis est ab hominibus virtutis ignaris gratiam bene merentibus non referri? Etiam in eos qui 30 omnis suas curas in rei publicae salute defigunt, impietatis crimine invidia quaeretur? 14. Scitis enim per hos dies creberrimum fuisse sermonem, me Parilibus, qui dies hodie Fourteenth Philippic.

Address of Apuleius.

16. Itaque P. Apuleius, tribunus plebis, meorum omnium consiliorum periculorumque jam inde a consulatu meo testis, conscius, adjutor, dolorem ferre non potuit doloris mei. Contionem habuit maximam, populo Romano unum atque idem sentiente. In qua contione cum me pro summa nostra conjunctione et familiaritate liberare suspicione fascium vellet, una voce cuncta contio declaravit nihil esse a me umquam de re, publica nisi optime cogitatum. Post hanc habitam contionem duabus tribusve horis, optatissimi nuntii et litterae venerunt: ut idem dies non modo iniquissima me invidia liberarit, sed etiam celeberrima populi Romani gratulatione auxerit.

Cicero Defends his Own Course.

17. Haec interposui, patres conscripti, non tam ut pro me dicerem — male enim mecum ageretur, si parum vobis essem sine defensione purgatus — quam ut quosdam nimis jejuno animo et angusto monerem, id quod semper ipse fecissem, uti excellentium civium virtutem imitatione dignam, non invidia putarent. Magnus est in re publica campus, ut sapienter dicere Crassus solebat, multis apertus cursus ad laudem. VII. Utinam quidem illi principes viverent, qui me post meum consulatum, cum eis ipse cederem, principem non inviti videbant! Hoc vero tempore, in tanta inopia constantium et fortium consularium, quo me dolore adfici creditis, cum alios male sentire, alios nihil omnino curare videam, alios parum constanter in suscepta causa permanere, sententiamque suam non semper utilitate rei publicae, sed tum spe tum timore moderari?

18. Quod si quis de contentione principatus laborat, quae nulla esse debet, stultissime facit, si vitii cum virtute contendit: ut enim cursu cursus, sic in viris fortibus virtus virtute superatur. Tu, si ego de re publica optime sentiam, ut me vincas, ipse pessime senties? aut, si ad me bonorum concursum fieri videbis, ad te improbos invitabis? Nollem, primum rei publicae causa, deinde etiam dignitatis tuae. Sed si principatus ageretur, quem numquam expetivi, quid tandem mihi esset optatus? Ego enim malis sententiis vinci non possum, bonis forsitan possim et libenter. 19. Haec populum Romanum videre, animadvertere, judicare quidam moleste ferunt. Poteratne fieri ut non proinde homines de quoque, ut quisque meretur, judicarent? Ut enim de universo senatu populus Romanus verissime judicat, nullis rei publicae temporibus hunc ordinem firmiorem aut

Antony and his Partisans should be Declared Public Enemies.

VIII. Sed quod tum non licuit, patres conscripti, id hoc tempore non solum licet, verum etiam necesse est,—eos qui re sunt hostes [verbis notari], sententiis nostris hostis judicari. 22. Antea cum hostem ac bellum nominassem, semel et saepius sententiam meam de numero sententiarum sustulerunt: quod in hac causa jam fieri non potest. Ex litteris enim C. Pansae A. Hirti consulum, C. Caesaris pro praetore, de honore dis immortalibus habendo sententias dicitmus. Supplicationem modo qui decrevit, idem imprudens hostis judicavit: numquam enim in civili bello supplicatio decreta est. Decretam dico? ne victoris quidem litteris postulata est. 23. Civile bellum consul Sulla gessit: legio-nibus in urbem adductis, quos voluit expulit; quos potuit occidit: supplicationis mentio nulla. Grave bellum Octavi-anum insecutum est: supplicatio [Cinnae] nulla victori. Cinnae victoriæm imperator ultus est Sulla: nulla supplicatio decreta a senatu. Ad te ipsum, P. Servili, num misit uillas conlega litteras de illa calamitosissima pugna Pharsalia? Num te de supplicatione voluit referre? Profecto noluit. At misit postea de Alexandria, de Pharnace. Pharsaliae vero pugnae ne triumphum quidem egit. Eos enim civis pugna illa sustulerat, quibus non modo vivis, sed etiam victoribus, incolumis et florens civitas esse posset...

24. Quod idem contigerat superioribus bellis civilibus. Nam mihi consul supplicatio nullis armis sumptis, non ob caedem hostium, sed ob conservationem civium, novo et inaudito genere decreta est. Quam ob rem aut supplicatio re publica pulcherrime gesta postulantibus nostris imperatoribus deneganda est, quod praeter A. Gabinium contigit nemini; aut, supplicatione decernenda, hostis eos de quibus decernitis judicetis necessè est.

This is Implied in the Honors to the Generals.

IX. Quod ergo ille re, id ego etiam verbo, cum imperatores eos appello: hoc ipso nomine et eos qui jam devicti sunt, et eos qui supersunt, hostis judico [cum victores appello imperatores]. 25. Quo modo enim potius Pansa appellem? etsi habet honoris nomen amplissimi. Quo Hir-tium? Est ille quidem consul, sed alterum nomen benefici populi Romani est, alterum virtutis atque victoriae. Quid?

Caesarem, deorum beneficio rei publicae procreatum, dubitennne appellare imperatorem? qui primus Antoni inmanem et foedam crudelitatem non solum a jugulis nostris, sed etiam a membris et visceribus avertit. Unius autem diei quot et quantae virtutes, di immortales, fuerunt!

Valor of Pansa.

26. Princeps enim omnium Pansa proeli faciendi et cum Antonio confligendi fuit: dignus imperator legione Martia, digna legio imperatore. Cujus si acerrimum impetum cohibere Pansa potuisset, uno proelio confecta res esset. Sed cum libertatis avida legio effrenatus in aciem hostium inrupsset, ipseque in primis Pansa pugnaret, duobus periculosis volneribus acceptis, sublatus et proelio, rei publicae vitam reservavit. Ego vero hunc non solum imperatorem sed etiam clarissimum imperatorem judico, qui, cum aut morte aut victoria se satis facturum rei publicae spopondisset, alterum fecit, alterius di immortales omen avertant!

Exploits of Hirtius.

X. 27. Quid dicam de Hirio? qui, re audita, e castris duas legiones eduxit incredibili studio atque virtute; quartam illam, quae relictum Antonio se olim cum Martia legione conjunxit, et septimam, quae, constituta ex veteranis, docuit hoc proelio militibus eis, qui Caesaris beneficia servassent, senatus populique Romani carum nomen esse. His viginti cohortibus, nullo equitatu, Hirtius ipse aquilam quartae legionis cum inferret, qua nullius pulchriorem speciem imperatoris accepimus, cum tribus Antoni legionibus equitatuque confluxit, hostisque nefarios, huic Jovis Optimi Maximi ceterisque deorum immortalium templis, urbis tectis, libertati populi Romani, nostrae vitae sanguine immeminentis prostravit, fudit, occidit, ut cum admodum paucis, nocte tectus, metu perterritus, princeps latronum duque fugerit. O solem ipsum beatissimum, qui, ante quam se abderet, stratis cadaveribus parricidarum, cum paucis fugientem vidit Antonium!
Deeds of Octavianus.

tarum legionum paucis cohortibus tutatus est, secundumque proelium fecit. Ita trium imperatorum virtute, consilio, felicitate uno die locis pluribus res publica est conservata.

XI. 29. Decerno igitur eorum trium nomine quinquaginta dierum supplicationes: causas, ut honorificentissimis verbis consequi potuero, complectar ipsa sententia.

Devotion of the Soldiers.

Est autem fidei pietatisque nostrae declarare fortissimis militibus, quam memores simus quamque grati. Quam ob rem promissa nostra, atque ea quae legionibus bello con-fecto tributuros nos soppondimus, hodierno senatus consulto renovanda censeo: aequum est enim militum, talium praessertim, honorem conjungi. 30. Atque utinam, patres conscripti, [civibus] omnibus solvere nobis praemia liceret!
Quamquam nos ea quae promisimus studiose cumulata red-demus. Sed id quidem restat (ut spero) victoribus, quibus senatus fides praestabitur: quam quoniam difficillimo rei publicae tempore securi sunt, eos numquam oportebit consili sui paenitere. Sed facile est bene agere cum eis a quibus etiam tacentibus flagitari videmur: illud admirabilius et majus maximeque proprium senatus sapientis est, grata eorum virtutem memoria prosequi, qui pro patria vitam profuderunt.
Quorum de honore utinam mihi plura in mentem venirent! Duo certe non praeteribo, quae maxime occurrunt: quorum alterum pertinet ad virorum fortissimorum gloriam sempiternam, alterum ad leniendum maerorem et luctum proximorum.

Special Tribute to the Martian Legion.

honoris tributum est. Atque utinam majora possemus, quando quidem a vobis maxima accepimus! Vos ab urbe furentem Antonium avertistis: vos redire molientem repulsistis. Erit igitur exstructa moles opere magnifico incisaeque litterae, divinae virtutis testes sempiternae: numquamque de vobis eorum, qui aut videbunt vestrum monimentum aut audient, gratissimus sermo conticescet. Ita pro mortali condicione vitae immortalitatem estis consecuti.

Consolation of the Bereaved Families.

XIII. 34. Sed quoniam, patres conscripti, gloriae munus optimis et fortissimis civilibus monimenti honore persolvitur, consolemur eorum proximos, quibus optima est haec quidem consolation: parentibus, quod tanta rei publicae praesidia generunt; liberris, quod habebunt domestica exempla virtutis; conjugibus, quod eis viris carebunt, quos laudare quam lugere praestabit; fratribus, quod in se ut corporum, sic virtutum similitudinem esse confident. Atque utinam his omnibus abstergere fretum sententiis nostris consultisque possemus, vel aliqua talis eis adhiberi publice posset oratio, qua deponerent maerorem atque luctum, gauderentque potius, cum multa et varia impenderent hominibus genera mortis, id genus quod esset pulcherrimum suis obtigisse, eosque nec inhumatos esse nec desertos, quod tamen ipsum pro patria non miserandum putatur, nec dispersis bustis humili sepultura crematos, sed contectos publicis operibus atque muneribus, eaque exstructione quae sit ad memoriam aeternitatis ara Virtutis. 35. Quam ob rem maximum quidem solacium erit propinquorum eodem monumento declarari et virtutem suorum, et populi Romani pietatem, et senatus fidem, et cradelissimi memoriam belli: in quo nisi tanta militum virtus exstitisset, parricidio M. Antoni nomen populi Romani occidisset. Atque etiam censeo, patres conscripti, quae praemia militibus promisimus nos re publica recuperata tributuros, ea vivis victoribusque cumulate, cum tempus venerit, persolvenda; qui autem ex eis quibus illa promissa sunt pro patria occiderunt, eorum parentibus, liberis, conjugibus, fratribus eadem tribuenda censeo.

Resolution of Thanks and Honor.

XIV. 36. Sed, ut aliquando sententia complector, ita censeo:

Cum C. Pansa consul, imperator, initium cum hostibus conflagendi fecerit, quo proelio legio Martia admirabili incredibilique virtute libertatem populi Romani defenderit, quod idem legiones tironum fecerint; ipseque C. Pansa consul, imperator, cum inter media hostium tela versaretur, volnera acceperit; cumque A. Hirtius consul, imperator, [proelio audito,] re cognita, fortissimo praestantissimoque animo exercitum castris eduxerit, impetumque in M. Antonium exercitumque hostium fecerit, ejusque copias occidione occiderit, suo exercitu ita incolumi ut ne unum quidem militiae desideraret; 37. cumque C. Caesar pro praetore, imperator, consilio diligentiaque sua castra feliciter defenderit, copiasque hostium quae ad castra accesserant profligaret, occiderit; — ob eas res senatum existimare et judicare eorum trium imperorum virtute, imperio, consilio, gravitate, constantia, magnitudine animi, felicitate, populum Romanum foedissima crudelissimaque servitutem liberatum. Cumque rem publicam, urbem, templam deorum immortalium, bona fortunasque omnium liberosque conservarint dimicatione et periculo vitae sueae, uti ob eas res, bene fortiter feliciterque gestas, C. Pansa A. Hirtius consules, imperatores, alter ambove, aut (si aberunt) M. Cornutus, praetor urbanus, supplicationes per dies quinquaginta ad omnia pulvinaria constituat. 38. Cumque virtus legionum digna clarissimis imperatoribus extitipit, senatum quae sit antea pollicitus legionibus exercitibusque nostris, ea summo studio re publica recuperata soluturam. Cumque legio Martia princeps cum hostibus coniugeretur, atque ita cum majore numero hostium contenderit, ut cum plurimos caederent, caderent non nulli, cumque sine ella retractatione pro patria vitam profuderint; cumque similis virtute reliquirum legionum milites pro salute et libertate populi Romani mortem oppetiverint, senatui placere ut C. Pansa A. Hirtius consules, imperatores, alter ambove, si eis videatur, eis qui sanguinem pro vita, libertate, fortunis populi Romani, pro urbe, templis deorum immortalium profudissent, monimentum quam amplissimum locandum faciundumque curent; quaeestoresque urbanos ad eam rem pecuniam dare, attribuere, solvere jubeant, ut exstet ad memoriam posteritatis sempiternam scelus crudelissimorum hostium militumque divina virtus; utique, quae praemia senatus militibus ante constituit, ea solvantur eorum qui hoc bello pro patria occiderunt parentibus, liberis, conjugibus, fratribus; eisque tribuantur quae militibus ipsis tribui oporteret, si vivi vicissent, qui morte vicerunt.
NOTES.

DEFENCE OF ROSCIUS.

ARGUMENT.

[Omitted portions in brackets.]

CHAP. 1. Exordium. Cicero's reasons for undertaking the case.—[2. Political aspect of the trial, showing (a) why others refused to undertake it; (b) why the jury ought to be especially cautious.]—Narratio. 6. Character of Sex. Roscius, the murdered man; his old feud with the Titi Rosci. —7. The murder: circumstances pointing to Magnus as the procurer: Chrysogonus is informed, and a conspiracy made with him by Capito and Magnus.—8. Proscription and sale of the property: Chrysogonus buys it up for a nominal sum: Sulla not implicated. Sex. Roscius is dispossessed.—9. Amerians take up his cause and apply to Sulla, but are staved off by Capito, who was on the committee.—10. Roscius flies to his friends at Rome: a trumped-up charge of parricide is brought.—11. Commiseration of his client's position, with review of the circumstances.—13. Partitio. Three things make against the defendant: (a) the charge; (b) the reckless villainy of the two Titi Rosci; (c) influence of Chrysogonus.—Defensio. (I.) 14. The crime is not in accordance with the character of the defendant: no motive can be shown: no enmity between father and son.—[15–17. His rustic employment: this is no evidence of ill-will.—19. Alleged intention to disinherit: no proof.—20. No case is made out: hence the accuser (Erucius) is attacked for bringing such a charge.—21. The case rests only on the negligence of the court, and supposed friendlessness of the defendant.—22. For the conspirators’ manner changed when they found there would be a real defence. —Recapitulation:] no motive existed: necessity of direct evidence.—23–26. Examples from other cases [and from literature]. Need of strongest proof shown by the severity of the penalty.—27, 28. No means of committing the crime.—[29. Again: the accuser's presumption in trying to force a conviction.—(II.) 30. Countercharge: T. Roscius the probable murderer: in his case there are motives.—31. It was for his advantage.—32. He was the murdered man's enemy.—33. He had opportunities (compare the two cases).—34. His acts after the murder: hasty message to Capito; his character.—36. His testimony at the trial.—37. Speedy announcement to Chrysogonus—apparently from the Rosciis, for they have received the reward and possess the property.—38, 39. Capito's perfidy to the committee.—41. Magnus refuses the slaves for question.—42. Influence of Chrysogonus.]—(III.) 43. Chrysogonus the purchaser; the sale was illegal, for proscriptions had ceased.—44-47. Lawlessness and insolence of Chrysogonus: Sulla is artfully excused: the cause of the nobility not involved.—48. Chrysogonus' cause not that of the nobility.—49. Responsibility of the attack on Chrysogonus is Cicero's: Roscius asks only his life.—Peroratio. 50-51. Simulated appeal to Chrysogonus, to stir sympathy of the jury: incidental mention of the powerful friends of the defendant.—52, 53. But if Chrysogonus does not spare him, he appears confidently to the court.

The grammars cited are those of Allen and Greenough (§), Gildersleeve (G.), and Harkness (H.).

I. EXORDIUM (§§ 1-4).

Sects. 1-4. Cicero undertakes the defence in default of any abler advocate.

By this skilfully modest opening, Cicero not only explains why he, an obscure young advocate, appears in so important a case, but he indicates on which side are the sympathies of the best citizens, and he contrives at the same time to suggest the odds against which Roscius and his counsel must contend. Thus the remarks are not merely personal and introductory, but form an essential part of the argument. A famous modern example of similar art is Erskine's exordium in his Defence of Lord George Gordon on a charge of high treason.

Page 2. Line 1. (Sect. 1.) ego: not emphatic itself, but expressed merely to set off vos, which is. The Latin is so fond of putting pronouns in contrast that one is often (as here) expressed for the mere purpose of antithesis.—judices: not judges, but rather jurors. They were persons selected by law to try facts (under the presidency of a praetor or judex questionis), and varied in number from a single one to fifty or more. They were originally selected from the Senators, but C. Gracchus had transferred the right to sit as judices to the Equites (or wealthy middle class). Sulla, whose reforms went into operation B.C. 80, had restored this right to the Senators, and the present case was the first to occur under the new system. It was brought in the Quaestio inter sicarios (or court for the trial of murder), under the presidency of the prætor M. Fannius.—quid sit quod, why it is that.—quod (causal) . . . surrexerim expresses a fact, and takes the subj. of informal ind. disc. as depending on the indirect question quid sit ($341, b$; G. 663, 1; H. 529, ii).

2 2 summi oratores, homines nobilissimi: notice the chiastic order ($344, f$; G. 682; H. 562).—cum sedeant: cum has a slight concessive force: render by when or while; though would be too strong. Since Sulla's victory had restored the aristocracy to power, it might be expected that men of rank (nobilissimi) would have courage to come forward and defend Roscius: their presence showed their sympathies, though they did not rise to defend him.—ego: emphatic, as opposed to the orators and men of rank.

2 3 potissimum, rather than any other. — aetate: Cicero was but twenty-six years old.

2 4 sim: in direct disc. this might be either subj. to indicate the character of Cicero, or indic. to denote a mere fact about him; here it is necessarily subj. as being an integral part of the clause quod . . . surrexerim ($342$; G. 663, 1; H. 529, ii), which is itself dependent on quid sit.— sedeant, sit still, instead of rising to speak: subj. of integral part, dependent on sim comparandus.

2 5 hi: strongly demonstrative; accompanied, perhaps, with a gesture, —these men here.—injuriam, injustice.—novo sclere (abl. of means),
the strange (almost = unheard of) charge (of parricide).

2 6 opertore: this verb is always impersonal; its subject here is the clause injuriam defendi.—defendi, defendere: see Vocab.; supply but (suggested in Latin by the close juxtaposition of the two infs.) before defendere in translating.

2 7 iniquitatem temporum, i.e. the disturbed state of politics, while the wounds of the Civil War were still fresh.— ita fit: the subject is the clause ut adsint, etc. — adsint, they attend: opposed to taceant; the position of taceant indicates this antithesis. The friends of any party to a suit attended court to give him the advantage of their presence and influence (cf. Cæs. B.G. i. 4). Such friends were technically called advocati, but they did not, like the modern advocate, speak in court.

2 8 officium, duty, arising from their relations to the murdered man, who had stood in the relation of hospitium (see hospes in Vocab.) with some of the highest families.

2 10 (Sect. 2.) audacissimus, i.e. is it that I have more effrontery than any of the rest?
2 11 ne . . . quidem, not . . . either, enclosing, as usual, the emphatic word (§ 151, c; G. 448, N. 2; H. 569, iii, 2). — istius, i.e. that which is in your thoughts (§ 102, c; G. 306; H. 430).

2 12 sim, conjunctivus modestiae (§ 311, b; G. 257, 1; H. 486, i). — aliiis, dat. (§ 229; G. 345; H. 386, 2). — praeruptam: prae- gives here the force of getting the start of others in snatching it (cf. prevent, from praevent.) — me: so emphatic as to throw igitur out of its usual place.

2 14 recipere, undertake a case offered; suscipere is to take up of one’s own motion.

2 15 amplitudo, position, from birth, wealth, office, or the like.

2 16 id quod, a thing which (§ 200, c; G. 614, r. 2; H. 445, 7).

2 17 dixisset, an integral part of putaretur. — putaretur: apodosis of fecisset (§ 308; G. 599; H. 507), while the whole from si verbum through putaret is the apodosis of si quis dixisset in l. 14. Translate, if any one had spoken, in case he had made any allusion to politics, he would, etc.

3 1 (SECT. 3.) ego, etc., but in my case, even if I, etc. — etiam si . . . dixerō, . . . poterit: § 307, c; G. 244, 2; H. 508, 2.

3 2 similiter, in like manner, i.e. as if a man of rank had spoken. — exire, etc., i.e. this speech will not be quoted and talked over, and hence any allusions to politics which it may contain will not seem more significant than they really are.

3 3 emānare: not to be confounded with mānēre. — deinde quod: the second reason, corresponding to quia in l. 14. — ceterorum, opposed to ego in l. 6, below. — dictum: noun, limited by ceterorum; dicto (l. 5) is also a noun, though modified by an adv. (§ 207, c; G. 437, r.).

3 5 concedi, impersonal (§ 230; G. 217; H. 384, 5).

3 7 nondum . . . accessi, I have not yet gone into public life, i.e. become candidate for any office. Cicero began his political career five years later, with the questorship.

3 8 tametsi, although, in its so-called “corrective” use, — the concession coming after the general statement, as a kind of limitation of it. — ignoscendi ratio, the idea of pardon. The vaguely general word ratio with the gen. of the gerund expresses little more than our word pardoning alone. The Latin, being poor in abstract words, has to resort to such shifts as this to supply their place. So cognoscendi consuetudo, the habit of judicial investigation, is almost equivalent to judicial investigation simply. This was a bold speech to make under the rule of the tyrant Sulla.

3 11 (SECT. 4.) accedit, there is in addition: used as a kind of passive of addo. — illa, this, i.e. the following (a common use of this pronoun). — quod, that (§ 333; G. 525, 1; H. 540, iv). — a ceteris, from the others, i.e. the nobles.
Defence of Roscius.

3 12 petitum sit: for subjunct. see § 334, k and n.; G. 457, 2, n.; H. p. 267, footnote 1. — ut dicerent [causam], subst. clause of purpose, subj. of petitum sit (§ 331, h; G. 546; H. 499, 3): — dicere causam is the technical expression for defending a case. — ut . . . arbitrarentur: a clause of result, dependent on ita petitum sit (§ 319 and r.; G. 552; H. 500 and n.1). — utrumvis, either [course, i.e. to speak or be silent], at their choice; lit. either [of the two] you please. — salvo officio (abl. of manner), without a breach of duty.

3 13 arbitrarentur: imperf. following petitum sit, which is regarded as a secondary tense since it represents the perf. indic. (§ 287, a; G. 511, n.2; H. 495, i). — a me autem, etc., lit. but from me, etc. (opposed to a ceteris above). The emphasis may be preserved by changing the construction in English: but as for myself, men have urged it [i.e. that I should undertake the defence of Roscius] on me who, etc. — ei, men; here used simply as a correlative to qui, and not in a really demonstrative sense. The reference is of course to the noble friends of Roscius.

3 16 debeam, subj. of characteristic (§ 320; G. 631, 2; H. 503, i). — his: emphatic, summing up the reasons he has given for undertaking the case; ego, emphatic as opposed to the others present.

3 17 patronus, advocate, the word advocati having a different meaning (see note on p. 2, l. 7, above). — * unus, as the one man.*

3 20 uti ne: in purpose clauses the double form is often used instead of ne alone. — desertus, etc.: observe that Cicero not only attempts to win the sympathies of the jurors for the helplessness of his client, but that he also contrives to suggest, in advance of the formal statement of facts, that there is a combination or conspiracy of some kind against young Roscius. The same thing was insinuated in sect. 1 by the use of confitam (l. 6).

II. Narratio (§§ 5–19).

Secta, 5–9. Character of the murdered man, Sex. Roscius the elder. His political affiliations. His old feud with T. Roscius Capito and T. Roscius Magnus. The murder. Suspicion points to Magnus as procurer of the crime and to Capito as at least accessory after the fact.

3 22 (Sect. 5.) hujusce, of my client. — municeps Amerinus, a citizen of the free town Ameria. The Latin uses an adj. of possession when it can, often where the English prefers of (§ 190; G. 362, r.1; H. 395, n.2); cf. Æneid, ii. 55, 487, etc.

3 25 hospitio, guest-friendships. The hospitium was a relation between individuals of different cities or states, at a time when there were no international relations; it included the duties of hospitality and protection, was transmitted from father to son, and was vouched for by a ticket (tessera). Roscius not only had this formal relation to several of the greatest families at Rome, but he was also on intimate terms of personal friendship with them. Hence, in line 27, domesticus . . . consuetudo, intercourse and companionship [with them] in their homes.

3 28 honestatis . . . gratiā (so honoris causā, sect. 17), with all honor. It seems to have been held a liberty to mention the name of any person of quality in a public address; hence such mention is generally accompanied by a form of compliment. Cf. the modern parliamentary usage of referring to members of a deliberative body by the names of their offices (of as the "gentleman from —") rather than by their own names.

3 29 hoc solum, i.e. the hospitium.
3 30 domestici, of his own house.
3 31 ereptum possident, have seized and now hold (§ 292, R.; G. 664, R.1; II. 549, 5); possidere does not signify to own, in the modern sense, but merely to hold or occupy. — innocentis, i.e. filli: in Latin any noun may be left out if there is an adj. or a part. to determine its case.

3 32 defenditur: Cicero skilfully contrives to keep before the jury the fact that Roscius has powerful friends who desire his acquittal.

3 32 (Sect. 6.) This section tells of Roscius's political associations. He was a favorer of the nobility (Sulla's party), and therefore had nothing to fear from the proscription instituted by Sulla after his final victory over Marius. These facts are skilfully brought in at this point so as to prepare the jurors for the statement, made later, that the insertion of Roscius' name in the proscription list after his murder was manifestly part of a plot to get possession of his estate. They also prepare for the exoneration of Sulla (in sect. 12), since it was not to be supposed that he would have consented to the proscription of so zealous a member of his own party. Throughout the oration Cicero is under the necessity of holding the dictator blameless. — cum, when, introducing the general situation; tum, the particular circumstance. — omni tempore, at all times, as opposed to the time of the Civil War: notice the emphatic position.

3 33 hoc tumultu, this last disturbance (euphemistic): i.e. the final scenes of the Civil War of Marius and Sulla, which Cicero will not call bellum. — cum, at a time when.

4. 1 in discrimen veniret (subj. of characteristic, not simply cum temporal), was at stake.
4 3 rectum: render no more than right (thus giving the emphasis of its position).
4 4 se pugnare, simply to fight: object of putabat, while rectum is an
adj. in pred. apposition with se pugnare. — honestate, honestissimus refer respectively to the rank and dignity of these great families, and the credit which his connection with them gave him in his own neighborhood.

4 5 victoria, i.e. of Sulla’s party.

4 6 proscriberentur: the number of the proscribed in Sulla’s time was 4700. "Whoever killed one of these outlaws was not only exempt from punishment, like an executioner duly fulfilling his office, but also obtained for the execution a compensation of 12,000 denarii (nearly $2400); any one, on the contrary, who befriended an outlaw, even his nearest relative, was liable to the severest punishment. The property of the proscribed was forfeited to the state, like the spoil of an enemy; their children and grand-children were excluded from a political career, and yet, so far as of senatorial rank, were bound to undertake their share of senatorial burdens.” (Mommsen.) At first only the names of those who had justly forfeited their lives were proscribed; afterwards it became easy for friends and favorites of the dictator (like Chrysogonus, attacked in this oration) to put upon the list the names of innocent men, and even of men already dead, so as to work confiscation of their property. Sulla’s proscriptions nominally ceased June 1, B.C. 81.

4 8 erat Romae: this shows that he had no reason to fear the proscription. — frequens: § 191; G. 325, R. 8; H. 443.

4 9 ut...videretur, clause of result.

4 12 (SECT. 7.) inimicitiae, causes or occasions of enmity; for the plur. see § 75, c; G. 204, N. 5; H. 130, 2. By this sentence Cicero suggests to the jury what he afterwards develops in the argument: that a motive for the murder existed in the case of the Titi Rosci. He thus prepares the way for the elaborate countercharge (omitted in this book) made against these two later in the oration. Observe the emphasis that comes from the juxtaposition of sects. 6 and 7: Roscius had nothing to fear from the proscription. Nee had ENEMIES, however,—the very men who are now prosecuting his son.

4 13 accusatorum: prosecutions might be brought by private persons (as by Cicero against Verres). In this instance these two Rosci were associated with Erucius as prosecutors.

4 14 hujusce, of my client (see note on sect. 9, below).

4 16 neque enim, nor, you see.—injuria: used adverbially.—isti, i.e. of the party of prosecution. Iste, the so-called “demonstrative of the second person,” is regularly used of one’s opponent in a suit or debate, as hic is used of one’s client. See § 102, a, c; G. 306; H. 450.

4 17 Capitoni (§ 231, 6; G. 349, R. 5; H. 387, N. 1): following cognom.
4 19 palmarum, prises: sarcastically spoken, as if his many acts of violence had been victories in gladiatorial fights. — nobilis, famous (as of artists, actors, etc.). — hic, the one here present (Magnus); eum, referring to the one just mentioned, the absent one (Capito).

4 20 lanistam (in app. with eum) carries out the sarcastic figure of palmarum and gladiator.

4 21 quod sciam, so far as I know, sc. id (adv. acc. § 240, 6; G. 331, 1; H. 378, 2): i.e. he must have been a mere apprentice (tiro) at the trade: "this is the first of his actual murders that I know of." For mood, see § 320, 6; G. 627, r.1; H. 503, i, n.1 (Passages in brackets in the text are thought to be spurious insertions.)

4 23 (Sect. 8.) hic, this man (with a gesture), i.e. here at my side (my client); iste, that one, i.e. there on the accusers' bench (Magnus).

4 24–26 cum . . . esset : parenthetical (repeating, in greater detail, the clause that precedes).

Observe that Cicero remarks (as it were, casually) that in thus devoting himself to a rural life, the younger Roscius was obeying his father's wishes. This prepares the way for his subsequent assertion (sect. 23) that there was no ill-will between father and son, — an important matter in the question of motive. It also anticipates the answer given in sect. 22 to the argument that the defendant was a rude, boorish fellow, of gloomy and sullen disposition, and therefore likely to have committed murder. The effectiveness of a forensic discourse depends in great part on the skill with which the mind of the hearer is prepared, by such apparently insignificant remarks, for a definite assertion or argument that is to follow.

4 26 iste: T. Roscius Magnus; the repetition of the words frequens, etc., emphasizes the suggestion that he was likeliest to be the murderer.

4 27 Palacinus: the reading is uncertain, and the place unknown.

4 30 hunc, i.e. my client. — judicatote (§ 269, 6; G. 268, 2; H. 487, 2): the second or longer form of the imperative is regular where the action is not to be performed immediately, especially when a future appears in protasis (§ 307, 6; G. 595; H. 508, 4).

5. 1 (Sect. 9.) Ameriam nuntiat, brings the news to Ameria; domum, two lines below, shows the same construction.

5 3 T. Capitonis: Cicero thus insinuates that Magnus and Capito had planned the murder together. The speed with which the one sent the news to the other was, of course, suspicious, as well as the further proceedings described in sects. 10 and 11, including the proscription and the sale of the property.
54 inimici: cf. the same word in lines 32, 33. The reason for thus harping on the inimicitiae mentioned in sect. 7, above, must be evident. — horam primam: the night from sunset to sunrise was divided into twelve hours.

56 nocturnis: the travelling would be more difficult and slow in the night, though the night hours would be longer than the day hours in the late autumn or winter, when the murder is thought to have been committed. — cisilis: the plural form shows that there were relays of carriages (Fig. 1).

Sects. 10–12. The two Titi Roscii communicate with Chrysogonus, who has the name of the murdered man inserted in the proscription list and buys his confiscated estates for a nominal sum. Capito receives three farms for his share. Magnus is made the agent of Chrysogonus to take possession of the others. No blame attaches to Sulla, who was ignorant of what was going on.

510 (Sect. 10.) quadríduo, etc.: we should say within four days from the time when.

511 in castra: the idea of motion, vividly conceived, suggests the acc. of place as well as person; we should say, to Chrysogonus in Sulla’s camp at V. (§ 259, h; G. 337, r.6). — Volaterras. “Here some of the Etruscans and of those proscribed by Sulla made a stand and were blockaded for two years, and then surrendered on terms.” — defertur: this word implies an intentional conveying of the information, as if in the manner of a formal report.

512 fundos, different estates, i.e. lands or buildings, whether in town or country.

513 trís = tres: the acc. termination in -ís remained in this and a few other words for a considerable time after the form in -ês became the more common. — Tiberim: the nearness of the river facilitated both irrigation and transportation, and so added much to the value of the estates.

515 splendidus, eminent: the regular complimentary epithet of equites and persons of similar rank; gratiosus, in favor: referring to his relations with great families, which Cicero takes care never to let the jury forget. — nullo negotio, without any difficulty.

518 ne teneam, not to detain you: a purpose clause after some verb of saying, etc., which is regularly omitted, as in English (§ 317. c; G. 688; H. 499, 2, N.).
5 19 (Sect. 11.) cum, etc.: the proscriptions nominally ceased June 1, B.C. 81; the murder was committed some months after this date (see below, sect. 39).

5 21 jam, already (with reference to time preceding); nunc would refer only to the moment itself. — defunctos, rid of, sc. esse.

5 22 studiosissimi, devoted to the party of Sulla, and so not likely to be proscribed (see note to sect. 6, p. 3, l. 32, above).

5 23 vel (emphasizing the superlative), the very, etc.

5 24 propria, as his own.

5 25 iste, yonder, on the accusers' benches. — nomine, i.e. as agent.

5 26 impetum facit, makes a raid upon, implying violence, as of a charge in battle.

5 27 duobus milibus nummum, i.e. about $100 (§ 378; H. 647): they are estimated in ch. ii. to have been worth $300,000.

5 28 (Sect. 12.) Since Chrysogonus was a favorite of Sulla's, Cicero had to be careful not to appear to attack the Dictator. Hence he interrupts the story of the plot to express his certainty that Sulla had not known what was going on and to excuse him on the ground of the pressure of public business.

5 29 certo scio, I feel sure (§ 151, c). — neque enim: negative of et enim (§ 156, d), introducing a point obvious or indisputable, for, you see, it is not surprising (cf. p. 4, l. 16, above). — mirum [est] is the apodosis and si . . . animadvertat (p. 6, l. 4) is the protasis. mirum [est] is the main clause of the whole period; the long parenthesis (lines 29-4) consists of a string of causal clauses with cum (which may be translated either when or since).

5 30 praeparet, must provide for.

6 1 pacis . . . rationem, i.e. the ordering of the new constitution.

6 4 si aliquid (more emphatic than si quid) non animadvertat, if there is something he does not notice: protasis with mirum [est], above (§ 333, b, r.; G. 542, N.1).

6 6 ut . . . moliantur (clause of purpose), that as soon as he turns away his eyes they may get up something of this sort. — despererit, perf. subj. (§ 342; G. 663, 1; H. 529, ii), for fut. perf. (§ 286, end; G. 514; II. 496, ii).

6 7 hic accedit, add to this. Notice the difference of order and consequently of emphasis between hic accedit (add to this) here, and accedit illa (there is in addition) in sect. 4, above. — quamvis felix sit (§ 313, a; G. 606; H. 515, iii.), however fortunate he may be. Sulla was so impressed with his own good fortune, that he assumed the agnomen Felix, which implied, according to ancient notions, the peculiar favor of the gods. (See Manil., sect. 47.) Fig. 2 shows a coin of Faustus Sulla's with this inscription.

6 9 familia, household of slaves and dependents (see under sect. 35). — qui habeat, as to have ($320, a; G. 631, 2; H. 500, i).

6 10 libertum: a freedman still remained attached to his former master (now his patronus), often lived in his family, did various services for him, and stood towards him in a relation somewhat like that of a son under the patria potestas. Towards others he was a libertinus, fully free, but with some political disqualifications; towards his former master he was a libertus.

Sects. 13-17. The younger Roscius is ejected from his estates by T. Roscius Magnus. The Aemilans send delegates to Sulla to protest; but the purpose of the delegation is frustrated by Capito. Roscius the younger takes refuge with Cæcilia, a friend of his father's at Rome.

6 13 (Sect. 13.) qui . . . solvisset ($320, c; G. 634; H. 515, iii), though he had not yet, etc.—omnia . . . justa, all the due rites of burial: these ended with a sacrifice on the ninth day (novemdia) after the death or burial; paterno funeri is indir. obj. of solvisset (lit. had not yet paid all due rites to his father's funeral).

6 16 pecuniae, property.—qui (casual) . . . fuisset, since he had been, etc. ($320, c; G. 633; H. 517).

6 17 ut fit, as generally happens.—insolens, here wasteful and extravagant.—domum suam: $258, b, n.1; G. 337, r.8; H. 380, 2.

6 18 auferebat ($277, c; G. 233; H. 469, 1), began to, etc.

6 21 urbe tota: $258, f, 2; G. 388; H. 425, ii, 2.

6 22 (Sect. 14.) This section, though in form a mere statement of the reasons that prompted the Aemilans to send a delegation to Sulla, is in fact and intent a brief and powerful recapitulation of the history of the conspiracy. Its effect is to strengthen the impression which Cicero has from the first been trying to produce: namely, that the murder was the first act in the plot of the two Titii Roscii, the latest act being the false charge brought against his client.

6 25 iter, right of way, such as was usually reserved in case of the sale of any estate on which was a family burial-place; by the proscription this right was cut off.
6. 26 bonorum emptio: the technical term denoting purchase at public sale. — furta refers to clam; rapinae to palam, above.

6. 30 (Sect. 15.) decurionum: these constituted the municipal senate or city council. The decem primi may have been some standing town committee, to which, in this instance, an unusual piece of business was entrusted. If the delegates had been a special committee appointed expressly to report the case to Sulla, Capito, one of the conspirators, would hardly have been chosen a member.

7. 1 qui vir, what sort of man, i.e. especially in his political principles. The delegates were apparently to certify to the fact that Roscius had been of Sulla’s party.

7. 4 ut ... velit, that he will consent. — decretum: the decree was here read to the court, but it has not been preserved. Its reading must have produced considerable effect. It was not only important testimony to the innocence of the younger Roscius, but it was introduced by Cicero at such a point in the case as to repeat and confirm the summary of the plot just given.

7. 6 id quod, as (see note on p. 2, l. 16, above).

7. 9 nobilis, acc. plur. — ab eis qui peterent (§ 317, 2; G. 630; H. 497, i), to beg of them; eis refers to the decem primi. — ne ... adirent, obj. of peterent.

7. 10 vellent: § 336, 2; G. 508, 2; H. 524.

7. 11 pollicerentur, same constr. as peterent.

7. 13 (Sect. 16.) antiqui, of the old stamp, i.e. plain, honest men. — ex sua natura, after their own nature. — ceteros, subj. of esse understood, depending on fingerent, imagined. — confirmaret, assured them.

7. 17 re inorata, without having stated their case: the primary meaning of oro implies not entreaty, but statement or argument (cf. orātor). — reverterunt: the active form of this verb is found only in the tenses of the perfect stem; otherwise it is deponent.

7. 18 isti, i.e. Chrysogonus and Capito.

7. 19 lentius, less energetically. (On account of the natural correlation of opposites, it is often convenient to translate adjectives and adverbs by the negative of their contraries.) — nihil agere, i.e. refrain from action. — deludere, [and thus] to make fools of the Amerians (by having rendered their whole embassy ineffectual).

7. 20 id quod, etc., as we may easily infer: this point is an inference, not, like the rest, an attested fact.

7. 21 neque, and ... not, the negative qualifying posse: and judge that they can no longer, etc. In English the negative is placed near the verb; in Latin it is attracted by the connective, and so often stands at the beginning of the clause.
Defence of Roscius.

7 22 domino incolumi (abl. abs.), so long as the owner was alive.

7 23 (Sect. 17.) hic, my client.—de, in accordance with.—cognatorum, blood-relations: these were accustomed to hold a consilium, or formal deliberation, on important family affairs,—like the modern "family council" of the French.

7 24 Caeciliam: see sect. 50.

7 25 honoris causâ: cf. note on sect. 5, p. 3, l. 28, above.—quâ . . . plurimum, whose especial friendship his father had enjoyed.

7 27 id quod, etc., i.e. she showed on this occasion (nunc) the generous traits which everybody supposed she possessed.—quasi . . . causa, as if to serve as a model.

7 28 antiqui offici, old-fashioned fidelity; officium means the performance of duties as well as the duties themselves.

7 29 domo (§ 258, a; G. 390, 2; H. 412, ii, 1), without the prep., while bonis requires ex.

8. 2 vivus . . . referetur (§ 332, a; G. 553, 1; H. 501, i), brought alive to trial, rather than murdered and put on the proscription list. This implies that their first plan was to treat him as they had treated his father, but that, frustrated in this, they have trumped up a charge of parricide against him.

Sects. 18–19. The conspirators bring a charge of parricide against the younger Roscius, thinking that, for political reasons, nobody will dare defend him. The condition of Roscius is indeed miserable, but an advocate, however inefficient, has been found in the person of the speaker.

8 7 (Sect. 18.) ut . . . deferrent, compararent, pugnarent: subst. clauses of purpose in app. with consilium, l. 6 (§ 331, headnote; G. 546, n. 2; H. 499, 3).—nomen deferrent, i.e. lay a formal charge before the president of the proper court.—de parricidio: § 220, b, 2; G. 378, r. 2; H. 410, ii, 3.

8 8 veterem, old in the trade: the reign of terror through which Rome had just passed had given ample practice.

8 9 de ea re, etc., in a case in which, etc.—posset, clause of purpose, rather than result (but the two constructions approach each other so closely that it is not always possible to distinguish between them).—subesse, subjunct. of characteristic.—suspicio, i.e. should be able, from his skill as a prosecutor, to make a show of a case even when there was no ground for suspicion against the accused.

8 10 crimine (abl. of means), on the charge itself, i.e. by any strength in the incriminating evidence.—poterant: indicative as being their reason given by Cicero on his own authority (§ 321; G. 540; H. 516, i). — tempore (opposed to crinme), the circumstances of the times (i.e. partly the generally disturbed condition of the state, partly the fact that the courts were now first reopened, after their reorganization by Sulla).

§ 11 loqui: the thought of the conspirators is put in indir. disc., the verb being implied in consilium ceperunt. — tam diu, i.e. during the Civil War.

§ 12 eum, the man (i.e. any one). — oportere, was sure to. — qui primus: this was the first case that came before the Quaestio inter Sicarios.

§ 13 adductus esset: for fut. perf. of direct disc. — hic: the emphatic position may be rendered by in his case.

§ 14 gratiam, favor or influence, i.e. with Sulla.

§ 16 fore ut, etc.: the usual periphrasis for the fut. infin. pass.; the supine with iri is rare. — nullo negotio: cf. sect. 10, p. 5, line 15. — tolleretur: cf. de medio tolli, sect. 10.

§ 17 nullo: for the abl. of nemo, which is never used. — atque adeo, or rather.

§ 18 quem: the antecedent is eum, below.

§ 19 jugulandum (§ 294, d; G. 430; H. 544, N.²), i.e. for judicial murder.

§ 20 (Sect. 19.) querar, deliberative subj. (§ 268; G. 265; H. 484, v).
— unde, where, lit. whence: the Latin conceives the speaker as proceeding from some point, whereas the English represents him as beginning at some point. — potissimum (superl. of potius, as if ratheast), best (rather than anywhere else); cf. sect. 1, l. 3.

§ 23 summam potestatem, unlimited power (i.e. with respect to rendering a verdict). — fidem, i.e. the protection required by good faith.

§ 24 pater, etc.: these nominatives are in no grammatical construction, but are used to enumerate in a vivid way the crimes of the conspirators afterwards referred to by his (l. 26): cf. § 292, a; G. 664, R.²; H. 549, N.²

§ 25 infesta, imperilled.

§ 27 nefariis, abl. of instr. after cumulant: the idea in Latin is that of making a heap of what already exists, by means of other things piled on it (hence acc. and abl.); but translate, upon these they heap up other infamies.

§ 29 hujusce (emphatic instead of ejus): translate by his own. — condicionem, terms (or dilemma): as containing the idea of a bargain, it is followed by ut (§ 331, d; G. 546, N.²; H. 498, i).

§ 30 cervices: this word is used by early writers in the plural only.

9. 1 insutus in culeum: the old punishment for a parricide was to be "beaten with blood-red rods, then sewed into a sack, with a dog, a cock, a viper, and an ape, and thrown into the deep sea" (see below, sect. 29).

9 2 patronos: Cicero's modesty will not allow him to call himself a patronus (cf. note on p. 3, l. 17). — qui . . . dicit, purpose-clause: the antecedent is the subj. of deest, below.

III. Partitio (§ 20).

9 6 (Sect. 20.) This contains the formal statement of the technical partitio or division of the matter of the defence (defensio) into its parts or heads. These are distinguished as the charge (crimen) brought by Erucius, the effrontery (audacia) of the two Titii Rosci, and the illegal influence (potentia) of Chrysogonus. The charge Cicero says it is his business to refute. If he can do this he trusts to the jury to see that the effrontery of the Rosci and the influence exercised by Chrysogonus shall not injure his client. Sects. 20–35 are given to disproving the crimen, chs. xxx.-xli. (omitted in this edition) to opposing the audacia of the Rosci by bringing a counter-accusation (especially against Capito, who is directly charged with the murder), and sects. 36–46 to disposing of Chrysogonus.

9 6 quantum, so far as (adverbial acc.).

9 19 quid igitur est? how then?

9 17 primo quoque tempore, the very first opportunity (i.e. that which the present case affords) since the violence and disorder of the Civil War. — exstinguere debetis: the courts had just been restored by Sulla after a long interval of lawlessness, and the case of Roscius was the first to come before the reorganized Quaestio inter Sicarios. There was a general feeling that the courts ought to do something at once, — a feeling that might well be prejudicial to the defendant even though he was innocent. To remove this prejudice Cicero (1) suggests that the conspirators relied on it in bringing their iniquitous charge (sect. 18: ita loqui homines . . . esset), and (2) shows that an acquittal, by rebuking the effrontery and violence of men like Chrysogonus and his confederates, would do much to restore law and order.

IV. Defensio (§§ 21–47).

Sects. 21–23. The guilt of the defendant is antecedently improbable. His character does not suit the crime. No motive has been shown. The alleged ill-will between the father and the son has not been proved and is unlikely.

9 20 (Sect. 21.) ejus modi quo uno maleficio, of such a kind, that in this one crime (rel. clause of result).
9 22 volu, by a look.
9 24 si ... postularet, ... coge
tant, would compel it if the case required (see § 308, b; G. 597, r.8; H. 5111); jura coge tant is equivalent to a verb of necessity and hence the imperf. indic. in the apodosis appears with the imperf. subj. in the protasis.
9 27 auditum sit, a general condition; subj. because integral part of the result clause.
9 28 tu (emphatic), you, a professional prosecutor.
9 29 censes: the word used to express deliberate judgment, after discussion or the like.
9 30 mores, character, as resulting from habits of life; naturam, natural disposition.
10. 2 tu: emphatic, as opposed to the general run of accusers.
Cicero is here using the famous "argument from probability," a favorite with ancient orators and rhetoricians from the fifth century B.C. "For example, if a physically weak man be accused of an assault, he is to ask the jury, 'Is it probable that a weakling like me should have attacked anybody?' while if the accused is a strong man he is to claim that it is improbable that he should have committed an assault in a case where his strength was sure to be used as a presumption against him."

10 4 (Sect. 22.) Here the "argument from probability" is very skillfully carried out. In sect. 22 Cicero draws such a contrast between the nature of the crime and the character of the defendant as to appeal powerfully to the imagination of the jury as well as to their reason. Describing briefly and vividly the three types of men who might be recognized as likely to commit such a murder (the weak-minded stripling led astray by evil companions, the hardened cut-throat, the ruined debauchee), he points to the life and character of Roscius as having nothing in common with any of these. This leads up at once to the question of motive: if Roscius' character was so little suited to the crime, the motive must have been extraordinarily powerful; but no motive at all has been shown (sect. 23).

10 4 patrem, etc.: to preserve the emphasis we may render a parricide has been committed by Sex. Roscius.—qui homo? what sort of man (is it who has committed such a crime)?
10 5 adolescentulus: the diminutive suggests a weak stripling led astray (inductus); the defendant was, in fact, a man of forty.—nequam, with hominibus.
10 6 major: anomalous for the more usual plus or amplius (§ 247, c;
G. 311, r.4; Hi. 417, i, N.4).—vetus (emphatic), old (in the sense of the English derivative inveterate.—videlicet, no doubt, of course.
10 10 de luxuria: for constr. see note on de parricidio (p. 8, l. 7).
10 12 cuiquam: words in italics are not in the manuscripts, but are supplied by modern scholars (from conjecture) as being necessary to the construction or the sense.

10 14 objectit: the accuser had made it a point in his argument that the defendant was of a morose temper, shunning all society and burying himself in the country. Cicero deftly turns these assertions to the advantage of his client.

10 15 officio, sense of duty, and consequent discharge of it; especially used with reference to filial duty (pietas).

10 16 (Sect. 23.) In ancient trials, as at present, it was particularly important to show a motive in order to secure a conviction for murder. Erucius had alleged two motives,—ill-feeling between father and son, and intended disinheritance. In this section (and in the two chapters that follow, omitted in this edition) Cicero disposes of the former; in ch. xix. (also omitted) he argues that there is no evidence that the elder Roscius meant to disinherit his son. In chs. xx. and xxi. (omitted) he goes on to say that the prosecutor has shown no case and to inveigh against him for bringing a baseless charge.

10 19 justam, sufficient or well-grounded.

10 20 illud, this (referring forward to the inf. clause following), i.e. the point previously treated; hoc, the new point now introduced.

10 22 odio . . . parenti: § 233, a; G. 356; H. 390, i.

10 23 eodem, to the same point (as that treated in the preceding section).

10 25 displiceret, was disliked by.

10 26 qui odisset, in that he hated (according to their argument): see § 341, d; G. 628; H. 528, i.

10 27 constantissimus (opposed to amens), most steady-minded ("level-headed").

10 28 illud refers forward (as usual) to causam fuisse. — jam, by this time.

Sects. 24–30. Recapitulation. Erucius had to show not only a strong motive, but, in the case of so unnatural a crime, to bring the clearest testimony as to facts,—where, how, by whose means, when the murder was committed. A recent case of acquittal (sect. 26), even against strong circumstantial evidence, since absolute proof is needed to establish such a charge. Enormity of the crime, as shown by the severity of the legal punishment (sects. 28–29). Yet Erucius has no evidence to offer,—he has not even established a plausible motive.

11. 3 quod, referring to id in l. 5: cf. in English, "whom therefore ye ignorantly worship, him declare I unto you."
11 4 jam prope cotidiana, i.e. which have come to be an almost everyday affair.

11 5 quae, etc.: the question which is referred to in quod ... quaeritur.

11 7 convenisse ... videntur, seem to have converged upon one spot and to agree together: the phrase inter se may express any sort of reciprocal relation (§ 196, f; G. 221; H. 448, n.).

11 10 ingenio, talent (i.e. power in putting the case.) — cum, not only.

11 12 ostendatur: § 331, i and N.¹; G. 535, r.²; H. 502, i.

11 14 (Sect. 25.) sint, exist. — existent: cf. note on ostendatur, above. — expressa vestigia, distinct footprints.

11 15 ratione, manner, i.e. the whole plan of the act.

11 19 suspicionibus: governed by reclamitat, which, on account of its meaning, takes an indir. obj.

11 21 esse, that there should be, etc.

11 23 feras: notice the emphatic position. The emphasis may be expressed in English either by changing the verb to the passive (in order to keep feras at the beginning of the clause) or by turning thus: even in the case of wild beasts, etc.

11 25 (Sect. 26.) As an example of what cogent proof is required to overcome the presumption against the possibility of so unnatural a crime as parricide, Cicero cites a recent case in which strong circumstantial evidence was held insufficient. — ita, so very.

11 26 non obscumur, respectable.

11 29 servus: here used as adj. (§ 188, d; G. 288, r.; H. 441, 3).

12. 1 pertineret, subj. of characteristic. — id aetatis (§ 240, b; G. 336, N.²; H. 378, 2), i.e. too old for the sound sleep of childhood. — autem, on the other hand. — propter, near by.

12 4 neutrumne sensisse, the idea that, etc. (infin. of exclam.: § 274; G. 534; H. 539, iii; cf. Æneid, i. 37).

12 5 potissimum, of all others; cf. sect. 1, l. 3.

12 7 (Sect. 27.) porro ... conveniret, could naturally fall (really in the same constr. as pertineret, l. 1, above).

12 9 judicio (abl. of means), on the trial (more lit. by the court).

12 13 potuisset, subj. of characteristic (in dir. disc. potuerit).

12 14 non modo ... possunt, not only cannot, etc. (§ 149, e; G. 482, r.; H. 552, 2): the verb is sufficiently negativated by ne.

12 16 (Sect. 28.) quo ... eo, the less ... the more.

12 18 multis = many other (implied in the generalizing cum, not only, followed by tum, but also).
Defence of Roscius.

12 19 armis, abl. of specification.
12 20 tum, but also (correlative with cum in l. 17). — vel: in the emphasizing use (to strengthen maxime, § 93, b; G. 303; H. 444, 3).
12 21 singulare, special (lit. unique).
12 22 sapientiam, acc. of exclamation.
12 23 rerum natura, the universe, represented by air (caelum), fire (solem), water, and earth, the elements "from which all things are said to be produced" (omnia nata esse, l. 26).
12 25 ademerint, subord. clause in ind. disc.
12 27 dicuntur: for mood, see § 342, a; G. 620, r., b; H. 529, ii, n.1.
12 27 (Sect. 29). obicere, cast forth to. — ne bestiis . . . uteremur, lest we should find the very beasts more savage (immanioribus, in predicate apposition).
12 28 attigissent, subj. of integral part.
12 29 sic nudos, naked as they were.
12 30 ipsum, even that. — violata, defiled.
12 31 expiare: sea water, as well as running water, was regarded as having a ceremonially purifying quality, — an opinion prevailing in various religions, and found in the forms of ablution, baptism, and the like. — putantur: for mood cf. dicuntur, l. 30, above. — tam . . . volgare, so cheap or so common.
12 32 cujus . . . reliquerint, clause of result. — etenim, i.e. it needs no argument to show, etc.
13 2 ejectis, to castaways. — ita, in such a way.
13 8 (Sect. 30.) talibus viris, "to this intelligent jury." — ne causam quidem, not even a motive (to say nothing of evidence of guilt).
13 9 emptores, the purchasers (of the confiscated property), i.e. men having the strongest interest in his conviction, with Chrysogonus himself as their presiding officer.
13 11 venisses, you should have come (§ 266, c; G. 272, 3; H. 483, 2, N.). — utrum . . . an, i.e. which is it — the nature of the question or the character of the court [another compliment to the jury] — that you do not see?
13 14 ne . . . quidem: § 209, a, 1; G. 445; H. 553, 2.

Sects. 31–35. Roscius had not only no motive to commit the crime, but no means of committing it. Erucius is challenged to tell how Roscius could himself have killed his father or could have procured his death through others.
13 16 (Sect. 31.) esto, well then (to quit that point). — causam proferre, to allege a motive.
13 17 vicisse debeo, I ought to have now gained the case, i.e. by my past argument: ought to have conquered (in the past) would be vincere debui (§ 288, a; G. 280, b, N.3; H. 537, 1).

13 18 in alia causa, in another case: an implied condition of which concederem is the apodosis (§ 310, a; G. 600, r; H. 507, N.7).

13 19 qua re, why; quo modo, how. Cicero contends that he is not obliged to discuss the manner of the murder, since Ercius has not raised that point and has not even been able to assign a motive. His own position in the argument is so strong, however, that, he says, he can afford to concede a point by waiving the question of motive and allowing Ercius to argue the case on the basis of the means by which Roscius could have committed the crime. This is of course a rhetorical device to introduce one of Cicero’s strongest arguments. It cannot be proved that it was even possible for Roscius to kill his father under the circumstances. By calling for the details of the murder Cicero shows that none can be produced. The whole passage serves also as an effective preparation for the counter-charge (omitted in this edition), in which it is shown that Sex. Roscius Magnus had not only a motive, but every opportunity.

13 21 sic, i.e. I will deal with you on these terms.—meo loco, in my place, i.e. in the time allotted to the defence; this was determined for each party by the prætor.

13 22 respondendi, i.e. at the end of a question; interpellandi, i.e. in the middle of any question, to answer a part of it; interrogandi, i.e. by asking questions in his turn.

13 24 (Sect. 32.) ipse percussit, did he strike the fatal blow himself?

13 25 ipsum, sc. percussisse. —per alios, for abl. of means, when persons are intended (§ 246, b; G. 401; H. 415, 1, N.1).

13 27 indidemne Ameriâ, from Ameria there? (lit. the same place.)—hosce sicarios, these cut-throats here of ours.

13 30 convenit, i.e. to bargain for the murder.

13 32 unde, i.e. on whom did he draw for the money? All such banking business being in a manner public, the sum could be traced, as by cheques and the like in modern times.

14. 1 caput, fountain-head.

14 2 tibi, dat. instead of poss. gen. (§ 235, a; G. 350, 1; H. 384, 4, N.3).—veniat, with facito (faci) for simple imperat. (§ 269, g; G. cf. 553, 1; H. cf. 489, 2). The fut. form of the imperat. is used, because the accuser is bidden to reflect on the point raised, so that there is a distinct reference to future time (§ 269, d; G. 268, 2; H. 487, 2).

14 3 agrestem, boorish (see next clause).

14 5 in oppido constitisses, stayed in any town; oppidum is distinguished both from urbs, the great city, and vicus, a country village; it would be a place of some society and cultivation.

14 6 (Sect. 33.) _qua in re, on this point._ — _praetero,_ etc.: an excellent example of the rhetorical device called _praeteritio_ ("omission"). The speaker dwells upon the point while pretending to pass it over in silence.

14 7 _poterat, might,* i.e. if I chose to use it (§ 311, c; G. 597, r.¹; H. 511, 1, N.³).

14 8 _victu arido,* dry or meagre way of living. — _inculta,* uncouth.

14 10 _possis,* potential subj. (§ 311, a; G. 257, 1; H. 485).

14 11 _in urbe* (emphatic), i.e. not in the country, where Roscius was.

14 12 _exsistat,* erumpat, dependent on _necesse est._ — _erumpat,* burst forth: a strong word is used on account of _audacia,* reckless daring.

14 13 _autem,* on the other hand.

14 14 _agrestem:* see note on l. 3. — _parsimoniae,* _thrift* (in a good sense).

14 16 (Sect. 34.) _missa facio,* _I let that pass_ ( _missa* agreeing with _ea,* understood, obj. of _facio*); such phrases are often used colloquially or with emphasis, for the simple verb (§ 292, d; G. 537). — _illud quaero,* _this is what I want to know.

14 17 _per quos:* these words are the interrogative expression with which the clause grammatically begins; _is homo* is put first for emphasis.

14 20 _suspiciose,* i.e. so as to look suspicious. — _in his rebus,* _but in these circumstances,* i.e. those in our case (emphatic position). — _suspicio . . . culpam:* i.e. in so clear a case I will not ask Erucius for proof of guilt; if he can show any suspicious circumstance, it shall suffice.

14 22 _credo,* _I suppose:* ironical, as usual when parenthetical.

14 27 _causa dicitur,* _the defendant is on trial_ (a technical term: lit. _the case is argued,* i.e. by the defendant).

14 28 (Sect. 35.) _admisert:* § 332, a; G. 553, 4; H. 501, i, 1.

14 29 _quod,* _that.*

14 30 _quod:* the antecedent is _id* (p. 15, l. 1); the clause _ut . . . polliceatur* is in apposition with _quod.

15. 1 _quaestionem,* _question* in the technical sense, i.e. examination by torture, the regular legal way of examining slaves. An accused person could, of his own accord, offer his slaves for that purpose ( _polliceri*: in this case Roscius had lost his slaves, and so was deprived of that privilege.

15 2 _unus puer,* as much as a single slave.

15 3 _minister,* i.e. to wait upon him. — _familia:* this word, in its primary meaning, properly embraced the entire body of free persons, clients, and slaves, under the patriarchal rule of the _paterfamilias._ In time, the meaning was divided, applying either (1) to the family proper — the paterfamilias, with his wife, children, etc.; or (2) to a body (or gang) of slaves. The latter is the meaning here.

15 4 Scipio, Metelle: these were, probably, P. Scipio Nasica, father of Metellus Scipio (a leader on Pompey's side in the Civil War), and his cousin, Q. Metellus Nepos, brother of Cæcilia (sect. 50), and father of the Celer and Nepos referred to in the orations against Catiline.

15 5 advocatis, called in (as friends of the accused); agentibus, taking active part. The demand seems to have been formal, and these friends were present to attest it.

15 7 meministisne: —ne = nonne (§ 210, d; G. 454, N.8). — T. Ros-cium, i.e. Magnus.

15 8 sectantur, are in the train of.

15 10 quid facitis: up to this point Cicero appears to be merely accounting for the fact (which might have made against his case) that the younger Roscius had not offered his slaves for examination. With this abrupt question he shows the true bearing of the refusal of Magnus, retorting suddenly the countercharge, which he carries out in a chapter here omitted. The effect on a jury of such an appeal as Dubitare, etc., must have been very great.

Sects. 36–42. The sale of the property of the elder Roscius was illegal and his proscription in every way irregular. For this act Chrysogonus is to be blamed, not Sulla, for Sulla was necessarily so much occupied with affairs of state that details of this kind escaped his attention.

15 17 (Sect. 36.) aureum: the Greek name Chrysogonus means gold-born.

15 18 latuit: because his was the only name that appeared.

15 22 alii quoque, i.e. other purchasers of confiscated estates.

15 23 ut mihi, etc., i.e. I have no occasion to say anything of the purchasers of confiscated estates in general, for this case, by its atrocity, is taken out of the common category (haec enim causa, etc., l. 24, below).

15 24 sectorum: these were the purchasers of confiscated property in the lump, who afterwards divided it (seco) to sell again in detail.

15 28 (Sect. 37.) venierunt, from vēneo not vēnio.

15 30 si enim haec, for if such remarks, etc., i.e. if I may be allowed to speak freely.

15 31 tensus homo, such a great person: a hint that more important men than he had suffered. In fact, all the really eminent victims of the Civil War had perished before the proscription.
Defence of Roscius.

16. 2 qui (adv.), how?

16 3 Valeria: the law by which Sulla was made perpetual dictator and invested with absolute power of life and death (B.C. 82); it was proposed by L. Valerius Flaccus as interrex. Laws were designated by the gentile name of their proposer: all laws, for example, carried by L. Cornelius Sulla were known as Leges Corneliae. — Cornelia: this appears to have been enacted some time after the lex Valeria, in order to regulate the details of the proscription. Cicero's ignorance of the law is no doubt affected. — novi, I know the thing or person; scio, I know the fact: I am not acquainted with the law, and do not know which it is.

16 6 proscripti sunt: the indic. must mean those already proscribed when the law was passed. Future cases of proscription would have been referred to by the subj. or fut. perf. (see Verr. ii. chs. xli, xliii.).

16 7 in . . . praesidiis, among the armed forces, etc.

16 8 dum, so long as ($276, ε, N.; G. 569; H. 519, i).

16 12 veteres, those of the regular code; novas, those of the Sullan revolution. — occisum esse, indir. disc. with constat; the subj. acc. is omitted.

16 14 (Sect. 38.) in eum, i.e. Sulla. Here it is necessary for the orator to proceed with great caution: even if not himself present, Sulla would watch sharply the first case before his own criminal court.

16 15 ab initio, from the beginning of this trial (see sect. 12); omni tempore, throughout his whole career.

16 17 ut ementiretur, . . . passus non sit, clauses in appos. with haec omnia: for the change of tense, see §279, d.

16 18 apud adversarios, in the enemy's ranks (= in praesidiis, above).

16 21 postea: the passage referred to appears to have been lost out of the oration, probably in the gap in ch. xlv. The scholiast represents Chrysogonus as saying that he had used the property in building a villa at Veii.

16 24 (Sect. 39.) Kalendas Junias, acc., in the same constr. as diem.

16 26 tabulas: confiscated property belonged to the state, and public records of its seizure and sale were, of course, kept. — nulla, not at all ($191; G. 325, r.6; H. 457, 3).

16 27 redierunt = relata sunt. — facetius, more cleverly: in the case supposed, the pretended proscription would never have occurred and the property would have been taken without even the forms of law.

16 30 ante tempus, too early, i.e. before it is time to raise so trivial a question as that of a title to property (Roscius is now on trial for his life).

16 32 reduviam curum (proverbial), treat a sore finger, i.e. in a case of life and death, I deal only with some trifling ailment. For mood see §320, ε; G. 586; H. 517.
Notes.

17. 1 non rationem ducit, he does not take account (a mercantile phrase).
17 5 (Sect. 40.) partim pro me, partly in my own name. To avoid entangling the case of his client with politics, Cicero makes himself responsible for everything that may have a political bearing; he was a well-known partisan of the nobility, and could afford to speak freely.
17 7 quae-que; not from quisque. — ad omnis pertinere, concern all.
17 8 sensu ac dolore, feeling and pain, i.e. painful feeling (so-called heudiadys).
17 11 jam, with the fut., presently.
17 12 (Sect. 41.) ego, opposed to Roscio.
17 17 diem, fem. (§ 73; G. 64; H. 123). — praefinita, fixed in advance, as the limit (finio).
17 19 patronum, i.e. Sulla. (See note on libertum, p. 6, l. 10.)
17 20 conferre, throw the responsibility for. — egerit, will effect, fut. perf. for fut. (§ 281, r.; G. 244; H. 473).
17 22 imprudente: cf. p. 5, l. 28.
17 23 (Sect. 42.) placet, do I like? i.e. do I think it right? — imprudentia, want of foresight.
17 24 etenim si, etc. (the apod is quid miramur, p. 18, l. 1). The comparison that follows is perhaps somewhat strained; but it accords with the habits of thought of the ancients, to whom the powers of a supreme ruler appeared in a manner divine. (Cf. the language used of Cæsar in the Oration for Marcellus.) The tone in which kings were addressed in modern literature until very recent times may be compared (see, e.g., Bacon’s dedication of his Advancement of Learning to James I.).
17 29 perniciei, for pernicii (§ 74, a; G. 63, N.1; H. 121, 1). — vi ipsa . . . rerum, by the very violence of the elements,— the agents or powers which he has to control.
18. 1 cum is causal, but may be translated when.
18 4 nisi, here as often (more commonly with forte or vero) introducing a reductio ad absurdum (§ 315, b, n.; G. 591, r.4). — quod, pron. : the anteced. is id.
18 5 possit, aedepa sit, informal indirect disc., as expressing the thought of the person surprised (§ 341; G. 662; H. 528). — si . . . sit, clause with mirum (§ 333, r.; G. 542, N.1).

Sects. 43-46. In thus attacking Chrysogonus, Cicero is not assailing the cause of the nobility. On the contrary, that cause is honored by resistance to him. His insolence and power are unbearable. It was not to advance such slaves as he that Sulla fought and conquered.

19. 1 (Sect. 43.) vereor: for emphat. position cf. credo, p. 2, l. 1. — imperitior: § 93, a; G. 297, 2; H. 444, 1.

19 2 tametsi, and yet. — meo jure, with perfect right (as belonging to that party); jure alone would mean justly; meo limits it to the speaker's own case. The passage that follows is interesting, as showing the way in which Cicero regarded the general principles at stake in the Civil War, and the excesses of the victorious party.

19 6 pro mea, etc., to the extent of my poor and feeble ability.

19 7 ut componeretur, that reconciliation should be made: a clause of result in appos. with id (§ 332 and headnote; G. 557; H. 501, iii).

19 8 qui vicerunt, who did (in fact) conquer: the subj. here would mean, whatever party might conquer (§ 342, n. ; G. 629, r.; H. 529, ii, n.1).

19 9 humilitatem, not merely low rank, but meanness and vulgarity; dignitate, personal worth, from birth and services; amplitudine, rank or position — prominence in the state. With all his arrogance, blood-thirstiness, and narrow conservatism, Sulla was, in fact, the representative of orderly government against anarchy and mob-law.

19 10 perditi civis erat (pred. gen.), it was the part of a bad citizen (§ 214, d; G. 366; H. 401, 402).

19 11 quibus incolumibus (abl. abs.), by whose safety.

19 12 retineretur, would be preserved: fut. cond. (§ 307, f; G. 596, 2; H. 507, n.7) the protasis being quibus incolumibus. — quae, i.e. the reinstating of the nobility.

19 15 felicitate: see note on p. 6, l. 7.

19 17 (Sect. 44.) quod animadversum est (impers.) in eos, that those have been punished (a euhemuristic expression for the proscription). Observe the chiastic order of ideas: (a) the punishment; (b) the persons on whom it was inflicted; (c) the persons rewarded; (c') the reward.

19 20 quae, referring to both the punishment and the reward just spoken of.

19 21 in eo studio partium, in favor of that party: studium is the regular word for siding with a particular party.

19 22 id actum est, this was the object. — idcirco, antecedent to the purpose clause. — ut . . . facerent, purpose clause in appos. with id.

19 23 postremi, the lowest (in class or character).

19 25 tum vero: here the apodosis begins.

19 28 nihil horum est, none of these things is true (i.e. is the fact).

19 29 ornabitur. Nothing can exceed the skill with which, throughout this oration, Cicero keeps before the minds of the jury the distinction between the great cause of Sulla and the nobility and the unscrupulous greed of some of Sulla's partisans. His continual allusions to his client's hereditary friendships with the aristocracy have this end, among others, in view.

19 30 (Sect. 45.) male: to speak ill is to utter abuse or calumny.

20. 1 causam communicare, identify their cause with that of, etc.

20 3 equestrem, referring to the struggle for the judicia and the extensive sympathy of the equites with the party of Marius. Cf. note to Verr. sect. 1.

20 4 servi: Chrysogonus had been Sulla's slave.

20 6 versabatur, displayed itself.—quam viam munitet (indir. quest.): for road-building, both literal and figurative, the Romans used the engineering term munire.

20 7 fidem, etc., your honor (good faith), your oath, and your courts; i.e. after getting possession of political power, these low-born fellows were now aiming at the courts, the one security of public faith and good government.—justjurandum: the jurors were under oath to give a righteous judgment.

20 9 hicine (emphat.), here, i.e. in the courts (as opposed to politics).

20 11 neque . . . possit: Cicero does not wish to encourage him by admitting for a moment that he can really do anything in this case: it is the fact that he has dared to hope to accomplish something, that is an outrage.—verear: subj. because it expresses not a real reason, but one introduced for the sole purpose of being contradicted (§ 321, r.; G. 541, n. 2; H. 516, 2).

20 15 (Sect. 46.) expectata, so long waited for. For some years (B.C. 87–83), while Sulla was in the East, the Marian faction had full control at Rome, and a reign of terror prevailed.

20 17 servoli, diminutive of contempt.—bona, estites; fortunas (more generally), wealth.

20 18 id actum est: cf. p. 19, l. 22.

20 19 senserim, sided with them: this verb, with its noun sententia, often refers to political opinions.

20 20 inermis, i.e. had he taken up arms, his regret would have been deeper.

20 22 cuique, to every man in proportion as he is, etc. (§ 93, c.; G. 318, 2; H. 458, 1).

20 25 probe novit: note the strong sarcasm, which points the distinction between the noble cause which was at stake and the sordid motives of Chrysogonus.
Defence of Roscius.

20 26 resistetur, impersonal. — ille: here indefinite, referring to the supposed person who thinks himself attacked.

20 27 rationem, interests (so that what touches one touches the other): a mercantile figure, as we might say, "who thinks his accounts are mixed up with his."

20 28 laeditur, etc., is injured by being separated, etc.

V. PERORATIO (§§ 47–57).

With sect. 47 begins the last formal division of the speech,—the peroratio. This consists, as was common with Roman advocates, in an appeal to the sympathy of the court (cf. the closing portion of the Defence of Milo).

20 30 (Sect. 47.) mea, emphatic. Cicero wishes to avoid prejudice to his client by himself assuming sole responsibility for these words. At the same time this section serves as a skilful means of transition. It is so important for Cicero to show that this case has no political bearings that he has been forced to abandon the question of the murder for a time, and to discuss the illegal sale of the property. He must now return to the charge against his client, and he does so by remarking that Roscius has no complaint to make of his treatment by Chrysogonus if the latter will only let him off with his life.

21 2 morum, the ways of men. — vos, i.e. Chrysogonus and his abettors in the accusation. vos is expressed, not as being specially emphatic, but from the Latin fondness for contrasting persons with each other.

21 3 more, in the regular way. — jure gentium: the "law common to all nations," as opposed to jus civile, or law of the state; thus it is used as nearly equivalent to natural right.

21 4 a vobis, i.e. once clear of guilt, and acquitted of this shocking crime, he will leave you unmolested.

21 6 rogat: a feigned appeal to his persecutors, intended to move the compassion of the jury for Roscius and their indignation against Chrysogonus.

21 7 in suam rem: in a former passage (omitted in this edition) allusion is made to a charge that Roscius had fraudulently kept back part of his father's property.

21 9 cessit, etc., has given up (the immovable property), counted and weighed (the rest).
Notes.

21 10 anulum, probably the gold ring indicating his rank as eques.
21 11 se ipsum, etc., and has reserved nothing else besides his naked self.
21 14 (Sect. 48.) quod, quia: § 321; G. 540; H. 516, i.
21 27 praeter ceteros, more than anybody else.—ne quando: i.e. sometime when there comes a political reaction.
21 28 patria, of their fathers.
21 29 (Sect. 49.) facis injuriam, i.e. you do wrong (i.e. to Sulla).—majorem spem: in this and the preceding sentence Cicero artfully suggests that Chrysogonus has no confidence that Sulla's constitution will last, and that he therefore wishes to remove a dangerous claimant in case of another political overturn. This insinuation would, of course, tend to prejudice the partisans of Sulla against Chrysogonus.
22 6 cruenta (pred.): the expression of the thought is made more vivid by the use of words exactly appropriate to the killing of a man and the stripping (detrahere) of his dead body.
22 8 (Sect. 50.) rem tuam, your interests.
22 13 quasi nescias, as if you did not know (§ 312; G. 602; H. 513, ii, and N. 1).
22 14 spectatissima, most estimable; the friends of Roscius are purposely exalted, in order to influence the court.—cum, concessive.
22 16 cum esset, though she was, etc.—femina, mulier: observe the distinction between the words, the latter being always used in speaking of the tenderness of the feminine nature.—quanto: translate however much (though the Latin is definite); the usual correlative is supplied by non minora, fully as great.
22 19 (Sect. 51.) Observe the clever transition. Cicero suggests that, since there are no other assignable causes for the implacability of Chrysogonus, perhaps he may be offended by the zeal of the defence. This enables him to pass at once to an emphatic assertion of the influential connections of his client.
22 20 pro patris, etc., in accordance with his father's friendly relations and personal influence (see above, sect. 1), i.e. by an advocacy proportionate in number and influence to the number and attachment of his father's friends.
22 22 sin... vindicarent, i.e. if all the citizens were disposed to right his wrongs.
22 23 pro eo, etc., in view of the fact that (i.e. with a due regard to the way in which) the highest interests of the State (summa res publica) are assailed.
22 24 haec, these outrages. Observe that English often requires descriptive words which the Latin can omit as being implied in the con-
Defence of Roscius.

— consistere, etc., hinting that the accusers would be in danger of violence.

22 25 nunc, as it is ("as things stand": opposed to the preceding suppositions).

22 26 sane, I'm sure.

22 27 (Sect. 52.) quae domi: i.e. the personal protection of Roscius, supply of money, providing of witnesses, etc.

22 28 fori... rationem, the business of forum and court, i.e. the preliminaries of the trial.

22 29 ut videtis, i.e. he is here in court.

22 31 aetas, youth.

23. 1 adsiduitate, constant presence, probably at the preliminary proceedings.

23 3 sectorum, a pun: the word means both buyers (of confiscated property) and cut-throats.

23 4 hac nobilitate, i.e. such nobles as he.

23 5 haec res, the present state of things was brought about.—ei, such.

23 6 qui... facerent: in this clause (as often in Latin) purpose and result approach so closely as to be indistinguishable.

23 10 loco, rank in life.

Sects. 53–57. Final appeal to the jurors.

23 13 (Sect. 53.) nostra, nobis, identifying himself with his client.

23 16 si... habet, if he is not content (lit. does not regard [it] as enough).

23 17 nisi, etc., unless his cruelty is also sated with blood (lit. blood is furnished to his cruelty).

23 21 hoc tempore, in these times.

23 22 versata est, has prevailed.

23 25 versari, live.

23 25 (Sect. 54.) ad eamne rem, is it for this that, etc.

23 27 solent, the emphat. position may be represented by translating, it is the custom, etc.

23 29 qui excipiatis, to cut off.

24. 2 consilium: the jury, or body of judices, was called consilium. By calling it a public council, Cicero enhances its dignity and importance.

24 4 (Sect. 55.) an vero, or can it be true that, etc. In this use of an, the first question is omitted ($211, b; G. 457, 1; H. 353, n.4), and the second is often a reductio ad absurdum, as here. The full thought is, "Do you not agree with me, or can it really (vero) be?" etc.—agi, is their object (aliiquid agere is to aim at something).
Notes.

24 5 ut ... tollantur, be got rid of, in one way or another.
24 6 in vestro jurejurando, i.e. in the severity which your oath might seem to bind you to exercise. — periculo, the case (often used with reference to defendants).
24 7 ad quem pertineat, i.e. on whom the suspicion rests.
24 8 sectorem ... accusatorem, i.e. T. Roscius Magnus, at once purchaser, enemy, cut-throat, and accuser.
24 12 (Sect. 56.) obstare, stands against (cf. sect. 20, above).
24 18 suscipere noluit: the law by which the proscriptions were instituted was passed by the people directly, without the action of the Senate.
24 19 more majorum, i.e. that every capital judgment was subject to an appeal to the people in the comitia centuriata.
24 20 publico consilio, i.e. by their official action.
24 21 eorum, refers back to eos, l. 18, above.
24 22 reicitis, etc., pres. for fut. (§ 276, c; G. 228; H. 467, 5).
24 26 (Sect. 57.) quibus: the antecedent is eis (l. 27).
24 28 quin intellegat: § 319, d; G. 556; H. 504, 1.
25 1 pati nolite, do not suffer (§ 269, a; G. 271, 2; H. 489, 1).
25 3 hominibus, etc. (dat., § 229; G. 345 and r.1; H. 386), has taken from the gentlest of men the sense of mercy, through familiarity with distress (lit. in plur.).

IMPEACHMENT OF VERRES.

ARGUMENT.

Chap. 1. The jurors are congratulated on the opportunity of restoring the good name of the senatorial courts by convicting Verres. — 2, 3. Attempts of Verres to avoid the trial: placing all his hope in bribery, he is intriguing for the postponement of the case. — 4, 5. His crimes in administration, of pillage, extortion, and cruelty, are flagrant and notorious. — 6. Hence bribery is his only resource: his attempt to contract in advance for acquittal. — 7, 8. His hopes in the election of Hortensius as consul and Metellus as prætor for the following year. — 9, 10. Cicero's anxiety. The great effort to have the case tried before Metellus, which was to be effected by delaying the trial till after the holidays. — 11. Cicero proposes to display his case at once, without argument, and so prevent its being laid over. — 12, 13. The domination of Hortensius is dangerous to the state and must be met by proofs of corruption in the senatorial courts. — 14, 15.
Impeachment of Verres.

The acquittal of Verres will be subversive of the whole judicial system: the jurors are urged to vindicate the courts by convicting him.—16. All Rome is on the watch: the court itself is on trial: acquittal can have but one meaning.—17. Glabrio is urged to stand firm. —18. The Sicilians must not be baffled. Cicero, by despatch, will prevent the case from going over to the next year: he will introduce his witnesses at once, without previous argument. Brief statement of the charges, including the plunder of 4,000,000 sesterces from the Sicilians.

With the trial of Verres the student may compare the impeachment of Warren Hastings in the last century, probably the most famous modern instance of the arraignment of a provincial governor for alleged misgovernment, extortion, and cruelty. The prosecution in this case (and in particular Burke) seem to have modelled their speeches on the Verrine orations of Cicero, and many parallels may easily be discovered. A few of these are quoted in these notes. That the similarity of the two situations was clearly felt at the time may be seen from Lord Erskine's Defence of Stockdale (Dec., 1789) on a charge connected with the impeachment of Hastings: "When Cicero impeached Verres before the great tribunal of Rome, of similar cruelties and depredations in her provinces, the Roman people were not left to such inquiries. All Sicily surrounded the Forum, demanding justice upon her plunderer and spoiler, with tears and imprecations. It was not by the eloquence of the orator, but by the cries and tears of the miserable, that Cicero prevailed in that illustrious case. Verres fled from the oaths of his accusers and their witnesses, and not from the voice of Tully."

Chap. I. The trial of Verres gives the senatorial order an opportunity to redeem the reputation of the courts.

Verres had no defence, but had expected to escape by bribing the jury in case he should be prosecuted. His guilt was notorious, so that the chief question now to be determined was that of the integrity of the jury. Cicero accordingly makes this the main point of the present oration: it is the court, he insists, that is on trial rather than Verres.

Page 28. Line 1. (Sect. 1.) erat optandum (§ 311, c; G. 254, r.1; H. 511, 1, n.8: not implying a protasis contrary to fact), what was chiefly to be wished. — quod . . . pertinebat, the one thing which most tended (or, was of chief importance).
Notes.

28 2 invidiam infamiamque, odium and ill repute, from the partisan use of the courts by the Senators. — vestri ordinis, i.e. the senatorial order. The word ordo signified, loosely, any recognized body of citizens— as freedmen, publicans, clerks; but it was more especially used of the two powerful classes of the Roman aristocracy, the Senatorial and the Equestrian, which struggled with each other for power during the last century of the Republic. The Senators, from whom the jurors were at this time taken (see note on Rosc. Am., p. 2, l. 1), formed a limited (300 to 600) order of nobility which virtually controlled the government. The equites constituted a moneyed aristocracy. Naturally these two orders had opposing interests, as the Senators were excluded from trade and the equites practically from political power. Their antagonism showed itself more especially in the matter of the provinces, which the Senators wished to oppress by official plunder and the equites by commercial extortion.

28 4 summo . . . tempore, most critical time (more lit. extreme crisis): the year of the consulship of Pompey and Crassus (B.C. 70).

28 5 inveteravit (emphatic position), there has come to be deeply rooted (observe that the figure is quite different in the Latin). — opinio, notion or idea (not so strong as our opinion, which would be sententia).

28 7 exteras nationes: the reference is, of course, to the peoples subject to Rome, who were aggrieved by the rapacity of the provincial governors.

28 8 his judiciis: in consequence of the situation described above (note on ordinis, l. 2), it became all important for one class or the other to control the courts, before which any misdoings of either party were likely to come for trial. For years these two orders had struggled for such control. At this particular time the courts were in the hands of the Senators, who were bound together by a common cause to shield any one of their number who might be charged with misconduct as a provincial governor.

29. 2 neminem (more emphatic than nullum): translate, never.

29 3 (Sect. 2.) cum (causal) sint, when men are ready. — contionibus et legibus, harangues and bills (proposed laws). The proposition of a law which took the exclusive control of the courts from the Senators was even now pending, and the law (lex Aurelia) was passed before the case of Verres was decided.

29 5 contentur, purpose clause.

29 7 magnitudine, abl. of means; spe, abl. of specification.

29 9 actor, complainant, i.e. agent or attorney for conducting the suit in personal processes (in personam).

29 11 adduxi enim hominem, etc.: cf. Burke, Impeachment of Warren Hastings: " We have brought before your Lordships the first man in property and power; we have brought before you the head, the chief, the captain-general in iniquity,—one in whom all the frauds, all the peculations, all the tyranny in India are embodied, disciplined, and arrayed. Then, if we have brought before you such a person, if you strike at him, you will not have need of a great many more examples,—you strike at the whole corps if you strike at the head."—in quo, in whose case.—reconciliare, etc., win back the lost repute.
Impeachment of Verres.

29 13 possetis, purpose. — depeculatorum, etc.: for a more complete statement of these charges, see chs. iv., v.

29 14 juris urbani, i.e. as praetor urbanus (see sect. 12).

29 16 (Sect. 3.) vos, opposed to ego, below.—religiose, according to your oath.

29 18 religionem veritatemque: here, feeling of obligation and regard for the truth. Notice that the Latin, having a comparatively poor vocabulary, is obliged to use one word for all the phases or sides of an idea; hence such a word as veritas may mean truth (abstractly), a truth (concretely), the truth (generally), regard for truth, or truthful conduct.

29 19 judicium, etc., i.e. the court will be found wanting,—not a suitable defendant or a zealous prosecutor.

29 21 equidem, i.e. for my own part.

29 22 quas partim, some of which.

29 23 devitarim, subj. as a part of the concession (§ 342; G. 663, i; H. 529, ii) contained in cum . . . sint.

Chaps. II., III. Verres had already relied on bribing the courts. His vain attempt to delay his trial by the trumped-up Achaian case. His present effort to procure a postponement by corrupt means.

29 24 neque . . . neque, following numquam, does not destroy the negative, but is more emphatic than aut . . . aut.

29 29 (Sect. 4.) istius: see note on Rosc. Am., p. 4, l. 16.

29 30 Glabrioni: the prætor presiding.

29 31 ordini . . . senatorio, i.e. the senatorial order, nay, the very name of Senator.

29 32 dictitatur, constantly repeats (§ 167, b; G. 191, i; H. 336).—esse metuendum (for erat met. in dir. disc. § 336 A, n.1); hence followed by the secondary sequence, i.e. those would have to fear (if the case were theirs), but he, etc.—quod, i.e. only what.

30. 1 multis, i.e. not only for himself but also for his counsel and for those whom he may wish to bribe,—in particular, the jurors (see sect. 40).

30 3 pecunia belongs to both clauses, as is shown by their parallelism.—possit: for tense see § 267, c; G. 513; H. 495, vi.
30 4 (Sect. 5.) esset: imperf. subj. in protasis of a continued condition lasting till now (§ 308, a; G. 597, R.1; H. 510, N.2).
30 6 fefellisset, he would have eluded us.— cedit: pres. tense, of an action lasting till now (§ 276, a; G. 230; H. 467, 2).
30 9 corrumpendi judici, of bribing the court (cf. our phrase "bribery and corruption").
30 11 factus sit: for sequence see § 287, c, n.; notice that the perf. would necessarily be used in the dir. disc. with cum primum.
30 13 tempus . . . offenderet, he hit an unfavorable time; because popular sentiment was already so exasperated in regard to the corruption of the courts.
30 14 (Sect. 6.) in Siciliam inquirendi, i.e. for going into Sicily to make an investigation (hence the acc.).
30 15 invenit qui, he found some one who.
30 16 in Achaim, sc. inquirendi: on this trumped-up case, which was intended to have the precedence of the trial of Verres, see Introd. to this Oration (p. 27 of text).— ut . . . conficeret, purp. clause dep. on invenit.
30 19 Brundisium, Brindisi, the port whence the greater part of Italian travel, now as then, embarks for the East.
30 20 obii, went throughout. — populum, communities: the word populus, meaning originally multitude, is a semi-abstract noun often used to denote the community in its official capacity. Our use of the word people in some later meanings frequently produces confusion in the minds of beginners. The political system of the ancients was composed of an indefinite number of petty communities, all possessing a certain degree of independence. Hence the plur. is used here to indicate several such communities.
30 21 ut . . . posset (clause of result), imperf. by seq. of tenses: translate, however, can.
30 22 qui . . . obsideret (purpose), to block my chance (of bringing Verres to trial).
30 25 (Sect. 7.) nunc: i.e. now that his former scheme has failed.
30 26 hoc, this new idea. What the idea is is detailed in sects. 7, 8: viz., the reasons for desiring a postponement together with grounds for hoping for it.
30 30 civis, citizens, i.e. Romans travelling or doing business in the provinces, or provincials who had received the citizenship.
30 31 socios, allies: citizens of communities which, although embraced within the boundaries of Roman provinces, had, for special reasons, been.
allowed to retain a nominal independence, with their own laws and magistrates.

31. 2 auctoritatibus, documents, i.e. official testimony ("resolutions," etc.) relating to the acts of Verres.

31 3 (Sect. 8.) bonis, good citizens, here, as generally in Cicero, used in a partisan sense for the aristocracy.

31 6 experiatur: this violates the sequence of tenses in order to make the meaning clear; the imperf. would refer to the time of getting the money, not to the present moment (cf. § 287, h, n.; G. § 509, i, n.).

31 7 fuerit: the subj. shows that this is the thought of Verres, and not merely something thrown in by Cicero.—tempus: the present scheme of the defence is by corrupt means to stave off the trial to a more advantageous time (see chs. vi—viii.).

31 8 posset: imperf. to express his purpose at the time of the purchase.

31 9 criminum vim, the force of the charges.—poterat, indic., the reason being Cicero's. (The whole passage is an instructive example of the freedom of a living language from its own trammels. Rules are made for language, not language for rules.)

31 10 (Sect. 9.) eloquentia, gratia: even mere rhetorical skill or personal influence would be, to a criminal who had no case (causa), respectable (honesto) means of escape compared with these attempts at corruption.

31 13 profecto, I am sure:

31 14 acuparetur, be fishing for (lit. set nets for birds).

31 15 ut . . . fieret, as to have some one chosen to be put on trial: the Senate itself was insulted by the selection of one of its members to be set up as a man of straw, that Verres might get clear. The reference is to the trumped-up case with regard to abuses in Achaia (see sect. 6).

31 16 hic, i.e. Verres.

31 17 causam diceret, stand trial.

31 17 (Sect. 10.) quibus rebus, from this (abl. of means with perspicio).

31 20 consilio, panel, i.e. the body of jurors (cf. Rosc. Am., p. 24, l. 2). An obvious, and apparently a deserved, compliment. Whatever the general character of the courts, Cicero had in this instance secured a jury on whom he could rely.

31 21 in rejectione judicavit, decided at the challenging ("throwing out") of the jury: i.e. on seeing the kind of men challenged by the two sides respectively.

31 22 ut . . . constitueret . . . arbitraretur, subst. clauses of result (justified by the introductory ea) instead of the more regular acc. and inf. of ind. disc. (§ 332, f; G. 557, r. and n.1; H. cf. 500, iii).

Chaps. IV., V. Crimes of Verres from his youth up. His quaesitorships. His city-prætorship. His career in Sicily. His guilt is notorious.

31. 25 etenim, introducing the reason of nullam sibi rem, etc., above.
31 29 (Sect. 11.) adulescentiae, i.e. before he entered public life.
31 30 quaestura, quaestorship, the first grade of political honor.
32. 1 Carbonem: Carbo was the leader of the Marian faction after the death of Marius and Cinna. He was consul B.C. 82, the year of Sulla's return and victory. Verres was his quaestor (or paymaster), and went over to the enemy with the money-chest when he saw which side was likely to prevail.
32 3 necessitudinem religionemque: the quaestor was originally nominated specially by the consul; and the peculiarly close and sacred relation (necessitudo) existing between them was known as pietas,—a sentiment akin to filial affection. The designation by lot (zors) was also held to be a token of divine will, and therefore sacred (religio). In betraying his consul, then, Verres was guilty of more than an ordinary breach of trust,—he committed an act of impiety.
32 4 legatio: Verres was in B.C. 80–79 legatus and acting quaestor (pro quaestore) of Dolabella, whose province was Cilicia. The extortions of the two were practised in the adjoining regions of Pamphylia, Pisidia, and parts of Asia (i.e. of the Roman province of Asia, the old kingdom of Pergamus, embracing the western part of Asia Minor): totius is a rhetorical exaggeration.
32 7 scelus . . . quaestorium: Verres treated Dolabella much as he had treated Carbo. Neither of these infamous commanders deserved better treatment; but this does not excuse the perfidy of Verres.
32 9 pro quaestore, acting quaestor: when there was a vacancy in a provincial quaestorship, the commander might appoint any person to perform the duties of the office.
32 10 adduxit: Dolabella, in addition to the odium of his own crimes, had to bear the infamy of the outrageous acts of Verres; and after all Verres saved himself by turning against him (oppugnavit) and appearing as a witness in his trial for extortion.
32 12 (Sect. 12.) aedium, etc. The public buildings were regularly under the charge of the ædile, not of the prætor: the cases referred to here were certain flagrant instances of corruption and extortion arising out of contracts for public buildings, in which the prætor had it exceptionally in his power to interfere for his own advantage.
Impeachment of Verres.

32 13 in jure dicundo: jus dicere (jurisdiction), declaring the law, was the primary function of the prætor. bonorum addictio is the adjudging of property to a claimant; condonatio (grant) is the act of giving it up to a defendant: no matter which way the decision of Verres went in a case, his action was sure to be unlawful and for his own corrupt ends.

32 14 instituta, precedents. The edicts of the prætors made up a body of common law, not absolutely binding, however, on their successors.

32 15 jam vero, but finally, introducing the climax of the list of crimes.

32 18 possit: for tense see § 287, c; G. 513; H. 495, vi.

32 21 (Sect. 13.) communia jura, the same as jus gentium; those laws common to all mankind (see note on jus gentium, Rosc. Am., p. 21, l. 3). The terms leges, senatus-consulta, jura include the three sources of provincial law. — tantum, [only] so much.

32 23 imprudentiam subterfugit, escaped his vigilance (lit. want of vigilance).

32 25 res, case.

32 26 res, property.

32 27 ab eo, away from him, i.e. the possessor.

32 28 aratorum, cultivatoris (whether tenants or proprietors), who paid tithes (decumae) to the state.

32 29 socii: see note on p. 30, l. 31.

32 30 cruciati et necati: a Roman citizen could not legally receive any punishment touching life or limb, except by judgment of his peers in Rome. Thus, Jesus was crucified by the Roman governor Pilate under the ordinary provincial law applying to Jews; while Paul, a Roman citizen of the free city Tarsus, appealed to Cæsar, and was sent to Rome for trial. (See extract from Verr. vi., pp. 59-65: "Crucifixion of a Roman Citizen."

32 32 rei facti, accused (rei from reus). The details of these charges are given in the five orations of the Accusatio; it would require too much space to repeat them here.

33 1 ejecti, expelled from the country.

33 4 optima, best in themselves; opportunissimae, most valuable under the circumstances.

33 6 (Sect. 14.) regum: the famous kings of Syracuse,—Hiero, Agathocles, etc.

33 8 imperatorum: Marcellus, who conquered Syracuse, and Scipio Africanus the elder, who had Sicily as his province and crossed over from there for the conquest of Carthage.

33 12 deum, i.e. statue of a god (see pp. 55, 56 of text).
Notes.

33 14 videretur, subj. of characteristic.
33 15 commemorare, complem. infin. for subj. with ne or quominus ($§ 271, a; G. 548, N.²; H. 505, ii, 2$).
33 19 (Sect. 15) at enim (a supposed objection), but, you may say.
33 21 quin . . . possit : § 319, d; G. 556; H. 504, 1.
33 22 ut . . . timendum sit, clause of result.
33 24 multitudo, including a large number of Sicilians, present at Rome for the purpose of prosecuting Verres, and of course personally cognizant of his crimes.

Chap. VI. Verres attempted to buy up the court in advance, but, on the selection of the present jury, lost heart (sects. 16, 17). The election of Hortensius to the consulship gave him fresh courage (sect. 17). A significant incident on election day (sects. 18–20).

Cicero here returns to the subject of bribery. He has already asserted (sects. 3–10) that this had always been the sole hope of Verres; he has pointed out that Verres need not expect to corrupt the present tribunal (sect. 10), and that his guilt is so enormous and so notorious that no honest jury can fail to convict him (sects. 10–14). He now goes on to show that in endeavoring to postpone the trial Verres is, as heretofore, trying to defeat justice by corrupt means. In establishing this point, the orator reviews the several schemes of bribery, thus leading up to the matter immediately before the court and bringing out the fact that it is like the devices that had preceded it.

33 28 eloquentiam, etc.: see first note on sect. 9 (p. 31, l. 12).
33 30 potentia, control of the courts: a stronger word than gratia ("personal influence") or auctoritate ("official influence") and indicating a kind of domination over the courts.—simulat, proponit: notice the emphatic position of these verbs, as opposed to what Verres is really doing.
33 31 proponit, puts forward (i.e. as his backers).—inania, idle: i.e. mere names, because Verres does not really rely upon these men but upon a scheme which Cicero details in the following sections.

34. 3 noti, notorious.—simulat: cf. note on simulat, l. 30, above.
34 8 (Sect. 16.) redemptio, a contract with another party for buying up the court.

34 9 mansit . . . pacto, held on to the terms of the bargain (hendiadys):
until the jury was actually made up, the bargain could not be absolutely concluded; when the character of the jury was known, the contract was annulled.

34 10 rejectio: after Cicero’s careful challenging, the lot had fortunate ly given a trustworthy jury.
Impeachment of Verres.

34 13 istorum, i.e. the partisans of Verres.
34 14 (Sect. 17.) praecclare, admirably well for the cause of justice.
— libelli, lists.
34 16 color: a covert allusion to a former case, in which Hortensius had been counsel, and in which colored ballots were given to the bribed jurors in order to make sure that they voted as they had agreed (see sect. 40).—sententiis: this is the word regularly used for a formal and official expression of opinion in the Senate (vote) or in a court of justice (verdict).
34 17 cum (inversion: § 325, 6; G. 581; H. 521, ii, 1), whereupon.
— ex alacri, from being, etc.; cf. the Latinism in Milton, Par. Lost, ix. 563: “How cam’st thou speakable of mute?”
34 20 his diebus paucis, a few days ago: the consular and other elections were held this year, as usual, toward the end of July.
34 22 famae, fortunis, dat. after insidiae comparantur. — per eodem homines, i.e. the same professional bribers (the redemptor, etc., referred to in sect. 16).
34 25 aperto, etc., when the door to suspicion had once been opened.
34 27 (Sect. 18.) nam, introducing Cicero’s account of the significant incident referred to above in the words pertenui argumento (l. 24).
34 28 reducebatur: the successful candidate was escorted home by his friends after the election.—Campos: see note on Cat. i., p. 104, l. 7.
34 29 Curio: C. Scribonius Curio, one of the leaders of the aristocratic party, was always a good friend of Cicero’s. Curio, like Hortensius and Metellus, was a man of excellent reputation. His support of Verres was due to political and social ties.
34 30 honoris causâ: see note on Rosc. Am., p. 3, l. 28. The words in brackets are probably not genuine.
35. 2 tamen, i.e. in spite of Curio’s open way of speaking.
35 4 ratio, consideration.
35 5 (Sect. 19.) videt, etc.: observe the hist. pres., marking a change to lively narrative.—fornicem Fabianum, the Fabian Arch, erected B.C. 109 by Q. Fabius Maximus Allobrogicus, — one of the earliest triumphal arches in Rome.
It stood at the southern end of the Forum, and served as an entrance to it. Fig. 3 (Arch of Gallienus) shows the situation of such structures with respect to streets.

35 12 defertur signifies a formal announcement by some one person; narrabat means told, casually, as a piece of news. The use of tenses in viderat . . . narrabat is like that in the general condition in past time (§ 399, c; G. 594, N.1). — immo vero, nay, rather.

35 14 criminum ratione, the nature of the charges.
35 15 positam, resting on.
35 16 altius, deeper.
35 18 (Sect. 20.) ratiocinabantur, reasoned (the imperf. describing a state of mind, and one existing in different persons).
35 20 ipse, etc.: cf. sect. 17, ll. 17-19.
35 22 quod, the fact that.
35 23 negotiatores, Roman citizens doing business in Sicily.—omnès . . . litterae, all kinds of, etc.—publicae, official, from cities of Sicily (as auctoritates, above).
35 26 existimationem, opinion, i.e. their estimate of the character of Verres.
35 27 unius, i.e. Hortensius.—moderatione, control.—vertentur, are to turn on.

Chaps. VIII.—IX., (sect. 25). Metellus is chosen (by lot) to preside over the Court of Extortion for the next year. Joy of Verres. His attempts to defeat by bribery Cicero's election to the sēdileship revealed to Cicero. Cicero made anxious, but finally elected.

35 30 quidem (concessive), it is true: this criminal may be rescued, but such a thing will not be allowed to happen again; the judicial power will be given into other hands (i.e. those of the equestres): cf. de transfe-rendis judiciis, below. — nos, i.e. we Senators.

36, 1 (Sect. 21.) hominis amplissimi, i.e. Curio: the congratulations of so honored a man showed the expected effect of the election on this trial.

36 2 nova, strange (surprising).—dissimulare, to conceal the fact that, etc.

36 5 sortirentur, were drawing their lots: the particular posts or duties of coordinate magistrates (like the several prētōras) were assigned by lot.—Metello: a brother of Q. Metellus Creticus, consul elect, and of L. Metellus, prætor in Sicily. —obtigisset, had fallen to (the regular word for this kind of assignment). — ut . . . quaereret, to have charge of the Court of Extortion: subst. clause of result (§ 332, a, 2; G. 553, 3; H. 501, 1, 1).
Impeachment of Verres.

36 de pecuniis repetundis, of extortion (lit. concerning demanding back the [extorted] property).
36 factam, offered. — pueros, slaves.
36 (SECT. 22.) sane, you may be sure. — ne haec quidem, etc., this incident did not please me either. — neque ... intellegebam, i.e. his confidence in the integrity of Metellus was so great that he did not even yet see through the tricks of the defence.
36 tanto opere, so very well (with intellegebam).
36 reperiebam: the imperf. denotes a succession of items of information.
36 senatore, etc.: the senator, a man of the same class as Verres, put the money to be used in the elections and trial into the hands of an eques, one of the class that had the management of all such financial operations. He retained, however, say (quasi) ten baskets, to be used directly to defeat Cicero's election as ædile.
36 nomine, on account of. — divisores, managers. The money to be used at elections was put into the hands of sequestres (election agents), who themselves made use of divisores to approach the voters personally. On this occasion, the exigency was so great that Verres (istum) summoned the divisores to his own house, without the mediation of sequestres.
36 omnia debere, was bound to do anything for me.
36 proximis, the last.
36 negasse audere, said they did not dare.
36 fortēm, staunch (ironical) in allusion to audere (l. 23).
36 Romilia, without tribu expressed,—the regular way of giving the name of a man's tribe.—ex optima disciplina, from the best school (ironical), i.e. that of Verres' father.
36 HS (see §§ 377–380; G. 493; H. 647): the defeat of Cicero would, therefore, cost nearly $25,000.
36 se unā facturos esse, that they would act with him

Sects. 26–31. Cicero learns of the efforts made to have the trial postponed till the next year in order that it might be brought before Metellus. The Sicilians are threatened by one of the consuls elect (Q. Metellus Creticus) (sects. 26–28). By that time not only would there be a favorably disposed presiding judge, but most of the jury would have been changed. It seemed easy to get the trial put off, for many holidays intervened (sects. 29–31).
37. 1 (SECT. 24.) A lively description of the embarrassment in which Cicero was placed at the end of July by the election and the trial, both coming on together.
37 2 in his ipsis, in that too (as well as the trial).
37 4 agere . . . deterrebar, from doing (§ 331, ε, 2; G. 423, 2, N.3; H. 505, ii) freely what, etc., I was deterred by, etc.
37 5 petitioni, canvass.
37 7 ratio, good policy.
37 9 (Sect. 25.) denuntiatum esse, that a message was sent. This compound implies a peremptory and threatening message.
37 10 primum corresponds to accessit alter, etc., p. 38, l. 4, below. — ut venirent, subj. of purpose, since denuntiatum est expresses a command (§ 332, ᾧ; G. 546, N.1; H. 540, iii).
37 11 sane liberos, pretty independent, i.e. in refusing to come. If he had been consul, instead of merely consul elect, they would have had to come.
37 12 venisse: the subj. acc. is eos, the implied antecedent of qui.
37 13 ceterorum, i.e. those for consuls and prætors, which had lately been held.
37 14 cursare (historical infinitive), ran hither and thither.
37 15 paternos amicos: see sect. 23, l. 26, above.
37 16 appellare et convenire, accosted and conferred with.
37 18 cujus: the antecedent is ejusdem (l. 19). — de fide, i.e. his good faith to the Sicilians: prob. a hint that Cicero himself had been approached with a bribe.
37 96 (Sect. 26.) eo, in this course, i.e. postponing the trial. — esse, ind. disc.
37 27 The asterisk marks a defect in the text.
37 29 praerogativam, an earnest. In the comitia centuriata, it was determined by lot which century should first cast its vote. The vote of this century, called praerogativa (praerogo), was superstitiously regarded as an omen or earnest of the result which it was likely to decide. Hence the word is here used of the effective support given to Metellus at the polls by Verres. The praerogativa which Q. Metellus gave to Verres, in return for the praerogativae of the comitia, is described in the next section.
38 3 (Sect. 27.) cuiquam, for anything.
38 4 alter consul designatus: Q. Cæcilius Metellus Creticus (see sect. 21). The three brothers, fast friends of Verres, were so situated as to promise the greatest help the next year, when Quintus would be consul, and Marcus prætor, presiding over the court of Repetundae, while Lucius was already pro-prætor in Sicily. Some of the Sicilians, therefore, obeyed the summons of Metellus, although they had disregarded that of Hortensius (sect. 25). The object of Metellus was to induce the Sicilians to withdraw the suit, or at any rate to refrain from appearing as witnesses.
Impeachment of Verres.

38 7 quaesitum (technical term), was to preside over the court.
38 13 (Sect. 28.) quid faceres: apodosis of cont. to fact construction, with protasis implied in innocente.
38 15 alienissimun, no kin whatever of yours.
38 16 dictat, says incessantly (see next section). — aliciu depends upon videatur.
38 17 ignoret, subj. of characteristic.
38 18 (Sect. 29.) fato, ut ceteros, etc.: the Metelli seemed born to hold office. Cicero here alludes to a verse written by the poet Nævius, a hundred and fifty years before: "Fató Metelli Rómæ fiunt cónsules."
38 22 populi existimationi, reputation with the people. — M’. Glabrionem: observe the skill with which this compliment to the prætor before whom Cicero is now arguing the case, and the following compliments to the judices, are put into the mouth of Verres.
38 23 illud, referring to what follows. Cicero makes Verres point out the changes in the jury which must follow from changes in the go government that is to come in with the new year.
38 24 conlega: both Cæsonius and Cicero were aediles designati.
38 25 expediat, fut. apodosis with conemur as its protasis, but hardly to be distinguished from subj. of characteristic (cf. § 319, headnote).
38 27 Juniano consilio: referring to a case four years before, in which wholesale bribery had been proved, so that the presiding prætor, Junius, as well as almost the entire consilium (body of jurors), had been stamped with infamy. Cæsonius, a member of the jury, had been proof against corruption, and had disclosed the whole affair (in medium protulit).
38 29 hunc judicem, him as juryman. — ex Kal. Jan., after the New Year; for at that time he would be excluded from the panel by his aedileship.
38 32 (Sect. 30.) P. Sulpicius: he had just been elected tribune of the people.

39. 1 Non. Dec. (Dec. 5): on this day the new quaestors entered on their office.
39 3 L. Cassius: the family characteristic here stated was proverbial (Cassiani judices). See note on Defence of Milo, p. 184, l. t3.
39 6 tribuni militares: at this time legion-commanders. — non judi cabunt, will not serve as jurors.
39 7 subsortiemur, i.e. we shall draw another to fill his place. This is the regular use of sub in similar compounds: as suffectus, subrogatus, etc.
39 9 prope toto: the jury, therefore, apparently consisted of about twelve or fifteen.
39 13 (Sect. 31.) Nonae, etc.: it was, therefore, about 3 P.M. of the 5th of August.
Notes.

39 15 votivos: these games were in celebration of Pompey’s victory over the Marian party in Spain (B.C. 72). — The votive games would occupy from Aug. 16 to Sept. 1 (August had at this time only 29 days); on Sept. 4 began the Ludi Romani, continuing till the 19th. The intervening days (Sept. 2, 3) were of no account for the trial, so that it could not be resumed before Sept. 20, a suspension of 34 days (prope quadraginta). The Ludi Victories (established by Sulla in honor of his victory) would continue from Oct. 27 to Nov. 1, and the Ludi Plebeii from Nov. 4 to Nov. 17. All these games were sacred festivals, during which business was suspended: the time was occupied with religious observances, accompanied by races and dramatic entertainments.

39 18 tum denique, not till then.

39 20 Victories: see Fig. 4 (from the Column of Trajan).

39 21 perpauci: for the month of December was full of festivals.

39 23 rem integram, i.e. from the beginning. The zeal of the prosecution would have flagged, the public interest would have cooled down, and the jury would be almost wholly new. The case would therefore have to be taken up de novo.

39 25 non retinuissem, i.e. I should have challenged him. Metellus was now one of the jurors.

39 25 (Sect. 32.) nunc, opposed to si diffusus essem, above.

39 26 eo, etc. (abl. abs.), with him as juryman.

39 27 jurato, on oath. The judices were sworn; the prætor was not. Metellus might therefore be trusted to vote honestly as a juror, though he might, when prætor, connive at the corruption of the jurymen. Cicero ran less risk of offending Metellus by thus accusing him of extreme partisanship than if he had accused him of perjury.

Sects 32–50. To prevent postponement, Cicero will push the trial, dispensing with the usual long opening argument. He is forced to this by the tactics of Hortensius (sects. 32, 33). Cicero will oppose the arrogance of Hortensius and offers himself as the opponent of any who shall hereafter attempt to bribe the courts. The illegal domination of Hortensius is dangerous to justice. It must be met by proofs of judicial corruption, which are abundant (sects. 34–39). The acquittal of Verres will be subversive of the whole judicial system (sects. 40–42). The jurors are urged to vindicate the courts (sects. 43, 45). All Rome is on the watch and bribery is sure to be detected. Not Verres, but the senatorial courts are on trial (sects. 46–50).

The skill of the argument in sects. 32–50 is remarkable. Cicero contrives, without directly asserting that Hortensius is guilty of judicial corruption, to suggest that he is in a measure responsible for its prevalence. He declares his intention of devoting his aedileship to exposing such practices, and adds that he expects to be opposed by Hortensius. He calls attention to several notorious cases of bribery which he means to use as illustrations in pressing his reforms. Then, in a moment, he makes it clear, by a sudden turn, that he has not been digressing, but simply accumulating force for his main point: "How shall I feel," he asks suddenly (sect. 40), "if I find this present case of Verres added to the long list of instances of corruption? His guilt is clear: it is the court that is on trial!" In this way what appears at the outset to be a personal attack on the opposing counsel is made a most effective means for the introduction of the central point of the whole oration.

39 31 legitimo tempore: he had a right to use twenty days for developing the points of the prosecution.

40. 1 capiam, i.e. by showing, in a long speech, how carefully he had prepared his case.

40 4 ne elabatur, with periculum est, which takes the constr. of a verb of fearing.

40 6 possit: § 320, a; G. 631, 2; H. 503, i.

40 7 (SECT. 33.) perpetua oratone, a continuous argument, before bringing up the witnesses. This is what we possess in the five speeches of the Accusatio, which, in the usual order of proceeding, would have been delivered before bringing up the witnesses, but which were in fact never spoken at all (see Introd., page 28 of text).—percipi, reaped: the regular term for gathering crops.

40 8 potuit, might have been (§ 308, c; G. 597, r.); H. 511, 1, N.3).

40 9 publicis: see note on p. 35, l. 23. — tabulis, records; auctoritates, documents.

40 10 res omnis: here, after stating his plan briefly, Cicero goes off into a seeming digression against Hortensius. In this he shows clearly one of his principal motives in undertaking the prosecution, namely to overthrow the latter's excessive control of the courts. The attack is skilfully introduced. His sole reason, he says, for departing from the ordinary course of procedure is that Hortensius does not wish to meet him in fair legal fight. The sally against Hortensius, again, serves as a transition to Cicero's final appeal to the sense of shame and the prudence of the court.

40 11 diluendia, explicandis: technical terms in argument (see Vocab.).

40 14 ex tua natura: Hortensius, like M. Metellus, was personally an amiable and honorable man, though pledged to a bad cause.

40 16 rationi, scheme, course, looking to the method; consilio, plan of action, looking to the end. Cicero contrasts them more than once.

40 17 (Sect. 34.) binos ludos, i.e. Pompey's games and the Roman.

40 18 comperendinem, close my case (lit. adjourn over). After the testimony was all in, it was customary to adjourn over to the next day but one (comperendinare), in order to give opportunity for a rehearing (usually a brief one). When this stage had been reached, there was no chance for further postponement. Cicero's determination to bring about a comperendinatio before Pompey's games — i.e. within ten days — settled the case in his favor; for, as has been shown, the only hope of the defence lay in putting off the trial, Hortensius having absolutely nothing to say in behalf of his client's innocence.

40 19 necessarium, unavoidable (not a mere shrewd trick like that of Hortensius).

40 23 id, refers forward to eos velle, etc. (l. 24). — amplum et praeclarum, an honor and distinction (translating as nouns).

40 25 innocentiae (an almost technical term), purity of administration in Sicily (see Introd. to the oration).

40 26 majus quiddam: what this was is explained in sect. 35.

40 28 (Sect. 35.) illud, refers to istum . . . vocari (l. 29).

40 31 potentia, domineering (i.e. his illegal control of the courts); cupiditas (in a bad sense), unscrupulous eagerness (for gaining your case).

40 33 interponeretur: for fut. ind. of the dir. disc. — nunc, opposed to the time of videbatur.

41 1 regnum judiciorum, lording it over the courts.

41 2 homines, i.e. the corrupt senatorial jurors.

41 4 inruere, etc., to be bent on making themselves hateful and offensive.

— hoc, i.e. to break down Hortensius' control, and the corruption of a few Senators.

41 6 nervos aetatis: Cicero was now 36.

41 8 (Sect. 36.) ordo, i.e. the Senate. — paucorum, artfully put so as not to offend the whole body.

41 12 loco: the Rostra (see Vocab., under rostrum).
Impeachment of Verres.

41 13 secum agere: the technical expression for transacting business in the comitia was agere cum populo (or plebe). Cicero refers to the office of curule ædile, upon which he was to enter January 1. One of the most important functions of this magistrate was the administration of criminal justice (de hominibus improbis) in cases where there had been an appeal from the sentence of a court to the judgment of the public assembly.

41 14 munus, service. The word also means the public games, which were given to the people by the ædiles especially; hence there is a kind of pun here.

41 16 moneo, etc.: observe the climax.—deponere, deposit with the sequestres (see note, p. 36, l. 15).

41 17 accipere, take (money); recipere, undertake to do anything (upon request or the like).—polliceri, offer.

41 18 interpretes, go-betweens: the divisores are probably meant.
41 19 potentiam: it is hardly accidental that this is the same word used above (sect. 35, l. 31) of the influence of Hortensius. In the next section Cicero expressly asserts that he expects to meet with all possible opposition from the latter.

41 22 (Sect. 37.) erit, will be (it is true): notice the emphatic position, opposing it to the clause with tamen (l. 24). — imperio et potestate, military and civil power. Of the regular magistrates all possessed potestas, i.e. power in general (including military power); but only consuls and prætors possessed the imperium, — i.e. sovereign power, as of a general in the field, somewhat limited, however, in the city by special privileges of Roman citizens.

41 28 commemorabuntur, shall be mentioned (by me). — certis rebus, well ascertained facts.

41 29 agentur, made ground of action. — inter decem annos, i.e. since Sulla's Lex Judicaria, transferring the courts to the Senatoral order (see note on Rosc. Am., p. 2, l. 1).

42. 1 (Sect. 38.) quinquaginta, i.e. from the law of Caius Gracchus, B.C. 123, to that of Sulla, B.C. 80.

42 2 ne tenuissima quidem suspicio: one of the exaggerations of the advocate. If the courts were really worse in B.C. 70 than they had been in 90, it was simply because the times were worse.

42 4 sublata, taken away. — populi Romani, etc., i.e. the ability of the people to hold in check the senatorial order by means of the tribunician power suspended by Sulla (see note, sect. 44, p. 43, l. 32).

42 5 Q. Calidius, prætor, B.C. 79; condemned for extortion in Spain. It seems that Calidius, being condemned de repetundis, with bitter irony assailed the bribed jurors on account of the smallness of the bribe for which he was condemned, saying that it was not respectable (honestum) to condemn an ex-prætor for so small a sum. The allusion shows that the corruption was notorious and universal.

42 6 HS triciens (§ 379; G. p. 493; H. 647, iv, 1), 3,000,000 sestertii, = $150,000 (nearly). — praetorium: an ex-magistrate kept the rank of the highest office he had held, — as consularis, praetorius, aedilicus.

42 7 P. Septimio (Scævola), condemned B.C. 72; the damages were increased because of his connection with the odious consilium Junianum (sect. 29). The amount extorted was estimated in a separate process (litis aessimatio), and in this case the money taken in bribery was included in the reckoning.

42 14 (Sect. 39.) inventi sint represents an hist. perf. and hence takes the secondary sequence (exirent): see § 287, i; G. 517, r.1

42 15 sortiente: the jurymen were drawn by lot by the presiding
Impeachment of Verres.

officer; in the case mentioned there was collusion between Verres and the persons drawn, so that the lot was a mere form.—qui . . . exirent (purp. clause), to be drawn for [the case of] a defendant to condemn him without a hearing (through a corrupt bargain between Verres and the packed jury).

42 19 (Sect. 40.) jam vero, and finally (introducing the climax of all).—illum, i.e. the one next described: hoc factum esse, etc.

42 21 discoloribus signis: see note on color, p. 34, l. 16. The case referred to was one in which Hortensius was counsel.

42 23 acturum esse, will attend to (i.e. officially, as ædile: cf. the use of agere, above).

42 24 (Chap. xiv.) In this chapter Cicero reaches the climax of his accusations and insinuations against Hortensius and at the same time makes a clever transition to the case in hand (l. 28), having worked up to his main point, which he proceeds to state with great force: that it is not Verres that is on trial, but the court itself.

42 28 hominem, i.e. Hortensius; cujus, obj. gen.

42 30 secum . . . agi, he was doing very well (see Vocab. under ago).

42 31 in rem suam, into his own pocket.—patronis: see note, Rosc. Am., sect. 4, p. 3, l. 17.

43 3 (Sect. 41.) quod, at which (with commovei, l. 6): cf. § 238, b; G. 333, i; H. 378, 2.

43 4 apud Glabrium, i.e. in the preliminary proceedings.—reicundis judicibus (locat. abl.), at the time of challenging (making up the jury).

43 6 fore uti, that the result would be.

43 8 tolleretur, should be abolished (purp. clause with legatos mitterent, which is equiv. to a verb of requesting).

43 14 victoriae, i.e. in the courts. They could endure it if a man stole only enough to satisfy his own avarice (sibi ac libris suis), but they cannot afford to be robbed of enough besides to secure him an acquittal by bribery, if guilty (nocentissimi victoriae). Cf. the similar argument in Burke's Opening Speech on the Impeachment of Warren Hastings: "If, from any appearance of chicane in the court, justice should fail, all men will say, 'Better there were no courts at all.'"

43 20 (Sect. 42.) animo, abl. of means.—majore . . . odio, abl. of quality.

Sects. 43–50. Sudden and powerful appeal to the jurors to save the senatorial courts from present infamy and threatened destruction.

43 24 (Sect. 43.) loco, point (raised in his argument).

43 29 contemnimus: Cicero uses the first person to include himself as a member of the Senate.
43 32 (Sect. 44.) tribuniciam potestatem: referring chiefly to the power of the tribunes to try criminal cases before the comitia tributa; this power, greatly abridged by Sulla, had been restored by a law of Pompey early in this year, B.C. 70.

43 33 verbo, in name; re vera, in fact; illam, the tribunician power (because this was a check on the power of the Senators).

44. 1 Catulum: Q. Lutatius Catulus was the best and most eminent man of the aristocracy.

44 2 fugit, has escaped.

44 3 referente, consulting [the Senate]: the technical expression for bringing a matter before the Senate for action.

44 4 rogatus: each Senator in turn was asked his opinion (sententiam) by the consul, or other presiding officer; cf. hos sententiam rogo, Cat. i., sect. 9.

44 5 patres conscriptos: see note on Cat. i., sect. 9, p. 103, l. 6.

44 8 fuisset desideraturos (the regular way of expressing the cont. to fact apodosis in indir. disc.), would have missed (§ 337, b, 2; G. 656, N. 2; H. 527, iii).

44 9 (Sect. 45.) contionem habuit, made a speech: contio means, strictly, an assembly called for the purpose of listening to discussion merely (so in l. 12, below). — ad urbem, i.e. in the Campus Martius, not in the city. Pompey was elected in his absence, and while still clothed with the military imperium: he could not therefore enter the city to meet the citizens, but called them to him outside the walls.

44 10 ubi, in which.

44 12 in eo, at that point (prop. on that point).

44 16 suam by its emphatic position gives the force of the English, what they desired.

44 20 (Sect. 46.) religione, regard for oath.

44 21 tribunciam, i.e. the law referred to in the note on sect. 44. — unum, one, it is true; but since he was a man of no means at all (vel tenuissimum), his conviction was no proof of the integrity of the courts. The present trial will afford the people the criterion they wish.

44 29 (Sect. 47.) nihil sit, etc., i.e. this is simply a case of guilt and money: there are no political or other disturbing influences. To acquit him, then, will be to admit that you were bribed.

44 31 gratia, personal popularity.

45. 1 (Sect. 48.) agam, conduct.

45 2 res, facts. — manifestas: a technical word, denoting direct proof, not circumstantial evidence.

45 3 a vobis . . . contendere, urge upon you.
Impeachment of Verres.

45 6 eorum, i.e. of the defence.
45 8 (Sect. 49.) vos: opposed to former juries, which have occasioned the scandal.
45 9 huic ordini, dat. of agent (§ 232, a; G. 354; H. 388, 1).
45 10 post haec, etc., i.e. since the reorganization of the courts by Sulla (see note on Rosc. Am., sect. 1).
45 11 utimur, have. — splendore, personal distinction, from wealth and exploits; dignitate, dignity, from rank and office.
45 12 si . . . offensum, if there is any slip (a euphemism).
45 17 (Sect. 50.) opto, pray. Observe the adroit union of compliment and threat in this passage, which at the same time forms the transition to the appeal to the prætor presiding.

Sects. 51, 52. Appeal to Glabrio, the presiding prætor, to prevent bribery.
45 28 (Sect. 51.) is, referring to the Senate. — judicio, abl. of means.
45 30 qui sis, what sort of man you are.
44. 1 reddere, pay back. — fac . . . veniat: § 331, f, r.; G. 553, 1 (end); H. 499, 2.
46 2 legis Aciliae: this (probably B.C. 101) provided that there should be neither ampliatio (further hearing) nor compereordinatio (see note on sect. 34, p. 40, l. 18) in cases of repetundae. All earlier laws were superseded by the Cornelian law of Sulla.
46 4 (Sect. 52.) summae auctoritates, strongest influences, especially family traditions, etc. To the Roman mind an auctor, in this sense, was a pattern for imitation.
46 5 quae . . . non sinant: best regarded as a purpose clause (cf. § 320, N.).
46 11 ut ne quis, etc.: § 319, a, n.; G. 545, R. 1; H. 499, 1.
46 14 nocenti reo, etc., for the accused, if guilty, his great wealth has had more weight to increase (lit. towards) the suspicion of guilt, than (to secure) a means of safety.

Sects. 53–56. Cicero states his plan for preventing delay. He will introduce his witnesses at once, without preliminary argument. Brief statement of the charges against Verres. End.
46 17 (Sect. 53.) mihi certum est, for my part (emph.) I am resolved. — non committere, not to allow (in the weak sense of letting it occur by mistake or fault). — ut . . . mutetur, to be changed (§ 332, e; G. 553, 1; H. cf. 498, ii, N. 2). — nobis (eth. dat.), our.
46 19 servi, etc.: Hortensius and Metellus (sects. 25, 27), while consuls elect, had sent for the Sicilians, but of course without any authority to enforce their coming. Cicero suggests that, if the case is put off till the next year, the summons may be repeated, this time by means of lictors.
Notes.

Each consul was attended by twelve of these officers, who had the power of arresting and coercing (see Manil. Law, note on sect. 32, p. 81, l. 15).

46 20 novo exemplo, in an unheard-of manner.
46 23 jus suum, their [lost] rights.
46 24 eorum: this word suggests in a skilfully vague way that Verres, the Metelli, and Hortensius are all in the same conspiracy, as it were, to rob the Sicilians, Verres having used his imperium to carry out the actual robbery, the others using theirs to protect him by intimidating the victims.

46 27 (sect. 54.) nobis responderi, i.e. the argument for the defence to be made.
46 30 comitiorum, ludorum: the trial came just between the elections and Pompey's votive games (sect. 31).
46 31 censendi causā, on account of the census-taking (registration). At this time censors were in office, for the first time since Sulla's domination:
they were holding a registration of property and voters, at which citizens from all parts of Italy were obliged to report. The importance of proceedning with the trial while Rome was thus filled with citizens and provincials is obvious.

46 32 vestrum, nostram (mine), and omnium (next page) are prediccate after esse (p. 47, l. 2).
47 1 quid agatur (ind. quest.) depends on the verbal noun scientiam, as the next clause does on memoriam.
47 2 omnium, i.e. not the inhabitants of Rome alone.
47 3 (sect. 55.) principes: the two distinguished brothers, L. and
M. Lucullus.
47 5 ita testis constitutam, etc.: this is the criminum ratio (sect. 19, l. 14). Cicero's plan appears to be so to arrange his witnesses that their examination shall make the usual long introductory accusatio unnecessary.
He will, he says, produce his witnesses in such an order and with such introduction in each case as to bring out the crimen totum in the course of these proceedings. When he has explained what he expects to prove in a given instance, he will immediately bring forward the appropriate witnesses, and so on till the whole case is in.

47 6 crimen totum, the impeachment as a whole; crimen (below), the special charge of extortion, stated formally in the next section.
47 10 dantur, are offered. — in singulas res, to each point.
47 11 illis, the counsel for the defence.
47 13 altera actione, i.e. after the compendinatio: in this sense the speeches of the Accusatio are correctly called Actio Secunda (see note above).

47 16 haec (referring forward to sect. 56), etc., this is all the Accusatio there will be in the first Action.

47 19 (Sect. 56.) quadringsentiens [centena milia] sestertium ($§$ 379; G. p. 493; H. 647, iv, 1), 40,000,000 sestertii, ≈$2,000,000 (nearly).

47 23 habuissemus: cont. to fact protasis regularly retained, without change of mood or tense, in indir. disc. ($§$ 337, b; G. 659; H. 527, iii); the apodosis is opus fuisse for opus fuit ($§$ 308, c; G. 597, r. 3, a; H. 476, 4), there would have been no need.

47 25 Dixi, I have done: a common formal ending.

THE PLUNDER OF SYRACUSE.

Sects. 1, 2. Contrast between the treatment of Syracuse by the conqueror Marcellus in time of war and its treatment by Verres, the governor, in time of peace.

Page 48. Line 3. (Sect. i.) aliquando, at last, implying impatience, here assumed as a kind of apology to his hearers for the length of his account.

48 5 Marcello: M. Claudius Marcellus, of a noble plebeian family (all the other families of the Claudian gens were patrician), was the ablest general the Romans had in the early years of the Second Punic War, but illiterate and cruel. His capture of Syracuse was in R.C. 212. He was killed in battle B.C. 208.

The contrast in sect. 1 is a brilliant one: nevertheless, the orator exaggerates, as on so many occasions. "Not only did Marcellus stain his military honor by permitting a general pillage of the wealthy mercantile city, in the course of which Archimedes and many other citizens were put to death; but the Roman Senate lent a deaf ear to the complaints which the Syracusans afterwards presented regarding that celebrated general, and neither returned to individuals their property nor restored to the city its freedom." (Mommsen.)

48 8 imperatoris: this title, properly belonging to every holder of the imperium, was by usage assumed by the commander only after his first considerable victory. — cohortem, train of courtiers, etc.: the provincial magistrates, representing the Roman imperium, had almost a royal suite, as well as other insignia of royalty.
48 12 (Sect. 2.) omitto: a good example of the rhetorical device known as praeteritio. — locis, i.e. in the other speeches of the Accusatio.

48 13 forum: every ancient town had its central market-place or square (forum, ὕπαβι), an open space, used for trading, public assemblies, and the administration of justice. The same feature exists in European towns at the present day.

49. 4 clausus fuisset: Marcellus had been obliged to starve out the city. — Cilicum: Cilicia was the chief seat of the organized bands of pirates who ruled the Mediterranean at this time.

49 10 illis rebus, i.e. the plunder of temples, etc.

Sects. 3–5. Situation and topography of Syracuse.

49 11 (Sect. 3.) maximam: the circuit of its walls was about 180 stadia = more than 25 miles.

49 13 ex omni aditu limits praecelar ad aspectum.

49 14 in aedificatione, etc., i.e. enclosed by the buildings of the city. Ancient harbors (as at Athens) were often at a considerable distance.

49 16 conjuguntur: Ortygia (or Insula), the site of the original town, had an independent harbor on each side connected by a narrow channel. This channel is the exitus mentioned.

50. 2 (Sect. 4.) Hieronis: Hiero II., king of Syracuse (B.C. 270 to about 216), who was during most of his reign a steadfast ally of Rome.

50 5 Dianae: the quail, ὅρυκτ (whence the name Ortygia), was sacred to Diana (Artemis). — istius, i.e. of Verres.

50 7 Arethusa: for the myth of Arethusa and Alpheus, see Ovid, Met. v. 573–641; Gayley, Classic Myths. For view of the fountain, see Virgil’s Eclogues, p. 29.

50 10 (Sect. 5.) Achradina, the plain and table-land north of Ortygia.

50 11 prytaneum: the building in which the city was conceived to have its home. Here was the hearth, sacred to Vesta, whence colonists carried the sacred fire to kindle a new hearth in the prytaneum of their new home. It was also used for courts of justice, public banquets, etc. Such public buildings were usually grouped round the forum in the centre of the city.

50 13 urbis, i.e. Acha-radina. — perpetua, running its whole length.

50 14 continentur are lined in continuous rows.

50 16 gymnasion—the place for exercise and baths, with porticos, groves, and halls.

50 19 caesifecata, built up. — Neapolis, i.e. "the new city." — quam ad sum-mam, at the highest point of which.

Sects. 6, 7. Marcellus the conqueror at Syracuse: compare Verrès the governor.

51. 4 (Sect. 6.) pul-chritudinem: the English would put it less abstractly, — this beautiful city.

51 8 in, in respect to. — habuit victoriae rationem, had regard for the right of victory.

51 10 deportare: a Roman custom, imitated in the nineteenth century by Napoleon. — posse, subj. of characteristic. — humanitatis, the part of humanity.
51 15 (Sect. 7.) Honoris, etc.: the worship of abstractions was a characteristic of the Roman religion. Marcellus restored the temple of Honor and built the temple of Virtus; the two were so connected that in common parlance they were referred to as a single edifice.

51 16 in aedibus, i.e. his own house in town.

51 18 ornamento, i.e. as being free from stolen treasures.

51 19 deum nullum: translate, in order to keep the emphasis of the position, of the gods not one (i.e. not a single statue).

51 21 comparetis, i.e. in renown and in personal character.

51 22 pacem cum bello, etc., implying that the administration of Verres in time of peace was worse than the armed capture by Marcellus.

—forum et juris dictionem, law and justice: the forum is mentioned as being the place where the praetor administered justice; juris dictio was his special function (see note on Verres i., sect. 12, p. 32, l. 13).

Sects. 8–17. Details of the robberies of Verres.

52 1 (Sect. 8.) aedis Minervae: the illustration shows how this ancient Temple of Minerva in Syracuse has been made over into a church.

52 4 tamen in bello: translate though in war, still, etc. The particle tamen ("still") often suggests a concession ("although"); not expressed, but loosely implied in the context or the circumstances: here the implied concession is "though the rights of an enemy in war are unlimited." — religionum, things sacred; consuetudinis, i.e. things hallowed by use.

52 6 Agathocli: tyrant of Syracuse, B.C. 317–289. (Fig. 8, a coin of Agathocles, shows the head of Persephone, and, on the reverse, a figure of Victory erecting a trophy.)

52 9 visendum: see Manil., sect. 40, p. 85, l. 6, note.

52 10 profana fecissent: the Romans had a formula by which they called away (evocare) and gained over to their side the tutelary deities of any cities they were besieging. Of course, the temples of these gods then lost all their sanctity, and became profane buildings. With the same idea the true name of Rome and that of its tutelar divinity were said to be kept as a mystery, lest they should become known to an enemy, who might thus disarm the city of its protector. Notwithstanding this doctrine, the Romans were often, as in the case of Marcellus, prevented by religious feeling (religione) from violating the sacred edifices of conquered cities. Often, too, they transferred the worship of the deities in question to Rome. On the whole idea, cf. Æneid, ii. 351, and note.

53. 1 jam belongs with sacra religiosaque.
53 6 (Sect. 9.) id quod, what.
53 9 debet, subj. of characteristic.

53 13 in quibus erant, upon which were represented.
53 16 cognitioe formarum, acquaintance with their features.
53 18 tamen: see note on sect. 8, l. 4.
53 20 (Sect. 10.) valvis: such ornamentation may be seen in a mediaeval example in Fig. 9 (doors of the Cathedral at Pisa).
53 23 tam ... cupidum, that I am so eager (in appos. with quod).
53 30 illi, i.e. the Greeks, as being over-fond of art. The Romans were inclined to look down upon culture and the fine arts as being less manly than politics and war; cf. the famous passage in the Æneid, vi. 846–853.

54. 2 argumenta, subjects or stories (in relief); cf. Æneid, vi. 20, and note.

54 3 (Sect. 11.) Gorgonis: the head of Medusa, a favorite subject of ancient art. See Fig. 10, from an ancient marble mask.

54 6 bullas, i.e. knobs, similar to those in Fig. 11.

54 11 in hoc nomine, at this item (i.e. wondering why Verres should have taken these).

54 12 commoveri, surprised.

54 13 satis esset, i.e. they were only curiosities. Any natural object which was, in the view of the ancients, out of the common order of nature was regarded as a monstrum or prodigium, and as therefore associated in some way with the gods; hence such objects were frequently dedicated in temples.

54 16 id merely repeats hastas.

54 17 (Sect. 12.) nam explains (ironically) why he asks the last question. A passion for art might, he suggests, excuse the theft of such an object as the Sappho, but the stealing of the bamboos was a wanton sacrilege.

54 21 potius, etc., rather than this most tasteful and cultivated man. — habet: § 268; G. 265; H. 484, v.

54 22 nimium (continuing the irony), of course.

54 23 nostrum, of us (emph.), opp. to Verres.

54 25 eat (hort. subj.), must go. — ad aedem Felicitatis: the temple of Felicitas was adorned with the spoils of conquered Corinth. Catulus had adorned his temple of Fortuna, and Metellus his portico, with splendid works of art.

54 27 istorum, Verres and his friends. — Tusculum, villa at Tusculum (about 15 miles southeast of Rome) where the wealthy Romans, Hortensius among the rest, had splendid country-houses.
54 28 ornatum, i.e. as it was on festal days. — commodarit, lent: such works of art were often placed temporarily in the Forum; cf. our modern "loan exhibitions."

54 31 operari, mere day-laborer: said in contempt of Verres' pretensions to culture. — studia, fine tastes; delicias, luxurious pleasures (both ironical).

55. 1 appositor, better fitted. — ad ferenda, etc., to carry (as a porter) than to carry off (as a connoisseur): a sarcasm on Verres' coarse and heavy build.

55 5 (Sect. 13.) Graeculus: in contemptuous allusion to his pretence of taste. — subtiliter judicat, is a fine connoisseur of.

55 7 nunc, now (as it is): opposed to si... tulisset.

56. 2 (Sect. 14.) parinum (corrupt and meaningless): the common reading is parvum; perhaps the old conjecture Parium, of Parian marble, is best.

56: Libero patre: not Liber his father, but father Liber, pater being a common attribute of Liber as well as of Mars and other gods. Liberi filius (l. 6) is spurious.

56 9 (Sect. 15.) Jovem: the statue was of Zeus olympios, god of favorable weather, identified, from some fancied resemblance, with Jupiter imperator.

56 10 suo: the emphatic position continues the emphasis on Jovem.

56 13 Flamininus: T. Quinctius Flamininus (Fig. 12, from a coin), who defeated Philip of Macedon at Cynoscephalae, B.C. 197.

56 16 in Ponti ore: the Thracian Bosporus, the strait extending from Constantinople to the Black Sea, about 17 miles.

56 18 sua: § 196, c; G. 309, 2; H. 449, 2. — Capitolio: the Capitol, or Temple of Jupiter Capitolinus, had three cellae, or chapels, sacred to the Capitolian triad, Jupiter, Juno, and Minerva. This was now the most illustrious temple, "the earthly abode," of Jupiter.

56 24 incolae, residents: i.e. persons of foreign birth who made Syracuse their home, without having obtained citizenship; advenae, visitors.

56 28 (Sect. 16.) advenu, abl. of cause.

57. 2 (Sect. 17.) mensae Delphicas: tables with three legs, like the Delphic tripod (see Figs. 13, 14). — vasa Corinthia were made of a kind of bronze, of peculiar beauty and very costly.

Sects. 18–21. Robberies of works of art are especially odious to men of Greek blood.

57 17 (Sect. 18.) levia et contemnenda: cf. note on p. 53, l. 30.

57 22 fanorum, shrines; the word indicates the consecrated spot rather than the temple or altar erected upon it.

57 27 (Sect. 19.) nisi forte, introducing, as usual, an absurd supposition.

57 28 desierunt, ceased, i.e. by the transference of the courts to the Senators.

58. 2 Crasso: L. Licinius Crassus, the famous orator, and Quintus Scævola, pontifex maximus, the famous jurist and statesman, were close friends, and colleagues in nearly every office. They were curule aediles, B.C. 103, and gave the first exhibition of lion-fights. The splendor of their aedileship was the work of Crassus, a man of elegant and luxurious tastes, while Scævola was moderate and simple in his habits. — Claudio: probably a brother of Claudia, the wife of Tiberius Gracchus. In his aedileship, B.C. 99, he exhibited fights of elephants.

58 4 commercium: Crassus and Claudius would have bought such objects of art if anybody could have done it.

58 5 fuisse, sc. commercium.

58 9 (Sect. 20.) referri, be entered, has for subject pretio ... abalienasse.

58 12 rebus istic, things of that sort.

58 13 apud illos, i.e. the Greeks generally.

58 19 (Sect. 21.) The cities referred to in this section were all centres of Greek art or celebrated for the possession of some masterpiece. Reginum: Rhetium, Reggio, was a very ancient Greek city, at the point of Italy nearest Sicily. It was a colony of Chalcis, probably founded in the eighth century B.C., and became a Roman municipium after the Social War, B.C. 91–90.

58 20 merere velle, would take. — illa, that famous.

58 21 Tarentinos: Tarentum was the largest Greek city in Italy, a colony of Sparta, founded in the eighth century B.C., subjugated by Rome just after the invasion of Pyrrhus, B.C. 272.
Crucifixion of a Roman Citizen.

58 24 Cnidios . . . Coos: observe the chiasm.
58 28 buculam: the celebrated bronze cow of Myron.—longum est, it would be tedious (§ 311, c; G. 254, r.1; H. 476, 5).

CRUCIFIXION OF A ROMAN CITIZEN.

Page 59. Line 1. (Sect. 1.) nunc, opposed to the time of the actio prima, which he has just referred to.—uno genere, this one class of crimes.
—tot horas . . . dicam: § 276, a; G. 230; H. 467, iii, 2.
59 5 tenerem: for tense see § 287, i; G. 511, r.2; H. 495, i.
59 6 de tanta re, etc.: Cicero has now arrived at the climax of his accusation: the case of Gavius is so outrageous that it would require all his powers to characterize it. But, he says, he has already used the strongest language of which he is master in describing other and less heinous crimes, and he has not attempted to keep the attention of the jurors by variety in the charges. What then can he do to make this horrible case, the most abominable of the crimes of Verres, sufficiently impressive? There is but one thing left to do: he will tell the bare facts, which need no eloquence to emphasize them.

59 7 rem (emphat.), the bare facts.—in medio, before you.
59 10 (Sect. 2.) in illo numero: Cicero has been describing the treatment of a number of fugitives from the insurrectionary army of Sertorius in Spain who had made their way to Sicily after the death of Sertorius, B.C. 72, and the overthrow of his faction by Pompey.
59 12 lautumiis, the stone-pits (ancient quarries) at Syracuse, used as a prison. The illustration shows the present condition of that part of the lautumiae known as Dionysius' Ear.—Messenam (now Messina), the point of Sicily nearest Italy. Messana, founded as a Greek colony in the eighth century B.C., was at this time one of the very few privileged towns (civitates foederatae) of Sicily. It was specially favored by Verres, and, according to Cicero, was an accomplice of his iniquities. Fig. 15 shows a representation of the pharos (lighthouse) of Messana from a coin of Sex. Pompey; the reverse has a representation of Scylla.
59 14 Reginorum: Rhegium is almost in sight of Messana.
59 15 odore, breath.

59 18 rectā, sc. viā.

59 21 (Sect. 3.) in praetorio, the house (or official residence) of the praetor.

59 23 adjudricem, etc.: § 184, b; G. 321; H. 363, 1.

59 24 magistratum Mamertinum, a magistrate of Messana: the city of Messana had been treacherously taken possession of by a body of mercenaries, who called themselves Mamertini (children of Mars), about B.C. 282. Though the name of the city was not changed, its citizens were from this time called Mamertini. See cut in text, which shows the head of Ares.

60. 10 (Sect. 4.) exspectabant, were on the watch to see. — quo tandem, how far: tandem (as also nam) gives a sense of wonder to the question.

60 13 expediti, to be got ready, i.e. by untying the fasces (rods and axe), which were the badge of the praetor's imperium.

60 14 meruissae (sc. stipendia), served as a soldier.

60 15 Panhormi (all harbor), the present Palermo: see Fig. 16. — nego-

Fig. 16.

View of Palermo.

tiaretur, i.e. as head or agent of some house engaged in speculation (cf. Verr. i. sect. 20). This kind of business was generally carried on by Roman equestres, and on a large scale.

60 17 fugitivorum, runaway slaves, who had been concerned in the frightful servile war of Spartacus, B.C. 73–71.
Crucifixon of a Roman Citizen.

60 19 esset, subj. of characteristic.
60 21 (Sect. 5.) caedebatur: observe the emphatic position. This imperf. and those following make a lively description of the scene instead of a mere statement of the facts.

61 1 audiebatur, could be heard (§ 277, 8; G. 233).
61 3 commemoratione, claim.
61 7 pestem, accursed thing.
61 10 (Sect. 6.) lex Porcia: this forbade the scourging of citizens. See Fig. 17, a coin struck by a member of the Porcian family: the reverse commemorates this law; the figure at the right as a lictor with rods. — leges Semproniae (of Caius Gracchus): these gave Roman citizens the right of appeal to the judgment of the whole people in capital cases, even against the military imperium. In civil life this right had existed ever since the foundation of the republic. Cf., in English law, the right of trial "by one's peers."

61 12 tribunicia potestas: see note Verr. i., sect. 44 (p. 43, l. 32).
61 18 non inhibebant: cf. note on audiebatur (l. 1).
61 21 (Sect. 7.) agere, treat.
61 22 ut (interrog.), how.
61 25 Glabronem, subj. of facere.
61 26 ut . . . dimitteret, result clause, in appos. with id.
61 27 consilium, jury: he feared that the lynch law would get the start of a legal verdict.

61 28 repetisse, inflicted (lit. exacted, punishment being regarded as a forfeit).

61 29 veritus esset has for its subject populus Romanus. Observe the exactness of tense-relations expressed by the plup. and the periphrastic esset persoluturus, was not likely to pay.

62 2 (Sect. 8.) quid . . . sit, what will happen to you.
62 3 Gavius istum, that G. of yours (i.e. the G. whom you misrepresent. — repentinum, suddenly discovered.

62 5 neque, etc., and this I will show, etc. Notice that in Latin the connective attracts the negative whenever it can.

62 6 aliquis: Gavius was a very common name in South Italy.
62 8 ad arbitrium tuum, at your discretion (i.e. as many as you like).
62 11 sero, too late (for you, but not too late for the court). — judices, obj. of doceant.

62 17 nuper tu, etc.: of course an imaginary incident, since this oration was never delivered.

62 19 ideo, for this reason, i.e. quod . . . quaereret.

62 20 jam, i.e. after you have said that.

62 24 ex eo genere: explained by the clause non qui . . . dicerent (characteristic).

63 2 (Sect. 10.) induatur, etc. (§ 111, a; G. 218; H. 377), tie himself up and strangle himself (as in a noose); cf. our "give the man rope, enough and he'll hang himself."

63 3 qui esset, what he was (i.e. whether a citizen or not).

63 5–8 si . . . ducerere, quid . . . clamitares, etc.: in this past condition, cont. to fact, the imperf. is used instead of the pluperf., because the supposition is general rather than particular (§ 308, a; G. 597, r.1; H. 510, n.2); — if you, caught, etc., had ever been in the hands of men who were dragging you off to punishment, what other cry would you have raised than, "I am a Roman citizen"?

63 11 profuisset, would have availed, i.e. in the case supposed (as defined in the preceding sentence): thus profuisset, involving its own protasis (§ 311; G. 600, 1; H. 508, n.7), is a complete proposition, which is made conditional by si and is made the protasis (§ 311, a) of a new apod., potuit, l. 15 (§ 311, c; G. 597, r.8, a; H. 511, 1, n.8).

63 12 qui, concessive; cum, causal.

63 14 usurpatione, claim (lit. using the word).

63 18 (Sect. 11.) quo = ad quos. — cognitoribus, vouchers.

63 20 legum existimationis, obj. gen. with periculo.

63 21 continentur, are restrained.

63 22 sermonis . . . societate, by fellowship in language, rights, and interests.

64. 2 (Sect. 12.) tolla, a sort of protasis (§ 310, b; G. 598; H. 487, 3); the apod. is jam . . . praeclerusis (ll. 6–9, below).

64 5 quod velit (subj. of integral part), any he pleases.

64 6 quod . . . ignoret, because one may not know him.

64 7 liberas civitates: the allied states in the provinces, which were not strictly under the jurisdiction of the prætors.

64 9 praeclerusis, fut. perf.

64 12 adservasses, you might have kept. — custodiis, abl. of means.

64 14 cognoscret, should he know; equiv. to a protasis with si (§ 310, b; G. 598; H. 507, 1).

64 15 si ignoraret: Cicero here ironically lays down, under the form of a calm and reasonable alternative, the principle that Verres might crucify any Roman citizen whom he did not personally know and who could not furnish a rich man to identify him.
Crucifixion of a Roman Citizen.

64 16 hoc juris: § 216, a, 3; G. 369; H. 397, 3.
64 18 ut . . . tolleretur, clause of purpose.
64 21 (Sect. 13.) hostis, i.e. by his acts he has virtually declared himself the open enemy of the state as if he were a foreign power making war on the rights of Roman citizens (hence hostis rather than inimicus). — non illi: both words are emphatic — it is not to this person (in particular), but to, etc., that you were hostile.
64 22 quid enim attinuit, etc., for what did it have to do with the case that you should order, etc.: i.e. why should you have ordered, etc., unless by these gratuitous severities you wished to show your hatred of the very name of citizen?
64 25 fretum, the strait of Messina.
64 29 divisa, thus divided.
65 1 alumnun, foster-child, i.e. adopted citizen.
65 4 (Sect. 14.) Observe the double climax: facinus, scelus, parricidium; vincire, verberare, necare. For the crucifixion of a citizen Cicero can find no word strong enough — hence the summit of the climax is reached in quid dicam?
65 5 parricidium: for the horror with which this crime was regarded by the Romans, see Rosc. Am., sects. 28, 29.
65 14 in comitio: i.e. publicly in Rome and in the very centre of Roman freedom and Roman life. The comitium was an open space north of the Forum, on higher ground (see Plan of Forum, top); it was used for the most ancient comitia, the curia (in which the people were assembled by the thirty hereditary curiae), for hearing lawsuits, and for contiones. The curia, or Senate-house, was situated upon the comitium.—quod, i.e. that point which.
65 15 celebritate, i.e. as being a crowded thoroughfare.
65 16 potuit, sc. fieri.
65 18 praetervectione, etc., on the track of all who sail to and fro (by the Strait of Messina, the necessary route to Greece).
THE MANILIAN LAW.

ARGUMENT.

CHAP. I. Exordium. Why this is Cicero's first appearance before a political assembly.—Narratio. 2. Statement of the case: Mithridates and Tigranes have invaded the Roman domain. This war is demanded by the dignity and safety of the State.—Confirmatio. I. Character of the war.—3. Ill success of the First and Second Mithridatic Wars.—4. Strength of the enemy.—5. Present tameness of the Roman people contrasted with their ancient pride. The allies, whose safety is at stake, demand Pompey as commander.—6. The chief revenues are in peril, endangered by mere suspicion of calamity.—7. Financial crisis at Rome (general ruin would result from disaster to the publicani).—II. 8. Magnitude of the war. Lucullus achieved great success in his campaign.—9. But the war is still a great one: Mithridates is not subdued; our army has suffered reverses; Lucullus has been removed.—III. 10. Who then should be appointed? Military experience of Pompey.—11, 12. His successes, especially in the Piratic War.—13, 14. He has all the qualities of a general, including not only courage, but moral qualities: blamelessness, humanity, self-restraint, easy manners.—15. His prestige and influence, especially as derived from the Piratic War.—16. His special reputation in the East, largely resulting from his brilliant fortune.—17. Moreover, he is on the spot.—Confutatio. Objection of Hortensius, that all power ought not to be given to one man.—18. Answered by facts as to the result of the Gabinian law.—19. Brilliant success of this law (incidentally, Gabinianus should be assigned to Pompey as legatus).—20. Objection of Catulus, that the proposition is against precedent.—21. Answered by referring to other violations of precedent in Pompey's case.—22, 23. Appeal to the people against these objections. Pompey alone can retrieve the Roman reputation. Many leading men favor the Manilian Law.—Peroratio. 24. Cicero supports the law purely from devotion to the commonwealth.

The Oration for the Manilian Law is a famous example of a deliberative oration constructed on a systematic rhetorical plan.

II. Narratio (statement of the case): Chap. 2.

III. Confirmatio (affirmative argument): Chaps. 3 (sect. 6) -17 (sect. 50).
1. The character of the war: Chaps. 3 (sect. 6) -7.
2. The importance of the war: Chaps. 8, 9.
3. The selection of a commander: Chaps. 10-17 (sect. 50).
IV. Consetatio (answers to objections): Chaps. 17 (sect. 51) – 23.

V. Peroratio (peroration).

The oration was delivered in a contio or public meeting of Roman citizens held not for voting, but for debate or address merely. A contio could be called by any magistrate who had a matter to lay before the people, and was held regularly in the Comitium or the Forum. After a rogatio (proposition of a law) had been offered, such a meeting was regularly convened in order that the voters might hear the arguments on both sides. Later the comitia voted on the bill, Yes or No.

Thus the present speech in many respects resembled our modern political addresses on important public measures, like the tariff or the currency. It has, however, an official character.

I. EXORDIUM (CHAP. I.)

Sects. 1–3. Chap. I. This is Cicero's first appearance before a political assembly. Hitherto he has given all his time to defending his friends as a lawyer. He rejoices that in this his first political oration he has a subject on which any one, however unpractised, cannot fail to speak well, — the valor and ability of Pompey.

67. 1 (SECT. 1.) For a discussion of the structure of the opening period, see general Introd., p. xlvii. — frequens conspectus vester, the sight of you in full assembly.

67 2 hic locus, the Rostra (Fig. 18, from a coin). The scantly remains of the rostra may be seen at the left of the Temple of Concord in the Frontispiece. — ad agendum, for public business: i.e. among the many duties of a magistrate there is none more dignified (amplissimus) than this of addressing the whole people in a political assembly; agere cum populo was the technical expression for transacting business in the comitia or a contio.

67 3 ornatissimus, honorable (of private glory as an orator). — Quirites, fellow-citizens: the name by which the Romans were addressed when acting in a civil capacity. — hoc aditu, this avenue (i.e. addressing the people on political questions).

67 4 optimo cuique, i.e. to such as the presiding magistrate would permit, for only these had a right to speak in a contio.

67 5 rationes, plan: the plural indicates the details of the plan, i.e. the particular considerations that determine a general course of conduct.
Notes.

68. 1 cum (temporal), while (§ 323, 2; G. 585; H. 521, 2).

68 2 auctoritatem: the act of speaking in a contio indicated that the speaker was a proper person to advise the people, and hence it would confer auctoritas (weight, prestige). — attingere, aspire to.

68 3 perfectum ingenio, perfected by force of intellect: i.e. the fruit of fully developed mental power.

68 4 elaboratum, carefully wrought (such, therefore, as needed more practice than youth could give).

68 5 amicorum temporibus, exigencies of my friends. A Roman lawyer was not regarded as doing a service for hire, but was expected to defend his friends gratuitously. He was, indeed, prohibited from receiving pay; but, though no bargain was made, the obliged party was expected to give a liberal present, in some form or other, to his patronus.

68 5 (Sect. 2.) neque . . . et: here the first clause is virtually concessive; we may render while . . . at the same time.

68 7 caste, with clean hands; integre, in good faith (toward the client).

68 8 judicio, i.e. their action in electing him. — fructum, i.e. the several grades of office he had already filled: he was now prae tor.

68 9 dilationem, adjournment. There were many things which could break up an assembly and put off the business, especially unfavorable auguries, the announcement of which was a favorite device of politicians. If an election was thus interrupted by adjournment, the votes already taken were null and void and the whole proceeding had to be gone through with again. The comitia at which Cicero was chosen praetor were twice adjourned in this way, so that there were three meetings before the election was complete. At each of these Cicero was the first (primus) of the eight praetors to secure a majority, and hence he was thrice declared elected (ter renuntiatatus sum). primus does not here imply a superiority in rank, for the eight praetors were regarded as colleagues and determined their functions by lot.

68 11 quid allia, etc.: i.e. this action of the voters showed that they approved his course of life, and was a suggestion to others how to attain similar honors.

68 12 nunc, opposed to the time referred to in sect. 1.

68 14 ad agendum, for speaking (cf. note on l. 2, above).

68 15 forensi usu: the courts were held in the Forum.

68 18 quoque, i.e. to forensic as well as to military or political activity.

68 19 (Sect. 3.) atque (the strongest of the and’s), and further. — illud (nom.) laetandum: the construction illud laetor (§ 238, b; G. 333, 1, n.1; H. 371, iii) changed to the passive.

68 20 mihi, following insolita.

68 21 rations. manner.
The Manilian Law.

68 22 oratio, language; orationis (l. 24), argument (abstract from oro, in its original sense of to speak).
68 23 virtute, good qualities generally.

II. Narratio (§§ 4-5).

Sects. 4-5. Present state of the Mithridatic War. A leader is necessary, and there is but one leader fit to cope with the situation.

Observe that these two sections, though apparently a mere statement of facts, are so expressed as to contain, in brief and powerful form, the substance of the whole oration. The appointment of Pompey is not a matter for argument, Cicero contends throughout the speech, but an absolute necessity: the condition of affairs demands action, and this is the only action that can avail.
68 27 (SECT. 4.) atque (cf. note on l. 19, above), and now to come to the point. — inde, from that point.
68 29 vectigalibus ac sociis, tributaries and allies (of the latter some were tributary and others not).
68 30 relictus, i.e. before the contest was fully decided; lacesitius, only assailed, not seriously attacked. By using these words Cicero artfully prepares for the assertion which he is about to make of the need of an energetic commander.
68 31 Asiam, i.e. the province of this name, occupying the western half of Asia Minor and bordering on the dominions of Mithridates.
68 32 equibus, etc.: keep the emphasis by changing the construction: Roman equites are daily receiving, etc.
68 33 quorum . . . occupatae, whose large properties, invested in managing your revenues, are endangered. The revenues were farmed out to societas (companies) of publicani, who were members of the equestrian order (see sect. 14).
69. 2 necessitudine: Cicero was of an equestrian family.
69 4 (SECT. 5.) Bithyniae: this territory had been bequeathed to the Roman republic by Nicomedes III., B.C. 74.
69 5 Ariobarzanis: king of Cappadocia, which had been overrun by Mithridates.
69 7 Lucullum: Lucullus was related to both branches of the family of Metellus, and had married Clodia, sister of the notorious Publius Clodius. It was chiefly this mischievous demagogue, who was serving as one of his officers, that stirred up the dissensions and mutinies which robbed Lucullus of the fruits of his victories. — discedere, is on the point of withdrawing. — huic qui sucessevit, his successor, Glabrio.
Notes.

69 8 non satis paratum, not adequately furnished — an understatement: Glabrio had shown himself thoroughly incompetent, but Cicero was on good terms with him. This was the Glabrio who had presided over the court in the case of Verres.

69 9 sociis, i.e. Asiatics; civibus, Romans engaged in business in Asia.

69 10 imperatorem (in pred. appos. with unum), as commander.

III. Confirmatio (§§ 6-50).

Having briefly stated the facts (in the narratio, sects. 4, 5), Cicero asks what is to be done (sect. 6). His discussion of this question falls under three heads: i. the nature of the war (sects. 6-19); ii. its magnitude (sects. 20-26); iii. the choice of a commander (sects. 27-50). In the first and second divisions he represents the nature and magnitude of the war in such a way as to make the conclusion under the third head inevitable, — that Pompey must be chosen commander.

I. The Nature of the War (§§ 6-19).

This is considered under four heads (defined in sect. 6): there are at stake, i. the dignity and prestige of Rome (sects. 7-11); ii. the safety of the allies (sects. 12-13); iii. the chief revenues of the state (sects. 14-16); iv. the investments of the publicani, whose embarrassment would cause a financial panic in Rome itself (sects. 17-19).

69 17 (Sect. 6.) agitum, is at stake.

69 21 certissima: the surest because Asia was the richest and most fruitful of all the provinces; hence the price paid by the publicani for the privilege of farming its taxes was always certain to be large.

69 22 quibus amissis, equiv. to a fut. protasis. — ornamenta, ornaments, i.e. "all that exalts and embellishes civilized life."

70 1 a vobis: the abl. with a is used instead of the dat. of agent because there is another dat. dependent on consulendum (§ 232, n.; G. 355, r.; H. 388, n.).

Sects. 7-11. The war affects both the dignity and the welfare of Rome. The massacre of Roman citizens by Mithridates is as yet unpunished. So far no Roman general has succeeded in checking his aggressions. Has the Roman spirit declined? Our ancestors were more active in taking vengeance for insult and wrong.

70 8 (Sect. 7.) civis Romanos, etc.: this massacre (B.C. 88), in which 80,000 persons perished, was intended by Mithridates as a step toward the entire expulsion of the Romans from Asia.
The Manilian Law.

70 11 regnat: for tense, see § 276, a; G. 230; H. 467, 2.
70 14 (Sect. 8.) etenim, for (you will notice).
70 17 triumphavit de: not triumphed over, but celebrated a triumph for a victory over. The word is repeated in emphatic antithesis to the clause sed...regnaret.
70 19 regnaret, was still a king (i.e. in possession of his kingdom).—verum tamen, but still.
70 20 quod egerunt, for what they have done: by a Latin idiom quod is here equivalent to propter id quod.
70 22 res publica, the public interest. Sulla had hastened to make an unsatisfactory peace, that he might return and restore order in Italy, which was in the power of the Marian faction.
70 23 (Sect. 9.) autem, now (in contrast to the action of the Roman generals).—reliquum, that followed.
70 27 Bosporanis, the people of Bosporus, a flourishing Grecian state, embracing the Crimea and adjoining lands.
70 29 ad eos duces, i.e. Sertorius and his comrades. Sertorius was the ablest general of the Marian faction in the Civil Wars. After the victory of Sulla, and the complete overthrow of his own party elsewhere, he continued to hold Spain, where he attempted to found a new republic, entering into alliance with Mithridates and other enemies of Rome.

71. 1 gereretur (for fut. indic.), subj. of integral part.
71 2 de imperio, for supremacy.
71 3 (Sect. 10.) alterius corresponds to altera, l. 6, below.
71 4 firmamenti, outward support; roboris, internal strength.
71 5 Cn. Pompei: Pompey and Metellus Pius conducted the war against Sertorius from B.C. 77 till B.C. 72 without being able to subdue him. In 72 Sertorius was assassinated by his lieutenant Perperna, whom Pompey had no difficulty in defeating. Cicero, it will be observed, suppresses these details, preferring to give Pompey credit, in general terms, for putting an end to "the danger from Sertorius."
71 6 in altera parte, i.e. in the East.
71 8 felicitati: observe the chiastic order of the ideas,—felicitati, virtuti, culpae, fortunae.—haec extrema (an intentional euphemism), these late disasters.
71 9 tribuenda, attributable. In fact the ill success of Lucullus was in great part due to the machinations of politicians at Rome: he was not properly supported by the home government.
71 15 (Sect. 11). mercatoribus, etc., abl. abs. expressing cause.
71 19 appellati, addressed.—superbius, too haughtily.

The orator is here appealing to the passions of his hearers, and his statements must be interpreted accordingly. In B.C. 148, Roman ambassadors demanded that the Achaean League give up all its recent acquisitions; at which the incensed populace insulted the ambassadors and drove them away. In the war that followed, Corinth was captured by Mummius and destroyed, while Greece was made into a province by the name of Achaia. The insult to the ambassadors was but a pretext for the war, which was, in fact, merely one act in the general Roman policy of conquest. The extinction of the "eye of Greece," too, was not from motives of vengeance, but in order to remove a powerful rival to Roman commerce.

71 21 legatum, etc.: M'. Aquilius, the person referred to, had in fact forfeited all claim to the inviolability of an ambassador by actually taking command of an army against Mithridates. He was taken prisoner and put to death (B.C. 88). Aquilius had done service to the State by suppressing the Servile War in Sicily (see Fig. 19).

Sects. 12, 13. Our suffering allies implore aid. For their own sake they beg that the command be entrusted to Pompey.

71 26 (Sect. 12.) videte ne: the Latin expresses in the form of a purpose clause ("see to it lest," etc.) what we should put in the form of an indir. quest. ("see whether it be not," etc.).

71 27 ut, as, correl. with sic. — illis, i.e. your ancestors.

71 29 non posse, subj. of sit.

71 30 quid? a regular formula of transition: again. — quod, that (§ 333, b; G. 542; H. 540, iv, n.). — periculum ac discernem, a dangerous crisis: the former word signifying the trial; the latter the decision. (See Introd., p. xlv.)

72 1 Ariobarzanes: king of Cappadocia. It was the designs of Mithridates upon this kingdom that first brought him into collision with Rome. (Fig. 20 is from a fine bust of some unknown Cappadocian.)

72 6 certum, a particular. — cum, causal.

72 7 sine summo periculo, i.e. by offending Lucullus and Glabrio.
The Manilian Law.

72 10 (Sect. 13.) propter, at hand. — quo, abl. of degree of difference with aegrius.

72 11 adventu ipso, by his mere coming. — maritimum, i.e. the war against the pirates, which Pompey had just finished with great glory.

72 14 ceterarum provinciarum, i.e. those assigned to Pompey by the Gabinian Law, which gave him power over the entire Mediterranean and the coasts fifty miles inland. This would not include the province of Bithynia, nor the greater part of Asia. The Manilian Law extended his power over the entire East.

72 15 quorum . . . commendetis: § 320, f; G. 631, 1; H. 503, ii, 2.

72 17 etiam si defendant, subj. of integral part.

72 19 non multum, etc. : the expression was hardly too strong for the general type of provincial governors. Cf. "The Plunder of Syracuse," sects. 1, 6, 7, where Cicero contrasts the moderation of Marcellus in time of war with the rapacity of Verres in time of peace.

Sects. 14–16. The safety of the largest and surest revenues of Rome is also at stake.

72 23 (Sect. 14.) The neatness of Cicero's transitions may be seen to good advantage in this oration. In the present section he passes by a clever turn from the safety of the allies to the safety of the revenues. Our ancestors took all possible pains to defend their allies even when they had suffered nothing themselves: shall we hesitate to defend our allies when our government has been insulted, — especially when on their safety depend our chief revenues?

72 23 propter socios (emphat.): these wars have a place in the argument solely on account of their motive. The events referred to are the following: Antiochus the Great, king of Syria, was defeated by Scipio Asiaticus at Magnesia, B.C. 190. Philip V., king of Macedonia, was defeated by Flamininus, at Cynoscephalæ, B.C. 197. The Ætolians had helped Rome against Philip, and then joined Antiochus against her: they were obliged to submit after the battle of Magnesia. Carthage had been forced into a third war in B.C. 149, and was taken and destroyed by Scipio Æmilianus in B.C. 146.

72 28 agatur, etc., it is a question of your richest revenues. The province of Asia, like Sicily, paid as a tax the tenth of all products (decumae). The collection of this was farmed out by the censors to companies of publicani belonging to the equestrian order. All other provinces regularly paid a stipendium, or fixed tax, which they raised themselves.

72 29 tanta, only so great. — eis, abl. with contenti. — vix contenti, i.e. they will hardly pay the costs of their own defence.
Notes.

72 30 Asia: this description of Asia Minor is no longer true, for bad government and bad cultivation have exhausted its natural wealth.

72 32 pastionis, pasture land, let to publicans, who paid a tax called scriptura.—exportantur: the portoria were tolls and customs duties paid upon goods both exported and imported: the rate was 2 ½, or (in Sicily) 5 per cent ad valorem.

73. 8 (Sect. 15.) pecuaria, etc.: cf. the summary of the resources of Asia; p. 72, ll. 30–32.

73 10 portu, decumis, scriptura: these repeat, in inverse order, pecuaria, agri cultura, navigatio.

73 12 fructus, income (i.e. to the Romans).

73 14 (Sect. 16.) exercent, manage, refers to the societates publicanorum, who took contracts for collecting the revenues; exigunt, collect, refers to the agents and slaves who attended to the details of the collection.

73 17 familias: see note on Rosc. Am., p. 15, l. 3. The Roman slaves were not merely rude Gauls and Thracians, but educated Greeks and Asiatics. The latter served in noble families as secretaries, stewards, and tutors, and would naturally be employed by the great tax-collecting corporations as agents and servants.

73 18 saltibus, mountain pastures. Here again three classes of revenue are alluded to: scriptura (in saltibus), decumae (in agris), portoria (in portibus). Observe the art with which Cicero constantly repeats, in different order and different terms, the same detailed description of the revenues, in order to keep this important point before the minds of his hearers.

73 19 custodiis, coast-guards; stationed to prevent smuggling, at the custom-houses and toll-houses.

73 20 posse, can (§ 307, d; G. 248, r.): the protasis is nisi ... conservaritis (fut. perf.).

Sects. 17–19. The investments of the publicani and others are endangered by this war: hence there is fear of a financial crisis at Rome.

74. 1 (Sect. 17.) ac ne, etc.: nor must you neglect this point either.

74 2 cum essem ... dicturus: see above, sect. 6, where the divisions of the subject are specified.

74 3 quod ... pertinet, which bears upon, etc. The antecedent is illud.

74 5 nam et corresponds to deinde (sect. 18). Two classes are mentioned: (1) the publicani or tax-farmers, and (2) other citizens who have money invested in Asia (sect. 18).
The Manilian Law.

74 6 rationes, business enterprises; copias, fortunes.—in illam provinciam, i.e. the farming of the revenues there.

74 7 ipsorum per se, for their own sake (i.e. apart from all question of the safety of the revenues).

74 8 nervos: the same figure is seen in our phrase "the sinews of war."

74 9 eum . . . ordinem, i.e. the equites: these not only farmed the taxes, but they were, in general, the capitalists and bankers of Rome.

74 11 (SECT. 18.) ex ceteris ordinibus refers to men of humbler rank who were carrying on business in Asia, as well as to Senators who had money invested (conlocatas) there.

74 13 eorum (redundant) limits partim.

74 14 humanitatis vestrae: § 214, d; G. 366; H. 401, N. 2; sapientiae is in the same construction.

74 17 etenim primum introduces the first reason why the losses of private citizens are a matter of public concern; the second reason is introduced by deinde quod (sect. 19).—illud parvi refert (§ 252, a; G. 379, 380; H. 408, iii), etc., it is of slight consequence that we can afterwards win back by victory.

74 18 publica either agrees with vectigalia, or may be taken absolutely, omitting the doubtful word vectigalia.—his, i.e. the publicani; amissis, lost, i.e. as bidders for the revenues.

74 19 redimendi, contracting for the revenues.

74 21 (SECT. 19.) deinde, introducing another important point: general credit will invariably suffer when a large class of moneyed men are ruined. The student should remember that Rome was a great commercial centre like London to-day.

74 22 initio belli, i.e. in the First Mithridatic War.

74 23 memoria, loc. abl. (§ 254, a; G. 389; H. 425, 19).

74 24 cum amiserant (§ 325, a; G. 580; H. 521, ii, 1), when (as you remember), etc.—solutione . . . concidisse (brief description of a financial panic), when payment was embarrassed, credit fell. Similar panics in recent times may help us conceive the political importance of commerce in antiquity.

74 25 non enim possunt: translate (to preserve the emphasis), for it is impossible that.

74 26 ut non . . . trahant (clause of result), without dragging (lit. so as not to drag).

74 27 prohibete: for the two senses of this verb, see Vocab. (cf. also defende).

74 28 id: § 225, a.
Notes.

74 29 ratio pecuniarum, financial system.
74 30 versatur, centres. — pecuniis, finances.
74 31 illa, i.e. those in Asia; haec, i.e. at Rome.
74 32 num...si, whether you ought to hesitate.— dubitandum sit, impersonal.

75. 1 incumbere: the usual constr. after non dubito in this sense ($ 332. g, N.2; G. 555. R.8; H. 505, i, 4).
75 2 fortunae, etc.: with this chapter Cicero closes the discussion "de genere belli." There is no anticlimax, for the stability of the whole Roman financial system was of course more important than either the safety of the allies or the revenues of a single province.

II. The Magnitude of the War ($§ 20–26).

Having shown, in the preceding division, that the war is necessary (i.e. that much is at stake), Cicero now proceeds to prove that it is a dangerous war (i.e. that the outcome is uncertain). To do this he needs only to sketch the history of the contest, ending with the recall of Lucullus and the appointment of Glabrio.

75 5 (Sect. 20.) potest (emphatic position), etc., it may be said, i.e. in answer to the preceding arguments: of course, in order to justify the wisdom of so exceptional a measure as the Manilian Law, it was necessary to show that the war was of sufficient gravity to require the appointment of Pompey. Observe the skilful transition from the genus of the war to its magnitudo. — belli genus, i.e. the war, in its character.

75 7 elaborandum est: use the personal construction in translating.
75 12 ornatas, equipped; instructas, organised.
75 14 obsessam, invested; oppugnatam, attacked (by the active operations of siege): the English verb besiege includes both ideas. This was B.C. 74.

75 18 (Sect. 21.) ad Italian: a fleet which Mithridates had despatched for Italy, with a contingent furnished by Sertorius, had been defeated by Lucullus near the island of Lemnos.— ducibus Sertorianis, abl. abs. — studio, zeal (for one party); odio, hate (for the other).

75 20 proeliiis: $ 259, a; G. 394, R.
75 21 Pontum, i.e. the Euxine Sea.
75 22 ex omni aditu, at every approach.
The Manilian Law.

75 23 Sinopen, Amisum: towns on the north coast of Asia Minor.

75 25 aditu, approach; adventu, arrival. The fact is, that both Sinope and Amisus had made a very stubborn resistance which the orator chooses to ignore. A certain vagueness in Cicero's whole account in this and the following chapter is doubtless due to a wish to spare Lucullus.

75 26 alias reges: his son Machāres, king of Bosporus, and his son-in-law Tigrānes, king of Armenia.

75 28 salvis, i.e. without harming the allies; integris, i.e. without impairing the revenues.

75 29 ita, of such a kind.

75 30 a nullo, etc.: thus Cicero's praise of Lucullus has a definite place in the argument. It is important for him to show that this law can be advocated by one who fully appreciates the merits of Lucullus.

76 1 (sect. 22.) requiritur, the question will be asked (emph.).

76 4 primum: the corresponding particles ("secondly," etc.) are omitted; the next point begins at sect. 23.

76 5 Ponto: the old kingdom of Colchis, the scene of Jason's adventures in winning the Golden Fleece (see Gayley, Classic Myths, §§ 145 ff.), was on the eastern shore of the Euxine and formed a part of Mithridates' Kingdom of Pontus. — Medea: see Fig. 22 (from a wall-painting). — quam praedicant, who, as they tell. (The usual sign of indir. disc. in English, that, cannot be used with a relative.)

76 7 perseveretur, was likely to follow. This is a subord. clause in indir. disc.; but, even if the story were being told in dir. disc. (without praedicant), we should still have perseveretur on the principle of informal indir. disc., expressing the thought of Medea (§ 341, d;
G. 628; H. 528, 1): this is shown by the use of se (not eam) in l. 6.— conlectio dispersa, the scattered gathering: the phrase vividly expresses the idea of his wandering about to pick them up.
76 9 vim auri, etc.: the immense treasures which Mithridates had accumulated in his several fortresses came into the hands of Lucullus: not money simply, but works of art, etc.
76 10 quas et . . . et, equiv. to quas partim . . . partim.
76 14 illum, hos, denote distance and nearness of time. Render in the pass. to keep the emphasis, the one was detained by, etc.
76 15 (Sect. 23). hunc, i.e. Mithridates.
76 16 confirmavit, reassured.
76 19 erat enim, etc.: explaining the reason why these nations displayed hostility though the Romans had no designs on them.
76 20 eis nationibus, i.e. those near Armenia.
76 22 gravis atque vehemens, potent and very strongly held.
76 23 fani: "the temple of the Persian Nanaea, or Anaitis, in Elymais or the modern Luristan [that part of Susiana nearest to the Euphrates], the most celebrated and the richest shrine in the whole region of the Euphrates." Such a rumor would at once fire the population of the whole East.
76 27 urbes: Tigranocerta, the new capital of Tigranes, situated in the southwest part of his kingdom, near the river Tigris. This city was destroyed by Lucullus.
76 29 commovebatur, was affected. After all his successes, Lucullus had made somewhat the same mistake as Napoleon in his Russian exped-tion, and had found himself in an awkward situation, far from his base of operations and in the midst of infuriated enemies.
76 30 (Sect. 24.) hic, on this point.—extremum, the climax.
76 31 ut . . . quaereretur, subst. clause of result (§ 332, headnote; G.
553, 4; H. 501, i, 2).
77 6 opes . . . misericordiam: a short expression for "win them over to pity and call out their resources." 77 7 ut . . . videatur, a result-clause following qui . . . regno: the more natural way to express the idea in English would be by a co-ordinate clause with and therefore.
77 8 (Sect. 25.) victus, when beaten; incolumis, at the height of his power.
77 11 ut . . . attingeret, in appos. with eo following contentus. We should regularly have quod with the indic. (cf. § 333, b; G. 542; H. 535, iii); but the form of the clause appears to be determined by acciderat, which takes a subst. clause of result (§ 332, a, 2; G. 553, 3; H. 501, i, 1).
The Manilian Law.

77 12 umquam: not aliquando, on account of the neg. idea implied in praeter spem (§ 105, 4).
77 13 victorem, as adj. (§ 188, d; G. 288, r.; H. 441, 3).
78. 1 poetae: such were Nævius, who wrote a Bellum Punicum, and Ennius, author of Annales, recounting events of Roman history; both lived in the third century B.C.
78 2 calamitatem: i.e. the defeat of Triarius (B.C. 67), who was leading reinforcements to Lucullus. Only a severe wound of Mithridates saved the Roman army from utter destruction. As it was, the rout was so complete that no [regular] messenger, etc.
78 4 sermonem, common talk.
78 6 (Sect. 26.) tamen, i.e. though the defeat was so disastrous.
78 7 potuisse, subj. of characteristic; the cont. to fact idea which is also contained in the word would not have required the subj. (§ 311, c; G. 597, r.3, a; H. 511, 1, n.3).—vestro jussu, i.e. by the Gabinian Law (see Introd., p. 66 of text).—imperii: the military imperium could be extended after the term of office by the Senate. The holder of a command thus extended (prorogatum) was called proconsul or præfector. In this case Lucullus had now held command seven years, from B.C. 74.
78 12–14 conjungant, etc.: this sums up the considerations already urged as to the magnitude of the war (from sect. 23).
78 13 integrae, fresh (cf. sect. 23, ll. 20, 21).

III. The Choice of a Commander (§§ 27–50).

The plan of this division is simple but effective. Four things are requisite in a great commander: scientia, virtus, auctoritas, felicitas. Pompey has all these qualities in the highest degree: (1) scientia (sect. 28); (2) virtus of every kind (sects. 29–42); (3) auctoritas (sects. 43–46); (4) felicitas (sects. 47, 48). Hence he should be appointed (sect. 49), especially since, by divine providence, he is at this moment in the East (opportunitas) (sect. 50).

78 15 (Sect. 27.) By way of transition, Cicero sums up (in ll. 15–18) the state of the argument.—satis . . . videor, I have said ENOUGH, I think [to show] why, etc. Observe that the Latin prefers the personal construction (I seem to myself) to our impersonal (it seems to me).—esse, is: imperf. by seq. of tenses after fecisse (§ 336 B, N.3; G. 518; H. 495, iv).
78 17 restat ut, etc., it remains for me, as it seems, to speak (§ 329, N.; G. 553, 4; H. 501, 1, 1).
78 19 utinam . . . haberetis, I wish you had (§ 267; G. 260, 261; H. 483, 1, 2).—innocentium: innocens was an almost technical word to express cleanliness of hands on the part of an official; we may translate by blameless or incorruptible.

78 22 nunc vero, but now (i.e. as things stand): opposed to the unfulfilled wish, utinam...haberetis. — cum, causal. — unus, but one.

78 23 qui non modo, etc.: this remarkable exaggeration, which puts the exploits of Pompey above those of Alexander, Hannibal, Scipio, and other generals of antiquity, probably suited well enough the temper of the assembly. The student should remember the hyperbole of personal praise and blame characteristic of most political oratory, especially in a "campaign."

78 24 virtute, excellence (not valor only).

78 25 cujusquam, used on account of the neg. idea in the question quae res, etc. (see note on umquam, p. 77, l. 12, and cf. umquam, below, l. 29).

Sect. 28. The four things requisite in a commander are all possessed by Pompey in the highest degree: (1) scientia (experience and knowledge in the art of war).

79. 1 (Sect. 28.) bello...hostibus, loc. abl. expressing the circumstances; we may translate by a clause with when.

79 2 ad patris exercitum: Pompey, then seventeen years old, served with his father, Cn. Pompeius Strabo, consul, B.C. 89, the last year of the Social War.

79 4 summi imperatoris: his father, who commanded on the side of the Senate against Cinna, B.C. 87.

79 5 imperator: in B.C. 83 the young Pompey raised an army (chiefly from his father's immense estates in Picenum) and joined Sulla, who complimented him as imperator, although he had not yet held even the quaestorship.

79 6 quisquam, used on account of the neg. idea in saepius...quam, see note on cujusquam, l. 25, above. — inimico, a private adversary (e.g. before a court).

79 9 imperis: all Pompey's commands had been either assumed by him or irregularly conferred upon him until he obtained the consulship in B.C. 70.

79 12 Civile, Africanum, etc.: Pompey's exploits in these various wars are referred to in the same order but in greater detail below (sects. 30–35), where see notes. The last mentioned, that with the pirates (bellum navale, is of course specially dwelt on (sects. 31–35)."

Sects. 29–42. (2) The second requisite in a commander: virtus (excellence, of all kinds). The virtutes of Pompey include not only virtus bellandi (sects. 29-35), but incorruptibility (sect. 37), self-restraint (sect. 40), wisdom, eloquence, good faith, and humanity (sect. 42).

Sects. 29-35. Pompey's virtus bellandi: his former successes (sect. 30); his recent success against the pirates (sects. 31-33); the celerity of his movements (sects. 34-35).

79 21 (Sect. 29.) neque enim illae: Cicero does not mention what the other good qualities are till sect. 36. By an oratorical device he begins as if he did not mean to talk about the ordinary virtutes recognized as necessary for a general, but intended to speak of certain others, equally necessary but perhaps less common (incorruptibility, etc.), for which Pompey was eminent. But he goes on at once to emphasize the possession of the commonly recognized soldierly qualities by Pompey, as if he had forgotten his point in his enthusiasm. Then, with sect. 36, he suddenly pulls himself up, as from a digression, and returns to consider the good qualities he had, as he says, "begun to enumerate." By this method, not only is an air of spontaneity given to the praise of Pompey (as if the orator were carried away by his theme: cf. sect. 3), but the special and rare virtues on which he wishes to lay stress are much emphasized by being, as it were, brought in twice,—a second time when the orator seems in danger of forgetting them (sect. 36).

79 26 (Sect. 30.) testis est, etc.: the enumeration corresponds to that in sect. 28, ll. 12-14, above (Civile, Africanum, etc.).

79 26-28 Italia, Sicilia, i.e. in the Civil War.—Italia: Pompey raised an army to help Sulla against Cinna and Carbo, the Marian leaders (b.c. 83).—Sicilia, Africa: after Sulla's final victory in Italy, he entrusted to young Pompey the subjugation of Sicily and Africa, where Carbo, with the remnants of his power, had taken refuge. Fig. 23 shows a coin of Pompey, on which is an allegorical head of Africa.

79 31 Gallia: this refers to certain hostilities in Gaul when Pompey was on his way to Spain to the war against Sertorius (b.c. 77); these are referred to as bellum Transalpinum in sect. 28.

80. 1 Hispania: in the war with Sertorius (see, however, note on p. 71, l. 5).

80 2 iterum: Pompey, on his way back from Spain (b.c. 71), fell in with the remnants of the troops of Spartacus and cut them to pieces in Cisalpine Gaul; but the whole passage is a rhetorical exaggeration.
80 7 (Sect. 31.) omnes orae, etc.: referring to the Piratic War. There is no extravagance in this; the suppression of piracy was the most glorious part of Pompey's career.

80 12 servitutis: the slave system of the ancients made captives a lucrative booty in war.

80 13 hieme, i.e. he either had to sail in the winter, exposed to the danger of being lost at sea (mortis), or, etc.

80 14 tam vetus: the piratical forces were made up of the wreck of those numberless armies beaten and broken up in the wars of the past half-century or more. When the lesser states lost their independence, their bravest men would often prefer the outlaw freedom of piracy to personal slavery, or even to political subjugation. In fact, the pirate state in Cilicia made a sort of republic, unrecognized and defiant.

80 15 quis . . . arbitratetur: § 268; G. 265; H. 484, v.

81. 7 (Sect. 32.) fuit: for position see § 344, d, 3.

81 11 cum . . . transmiserint: like a relative clause of characteristic; translate when, etc.

81 12 Brundisio, i.e. the short passage to Greece.

81 13 legati: the case is not known; probably not an ambassador, as one would expect from the preceding words, but in another sense, — a military aid. The plur. is perhaps used rhetorically for the sing. — qui: the omitted antecedent (eos) is the subj. of captos [esse].

81 14 mercatoribus: see Fig. 24 for a trading vessel (from an ancient relief).

81 15 duodecim securae, two praetors; lit. twelve axes (i.e. twelve lictors). As provincial governors, the praetors were each attended by six lictors; in the city they had but two. For an ancient representation of lictors see Fig. 25 (from a coin).

82. 2 (Sect. 33.) vitam ac spiritum: ports of entry are the \textit{breath of life} to a city which, like Rome, must import its daily supplies of food.

82 3 \textit{potestatem}: acc., because it is implied that they fell \textit{into} their power.

82 5 \textit{praetore}: who he was is not known.

82 6 \textit{liberos} (a rhetorical use of the plural for the singular): this was a daughter of the distinguished orator Marcus Antonius, who had celebrated a triumph for a victory over the pirates, B.C. 102.

82 10 \textit{classis ea, a fleet} (not \textit{that fleet}); followed by a subj. of characteristic (\textit{praepositus esset}). — \textit{consul}: who he was is not known.

82 15 \textit{Oceani ostium}, the Strait of Gibraltar.

82 16 \textit{audiatis}: for tense see § 287, c; G. 513; H. 495, vi.

82 18 (Sect. 34.) \textit{sunt}, plur., agreeing directly with \textit{haec}, instead of sing. \textit{est} with the indir. question as subject (cf. § 334, c, r.; cf. G. 468; cf.
H. 529, ii, 2).

82 21 \textit{tanti belli}, etc., \textit{the rush of so great a war sped over the sea}.

83. 13 (Sect. 35.) \textit{Cretensibus}: Quintus Metellus, the proconsul
(the friend of Verres), had reduced Crete nearly to submission, deriving from this his \textit{cognomen} Creticus. The Cretans, alienated by his harshness, sent to Pompey, that he, rather than Metellus, might receive their surrender, which Pompey was very willing to do. Civil war nearly broke out between the two commanders in consequence. Pompey, however, who had his hands full in Asia, withdrew from the field and left the honors to his rival.

Sects. 36–42. Not only \textit{bellandi virtus} is requisite in a commander, but other \textit{virtutes} as well, all of which Pompey possesses: incorruptibility (sect. 37); self-restraint (sect. 40); wisdom, eloquence, good faith, and humanity (sect. 42).

83 20 (Sect. 36.) \textit{quid ceterae}? \textit{how with the others}? — \textit{paolo ante}, i.e. in sect. 29 (see note).

83 24 \textit{innocentia}: see note on \textit{innocentium}, p. 78, l. 19.

83 27 \textit{quae}, subj. of \textit{sint} (neuter, as referring to antecedents of different genders): translate \textit{these}.

83 28 \textit{summa} (emphat.), \textit{in the highest degree}.

83 31 (Sect. 37.) \textit{putare} (in its earlier meaning of \textit{reconn}: see Vocab.), etc., \textit{count} (as such).— \textit{centuriatus}: two centurions commanded each \textit{manipulus} of 120 men. The centurions were advanced from the ranks by the commander; hence there were opportunities for favoritism and bribery.

83 32 \textit{veneant}, subj. of characteristic.

84. 1 \textit{aerario}: the treasury was in the Temple of Saturn, under the superintendence of the two city \textit{quaestors}. The actual management of the funds was in the hands of a large body of clerks, scribae, who formed a permanent collegium.

84 3 provinciae, dep. on cupiditatem: apparently the person referred to tried to purchase the influence of the magistrates in order to be allowed to retain his province longer than the regular time; but nothing is known of the case.

84 4 in quaestu, on speculation.—facit ut, etc., shows that you recognize.

84 11 (Sect. 38.) recordamini, imper. as protasis (§ 310, b; G. 593, 4; H. 487, 3).

84 12 quid existimetis: in the dir. question it would be the same form, as deliberative subjunc. (§ 268; G. 259; H. 486, ii).

84 14 hibernis: notice the strong antithesis to armis.

84 17 judicando: a great part of the imperator’s business would be deciding cases of extortion by the publicani, who were of the same class (equites) that held the judicial power in Rome. By not being strict (severus) with them, he might purchase immunity for himself, if brought to trial afterwards on a similar charge.

84 18 (Sect. 39.) hic, in such a case (prop., at this point in my discourse).

84 19 manus, vestigium, i.e. not only was there no intentional injury done, but no unintended evils followed in its train.

84 21 jam vero, here simply a particle of transition. Pompey’s winter-quarters are contrasted with such as are referred to above in hibernis (l. 14).

84 22 sermones, reports, by way of common talk.—ut . . . faciat, to incur expense in entertaining officers and soldiers.

84 24 enim: the connection of thought is,—[and in this he follows old custom,] for, etc.—hiemis, from winter (obj. gen.); avaritiae, for avarice (subj. gen.): cf. § 217, n.; G. 363, r.2; H. 396, ii and iii.

84 28 (Sect. 40.) celeritatem, speed; cursum, extent of travel.

84 29 non . . . quaedam . . . aliqui, it was not that some, etc.

84 30 remigum: galleys, worked by oars and independent of the wind, were generally used as war vessels. In the Mediterranean (particularly in the Barbary States) their use was continued till a very late day; and for some purposes they are still employed. Their trained crews of rowers gave them a speed hardly less than that of steam-vessels.

85 2 amoenitas: used of objects of sight, beauty of scenery, etc.

85 3 labor, toil, always with the sense of effort and fatigue.

85 5 ceteri, as Verres, for instance (see “The Plunder of Syracuse,” pp. 48 ff.).

85 6 visenda: the passion for travel and sight-seeing was as common among the ancients as in modern times (cf. "The Plunder of Syracuse," sect. 8, l. 9; sect. 17, ll. 5–7).
The Manilian Law.

85 9 (Sect. 41.) fuisse: cf. fuit in p. 81, l. 7 (and note). — hac continentia, i.e. such as his.

85 10 jam... videbatur, was now getting to seem.

85 11 nunc: notice the emphatic repetition (anaphora).

85 14 servire quam imperare: a rhetorical exaggeration for preferring the condition of subject allies to nominal independence.

86 1 (Sect. 42.) consilio, etc.: cf. sect. 36, ll. 26, 27.

86 2 ipso, of itself.

86 3 hoc... loco, i.e. the Rostra.

86 4 fidem vero, etc.: render, and as to his good faith, etc., changing the construction so as to keep the emphasis.

86 5 quam, etc.: render, when the enemy esteemed it, etc. (contrasting hostes with socios).

86 7 pugnantes, in battle; victi, in defeat.

Sects. 43–46. (3) The third requisite in a commander: auctoritas, "prestige." This Pompey possesses in a high degree. It has already shown its effect in the East.

86 17 ut... ament, clause of result, dep. on commoveri.

86 22 judicia, expressions of opinion (i.e. by conferring offices on him); cf. what Cicero says of himself in sect. 2 (p. 68, ll. 12, 13).

86 23 (Sect. 44.) ullam usquam: see note on sect. 27 (p. 78, l. 25).

86 24 illius diei: that of the passage of the Lex Gabinius, which conferred upon Pompey the command against the pirates.

86 26 commune: as being against pirates, enemies of all mankind.

86 28 aliorum exemplis: it is not necessary to cite examples of other generals; Pompey’s own history furnishes instances enough.

86 31 qui quo die, on the day on which he, etc.: the relatives, admissible in Latin, cannot be literally reproduced in English.

87 3 potuisset (§ 308, c, N.1; G. 597, R.8, b; H. cf. 511, i, N.8): the protasis is implied in in summa ubertate, etc.

87 4 (Sect. 45.) proelio: the defeat of Triarius (see sect. 25).

87 6 provincia, i.e. Asia.

87 8 ad eas regiones, i.e. only into the neighborhood, for Pompey’s authority did not extend to the seat of war; this force is given by the preposition ad: in would mean into.

87 12 perfecturus sit: § 334, a; G. 514, b; H. 529, 4. — perfecerit, subj. of characteristic.

87 15 (Sect. 46.) illa res, in appos. with the clause quod... dediderunt.
87 18 Cretensium: towns of the same region or race were often united in leagues or confederacies, chiefly for religious purposes. After the Roman conquest, such communia were sometimes left in existence, and even new ones were organized, and allowed to exercise some subordinate political function. The existence of a commune Cretensium is known from inscriptions.

87 19 noster imperator: Q. Metellus (see note on p. 83, l. 13).
87 22 ad eundem, i.e. to Pompey.
87 23 eum quem, one who.
87 24 ei quibus, while they, etc., i.e. those who were jealous of Pompey's reputation.
87 25 potissimum, rather than to any one else (i.e. rather than to Q. Metellus Pius, who also had a command in Spain and who was much older than Pompey). Nothing further is known of this embassy.
87 27 hanc auctoritatem: translate, as to this prestige, though it is really the subj. of valituram esse, the whole clause being governed by existimetis.

87 30 (Sect. 47.) felicitate: in this quality is implied a special favor of the gods, which it would be presumptuous to arrogate to one's self (hence timide), although Sulla had done so by assuming the cognomen Felix (see Rosc. Am., sect. 12, p. 6, l. 7, and note).

88. 2–3 Maximo: Quintus Fabius Maximus, "the shield of Rome"; Marcello: Marcus Claudius Marcellus, "the sword of Rome," both distinguished in the Second Punic War.—Scipioni: either Africanus the elder, or Æmilianus: from sect. 60 it might appear to be the latter.—Mario: Caius Marius, who vanquished Jugurtha, subdued the Cimbri and Teutones, and afterwards (B.C. 88) engaged in civil war with Sulla.

88 4 saepius, repeatedly: Marius was consul seven times.
88 5 fuit (emphatic), there really has been (§ 344, d, 2).
88 9 hac moderatione: a shorthand expression for hoc modo moderato, in which moderato would refer merely to the result clause ut . . . videamur.
—non ut (not to be confounded with ut non), etc., i.e. not of such a kind as to say, etc., but such, etc.
88 11 invisa: because presumptuous.
88 13 (Sect. 48.) non sum praedicaturus: this affectation of passing a subject over in silence is called praeteritio.
88 14 ut, how (introducing an indir. quest.).
88 18 qui . . . auderet, rel. clause of result.
88 19 quot et quantas, correl. with tot et tantas above. Translate by the single word as (§ 106, b).
The Manilian Law.

88 20 proprium ac perpetuum, secured to him for ever.
88 21 cum, introducing the general consideration (communis); tum, the particular consideration (ipsis).

Sects. 49, 50. Pompey should be appointed commander in Asia,—especially since he is on the spot. Cicero recapitulates the argument and applies it: since all that I have proved is so, can you hesitate to appoint the general whom heaven provides,—especially (and here a new and powerful reason is added, as if it were an afterthought) since he is on the spot already?

88 26 (Sect. 49.) sit, subj. of characteristic.
88 28 quin . . . conferatis: § 332, g, n. 2; G. 555, 2, r. 3; H. 505, i.
88 32 (Sect. 50.) erat deligendus: § 308, c; G. 597, r. 3; H. 511, 2.
89 1 nunc, as things stand.
89 3 adsit, habeat, possit: result clauses in appos. with opportunitas.
—eis qui habent, i.e. Lucullus, Glabrio, and Marcus Rex, who were still, in command of Roman armies in Asia. For mood of habent, see § 342, a, n.; G. 629, r.; H. 529, ii, n. 1, 2.
89 4 cur . . . committamus: observe the different mood in the preceding question quid expectamus?

IV. Confutatio (§§ 51–68).

Sects. 51–58. Objection of Hortensius,—that supreme power ought not to be given to one man. Answer: Hortensius made a similar objection to the Gabinian Law; yet that law turned out extremely well: acting under its provisions Pompey cleared the sea of pirates. Incidental answer to the objection made to sending Gabinius as lieutenant with Pompey (sects. 57, 58).

89 8 (Sect. 51.) at enim (objection), but, you will say.
89 9 adfectus = enjoying.—Catulus: Quintus Lutatius Catulus, at this time the leader of the senatorial party; an estimable man and an experienced statesman, but no soldier. The beneficia amplissima are the successive offices that had been conferred upon him.
89 11 Hortensius: the leading lawyer of the time (see oration against Verres). —ratione, view.
89 14 auctoritates contrarias: of course there were men of influence on the side of the Manilian Law as well as opposed to it; Cicero brings forward the names of several in sect. 68, below.
89 15 ipsa re ac ratione: this appeal from theoretical objections (as Cicero thinks them) to experience (i.e. in the Piratic War) would, of course, be very effective in a public assembly, for theoretical considerations weigh little with such bodies in comparison with facts. Cicero makes it doubly effective by pointing out that his opponents agree with his premises as to the necessity and magnitude of the war and the eminent ability of Pompey as a general, but that they avoid, on these merely technical grounds, what seems to him the obvious conclusion: viz., that Pompey should be appointed.

89 20 (Sect. 52.) tribuenda sint: condition with nothing implied (in dir. disc., sunt).

89 23 pro, in accordance with.

89 24 in senatu: laws did not require any ratification by the Senate. The expression of opinion by Hortensius must therefore have been in an informal discussion, after the promulgation of the law (i.e. its announcement as a proposed bill).

89 25 Gabinium: see Introd. p. 67 of text.

89 27 promulgasset: a bill intended to be brought before either comitia was regularly announced to the Senate and posted in the city two Roman weeks (at least 17 days) before it could be voted on.—ex hoc ipso loco, i.e. in the public discussion of the law, before the vote, in the contio (see sect. 1).

89 31 (Sect. 53.) hanc, i.e. which we have now.

90 1 an implies a strong negative (§ 211, b; G. 457, 1; H. 353, N.4).

90 2 legati, etc.: observe that Cicero seizes the opportunity to recall briefly to the minds of his hearers certain important facts which he has already dwelt on in greater detail (in sects. 31–33).

90 3 ex omnibus, etc.: translate, from communication (commenatu, really abl. of specification) with all the provinces.—neque jam, no longer.

90 8 (Sect. 54.) Atheniensium: the Athenian empire of the sea, in the fifth century B.C., resulted from the great victories in the Persian War.

90 9 Karthaginiensium: the maritime power of Carthage was at its height in the third century B.C.

90 10 Rhodiorum: the city of Rhodes was the chief naval power of the Mediterranean during the last three centuries before Christ: its power was broken B.C. 42, at its capture by Cassius.

90 17 permanserit, subj. of characteristic.

90 19 (Sect. 55.) Antiochum: Antiochus the Great, king of Syria, defeated at Magnesia, B.C. 190.

90 20 Persen: Perses or Perseus, the last king of Macedonia, defeated at Pydna, B.C. 168.—Karthaginiensis: Carthage was mistress of the sea at the time when her wars with Rome began; but in the First Punic War she was beaten at her own weapons.
The Manilian Law.

90 22 ei repeats nos: we, i.e. that nation.

91. 1 Delos: a very small island in the Ägean Sea, sacred as the birthplace of Apollo and Artemis. It had an excellent harbor, and this, added to its peculiar sanctity, gave it high importance. It had at all times a flourishing commerce and in the time of Cicero was the great slave market of the world, 10,000 slaves being sometimes sold there in a single day.

91 3 eidem repeats nos (l. 23, above).

91 5 Appia Via: the principal highway of Italy, running from Rome to Capua, and thence to Brundisium (see Fig., p. 179 of text). It was begun by Appius Claudius Cæcus, in his censorship, B.C. 312. — jam, at length.

91 6 pudebat magistratús (acc. pl.): no special case is referred to, but it is implied that any magistrate ought to have felt shame, seeing that the beaks of ships, rostra, were naval trophies.

91 7 cum, concessive.

91 12 (Sect. 56.) dolori: we should be likely to use a more general word like feelings, which would be defined by the context. Such differences between two languages in the expression of thought are constantly found.

91 15 aliquando, at last (cf. Cat. ii., sect. 1, l. 1).

91 20 (Sect. 57.) utrum, etc., is it that, etc.? Cf. the obsolete use of whether to introduce direct questions in English, as in "whether is it better."

91 17 (Sect. 57.) obrectatum esse: the subject of obrectatum esse is the wish of the opponents to defeat the proposed measure (the appointment of Gabinius as lieutenant); as this wish, if successful, would be (like the affirmative measure) a determination, it is expressed by a purpose clause, ne legaretur. — adhuc: this opposition began in connection with the Gabinian Law and is still continued in connection with the Manilian.

91 19 expetenti, earnestly requesting; postulanti, claiming (as a right).

91 20 legatum: the Senate assigned (legare) subordinate officers to a military commander or provincial governor. These legati had much responsibility, often performing independent duties like those of modern officers "detailed" from the regular line. The usual number of legati was two or three; but Pompey received fifteen by the Gabinian Law, to whom ten more were afterwards added.

91 21 velit, conjunctivus modestiae (§ 311, b; G. 257; H. 486, i). — impetret: § 320, f; G. 631, i; H. 503, ii, 2. — cum, concessive.

92. 4 pericuло, i.e. a political risk such as any politician would incur in carrying an important measure.
Notes.

92 4 (Sect. 58.) an: § 211, b; G. 457, i; H. 353, n. 4. — C. Falcidius, etc.: Gabinius had not been allowed to receive an appointment as legatus under the Gabinian Law, perhaps because he was tribune when it was passed. Cicero urges that there is no reason why he should not be appointed under the Manilian Law, since he no longer holds that office.

92 6 honoris causa, see note on Rosc. Am., p. 3, l. 28. — plebi, old gen.

92 7 in uno Gabinio, in the case of, etc.

92 8 diligentes, particular, i.e. in urging a technical objection. — qui . . . debet: if this were not a clause of characteristic, we should have debet to express the cont. to fact idea (§ 311, c; G. 597, r. 8, a; H. 511, i, n. 8); cf. oportebat, Cat. i., sect. 2, l. 13.

92 11 relatoros: the consuls were the natural persons to consult the Senate, but Cicero, as prætor, also had this power.

92 13 impediet: either consul could, as having major potestas than a prætor, forbid Cicero to bring the matter before the Senate; but, if he persisted, his act must still be valid.

92 14 defendam: § 319, c; G. 549; H. 499, 3, n. 2

92 15 intercessionem: the veto of a tribune, which could stop any political action, and which Cicero would be bound to respect.

92 16 quid licet, i.e. how far they can safely go. — considerabunt, i.e. before they set themselves against the manifest will of the people.

92 18 socius: not as legatus, but simply as partner in his former honor and credit. This association of Gabinius with Pompey is used as an argument for giving him the office of legatus now.

Sects. 59–63. Objection of Catulus,—“precedents should not be violated.” Answer: “In time of war the Roman people have always consulted expediency rather than precedent; in Pompey’s own case there have already been many violations of precedent.”

92 22 (Sect. 59.) ut . . . videatur: § 332, a, 2; G. 553, 4; H. 501, 2. — auctoritate et sententia, i.e. the weight which one must attach to the opinion of so great a man as Catulus (a kind of hendiadys).

92 23 cum quaeret: cf. cum dixistis, just below (§ 323; G. 579; H. 521).

92 24 si poneretis, fut. protasis; the apod. is the compound sentence si . . . factum esset, in quo sper essetis habituri, which itself consists of a fut. prot. and apod. (§ 311, d). The tenses depend for their sequence on the perf. cepit.—si . . . esset, if anything should happen to him (a common euphemism then as now). — eo: § 244, d; G. 401, n. 7; H. 415, iii, n. 1.
The Manilian Law.

92 25 esseatis habituri, indir. quest.; for use of periphrastic form see § 334, a; G. 515; H. 529, 4.
92 31 quo minus... hoc magis: § 250, r.; G. 403; H. 423.
92 33 (Sect. 60.) at enim: see first note on sect. 51.
93 1 exempla, precedents; instituta, established customs.—non dicam, etc.: an excellent specimen of the rhetorical device known as praeteritio (cf. note on p. 88, l. 13, above).
93 3 paruisse, accommodasse, i.e. they disregarded precedents in great emergencies.—temporum depends on casus, consiliorum on rationes (chiastic order).
93 5 ab uno imperatore: Scipio Africanus the younger (Äemilianus), who captured Carthage (B.C. 146) and Numantia (B.C. 133). In his time there had been a law that no person should be consul twice in succession.
93 9 ut... poneretur, clause of purp. with visum est (here a verb of decreeing).
93 10 C. Mario: Marius was chosen consul five years in succession, to carry on the wars here referred to.
93 12 (Sect. 61.) The argument in this and the following section is a telling one: "In the case of Pompey himself precedent has often been violated with the full assent of Catulus. Why, then, should Catulus be so scrupulous now, when the highest interests of the state are involved?" For the several occurrences referred to, see notes on sects. 28–30, above.
93 15 privatum, i.e. not a magistrate.
93 18 a senatorio gradu: no one could legally enter the Senate until after holding the questorship, the minimum age for which was thirty at least, and regularly thirty-six, while Pompey was at the time referred to (B.C. 82) only twenty-three.
93 20 in ea provincia, i.e. Africa.
93 21 fuit, translate: he showed, etc. (in order to render the abls. of quality, which come in in a way foreign to our idiom).
93 23 victorem, victorius (pred. adj.)—exercitum deportavit: this was one of the essential conditions of a triumph.
93 24 equitem, i.e. not a member of the Senate, having never held a magistracy.—triumphare: the honor of a triumph was restricted to commanders who possessed the imperium by virtue of holding a regular magistracy. Until he was elected consul for the year B.C. 70, Pompey had never had the imperium except by special appointment from the Senate; both his triumphs, therefore, B.C. 80 and 71, were contrary to precedent.
93 27 (Sect. 62.) duo consules: Mancerus Lepidus and Decimus Brutus, B.C. 77. Instead of either of these being sent to Spain as pro-consul the next year, against Sertorius, Pompey, though a simple eques, was designated for that service.

93 29 pro consule: when it was desired to retain the services of a magistrate after his term of office had expired, his imperium was extended (prorogatum) by the Senate, and was held by him pro consule or pro praetore, that is, as having the power of a consul or praetor while no longer actually a magistrate. It was not strictly legal to appoint a private citizen in such a capacity; but sometimes, as in Pompey's case, this was done. — quidem, by the way.

93 30 non nemo, a man or two.

93 31 Philippus, a prominent member of the aristocracy (consul, b.c. 91), distinguished for his wit; a man of liberal temper, but a vehement partisan.

93 32 pro consulibus, in place of both consuls.

93 33 mittere: for mitto of the dir. disc. Philippus seems to have put his bon mot into the regular form of a sententia, or formal expression of opinion in the Senate, using the simple present tense (cf. § 276, b; G. 227, n. 2; H. 467, n. 8) with the qualifying meā sententiā.

94. 2 ut ... fieret, subst. clause of result after the analogy of the subjunc. with verbs of happening (§ 332, f; G. 553, 4; H. 501, i). — ex senatus consulto: another irregularity, for the comitia were the law-making body and therefore of course had the sole power of exempting from the laws.— legibus solutus, exempted from the operation of the laws, i.e. those limiting the age of magistrates (leges annales).

94 3 magistratum: the legal age of a consul was not below forty-three, and that of a praetor not below forty. Pompey, however, was elected consul b.c. 70, at the age of thirty-six, which was the regular age for the quœstorship.

94 4 iterum: Pompey celebrated his second triumph Dec. 31, b.c. 71, and the next day entered upon the consulship.

94 5 in, in the case of.

Sects. 63–68. The judgment of the people should overrule such objections (sect. 63, l. 11–sect. 64, l. 25). Pompey alone can retrieve the Roman reputation in the East (sect. 64, l. 26–sect. 67). Favorable opinions of leading men (sect. 68).

94 8 (Sect. 63.) atque haec, etc., and all these many precedents, so weighty and so new, have been established in the case of this single man (Pompey), and have originated, too, in measures promoted by Q. Catulus and the other, etc. Lit. "all these many examples (i.e. acts establishing precedents) have come upon this same man (Pompey) [proceeding] from the [senatorial] approval of Q. Catulus," etc. The Latin tends to compress two or more assertions into a single clause, where in English it is more natural to use separate clauses.

94 amplissimum: a regular epithet for dignitaries. — auctoritate, i.e. since they were then prominent members of the Senate.

94 comprobam, i.e. the people, in electing Pompey consul, had only followed the example of the Senate in conferring these repeated honors.

94 judicium, formal decision, expressed by passing the Gabinian Law.

94 vel, even.

94 delegitis: not literally correct. The Gabinian Law merely prescribed that an ex-consul should receive this command: the Senate selected the man. In fact, however, it was a law made for Pompey, and the Senate would not have ventured to appoint anybody else.

94 (Sect. 64.) sin: the protasis extends to attulístis, the connective being omitted. — plus . . . vidistis, had a keener insight in affairs of state.

94 aliquando: cf. sect. 56, l. 15, and note. — isti: this pron., since it is often used of an opponent in a suit, here at once suggests the opposition now existing between Cicero and Catulus.

94 auctoritáti: § 230; G. 217; H. 385, i, 465, 1.

94 Asiático et regio: the two adjectives enhance the impression of the difficulty of the war by emphasizing its distance and the dignity of the enemy.

94 versari, conduct himself (cf. Vocab.).

95 si qui sunt, when they are (lit. if there are any). — pudore (abl. of specification), respect for others; temperantia, self-restraint.

95 (Sect. 65.) requiruntur, are in demand, i.e. pretexts of war are sought, with cities that we hardly know of; inferatur, may be fastened.

95 (Sect. 66.) With Cicero's account of the depredations of the provincial governors, cf. Sheridan's celebrated description in his Speech in Summing up the Evidence on the Second Charge against Warren Hastings: "Should a stranger survey the land formerly Sujah Dowlah's, and seek the cause of the calamity, — should he ask what monstrous madness had ravaged thus, what widespread war, what desolating foreign foe, what disputed succession, what religious zeal, what fabled monster had stalked abroad, and, with malice and mortal enmity to man, has withered, with the gripe of death, every growth of nature and humanity, all the means of delight, and each original, simple principle of bare existence, — the answer will be (if any answer dare be given): 'No, alas! not one of these things, — no desolating foreign foe, no disputed succession, no religious super-serviceable zeal! This damp of death is the mere effusion of British amity: we sink under the pressure of their support, we writhe under the gripe of their pestiferous alliance!"—libenter, etc., I should be glad to argue this face to face, etc. (§ 310, a; G. 600, i; H. 507, n.7).

95 15 hostium simulatione, under a pretense of [the existence] of enemies: notice the chiastic order.

95 17 animos ac spiritus, pride and insolence.

95 19 conlatis signis, i.e. in actual warfare.

95 20 nisi erit idem, unless he shall also be one.

95 24 idoneus qui mittatur: see note on impetret, p. 91, l. 21.

95 25 (Sect. 67.) pacatum, etc.: in the forcible extension of the Roman Empire, a province was spoken of as pacata when actual resistance had ceased on the part of the conquered.—quae ... sit, subj. of characteristic; for tense, see § 287, e; G. 513; H. 495, vi.

95 29 praetores, i.e. proprators: for, after the time of Sulla, the praetors regularly remained at Rome during their term of office.

95 30 publica, i.e. that allowed them for the support of their fleets and armies.

95 33 jacturis, expenses, in securing their election.

95 34 condicionibus, corrupt bargains, with creditors, etc.

96. 1 quasi ... non ... videamus: § 312; G. 602; H. 513, ii, and N.1

96 3 (Sect. 68.) dubitare quin, hesitate. The usual construction in this sense would be with the infin. (§ 332, g, N.2; G. 555, R.8; H. 505, i).

96 7 auctoritatibus, i.e. the opinions of influential men (cf. auctor in the next line).

96 8 est vobis auctor, you have as authority. P. Servilius (Vatia Isauricus) was one of the most reputable men of the time. He held the proconsulship of Cilicia, b.c. 78–75, in which he gained great successes over the pirates. It was probably his intimate knowledge of the region and the kind of warfare, that led him to support this vigorous measure.

96 11 debat: for tense, see § 287, a.—Curio: see note on Impeachment of Verres, sect. 18, p. 34, l. 29.

96 13 Lentulus: Cn. Cornelius Lentulus Clodianus, cos. b.c. 72; not to be confounded with Lentulus Sura, cos. b.c. 71, the accomplice of Catiline.

96 15 Cassius: for the character of this family, see note on Verr. i., sect. 30, p. 39, l. 3.
V. PERORATIO (§§ 69–71).

Sects. 69–71. Manilius is encouraged to stand firm. Cicero protests that his own advocacy of the law is disinterested and patriotic.

96 21 (Sect. 69.) auctore populo Romano: the Roman people has already shown its opinion of Pompey by passing the Gabinian Law;
hence Manilius has the auctoritas of the whole people behind him, as opposed to the auctoritas of a few aristocrats like Hortensius and Catulus (cf. sect. 63).

96 22 neve, and not.
96 25 iterum: alluding to the former unanimity of the people in passing the Gabinian Law.

96 27 de re . . . facultate, the cause itself, or the power of carrying it through. — dubitemus: § 320, a; G. 631, r.2; H. 593, i.

96 29 potestate praetoria, official influence as praetor; more official than auctoritate.

97. 1 defero, put at your service.
97 2 templum, i.e. the rostra. The term templum was applied to any place consecrated by regular auspices (augurato). As the public assembly was held augurato, the place of holding it was a consecrated one.

97 3 ad rem publicam adeunt, are engaged in public affairs.
97 4 neque quo, nor because (§ 321, r.; G. 541, r.2; H. 516, 2).

97 7 honoribus: the term honor is regularly applied to honors conferred by the people, i.e. public offices. These he proposes to earn, not by the arts of a politician, but by fidelity in his profession as an advocate. — peri-cula relates to the simultates in the next section. It was not possible for him to espouse this democratic measure so earnestly, without incurring coldness at least on the part of the aristocracy. — ut, so far as a MAN, etc.
(cf. our " humanly speaking," " the Lord willing," and the like).

97 9 ab uno, i.e. he expects no reward in the way of public office from Pompey's influence. — ex hoc loco, i.e. by political activity (cf. sect. 1).

97 12 (Sect. 71.) mihi: § 232, a; G. 354; H. 388, t.

97 13 tantum . . . abest ut videar, I am so far from seeming (§ 332, d; G. 552, r.1; H. 502, 3).

97 16 hoc honore, i.e. the praetorship.

97 20 oportere, I am bound: me (l. 16) is subj. of praeferre, and me praeferre depends on oportere.
FIRST ORATION AGAINST CATILINE.

ARGUMENT.

Hortatio. 5, Catiline is exhorted to go out and join his confederates. — 6, 7. Life in the city should be intolerable to him: he is feared and hated by all good citizens: his native city begs him to begone. — 8. He has offered to go into custody: all good men urgent for his departure: the Senate shows by its silence approval of Cicero's words. — 9, 10. The consul urges him to depart: but he will go out only as a public enemy. —

Peroratio. 11, 12. The consul may be charged with remissness: but he has been biding his time. — 13. For half-way measures would have been of no avail: Catiline's death would not have freed the state from his confederates. Let Catiline depart. Appeal to Jupiter to save Rome.

I. Propositio (Chaps. I.—IV.).

Chaps. I., II. Effrontery of Catiline in appearing in the Senate. Weakness of the consuls in allowing him to live contrasted with the vigorous action of former times in less flagrant cases. Reasons for the delay.

Page 99. Line 2. (Sect. 1.) etiam (et jam), still.—eludet, baffles, i.e. his mad conduct makes fools of the Roman people, as it were, by continuing to escape the just punishment that would suppress it. — quem ad finem: almost equivalent to quamdiu, but implying some shock or crisis (finem) which must follow.

99 3 sese jactabit, insolently display itself.— nihil (adv. acc.), not at all.

99 4 Palati: one of the strongest positions in the city, commanding the Forum, and so most likely to be seized by the conspirators. The Palatium, an isolated hill, of a rudely quadrangular shape, was the original seat of the city of Rome, from which the city spread gradually over the other hills. In the last years of the republic, the Palatine became the fashionable place for residences. Here was Cicero's house as well as Catiline's. It was because of its nearness to his house, as well as because of the strength of its position, that Cicero selected this temple for the meeting of the Senate on this occasion. Under the Empire the Palatine became the seat of the imperial residence, and its name, palace, has passed in this sense into most modern languages.

99 5 bonorum: the Senate was surrounded by a crowd of equites and other citizens (see sect. 21, below).

100. 1 locus: the Senate was assembled, not, as usual, in the Curia Hostilia, but in the Temple of Jupiter Stator, which occupied a commanding position on the brow of the Palatine Hill and faced the Sacred Way. The ruins of this temple were discovered some years ago (see view in text).—horum (with a gesture), i.e. the Senators present.—ora, features; voltus, expression: the phrase is a sort of hendiadys, almost equivalent to expression of their features (§ 385; G. 698; H. 636, iii, 2).

100 2 patere: note the emphatic position.—non: observe the abruptness and force given by omitting the interrog. particle -ne.—constrictam teneri, is held fast bound (§ 292, c; G. 238; H. 388, i, n.).

100 4 proxima, superiore: for what was done on the night of Nov. 6, see sect. 4; as to proxima, last night, we meet with nothing but general assertions.

100 7 (Sect. 2.) O tempora, etc., what a time! what a state of things! (mores = customs of the time.)

100 8 immo, nay more: immo here negatives not the fact of the preceding statement (vivit), but only its form as not being strong enough; nay is similarly used in English, as in Midsummer Night's Dream, iii. 2. 313: "To strike, to spurn me,—nay, to kill me too!"

100 11 videmur, etc. = think we do enough for (i.e. fulfil our duty to the state).—si . . vitemus: in the dir. form, —satis facimus si vitamus.

100 12 ad mortem: the consuls originally possessed full powers of judgment in criminal cases, including punishment by death. These highest powers of the imperium were suspended within the city by laws which gave the right of appeal to the people (note, p. 110, l. 16), but the Senate could revive them in cases of danger by the formula Videant consules ne quid res publica detrimenti capitat,—a proceeding analogous to the proclamation of martial law. This action the Senate had taken Oct. 21, nearly three weeks before.

100 13 oprotebat, apod. of an implied cond. (§ 311, c; G. 254, r. 1; H. 511, i, N. 8); the imperf. is used with jam pridem, where in English we might expect the pluperf. (§ 277, b; G. 234; H. 469, 2). oprotebat alone would mean "you ought [now] to be [but are not]"; with jam pridem it means "you ought to have been long ago and still ought to be."
100 14 jam diu: words in brackets are thought to be spurious insertions in the text.

100 14 (Sect. 3.) an vero (§ 211, b; G. 457, 1; H. 353, N. 4) properly belongs both to interfecit and perferemus; in English we should connect the two clauses by and. — vir amplissimus, pontifex maximus: observe how these words strengthen the force of the example.

100 15 Ti. Gracchum: Tiberius Sempronius Gracchus, a young man of high rank and great purity of character, attempted to carry through some important reforms, particularly touching the tenure of the public lands, B.C. 133. Requiring more time to make his legislation effective, he attempted illegally to secure his own re-election as tribune, when he was attacked and killed by a mob of Senators headed by P. Scipio Nasica.

100 16 privatus: at the time referred to, Nasica was only a private citizen of consular rank. He afterwards went into exile, and was made Pontifex Maximus in his absence. The word privatus is rhetorically opposed to nos consules.

100 18 illa, that case, plural for singular as referring to the circumstances of the case.

100 19 Ahala: the magister equitum of the famous Cincinnatus; he killed without legal process the eques Mælius, on suspicion that the latter was aiming at royal power (B.C. 439); see Fig. 25. — novis rebus (the classic expression for a violent change of government), revolution: dat. after studentem.

100 20 fuit (emphat.), there was, etc., implying that it is so no longer (§ 344, d, 3); cf. fuit Ilium, Aeneid, ii. 325.

100 22 habemus (emph.), i.e. it is not that we lack, etc. — senatus consultum: i.e. the decree conferring dictatorial power on the consuls (see note on sect. 2, l. 12, above), ut videant consules, etc.

100 23 vehemens, severe, as regards Catiline; grave, carrying weight, and so justifying the consuls in any extreme measures. — non deest, etc., it is not that the state lacks wise counsels, etc., but that the consuls are remiss in executing them.

100 26 (Sect. 4.) decrevit: translate, to preserve the emphasis, there was once a decree, etc. — ut ... videret, subst. clause of purp., obj. of decrevit (§ 331; G. 546; H. 498). — Opimius: Lucius Opimius was consul B.C. 121, when Caius Gracchus, the younger brother of Tiberius, was attempting to carry through a series of measures far more revolutionary than those of his brother. The Senate took alarm, and entrusted the consul with absolute power. In the tumult that ensued, some 3,000 are said to have lost their lives, including Gracchus and his leading associate Fulvius.
First Oration against Catiline. 357

100 27 ne . . . caperet, obj. of videret.
100 28 interfestus est (emph.), i.e. in that case death was promptly inflicted.

100 29 patre: Tiberius Gracchus, the elder, one of the most eminent statesmen of his day.—avo: Scipio Africanus, the conqueror of Hannibal.

101 3 rei publicae, poss. gen., the punishment being looked on as something belonging to the party avenged, and exacted from the other party as a payment due.

101 4 remorata est (governing Saturninum, etc.), keep Saturninus and Servilius waiting; i.e. did they have to wait one day, etc.—vicesimum:
strictly speaking, it was now (Nov. 6) the 19th day by Roman reckoning from Oct. 21 (cf. § 259, c; G. 336, r.1).—patimur: for tense, see § 276, a; G. 230; H. 467, 2.

101 5 horum, i.e. the Senate.

101 6 hujusce (§ 101, footnote; G. 104, i, n.1; H. 186, 1) modii, i.e. like those just mentioned.—tabulis, brazen tablets, on which the laws, etc., were inscribed. The edict is said to be shut up in them (until put in force), like a sword hidden in its scabbard.

101 8 interfestus esse: § 288, d; G. 280, 2.—convénit, perf. (§ 311, c; G. 254, r.1; II. 511, 1, n.8).

101 9 ad deponentam, etc.: § 300; G. 432; H. 542, iii, 544, 1.

101 10 cupio (emphatic), I am anxious: a concession, opposed by sed, below.—me esse: § 331, b, n.; G. 532, r.2; H. 535, ii.

101 11 dissolutum, arbitrary.

101 12 ipse: Latin in such cases emphasizes the subject; English, the object (§ 195, l; G. 311, 2; II. 452, 1).

101 12 inertiae: § 220; G. 378; H. 409, ii.

101 13 (Sect. 5.) castra sunt, etc.: an enumeration of the circumstances which make a mild policy no longer possible.

101 14 faubus, narrow pass, leading north from Etruria, through the Apennines.—conlocata: § 291, b; G. 250, r.2; H. 471, 6, n.1 358

Notes.

101 18 jam, at once.

101 19 erit verendum, etc., I shall have to fear, I suppose (ironical).
that all good citizens will fail to say (lit. will not say) that I have acted too late rather than that anybody will say that I have acted too cruelly, i.e. I shall have to fear that I shall be accused of cruelty rather than slaxness.
—ne non . . . dicat: § 331, f; G. 550, 2; H. 498, iii, N.2 — boni (sc. dicant): here, as usual, the well-intentioned, i.e. those who held the speaker’s views.

101 20 ego, opposed to omaes boni (l. 19, above). — factum esse:

Chaps. III, IV. The consul is fully informed. Latest acts of the conspirators.

101 22 denique, i.e. then, and not before.

101 23 jam, at length.

101 24 fateatur: for mood, see § 319, 2; G. 631, 1; H. 500, i.

101 26 (Sect. 6.) ita ut vivas, just as you are [now] living.

101 27 ne . . . possis, purpose (not result).

101 28 etiam, besides the forces on guard.

101 29 speculabuntur, probably referring to the spies in the interest of the government, who were in the very heart of the conspiracy.

102 1 quid, etc., what is there for you to wait for more? — quod
. . . expectet, rel. clause of purpose.

102 4 inlustrantur, opposed to obscurare; erumpunt, to continere.

102 7 recognoscas, review (with licet; ut omitted: see § 331, f, R.; G. 553, R.1; H. 502, 1).

102 8 (Sect. 7.) dicere: for tense, see § 336 A, N.1; G. 281, 2, N.; H. 537, 1.

102 9 futurus esset, subord. clause in ind. disc.

102 11 num, etc., was I mistaken in, etc. (lit. did the fact escape me).

102 13 idem (nom.) has the force of also.

102 14 optimatum, i.e. of the Senatorial party. — in ante diem:
§ 259, e; G. p. 491; H. 642, 4.

102 16 sui conservandi . . . causâ (§ 298 a, c; G. 428, R.1 and R.2; H. 542, N.1): this passage is neatly turned so as to save their self-respect by attributing their flight to that discretion which is the better part of valor.

102 19 cum . . . dicebas: we should expect diceres; the impérf. indic.
is probably an archaic survival (cf. § 277, e, and N.).

102 20 tamen: opposed to discessu ("though the rest were gone, yet," etc.).

102 21 (Sect. 8.) Praeneste (Palestrina), an important town of Latium, about twenty miles from Rome, in a very commanding situation.
Its possession would have given Catiline a valuable military post. Prænestae had been a chief stronghold of the Marian party in the Civil War, and Sulla had punished it by establishing a military colony there (hence coloniam).

102 23 sensistine, did you not find? -ne here = nonne (§ 210, d, and n.; G. 454, n. 5).

102 24 praesiidiis, the garrison manning the walls; custodiis, sentinels at the gates; vigiliis, watchmen (i.e. night-guard). — agis, etc.: notice the climax.

102 27 noctem illam superiorem, that night, — night before last, i.e. Nov. 6; priore (l. 29, below) refers to the same night.

102 29 quam te: § 336, a, 1, r.; H. 524, 11.

102 30 inter falcarios, i.e. to the street of the scythe-makers. — non agam obscure, i.e. I will speak out and be more definite. — in demum: § 258, b, N. 1; G. 337, R. 8.

103 1 eodem, at the same place (lit. to the same place, according to the Latin idiom).

103 4 (Sect. 9.) gentium: § 216, a, 4; G. 372, N. 8; H. 397, 4.

103 5 quam rem publicam, what sort of state?

103 8 hic, hic, here, right here. — patres [et] conscripti: the formal designation of the Senators; patres were the patrician members of the Senate, conscripti were the plebeians enrolled in that originally patrician body. The conjunction is regularly omitted (as often in such combinations). Observe that the stock English translation conscript fathers is inexact.

103 8 qui: the antecedent is the understood subject of sunt. — atque adeo, and in fact.

103 9 cogitent: § 320, a; G. 631, 2; H. 593, i.

103 11 oportebat: see sect. 2 and note. — voce volnero: the alliteration is intentional and may easily be imitated in English, — wound with a word. — igitur (resumptive), then (i.e. as I said).

103 13 quemque, each (of the conspirators). — placet, indir. quest.

103 14 relinqueres, educeres, delib. subj. in an indir. quest. (§ 334, b; G. 265; H. 484, v).

103 16 morae, part. gen. — viverem, subj. in subord. clause in indir. disc.

103 17 equites: these were C. Cornelius and L. Vargunteius.

103 19 (Sect. 10.) omnia . . . comperti: Cicero's contemporaries made sport of him for using this phrase so often in the case of the conspirators.

103 22 salutatum, supine (§ 302; G. 435; H. 546). All prominent citizens were accustomed to hold a kind of morning reception (cf. "the king's levee") to which their friends and dependents came to bid them good morning and to escort them to the Forum.—cum ... venissent: best translated by when, etc.

103 23 id temporis (§§ 216, a, 3, 240; G. 336, N.², 369; H. 378, 2, 397, 3), at that very time.

103 24 praedixeram: Cicero had thus put on record, as it were, the fact that he was acquainted with the details of the conspiracy.

103 27 desiderant, have been wanting (§ 276, a; G. 230; H. 467, 2).

103 28 si minus (sc. omnes), if not.

II. HORTATIO (CHAPS. V.-X.).

Chaps. V.—VII. Why does not Catiline leave the city? Life there should be intolerable to him. He is feared and hated by all good citizens. His native city begs him to be gone.

103 30 murus, i.e. city wall (cf. parietibus, walls of a house, sect. 6).

—intersit: § 314; G. 573; H. 513, i.

103 31 non feram, etc.: the same idea is repeated for emphasis, but, for variety, different words are used.

103 32 (SECT. II.) atque, and particularly.—huic, i.e. in whose temple we are met.

104. 1 Statori (sto), the one who causes to stand firm. The temple to Jupiter Stator was vowed by Romulus when his troops were giving way, and built upon the spot where their flight was stayed. The remains of this temple have been recently discovered on the Palatine, near the Arch of Titus.

104 3 in uno homine, by one man (Catiline),—lit. in the case of one man.

104 7 proximis: the consular election was usually held in July; but in this year, on account of the disturbed condition of things, it did not take place until Oct. 28.—in Campo: the comitia centuriata, in which the higher magistrates were elected, were held in the Campus Martius, or military parade-ground, north of the city. This is the space covered by the main part of modern Rome.

104 8 competitores: Catiline's successful competitors were D. Silanus and L. Murena.

104 9 copiis, i.e. persons in the employ of his friends,—slaves and hired retainers.—nullo ... concitato, without exciting (a very common way of expressing this idiom in Latin).

104 11 videbam, I saw all along (observe the force of the imperf.).
First Oration against Catiline.

104 12 (Sect. 12.) nunc jam, now at length.
104 16 hujus imperi, i.e. that which I now possess: namely, that conferred upon the consuls by the special decree of the Senate dent operam, etc. (see note on p. 100, I. 12). Without this decree they possessed imperium, it is true, but it was limited (in the city) by special privileges of Roman citizens.
104 20 tu, opposed to comitum.
104 22 sentina rei publicae, political rabble; or, keeping the original figure, we might say, bilge-water of the ship of state.
104 24 (Sect. 13.) faciebas, were on the point of doing (§ 277, c; G. 233; H. 469, i).
104 25 hostem, a public enemy, whom the consul would have the right to expel from the city. — non jubeo: Cicero avoids the appearance of ordering a citizen to go into exile, since that was something which the consul had no right to do.
104 27 jam, longer.
104 30 privatarum rerum, in private life, i.e. intercourse with others out of the family (distinguished from domesticae, above).
105 2 quem . . . inretisses, i.e. after entangling, etc. (subj. of characteristic). — ferrum . . . facem, i.e. arm him for acts of violence, or inflame him to deeds of lust.
105 3 (Sect. 14.) quid vero, and say!
105 4 novis nuptiis, etc.: this crime is mentioned by no other writer, and is perhaps one of the orator’s exaggerations.
105 5 alio . . . scelere: Sallust mentions, as a matter of common belief, that Catiline killed his own son, in order to gratify his new wife Aurelia Orestilla, “a woman praised for nothing but beauty.”
105 8 ruinas: this charge was undoubtedly correct. The conspiracy was mainly composed of men of ruined fortunes, who hoped to better themselves in the general scramble of a revolution.
105 9 Idibus: the Calends and Ides — the beginning and middle of the month — were the usual times for the payment of debts. Catiline’s failure in his consular canvass had probably stirred up his creditors to push him for payment.
105 14 (Sect. 15.) cum, causal, but best translated by when.
105 15 prid. Kalendas Januarias, etc.: Dec. 31, B.C. 64. The act here mentioned seems to have been in preparation for a rising that had been planned by Catiline for the next day, Jan. 1, B.C. 65. On this day the consuls Cotta and Torquatus entered upon their office, and it was the intention of Catiline to take advantage of their inauguration to murder them and seize the government. The plot got whispered about, and its execution was put off to Feb. 5, when it failed again through Catiline's precipitancy in giving the word.

105 cum telo (a technical expression), weapon in hand.

105 manum, a band (of assassins). — interfectorum causā: § 298, c; G. 428, r. 2.

105 mentem aliquam, some change of mind.

105 aut . . . aut, etc., either obscure or few.

105 non multa, etc., i.e. they were too well known to need recapitulation, and too numerous to admit of it. — commissa, which you have perpetrated.

105 petitiones, thrusts, the word regularly used for the attack of a gladiator. Cicero uses this and similar terms as an affront to Catiline. — ita conjectas, etc., so aimed that they seemed impossible to be shunned. The Latin has no adj. for “impossible.”

105 corpore, i.e. dodging with the body (a common colloquialism, — hence ut aiunt).

105 (Sect. 16.) tibi (dative of reference), etc., wrested from your hands ($§ 235, a$; G. 350, 1; H. 384, 4, n. 2).

105 quae quidem, etc., I know not by what rites it has been consecrated and set apart, that you think, etc. (as if Catiline had solemnly pledged himself to use this dagger on nobody lower than a consul).

105 nunc vero, but now (indicating a marked transition). — vita, i.e. that you should desire to prolong it (cf. sect. 15).

106 quae nulla ($§ 216, c$; G. 370, r. 2), nothing of which.

106 necessariis: this word is used of any close relation. as that of kinsman, client, guest, comrade, member of the same order, etc. (see note on necessitūdinem, Verr. i., sect. 11, p. 32, l. 3).

106 quod quid, what of this, — that, etc.

106 subsellia, undoubtedly wooden benches brought in for the occasion.

106 consulares: these voted as a class, and probably sat together. Catiline, as a praetorius, no doubt sat in their neighborhood.

106 ferendum [esse] is the pred. of the clause quod . . . reliquerunt.

106 servi, emphatic, and hence preceding si.

106 injuriā, unjustly, wrongfully.

106 carere aspectu, be deprived of the sight of.

106 aliquo concederes, would retire somewhere. — nunc, opposed to the cont. to fact si, etc.

106 te nihil . . . cogitare, that you think of nothing (depending on judicat). — judicat: for tense see $§ 276, a$; G. 230; H. 467, 2.
First Oration against Catiline.

106 auctoritatem, etc.: observe the climax in both nouns and verbs.

106 quae (i.e. patria) ... agit, she thus pleads with you.

106 annis: § 256, b; G. 393, r.1; H. 379, i.

106 sociorum, i.e. the allied cities of the province of Africa, which Catiline had governed as praetor, B.C. 67.

106 leges et quaestiones, i.e. in his lawless career both as praetor in Rome and as praetor in Africa. — neglegendas implies only evasion; evertendas, violence.

106 superiora illa, those former crimes of yours.

106 me ... esse, etc.: this and the two following infin. clauses (Catilinam timeri and nullum videri ... consilium) are subj. of est ferendum; posse depends on videri. — quicquid increperit, subjunc. of integral part (§ 342; G. 663, 1; H. 529, ii).

107 abhorreat (subj. of characteristic), is inconsistent with.

107 hunc ... eripe, rescue me from, etc., lit. snatch it from me ($§ 229; G. 315, r.1; H. 386, 2).

107 opprimar: § 306, a; G. 595; H. 508, 4. — aliquando, some time or other (implying impatience).

Chaps. VIII.—X. Catiline has offered to give himself into custody. The consul bids him depart: the Senators show by their silence their approval of the order. The consul entreats him to leave the city, but he will go only as a declared enemy.

107 (Sect. 19.) etiam si ... possit: § 313, c; G. 604 and r.2; H. 515, ii.

107 in custodiam dedisti, i.e. into free custody, on parole. This appears to have been late in October, when Catiline was prosecuted on the Lex Plautia de vi. When a respectable Roman was charged with a crime it was customary for some person to bail him out, as it were, by becoming responsible for his appearance. Being thus responsible, the surety kept the accused in a kind of custody at his house.

107 ad M. Lepidum, etc.: ad = apud. Lepidus was the consul of B.C. 66.

107 ad me: this was of course intended by Catiline as a demonstration of his innocence.

107 domi meae: § 258, c; G. 411, r.4.

107 parietibus, loc. abl.; moenibus, abl. of means. Observe the difference of meaning in these words and the emphasis of the contrast. — qui ... essem: this would be subj. (sim) in dir. disc., as implying the reason (§ 320, c; G. 626, r.; H. 517).
Notes.

107 13 Metellum: Q. Metellus Celer, consul B.C. 60; he afterwards did good service in the campaign against Catiline.

107 14 virum optimum, an excellent man (ironical, of course).

107 16 sagacissum, keen-scented; fortissimum, energetic and fearless.

107 18 videtur debere, does it seem that he ought to be? Observe that the Latin prefers the personal construction ("does he seem," etc.), which the English idiom with ought does not allow us to imitate (§ 330, b, 1; G. 528, R. 6; H. 534, 1, N. 1).

107 19 (Sect. 20.) Two courses were open to Catiline,—to leave the city or to run his chances of being put to death. If he left the city, he could, of course, either join his accomplice Manlius in the insurgent camp at Praeneste or abandon his projects and go into voluntary exile.Apparently some of the Senators had privately urged him to adopt the latter alternative, promising, in that case, that all proceedings should be dropped, and Catiline, though rejecting their advice, had declared that he would not refuse to obey a senatus-consultum decreeing his banishment. Such a decree would, however, have been favorable to Catiline’s plans, for, since he had not been formally brought to trial, he would have been able to pose as an injured citizen exiled by an arbitrary aristocratic party. Hence Cicero refuses to put the question to the Senate, though he asserts there could be no doubt about the result. By taking this course Cicero forced Catiline to make his intentions plain by the overt act of leaving the city of his own accord and hastening to the camp of Manlius.

107 22 refer ad senatum: the technical term for the action of the presiding officer (regularly the consul) in bringing a matter before the Senate for action. See general Introduction, p. lvii. — si, etc., fut. cond. in indir. disc.

107 24 placere (sc. sibi): the subj. is te . . . exsilium.

107 25 abhorret, is contrary to: because the Senate would have no legal power to pronounce such a judgment.

107 26 faciam ut, etc. (§ 332; G. 553, 1; H. 498, ii): to make the feelings of the Senate clear, Cicero formally commands Catiline to leave the city (egredere, etc.); then pauses to allow the Senators a chance to protest, and then points out that no objections are heard.

107 29 ecquid attendis, are you listening? The adverbial ecquid ("at all ") can hardly be idiomatically rendered, but gives an emphasis to the question.

107 30 patiuntur, they tolerate this, i.e. they make no objection to this extreme exercise of authority on my part.—quid, etc.: why do you wait for those to express their opinion in words whose wishes you see clearly by their silence? The Latin idiom is quite different: why do you wait for the expressed opinion (sactoritatem) of [those] speaking whose wishes you see [when] silent?

107 32 (Sect. 21.) huic, this ... here: the demonstrative pronouns are often thus employed in the so-called deictic use, accompanied by a gesture. — Sestio: a member of the aristocratic party whom Cicero afterwards defended in one of his greatest orations.

108 1 M. Marcello: a prominent member of the aristocracy, consul B.C. 51; not to be confounded with the person of the same name mentioned in sect. 19. He took a leading part in the Civil War against Cæsar, and was afterwards defended by Cicero (see p. 213). — jam, by this time. — consuli, consul as I am.

108 2 in templo, i.e. notwithstanding the sacredness of the place. — vim et manus (hendiadys), violent hands.

108 3 cum quiescunt, i.e. by keeping quiet (§ 326, a; G. 582; H. 517, 2).

108 5 videlicet cara, alluding to his demand to have the matter submitted to the Senate.

108 8 voces, cries (of the crowd outside).

108 10 haec (with a gesture, cf. huic, sect. 21, first note), i.e. all that is round us, the city, etc.

108 19 prosequantur, escort. It was the custom for those who were going into voluntary exile to be thus accompanied to the gate by their friends. Cicero sarcastically declares that, if Catiline will depart, the whole Senate will be so glad to be rid of him as to forget his crimes and pay him this honor.

108 13 (Sect. 22.) te ut ... frangat, i.e. break down your stubbornness (purpose clause after loquor; though it may be an exclam. clause with ut: § 332, c; G. 558; H. 486, ii, n.).

108 15 uti nam ... duint: § 267, b; G. 261; H. 483, 1; for form see § 128, e; G. 130, 4; H. 240, 3.

108 16 ire: § 271, a; G. 532, and r. H. 498, i, n.

108 18 recenti memoria (abl. of time): translate by a while-clause.

108 19 est tanti, it is worth the cost (§ 252, a; G. 380, 1, r.; H. 405).

108 20 sit: § 314; G. 573; H. 513, i.

108 21 ut ... commoveare, etc., subj. of est postulandum (§ 331, h; G. 546, 1; H. 499, 3).

108 22 is es ... ut: § 319, 1, r.; G. 552; H. 500, ii.

108 26 (Sect. 23.) inimico, a private enemy, thus attributing to Cicero personal motives of opposition.

108 27 recta (sc. viâ), straightway. — vix feram, etc.: for Catiline's going into voluntary exile would tend to prove that he was innocent and had been persecuted by the consul (see note on p. 107, l. 19).

108 29 sin autem, etc.: Catiline’s going to Manlius would prove his guilt and show the wisdom of Cicero’s action.

109 1 lactrocinio, brigandage, i.e. partisan warfare, as opposed to a regular war (justum bellum).

109 3 (sect. 24.) quamquam, and yet (§ 313, f; G. 605, r.²; H. 515, iii, n.²): cf. the same use of quamquam, sect. 22, l. 13, and of tametsi, sect. 22, l. 16. — invitem: § 268; G. 265; H. 486, ii. — sciam, characteristic subj.

109 4 Forum Aurelius: a small place on the Via Aurelia, about fifty miles from Rome. The Via Aurelia was the road which led along the sea-coast of Etruria, by which Catiline left the city the following night. — praestolarentur, rel. clause of purpose.

109 6 aquilam: the silver eagle had been adopted by Marius as the standard of the legion, and the eagle in question was said to have been actually used in the army of Marius.

109 8 sacrarium: it was customary in Roman houses to have a little shrine (see Fig. 27) for the worship of the lares and other protecting divinities. Doubtless Catiline was believed to have placed this eagle in such a shrine as an object of superstitious worship.

109 9 ut possis, exclam.

clause with ut (see note on frangant, sect. 22, p. 108, l. 13).

109 13 (sect. 25.) ripiebat (§ 277, b): the imperf. is used instead of the pres. because the action is conceived of as ceasing at the moment when Cicero discovered the plot.

109 14 haec res, i.e. leaving the city as an enemy and taking up arms.

109 16 non modo, to say nothing of (§ 209, a, 1; G. 445; H. 553, 2).

109 18 atque connects perditias and derelictias; ab connects fortuna and aep with derelictias.
First Oration against Catiline.

109 19 conflatam, run together (like molten metal).
109 19 (Sect. 26.) hic, i.e. in this band.
109 21 bacchabere, will revel. To a Roman the word suggested the wild orgies of the frenzied Bacchanals, so that it is much stronger than our revel, which in course of time has become rather vague: cf. Aeneid, iv. 301 (and illustrations).
109 23 meditati sunt, have been practised; feruntur, are talked about.
109 25 facinus, deed of violence, contrasted with stuprum, debauchery; just as bonis otiosorum, property of peaceful citizens, is with somno mari- torum, the repose of husbands.
109 26 ubi ostentes (purpose clause), opportunity to display (lit. a place where, etc.).
109 29 (Sect. 27.) repuli (§ 323, 1; G. 580; H. 521, i): Cicero here takes credit to himself for using his influence as consul to defeat the election of Catiline.
109 30 exsul, consul: observe the play upon words (see Vocab.).
109 32 latrocinium: cf. note on latrocinio, l. 1, above.

III. Peroratio (Chaps. XI.—XIII.).

Chaps. XI.—XIII. The consul may be charged with remissness; but he has been biding his time. For half-way measures would have been useless. Appeal to Jupiter to save Rome.
110 2 querimoniam, i.e. for not having suppressed the conspiracy more vigorously. — detester ac deprecerr (construed with a me, above), remove by protest and plea.
110 4 patria: the personified patria is dramatically introduced as accusing Cicero of remissness in letting Catiline go unharmed.
110 6 M. Tulli (voc.): the regular way of formal address; the use of the family name (Cicero) is more familiar.
110 9 evocatorem servorum, a summoner of slaves, i.e. to enlist under him against the state. To the Romans (as to all peoples who, having a large slave population, are in constant fear of servile revolts) such an accusation was the most violent reproach conceivable.
110 12 duci, rapi, mactari: § 331, a, N.1; G. 546, N.8; H. 535, ii.
110 16 (Sect. 28.) rogatae sunt: the magistrate who proposed a law formally asked the people whether they would accept it; hence rogo was the word regularly used for this act, and the proposition itself was called rogatio. The leges in question, Valeria, Porcia, and Sempronia (of Caius Gracchus), were enacted to protect—like our laws securing the habeas corpus and trial by jury—the life and liberty of citizens against the arbitrary power of magistrates, which in this case would apparently be used by Cicero. at nunquam, etc.: as a fact, however, the precedents here referred to had been really violations of the constitution.

110 18 præclaram . . . gratiam, you show a noble gratitude (cf. habere gratiam and agere gratias).

110 20 nulla commendatione majorum: though by the Roman constitution the higher offices were open to all citizens, yet it was rare that a man whose ancestors had not held these offices could succeed in attaining them himself. If, like Cicero, he did so, he was called a novus homo and his descendants belonged to the nobility. tam mature: Cicero attained the questorship, the praetorship, and the consulship (honorum gradus) at the earliest age possible in each case. This was a mark of public confidence which had never happened to a novus homo before.

110 22 invidiae, i.e. the odium which might attach to the consul’s apparently exceeding his constitutional authority. In fact Cicero was later brought to trial and exiled on this very charge.

110 24 (Sect. 29.) num est, pray is (implying strong negation): § 210, c; G. 464, r.; H. 351, i, n.8

110 25 inertiae, sc. invidia, the reproach. an belongs with non existimas.

110 27 conflagraturum, will be consumed (lit. will burn up).

110 29 idem sentiunt, have the same views. mentibus, thoughts.

110 30 factu, the rare "latter supine" (§ 303; G. 436; H. 547 and n.1).

110 31 gladiatorii: the gladiators were trained slaves owned by rich men and were often employed as bullies in political campaigns. Hence the word came almost to mean ruffian, "bruiser," "thug."

111. 1 si . . . honestarunt: notice that the simple condition here expresses cause (§ 306, a, n.).

111 2 superiorum, before them.

The variety of the conditional sentences in secs 29, 30 is instructive: si judicarem, . . . non dedisse (cont. to fact), p. 110, l. 30—p. 111, l. 1; si . . . honestarunt, verendum non erat (nothing implied), p. 111, ll. 1—4; si impenetrat, fui (mixed), ll. 6, 7; si animadvertissim, dicere (cont. to fact), ll. 13, 14; si pervenerit, fore (fut., indir. disc.), ll. 15, 16; hoc interfecto, posse (fut., indir. disc., protasis disguised), ll. 18–20; si ejecerit, extinguetur (fut., more vivid), ll. 20–22.

111 6 maxime, ever so much.
111 7 ut . . . putarem, result clause explaining hoc (not a subst. clause). — partam (from pario), acquired (a very common meaning).
111 8 (Sect. 30.) non nulli, etc. : it should be remembered that there were many well-intentioned citizens who either doubted the existence of a conspiracy or thought Cicero's fears of it greatly exaggerated; and that even among those who admitted the fact there was considerable variety of partisan feeling.

111 9 videant, dissimulat, subj. of charact. (not co-ord. with dicerent), expressing the character of the men referred to, while aluerunt, etc. (l. 11), merely gives additional facts about them (hence indic.).

111 14 regie, despotically : the Roman idea of a king and kingly government was associated with Tarquinus Superbus. Here the word also implies the assumption of unlawful power (= tyrannice), as well as its abuse.

111 15 nunc, as it is. — quo (§ 201, h) : the antecedent is in castra.
111 17 improbum, dishonest.

111 18 hoc . . . interfecto, disguised fut. protasis (§ 310, a ; G. 600, 1 ; H. 507, N.7) ; the apod. posse is future in sense (307, d; G. 248, r.).

111 20 ejecerit : for tense, see § 307, c; G. 244, 2; H. 508, 2.
111 21 eodem, to the same place.

111 22 adulta, full-grown, as opposed to stirps, the root (prop. the stock from which new shoots may spring out), and semen, the seed.

111 25 (Sect. 31.) jam diu : the conspiracy was ready to break out B.C. 65 (see note on p. 105, l. 15).

111 26 versusam, have lived. — nescio quo pacto, somehow or other (§ 334, e; G. 467, N.; H. cf. 455, 2).

111 27 veteris (sharply contrasted with nostri), i.e. the disease is of long standing, but its outbreak has occurred just in my consulship.

111 32 visceribus, vitals (properly the great interior organs, as the heart, lungs, etc.).

112 1 aestu febrique, the heat of fever (hendiadys).

112 4 reliquis vivis, abl. absolute.

112 8 (Sect. 32.) circumstare, hang round, for the purpose of intimidation: the praetor urbanus had his tribunal in the Forum.

112 15 patefacta, laid bare; inlustrata, set in full light; oppressa, crushed; vindicata, punished. Observe the climax.

113 1 (Sect. 33.) omnibus, prospects. What Cicero has just said (p. 112, ll. 11–16) makes the omen under which Catiline is to depart,—an omen of good for the state but of evil for him.
113 4 Jupiter: thus the oration closes with a prayer to Jupiter Stator, in whose temple the Senate was now assembled.

113 6 Statorem, the Stay. The name was apparently first given to Jupiter as the Stayer (sto, sisto) of flight (see note to sect. 11, p. 104, l. 1), but it is here applied to him as the Stay (supporter) of the Roman state, a meaning which the word may well have from its derivation.

113 8 arcebis, used as a mild imperative (§ 269, f; G. 265; H. 487).

113 9 latrones: cf. latrocinium in sect. 27 (p. 109, l. 32).

SECOND ORATION AGAINST CATILINE.

ARGUMENT.

Pars I. Chap. I. Catiline is gone: the city breathes again; there is now open war, and no longer a concealed intestine conflict. — 2. He ought to have been put to death; but all were not convinced: now, his guilt is manifest. — 3. His worthless partisans remain at Rome; but they are powerless, being closely watched. — 4. Let them follow him. He was the leader of all scoundrels and profligates. — 5. His associates are desperate but contemptible; let them depart or take the consequences. — Pars II. 6, 7. Catiline is not in exile; he has joined his army. Men say the consul has driven him into exile: would the charge were true! — Pars III. 8-10. Character of Catiline's partisans: (i.) rich men in debt; (ii.) men eager for power and wealth; (iii.) Sulla's veterans; (iv.) ruined men, hoping for any change; (v.) criminals; (vi.) profligates and debauchees, men of Catiline's own stamp. — 11. Superiority of the patriot forces arrayed against them. — Peroratio. 12. Citizens need not fear; the consul will protect the state. The conspirators warned. — 13. There shall be no disturbance: the people may trust in the gods.

I. Pars Prima (§§ 1-11).

Sects. 1-4. Catiline is gone. He ought to have been put to death; but the time was not ripe, for all were not convinced of his guilt.

Page 113. Line 15. (Sect. 1.) ejectimus, expelled (with violence); emisimus, let [him] go. The words vel...vel (or, if you like) imply that the same act may be called by either name. — ipsum, of his own accord.
Second Oration against Catiline.

113. 16 verbis prosecuti may apply as well to kind words of dismissal as to invective. — abitit, simply, is gone; excessit, has retreated before the storm; evasit, has escaped by stealth; erupit, has broken forth with violence. — a climax of expression, but nearly identical in sense.

114. 1 moenibus (dat. following comparabitur), against, etc. — atque (adding with emphasis), and so. — hunc quidem, him at any rate.

114. 2 sine controversia, without dispute = unquestionably.

114. 3 versabitur, will be busy.

114. 4 campo, foro, curia, parietes: observe the narrowing climax.

114. 5 loco motus est, a military expression (hence the simple abl., § 258, a, n. 2; G. 390, 2, n. 2; H. 414, ii): he lost his vantage-ground.

114. 6 nullo impediente, i.e. his defenders till now could screen him by forms of law.

114. 7 justum (if retained in the text), regular, in due form; cf. note on latrocinium, p. 109, l. 1.

114. 8 (Sect. 2.) quod ... extulit, etc.: § 333, b; G. 542; H. 540, iv, N.

114. 10 cruentum (pred.), reeking with blood. — vivis nobis (abl. abs.), leaving us alive.

114. 12 civis, acc. plur.

114. 13 jacet, etc., lies prostrate.

114. 15 retrorquet oculos begins the figure of a wild beast, which is continued in faucibus. — proxecto, no doubt.

114. 16 quae quidem, which really.

114. 17 quod ... projecerit: see note on quod extulit, l. 9, above; for mood, see § 341, d; G. 541; H. 516, ii.

114. 19 (Sect. 3.) For the contents of this and the following section cf. Cat. i. sects. 27, 28, where the supposed complaint against Cicero for not having put Catiline to death and his reply to it are given at greater length. — qualis omnis, acc. plur. — oportebat: § 311, c; G. 254, r. 2; H. 511, l. n. 3.

114. 20 qui ... accuset, as to accuse ($§ 320; G. 631, 2; H. 503, i). 114. 22 ista: for gender, see § 195, d; G. 211, r. 5; H. 445, 4.

114. 23 interfectum esse ($§ 288, d; G. 280, r. 2): observe the emphatic position.

114. 24 oportebat: for tense, see note on Cat. i., p. 100, l. 13.

114. 25 hujus imperi: see note on Cat. i., p. 103, l. 16. — res publica, the public interest.

114. 27 quam multos, etc.: the passages in brackets are probably spurious; it will be observed that they merely repeat the preceding statement in each case.
115. 1 (Sect. 4.) cum (causal) viderem, seeing; its obj. is fore ut ... possem (§ 288, f; G. 248; H. 537, 3), which is the apod. of si multassem.— ne ... probata: nearly equivalent to cum ne vos quidem ... probaretis; implying that if they do not sustain the act, much less will the people at large.

115 2 multassem: for fut. perf. of direct (§ 337, 3; G. 657, 5; H. 527, i.).— fore ut, the result would be that, etc.

115 4 ut ... possetis, result clause explaining huc.

115 5 videretis: § 342; G. 663, 1; H. 529, ii.; if not dependent on possetis it would be videbitis.— quem quidem whom, by the way.

115 6 intellegatis: § 331, i; G. 553, 2; H. 499, 3.

115 7 quod ... exierit: § 341, d; G. 539; H. 516, ii.

115 9 mihi, eth. dat. (§ 236; G. 351; H. 389): as if, "I notice."

115 10 aet alienum, etc., i.e. petty debts run up in cook-shops and the like; not like the heavy mortgages spoken of afterwards.

115 11 reliquit: notice the emphatic position.

115 12 quos viros: for a characterization of Catiline’s partisans, see sects. 18–23.

Sects. 5–11. His worthless partisans remain at Rome, but are powerless: let them follow him. He was the ringleader of all scoundrels and profiteers. Let his associates depart or take the consequences.

115 14 (Sect. 5.) prae, in comparison with.— Gallicanis, i.e. those permanently stationed in Cisalpine Gaul. The ager Gallicus below was that strip of sea-coast, north of Picenum, formerly occupied by the Senones, but at this time reckoned a part of Umbria.

115 15 hoc dilectu, refers to a levy recently raised.— Q. Metellus (Celer): see note on Cat. i., sect. 19, p. 107, l. 13.

115 17 senibus, etc., i.e. those classes who naturally look forward to a revolution to mend their fortunes.

115 18 luxuria = high-livers: abstract for concrete, as common in Latin and older English; cf. Shakspere, All’s Well, ii. 1. 91: "Bring in the admiration" (i.e. this wonderful person).

115 19 vadimonia deserere, desert their bondsmen, i.e. leave them in the lurch in their creditors’ suits.

115 21 edictum praetoris, in effect like a sheriff’s writ. Any official order of a magistrate was an edictum.

115 22 hos, as opposed to those he did take out.

115 24 fulgent pupura, i.e. displaying their rank as Senators, who alone had the right to wear the broad purple stripe (latus clavus) on the tunic. The reference therefore is to foppish young nobles.— mallem: § 311,
Second Oration against Catiline.

b; G. 258, and n.1; H. 486, i. — eduxisset: § 331, f, r.; G. 546, r.2; H. 499, 2. — si . . . permanent, a future condition (§ 307, a, n.; G. 228; H. 467, s).

115 28 mementote, i.e. let them remember that they are objects of suspicion and shall be watched accordingly.

115 27 atque hoc, etc., i.e. their effrontery makes them still more a cause for alarm.

115 28 (sect. 6.) video, i.e. I know perfectly well.

115 29 cui sit, etc.: cf. Cat. i., sect. 9.

115 31 superioris noctis, i.e. three nights ago.

116 3 ne, surely: an affirmative particle sometimes wrongly spelled nse.

116 5 ut . . . videretis, clause of result explaining quod.

116 7 nisi vero, ironical (as usual), introducing a reductio ad absurdum. (The si only doubles that in nisi.)

116 8 non . . . jam, no longer.

116 11 Aureliâ viâ: see Cat. i., sect. 24.

116 13 (sect. 7.) rem publicam: § 240, d; G. 343, 1; H. 381. — sentinam, refuse (see Cat. i., sect. 12, l. 22).

116 14 ejecerit: the conclusion is implied in o fortunatum. — exhausto, drained off (cf. sentina).

116 15 recreata, invigorated.

116 17 totâ Italâ: § 258, f, 2; G. 388; H. 425, 2.

116 18 subjector, forger; circumscriptor, swindler.

116 21 perditus, abandoned wretch.

116 22 hosce: § 101, footnote; G. 104, i, n.1; H. 186, 1.

117 3 (sect. 8.) asciverit: for tense, see § 287, c; G. 513; H. 495, vi.

117 4 (sect. 9.) ut . . . possitis: § 317, c; G. 545, r.8; H. cf. 499, 2, n. — diversa studia. In another passage (Cael. xiii.) Cicero ascribes to Catiline: Cum tristibus severe, cum remissis jucunide, cum senibus graviter, cum juventute comiter, cum facinorosis audaciter, cum libidinosis luxuriose vivere. — in dissimili ratione, in different directions.

117 5 ludo, the regular training-school. — gladiatorio: see Cat. i., sect. 29, l. 31, and note.

117 7 levior, etc.: the Roman actors, though some of them achieved distinction, were generally regarded as a low class of men.

117 8 tamen, i.e. though a companion of such dissolute persons, yet he possessed the qualities of fortitude and endurance so much admired by the Romans.

117 9 exercitacione (abl. of means), trained by the practice of debaucheries and crimes to endure, etc. — frigore . . . perferendis, abl. with adsusefactus (§ 301, n.; G. 431).
Notes.

117 10 fortis, a strong and able fellow. — istis (§ 102, c; G. 306, n.; H. 450, i, n.), those creatures.

117 11 cum . . . consumeret (not concessive), while consuming. — subsidia, etc., i.e. means (his uncommon powers of body and mind) which might have been used, etc.

117 13 (Sect. 10.) sui: § 196, c; G. 309, 2; H. 449, 3.

117 17 audaciae, acts of audacity.

117 19 obligaverunt, encumbered. — res, property; fides, credit.

117 21 libido, i.e. luxurious habits and tastes.

117 23 quidem (concessive), no doubt.

117 24 homines, viris: observe the difference in sense.

117 26 mihi: the ethical dat. gives the phrase a familiar and contemptuous turn which may be reproduced in English by forsooth.

117 28 obiliti: observe the quantity.

117 29 caedem, etc.: notice the strong contrast between the character of these worn-out debauchees and the sanguinary nature of their threats.

117 31 (Sect. 11.) instare, is close at hand; plane merely emphasizes the idea of the verb.

118 2 propagat: for tense, see § 307, c, r.; G. 595, n.²; H. 473.

118 3 pertimescamus, possit, subj. of characteristic.

118 5 unius: Pompey, just returning from his triumphs in the East.

118 10 quacumque ratione, sc. fieri potest. .

118 11 resecanda erunt, shall need the knife (lit. must be cut away): the figure is derived from surgery.

118 12 si . . . permanent: § 307, a, n.; G. 228; H. 467, 5.

118 13 exspectent: hort. subj. in apod. (§ 307, d; G. 595; H. 508, 4).

II. Pars Secunda (§§ 12-16).

Sects. 12-16. Catiline is not in exile: he has joined his hostile army. Men say the consul has driven him into banishment; would the charge were true!

118 14 (Sect. 12.) etiam, still (after all that has been done).

118 15 quod, obj. of adequi, if I could effect it (referring to ipsos etc.), i.e. their expulsion.

118 17 enim, i.e. the idea is absurd, as is implied in the irony following.

118 19 quid, tell me: i.e., "is that possible" in view of the circumstances, which he proceeds to narrate. — hesterno die qualifies convocavi.

118 21 detuli: technical term for laying a matter before the Senate; cf. referre (ad senatum) in the Vocabulary.

118 28 (Sect. 13.) quaesivi, etc.: see Cat. i., sect. 9.
Second Oration against Catiline.

118 29 necne: § 211, d; G. 459; H. 353, N.²
118 30 ei, dat. of agent (§ 232, a; G. 354; H. 388, 1).
119 1 teneretur, was caught.

119 2 pararet, for plup. (see note on Cat. i., sect. 2, l. 13). —securias, fascis: the use of these signifies that Catiline intended to assume the authority and imperium of consul (see Fig. 25, p. 340).

119 3 signa militaria: see Fig. 28 (from coins). —aquilam: see Cat. i., sect. 24, l. 6, and note.

119 5 (Sect. 14.) eiciebam, conative imperf. (§ 277, c; G. 233; H. 469, 1).

119 6 credo, ironical, as very often in this parenthetical use.

119 8 suo nomine, i.e. not by Catiline's order: the whole is, of course, ironical, as is already indicated by credo.

119 10 Massiliam: Marseilles, an ancient Greek city of Gaul, always faithful and friendly to Rome. It was a favorite place of sojourn for Romans who went into voluntary exile.

119 11 condicionem, terms.

119 12 nunc, even now.

119 14 pertimuerit, take alarm.

119 18 spe conatuque, referring of course to his treasonable hopes and designs.

119 29 (Sect. 15.) est mihi tanti, it is worth my while (§ 252, a; G. 380, 1, r.; H. 404).

119 32 depellatur: § 314; G. 573; H. 513, i. —sane ( concessive), if you like (see Vocab).

119 28 invidiae, etc.: rather than have his predictions verified in this way, Cicero prefers the unjust odium of having arbitrarily driven out Catiline to exile.

119 31 aliquando, some day. — quod ... emiserim (§ 341, d; G. 541; H. 516, ii) ... ejecerim, let him go ... drove him out.

120 2 si interfectus, etc.: he thus adroitly excuses himself to those who would have preferred harsher measures. Notice the identity in sound in pro-fectus, inter-fectus, and observe how the argument a fortiori is brought out by the exact antithesis.

120 3 (Sect. 16.) quamquam (corrective), and yet.

120 4 dictitant, notice the frequentative.

120 5 nemo, not a man. — misericors: his going to Manlius was his inevitable ruin, and yet, for all their pity, they still wished him to go.
Notes.

,latrocinantem, in partisan warfare (see note on p. 109, l. 1). — vivere: § 336, c, n.³; G. 644, r.³, b; cf. H. 535, i, 6.
120 10 vivis nobis, i.e. without assassinating me.

III. Pars Tertia (§§ 17-25).

Sects. 17-23. Character of Catiline's partisans: (i.) rich men in debt (sect. 18); (ii.) men eager for power and wealth (sect. 19); (iii.) old soldiers of Sulla (sect. 20); (iv.) ruined debtors (sect. 21); (v.) cut-throats and criminals (sect. 22); (vi.) debauchees (sects. 22, 23.) 120 17 (Sect. 17.) sanare: cf. note on vivere, l. 8, above.—sibi, for their own good (for reflexive, see § 196, r, n.; G. 520).—placare, gain over.
120 20 comparentur, are made up.— singulis, to them one by one.
120 21 si quam, sc. adferre.
120 22 (Sect. 18.) est eorum, consists of those (pred. gen.).
120 23 possessiones, landed property.
120 23 dissolvì, sc. a possessionibus: i.e. although they might pay their debts by the sale of their estates, they cannot make up their minds to do so.
120 25 voluntas et causa, their purposes and claims (i.e. their position before the world).
120 26 tu: the use of the singular, as if he were addressing one of these men directly, gives point to his reproach of the whole class.
120 27 sis: § 268; G. 466; H. 484, v.
120 30 tuis, emphatic.—tabulas novas, new accounts, i.e. a general scaling down of debts by legislative enactment, such as that, b.c. 86,
"which reduced every private claim to the fourth part of its nominal amount, and cancelled three-fourths in favor of the debtors." 121 2 auctionariae: a forced sale of their estates would give them
"new accounts" (tabulæ) by reducing their debts; auctionariae [tabulae] would be the placards advertising the sale in question.
121 4 quod, obj. of facere, relating to the forced sale.—neque, and not, connects facere and certare.
121 5 certare cum usuris ($ 248, b; H. 419, 1²), struggle to meet the interest.—fructibus, abl. of means.
121 6 uteremur, we should find them.
121 7 hos-ce: more emphatic than hos.
121 9 vota facturi, likely to offer prayers, i.e. they will confine themselves to sympathizing with Catiline's revolt; no active co-operation with him need be feared from them.
121 11 (Sect. 19.) premuntur: notice the emphasis,—this class is insolvent; the former class is heavily in debt, but has resources.

121 13 quieta re publica: no poor man could hope to gain political prominence at Rome in ordinary times; these men therefore look to anarchy to achieve their political ends.

121 15 scilicet, in fact.

121 16 desperent, have no hope.

121 17 me . . . vigilare, etc., indir. disc. dependent on the idea of saying implied in praecipium (§ 336, N.²; G. 632, r. 2; H. 523, i, N.).

121 18 magnos animos: see Vocab. under anima.

121 22 praesentis agrees with deos: will be at hand, and, etc.

121 23 quod si, now if (as often). The quod is merely adverbial acc. (§ 240, b; G. 610, r.²; H. 378, 2), not like quod in l. 4 above.—jam, at once.—sint . . . adepti, fut. cond. less vivid.—cum summo furore:

§ 248, N.; G. 399; H. 419, iii, N.¹

121 26 non vident, don't they see? (§ 210, b; G. 453; H. 351, 3).

121 27 adepti sint, for the fut. perf. indic. of the direct disc.—fugitivo, i.e. one of their own slaves; for, when law is overthrown, brute force will control all.

121 28 sit necesse: § 307, d; G. 595; H. 508, 4.

121 31 (Sect. 20.) ex eis coloniis: Sulla rewarded his veterans (120,000 in number) by liberal grants of land, partly in municipia already existing, partly in new colonies which he founded for them.

122. 1 universas, as a whole; civium esse, consist of, etc.

122 2 ei sunt coloni, these are colonists of this sort (as opposed to the general character of the colonies, which Cicero does not wish to impugn).

122 5 beati, men of wealth.

122 7 Sulla, etc., Sulla will have to be raised from the dead, for they can have no such hope in Catiline.

122 8 agrestis, farmers, not Sulla's colonists.

122 9 veterum, alluding to the plunder of the disorderly times following Sulla's victory over the Marian party.

122 12 illorum temporum, i.e. the times of proscription.

122 18 (Sect. 21.) vacillant, stagger under.—vadimonia, etc., the three steps in bankruptcy,—bail, judgment, and sale of property; proscriptio is strictly the public notice that property is for sale.

122 21 inflatiore lenos, dilatory debtors (lit. deniers, i.e. persons who avoid payment of their debts by every possible subterfuge).

122 22 stare, keep their feet.

122 23 ita, in such a way.—non modo, etc.: § 149, e; G. 482, 5, r.¹; H. 552, 27.
122 29 (Sect. 22.) non revoco: § 276, b; G. 233; H. 467, 6.
123. 1 carcer: this is the Tullianum, a dungeon near the Forum, still existing. It was properly a jail for temporary detention, as imprisonment was not recognized in Rome as a form of punishment (see Figs. 29, 30).

123 2 numero, in order; genere, rank.
123 5 imberbis, a mark of effeminacy; bene barbatis, full-bearded, doubtless a military affectation, as, until lately, the wearing of a moustache. Figs. 31, 32 illustrate Roman fashions of wearing the beard. Fig.

31 (obverse) shows a military cut (head of Sextus Pompey); Fig. 32, the rough beard of a philosopher (I. Junius Rusticus); cf. Fig. 26.
123 6 velis, veils, rather than the substantial fog a, which was of unbleached wool. The whole description suggests foppishness and effeminacy.
123 11 (Sect. 23.) saltare et cantare: these accomplishments were hardly regarded as respectable by the better classes.—spargere, i.e. in food or drink: poisoning has in all ages been carried to a high art in Italy.
Second Oration against Catiline.

123 13 scitote: notice the second (fut.) imper. (regularly used in this word).

123 16 his noctibus: although this was spoken Nov. 9, yet the Roman year was at this time in such a state of confusion that the true date was probably some time in December, just when the winter was setting in.

Sects. 24, 25. These followers of Catiline contrasted with the defenders of the state. The issue of such a contest cannot be doubtful.

123 27 (Sect. 24.) urbes coloniarum, etc.: the colonies and free communities (municipia) included the walled cities (urbes) in their territory. These well-manned walls would be more than a match for Catiline’s rude works (tumuli).

124 1 (Sect. 25.) causas, i.e., the cause of the conspirators and that of the state in their moral aspect (cf. in ejus modi, etc., l. 12, below).

124 2 ex eo ipso, from the very comparison.

124 10 bona ratio, good counsel; perdita, desperate.

124 17 (Sect. 26.) custodiis vigiliiisque: see Cat. i., sect. 8, and note.

124 19 consultum, etc., provident measures have been taken.—coloni municipesque: a colony differed from a municipium in being founded by Roman (or Latin) citizens, who retained from the first their citizenship, either in whole or in part. By Cicero’s time there was no longer any real difference between the two classes of towns; but the colonies always retained a certain precedence in rank.

124 20 hac . . . excursione: see Introd., p. 113 of text.

124 22 gladiatores: see sect. 9, l. 5.

124 23 quamquam (corrective), referring to manum certissimam.

124 24 tamen: pointing the contrast between the suppression of this body and Catiline’s expectations from them.

124 29 vocari videtis: the members of the Senate had their gathering place (senaculum) adjoining the curia, and were summoned by heralds (praecones) from this into the building. If any were absent, the heralds were sent to their houses. The curia and senaculum were visible from the place of assembly in the Forum, and the heralds could no doubt be seen going their rounds.
IV. Peroratio (§§ 26–29).

Sects. 26–29. Citizens need not fear: the consul will protect the city. The conspirators warned. There shall be no disturbance. The gods will lend their aid.

125. 2 (Sect. 27.) monitos volo: § 292, d, n.; G. 537.
125 3 solutior: for compar. see § 93, a; G. 297; H. 444, 1.
125 4 quod, etc., as for the rest (i.e. what remains to be done).
125 5 horum and his relate to the citizens by whom he is surrounded, and imply a gesture.
125 8 cujus, referring, like qui, to the subject of sentiet.
125 17 (Sect. 28.) me, etc., abl. abs. — togato, in perfect peace, i.e. without any military demonstration: the toga was the regular dress of the Roman in time of peace. (See Fig. 33, from an antique statue.)
125 22 illud, in appos. with ut... possitis: I will secure that, etc.
125 24 neque... -que, not... and.
125 28 (Sect. 29.) quibus... ducibus (abl. abs.), under whose guidance.

126. 3 quam urbem... hanc, this city which (§ 200, b, n.; G. 616; H. 445, 9); or (repeating the noun) the city which, etc., — that city.

THIRD ORATION AGAINST CATILINE.

ARGUMENT.

— 6. The Senate decrees that the traitors be kept in custody and that a general thanksgiving be held. — 7. Now all is safe: Catiline alone was to be feared, and that only while in the city. Character of Catiline. — 8, 9.
The divine aid manifest in sundry omens: Jupiter watches over the city. — Peroratio. 10. Exhortation to keep the thanksgiving: this bloodless victory compared with others more costly. — 11. Cicero claims no reward but a grateful remembrance. — 12. But he is less fortunate than victors in foreign war, since the conquered are still citizens. He relies on the devotion of his countrymen, and has no fear for the future. The assembly dismissed.

I. Exordium (§§ 1, 2).

Sects. 1, 2. The citizens congratulated on their deliverance.

Page 126. Line 7. (Sect. 1.) vitam, lives: the plural would rarely be used in Latin.
126 8 bona, estates (landed property); fortunas, goods (personal property).
126 16 (Sect. 2.) nascendi ... condicio, the lot of birth.
126 17 illum: Romulus, who, after his death, was deified and identified with the Sabine god of war, Quirinus.
127. 4 urbi, etc., dat. with subjectos.
127 6 idem (plu.), I ... have also, etc. (§ 195, e; G. 310; H. 451, 3).
127 7 eorum, i.e. of the swords.

II. Narratio (§§ 3-22).

Sects. 3-7. Story of the arrest. The conspirators watched:
their attempts to tamper with the Allobroges disclosed to Cicero:
the arrest at the Mulvian Bridge: seizure of incriminating letters.
127 8 (Sect. 3) inlustrata, patefacta, comperta: the anticlimax is only apparent, for comperta expresses the most difficult as well as the most important of the three acts.
127 9 vobis, opposed to in senatu (l. 8).
127 10 investigata, traced out (observe the figure).
127 11 exspectatis, are waiting to hear.
127 12 ut, ever since.
127 16 possemus: 334, b; G. 467, o; H. cf. 523, ii, i, n. — cum ... eiciebam: notice the tense (at the time I was engaged in driving out, etc., also volebam, below), as compared with erupit (burst forth, once for all).
Notice, also, the difference in mood (at the time, etc.), compared with cum reliquisset in l. 14 (not referring to time at all, but to circumstance: having left behind, etc.) : see § 323, 325, a; G. 580, 585; H. 521, i, ii.

127 17 invidiam: see Cat. i., sect. 23, p. 128, l. 27, and note.

127 18 illa, sc. invidia.—quod . . . exierit: § 341, d; G. 539; H. 516, ii.

127 20 restitissent: in dir. disc. this would be restiterint (fut. perf.).

127 23 (Sect. 4.) quoniam . . . faceret, because (as I thought), etc.; hence the subj. rather than faciebat (§ 341, d, r.; G. 541; H. 516, ii).

127 26 oratio, argument; fidem faceret, gain credence.

127 27 rem comprehenderem, get hold of the matter.—ut . . . providetis, purpose.

127 28 cum . . . videretis, subj. of integral part (otherwise it would be videbitis).

127 29 Allobrogum: the Allobroges were a Gallic nation, between the Rhone and the Alps (in the modern Dauphiné and Savoy); subdued B.C. 121, and united with the province Narbonensis. They were restless under their new masters (see sect. 22), and inclined to take up with Catiline’s movement. Their ambassadors had come to complain of certain exactions of their provincial governor.—belli, i.e. when out of the range of the Roman jurisdiction; tumultus, rebellion, i.e. when nearer home.

127 30 Lentulo, see Introd.: he had been consul B.C. 71, but had been expelled from the Senate the next year, with sixty-three others, on account of his character, and he now held the praetorship with the view of beginning the career of office over again.

128. 5 manifesto deprehenderetur, taken in the act: the words apply strictly to the criminals themselves.

128 7 (Sect. 5.) praetores: although the regular duties of the praetors were judicial, yet they possessed the imperium, and in virtue of this could command troops in the absence of the consuls, or under their authority.

128 9 qui . . . sentirent (subj. of characteristic), as men who, etc.

128 11 pontem Mulvium: the bridge over the Tiber, about two miles above the city, by which the principal roads (the Flaminian and Cassian) led into north Italy.

128 13 inter eos, i.e. between the two divisions.

128 15 praefectura: the title given to the politically lowest class of Italian towns, which had lost their independence; cf. Vocab. under colónia and municipium.—Reatina: Reate was a very ancient town of the Sabines, about forty miles northeast of Rome. Cicero was the patronus of Reate; that is, acted as its attorney and legal counsel: which accounts for his having this body-guard of young men from that place. Besides, these simple mountaineers still retained something of the old Italian virtues, and therefore were well fitted for this service.

129. 1 praesidio, dat. of service.

129 2 (Sect. 6.) tertia vigilia, about 3 A.M.: the night, from sunset to sunrise, was divided by the Romans into four vigiliae of equal length.

129 3 magno comitatu, abl. of accomp. (§ 248, a, N.; G. 392,R.1; H. 419, 1).

129 5 res, the occasion of the attack.

129 6 ignorabatur, etc. Though the Allobroges had played the conspirators false, and knew that the consul had his plans ready, they did not know what these plans were, and therefore were as much taken by surprise as Volumnius himself. Even the troops would appear not to have known what special enterprise they were engaged in.

129 11 machinatorem: Gabinius had been the go-between in this case; he and Statilius were to burn the city (Sall. Cat. 43, 44).

129 14 venit: of course he had been summoned like the others.

129 15 praeter, etc., since Lentulus was notoriously lazy.

129 16 (Sect. 7.) viris, dat. after placeret, which has for subject litteras . . . aperiiri, etc.

129 18 deferrem, integral part of aperiiri; otherwise it would prob. be defers (see § 327, a; G. 574; H. 520).

129 20 esse facturum governs the result clause ut . . . deferrem: we may translate, I said I would not fail to lay before the public council a matter touching the public danger before it had been tampered with (integrant).

129 22 etenim . . . si, for if, you see.

129 23 reperta . . . essent: in dir. disc. this would be reperta erunt.

129 27 (Sect. 8.) si quid . . . esset, whatever weapons there might be.

129 30 introduxi, sc. in senatum.—fidel publicam, assurance of safety: he was to be used as state’s evidence.

129 31 sciret, subj. of integral part.

130. 3 servorum: the recollection of the terrible servile insurrections in Sicily, and especially that of Spartacus in Italy, less than ten years before, would make this shock and terrify Cicero’s hearers beyond measure.—ut . . . uteretur (§ 331; G. 546; H. 498, i), obj. of the verb of commanding implied in mandata, etc.

130 4 id, in a sort of apposition with ut . . . accederet.
Notes.

130 5 cum... incendissent, subj. because integral part of ut... praesto esset; otherwise it would be incenderimus (fut. perf.).

130 6 erat: § 336, b; G. 628, r.; H. 524, 2.

130 12 (Sect. 9.) ut... mitterent, purpose.—equitatum: the Roman cavalry was at this time chiefly composed of Gallic and other auxiliaries.

130 13 sibi (copias) refers to the conspirators; sibi (confirmasse) to the envoys of the Allobroges (196, a, 1 and 2).—defuturas [esse] depends on the idea of saying implied in praescriptum (l. 11).

130 14 fatis: the books bought by Tarquinius Superbus of the Cumæan Sibyl. They were kept in charge of a board, collegium, the quindecimviri sacris faciundis, and consulted in cases of great public emergency (cf. Aen. vi. 71, and note).—haruspicium: the haruspices were Etruscan soothsayers, who interpreted the will of the gods, chiefly from the entrails of animals sacrificed. They were a private class, of low standing, and are not to be confounded with the augurs, who were a board of Roman noblemen, of high rank, who interpreted the auspices according to the native Roman rules, chiefly by the flight of birds, by lightning, etc.

130 16 Cinnam, etc.: L. Cornelius Cinna was colleague of Marius, and ruled Rome after his death, B.C. 86. L. Cornelius Sulla ruled Rome B.C. 82–79 (see sect. 24).

130 19 virginum: the Vestal Virgins, six in number, maidens of high rank, consecrated to chastity and the service of Vesta. (See Fig. 34.) They were peculiarly sacred, and were highly privileged. Violation of their vow of chastity was incestus, and was regarded as a prodigium of very bad omen. Of the incident referred to here nothing further is known.—Capitoli: the temple of Jupiter Capitolinus (see “Plunder of Syracuse,” sect. 15) was burned during the rule of the Marian faction, B.C. 83.

130 21 (Sect. 10.) Saturnalibus: a very ancient festival in honor of Saturn, the god of seed-sowing, celebrated Dec. 19. During this festival every serious business was suspended; and it was so complete a holiday that slaves feasted at the same tables with their masters. No better opportunity could be found for the outbreak of an insurrection than this season of unrestrained jollification.

130 24 tabellas, tablets of wood: wax was spread on the inside, and on this the writing was scratched with a stylus. When used for letters, the Third Oration against Catiline.

Tablets were tied about with a linen thread, linum, and sealed. See Fig. 35 (from a Pompeian wall-painting).

130 ipsius manu: the ambassadors had made sure to get all the conspirators committed in writing except Cassius, who alone had the sagacity to keep out of it. — senatu: the Gallic tribes were governed by an aristocracy, having a council or senate as its mouthpiece.

130 28 sese, etc.: in dir. disc., faciam quae vestris legatis confirmavi.

130 29 ut . . . illi, etc.: in the direct form, — vos facite quae sibi vestri legatis receperunt. Note the change of pronouns as well as of moods and tenses. — sibi recepissent, had taken upon themselves.

130 30 qui . . . respondisset, qui concessive. — tamen, i.e. in spite of the strong evidence against him.

131 5 est vero, etc., i.e. you may well recognize it: it is, etc.

131 6 avi tui: Cornelius Lentulus, cos. b.c. 162. He was princeps senatus, that is, designated by the censors as first man of the Senate: an honorary office, held ordinarily by patricians.

131 8 debuit (§ 288, a; G. 254, r.; H. 537, 1), ought to have recalled. (The joining of such opposites as muta and revocare is called oxymoron, or paradox.)

131 9 (sect. 11.) eadem ratione, to the same purport.

131 15 per quem, i.e. who had conducted them.

131 16 nihilne, equiv. to nonne aliquid.

132 1 esset, is (imperf. by seq. of tenses, § 287, d; H. 495, v).

132 11 (sect. 12.) quis sim, etc.: this letter is given with slight variations by Sallust, Cat. 44.

132 12 quam in locum, etc., how far you have gone (alluding to the fact that he was thoroughly compromised).

132 14 infimorum, i.e. slaves; see note, p. 130, l. 3, above.

132 17 (sect. 13.) illa, the following (§ 102, b; G. 307, 3; H. 450, 3).

132 21 furtem, stealthily ("like thieves"); so English steal.
132 23 senatum consuli: deliberative assemblies in ancient times were under the control of the presiding officer, and members could not speak or introduce business except when called upon by him. He laid a subject before them (consulere senatum), referre ad senatum, and asked their opinions individually, in a definite order, usually according to their rank or dignity. In the case of a general question he was said referre (consulere) de summa re publica. The form would be, dic, C. Jui, sententiam. (See Introd., p. 000.)

132 25 a principibus, the leading men. — sententiae: the views of the individual Senators (see note on l. 23, above).

132 97 perscriptum: the opinions (sententiae) of the Senators (given as just described) merely determined the substance of the ordinance, which was afterwards written out in regular form by the secretaries in the presence of some of its advocates and under the direction of the presiding officer. (See the form as given on p. 255 of the text.)

Sects. 14, 15. Action of the Senate: the chief conspirators are given into custody and a thanksgiving is voted.

132 31 (Sect. 14.) L. Flaccus: see note on p. 128, l. 7 (sect. 5.)

133 1 conlegae, C. Antonius: see Introd. to Cat. i., p. 99 of text.

133 3 rei publicae consiliis, the public counsels, i.e. his own (officially) as consul.

133 4 cum se abdicasset, after abdicating. Lentulus could not properly be called to account during his magistracy; but he might be forced to resign, and could then be proceeded against.

133 6 erant: notice that this and similar clauses in this section, being explanations by Cicero and not parts of the decree, take the indicative.

133 7 L. Cassium, etc.: these last mentioned had not yet been arrested, but Ceparius was caught in his flight and brought back.

133 9 pastores: Apulia was, as now, used chiefly for pasturage. In the summer, when these broad plains were dried up, the flocks were driven to the mountain pastures of Samnium and Lucania. These pastoral regions have always been the home of a lawless and restless population, prone to brigandage.

133 11 colonis, etc.: cf. sect. 20, above (pp. 121, 122).

133 19 (Sect. 15.) supplicatio, a day of prayer, proclaimed by the Senate, either in thanksgiving (gratulatio) as in the present case, or in entreatIng favor of the gods.

133 20 eorum, i.e. the gods.

133 21 togato, asa civilian: cf. Cat. ii., sect. 28 (p. 125, l. 17), note and Fig. 33.
Third Oration against Catiline.

133 23 liberassem: in the decree, liberavit.
133 24 hoc interest, there is this difference.—bene gesta, as well as conservata, agrees with re publica (abl. abs.).
133 26 faciendum ... fuit: observe that this form has not here its usual cont. to fact implication.
133 29 jus, rights.—tamen: he was allowed to resign instead of being put to death without resigning (as in the case below).
133 30 quae ... fuerat, what had not been a scruple to Marius = a scruple which had not prevented M. from (quo minus, etc.).
133 31 quo minus occideret, to prevent his killing, following religio (§ 319, c; G. 549; H. 499, 3, N.2).—C. Glauciam: see note, Cat. i., p. 101, l. 1.—nominatim, i.e. Marius acted merely under the general authority conferred on him by the Senate in the formula, Videant consules, etc. (see note on Cat. i., sect. 2, p. 100, l. 12).

Sects. 16, 17. The conspiracy is now crushed. Character of Catiline.

134 5 (SECT. 16.) pellebamus, conative imperf.; cf. sect. 3 (p. 127, l. 16), and note.
134 8 pertimescendam: observe the intensive force of per.
134 9 ille erat, etc.: with this character of Catiline cf. notes on Cat. i. 26 (p. 109, l. 23) and ii. 9 (p. 187, l. 4).
134 10 continebatur: for tense, see § 276, c, n.; G. 569; H. 519, i.
134 12 consilium, ability to plan.
134 15 mandaratum: for mood and tense, see §§ 322, 309, c; G. 567; H. 472, 2.
134 22 (SECT. 17.) depulissem, pushed aside: the image is of averting a crushing weight (molem), just ready to fall.
134 23 non ille, etc., i.e. as Cethegus did.—Saturnalia, i.e. so distant a date.—constituisset: the prot. (cont. to fact) is implied in ille (§ 310, a; G. 593, 3; H. 507, n.7).
134 24 rei publicae, dat. after denuntiavisset.
134 25 testes, in appos. with both signum and litterae.
134 26 quae, referring to Cicero’s success in securing (lit. capturing) the evidence of guilt.
135 3 hostis (pred. appos.), as an enemy.

Sects. 18–22. Thanks due to the gods. Signs and omens. Jupiter watches over the city.

135 7 (SECT. 18.) cum (correl. with tum vero, l. 9), i.e. we cannot merely guess it (for the reason in the quod clause following), but still more we can almost see it with our own eyes.
135 8 quod ... putuisse (parenthetical), because, etc. — consili (pred. gen. limiting gubernatio), to belong to human wisdom.

135 11 possemus: for tense, see § 287, a; G. 511, r.8; H. 495, i.

135 12 faces, etc.: these omens are such as the Romans observed and noted carefully. Livy’s history is full of them.

135 16 praetermittendum, inadvertently; relinquendum, intentionally.

135 18 (Sect. 19.) Cotta et Torquato, consuls B.C. 65, the year in which Catiline first intended to carry out his conspiracy.

135 21 aera: the laws were engraved on bronze tables.

135 22 ille ... Romulus: there is a bronze statue of the wolf suckling the infants in the Capitoline Museum at Rome, which bears marks either of lightning seaming one of its hind legs, or of some defect in the casting (Fig. 36). This is probably identical with that here mentioned.

135 22 haruspices: see note on sect. 9 (p. 130, l. 14), above.

135 29 flexissent: in dir. disc. flexerint, following appropinquare, which points to the future (§ 307, d; G. 595; H. 508, 4).

135 29 (Sect. 20.) illorum, i.e. the haruspices.

135 30 ludi: festivals in which races and theatrical performances were celebrated in honor of the gods; such festivals were especially appointed to appease the deities in times of danger and distress; cf. Verres, I, sect. 31.

136 1 idem (plur.), they also.

136 3 contra atque, opposite to what (§ 156, a; G. 643; H. 459, 2).

136 5 solis ... conspiceret: the Forum and the Senate house (curia) were east of the south end of the Capitoline Hill, on which stood the Capitolium, or temple of Jupiter Capitolinus (see Plan of Forum).

136 7 inlustrarentur: the word is chosen with reference to the omen of Jupiter looking toward the rising sun.
136 8 conlocandum locaverunt: locare with the gerundive is the regular expression for giving out a contract (§ 294, d; G. 430; H. 544, N.3).
136 9 illi, i.e. of year before last.
136 10 consulibus and nobis, abl. abs. expressing the date.
136 13 (SECT. 21.) praeceps, headstrong; mente captus, insane. — haec omnia, i.e. the universe.
136 15 ita is explained by caedes ... comparari, below.
136 16 responsum: the regular expression for any prophetic answer, as of an oracle or seer. — rei publicae (dat.), against the state.
136 17 et ea, and that too (cf. καὶ τὰ ῥά).
136 18 ea, referring to caedes, etc., above.
136 20 illud, referring forward to the result clause ut . . . statueretur (ll. 21–23).
136 23 in aedem Concordiae: one of the principal temples at the northern end of the Forum (see Plan), where the Senate had held its session on this day. It was built by the consul L. Opimius, B.C. 121, after his bloody victory over C. Gracchus.
136 26 (SECT. 22.) quo, wherefore (see § 250, N.).
136 28 vestris, etc.: observe the contrast between vestris and deorum, which is emphasized by their respective positions.
136 31 non ferendus, intolerable for arrogance. — ille, etc.: anaphora (see § 386; G. cf. 682; H. 636, iii, 3).
137 2 illa, etc.: omit the words in brackets as being a manifest gloss.
137 6 consilium, etc.: cf. the proverb, quem deus perdere volit, prius dementat.
137 7 ut introduces the result clause ut . . . neglegerent, with which id is in apposition, the whole forming the subject of esse factum. — gens refers here to the Gauls as a whole, not to the Allobroges in particular.
137 10 patriciis: the old patricians, though having no special political privileges, still retained considerable prestige as an hereditary aristocracy. Cf. note on Verres, i, sect. 1 (p. 28, l. 2). Of the conspirators, Catiline, Lentulus, and Cethegus were patricians.
137 12 qui . . . superare potuerint: cf. note on p. 131, l. 8; qui, as subj. of the charact. clause, may be translated by when they.
III. Peroratio (§§ 23–29).

Sects. 23–25. Citizens exhorted to thanksgiving.

137 14 (Sect. 23.) pulvinaria, shrines: properly cushions, upon which the statues of the gods were laid, when a feast was spread before them. This was called lectori sternium, and was usually connected with the supplicatio (see note, sect. 15). Only certain gods, chiefly Grecian, had pulvinaria, and the rite was established by direction of the Sibylline books (see note, sect. 9).

— celebratone: the future imperative is used on account of its reference to a set time in the future (§ 269, d; G. 268, 2; H. 487, 11). The figure in the text (from an ancient altar relief) represents a procession such as was usual on occasions of this kind. Fig. 37 (from an ancient lamp) shows the images at such a feast.

137 20 ducie, i.e. in actual command; imperatore, i.e. holding the sovereign power, whether actually commanding that particular operation or not.

137 22 (Sect. 24.) dissensiones: for case, see § 219, b; G. 376, r.2; H. 407, n.1

137 23 P. Sulpicius [Rufum], a young man of remarkable eloquence, a leader in the reforming party among the aristocracy. He was tribune b.c. 88, and his quarrel with C. Cæsar was the first act of the Civil War. By his proposition, the command in the Mithridatic War was transferred from Sulla to Marius; and when Sulla refused to obey, and marched upon the city, Sulpicius was one of the first victims.

137 27 conlegam: Lucius Cornelius Cinna, the Marian partisan (see note, sect. 9). He and Cn. Octavius, a partisan of Sulla, were consuls b.c. 87, after the departure of Sulla for the East, and in their dissensions the Civil War broke out afresh. The victory of Cinna later recalled Marius from exile.

137 29 lumina: among these were Octavius; C. Cæsar (see above), and his brother Lucius; Q. Catulus, father of the opponent of the Manilian Law (see below); M. Antonius, the great orator; and the pontifex maximus, Q. Scævola.

137 30 ultus est: to preserve the emphasis, render, the cruelty, etc., was avenged by Sulla.
Third Oration against Catiline.

137 22 dissensit, there was a quarrel between, etc.—M. Lepidus, father of the triumvir, was consul B.C. 78 (after Sulla's death), with Q. Catulus, son of the one murdered by Cinna. The scheme of Lepidus to revive the Marian party resulted in a short civil war, in which he was defeated by his colleague and killed.

138 2 ipsius: he was the victim of his own violence, and therefore less regretted.

Sects. 26-29. Cicero asks for no reward except the memory of this day. He relies on the devotion of the citizens and has no fears for the future. The assembly dismissed.

138 3 (Sect. 25.) tamen, i.e. though these disturbances cost a great many lives, yet they were not so revolutionary as this conspiracy, which has been put down without bloodshed.

138 4 commutandam rem publicam, a change of government.

138 12 quale bellum, a war such as.

138 13 quo in bello: § 200, a; G. 615.

138 14 omnes, etc., i.e. everybody except the desperate.—salva urbe, abl. abs.

138 17 tantum, only so many.

138 18 restitisset (resisto), should survive.

139 8 (Sect. 26.) mutum: such as a statue, for example.

139 12 eandem diem, etc., the same period of time—eternal as I hope— is prolonged, both for the safety of the city, etc.

139 15 duos civis, i.e. Pompey and himself.

139 20 (Sect. 27.) quae, as (§ 201, g).

139 22 isti (contrasted with mihi), refers to illorum (l. 20).

139 24 mentes, counsels.

139 27 nihil noceri potest, no harm can be done.

139 30 dignitas, etc., i.e. the majesty of the Roman state will be an invisible safeguard for me, cf. "the divinity" that "doth hedge a king" (Hamlet, iv. 5. 123).

139 31 conscientiae, etc., i.e. my enemies, conscious of their guilty sympathy with this conspiracy, will, in their attempts to injure me, inevitably commit some act which will show them to be traitors to the state.

140 2 (Sect. 28.) ultro, i.e. without waiting to be attacked.

140 3 domesticorum hostium, oxymoron (§ 386; G. 694; H. 637, xi, 6); cf. the same figure in Cat. i., sect. 21 (p. 108, l. 4): cum tacent, clamant.

140 4 convertit, pres. for fut., as often, especially in protasis.

140 6 obtulerint, subjunc. of integral part.
Notes.

140 8 in honore vestro: honor is used here, as usual, to denote external honors (offices) conferred by the people. Holding the consulship, he had nothing higher to look forward to.
140 13 (Sect. 29.) conservanda re publica, abl. of means.
140 14 in re publica, in public life.
140 15 virtute non casu, etc., i.e. he will show this by such conduct as shall be consistent with this glorious achievement.

141. 1 Jovem: the temple of Jupiter Capitolinus is shown in the background of the illustration opposite p. 136; the figure in the text at p. 140 is a restoration of this temple.

FOURTH ORATION AGAINST CATILINE.

ARGUMENT.

Chap. 1. Exordium. Solicitude of the Senate for Cicero. The question of the traitors' doom must, however, be settled without regard to such considerations.—Propositio. 2, 3. The Senators need not fear for Cicero. Let them take counsel for the welfare of the state. Enormous guilt of the conspirators. Judgment already rendered by the action of the Senate. The sole question is: What shall be the penalty?—4. Silanus proposes death; Cæsar, perpetual imprisonment.—5. Cæsar's proposition discussed.—Contentio. 6. Death none too severe a penalty: severity to the conspirators is mercy to the city. Opinion of L. Cæsar.—7. Severe measures will be supported by the people.—8. The humblest citizens are staunch.—9. The Senators urged to act fearlessly: the consul will not fail them.—Peroratio. 10. Cicero is undismayed: his fame is secure, whatever happens to him. He has undertaken a perpetual war with the bad elements in the state, but the result is certain.—11. Then let the Senate dare to act rigorously.

As this is the first deliberative oration, delivered in the Senate, contained in this collection, it will be well for the student to consult the account of a senatorial debate given in the Introduction, p. lvii.

In the present case—in which the question was what sentence should be passed upon the captured conspirators—the consul elect, D. Junius Silanus, had advised that they be put to death; C. Julius Cæsar (as prætor elect), on the contrary, that they be merely kept in custody. At the end of the discussion, Cicero, as presiding consul, gave his views as expressed in the present oration. (For the speeches of Cæsar and Cato, see Sallust, Catiline, chs. 51, 52.)

I. Exordium (§§ 1, 2).

Sects. 1, 2. Solicitude of the Senate for Cicero. But the question of the traitors' doom must be settled without regard to such considerations.

Page 141. Line 13. (Sect. 1.) si haec, etc., i.e. if the consulship has been given me on these terms.

141 14 ut ... perferrem, subst. clause of purpose in apposition with condicio.

142 2 (Sect. 2.) ego sum ille consul, I am a consul (i.e. that kind of consul).

142 3 aequitas: in the Forum was the tribunal of the prætor who administered justice between citizens.

142 4 campus: see note on Cat. i., sect. 11 (p. 104, l. 7). — auspiciis: the taking of the auspices always preceded the election.

The Roman commonwealth was regarded as depending directly upon the will of the gods. Their will was thought to be expressed in signs sent by them (auspicia). These could be observed only under the supervision of the board of Augurs, a body whose duty it was to know the rules of interpretation as a special science called jus augurium. Most public acts of any kind had to be performed auspicate, especially the holding of all public assemblies in which business was transacted. Thus the Campus was "consecrated by auspices" every time that the comitia centuriata were held.

142 5 auxilium: the Roman Senate, having the management of foreign affairs, was at this time a great court of appeal for subject or friendly nations.

142 7 sedes honoris, i.e. the sella curulis or seat used by the curule magistrates: viz. interrex, dictator, magister equitum, consul, prætor, censor, and curule ædile. It was like a modern camp-stool without back or sides, with crossed legs of ivory, so that it could be folded up and carried with the magistrate wherever he went.

See Fig. 38 (from a Roman coin).
Notes.

142 8 fuit: we should expect the subj. of characteristic, but the indic. is used (as often) to emphasize the fact.

142 11 ut ... eriperem (l. 15, below), subst. clause of result, in appos. with exitum (l. 10).

142 14 foedissima, horrible, with the added idea of polluting things sacred.

142 17 fatale: see Cat. iii., sect. 9.

142 18 laeter (§268; G. 466: H. 484, v): apodosis, see §306, a; G. 595; H. 508, 4.

II. PROPOSITIO (§§ 3–10).

Sects. 3–6. The Senators need not fear for Cicero: they should take counsel for the welfare of the state. Enormous guilt of the conspirators, judgment has been already rendered by the action of the Senate. The sole question is: What shall be the punishment?

142 24 (SECT. 3) pro eo ... ac mereor, in proportion as I deserve.

142 25 relatos gratiam, will reward ("return favor": cf. habere, agere).

142 27 immatura: because an ex-consul had reached the highest point of Roman ambition.

142 28 misera: the philosophy of the ancients professed to make them despise death (see Plato, Apologia, and Cicero, Tusc. Quaest. i. — ille ferreus qui, so iron-hearted as (hence mover, subj.). — fratris: his brother Quintus, younger than he, and at this time prætor elect. He served with credit in Caesars Gallic campaigns.

142 31 neque ... non, nor can it be but that, etc.; the two negatives make an affirmative, but with a kind of emphasis which the simple affirmative statement could not give.

142 32 uxor, etc.: his wife Terentia; his daughter Tullia (daughters took the gentle name of the father (see §80, c; G. p. 493; H. 649, 4), married to C. Calpurnius Piso; his son Marcus, now two years old.

143 3 gener: Piso was not yet a member of the Senate, and was probably standing in the lobby.—moveor (emphat., as shown by its position), I am affected.

143 4 uti sint, [to wish] that, etc. (the verb being implied in moveor); pereamus is in the same construction as sint.

143 5 una ... peste, i.e. by a destruction which is at the same time that of the whole state.

143 9 (SECT. 4) non Ti. Gracchus, etc.: to preserve the emphasis, render it is not Ti. Gracchus who, etc. For the historical allusions, cf. Cat. i., sects. 3, 4, and notes.
Fourth Oration against Catiline.

143 10 agrarios: see note on p. 147, l. 29.
143 11 Memmius: C. Memmius, one of the most upright men of his time; he was a candidate for the consulship against Glaucia, was murdered by instigation of Glaucia and Saturninus (B.C. 100).
143 13 tenentur, are in custody; to preserve the emphasis we may change the voice, — we have in our hands. — vestram omnium: § 184, d; G. 321, r.²
143 18 ut . . . nemo, instead of the usual ne quis or ne quisquam § 319, d, r., cf. § 105, d, N.; G. 543, 4, cf. 317, 1; H. 497, ii, cf. 457) because of the following ne . . . quidem.
143 22 (Sect. 5) judicia: their verdict on the conspirators’ guilt consisted in the acts recounted in the following clauses.
143 23 gratias egistis: cf. relaturos, sect. 3 (p. 177, l. 25).
143 25 abdicare, etc.: see Cat. iii, sect. 14 (p. 133, l. 4), and note.
144 1 (Sect. 6) sed, i.e. though you have in fact decided. — tamquam integrum, as if an open question (i.e. as if you had not already expressed your judgment).
144 2 judicetis refers to their judgment as a court with respect to the facts; censeatis, to their view as a public council respecting the punishment.
144 3 illa . . . consulis, etc., I will say in advance what belongs to [me as] the consul: i.e. declare the need of instant action; what action, it is for the Senate to determine. For constr. see § 214, c; G. 366; H. 401.
144 4 nova . . . misceri, that a revolution subversive of the government was on foot; nova (subj. of misceri) means innovations or unconstitutional measures; misceri refers to the disorder which these would produce.
144 5 concitari mala, that evil designs were set in motion. — videbam: for tense, see § 277, b; G. 234; H. 469, 2.
144 11 opinione: § 247, b; G. 398, N.¹; H. 417, 1, N.⁵
144 13 provincias, especially Spain, with which Cn. Piso had had relations. It had not yet become fully reconciled since the overthrow of Sertorius, only eight years before. — sustentando, forbearance; prolatando, procrastination.
144 14 ratione, abl. of manner.
144 15 placet, sc. vindicare.

Sects. 7–10. Silanus proposes death; Cæsar perpetual imprisonment. Cæsar's proposition discussed.
144 17 (Sect. 7) haec (with a gesture), all this, i.e. city, citizens, and government.
144 19 ampllectitur, adopts.
144 20 pro, in accordance with.
Notes.

144 21 versatur in, exhibits.
144 27 mortem, etc.: a doctrine of the Epicureans, to which sect Cæsar and many other eminent Romans belonged.
144 31 et ea: cf. note on Cat. iii., sect. 21 (p. 136, l. 17).
144 32 municipiis dispertiri, sc. eos in custodiam.
145 1 iniquitatem, since it might expose them to danger, and it would be unjust to choose among so many; difficultatem, since they might decline the service.
145 3 (Sect. 8.) statueritis, subj. of integral part.
145 4 dignitatis: § 214, d; G. 366, r.1; H. 401, n.2 — adjungit, he (Cæsar) adds to his proposal.
145 5 ruperit: § 341, c; G. 366; H. 401.
145 7 sancit, ordains (under penalties).
145 8 per senatum, by an executive decree; per populum, by a law.
145 11 uno, sc. dolore.
145 12 itaque, etc.: an artful way of making the punishment of death seem less cruel; since death is a relief, these myths, says Cicero, have been invented to give it terror.
145 15 eis remotis, equiv. to a fut. protasis (§ 310, a; G. 593, 2; H. 549, 2).
145 17 (Sect. 9.) meā: § 222, a; G. 381; H, 408, i, 2.
145 19 popularis, not popular, but devoted to the people, democratic: Cæsar was now the recognized leader of this party.
145 20 auctore (abl. abs.), proposer; cognitore, sponsor (a legal term).
145 24 majorum: none of Cæsar’s ancestors were men of any distinction, although some distant relatives were prominent in public affairs in the time of Sulla; see note, Cat. iii., sect. 24 (p. 137, l. 22). He belonged, however, to one of the oldest patrician families.
145 25 obsidem, i.e. he is pledged at all events to defend the state as against the conspirators.
145 27 interestet: for tense, see § 287, d. — levitatem, want of principle, i.e. of the steady purpose, or stability of character, implied in gravias.
145 28 saluti, i.e. not voluntati: their interests, not their capricious wishes.
145 29 (Sect. 10.) non nominem: it is said that the person referred to was Q. Metellus Nepos, brother of Celer (see Cat. i., sect. 19) a partisan of Pompey and an enemy of Cicero.
145 31 dedit, decrevit, adfecit, i.e. gave his vote for these acts. With this, of course, his present action is inconsistent.
146 1 qui has for antecedent the subject of judicarit.
Fourth Oration against Catiline.

146 3 re, the matter (in general); causa, the issue to be decided. — C. Caesar: the full name gives emphasis, contrasting him with the non nemo (p. 145, l. 29). Cæsar votes for a judgment against the conspirators which seems contrary to the Sempronian Law, but he, a true friend of the people (vere popularis), recognizes that this law applies to Roman citizens only, and that it therefore cannot protect these traitors.

146 4 Semproniam: see note on "Crucifixion," etc., p. 61, l. 10.

146 6 latorem, i.e. C. Gracchus.

146 7 jussu populi: not strictly true, for C. Gracchus was put to death, not by order of the people, but by virtue of the dictatorial authority conferred upon the consuls by the Senate. — rei publicae, dative. — dependisse: punishment with the Romans was regarded as a penalty paid by the offender to the injured party (hence dare, solvere, pendere of the guilty; capere, petere, repetere, postulare, etc., of the person wronged).

146 8 Lentulum: by discussing this conspirator as an example of the would-be popularis, Cicero skilfully throws discredit on the non nemo (p. 145, l. 29) and others like him. — largitorem, etc., i.e. however lavish, — a symptom of courting the popular favor.

146 13 se jactare, i.e. as a pretended friend of liberty, like the non nemo above.

146 15 omnis cruciatūs, accusative plural.

III. Contentio (§§ 11-19).

Sects. 11-14. Death is none too severe a penalty: rigor in punishing the conspirators is mercy to the city. Opinion of L. Cæsar.

146 17 (Sect. 11.) quam ob rem, etc.: because Cæsar's view has in Cæsar a popular sponsor, while the view of Silanus is in fact the more merciful one. — statueritis, dederitis: § 307, c, and N.; G. 595, N.²; H. 473, 2.

146 18 contio: see Introd. to Manilian Law in notes. The action of the consul would have to be justified before the people, who might regard it as a tyrannical measure. In this justification Cicero would have Cæsar to assist him.

146 20 obtinebo eam, make it appear that it (this view), etc.

146 23 ita . . . liceat: an asseveration like our "so help me God." The point lies in the idea of "so and not otherwise" implied in ita.

146 24 ut . . . moveor, as [it is true that] I am influenced, etc.

146 29 animo, in my mind's eye (prop., abl. of means). — patria, native city.
cum vero: vero introduces (as often) the most striking point. The other conspirators are bad enough, but when, etc.

Vestalium: see note, Cat. iii., sect. 9 (p. 130, l. 19).

si quis: for form, see § 104, a, N.; G. 106, R.; H. 454, 1.

sumpserit: see note on dependisse, sect. 10 (p. 146, l. 7); for tense, see note on statueritis, sect. 11 (p. 146, l. 17).

ut... conlocarent, purp. clause in appos. with id (l. 16).

 nisi vero, etc.: reductio ad absurdum, as usual with this phrase (§ 315, b, N.; G. 591, R.4). — L. Cæsar: L. Cæsar (consul b.c. 64), was a distant relative of the Dictator, son of Lucius Cæsar (consul b.c. 90, the year of the Social War), the author of the law giving citizenship to the Italian allies (see note, Arch., sect. 7). The sister of Lucius Cæsar (the younger) was married to Lentulus, and his mother Fulvia was daughter of M. Fulvius Flaccus, the leading adherent of C. Gracchus. When Gracchus and Flaccus found themselves (b.c. 121) drawn into a collision with the Senate, they sent the young son of Flaccus with a proposition of compromise. The Senate, however, refused to listen to any terms, threw the messenger into prison,—where he was afterwards strangled,—and moved upon the insurgents with all the power of the state. In the contest that followed, both leaders and several thousands of their partisans lost their lives. It was to these events that L. Cæsar had appealed, in justifying his vote in condemnation of his brother-in-law Lentulus.

ejus refers to avum. — legatum: of course the informal messenger of insurgents could have no claim to the title ambassador, or to the privileges which attached to the title in ancient as well as modern times.

quorum limits factum: understand with simile some word describing the present conspiracy (what act of theirs was like this?)

largitionis... versata est: the plans of C. Gracchus embraced not only a lex frumentaria, allowing every citizen to buy a certain amount of corn from the state at less than half its market rate, and a lex agraria, providing for the distribution of public land among the poorer citizens; but also the establishment of several colonies, both in Italy and the provinces, the object of which was at once to provide poor citizens with land, and to relieve the city, by emigration of a part of its proletariat. Though these grants were perhaps just, yet their proposal was regarded by the nobility as a political bid for popular favor, and hence gave rise to violent party jealousies (partium contentio).

avus (see note, Cat. iii., sect. 10): he was an active supporter of the Senate on this occasion; ille (l. 32) refers to the same person.

urbem inflammandam: according to Sallust's Catiline, ch. 43, this work was assigned to Gabinius and Statilius.
Fourth Oration against Catiline.

148 5 vereamini follows censo (ironical), as if with ut omitted.

Sects. 14–19. Severe measures will be supported by the people. The humblest citizens are staunch. The Senators are urged to act fearlessly: the consul will not fail them.

148 12 (Sect. 14.) voces, remarks.

148 13 eorum, on the part of those, etc. — vereri . . . ut: § 331, f; G. 550, 2; II. 498, iii, n.1

148 16 mea, etc.: observe the antithesis between mea summa cura and majore populi . . . voluntate.

148 28 (Sect. 15.) ad, for.

148 29 consentiunt, unite.

149. 1 ita . . . ut, only to, etc. (lit. with this limitation that): see § 319, b; G. 552, r. — summam ordinis consilique, superiority in rank and precedence in counsel.

149 3 hujus ordinis (i.e. the Senate) limits dissensione in the sense of cum hoc, etc. For the long contest here alluded to, see Introd., p. lxv.

149 5 quam si, etc., and if we keep this union, etc.

149 6 confirmo, I assure, in a different sense from confirmatam: Latin style does not (as ours does) object to such repetitions with a variation in meaning.

149 9 tribunos aerarios, deans of the tribes. The Roman people were divided into thirty-five tribes, local and territorial, like wards. These tribes were made the basis of the comitia centuriata, as well as the comitia tributa. They served also as general administrative and financial divisions. From the latter character the name tribuni aerarii was given to their presiding officers.

149 10 scribas: the scribae quaestorii (treasury clerks) formed an important and powerful corporation. As they were a permanent body, while the quaestors (treasurers) were elected annually, they had the real responsibility in the management of the treasury.

149 11 sortis: the quaestors entered upon office on the Nones of December (Dec. 5); all other patrician magistrates on the first of January. The scribae had therefore come together in order to be present while the quaestors drew lots for their provinces.

149 12 (Sect. 16.) ingenuorum, free-born. Freedmen, libertini, were always regarded as inferior in rank, if not in civil and political rights. Even these, however, are shown in the next chapter to be interested in the safety of the republic.

149 18 sua virtute: manumission was very commonly bestowed as the reward of some peculiar merit in the slave.

149 20 hic nati, i.e. citizens, as contrasted with the manumitted slaves (who were for the most part of foreign birth).
"long room," or perhaps two, at the back. See Fig. 39 (Pompeian shop, restored); Fig. 40 shows the arrangement of such shops along the streets.

150. 3 cubile ac lectulum: both words mean nearly the same thing and imply a very humble way of living.

150 4 otiosum, peaceable; so oti (l. 6).

150 8 quorum relates to eorum, three lines above.

150 9 incensis, sc. tabernis.—futurus fuit—fuisset (§ 308, d; G. 597, r.9; H. 511, 2), with prot. implied in incensis.
Fourth Oration against Catiline.

150 11 (Sect. 18.) populi Romani, as contrasted with the Senate: cf. the formula Senatus Populusque Romanus.

151. 2 impiae, impious (in its strict sense of want of filial duty).

151 4 arcem et Capitolium: the Capitoline was a saddle-shaped hill, having the temple of Jupiter Capitolinus (Capitolium) on the southwestern point and the old citadel (arx), on the northeastern (see Cat. iii., sect. 20). Since Jupiter Capitolinus was the protecting divinity of Rome, his temple was the most sacred spot in the whole empire.

151 5 aras Penatium: the Penates were gods of the household and the larder (penus), worshipped by every paterfamilias in his own atrium. The state, being developed from the family, had likewise its Penates, which were fabled to have been brought by Æneas from Troy and established at Lavinium, whence they were transferred to Alba Longa, and afterwards to Rome. Their temple was on the Velia, the low hill connecting the Palatine and Esquiline. — ignem Vesta: the temple of Vesta was on the Sacra Via, towards the Palatine, — a small round building containing the symbolic household fire of the Roman state. See note on the Vestals, Cat. iii., sect. 9 (p. 130, l. 19), above.

151 9 focis: the focus, the symbol of household life, was a brazier for burning charcoal. It originally stood at the rear end of the atrium, or great hall, of the house. Later it was moved, for all practical purposes, to the kitchen, but a representative focus remained in the atrium and continued to be the symbol of household life. Fig. 41 shows a great bronze focus from the baths of Pompeii. The domestic focus was, of course, much smaller, but was similar in shape.

151 11 (Sect. 19.) quae facultas: § 201, d; G. 616, 2.
Notes.

151 13 in civili causa, on a political question.
151 14 quantis . . . delerit: this clause will be best turned into English by translating the participles, fundatum, etc., as verbs, and delerit as a relative clause, — with how great toil this empire was established, which one night, etc. In Latin the question is contained in the interrogative modifiers of imperium and not in the main clause.

IV. Peroratio (§§ 20–24).

Sects. 20–24. Cicero is undismayed: his fame is secure. He has undertaken a perpetual war with the bad elements in the state; but the result is certain. Then let the Senate dare to act rigorously.

151 29 (Sect. 20.) me . . . factorum: for cases, see § 221, b; G. 377; H. 409, iiii.

152. 1 gesta, abl. abs. with re publica.
152 3 (Sect. 21.) Scipio: the elder Africanus, who brought the Second Punic War to a triumphant close by the battle of Zama, B.C. 202. By "carrying the war into Africa," he forced Hannibal to retire from Italy.

152 5 alter Africanus: the younger, surnamed Æmilianus. He was son of L. Æmilius Paulus (mentioned below), and adopted by the son of the elder Africanus. He captured Carthage, B.C. 146, and Numantia, in Spain, B.C. 133.

152 7 Paulus: father of the younger Africanus, and, like his son, the most eminent and upright man of his generation. He brought the Third Macedonian War to a close by the battle of Pydna, B.C. 168, and led King Perseus captive in his triumphal procession.— *currum (triumphalem] the captives did not go with or behind the triumphal chariot, but preceded it in the procession.

152 bis liberavit: by the victories over the German invaders,—over the Teutones at Aque Sextiae (B.C. 102), and the Cimbri at Campi Raudii (B.C. 101).

152 10 Pompeius: it should be remembered that Pompey was now in the East, in the midst of his career of conquest, and that his return was looked for with expectancy by all parties. Cicero took every means to win the confidence of the great general, and gain him over to his views in public affairs; but to no purpose. After some wavering, Pompey associated himself with Caesar, thus giving the Senate a blow from which it never recovered, and preparing the way for his own downfall.

152 13 aliquid loci: § 216, a, 3; G. 369; H. 397, 3.
152 16 (Sect. 22.) quamquam, and yet. — uno loco, in one respect.
152 18 oppressi serviunt, are crushed and enslaved (§ 292, r.).

153. 1 (Sect. 23.) pro imperio, in place of: all these honors, which Cicero might have gained by a foreign command, he has renounced in order to stay at home and protect the city.

153 4 clientelis hospitiis: the relation of cliens to patronus was that of a subordinate to a superior, carrying with it services on the one side and protection on the other; the hospites were, on the other hand, equals, and their connection was one of mutual aid and friendship. Foreign states and citizens were eager to form such ties with influential Romans, and they were equally advantageous to the Roman. Of course a provincial governor had peculiar opportunities for this.

153 5 urbanis opibus, the means afforded by a city life. Such ties would be more easily formed by a sojourn in a province, but they could also be formed by a statesman who remained at home; for the value of such a relation to the provincial consisted in the opportunities for protection and assistance which the statesman possessed in the city itself.

153 6 pro meis studiis, in return for my efforts.
153 10 quae dum, and as long as this. — mentibus: § 254, a; H. 425, 12.

153 15 suo solius: § 197, e; G. 321, r.²; H. 398, 3.
153 20 (Sect. 24.) eum . . . qui, a consul who, etc. (§ 102, d).
153 22 per se ipsum praestare, make good [so far as he may] on his own part.
Notes.

ORATION FOR ARCHIAS.

ARGUMENT.

Chap. 1. Exordium. Cicero's obligations to Archias. — 2. He justifies the unusual tone of his argument. — Narratio. 3. Early career of Archias: he is enrolled as a citizen of Heraclia. — Confirmatio. 4. His technical claim: his registry, acts of citizenship, domicile. — 5. Argument from the public records. — 6. The case is now closed. Further argument is unnecessary. Literature an indispensable relaxation, and also a source of moral strength. — 7. All famous men have been devoted to letters. — 8, 9. Great artists are of themselves worthy of admiration. The poet is especially sacred: he is the herald of fame. — 10. Greek is a surer passport to fame than Latin. Men inferior to Archias have been honored with citizenship. — 11, 12. Fame is the strongest motive to acts of public virtue. Literature is the most enduring of monuments. — Peroratio. 12 (sect. 31). Appeal to the court to protect Archias the poet in his rights.

I. Exordium (§§ 1–3).

Sects. 1–3. Cicero's obligations to Archias make it a duty to undertake his defence. The unusual tone of the argument justified.

Page 154. Line 1. (Sect. 1.) judices, i.e. the members of a special court (quaestio) established by the Lex Papia (see Introd. to the oration, p. 154) to inquire into cases arising under that law.

154 3 versatum: cf. the date of the defence of Roscius and the opening passage of that oration. — hujusce rei, i.e. dicendi.

155. 1 ratio, knowledge, i.e. theoretic acquaintance, contrasted with exercitatio, practice.

155 3 A. Licinius: following the custom of naturalized foreigners, as well as freedmen, Archias had taken the gentile name of his noble friends and patrons, the Luculli. Cicero's motive in always speaking of him by his Roman name is obvious.

155 6 inde usque, from as far back as that, I say.

155 7 principem, master.

155 8 rationem, course. For the connection of the meanings of this word see Vocab.

155 10 a quo relates to huic, which is dat. after ferre; quo relates to id: surely, to the man himself from whom I have received that whereby, etc.

155 11 ceteris, all the rest [of my fellow-citizens], i.e. other than Archias. — alios, some of them.
Oration for Archias.

155 18 opem corresponds to opitulari; salutem, to salvare.
155 14 (Sect. 2.) neque, and not.
155 15 dicendi ratio aut disciplina, art or science of oratory. — ne nos quidem, etc., i.e. not even I, though by profession an orator, have devoted myself to oratory alone.
155 20 (Sect. 3.) quaestione legitima: see note on judices, p. 154, l. 1.
155 22 severissimos, i.e. before men of the old Roman stamp, who might not be favorably impressed by such praise of literature.
155 24 forensi sermone is not used here in its special meaning, “the language of the courts,” but in its wider sense, the language of the Forum, i.e. the ordinary tone of practical affairs (the Forum being the centre of Roman business and politics).
155 27 ut ... patiamini, a purp. clause in appos. with veniam (l. 25).
155 28 hoc concursu, loc. abl. expressing the circumstances; so also hac vestra humanitate, with men of your cultivation.
155 29 hoc praetore: Q. Cicero was himself a poet and man of critical taste.
155 30 paulo ... liberius, with somewhat unusual freedom (§ 93, a; G. 297; H. 444, 1).
155 31 otium ac studium, a quiet life of study (almost hendiadys); so judicis periculisque, below.

II. NARRATIO (§§ 4–6).

Sects. 4–6. Earlier career of Archias. His celebrity in Asia and elsewhere. His removal to Rome and his distinguished patrons there. He becomes a citizen of Heraclia.
156. 3 (Sect. 4.) cum, causal, but best translated when.
156 4 esset : for tense, see § 337, b, i ; G. 597, r.4; H. 527, iii.
156 5 asciscendum fuisse : in the direct, asciscendus erat (§ 308, d; G. 597, r.8 a; H. 511, 2); cf. note on Pompey’s Mil. Command, sect. 49 (p. 88, l. 32), erat deligendus.
156 9 urbe : § 184, c; G. 411, r.8; H. 363, 4.
156 12 contigit : sc. ei, i.e. Archais. — post, afterwards.
156 15 (Sect. 5.) tunc, at that time. This was the long period of comparative quiet between the Gracchan disturbances (B.C. 133–121) and the tribunate of Drusus (B.C. 91), which was followed by the Social War and the civil wars of Marius and Sulla.
156 16 Latia: not the geographical Latium merely, but all towns which at that time possessed Latin citizenship; that is, the Latin colonies, such as Venusia, the birthplace of the poet, Horace.

156 21 de ingenii, i.e. could form some opinion about the talents of literary men.

156 23 absentibus, people at a distance. — Mario et Catulo (cos. B.C. 102); of these, Marius was renowned for his exploits, while Catulus was a good officer, and also a man of culture.

156 25 nactus est, etc., he happened to find holding the consulship. — eos quorum alter, men of such a kind that one of them, etc. This would not only furnish him with themes for his poetry but insure appreciation of his genius.

156 27 Luculli: Lucius, the one who fought against Mithridates, and his brother Marcus: both of them belonged to the highest ranks of the aristocracy, and were men of distinguished taste and culture.

156 29 ingeni, pred. gen. after an understood erat: this was [a proof] not only of his genius, etc.

156 30 ut . . . esset, result clause in app. with hoc (l. 29).

157 1 (sect. 6.) jucundus, etc.: ever since the introduction of Greek culture at Rome, it had been customary for cultivated Romans of high rank to entertain Greek men of letters in their houses, partly as tutors and partly as companions. Such associates frequently accompanied their patrons on their journeys and even on their campaigns. — Metello Numidico: the most distinguished member of this family. He was predecessor of Marius in the war against Jugurtha, and from this service in Numidia received his agnomen.

157 2 Aemilio, i.e. M. Aemilius Scaurus (cos. B.C. 115), for many years princeps senatus.

157 3 Catulo: see note, sect. 5. — L. Crasso: the most distinguished orator of his time, a man of genius and culture (see Introd., ch. ii.): he died B.C. 91.

157 4 Drusus (M. Livius), tribune B.C. 91, a distinguished orator and statesman, who lost his life in a vain attempt to reconcile the aristocratic and democratic factions in the republic. — Octavius: see Cat. iii., sect. 24. — Catonem: probably the father of the famous Cato of Utica is meant.

157 5 Hortensiorum: the most eminent of these was Q. Hortensius, the rival of Cicero and his opponent in the case of Verres.

157 8 si qui forte, those (if there were any) who, etc.

157 11 Heracliam: an important Greek city, on the southern coast of Lucania. In the war with Pyrrhus it had fought on the side of the Romans, and, B.C. 278, it entered into an alliance of the closest and most favorable character (aequissimo jure ac foedere).
III. CONFIRMATIO (§§ 7–30).

Sects. 7–11. Archias received Roman citizenship under the Lex Plautia-Papiria, complying with all the provisions of that law. The evidence of this cannot be shaken; the testimony of the census is unnecessary. No further argument is needed: the case is closed.

157 15 (SECT. 7.) Silvani lege, etc., i.e., the Lex Plautia-Papiria, of the tribunes M. Plautius Silvanus and C. Papirius Carbo (not to be confounded with his infamous cousin Cneius, the Marian leader after the death of Cinna), extended the Roman citizenship to all Italian communities which had not yet received it. These towns now exchanged their independence for Roman citizenship, and became incorporated with the republic, though many of them, as Heraclia, hesitated about making the change, and did it with great reluctance. They lost all rights of independent government (such as that of coining money, the jus exsili, etc.). Latin became the official language; justice was administered by Roman law; and in most cases their government was organized on the model of Rome, having duumviri for consuls, and a curia for the Senate. The passage here given from the Plautian-Papirian Law contains its application to citizens of foreign birth, like Archias.—si qui, etc.: the law is quoted in indir. disc., but the main clause is omitted, being implied in data est (see § 341, c; G. 663, 2, b).

157 18 essent professi, should have declared their intention.

157 19 Q. Metellum [Pium], praetor, B.C. 89: the most eminent living member of this family, and one of the leaders of the aristocracy.

157 22 (SECT. 8.) Grati, the complainant (see Introd., p. 154 of text).

158. 1 religione, conscientiousness.

158 6 desideras, call for (lit. miss, feel the want of).—Italico bello (§ 259, a; G. 394, r.; H. 429), i.e. the Social War.

158 11 municipi: since the bestowal of the Roman citizenship, the Italian civitates had become Roman municipia (see Introd., p. liii).

158 12 idem, you yourself (lit. the same man).

158 15 (SECT. 9.) In sect. 8 Cicero shows that Archias was a citizen of Heraclia and so came under the first requirement of the law; in sect. 9 he claims that his client had also complied with the other two requirements (domicilium and professio). —civitatem datam, i.e. by the law before cited.

158 17 professione, list of declarations.

158 18 conlegio: the prætors, when regarded as a whole, could be spoken of as a "board."
cum, while. — Appi, i.e. Appius Claudius, husband of Cæcilia (the friend of Roscius: see Rosc. Am., sect. 50) and father of the infamous Clodius.

Gabini: see Introd. to Pompey's Military Command.

damnationem: he was condemned, B.C. 54, for extortion on complaint of the Achæans.

L. Lentulum: nothing further is known of him; he probably presided over a court (judices) to determine cases involving citizenship under the new law.

 multis and praeditis are dat. after impertiebat; arte, abl. after praeditis.

Graecia, i.e. Magna Græcia, the Greek cities of Italy.

credo (ironical), I suppose. — Locrensis: Locri Epizephyrii, a Greek city near Rhegium.

quod relates to id, which is governed by largiri understood.

ingeni limits gloria, which depends on praedito.

civitatem datam, i.e. by the Lex Plautia-Papiria.

legem Papiam: see Introd. to the Oration, p. 154 of text.

illis, sc. tabulis, i.e. of Tarentum, Rhegium, and Naples.

census: the lists of citizens made out by the censors for purposes of taxation. These were, of course, excellent evidence on a question of citizenship; but they were not needed in this case. — requiris: cf. desideras in the same sense in sect. 8 (p. 158, l. 6).

est obscurum (ironical), it is not generally known. — proximis, abl. of time: translate by under. The censors referred to were L. Gellius and Cn. Lentulus (B.C. 70). — clarissimo: observe the art with which Cicero here again calls attention to the connection of Archias with the distinguished Romans any one of whom could at any moment have procured him the citizenship if he had not already possessed it.

apud exercitum, i.e. in the war against Mithridates (see Oration for the Manilian Law). — superioribus, sc. censoribus. New censors were regularly appointed every five years: those here referred to were Q. Marcus Philippus and M. Perperna (B.C. 86). In the present instance the succession had been interfered with by Sulla but restored in B.C. 70.

In Asia: this was in the First Mithridatic War, in which Lucullus served as quæstor to Sulla. — primis, i.e. the first after the passage of the Lex Plautia-Papiria: these were L. Julius Cæsar and P. Crassus (B.C. 89).

esse versatum (sc. eum), had availed himself of: this clause is the obj. of criminaris. — testamentum, etc., acts which no foreigner could do.
Oration for Archias.

159 16 in beneficiis, etc.: his name was reported for a reward from the state (i.e. on the ground of some special merit): this, of course, implied citizenship.

159 18 suo, etc., i.e. Archias and his friends knew that he was a citizen and had acted as such, whatever might be said on the other side.

At this point Cicero practically rests his case. The remainder of his speech is devoted to the praise of poetry and literature. This eulogy is, however, skilfully connected with the argument. Literature is useful in the state, he contends, and poets are particularly in favor with great men. Hence Archias could not have failed to receive the citizenship as a gift from some of his illustrious Roman friends if he had not held it already. Since he is a citizen, so eminent and useful a man should be protected in his rights.

Sects. 12–16. Literature is an indispensable relaxation: and also a source of moral strength. Hence all famous men have been devoted to letters. The dignity and delight of liberal study.

159 20 (Sect. 12.) ubi (=locum ubi) ... reficiatur, rel. clause of purpose.

159 22 suppeterere has for subject the suppressed antecedent of quod. — posse (with a fut. force), should be able.

159 24 contentionem, strain.

159 25 ego (emphat.), etc., for my part I admit, etc. We should remember that the more old-fashioned of Cicero’s contemporaries were still inclined to regard literary and artistic pursuits as frivolous in comparison with the more ”truly Roman” professions of war and politics (cf. Aeneid, vi. 847 ff.). Hence it was important for Cicero to show that literature was of practical value to the man of affairs.

159 26 his studiis, the study of letters in general, including all varieties of literature, poetry as well as prose.

159 30 nullius tempore, etc., the necessities or interests of no one (i.e. as a client).

160. 1 (Sect. 13.) ceteris depends on conceditur (l. 4).

160 3 ad ipsam requiem, even to repose.

160 4 temporum limits quantum (l. 3), which has tantum (l. 6) for antecedent. — alii: notice how this differs in meaning from ceteris (l. 1), — the first mentioned pursuits (attending to business, celebrating festivals, etc.) are common to everybody, the last (being dissipations) belong only to “some people.” — tempestivis convivis, early dinners, i.e. beginning by daylight, or in business hours, — a mark of luxury and idleness: we should refer to “late dinners.”

160 8 oratio et facultas, hendiadys. — quantacumque, etc., i.e. such as I have (a modest disclaimer).
160 9 periculis: Cicero prided himself on defending cases rather than acting for the prosecution (cf. amicorum temporibus, etc., Pompey's Mil. Command, sect. 1).
160 10 quæ, i.e. the mere ability to speak. — illa (obj. of hauriam), i.e. the moral character resulting from the praecpta mentioned below.
160 12 (Sect. 14.) multorum, i.e. great minds whose thoughts have found expression in literature. — multis litteris, wide reading.
160 13 nihil esse, etc.: these doctrines had been the commonplaces of philosophy and letters for hundreds of years before Cicero wrote, and to the cultivated Roman they took the place which with us belongs to the ethical teachings of sacred literature.
160 16 parvi, of slight account (§ 252, a ; G. 379, 380, 1 ; H.
404).
160 19 exemplorum, i.e. examples of heroism and virtue recorded in literature. The moral education of the ancients consisted largely in the study of the lives of eminent men of past ages.
160 21 accederet, were thrown upon them.
160 27 (Sect. 15.) Observe the attitude of the Romans toward literature, which they valued as a source of ethical and political cultivation, and not, like the Greeks, for its own sake or as a means of affording aesthetic pleasure.
161. 9 (Sect. 16.) ex hoc, etc.: Cicero enumerates the most distinguished patrons of the newly introduced Greek culture. Cato is separated from the rest because he was in theory opposed to this tendency on account of its imagined ill effects: hence the rather apologetic tone in which Cicero speaks of him.
161 10 Africanum: Scipio the younger (Æmilianus). — Lælius:
the younger Lælius (surnamed Sapiens), whose friendship with Scipio Æmilianus forms the groundwork of Cicero's famous treatise De Amicitia.
— Furium: L. Furîus Philus (cos. b.c. 136), a patron of literature. These three men belonged to the so-called Scipionic Circle, which was especially influential in the introduction of Greek culture.
161 12 Catonem: M. Porcius Cato, called the Censor, was one of the leading men of Rome in the first half of the second century b.c.: a shrewd, hard-headed Roman of the old school, full of prejudices, and priding himself on his blunt manners. He was a distinguished antiquarian, and wrote books on antiquities and agriculture.
161 13 senem: he gives the name to Cicero's dialogue on Old Age (Cato Major).
161 15-23 quod si, etc.: even if literature, Cicero argues, had no great practical or ethical value (as it has), it would still be worthy of respect as a Oration for Archias.

means of mental refreshment and diversion. The passage is a very famous tribute to liberal studies.

161 18 ceterae, sc. animi adversiones (from l. 17).
161 21 adversis [rebus], dat. with prae bent.

Sects. 17–24. Great artists are themselves worthy of admiration. The poet is especially sacred: he is the herald of fame. Alexander at the tomb of Achilles.

161 25 (Sect. 17.) deberemus: § 308, c, N. 1; G. 597, R. 8, b; H. cf. 511, 1, N. 8.
161 26 videremus: subj. because an integral part of the cont. to fact apodosis.

161 27 Rosci: Q. Roscius, the most eminent actor of his time, defended by Cicero in a speech which is still extant.
161 30 corporis: observe the emphatic position as opposed to animor um (l. 31). In the ancient drama the action was much more important as compared with the delivery and facial expression than is the case on the modern stage.

162, 2 (Sect. 18.) novo gener e: such praise of letters was, of course, an innovation on the formal proceedings of a Roman court.—quotiens, etc.: given as a remarkable instance of poetical improvisation illustrating the celeritas mentioned in l. 31, above.

162 5 revocatum [hunc], subj. of dicere. The encore was a common Roman practice, as with us.

162 10 sic, this (referring to the indir. disc. that follows).
162 14 Q. Ennius: the father of Latin poetry. He was born at Rudiae in Magna Græcia (B.C. 239), but wrote in Latin. His principal work was the Annales, an epic poem upon Roman history, lost except for a few fragments.

162 19 (Sect. 19.) bestiae, etc.; alluding to the myths of Orpheus and Arion (see Ovid, Met. 3, Fasti, ii. 83–118; Virg. Eccl. viii. 56).
162 21 Homerum, etc.: the names of the cities which thus claimed Homer are given in the following hexameter verse:

Smyrna, Chios, Colophon, Salamis, Rhodos, Argos, Athenae.

162 27 olim, almost equiv. to an adj. (cf. § 188, c; G. 439, N. 4; H. 359, N. 4).

162 29 Cimbricas res: the war with the Cimbri and Teutones, who invaded Italy and were at length defeated by Marius (the Teutones, B.C. 102; the Cimbri, 101).

162 30 durior: Marius was a rude and illiterate soldier. The illustration (p. 163) shows what seems to be the most trustworthy portrait of Marius (from the impression of a coin, now lost); various busts have been identified with him, but without any probable evidence.

163. 3 (Sect. 20.) Themistoclem: the great Athenian statesman and general, who won the battle of Salamis, in the second Persian invasion (B.C. 480), and afterwards, by his skilful policy, raised Athens to its greatest height of power.

163 8 (Sect. 21.) For the statements in this section, see Oration for Manilian Law.

163 14 natura et regione, hendiadys.

163 17 ejusdem, i.e. Lucullus.

163 19 nostra, as ours (predicate), agreeing with pugna. Cicero means that these exploits, since they have been immortalized by Archias, will always remain the glory of the Roman people.

164. 3 quae, these things (just mentioned); quorum limits ingenii, and refers to eis.

164 4 (Sect. 22.) Africano superiori: the conqueror of Hannibal.

164 5 in sepulcro Scipionum: this tomb on the Appian Way has been discovered, and in it a bust of peperino (not marble), which has by some been supposed to be that here referred to. It now stands upon the sarcophagus of Scipio in the Vatican museum (Fig. 42).
Oration for Archias.

164 a hujus: M. Porcius Cato, later called Uticensis, from his killing himself at Utica after Caesar's victory. Cato the Censor was his great-grandfather.

164 10 Maximii, etc.: Q. Fabius Maximus, "the shield of Rome," in the Second Punic War; M. Marcellus, "the sword of Rome" (see note on p. 48, l. 5); Q. Fulvius Flaccus, a distinguished officer in the same war.

164 11 illum, i.e. Ennius.

164 13 Heracliensem: Heraclia (see note, sect. 6, p. 157, l. 11), as being an important city, is here contrasted with the insignificant Rudiae. — civitatis: § 232, a; G. 354; H. 388, 1.

164 18 (Sect. 23.) Graeca leguntur, Greek is read. Greek was, in the ancient world, almost the universal language of polite society; cf. the use of French in modern times.

164 21 quo (whither) relates to eodem (thither); cupere governs the clause quo . . . penetrare.

165 1 populis, dat. after ampla, a noble thing for them.

165 2 eis, i.e. the individuals by whom these exploits are performed as contrasted with their peoples as a whole.

165 10 (Sect. 24.) Magnus, i.e. Pompey.

Sects. 25–30. Many would have been glad to give Archias the citizenship if he had not already possessed it. All men thirst for glory, which he can confer. Literature is the most enduring of monuments.

165 17 (Sect. 25.) esset: § 308, a; G. 597, r.1; H. 510, n.3—civitate donaretur: § 225, d; G. 348; H. 384, ii, 2.

165 18 donaret, sc. civitate.

165 19 repudiasset: the protasis is implied in petentem.—quem, subj. of jubere, below.

165 20 de populo, of the people, i.e. of low birth. — quod . . . fecisset, which he had made as an epigram (poetical address) to him (for gender, see § 195, d; G. cf. 211, r.5; H. 445, 4).

165 21 tantummodo . . . longiusculis, merely with the alternate verses a little longer, i.e. it was written in some metre in which (as in elegiac verse) long and short lines alternated; tantummodo implies that this was its only merit.

165 22 eis rebus: i.e. confiscated goods. Apparently a commander could take out from the booty anything he desired to bestow upon a soldier as a reward; and here the confiscated goods are treated in the same manner.

165 30 (Sect. 26.) pingue atque peregrinum, cognate accusative ($\S$ 240, a; G. 333, 2, N. 6; H. 371, ii).

166 2 prae nobis ferendum, a thing to be proud of.

166 3 optimus quisque: § 93, c; G. 318, 2; H. 458, 1.

166 5 in eo ipso, in the very act.

166 6 praedicari, impersonal.

166 7 (Sect. 27.) Brutus: D. Junius Brutus (cos. b.c. 138) conquered the Lusitanians (of Portugal).

166 8 Acci: L. Accius (less properly Attius), a tragic poet (born b.c. 170); distinguished for vigor and sublimity; he lived long enough for Cicero in his youth to converse with him.

166 10 Fulvius: M. Fulvius Nobilior (cos. b.c. 189) subdued Aetolia. He was distinguished as a friend of Greek literature, and built from the spoils of war, a temple to Hercules and the Muses.

166 12 prope armati, having scarce laid aside their arms.

166 14 togati: see note, Cat. ii., sect. 28, p. 125, l. 17.

166 18 (Sect. 28.) quas res, i.e. the suppression of Catiline's conspiracy.

166 23 adornavi, I supplied him with materials (i.e. facts).

166 25 quid est quod, etc.: § 317, 2; G. 631, 2; H. 497, i.

166 30 (Sect. 29.) nec tantis, etc.: here the apok begins.

167 5 (Sect. 30.) parvi animi ($\S$ 215; G. 365; H. 396, v), mean-spirited.

167 9 imagines, busts. Whoever held any curule office (dictator, consul, interrex, praetor, curule ædile) thereby secured to his posterity the jus imaginum, i.e. the right to place in their halls and carry in funeral processions a wax mask of him as well as of any other deceased members of the family of curule rank. Since this right was a distinguishing mark of the Roman nobility, it was naturally highly prized.

IV. PERORATIO ($\S$ 31).

Sect. 31. Archias the poet should be protected in the rights of citizenship, which are legally his.

167 20 (Sect. 31.) pudore eo, of such high character (i.e. sense of honor and self-respect, as contrasted with the unprincipled Greek hang- ers-on with whom Roman society was infested).

167 22 vetustate, i.e. long-continued friendship (see sect. 5).—id existimari depends on convenit, it is fitting.
DEFENCE OF MILO.

ARGUMENT.

CHAP. 1, 2. Exordium. The court is surrounded by armed men. But the jurors need not fear: public sympathy is with Milo: the jurors are free to maintain justice. Unfortunate position of the defendant. Clodius can be proved to have been the aggressor in the affray: Milo acted in self-defence. — Confutatio. I. 3, 4. Homicide is not always a crime; it is especially justifiable in self-defence. — II. 5, 6 (sect. 14). The decree of the Senate touches only the riot: it does not determine the guilty party. — III. 6 (sect. 15), 7, 8. Pompey’s action in carrying a law for the establishment of this investigation was not prejudicial to Milo. He left the question of Milo’s guilt to the court. — Narratio. 9–11. The question is, Which lay in wait for the other? History of the controversy. Why Clodius desired Milo’s death, and how he planned to meet him; the encounter on the Appian Way. — Confirmatio. I. 12, 13. Which was to be the gainer by the other’s death? Strong motive in the case of Clodius; no motive in Milo’s case. — 14. Habitual violence of Clodius: opposite character of Milo. — 15, 16. Milo had before spared Clodius when he had good opportunities to kill him: would he have plotted his death on so unfavorable an occasion? — 17–19. How Clodius knew of Milo’s journey, and informed himself of his setting out: pretext of the death of Cyrus. Milo knew nothing of Clodius’ movements. — 20, 21. Comparison of the conditions: Milo was on strange ground, and unprepared. Clodius was fully prepared. — 22. Why Milo manumitted his slaves: it was a generous and right act, and not for the sake of suppressing testimony. The evidence of Clodius’ slaves goes for nothing. — 23–26. Milo’s after acts: the false charges against him, especially of plotting against Pompey: the supposed hostility of Pompey explained away. — II. 27–30. Yet if Milo had killed Clodius purposely, all would have approved. The crimes of Clodius: would any have him restored to life?
If Milo had slain him, he might have claimed glory for the deed. — 31–33.
It was the act of the gods, who first made Clodius mad, that he might rush on his destruction. — Peroratio. 34. Milo deserves the compassion of the judges: he bids farewell to the ungrateful city. — 35. Calmly resigned, he appeals to the judgment of posterity. — 36, 37. Milo's cause is Cicero's own. Cicero appeals to the judges in his own name. The exile of Milo will be a calamity to the defenders of Rome. — 38. Happy the country that receives him! Closing appeal to the court.

I. Exordium (§§ 1–6).

Sects. 1–4. The court is surrounded by armed men, but the jurors need not fear: the guards are not hostile to Milo and all good men are on his side: the jurors are free to maintain justice.

Page 171. Line 4. (Sect. 1.) perturbetur de, is alarmed for.

171 5 novi judicii, i.e. the special tribunal established by vote of the people to try all cases arising out of the brawl between Milo and Clodius.
On this occasion the court was surrounded, not by the usual throng of spectators, but by an armed guard (see Introd., p. 170 of text), — hence nova forma.

171 7 requirunt, miss, seek in vain.

171 9 (Sect. 2.) pro templis: see plan of Forum. The guards held the entrances to these temples as important strategic points for defence against the mob. — non ... non adferunt aliquid, do not fail to bring something (of terror or constraint).

171 11 ut ... possimus, so that we cannot even be relieved of fear (non timere) without some fear. — foro, judicio: such a display of arms in places especially devoted to occupations of peace must necessarily cause some uneasiness.

171 14 si ... putarem: Cicero artfully assumes, throughout the oration, that the authorities (including Pompey) are on the side of Milo.

171 16 me recreat: to preserve the emphatic position we may change
the voice, — I am reassured; so reficit, I am revived.

171 17 justitiae suae: § 214, a; G. 366; II. 401; so sapientiae in
1. 19.

171 18 putaret, would not have thought' (§ 311, a; G. 258; II. 485 and N.1). — tradidisset, subjunc. of integral part.

171 92 (Sect. 3.) illa arma, etc.: on the first day of the trial, when
M. Marcellus began to cross-examine one of the witnesses against Milo, he was so terrified by the rush of the mob, that he took refuge on the praettor's bench. Pompey, alarmed by the same disturbance, came down next day with an armed guard, and the trial was allowed to proceed without interruption.

171 23 quieto, etc., i.e. not only to be undisturbed but to be greatly encouraged.

171 25 quaer quidem est civium, so far at least as it consists of citizens (covertly suggesting that the supporters of Clodius were not citizens, but gladiators and the like).

171 26 neque . . . non, etc.: notice the double negative, — there is no one . . . who does not, etc.

171 30 decertari (impersonal), that the conflict is. Here Cicero suggests what one of the chief points of his defence is to be, — that Milo had always acted in defence of the state.

172. 1 eorum, namely, of those: § 214, e; G. 368, r.; H. cf. 397, i.

172 3 hosterna contione, yesterday's harangue. The day before, after the court adjourned, one T. Munatius Plancus (see sect. 12) had harangued the crowd, urging them to be on hand next day, and not suffer Milo to escape. On this day, the last of the trial, shops were closed throughout the city; Pompey posted guards in the Forum and all its approaches; he himself sat, as on the day before, in front of the Treasury, girt with a select body of troops. When Cicero began to speak, "he was received by an outcry of the party of Clodius, who could not be restrained even by fear of the surrounding soldiery."

172 4 judicaretis: § 268; G. 259; II. 486, ii.

172 6 retineatis: the penalty for the offence with which Milo was charged was banishment, by which he would lose his rights as citizen.

172 11 (Sect. 4.) locus, opportunity. — amplissimorum ordinum: the court was made up of Senators, equites, and tribuni aerarii.

172 12 delectis: the whole body of jurors (360) was selected; though the particular jury (of 51) was drawn by lot.

172 14 re et sententiiis, by act and verdict.

Sects. 5, 6. Unfortunate position of the defendant, whose efforts in behalf of the state have brought him before the courts. Cicero declines to urge Milo's public services as a defence: he will rest the whole case on his ability to show that Clodius was the aggressor in the affray.

172 20 (Sect. 5.) nobis duobus, than we two, i.e. the orator and his client. Cicero constantly associates himself with Milo in this fashion, thus not merely following the custom of advocates, but also representing Milo as engaged in the same kind of opposition to the dangerous elements in the state as that which had made his own consulship illustrious.

172 23 crudelissimorum: exile was the worst that Milo had to fear.
Here Cicero alludes to his own experience of it, which had resulted from his patriotic efforts against the Catilinarian conspirators.

172 ceteras, etc.: it was to be expected that a politician should undergo abuse and even illegal violence in the stormy public life of the time, but such dangers were not to be anticipated in an impartial court.

172 ex cunctis ordīnibus: see note on ordinum, sect. 4 (p. 172, l. 11).

172 salutem, i.e. not his personal safety in the modern sense, but his political rights (see note on l. 23, above).

172 talis viros: it was admitted, says Asconius, that no body of jurors had ever been more illustrious or just than those who composed this court.

173 quamquam, and yet (corrective). — tribunatu: in the year 57 B.C. Milo, as tribune, had materially assisted in procuring the recall of Cicero from banishment. It was partly gratitude for this service that led Cicero to undertake Milo's defence.

173 abutemur, take unfair advantage of. Cicero declines to use Milo's services to the state as an argument in his favor, and boldly declares that he will put the case on the bare facts, contending that Milo acted in self-defence. But in the very act of declining to dwell on these services he subtly emphasizes them.

II. Confutatio (§§ 7–22).

The Confutatio (or answer to objections) in this case precedes the Confirmatio (or affirmative argument). Certain notions, Cicero says, must be got out of the way, as being prejudicial to his client, before the main question is taken up. These are: (i.) that a self-confessed homicide is guilty of crime (answered by showing that it is sometimes lawful to kill a man, especially in self-defence: sects. 7–11); (ii.) that the Senate prejudged Milo guilty when it voted that the affray was unlawful violence (contra rem publicam factam) (answered by showing that it was the fact of the disorder, and not the guilt or innocence of either party to it, that the Senate passed upon: sects. 12–14); (iii.) that Pompey similarly prejudged Milo's guilt by providing for the present special investigation (answered in a similar way: sects. 15–22). Having cleared the ground by disposing of these three matters, Cicero proceeds to the real question at issue: Which of the two, Milo or Clodius, lay in wait to kill the other?

173 fuerit, subjunct. of integral part.

I. Sects. 7–11. Homicide is not always unjustifiable. It is allowed in a case of self-defence, like the present.
Defence of Milo.

173 13 (SECT. 7.) _ad eam orationem, to that line of argument._
173 14 _videntur, etc.: § 330, b, 1; G. 528, r.2; H. 534, i, n.1._
173 20 _primum, i.e. the first capital trial that occurred in Rome._
173 21 _M. Horati: the famous story of the three Horatii and the three Curiatii. When Horatius was condemned to death for the murder of his sister, he was acquitted on appeal to the people; and this incident passed as the origin of _provocatio_, or appeal to the people from the decision of a magistrate. — _nondum libera, i.e. under the kings: it was in the reign of Tullus Hostilius, B.C. 668._
173 22 _comitiis, i.e. by the vote of the Roman people assembled to decide the appeal._

173 26 (SECT. 8.) _P. Africanum, i.e. _Æmilianus: he was cousin (by adoption) and brother-in-law of Gracchus, and friendly to the spirit of his reforms, although not sympathizing with his violent course._
173 27 _C. Carbone: C. Carbo was an unscrupulous politician who supported Ti. Gracchus, but afterwards was a bitter antagonist of C. Gracchus._

173 30 _Ahala, etc.: these are cases which would have to be called infamous murders unless the principle that homicide is sometimes justifiable were admitted. The instances referred to were stock examples in Roman oratory (see Cat. i., sects. 3, 4), though in fact Ahala and the others were all driven into exile by a reaction of popular feeling._

173 31 _senatus: because the execution of the Catilinarion conspirators was by vote of the Senate._

174 2 _fictis fabulis, properly, _mythical dramas_: the reference is to the _Eumenides_ of _Æschylus, which treats of the expiation of the guilt of Orestes, son of Agamemnon, at the court of Areopagus in Athens. When six judges had pronounced for condemnation and six for acquittal, Pallas gave her casting-vote for mercy. — _doctissimi, i.e. the greatest poets._

174 6 (SECT. 9.) _duodecim tabulae: the "Twelve Tables" were the code which formed the basis of Roman law, drawn up B.C. 451 by an elected board of ten commissioners (_decemviri._ This codification of the laws continued in force, and was the starting-point of the legal education of every Roman, and of all later development of Roman law. — _quoquo modo, under any circumstances._

174 8 _quoquo modo, in whatever way._ — _quid (indefinite), one; the preceding quis is interrogative._

174 13 _vi vis . . . defenditur, violence offered is repelled by force._ — _puericitiam . . . eriperet, tried to rob of his honor._

174 14 _tribunus: C. Lusius, son of Marius' sister. This was a stock instance among rhetoricians, in arguing the just limits of self-defence._
174 17 sceler e solutum, acquitted of guilt.
174 18 (Sect. 10.) vero, introducing, as usual, a strong case.
174 19 comitatus, body-guard, which would seem to have been a common thing among these gentlemen of Rome, as among the partisan chieftains of the Middle Ages.
174 20 volunt, mean.
174 23 adripuimus, caught; hausimus, imbibed; expressimus, wrought out; imbuti, steeped.
175 1 ut . . . esset, purp. clause after lex (a word of decreeing).
175 2 incidisset: in the words of the lex,—inciderit.
175 3 (Sect. 11.) silent: notice the emphatic position.
175 4 velit, subjunctive because of sit.—ante . . . quam: § 262; G. 574, r.1; H. p. 293; footnote 1.
175 5 etsi, i.e. there is no need for me to appeal to the law of nature to establish the right to kill in self-defence, for this right is established by the judicial interpretation of a particular statute (of Sulla). This statute (de sicariis) dealt with murder in general and went so far as to provide a penalty for the carrying of a weapon with intent to kill. The courts had ruled, says Cicero, that, under this law, a man who carried a weapon for self-defence was not carrying it hominis occidendi causid in the meaning of the statute.
175 10 judicaretur: the subject is antecedent of qui.
175 11 hoc maneant in causa, let this point stand as the law of the case.

II. Sects. 12–14. The decree of the Senate touches only the fact of the riot: it does not determine the guilty party. The question of Milo's guilt or innocence is left to the court without prejudgment.
175 14 (Sect. 12.) sequitur illud, the next point is this (§ 344, d, 1).
175 16 contra rem publicam factum: a technical phrase, amounting to "unlawful (unconstitutional) violence"; cf. our "a breach of the peace."
—illam, i.e. caedem.
175 17 sententiis, i.e. its expressed vote; studiis, i.e. the interest it displayed in Milo's behalf.
175 19 nec tacitis, loudly; nec occultis, in plain terms.
176. 1 declarant: to preserve the emphasis we may change the voice,—it is shown by, etc.—hujus ambusti tribuni: the body of Clodius, left in the highway, had been picked up and sent to Rome, where its wounds were exposed to public gaze, till, in the fury of the time, it was dragged to the Senate-house. Here a funeral-pile was made of desks, benches, and other furniture, and in the conflagration the Senate-house itself, with several other buildings, was destroyed. The tribune T.
Munatius Plancus, who incited the mob to burn the body, is called ambustus, fire-scorched, because his influence suffered in the reaction of public feeling which followed the unintended conflagration; hence, too, his harangues (contiones) are referred to as still-born (intermortuae).

176 2 potentiam, unlawful domination.
176 6 officiosos, serviceable, in the way of forensic advocacy.
176 8 sane, if you like; or for aught I care.
176 10 (Sect. 13.) vero, in reference to the statement at the beginning of sect. 12. — hanc quaestionem, this special court.

176 14 cujus: observe that the relative precedes the antecedent (ejus), as often in Latin. There is no antecedent noun ("man," "person") expressed. — de illo incesto stupro, that incestuous outrage: this refers to a frightful scandal when the mysteries of the Bona Dea (a rite held solely by women) were profaned by Clodius’ introducing himself in female attire.
The mysteries were being held at the official residence of Cæsar, then pontifex maximus, and the latter’s wife Pompeia was thought to have connived at the intrusion. Cæsar affected to believe no harm, but presently divorced Pompeia, with the famous remark that "Cæsar’s wife must be above suspicion." Being brought to trial, Clodius tried to prove an alibi, but this attempt was frustrated, in part by the testimony of Cicero. A corrupt jury acquitted Clodius, but he never forgave Cicero for appearing as a witness against him.

176 15 erepta: a special investigation had been ordered on account of the religious importance of the case; hence the decision was taken away from the Senate.

176 17 cur igitur, etc.: Cicero puts himself for the moment in the place of the other side and himself asks the question which an objector might put. He answers this question in quia nulla, etc. (l. 19). — inceddium curiae: see note on sect. 12 (p. 176, l. 1) above.

176 18 Lepidi: after the death of Clodius, M. Æmilius Lepidus (afterwards triumvir with Octavianus and Antony) had been appointed interrex, a formality necessary to give regularity to the forms of election when there were no consuls (see Introd. to this Oration, p. 170 of text).
In the disorders that followed his house was stormed and plundered by the mob.

176 20 non contra, [which is] not, etc.
176 21 (Sect. 14.) illa defensio, such a defence, i.e. the defence by vio vis defenditur, sect. 9).

176 24 e re publica, in the interest of the commonwealth.

177. 1 decrevi, notavi, I voted, I marked, i.e. as deserving punishment, leaving the person of the criminal to the decision of the court
Notes.

(sect. 31). These words refer to Cicero's acts and votes in the Senate when Pompey's law was under discussion (see note on l. 8).

177 3 crimen: the charge against any particular person; rem, the act itself.

177 5 tribunum: Plancus. — licuisset: the action was stayed by the tribune's intercessio.

177 6 decernebat, it was on the point of deciding (§ 277, c; G. 233; H. 469, ii).

177 7 extra ordinem, out of turn: i.e. that they should have precedence of the regular docket, but that no new provisions should be made for an investigation.

177 8 divisa sententia est, the question was divided. When Pompey's proposed law de vi, establishing a special tribunal (hanc quaestionem, sect. 13) for the investigation of the disturbances referred to, was discussed in the Senate, a resolution opposed to it was offered. This consisted of two clauses: (1) that the disturbances were contra rem publicam, and (2) that cases arising out of them should be brought in the regular courts, but should be advanced on the docket (veteribus legibus, extra ordinem). The tribune Q. Fufius Calenus (whom Cicero refuses to name, — nescio quo) demanded that the question be divided. The first clause was then passed, whereupon the tribune Plancus interposed his veto (empta intercessione, l. 10) and prevented the second from being voted upon. Thus it was made to appear that the Senate approved the new tribunal, and Pompey's law was immediately passed by the public assembly, while the more cautious action of the Senate (reliqua auctoritas) was blocked by the intercessio of Plancus.

III. Sects. 15-22. Pompey's action in carrying a law to establish this special investigation was not a prejudgment of Milo's case. No such tribunal was established when Africanus was murdered. There was no special sanctity in Clodius, nor is his death a public calamity. Pompey has left the question of Milo's guilt or innocence to the court.

177 11 (sect. 15.) at enim, introducing another supposed objection of Cicero's opponents. — rogatione, i.e. when he brought his law de vi (just referred to) before the people for enactment (the proceedings in the Senate having been merely deliberative). — re, the facts of the affray; causa, the case of the accused.

177 12 quae... facta esset: § 341, d; G. 628; H. 528, i.

177 14 nempe, etc., simply that an investigation should be made.

177 16 juris defensionem, a defence on a point of law (as to justification of the homicide).
Defence of Milo.

177 19 hanc salutarem litteram, this saving letter (hanc, because in favor of his client), i.e. a chance to acquit. Each juror inscribed on his ballot A (absolvo) for acquittal, or C or K (condemno) for conviction. Fig. 44 shows (on the reverse) a voting urn and a ballot marked A and C.

177 25 (Sect. 16.) Publione, etc., i.e. whether his act (quo* quod = what*) was something he owed to Clodius, or a concession to the exigencies of the time, which demanded the investigation.

177 27 domi, etc.: the following are examples of assassination in which no extraordinary tribunal (commissioned for investigation) was established. They are cited in support of Cicero’s contention that in establishing such a tribunal in the present case Pompey was not prejudging the innocence of Clodius and consequent guilt of Milo, but merely yielding to the necessities of the public situation.

177 29 Catonis: M. Porcius Cato (the Younger): see note on Archias, sect. 22 (p. 164, l. 8).

177 30 Drusus: M. Livius Drusus (son of Marcus) was murdered by some unknown person on returning home from an exciting political debate (B.C. 91).

178. 3 Africano, i.e. Aemilianus. He was actively opposed to the plans of C. Gracchus for the division of the Latian lands; and, while the controversy was at its hottest, was found dead in his bed, with marks (it was thought) of strangulation. His wife, sister of the tribune, and Gracchus himself lay under some suspicion of the crime, which was probably the act of Carbo (see note to sect. 8, p. 173, l. 27).

178 4 quem immortalem, etc.: Scipio was murdered at the age of fifty-six.

178 9 (Sect. 17.) inter sit: § 266, c; G. 264; H. 484, iii. — summor um, infimorum, simply high and low.

178 10 quidem, yet.

178 13 monumentis, memorial, i.e. the road itself. The Appian Way was constructed B.C. 312, by the censor Ap. Claudius Cæcus, an ancestor of Clodius. This circumstance is skilfully used to tell against Clodius, rather than in his favor.

178 18 (Sect. 18.) M. Papirium: this was one of Clodius’ earliest exploits. Papirius, a friend of Pompey, was killed in a brawl about a son of Tigranes, held as hostage at Rome, whom Clodius was trying to rescue and send back for a great ransom to Asia, having by a trick got him out of the hands of his custodian. — non fuit, etc.: an illustration of the idea expressed in impune, l. 16, above.

178 21 quae, i.e. the Appian Way.

178 25 templo Castoris, where the Senate was then holding session.
The circumstance took place in the year of Clodius' tribunate (b.c. 58), while Pompey was in the Senate. "He instantly went home and stayed there." For Roman figures of Castor and Pollux, see Fig. 45 (from a coin).

178 29 (sect. 19.) num quae, was there any, etc.
178 31 haec, i.e. res, vir, tempus.
178 32 summa (pred. to omnia), in the highest degree.
179. 5 proinde quasi, just as if, etc. (§ 312; G.
602, H. 513, ii, N. i). That is, the overt act must be judged by its obvious intent.

180. 2 (sect. 20.) luget, etc.: the whole description is, with intentional irony, in lively contrast with the real facts.

180 5 (sect. 21.) non fuit, etc., that was not the reason, contradicting the ironical statements just made: the real reason is given in the clause introduced by sed.

180 6 cur . . . censeret: § 334, b; G. 467; H. cf. 523, ii, 1, N.— ferendam, should be (proposed to the people to be) voted.

180 10 reconciliatae: Pompey had lately renewed friendly relations with Clodius.

180 13 delegit: the choice of the judices was left to Pompey.

180 15 neque . . . hoc cogitavit, he had no such idea.

180 17 non, etc., for my influence is not limited to my personal friendships.

180 22 non potuit . . . non, could not but.

180 23 (sect. 22.) quod, in that (§ 333, a; G. 525, 2; H. 516, 2, N.) — Domiti: L. Domitius Ahenobarbus (consul, b.c. 54), afterwards a leader against Cæsar in the Civil War, an arrogant and uncompromising upholder of the aristocracry. (Fig. 46, from a coin.) The emperor Nero was his descendant.

180 25 consularem: sc. praesesse.

180 29 documenta maxima: in his prætorship
(b.c. 58) Domitius had roughly cut his way through a crowd of the followers of Clodius, killing many of them.
III. Narratio (§§ 23–31).

Sects. 23–31. The sole question to be decided is: Which was the aggressor,—Milo or Clodius? Account of the affray: The death of Milo was necessary to Clodius: Clodius had threatened Milo: he lay in wait for him and attacked him, but was killed himself. From this plain statement of facts it may be judged who was the intending assassin.

180 32 (Sect. 23.) si neque, etc.: a recapitulation of the whole of the Conflatio (sects. 7–22).

181 2 vellemus: § 311, b; G. 258; H. 486, i 181 6 uter utri, which against the other (lit. which against which).
181 10 (Sect. 24.) All that precedes is intended merely to brush aside prejudices and gain for the case a hearing on its merits: at this point the real defence begins with a statement of facts in which every incident is made to tell heavily against Clodius.—in praetera: at the time of his death Clodius was candidate for this office (see Introd. to the Oration).

181 12 non multos mensis: really less than six. At whatever time the magistrates were elected, they could hold office only for the year for which they were chosen. In this case, since the election was delayed till long after the beginning of the year, the term of office was very considerably shortened.

181 13 honoris gradum: the ambition of a Roman was to complete the series of curule offices (cursus honorum) as speedily as possible.
181 15 annum suum, the regular year in which he could legally be a candidate.
181 17 religione aliqua, from some religious scruple, as it is generally (ut fit).
181 21 (Sect. 25.) consule Milone, equiv. to a fut. protasis (§ 310, a; G. 600, 1; H. 507, n.7). Milo was a candidate for the consulship.
181 22 fieri, was likely to be elected (i.e. as things were going at the time of speaking, hence the pres.).
181 25 convocabat, not officially, but in the course of his canvass.
181 26 Collinam novam, a new Colline tribe. Of the thirty-five tribes, the four city tribes ranked lowest, because the freedmen and poor citizens were placed in them; and of these the Collina was least reputable of all. It was through the collegia compitatica, or local clubs, that Clodius worked upon the city tribes; and, by the exaggerated expression that he registered an entirely new Collina, it appears to be meant that the new and perhaps fraudulent names that he got upon the list outnumbered the genuine voters.
181 27 ille, Clodius; hic, Milo (as generally in this speech).
181 31 suffragiis: there had already been several attempts to elect magistrates, which had failed through the obstructive tricks familiar to Roman politicians. Hence the preference of the citizens was already well known by their votes.
182 1 (Sect. 26.) silvas publicas: probably some depredations of Clodius in Etruria, where he had extensive estates.
182 11 (Sect. 27.) sollemne, annual, or occurring at regular seasons (see derivation in Vocab.). The adjectives indicate that Milo’s journey was undertaken regularly, legally, and of necessity, and hence that the idea that he went out to kill Clodius is absurd.
182 12 Lanuvium: this was an old town of Latium, about twenty miles southeast of Rome. It contained a temple of Juno Sospita, a local divinity, so famous that, when Lanuvium became a municipium of Rome, this sanctuary was, by special arrangement, received into the Roman religious system. The flamen, or special priest, of Juno Sospita had to be inaugurated by the chief magistrate (dictator) of the municipium. Milo, of Lanuvian origin, a municeps of the town, now held the latter office.
182 13 dictator: this word, evidently an old name for the highest magistrate of a community, was in Rome applied to an extraordinary magistrate, but in other Italian towns retained its earlier signification (as here).
182 16 ita, under such circumstances: an indication that Clodius sacrificed something of importance (namely his presence at an assembly of the people) in order to lay this ambuscade for Milo. Milo, on the other hand (autem), was going about his regular business, as narrated in what follows.
182 20 (Sect. 28.) quoad, etc., the Senate adjourned on this day about the fourth hour (between ten and eleven A.M.).
182 21 calceos: the Senator wore a special kind of shoe adorned with a crescent-shaped ornament (lanula); his tunic was also distinguished by the broad purple stripe in front (latus clavus). When travelling, a Roman put off his toga and badges of office, and put on a heavy travelling cloak (paenula) and other easy garments.
182 22 id temporis; § 240, 6; G. 336, n. 2; H. 378, 2.
182 24 ob viam fit: this was just beyond Bovillæ (Albano), a village about nine miles from Rome.
182 25 raeda (rheedâ), a four-wheeled family carriage.
182 26 Graecis comitibus, singers, dancers, etc. (see sect. 55).
182 27 hic insidiator, i.e. Milo (of course ironical).
182 28 apparasset, i.e. as the accusers say (see § 341, d; G. 628; H.
528, 1).
Defence of Milo.

182 29 paenulatus: the paenula went on over the head, like a Mexican poncho, and so confined the arms (Fig. 47). It was the usual travelling cloak of a Roman.

182 30 comitatu: this troop of singing boys and maidens was, no doubt, to take part in the village procession next day at Lanuvium.

182 31 (Sect. 29.) hora undecima: this would be about half-past four p.m. In reality, as we learn from other sources, it was nearly two hours earlier; and Milo had stopped at an inn in Bovillae, in order (as was charged) to make sure of not missing his enemy.

183. 1 adversi . . . occidunt, they attack and kill.

183 8 pugnari, impers.
183 9 succurrere: § 331, e, 2; G. 549, N.1; H. 505, ii, 2.
183 10 fecerunt . . . quod quisque . . . voluisset: this sentence is greatly admired as a delicate way of glossing over awkward facts.
183 11 derivandi, i.e. from Milo, the master, to the irresponsible slaves.

183 14 voluisset: for constr. see § 310, a; G. 600, i; H. 507, N.7
183 17 (Sect. 30.) consecuta sit, i.e. by the death of Clodius.
183 19 prosit, hortatory subjunctive.
183 20 potuerit: for tense, see § 287, c; G. 513; H. 495, vi.—quin servaret, without saving; cf. quin judicetis, without judging (l. 26, below).

183 22 ratio doctis, etc.: observe the exquisite skill with which Cicero here enunciates and applies the universal law of self-defence.

183 28 (Sect. 31.) Observe that this section (sect. 31) which ends the Narratio (or statement of facts) is similar to sect. 23, which introduces the Narratio: both contain a summing-up of the results arrived at in the Confutatio (sects. 7–22) and both end with a statement of the main question: "Which lay in wait for the other?" Much of the effort of persuasive argument depends on such repetitions, at the proper moment, of points already made.

183 28 optabilius fuit: § 311, c; G. 254, r.1; H. 511, N.8
183 29 semel, once only.
183 30 illud, referring forward to occisusne, etc. (as often).
Notes.

184. 1 id, i.e. the fact that there was a plot laid by somebody. Throughout the argument Cicero insists that neither the Senate nor Pompey intended to prejudge the guilt of Milo.

184 3 de hoc, i.e. the question ab utro factae sint.—latum est, etc., i.e. this was the intent of Pompey's law de vi.

184 7 hic, i.e. my client; illi, i.e. Clodius.—ut ne sit, subj. of purpose (i.e. the purpose of the investigation).

IV. Confirmatio (§§ 32–91).

The Confirmatio in this oration consists of two parts. In the first (sects. 32–71), Cicero handles the question of self-defence directly, maintaining that all the circumstances point to Clodius as the aggressor in the affray. In the second (sects. 72–91), he argues that, even if Milo had not had this justification, his killing Clodius would not have been a crime, but a patriotic act.

Sects. 32–35. Clodius had a strong motive to kill Milo: Milo had no motive to kill Clodius.

184 9 (SECT. 32.) probari, etc.: the evidence on this point would, of course, be purely circumstantial and inferential, and to Cicero's wonderful skill in dealing with such evidence is due much of the interest of what follows.

184 10 in illa, in the case of the, etc.

184 13 illud Cassianum, that noted saying of Cassius. L. Cassius Longinus Ravilla (cos. b.c. 127) was one of the most upright men of his time, distinguished as a quaesitor (presiding officer) of special trials. (Fig. 48, from a coin commemorating one of his reforms, represents a citizen voting on a law; see also Fig. 44, p. 423, above.)—cui bono, for whose advantage (§ 233, a; G. 356, r.1; H. 390, i); not "for what advantage," as it is often wrongly given in English. The question of "motive" in cases of murder was as much insisted on in ancient trials as it is to-day (cf. Rosc. Am., note on sect. 23, p. 10, l. 16).—personis, parties: the persona is properly the mask, which indicates by its features the "character" in a play.

184 15 atqui, etc. now, by the killing of Milo, etc.—adsequebatur, was going to gain (§ 277, c; G. 233; II. 469, 1).

184 16 non eo consule, without having one as consul.

184 18 quibus . . . coniunxit: these competitors of Milo were P. Plautius Hypsæus and Q. Metellus Scipio,—the latter an adopted son of Defence of Milo.

Metellus Pius. He took a leading part on Pompey’s side in the Civil War, and was defeated by Caesar at Thapsus, B.C. 46.

184 19 speraret, integral part of the purp. clause ut... esset: so also cuperent, vellent, possent, below. — cogitatis: artfully suggesting that the mad conduct of Clodius was not mere hot-headedness but was deliberately planned to further his ambitious designs.

184 20 illi, i.e. the consuls.
184 21 tantum beneficium: they would owe their election to him.
184 25 (Sect. 33.) ille, i.e. Clodius.
184 28 fuerit impositurus, ind. quest. for -tur us fuit = imposuisset ($§$ 308, d, and n.; G. 597, R. 5 a; H. 511, 2, N.).
184 29 Clodi: Sex. Clodius, client and confidential agent of the demagogue Clodius. — librarium, i.e. the “budget” of laws which Clodius had on hand to propose. Cicero humorously speaks as if these filled a whole librarium or book-cabinet.
184 30 eripuisse e domo, i.e. from P. Clodius’ house, in the riots that followed his death.

184 31 Palladium: the image of Pallas, kept in the citadel of Troy, and taken thence by a nocturnal enterprise of Ulysses and Diomed. The sanctity and adventures of this portfolio suggest the comparison.

185. 2 si nactus esses, if you could find him.
185 3 per: the words of adjuration are either intentionally omitted or lost. — hujus legis: a proposed law of Clodius, by which the freedmen were to be distributed among all the thirty-five tribes (see note, sect. 25, p. 181, l. 26). Sex. Clodius, the son of a freedman, is shrewdly hinted at as author of the law.

185 5 de nostrum omnium: such a rhetorical break is called aposipectis. Cicero would have said something like proscriptione or caede, but he affects to be alarmed at the threatening look with which Sex. Clodius hears his allusion (aspebit me illis oculis).

185 9 lumen curiae, a pun: Cicero calls Sex. Clodius a light of the senate-house, meaning (1) sarcastically, that he was a distinguished Senator, and (2) that he was the incendiary who by burning Clodius’ body had set the curia on fire (see note on sect. 12, p. 176, l. 1).

185 11 poenitus [= punitus] es (often deponent in Cicero): nothing was more horrible to the ancients than the loss of due funeral rites. The burning of Clodius’ body by the mob deprived him of all the honors to which he was entitled.

185 12 erat: § 311, e; G. 254, R. 1; H. 511, N. 8
185 14 imaginibus: a Claudius should have a long line of most distinguished images. — infelicissimis, ill-omened, as obtained by riotous violence.
185 19 (Sect. 34.) audistis, etc.: the words in italics are supplied by conjecture.

185 22 non dicam, parenthetical. — obstabat, the supposed remark of an opponent.

185 23 repugnante eo, in spite of his opposition. — fiesbat (sc. consul), was coming to be (see note on fieri, sect. 25, p. 181, l. 22).

185 24 nec me, etc., i.e. the positive support of Cicero was not more useful to Milo’s canvass than the antagonism of so bad a man as Clodius.

185 25 apud vos, i.e. you and such men as you in your capacity as electors.

186. 1 quis dubitaret? who could [then] hesitate (§ 268; G. 259; H. 486, ii)?

186 3 Clodio remoto, i.e. so long as Clodius was alive many would vote for Milo as being his declared enemy, but now that Clodius is out of the way, Milo must rely only on the ordinary means (usitatis jam rebus) of securing suffrages.

186 7 ne . . . metueretis: § 319, a, N.; G. 553, i.

186 13 (Sect. 35.) at, etc., but (some one will say).

186 14 haec, these considerations.

186 18 civile, political (such as a good citizen must feel). — ille erat ut odisset, in his case there was a motive for hating (a purp. clause after erat = causa erat).

186 21 reus Milonis fuit, i.e. liable to an accusation on the part of Milo. — lege Plotia (or Plautia): the Roman statute against assault.

Sects. 36–38. The habitual violence of Clodius, as contrasted with the law-abiding character of Milo, shows which of the two must have been the aggressor in this instance. Milo never used force except to ward off the violence of Clodius.

186 27 (Sect. 36.) nihil, etc.: of course ironical.

186 28 quid? ego, etc.: Cicero gives his own experience as an example of Clodius’ violent way of acting.

186 31 diem, etc.: example of legal proceedings which Cicero says, ironically, he avoided by fleeing from the city: the first phrase (diem dixerat) refers to a notice of an accusation before the public assembly; the second (multam inrograt), to a bill for a fine; the third (actionem perdullionis), to an action on a capital charge before the comitia centuriata.

187. 2 servorum, etc.: the facts, as opposed to the ironical statement that precedes. Cicero had really to fear, not judicial proceedings instituted by Clodius, but mob violence instigated by him.

187 4 (Sect. 37.) vidi enim, I saw with my own eyes. Cicero here artfully recounts other violent acts of Clodius, in the form of reasons which moved him, — thus killing two birds with one stone.

187 5 Hortensium: Cicero's early rival, and opponent in the case of Verres. He was now one of Milo's counsel.

187 7 Vibienus: probably a lapse of Cicero's memory. He was killed in the riots after the death of Clodius.

187 10 haec, huic, haec: notice the emphatic repetition (anaphora).

187 12 Papiri: see note on sect. 18 (p. 178, l. 18).

187 14 ad regiam: the old palace of Numa, on the Sacra Via, at the point where it reached the Forum. It adjoined the temple of Vesta, and was occupied by the pontifex maximus (at this time Cæsar). When Augustus was made pontifex maximus he gave the Regia to the Vestal Virgins. The occasion here referred to was probably an election riot in the preceding year.

187 15 (Sect. 38.) quid, etc., what like deed of Milo's?

187 16 detrahi non posset, on account of the disturbances and lawlessness of the time.

187 19 potuitne = nonne potuit (§ 210, d; G. 454, R.2). — deos penatis: see note, Cat. iv., sect. 18 (p. 151, l. 15). — illo oppugnante: this was an attack not by a mob, but by an armed band, made upon Milo's house, November 12, B.C. 57, the year of Cicero's return.

187 22 Fabricio: C. Fabricius, tribune B.C. 57; he was the originator and defender of the bill for Cicero's return from exile; an attack was made upon him by the partisans of Clodius, and he barely escaped with his life.

187 24 Caecili, prætor, B.C. 57. He was attacked while presiding over the games of Apollo, in July.

187 25 lata lex, i.e. the law proposed for his recall.

187 26 facti, i.e. the killing of Clodius.

Sects. 39–43. Milo had not killed Clodius when he might have done it with impunity and even with credit to himself. Would he have plotted his death at so unfavorable a moment?

188 2 (Sect. 39) consensus, universal feeling.

188 3 praetores: all except Appius Claudius, brother of Clodius; tribuni: all except two, Numerius Rufus and Sex. Atilius Serranus.

188 4 auctor, the responsible originator; dux, champion, who led it to a successful issue.

188 7 decreatum: this word is sometimes used for the proclamation of a magistrate, which was properly edictum. The decreum was the ordinance of a collegium or council, especially of the Senate, but also of any municipal body. The decree here referred to was passed by the municipal Senate (curia) of Capua, upon Pompey's proposition.
188 11 quī ... ejus, of any one who, equivalent to a conditional construction (see § 316; G. 593, i; H. 507, iii, 2). For the imperfect cogitaretur (impers.), see § 308, a; G. 597, r.¹; H. 510, n.² (In present time it would be, Si quis interemerit, cogitetur. In past time, when it becomes contrary to fact, the same relation between the tenses is retained.)

188 13 (Sect. 40.) bis: once for the attack on his house (sect. 38, above); the other occasion is unknown.

188 14 et reō: Clodianus, as aedile (b.c. 56), had laid a charge against Milo (dixit diem Miloni) for employing gladiators to bring about by intimidation the law for Cicero’s recall.

188 18 gravissimam ... partem, a most important part in political affairs.

188 21 fuit: see note on erat, sect. 33 (p. 185, l. 12, above).

188 22 in scalarum tenebris, the stairway of a bookseller’s shop, as Cicero says elsewhere (Phil. ii. 9). The affair took place b.c. 53, when Antony, at this time a friend of Cicero, was candidate for the quaestorship.

188 23 nulla sua invidia, with no odium to himself (§ 217, a; G. 304, n.²; H. 396, iii, n.²).

188 26 (Sect. 41.) destringendos (§ 294, d; G. 430; H. 544, 2, n.²): a fragment of a lost oration says that the two consuls were knocked down by stones.

188 28 libēret, might please.

188 29 jure, etc.: observe the antithesis carried out in all the modifiers (jure, injuria; loco, iniquo loco, etc.) — loco, with the advantage of ground (see note, Cat. ii., sect. 1, p. 114, l. 5).

189. 1 (Sect. 42.) contentio, struggle for.

189 3 ambitio, the canvass ("going about" for votes).

189 5 obscure qualifies cogitari, but is displaced to oppose palam.

189 6 fabulam fictam, a got-up story (an election lie).

189 7 molle, sensitive; tenerum, delicate; fragile, unstable; flexible, changeable.

189 13 (Sect. 43.) augusta ... auspicia, rhetorical for comitia centurianta quae auspicate fiunt (see Introduction, p. 80). All the higher magistrates had to be elected at these comitia.

189 14 veniebat: § 277, c; G. 233; H. 469, 1. — idem, on the other hand (lit. the same [supposition]).

Sects. 44–52. Clodianus had threatened to kill Milo, and the affray happened in accordance with his threats. He knew of the journey of Milo: Milo, on the other hand, knew nothing of the movements of Clodianus. Summary review of the conduct of both before the affray (Sects. 51, 52).
Defence of Milo.

189 24 (Sect. 44.) Petili, Cato: Petilius and Cato are addressed personally, as prominent men sitting as judices. Such appeals would not now be tolerated, but were consistent with ancient procedure.

189 26 Favonio: Favonius (see sect. 26) was a friend and great admirer of Cato, with whom he had previously taken part in some proceedings against Clodius. He was afterwards one of the conspirators against Cæsar.

189 30 (Sect. 45.) feellit, i.e. the day which he had mentioned in making this threat did not fail to bring about the (attempted) accomplishment of it.

190. 1 quo die? Cicero is again enlarging (cf. sect. 27) on the fact that Clodius had every reason to remain at Rome on the day of the murder but that Milo’s leaving the city was natural and necessary. The significance of all this as to the question uter utri insidias fecerit (sect. 23) is obvious.

190 2 mercenario tribuno: speeches were made this day by C. Sallustius (the historian) and Q. Pompeius Rufus. Probably the latter is here meant.

190 4 approperaret, had been making haste (§ 308, a; G. 597, r.; N. 510, n.2).

190 6 facultas: omit, as being a gloss.

190 7 quid? i.e. what are we to infer?

190 9 (Sect. 46.) qui ... potuerit, how could he have known?

190 10 ut ... rogasset: § 313, a; G. 608; H. 515, iii.

190 15 quaesierit sane (§ 266, c; G. 264; H. 484, iii), suppose (if you will) that he did ask. — quid ... largiar, how much I grant, i.e. how liberal I am in making concessions to the other side.

190 16 Q. Arrius: one of the witnesses. — corruperit, same constr. as quaesierit.

190 19 eadem hora: in the famous trial of the violation of the mysteries (sect. 13) Clodius had tried to prove an alibi, by showing, from Causinian’s testimony, that he had spent that night at his house at Interamna (Terni, on the river Nar in Umbria, ninety miles away); but was confuted by the evidence of Cicero, who testified that he had seen Clodius in Rome the same day. This act of Cicero’s Clodius never forgot or forgave.

190 21 mansurum suisse (§ 337, b, 2; G. 597, r.4; H. 527, iii): the protasis is suppressed but may be supplied from the sed clause following.

190 25 (Sect. 47.) liberatur, is proved (lit. is cleared).

190 26 profectus esse, depending on liberatur (§ 330, b; G. 528, i; H. 534, i, n.1). — quippe, of course.
Notes.

190 27 obvius futurus, expecting to meet.
190 29 rogatione, i.e. Pompey's law to establish this court of inquiry.
190 30 majoris, more important: this charge was afterwards brought up against Cicero by Mark Antony.
190 31 abjecti homines: C. Sallustius and Q. Pompeius (note on sect. 45, p. 190, l. 2).

191 4 (Sect. 48.) occurrit, meets me.
191 5 si quidem, yes, if.
191 6 video (emphat.), I see clearly.
191 8 quid nuntiaret? § 268; G. 259; H. 486, ii.
191 10 obignavi, endorsed. The names of witnesses were written on the back of wills, etc., after they were closed and sealed.
191 12 quem pridie, etc., i.e. Clodius, when he left Rome, knew that Cyrus was dying, and so the news of his actual death need not have changed his plans. Hence Cicero infers that this messenger was sent to give Clodius information of Milo's movements and not (as pretended) of the death of Cyrus. Observe the skill with which every circumstance is made to tell in favor of Cicero's contention that Clodius lay in wait for Milo.

191 14 (Sect. 49.) age, well then; sit, etc., suppose it were so (that the messenger informed him about Cyrus).
191 16 properato: § 243, e, n.; G. 406; H. 414, iv, N. 8
191 21 insidiatur, ironic, as before.
191 23 (Sect. 50.) credidisset: the protasis is implied in negant 191 24 sustinuisset, would have borne the brunt of.
191 25 latronum: highway robbery, with violence, was pretty common in the near neighborhood of Rome.
191 27 multi, etc.: here it is hinted that the crimes of Clodius (who had estates in Etruria) had made him many enemies (see note sect. 26), on some of whom the suspicion might have fallen.
191 28 timentes: his spoliations were so notorious that many who had not yet suffered might be supposed to have killed him through fear of his future depredations. Observe that Cicero keeps before the minds of the jury the view that the killing of Clodius was a great public service.
191 30 (Sect. 51.) quod ut (see note on rogasset, p. 190, l. 10), now though (cf. quod si).

192 3 constare ... omnia, etc.: in this and the following section Cicero sums up the arguments given in detail in sects. 32–51. The review is intended to show that, up to the moment of the affray, all the circumstances point to Clodius and not to Milo as the insidiator.
Defence of Milo.

192 9 (Sect. 52.) nihil umquam, etc.: on the contrary, Cicero says elsewhere (Att. iv. 3), speaking of the disorder that followed his return from exile, "If he [Clodius] comes in his way, I foresee that he will be killed by Milo. He does not hesitate to do it; he openly professes it (prae te fert)."

192 13 causam finxisse, invented an excuse.

Sects. 53-56. The place where the affray occurred was one that would have been selected by Clodius. Milo was unprepared for an affray (his wife was with him, etc.): Clodius was fully prepared.

192 19 (Sect. 53.) etiam, any longer.

192 21 substructiones (see sect. 85), buildings, but with the idea of walls, grading, and the like, made necessary by the great size of the buildings fashionable among the Roman nobles. — versabantur, used to be employed.

192 22 adversari, i.e. Clodius.

192 25 ab eo, i.e. Clodius.

192 31 (Sect. 54.) quid minus, sc. quam Milo.

193 2 illum, the other.

193 3 tarde, etc.: cf. sect. 49. — qui (adv.) convenit, what fitness in that?

193 7 hic, i.e. Milo. — veniret: § 328; G. 572; H. 519, ii, 2.

193 11 (Sect. 55.) Graeculi, dimin. of contempt: "Greeklings." — in castra Etrusca, i.e. to Catiline's camp, for which, says Asconius, he had once really set out.

193 13 nugorum nihil, no nonsense, such as buffoons, minstrels, and the like.

193 15 nisi ut, etc., except such persons as you might call a picked band, etc. (lit. except in such a way as, etc.). — virum a viro lectum: in allusion to a custom in the Roman army of selecting men for dangerous service one at a time, each new man being designated by the last.

193 19 mulier, said scornfully of Clodius, as being a coward.

193 22 (Sect. 56.) odio: § 233, a; G. 356; H. 390, i.

193 24 propositam, put up for sale; addictam, knocked down (terms of the auction room).

193 26 Martem communem, the favor of Mars: a proverbial phrase implying that the favors of Mars are impartially bestowed, now on the one side now on the other (cf. our "the fortune of war").

193 28 pransae: the prandium was the noon-day meal, generally simple, of fruit and bread, but made by high-livers a luxurious meal.

193 29 interclusum, i.e. Clodius had passed Milo himself, who was thus shut off from his own followers.
Sects. 57–60. Milo's manumission of his slaves was to reward them and not for the sake of suppressing testimony. The evidence of Clodius' slaves is worthless.

194. 1 (SECT. 57.) manu misit: here Cicero pauses to reply to an argument on the other side. Only slaves could be forced to give testimony by torture (Rosc. Am., sect. 33). As Milo had freed his, it was maintained by the prosecution that he wished to destroy evidence. Manumission under such circumstances was forbidden by later law.

194 7 indagamus hic, i.e. the legal aspect of the case is to be considered at this point.

194 10 nescis, you know not how ($§ 271 ; G. 423; H. 533).

194 16 (SECT. 58.) propter quos vivit, i.e. to whom he owes his life.

194 17 id, i.e. the service of saving his life.—quod, the fact that ($§ 333 ; G. 525, 1 ; H. 540, iv).

194 25 (SECT. 59.) quaestiones, examination (by torture) of Clodius' slaves. —urgent, i.e. is a difficult point for the defence to meet.

194 26 in atrio Libertatis: it was in this hall (probably near the present column of Trajan) that questions touching the liberation of slaves were considered, and that torture was inflicted,—not in mockery of the name, but to excite in the slave some hope of freedom.

194 27 Appius: an elder brother of Clodius.

194 29 de servis: the passage in brackets seems necessary to the sense. The exception de incestu is mentioned to bring the jest upon Clo-dius.

194 30 proxime, very near: i.e. by having his murder treated as sacrilege (i.e. an offence against the gods), in respect to the question of slaves.
The whole passage is an argument a fortiori. If the Romans excluded enforced testimony of a master's slaves even when the truth could be arrived at thereby, how much more should this be excluded here, where the temptation to lie was so great that no trustworthy evidence could be expected from them. —deos accessit is punningly used in two senses,— first, of his near approach to being a god (by having an offence against him treated as sacrilege), second, of his unlawful intrusion on the mysteries of the Bona Dea.

194 31 ad ipsos, i.e. in the mysteries of Bona Dea (p. 176, 1. 14, note).

195. 3 non quin, not but ($§ 321, r. ; G. 541, n. 2; H. 516, 2).

195 7 (SECT. 60.) cave ... mentiaris: $§ 269, a, 3; G. 271, 2; H.
489, 2.—sis: see Vocab.

195 11 arcas, cells, lit. chests (of timber), which in more ancient times were apparently used for this purpose.

195 14 integrius, sounder, i.e. less biased (of course ironical).
Sects. 61–63. Milo's conduct after the affray shows his innocence. He returned to Rome and made no attempt to conceal himself, scorning the evil rumors that were rife. No guilty man would have acted in this way.

195 18 Romam revertisse: it was at first thought that Milo had gone into voluntary exile after the murder. In fact, however, he had returned to Rome on the night when the curia was burned, and the reaction caused by the fire and the riots encouraged him to appear in public and renew his canvass for the consulship. Cicero skillfully represents this conduct as due to the courage of innocence.

195 22 (SECT. 61.) populo, senatui, i.e. by appearing in his place among them.

195 23 praesidii, i.e. the special power with which Pompey was clothed as sole consul, which is further dwelt on in the following (see sect. 65).

195 24 magna metuenti, etc.: Pompey was on friendly terms with Clodius and might well fear that the violent act of Milo threatened his own position in the state and even his life (see note on sect. 66, p. 197, l. 26).

196. 6 (SECT. 62.) imperorum, strangers to his character (though well intentioned).

196 7 (SECT. 63.) illud, the fact (in appos. with the clause ut ... trucidaret.

196 8 fecisset: for fecit of the dir. disc.; so voluisset in l. 11, below.

196 9 tanti, predicate gen. of indefinite value.

196 10 fortem virum, brave man that he was. — quin ... cederet, auferret, relinquueret: § 332, g. N. 2; G. 555, R. 8; H. 505, i.

196 16 portenta, monsters (his accomplices). — loquebantur, talked about, comparing Milo with Catiline, and saying he would do likewise.

196 17 miserōs . . . . civis, exclamatory accusative.

Sects. 64–71. False rumors about Milo. Pompey's fear of him groundless. The time will come when Pompey will know that Milo is his friend. But, in fact, Pompey is not ill disposed to Milo and does not think him guilty: had he thought so, he would have put him to death and not have allowed him this trial. [End of the first part of the Confirmatio.]

In sects. 64, 65, Cicero makes a skilful transition from Milo's conduct after the affray to Pompey's feelings with regard to him. It was all-important for him to show that the acquittal of Milo would not be unfavourably received by Pompey, and hence he does his best to prove that Milo was never Pompey's enemy and that the latter had no wish to secure his conviction.
Notes.

196 20 (Sect. 64.) illa, these surmises.
196 24 perculissent: the protasis is implied in quemvis ... conscientia (i.e. anybody who had such a consciousness). — conscientia, abl. of means with perculissent.
196 25 ut (exclamatory), how.
196 26 maximo animo, of the greatest hardness.
196 27 potuisset: the prot. is implied in the context.
196 29 indicabatur (§ 330 A, b; G. 528, i; H. 534, i, n.1): use the impers. form in translation, — it was shown that, etc.
196 30 vicum, narrow street (properly a district or quarter). — dicebant, they would say (indicating repeated charges). — Miloni, dat. of agent: § 258, g; G. 389; H. 425, i 197 2 clivo Capitolino, the street which ran from the upper end of the Forum to the Capitolium.
197 4 delata: deferre ad senatum is to lay information before the Senate; referre, to bring a piece of business before it for action.
197 5 (Sect. 65.) laudabam, imperf. because it indicates Cicero’s state of mind at the time.
197 6 sed dicam, etc.: the whole context implies that in this matter Pompey went too far, and for this Cicero excuses him in what follows.
197 8 fuit audiendus, he had to listen to (not cont. to fact).
197 9 popa, an inferior priest who slew the sacrifices — hardly more than a butcher: such a person usually (as here) kept a popina, or restaurant and grog-shop: hence, apud se ebrios. — Circo Maximo: the district near the Circus Maximus, the building for the great games, between the Palatine and Aventine hills.
197 12 in hortos (§ 259, g; H. 380, i): wealthy Romans had large grounds (horti) attached to their city-houses. Pompey was at this time staying at home to avoid Milo, as was alleged.
197 16 credi popae: § 230; G. 346, r.1; H. 384, ii, 5.
197 22 (Sect. 66.) tam celebri loco, in so thronged a locality. Cæsar, as Pontifex Maximus, inhabited the Regia (see note on sect. 37, p. 187, l. 14) on the Sacra Via, in the busiest part of Rome.
197 23 audiebatur, the story was told.
197 26 senator, etc.: “Pompey was afraid of Milo, or pretended to be; and he stayed mostly, not at home, but in his gardens— even the upper ones, where a great guard of soldiers camped around. Pompey, besides, had once adjourned the Senate suddenly, saying that he feared Milo’s coming. Then at the next session, P. Cornificius had said that Milo had a sword under his tunic, fastened to his thigh, and demanded that he should bare his thigh, which Milo did at once, lifting his tunic. Then
Defence of Milo.

Cicero called out, that all the other charges against Milo were just like that." (Asconius.)

197 31 (Sect. 67.) cum . . . timemus . . . perhorrescimus: § 326, a; G. 582; H. 517, 2. — tamen, i.e. notwithstanding the alleged grounds for fearing Milo have been proved false. — si metuitur: the protasis is timemus, perhorrescimus. — etiam nunc, opposed to the instances of such fear of Milo mentioned in the preceding chapter.

197 32 Cloidianum crimen, the charge of murdering Clodius. — timemus, we = Cicero and his client: they have to fear, he says, — in case Milo is still regarded by Pompey with apprehension, — not the charge of murdering Clodius (for Milo is sure of an acquittal if the case is decided on its merits) but Pompey's suspicions of Milo's hostility to him (for these may well prove prejudicial to Milo's case). These suspicions Cicero answers by a reductio ad absurdum, — if all these military preparations have been made for fear of Milo, what a great man Milo must be! But everybody knows that they were not made for this reason: hence Pompey has no reason to fear Milo.

198 1 exaudire: Pompey was sitting not in the court, but at the Treasury, a considerable distance off.

198 2 si . . . times, putas, etc.: the apod. is magna in hoc, etc., l. 9, below.

198 12 (Sect. 68.) sed quis, but [this cannot be, for] who, etc.

198 14 si locus, etc., i.e. if Milo had had a chance, he would have proved his devotion to Pompey.

198 18 illa taeterrima peste, i.e. Clodius.

198 19 tribunatum: Milo was tribune B.C. 57, and he was active in securing the recall of Cicero from exile.

198 23 quae si non, etc., if he could not prove this.

198 25 armis . . . conquietura, were never likely to rest from arms.

198 26 ne, assuredly.

198 27 ita natus, born for that very thing (i.e. to sacrifice everything for his country).

198 28 te antestaretur, would call you to witness (that he yields to the occasion and is really guiltless of any hostilities).

198 30 (Sect. 69.) infidelitates, [acts of] ill-faith. This and the following plural abstracts are, as often, best translated by the singular in English (§ 75, c; G. 204, r. 5; H. 130, 2).

199. 2 motu aliquo, i.e. there will perhaps be some disturbance of the general welfare of the state (communium temporum). Cicero's apprehensions were more than fulfilled in the great Civil War between Cæsar and Pompey.
440

Notes.

199 4 experti: an allusion to Cicero's own misfortunes and exile.

199 6 (Sect. 70.) quamquam, corrective, implying that the preceding supposition is unfounded, for Pompey is not really an enemy to Milo; if he had been, he would have executed him summarily and not have allowed him a trial. His action, Cicero argues, virtually acquits the defendant.

199 7 juris publici, etc., law, customs, politics.

199 9 ne quid, etc.: see note, Cat. i, sect. 2 (p. 100, l. 12).

199 11 hunc repeats Pompeium with emphasis after the long parenthesis; ejus qui, of one who (on that supposition), i.e. Milo.—dilectu: Pompey held the consulship in B.C. 55, but after its expiration did not go into his province of Spain, but despatched thither his army under the command of legati, while he himself remained in Italy with proconsular power. Immediately after the death of Clodius, the Senate gave the interrex (see note, p. 176, l. 18), the tribunes, and the proconsul (Pompey) the extraordinary power ne quid, etc., and authorized Pompey to hold a levy of troops.

199 12 exspectaturum fuisse, would have, etc. (§ 337, b, 2; G. 659; H. 527, iii). The whole passage is a cont. to fact. apod. in indir. disc.; the protasis (implied in the context) is the false supposition that Pompey thought Milo dangerous to the state and to himself.

199 14 ista, i.e., the imputations referred to in sects. 65, 66. — qui, i.e. Pompey. — legem, the law for the present investigation.

199 15 oporteret, ought, as I think; liceret, may well (legally), as all allow.

199 16 (Sect. 71.) in illo loco: see note on exaudiri, sect. 67, p. 198, l. 1.

199 20 animadvertere in, proceed against, i.e. punish. The whole turning of Pompey's unfriendly action so as to make it appear in Milo's favor is a stroke of art. — pollit, subj. of integral part; the imperf. (contrary to the sequence of tenses) stands for poteat and implies that the action did not take place (see § 311, c; G. 254, r.²; H. 476, iv).

199 21 hesternam illam contionem: cf. sect. 3 (p. 172, l. 3). — esse, in same constr. as inferre (l. 18).

Sects. 72–75. [Second part of Confirmatio begins.] The killing of Clodius a service to the state: his crimes enumerated.

The second part of the Confirmatio comprises sects. 72–75. The real case, Cicero says, is now complete, for he has shown that Milo killed Clodius in self-defence. But, even if Milo had not had this justification, his act would deserve reward rather than punishment, for the killing of Clodius was a service to the state. If Milo were guilty, he would boast of his guilt. It is impossible, however, to claim this merit for Milo, for the death of Clodius was the work of the gods, who, to save the republic, prompted him to attack Milo. — This part of the Constatio is managed with great skill. In effect, it is an appeal to the judges to recognize the relief which the state feels in the death of Clodius and not to punish Milo for what is really a meritorious deed. In form, however, it is an additional argument in support of the main contention, —that Milo acted in self-defence; for it is incredible, Cicero urges, that, if he had really planned to kill Clodius, he should not now admit it and secure the gratitude of the whole country. By giving the argument this form, Cicero makes two inconsistent theories of the defence tell in favor of his client.

199 27 (Sect. 72.) palam clamare: this was the line of defence taken by Cato and other friends of Milo; in opposition to whom Cicero preferred to disprove the charge (diluere crimen).

199 28 Sp. Maelium: see note on Cat. i., sect. 3 (p. 100, l. 19).
199 30 Ti. Gracchum: see note on Cat. i., sect. 3 (p. 100, l. 15).

199 31 conlegae: Octavius, who resisted Gracchus in his attempts at reform and whom, therefore, Gracchus caused to be deposed by the people.

200 1 sed eum, etc., not a mere demagogue, as the men just mentioned were (in Cicero's opinion), but a vile and sacrilegious criminal. — auderet, he would dare, etc., i.e. if he were guilty and were taking that line of defence.

200 5 (Sect. 73.) saepe censuit: see sect. 13.

200 6 quaestionibus habitis: this relates to the consilium of relatives, held by L.ucullus as paterfamilias, or head of the family, in regard to his wife Clodia.

200 7 civem quem . . . judicarant, i.e. Cicero himself.

200 10 regna dedit: the Galatian Bogitarus, son-in-law of King Deiotarus, was complimented with the title of king by a law of Clodius. — ademit: another law of Clodius ordered the deposition of King Ptolemy of Cyprus.

200 11 partitus est, referring to his corrupt bargains for the assignment of provinces.

200 12 civem: this is usually referred to Pompey. But, though Pompey was attacked by Clodius (see sect. 18), there was no bloodshed:
further, singulari virtute et gloria is a mild expression for Cicero to use of Pompey on this occasion; and, though it is rather exaggerated for the tribune Fabricius (see sect. 38), yet the circumstances precisely correspond.

200 14 aedem Nymphaeum, containing the censorial registers. It seems to have been burnt in the disorders preceding Cicero's exile.

200 17 (Sect. 74.) non calumnia litium, etc.: referring to fraudulent and malicious proceedings under cover of law, which were too mild and dilatory a method of plunder for Clodius. A powerful noble, with his slaves and clients, had almost an army at his disposal, so that the disorders of the time actually amounted to private warfare, like that of the feudal nobles. The following incidents illustrate this further.—\textit{sacramentis} a form of procedure in which a penalty or forfeit (\textit{sacramentum}) was deposited by each party, to abide the result of the suit.

\textbf{200} 20 \textit{Etruscus}: see note sect. 26 (p. 182, l. 1).

\textbf{200} 24 \textit{Janiculum et Alpibus}: these boundaries would include all Italy north of the Tiber.

\textbf{200} 26 \textit{splendidus}: the regular complimentary epithet of an \textit{eques}.

\textbf{201} 1 \textit{(Sect. 75.) mortuum}, a corpse.

\textbf{201} 2 \textit{qua invidia}, etc., \textit{by the odium of which} (the presence of the dead body) \textit{a flame} [of calumnny] \textit{would be kindled}. Odium is often spoken of as a flame (cf. "inflamed with hate").—\textit{huic tali viro}, \textit{even a man like him}.

\textbf{201} 3 \textit{Appium}: Ap. Claudius Pulcher, elder brother of Clodius, but not always on good terms with him.

\textbf{201} 5 \textit{vestibulum}, courtyard, or open space in front of the house.—\textit{sororis}, probably his second sister, wife of Q. Metellus Celer, who lived next her brother on the Palatine.

[Sects. 76–82. No safety for Rome while Clodius lived: his plans against the state cut short by his death. If Milo were guilty, he would boast of his guilt: for tyrannicide is a virtue.

\textbf{201} 8 \textit{(Sect. 76.) quidem}, emphasizing \textit{haec}: cf. \textit{quae vero}, l. 12.—\textit{tolerabilia}, inevitable, and therefore bearable.

\textbf{201} 9 \textit{videbantur}, \textit{were beginning to seem}.—\textit{aequabiliter}, \textit{without distinction}.

\textbf{201} 11 \textit{nescio quo modo}: § 334, \textit{e}; G. 467, \textit{N.}; H. 529, \textit{5}.\textit{e}.

\textbf{201} 12 \textit{vero}, opposed to \textit{quidem}.

\textbf{201} 13 \textit{potuissestis}, i.e. if they had been realized.

\textbf{201} 14 \textit{imperium}: all this mischief he had perpetrated in virtue of holding the offices of tribune and ædile. What would he have done if he had got the \textit{imperium} by obtaining the \textit{praetorship}, for which he was candidate at the time?

\textbf{201} 15 \textit{tetrarchas}, a title of certain petty kings, especially in Galatia.

\textbf{201} 20 \textit{tentur}, \textit{are proved}.

\textbf{201} 23 \textit{(Sect. 77.) T. Annius}: the name in this form is more dignified than the cognomen \textit{Milo} alone (which Cicero has hitherto used). He adopts it here in accordance with the more formal tone which \textit{he gives to his speech at this point}.}
Defence of Milo.

201. 27 per me unum: ut is displaced by the emphasis thrown upon me.—jus, aequitas, leges: as praetor Clodius would have had judicial as well as military power.

201. 28 esset timendum (ironical), apodosis of si... clamaret (l. 22).

202. 2 gaudia, such as that for the victory over Hannibal or for the defeat of the Cimbri and Teutones.

202. 3 victorias, such as those of Pompey in the East and Cæsar in Gaul.

202. 7 (Sect. 78.) in eis singulis [bonis], in the case of each one.

202. 11 judicis: Pompey, in this year of his sole consulship, carried several laws intended to secure the better administration of justice.

202. 14 ea, subject of potuissent.

202. 15 quod, interrogative with jus.

202. 16 odio inimicitiarum, the bitterness of private resentment.

202. 17 libentius quam verius (§ 192; G. 299; H. 444, 2, N.1), with more alacrity than truth.

202. 18 debat, sc. odium as subject.

202. 20 aequaliter versaretur = found its equal.

202. 22 (Sect. 79.) quin, nay, adds strength to the imperative. "Come now, attend while I present the case in this light."—nempe haec, this, as you know.

202. 23 fingite, etc.: in this lively passage Cicero makes his hearers understand how much they really approve of Milo’s act by asking them how a proposition to call Clodius back to life would be received.

202. 24 sic intuentur, view as plainly.

202. 25 cerneimus, discern (distinguish by eyesight); videmus, see (the general word).

202. 26 hujus condicionis meae, these terms that I offer: the supposed terms are expressed in si possim, etc.

202. 27 ita si, on condition that.—quid voltu extimuisistis? why that look of terror?

202. 28 vivus, if alive.

202. 29 percussit, has stricken you with fear.

203. 2 vellet, had wished: for tense, see § 308, a; G. 597, R.1; H. 510, N.2.

203. 4 si putetis, nolitis, fut. condition, referring to the time of rendering the verdict; si posset, lata esset, cont. to fact as referring to circumstances already out of their control. Notice the different nature of the two conditions as indicated by their form.

203. 6 hujus, referring to the subject of the last sentence, Clodius (as the person last mentioned); the subj. of esset is of course Milo.
Notes.

203 8 (SECT. 80.) viris, especially Harmodius and Aristogeiton, who killed Pisistratus.

203 11 cantus, instrumental music; carmina, songs.

203 18 (SECT. 81.) si non negat: this is a protasis (§ 306; G. 595; H. 508), whose apodosis is the whole clause dubitaret . . . petenda. This apodosis is itself a conditional sentence consisting of a cont. to fact apod. (dubitaret) with a prot. "if he had done it" implied. The argument is as follows: Milo does not deny killing Clodius in self-defence, which is only an excuse for the homicide; if, therefore, he had killed him deliberately, would he not gladly admit it, since he might justly expect such a service to the state as the removal of this desperado to meet with gratitude from all? Hence Milo’s denial is worthy of credence, since it would be for his interest to admit the charge.

203 20 nisi vero (§ 315, b, N.; G. 591, r.4) introduces the ironical supposition that Milo thinks it more pleasing to the citizens for him to have defended himself in killing Clodius than to have defended them. Only on this absurd hypothesis, Cicero reasons, could Milo refuse to admit the charge brought against him if he were guilty.

203 22 grati, grateful.

203 23 probaretur, approve itself.

203 24 qui, how.—poterat: § 311, c; G. 597, r.8; H. 511, N.8

203 25 minus . . . grata, not so agreeable. — cecidisset, had turned out to be.

203 27 propter quem, through whose means.

203 28 laetarentur, subjunc. as being an “integral part” of the whole supposition.

203 31 (SECT. 82.) tribuenda . . . esset, would be due.

204 2 arbitrare: for tense, see note on vellet, sect. 79 (p. 203, l. 2).

204 8 (SECT. 83.) uteretur, i.e. si fecisset.

Sects. 83–91. But Milo cannot have the glory of planning this act. The death of Clodius was the work of the gods. To punish his crimes and save the state they urged him on to attack Milo, and Milo killed him in self-defence.

Since Cicero’s main contention is that Milo acted in self-defence, it is necessary for him to revert to this line of argument before he closes the Constatatio. This he does in the way shown in the analysis above.

204 14 vestra, i.e. of the optimates—di immortales, i.e. the death of Clodius was a special interposition of providence. For a similar expression of the belief that Rome was specially protected by the gods, see Cat. iii., sect. 21.
Defence of Milo. 445

204 16 divinum belongs with vim as well as with numen (§ 187, a; G. 290; H. 439, 1).
204 19 maximum, greater than all.
204 20 sanctissime coluerunt, piously practised.
204 21 (Sect. 84.) illa vis, such a power.
204 22 hac imbecillitate nostra, this frail nature of ours.
204 23 et non ineunt, co-ordinate with neque ineunt (above): in English we should more naturally use a subord. clause, while it does not exist.
204 24 naturae ... motu, movement of the universe (as appearing in the heavenly bodies, etc., just spoken of).
204 26 haeque ipsa, these very words of mine.
204 28 possimus: for mood and tense, see § 312; G. 602; H. 513, ii, and n.1
204 30 mentem inject: "Whom the gods wish to destroy they first make mad," — a very old idea.
204 32 habiturus esset (§ 308, c, N.1; G. 597, r.8, b; H. cf. 511, 2), would be sure to have.
205 1 (Sect. 85.) mediocris, ordinary.
205 2 religiones, sanctuaries.
205 3 commosse (commovisse) se, bestirred themselves.
205 4 retinuisset, reasserted.
205 5 Albani: Clodius’ Alban villa (see sects. 46, 51) must have been in the territory of Alba Longa, the ancient capital of Latium, whose temples were spared and their worship adopted by Rome (as that of the Lanuvian Juno had been, see note, sect. 27), when the city was destroyed. From what follows it would appear that some of these sanctuaries had been demolished by Clodius in his building schemes (see sect. 53).— tumuli, mounds, used for altars.
205 10 viguerunt, revived. Observe the alliteration.
205 11 Latiaris: the temple of Jupiter on the Alban Mount was the religious centre of the Latin confederacy.
205 12 lacus: there are several little lakes about the Alban Mount, chief of which are those at Alba and Aricia, in the craters of extinct volcanoes.—nemora: nemus is originally an open grove where cattle can graze; it is applied, as well as lacus, to a consecrated grove. Of these the most famous in Italy was the sanctuary of Diana on the Lacus Nemorensis (L. Nemi) near Aricia.
205 17 (Sect. 86.) Bonae Deae: an Italian goddess who probably represented the fruitful power of the earth, so that her mysteries, celebrated on December 3 and 4, corresponded to those of Demeter (Mother Earth) at Eleusis. It was her mysteries that Clodius had profaned (see note on sect. 13, p. 176, l. 14).
taeterrimam, i.e. as having been slain while engaged in a criminal attempt.

judicio: cf. sect. 13 (p. 176, l. 15).
nec vero non, nor can it be but that.
imaginibus (cf. formas, l. 28), waxen masks of ancestors, worn by persons in the funeral procession, to represent the departed worthies (see note on the jus imaginum, Introduction, p.1, n.1); cantu, music; ludis, games; exsequiis, procession; funere, burial rites.
celebritate, thron (see sect. 33, and notes).
mortem ejus lacerari, that his dead body should be mangled. —
in quo, that in which, i.e. the Forum.
quae . . . pateretur: § 320, ε; G. 633; H. 517.
consensu, modifying gesta: the acts referred to are those of
Cicero's consulship, which Clodius had practically annulled (resciderat) by procuring his banishment.
domum . . . incenderat: this was in B.C. 57.
capere, contain.
icidebantur: he felt so sure of his power, that he was having the laws engraved (on bronze tablets, according to the custom) even before their passage.

nos . . . addicerent: which should bind us over to our own slaves (i.e. freedmen). The suffrage of the freedmen was a standing subject of controversy in Roman politics. They voted in the four city tribes (see note on sect. 25, p. 181, l. 26), but many efforts were made to get them into the rustic tribes; and Clodius had promised, as prætor, to bring forward a law with this object.

Cicero emphasizes the providential interposition of the gods by dwelling on the desperate nature of the situation.
illum ipsum: i.e. Pompey, who returned to Rome from the East just before the Clodian disturbances began. — reditu, referring to his reconciliation with Pompey.

hic, at this point (in the development of Clodius' plans). — supra: see sect. 84 (p. 204, l. 30), and note.
aliter, i.e. if he had not laid this plot (fatal to himself) against Milo: virtually the protasis of all the cont. to fact apodoses in this and the following section.
potuit, cont. to fact apod.: cf. esset ulta (l. 21).
circumscripsisset, i.e. kept him within the legitimate bounds of his office (as prætor): of course ironical.

id facere, i.e. when the Senate used to exercise that power. — in privato, i.e. when he held no magistracy.
Defence of Milo.

206 25 (Sect. 89.) suos, i.e. just the ones whom he wanted.
206 26 virtutem consularum, the courage of a consul (i.e. Cicero).
206 29 libertos suos: if he freed the slaves of others, they would be his freedmen, and bound to him as clients (see note, Rosc. Am., p. 6, l. 10).
206 30 nisi ... impulisset, a formal repetition of the protasis implied in aliter (l. 19, above).
207 6 (Sect. 90.) templum, etc., the sanctuary of public purity, grandeur, wisdom, and counsel. — templum ... inflammarí, ind. disc. after the idea of seeing continued from vidimus.
207 7 aram sociorum, as being the place to which they looked for protection.
207 8 portum, haven of refuge.
207 9 funestari, defiled by the presence of a corpse.
207 11 ab uno, i.e. Sex. Clodius.
207 12 ustor, i.e. in the humble capacity of a mere cremator. A bitter jest on the consequences of Sex. Clodius' act in burning the body.
207 14 (Sect. 91.) via Appia, where the homicide was committed (cf. sect. 17, p. 178, l. 13).
207 15 ab eo, from (i.e. against) him.
207 18 furias, virtually = madness, though with a vague allusion to Furies who drove a guilty man on to further crimes.
207 20 falcibus, hooks (like firemen's hooks) to tear up the steps, and turn the building into a fortress. — ad Castoris: see note, sect. 18 (p. 178, l. 25).
207 21 disturbari, broken up (not merely "disturbed").
207 22 silentio, i.e. the contest was orderly and well disposed until the attack of the Clodians. — M. Cælius: a young man who was esteemed by Cicero as of great promise, and defended by him in a cause of some scandal, but who afterwards turned out to be a wild and desperate demagogue. In the year B.C. 44, after Cæsar's victory at Pharsalia, both Cælius and Milo, in concert with each other, headed revolts against Cæsar, and lost their lives ignominiously in Southern Italy.

V. Peroratio (§§ 92—104).

Sects. 92—98. Milo deserves the compassion of the judges. He bids the ungrateful city an affectionate farewell. Calmly resigned, he appeals to the judgment of posterity.
208 2 (Sect. 92.) orationem, manner of speech.
208 3 hoc, on this account (§ 250, n.; G. 403; H. 423).
Notes.

208 5 infimi...fortuna, in regard to the lot and fortunes of men of the lowest class (i.e. the gladiators).
208 6 ut liceat depends on obsecurantis (acc. pl.).
208 8 cupimus: in gladiatorial contests, if one combatant had the other at his mercy, he waited the will of the people, who expressed their wishes by turning their thumbs up or down. If most thumbs were turned up, he was put to death.
208 12 (Sect. 93.) exanimant, etc., these words of Milo dishearten and depress me.
208 14 valeant, valeant: translate (to preserve the lit. meaning of the word, which is here played upon) good-bye to my fellow-citizens, may heaven bless them!
208 17 licet, sc. perfrui.
208 18 propter me, through my efforts.
208 23 re publica oppressa, when the government was crushed.
208 24 acceperam, had found.
208 26 Clodianis armis (abl. of cause), i.e. on account of the violence of Clodius.
208 27 putarem, should I have thought? (§ 268 and r.; G. 466; H. 484, v).
208 31 tui: Cicero was of an equestrian family and throughout his career favored the interests of the equites and was supported by them in turn (cf. Manil. sect. 4).
209. 4 (Sect. 95.) quo videtis, sc. cum esse.
209 5 ingratis civibus, that it is for ungrateful fellow-citizens that he has, etc.: the Latin, from its freedom in the use of emphatic position, is able to say this in a single clause.
209 8 se fecisse ut, etc., that he has succeeded in, etc.
209 9 tribus patrimoniis: Milo was by birth a member of the Papian gens, but was adopted by his maternal grandfather, C. Annius. This accounts for two patrimonies; the third, Asconius thinks, was probably his mother's. The orator here makes a civic virtue out of Milo's lavish bribery.
209 10 ne...non conciliarit (§ 331, f; G. 550, 2; H. 498, iii, n. 9), that he has not won over.
209 15 ablaturum, shall bear away (i.e. the memory of them).
209 16 (Sect. 96.) vocem praeconis, etc.: i.e. the election was practically decided, when the comitia were broken up by a mob. The election could not therefore be formally and legally complete, and no announcement could be made by the herald, but the will of the people had been already expressed.
Defence of Milo.

209 18 si haec, etc., if this case shall go against him.
209 19 facinoris suspicionem, etc., the suspicion of a great crime, not the indictment for this act. That is, as the last chapters have shown, it was, in Cicero’s view, not Clodius’ death, but suspicion of designs against Pompey and the state, that decided the case against Milo.
209 22 recte facta: § 207, c; G. 437, r.
209 25 (Sect. 97.) qui beneficio, etc., who have surpassed their fellow-citizens in good services, i.e. have done more for their fellow-citizens than the latter have repaid by gratitude.
209 27 si...ratio, if regard were to be had (cont. to fact, implying that it is not a question of rewards at all): to this prot. we should expect an apod. of corresponding form; but this (which would be “we should say,” or the like) is supplanted by a simple acc. and inf. of indir. disc. (amplissimum esse, etc.) expressing that which we “should say.”
209 29 consolaretur: this and the following imperfects are due to the change in sequence effected by esset habenda above. This change of tense, however, is only formal, and the imperfect may be translated by the present.

210. 3 (Sect. 98.) faces, etc.: for the figure, cf. Cat. i., sect. 29.
210 5 Etruriae festos dies: holidays appointed by the people of Etruria, whom Clodius had cheated and robbed, at the good news of his death.—et actos et institutos, agreeing with festos dies: the celebrations that have already taken place, and the anniversaries that have been established.
210 7 qua...ea, wherever...there (abl. of way by which).
210 9 non laboro, I have no concern.
210 10 versatur, abides.

Sects. 99-103. Milo’s cause is Cicero’s own: Cicero appeals to the judges in his own name. The exile of Milo will be a calamity to the defenders of Rome.

210 12 (Sect. 99.) his, i.e. those present at the trial.
210 13 cum...es: cf. cum timemus, sect. 67 (p. 197, l. 31).
210 17 ut...possim: § 332, f; G. 557, r.; H. 501, iii.
210 22 quanti, pred. gen. of indefinite value.—quae oblivio, forgetfulness of this.

210 27 (Sect. 100.) pietatis, gratitude.
210 28 inimicitias, etc. "Such," says Asconius, "were the constancy and good faith of Cicero, that neither the popular enmity, nor the suspicions of Pompey, nor the fear of coming danger if he should be put on trial before the people, nor the arms openly taken up against Milo, could deter him from his defence, when he might have shunned all danger and popular wrath, and even won back the good will of Pompey, by relaxing a little the zeal of his advocacy."

211. 10 (Sect. 101.) hic ea mente, etc., i.e. this self-renunciation is in accordance with Milo’s character, but (it is implied) the jurors ought not to be so affected by it as to refuse to acquit him.

211 13 excipiat, after dignior qui (§ 320, f; G. 631, 1; H. 503, 11).

211 20 (Sect. 102.) hos, i.e. the Roman citizens present.

211 23 temporum illorum, i.e. the time of Cicero’s distress and banishment.

211 24 mene non potuisse, sc. respondebo.

211 26 gentibus: a line must have dropped out, part of which belongs with gentibus. The meaning of the rest of the section is therefore not clear.

211 29 (Sect. 103.) illa indicia, i.e. those of Catiline’s conspiracy.

212. 2 fuerit, subj. of integral part.

212 3 possum, virtually future, and so used as apodosis to a future protasis.

212 6 dixerim: § 311, a; G. 257; H. 485.

212 8 dictator: in times of great public emergency, the Senate could call upon the consuls to create a Dictator, who should possess the undivided power of the old kings, but only for the period of six months. The laws of appeal, and other safeguards of individual liberty, had at first no force against this magistrate. In later times dictators were no longer appointed, but the consuls were invested with dictatorial power by the formula, videant ne, etc. (Cat. i, sect. 2). Sulla, and afterwards Cæsar revived the name and authority of this magistracy; but, by holding it for life (perpetuo), completely changed its character, making it equivalent to absolute sovereignty. — The Magister Equitum, appointed by the Dictator, stood next in command to him.

212 9 vide rem: § 332, b; G. 298 and N. 2; II. 502, 2.

Sects. 104, 105. Happy the country that receives Milo! Closing appeal to the court.

212 15 (Sect. 104.) in Italia: since the Social War, the towns of Italy, having received Roman citizenship, had lost the jus exsilii, i.e. had ceased to be foreign territory to which exiles from Rome could retire.

212 21 (Sect. 105.) lacrimis defendi: this was a peculiarly Roman custom. Many a desperate case was gained in the Roman courts by putting on mourning, and bringing out the wife and children of the accused, in deep mourning and bathed in tears.

Not long after this trial, which ended in Milo’s conviction, he was tried again in his absence for bribery (ambitus) and illegal combinations
Oration for Marcellus.

(de sodaliciis), and on a second charge of assault (de vi), and was condemned on each count. Cicero sent him a copy of his labored defence, and received a reply drily thanking him for his effort, but expressing satisfaction that the speech was not delivered; "For then," said he, "I should not now be eating the excellent mullets of Marseilles."

In the Civil War, Milo perished in South Italy, while leading the remnant of his troop of gladiators in resistance to Cæsar,—"hit with a stone from the wall" in an assault on the town of Cosa, in Lucania (see Cæsar, Bellum Civile, iii. 22).

ORATION FOR MARCELLUS.

ARGUMENT.

CHAP. 1. Cicero's long silence broken. Cæsar's pardon of Marcellus the earnest of a restored republic.—2. This is the greatest of Cæsar's deeds.—3. Conquest is a natural and frequent thing: self-conquest is a divine attribute. Other praises are drowned by the noise of war: this wins love and gratitude.—4. This glory none can claim to share. Victory itself is conquered when its rights are renounced.—5, 6. This pardon reaches far beyond Cæsar's other acts. Cicero had feared the violence of his own side if victorious: Cæsar's spirit was the nobler.—7. Cæsar has nothing to fear from Marcellus: the state itself will defend its savior.—8. The wounds of the Civil War must be healed: he must live to restore the republic.—9. This glory must ever remain: unless the state is restored, his other glories will have no abiding-place.—10. The Civil War is finished.—11. Cicero is the mouthpiece of all in rendering thanks to Cæsar.

This oration for Marcellus is not argumentative, but eulogistic, belonging to the genus demonstrativum (see general Introd., p. xlii). It is therefore not divided into narratio, confirmatio, etc., like most of the other orations in this volume.

Sects. 1, 3. Cicero's long silence broken. Cæsar's pardon of Marcellus is the earnest of a restored republic.

Page 214. Line 1. (Sect. 1.) diuturni silenti: it was now more than six years since the defence of Milo, which was followed almost immediately by Cicero's absence as proconsul in Cilicia, whence he returned only on the eve of the Pharsalian campaign.—eram . . . usus, had kept.

214 3 verecundia, modesty, i.e. distrust of himself under the circumstances.
Notes.

214 4 vellem: not subj. of indir. question, but informal indir. disc. (§ 341, c; G.662).

214 5 tantam mansuetudinem, etc.: no doubt these words express the genuine and grateful surprise felt at Cæsar’s clemency, so different from the conduct of former conquerors in civil wars (as Sulla, for example).

214 6 rerum omnium, in every respect.

214 13 (Sect. 2.) in eadem causa: Cicero also had been on Pompey’s side.

214 15 versari me: this phrase belongs as well with persuade as with fas esse, but its construction is determined by the latter.

214 21 (Sect. 3.) in multis, in me ipso, in the case of many, and in my own.

214 22 paulo ante, just now.—in omnibus, i.e. by pardoning Marcellus, whom he thought a most violent opponent, Cæsar had shown that his clemency would extend to all, however much they had opposed him.

214 26 suspicionibus: Cæsar is said to have suspected Marcellus of plotting his assassination (cf. sect. 21).

214 26 ille, i.e. Marcellus too.

Sects. 4–12. This pardon is the greatest of Cæsar’s deeds. His other exploits were glorious victories: this is the conquest of himself. He shares this conquest with no one.

215. 16 (Sect. 5.) usurpare, dwell on.

215 28 et certe, etc., and it is certainly true that, etc.

215 30 (Sect. 6.) Fortuna: see Manil. Law, sect. 47.

215 32 (Sect. 7.) hujus gloriae, i.e. the glory of granting this pardon.

216. 3 centurio, the infantry officer (see note, Manil., sect. 37).

216 4 praefectus, the commander of the auxiliary cavalry. So cohors and turma correspond to each other, as the infantry and cavalry divisions.

216 9 (Sect. 8.) immanitatem barbaras, i.e. barbarous and fierce: his first conquests had subdued the Gauls, Germans, and Britons.

216 10 locis infinitas: Cæsar moved from Gaul, B.C. 49, into Italy, and the same year to Spain. In 48 he crossed over to Greece, and thence to Egypt; in 47 he carried on war in Asia Minor, and in 46 gained the crowning victory of Thapsus in Africa.

216 13 animum vincere, to rule his spirit; cf. Proverbs xvi. 32: “He that is slow to anger is better than the mighty; and he that ruleth his spirit, than he that taketh a city.”

216 14 victoriam temperare, to control the passions of victory (cf. sect. 9, p. 216, l. 27).

216 15 nobilitate...praestantem: this description is inserted to enhance the credit of Cæsar’s act, inasmuch as the greater the adversary, the more dangerous his restoration would seem.

216 17 haec qui facit, a slight break in the construction (anacolouthon): the proper predicate of the preceding infins. would be connected with them by est; the proper object of facit would be a result clause with ut. The effect of the Latin can be exactly reproduced in translation.

216 19 (Sect. 9.) iliae quidem: the pronoun (as often in concessive sentences) is inserted only to carry quidem, adding nothing to the sense (§ 195, c).

216 22 nescio quo modo: here (as often) with a slight tone of regret; cf. our colloquial "somehow or other."

216 23 tubarum, of trumpets: the tuba was a long, straight horn, used in infantry; the litus a carved one, used in cavalry. The silver trumpets of the Temple at Jerusalem, represented in Fig. 49 as they appear on the Arch of Titus as carried in his triumph, show the form of the tuba.

216 31 (Sect. 10.) ut... velis: for this rare constr. see § 332, f; G. cf. 553, 4; H. cf. 501, i, 2.

217 2 studia prosequemur: the figure is that of a distinguished Roman escorted by a throng with enthusiastic acclamations (studia).

217 4 hujus curiae: the old Curia Hostilia, on the north side of the Comitium, was destroyed by fire in the riots after the death of Clodius, B.C. 52 (see Milo, sect. 33); but was rebuilt by Faustus Sulla, son of the dictator.

217 10 suam: § 196, g; G. 309, 2; H. 449, 2.

217 18 (Sect. 11.) tropaeis et monumentis: the tropaea were memorials of victory, consisting of armor of the conquered, arranged in human form, and either erected by itself (see Fig. 50, from a coin) or attached to some monument— as a column or arch. As to monuments, Cæsar did not live to carry out his plans fully; he built, however, a new enclosure for assemblies, the Saepta Julia, and laid out a new forum for courts of justice, the Forum Julium, north of the old Forum.— adlatura sit, though in form introduced by ut, is not the real result of tanta est, which should be some verb in sect. 12; this, however, by a change in the construction, is suppressed, and the sentence begins again with a future (florescit).

217 22 (Sect. 12.) operibus, dat. (§ 229; G. 345; H. 385, 2).

217 23 victores, i.e. Cinna, Marius, and Sulla.

217 25 perinde . . . atque, just as.

217 28 omnes, all of us (as is shown by sumus).

217 29 occidissemus, had fallen: a rhetorical exaggeration for "had forfeited our lives.”

Sects. 13–20. This pardon reaches far beyond Cæsar's other acts. Peace has always been his aim. His clemency in the hour of triumph contrasted with the fury of the Pompeians. Let him continue his noble moderation.

218 2 (Sect. 13.) illa, i.e. Pompey's.

218 7 sibi: see note on Cat. ii., sect. 17 (p. 120, l. 17).

218 8 reddidit, restored, by inspiring them with confidence that no vengeance would follow, so that they have returned to their homes.

218 9 hostis, acc. plur.

218 15 (Sect. 14.) flagitantium: before the outbreak of the Civil War, Cæsar sent C. Curio (son of C. Curio, Verr. i., sect. 18) to Rome with offers of compromise, which were spurned by the Senate.

218 18 hominem (emphat.), the man (Pompey), not his measures.— consilio, reasons.

218 19 grati animi: at the time of Cicero's recall, Pompey interested himself to go in person to several of the Italian towns to encourage the general feeling in his favor; and so atoned in part for the tardiness of his support, and his earlier hesitating, cold, and ungracious course.
Oration for Marcellus.

218 23 (SECT. 15.) integra re, before anything had been done (i.e. before peace was broken).

218 24 cum capitis mei periculo: it is said that after Pompey's defeat, the command was urged upon Cicero by Cato; and on his refusal to conduct the war, Sextus Pompey would have stabbed him unless Cato had interfered.

218 27 statim censuerit: Cicero was welcomed and kindly treated by Caesar on his return to Italy, B.C. 47. The war was not finished till the next year, hence incertus exitus, etc.

218 29 victor, when victorious (opposed to incertus, etc.).

219, 4 (SECT. 16.) certorum hominum: such senatorial leaders as Metellus, Scipio, and Dolabella. Cicero says, in a letter to M. Marius (Fam. vii. 3), "Excepting the chief and a few besides, the others—the leaders I mean—were so grasping in the campaign and so cruel in their talk, that I shuddered at the thought of victory. There was nothing good except the cause." And to Atticus (ix. 7), "It is their plan to stifle (suffocare) the city and Italy by famine, then ravage the fields, set fire, and not spare the money of the rich." Pompey, he says, would often say, Sulla potuit: ego non potero? (ib. ix. 10).

219 11 (SECT. 17.) ut ... debet, clause of result.

219 12 excitaret: more exactly excitatus fuerit (cf. § 308, d, n.; G. 597, r. a; H. 496, n. 2).

219 16 (SECT. 18.) otiosis, the neutral.

219 22 contulisse ad, made all hope, etc., depend on, etc.

219 26 (SECT. 19.) est, comes.

219 31 quae, things which. The Stoics held that virtue was the sum- mum bonum, and Cicero here alludes to that doctrine.

220. 3 commodata, loaned.

220 4 (SECT. 20.) praesertim belongs with lapsis.

220 5 opinione, notion.

220 6 specie, etc., i.e. with the idea of following the apparently established government (that of the Senate, which was on Pompey's side).

220 7 si ... timuerunt: cf. § 333, r.; the protasis is logically the subject of est.

220 8 senserunt, found by experience.

Sects. 21-22. Caesar has nothing to fear from Marcellus. All good citizens desire the safety of Caesar, for the restoration of the state depends on him.

220 9 (SECT. 21.) querebam, etc., that the partisans of Pompey wished to kill him.
220 16 de tuis, i.e. his immediate companions; qui unā, those on the same side.

220 17 qui fuerunt, sc. inimici.

220 28 (Sect. 22.) nihil . . . cogitans, inconsiderate

220 30 equidem, for my part.

220 31 dumtaxat, merely (i.e. even the ordinary chances of life, to say nothing of violence and plots).

Sects. 23–29. The wounds of war must be healed. Cæsar has a great task yet to perform. His work is not done till the state is restored: only then will his fame be secure.

221 8 (Sect. 23.) constituenda judicia, etc.: the short period of Cæsar’s dictatorship was distinguished by a number of salutary enactments, almost equivalent to a complete revision of the constitution.

221 9 propaganda suboles: the waste of population by incessant wars had already begun to alarm the best minds of Rome. It was, in fact, the chief direct cause of the ruin of the Empire.

221 10 diffuxerunt, have run wild (like vines).

221 13 (Sect. 24.) fuisset, subjunc. of integral part.

221 15 faceret, in the same constr. as perderet. — prohibuisset, cont.

to fact apod.; the prot. is implied in togatus.

221 16 sananda, to be healed (referring to the result); mederi, to remedy (referring to treatment).

221 22 doctorum hominum, philosophers.

221 25 tum, referring (as often) to the protasis which follows (§ 304, b; G. 590, n. 1).

221 29 hic, in these circumstances.

222 1 (Sect. 26.) immo vero, on the contrary.

222 5 futurus fuit, was to be.

222 8 si quidem, since in fact (§ 306, a, n.; G. 595, R. 8; H. 507, 3, N. 2).

222 11 (Sect. 27.) hic . . . actus, as in a play; hence elaborandum, a word used of literary composition.

222 15 dicitō, fut. as referring to the time designated by tum (§ 269, d, 1; G. 268, 2; H. 487, 2).

222 16 diu: § 29, c; G. 20, iii.

222 19 angustiis, narrow bounds.

222 24 (Sect. 28.) [ut] inservias: § 331, f, R.; G. 553, R. 1; H. 502, 1.

222 25 quae quidem, i.e. aeternitas.— quae miretur, purp. clause; the subject is vita.

222 27 certe, doubtless. — imperia, etc., obj. of audientes and legentes.
Oration for Marcellus.

222 munera, gifts to the people, such as monuments and spectacular performances.

222. 2 (Sect. 29.) sedem, abiding-place; domicilium, home.

223 requirent, will miss.

223 illud, i.e. the war; hoc, i.e. the public safety.

223 servio judicibus, pay regard to those judges.

Sects. 30-34. The Civil War is finished. Boundless gratitude is due to Caesar, not only for restoring Marcellus to his country but for all which that act implies.

223 (Sect. 30.) non pertinebit, will have no concern for. Such was the doctrine of the Epicureans, who believed in annihilation after death.

223 obscuritas, uncertainty, i.e. as to which side a good citizen ought to take.

223 decet, was becoming, i.e. to their position and circumstances. A Senator, for example, however well affected to Caesar, might have felt it his duty to side with his class (who were in general partisans of Pompey). Such conflicts of mind of course constantly arise in civil wars. — licet, was legal. Both Caesar and Pompey claimed to be acting under the laws.

223 (Sect. 31.) perfuncta est, has done with.

223 inflamnaret, etc.: cf. sect. 16 and note (p. 219, l. 4).

223 ab, etc.: the first ab means by; the second, from.

224 sanatatis, a sound mind (ordinary intelligence).

224 haec (with a gesture), this glorious city.

224 oppositus, interposition (literally plur.: § 75, c.; G. 204, N. 8).

224 (Sect. 33.) unde, with which (in Latin the beginning is regarded as the source from which).

224 agimus, express; habemus, feel.

224 mea, on my part.

224 cum id ... praestitterim, while I have fulfilled it.

224 me ... conservato, while I have been preserved.

224 quod ... non arbitrabar, which I thought no longer possible.
ORATION FOR LIGARIUS.

ARGUMENT.

Chap. 1. Exordium (sect. 1–sect. 2, l. 18). A strange charge is this against Ligarius,—that he was in Africa,—and he confesses it.—Narratio (sect. 2, ll. 19–26, sect. 3). Ligarius went to Africa in time of peace and remained there under Varus: this is all.—Confirmatio. 2, 3. No ground for accusation: he went to Africa before war broke out, and his remaining there was a plain necessity. Cicero himself is more guilty than he, and Tubero, the accuser, actually fought on the side of Pompey: yet both have been pardoned.—4. But now Tubero seeks the life of Ligarius. 5. Perhaps Tubero’s intention is not bloodthirsty; but his action is inhuman.—6. Cæsar has never regarded the Pompeians as criminals.—7, 8. In connection with Africa, Tubero is less excusable than Ligarius; for Tubero went to Africa in Pompey’s behalf.—9. Tubero’s fidelity to Pompey is praiseworthy in Cæsar’s eyes.—10, 11. He has been pardoned by Cæsar: why should not Ligarius be forgiven? Many friends desire his pardon.—12 (sects. 34–36). His brothers have always been friendly to Cæsar.—Peroratio. 12 (sects. 37, 38). Let Cæsar show his customary clemency.

I. Exordium ( §§1–2, l. 18).

Sect. 1–sect. 2, l. 18. A strange charge is this,—that Ligarius was in Africa; and this charge is confessed: Ligarius must then depend on Cæsar’s mercy only.

The first section is elaborately ironical: to have been in Africa was, of course, no crime, nor was the fact that Ligarius had been there unknown. The whole not merely leads up to Cicero’s main contention (that the siding of Ligarius with the Pompeians was due to circumstances and not to hatred of Cæsar), but introduces his clever sarcasm on Tubero, himself an ex-Pompeian (sect. 2).

Page 226. Line 2. (Sect. 1.) propinquus, kinsman. It is not known what was the relationship of Tubero to Cicero.—Tubero: Q. Ælius Tubero, the prosecutor, was the son of L. Ælius Tubero, the Pompeian commander, and was lying sick on board his father’s ship at the time when Ligarius prevented the landing in Africa (see Introd., p. 225 of text). Cicero, throughout this speech, conveys the impression that personal resentment was at the bottom of Q. Tubero’s action in opposing the pardon of Ligarius.
Oration for Ligarius.

226 3 Pansa (C. Vibius; cos. B.C. 43; see Phil. xiv.): at this time a leading supporter of Cæsar. He was one of the petitioners in behalf of Ligarius.

226 5 quo me vertam, which way to turn.

226 10 necessarius: Cicero’s necessitudo to Pansa appears to have consisted in their working together in behalf of Ligarius.—ut...esset (obj. of fecerit), that it is no longer a new case.

226 16 (Sect. 2.) in ea parte, i.e. the side of Pompey, on which the younger Tubero (the accuser) had been, though he had since become reconciled to Cæsar.

II. NARRATIO (§ 2, ll. 19–26, § 3).

Sects. 2 (ll. 19–26), 3. Ligarius went to Africa in time of peace; he remained there peaceably under Varus: these are all the facts in the case.

226 20 Considio: C. Considius Longus, a praetor of Africa in B.C. 50, the year before the Civil War.

226 21 sociis: see note on Verres, sect. 13 (p. 32, l. 29).

226 22 satia facere, etc.: if a governor left his province before the expiration of his term, he could appoint any officer he chose, to govern pro praetore in his place, and such a substitute exercised the imperium of his superior. It was usual, although not obligatory, to appoint the highest subordinate officer, the quaestor. Hence this apologetic expression of the orator: Ligarius, he says, was so highly esteemed both by the Roman residents and by the native provincials that Considius could do no less than appoint him.

226 27 (Sect. 3.) qui erant in Africa, i.e. the Roman citizens there.

226 28 cupiditate inconsiderata, headlong partisanship.

226 29 salutis and studi limit ducem.—studi, partisan zeal.

226 30 ducem, i.e. they wished to organize, at first to secure their own safety, and afterwards to aid the Pompeian party, and hence they desired a military leader.—cum: § 325, b; G. 581; H. 521, i.

227 1 implicari, i.e. refused to commit himself to any such action.

227 2 praetor, i.e. as praetor.—obtinuerat, had held, in some former year. Of course, therefore, he had no legitimate authority in Africa at the present time, for the imperium had to be conferred by a special and very definite act: hence the expression si illud, etc. (l. 4).
III. Confirmatio (§§ 4–36).

Sects. 4–5. No ground for accusation in the facts: Ligarius went to Africa before the war: his remaining there was a plain necessity. No enmity against Cæsar on his part.

227 7 (Sect. 4.) qui cuperet, being one who wished.
227 12 in provincia pacatissima: Africa was one of the earliest and most thoroughly conquered of the provinces. — ita se gessit, etc.: in contrast to others who welcomed a state of war to escape or hide the consequences of their acts of violence or oppression.

227 13 pacem esse, subj. of expeditet. — profectio, his going there.
227 19 (Sect. 5.) quod, that during which (a forced use of the acc. of duration of time).

227 21 Utica: a Phenician city in Africa, older than Carthage, under whose supremacy it was always restless. For this reason it helped Rome against Carthage, and was rewarded with the gift of territory. After Africa was made a Roman province, Utica was its capital.

Sects. 6–8. Cicero himself is more guilty than Ligarius; yet Cæsar has shown him nothing but favor.

228 4 (Sect. 6.) occurrat, indir. question depending on reformidat.
228 14 (Sect. 7.) imperator: after the news of Pompey's death (B.C. 48) Cæsar was made dictator rei publicae constituentae, at the same time receiving certain other special grants of power, and retaining the imperium, which he had now held uninterruptedly for twelve years. Hence the exaggerated expression imperator unus; for in the original sense of this title (see note, on p. 252, l. 6) it could be borne by as many officers as was necessary. It was not until the spring of B.C. 45, some months after the delivery of this oration, that Imperator became the title of a new magistrate, in whom the imperium was vested for his life, to be transmitted to his descendants. This was the commencement of the Empire, though the office was suspended from the death of Cæsar till it was revived by Augustus. From this time the old use of this title was rare.

228 15 alterum, second. Cicero was imperator by virtue of his provincial government in Cilicia.

228 17 fascis laureatos: the fasces were wreathed with laurel when the commander, after a victory, was greeted as imperator. Cicero had aspired to the honor of a triumph for successes over some mountaineers in Cilicia, and therefore had not laid down his imperium at the time here referred to.

228 18 reddere, restore. This infin. represents a conative present, having a future force: hence dedisset, for fut. perf. of dir. disc.
228 20 (Sect. 8.) ut, how.
Oration for Ligarius.

Sects. 9–16. Who, pray, is it that accuses Ligarius? It is Tubero, who actually took arms against Cæsar. Tubero has been pardoned: yet now he seeks the life of Ligarius. Perhaps his intention is not bloodthirsty; but his action is inhuman in trying to dissuade Cæsar from his habitual course of mercy.

228 27 (Sect. 9.) fuisse, subj. of esse.
228 28 nempe, etc., why! one who, etc.
228 31 in acie Pharsalica: the decisive victory of Cæsar over Pompey, at Pharsalus, in Thessaly, was gained Aug. 9, B.C. 48.
228 32 petebat, aimed at.—qui sensus, what were the sentiments, etc.? A rhetorical way of asking him with which party he fought.
229 2 optabas, pray for (stronger than cupiebas).
229 5 hic, i.e. Cæsar.
229 13 (Sect. 10.) ut tu vis, as you will have it.
229 15 (Sect. 11.) dicam =dicturus sum.
229 25 (Sect. 12.) eum dictatorem, i.e. Sulla, who, as dictator, had had full judicial powers.
229 27 praemiis ... invitatbat: see note, Rosc. Am., sect. 6 (p. 4, l. 6).
229 28 aliquot annis post, some years later. Sulla had provided by law for the impunity of those who executed his proscriptions; but Cæsar, as judex quaestionis de sicariis, B.C. 64, took pains to secure the trial and conviction of more than one of these bloodhounds.
230 3 generis ac familiae, subjective gen.; virtutis, objective gen.
230 24 (Sect. 15.) per te, i.e. as contrasted with the bloodthirstiness of some of his followers.
230 26 essent: the prot. is si ... esset, above.
230 27 reperiantur: the seq. of tenses is violated to avoid ambiguity (see § 287, 4, N.; G. 509, 1, N.; H. 491); so nolint in l. 29.
231 5 (Sect. 16.) alicujus, for any one.
231 7 diceret: the prot. is implied in tunc (i.e. "if you were guarding Cæsar against being deceived"); see § 310, a; G. 594, 3; H. 507, N.7

Sects. 17–19. Cæsar has never regarded his opponents in the Civil War as criminals.
231 12 (Sect. 17.) aditus, approach (i.e. to Cæsar in this case).
231 13 velle, etc., indir. disc. depending on the general idea of saying contained in the preceding sentence.
231 14 de nullo alio, etc.: i.e. first, why he selected Ligarius out of all Pompey's followers; second, how one who had committed precisely the same-fault could have the audacity to bring the charge, and third, what new crime he had to accuse him of. The third point is expressed in the form of an indir. question; the other two are given as causes of the surprise.

231 18 qui durius (sc. appellant), those who speak more harshly.

231 26 (Sect. 18.) fuerint: § 266, ε; G. 264; H. 484, iii.

231 30 contumeliam: Cicero describes as contumelia the efforts of Pompey and the Senate to check the growing power of Caesar.

231 32 pacem esse cupiebas: it seems certain that Caesar had, in his desire for peace, carried his offers of compromise as far as it was possible for him to do safely in his position.

232 1 ut tibi... conveniret (in appos. with id), that you should come to an understanding.

232 5 (Sect. 19.) esses, i.e. in the case supposed.

232 6 secessionem: Pompey and most of the Senate had retired at Caesar’s approach to the city, and escaped to Greece.

232 8 utrique cupientibus, where both wished.

232 11 eorum qui sequabantur: almost the entire body of the Roman nobility followed Pompey.

Sects. 20–25. Tubero’s conduct in the Civil War was less excusable than that of Ligarius: for Tubero went to Africa in Pompey’s behalf, and, being refused a landing, actually went to Pompey’s headquarters.

232 17 (Sect. 20.) nostram, i.e. mine and my client’s.

232 19 poteramus, sc. non venire.

232 26 (Sect. 21.) Tuberonis sors: in the assignment of the provinces.

232 28 excusare, to excuse himself.

232 30 contubernales, in Cicero’s brief campaign in the Social War.

233 1 quidam, some friend: it is uncertain who.

233 4 (Sect. 22.) amplissimi viri, i.e. Pompey.

233 6 occupatum, i.e. by Attius Varus on behalf of Pompey.

233 8 voluisse, voluisse, maluisse, all have the clause Africam... obtinere depending on them, but it is expressed only with the second.

233 9 natam ad bellum: a map of the Mediterranean will show the formidable position of the province of Africa as against Italy.

233 11 aliquem, some one else (subj. of maluisse).

233 13 (Sect. 23.) querella, i.e. ‘recepti... sumus,’ quoted directly.

233 15 essetis, sc. recepti. — tradituri fuistis, were you going to surrender? Essentially equiv. to tradidissetis (see § 308, d; G. 597. ε. 4 a; H. 511, 2).

233 19 sors: cf. Verr. i., sect. 21, and note (p. 36, l. 5).

233 20 cujus... interfuit, for whose interest it was.
Oration for Ligarius.

233 21 non . . . esset probata, as being an act of treachery which Cæsar was too noble to approve.

233 25 (SECT. 24.) veniebatis, conative imperfect.

233 26 maxime infestam: King Juba of Numidia was a zealous adherent of Pompey, and Africa was the seat of the last struggle of the Senate against Cæsar.

233 27 huic caussae, i.e. Cæsar's.

233 28 aliena voluntas, estranged feeling. — conventus: an association of the citizens of a province, possessing certain corporate powers.

234. 1 (SECT. 25.) nempe, naturally enough.

234 2 in societatem, to take a share in.

234 4 venissetis, you should have come (not apod. but hortatory); venistiis (emphatic), you did come.

234 8 per me, for all me.

234 10 qui (causal) privaverit, in that he deprived you.

Sects. 26-31. Tubero's fidelity to Pompey is praiseworthy in Cæsar's eyes. He has been received into favor. Why should not Ligarius also be pardoned?

234 13 (SECT. 26.) quamvis . . . probarem, however much I might approve: probarem is used instead of probem on account of the tense of commemorarem (cont. to fact). That probarem itself is not cont. to fact is shown by ut probo.

234 17 quotus . . . quisque, how many (see Vocab.).

234 18 partibus, party.

234 19 crudelitate: because the younger Tubero was sick at the time and needed to be put on shore.

234 20 ad eos ipsos, construed with partibus (§ 182, a; G. 211, r.¹; H. 636, iv, 4).

234 22 (SECT. 27.) ut . . . fuissent: § 266, c; G. 608; H. 515, iii.

234 24 nequaquam fuerunt: Varus was of an insignificant family, while the Tuberos were members of the nobility.

234 25 justo, regular (duly conferred).

234 27 ad Cæsarem, sc. venit.

234 28 causam, side.

234 29 (SECT. 28.) ejus, i.e. Pompey's.

235 2 bellis: there is a gap here, which must have contained a thought like,—"Was there in your minds a zealous desire of victory?"

235 5 cum videres, second person of indef. subj. in a general condition (§ 309, a; G. 597, r.³; H. 508⁹).

235 7 esset, subjunct. of charact.; but for that it would be indic. (erat), by § 308, b; G. 599, r.³; H. 511, N.³
Notes.

235 8 vicissæ, integral part (for fut. perf. viceris).
235 13 (Sect. 29.) in illa causa, i.e. in upholding the side of Pompey.
235 17 ad unam summam, to one main point.
235 19 equidem emphasizes multas.
235 20 (Sect. 30.) tecum, in company with you. Cæsar was hardly less distinguished as an orator than as a general and statesman. — dum . . . tenuit: for tense, see § 276, e, and n.; G. 569, n. 1; H. 467, 4, n. — ratio . . . honorum tuorum, the course of ambition; lit. the consideration of your (series of) offices. The regular course of a Roman's ambition led him through the cursus honorum, i.e. from the quæstorship to the consulship. One of the chief means of advancing his political interests in this career was to act as advocate (patronus) in the Forum. — in foro: the Forum was the seat of the administration of justice.
235 25 posthac, sc. fecerit.
235 24 dic and quaere in effect form a protasis of which taceo is the apodosis, — if you say, etc., I am silent (§ 310, b; G. 593, 4; H. 507, 1).
235 26 quibus in praesidiis, in which army. — ne haec quidem, i.e. the following.
235 26 valerent, might prevail (if I used them).
235 27 bello oppressus, overtaken by the war.
235 28 in eo ipso, i.e. in his conduct in the war to which he was forced.
235 30 temere, thoughtlessly.
235 31 ignoscatur, impersonal. — impetravit, sc. veniam.
235 32 adrogranter, sc. oro. — idem . . . qui, as you have, etc. (lit. the same one who have).

236. 1 (Sect. 31.) mihi, etc., i.e. I have been not only spared myself but am allowed to appear for another.
236 3 studiis, zealous efforts. The thought is that Cæsar is accustomed to decide such cases not with reference to any pleading or any wish to gratify his own friends, but rather with reference to the character of the petitioners and their relation to the defendant.
236 6 causas, the cause.
236 7 voltus: the tears and lamentations by which it was customary to seek acquittal (see peroration of Defence of Milo). — quam tuus necessarius, how closely connected with you.
236 8 quam illius, opposed to tuus.
236 10 fruuntur, concedas: the indic. refers to individual cases; the subjunct. characterizes Cæsar himself, but the difference is slight.
236 13 justissimum, best founded.

Sects. 32-36. Many friends desire the pardon of Ligarius. His brothers, who plead for him, have always been friendly to Cæsar.
Oration for Ligarius.

236 15 (Sect. 32.) tu: not expressed for emphasis but merely to carry the concessive quidem.

236 17 Sabinos: Ligarius was of Sabine origin, and many of his Sabine friends were present on this occasion.

236 18 florem, etc.: the Sabine territory among the mountains was still the home of a hardy and virtuous population.

236 19 nosti: during the First Civil War, Cæsar had found shelter from Sulla among these kindly mountaineers.

236 21 squalorem: it was the custom of the Romans to express their sympathy for one in danger by going into mourning, that is, by wearing ragged and mean apparel. When Cicero was threatened with exile, some 20,000 of his friends are said to have appeared in this guise.

236 25 (Sect. 33.) quodvia, any whatever (emphatic).

236 28 vox, the expression which follows.

236 29 vicit, i.e. it was this sentiment of Cæsar, as opposed to the bloodthirstiness of the Pompeians, that won him the victory in the Civil War. — nos, i.e. the party of Pompey.

236 30 nisi qui, except those who.

237 4 veste mutata, in mourning (see note on p. 236, l. 21, above).

237 5 tecum fuerunt, on your side, i.e. as holding aloof from the other side. Being neutrals, they had been threatened by the Pompeians.

237 6 non nulli, some of us.

237 7 tuis suos, to your friends their friends.

237 12 (Sect. 34.) fuerit futurus: see note sect. 23 (p. 233, l. 15).

237 13 conspirantem, harmonious (breathing together); confiatam, identical (fused together).

237 15 quidvis...quam ut, that anything would have happened before these brothers, etc.

237 16 ut...sequerentur, subst. clause of result (§ 332, b; G. 557, n.2; H. 502, 2).

237 17 tempestate, by stress of weather.

237 19 tamen, in spite of that.

237 19 (Sect. 35.) iverit, etc. (concessive subj.), suppose he did go.

237 21 hi...tui, these entreat you and they are yours. — quidem sets off the implied subj. ego against tu, below. — cum interessem, having been concerned in.

237 22 quaestor urbanus, city treasurer (see Introduction, p. 900), in which capacity he appears to have done a service to Cæsar, who was then in Gaul.

237 28 (Sect. 36.) nihil egit aliud, had no other aim.

237 29 haec, the present condition of things, i.e. T. Ligarius could not have any interested motive in doing this favor, since he could not foresee how powerful Cæsar was to become.—eum: § 196, a, 2, n.; G. 521, n. 8; H. 449, 18.

237 31 officio, service (to you).
237 32 tot talibus, many and excellent as they are.
238 2 condonaveris: condonare is to grant something for the sake of some one else.

IV. Peroratio (§§ 37–38).

Sects. 37–38. Closing appeal to Cæsar to show his customary clemency.

238 3 (Sect. 37.) de homine nobilissimo, i.e. Marcellus.
238 4 in curia, before the Senate (see Introd. to Or. for Marcellus).
—foro: Ligarius had been accused; hence the form of trial in the Forum.
238 10 populari, popular, but in a strictly political sense.
238 14 (Sect. 38.) ut possis: a subst. clause of result (see note on p. 237, l. 16), because an effect is implied in habet.

238 16 postulet, § 311, a, n. 8; G. 459, r.; H. 485.
238 18 tantum, so much only (as often).

With the praise of Cæsar in the Orations for Marcellus and Ligarius compare the celebrated portrait of him in Cicero’s Second Philippic, published shortly after Cæsar’s death. This is interesting as the only extant testimony, publicly spoken at the time, of one who was at once contemporary, rival, and peer:

The Fourteenth Philippic.

THE FOURTEENTH PHILIPPIC.

ARGUMENT.

Chap. 1, 2. To return to the garb of peace while Brutus is not safe would be a mockery. His rescue has been the object from the beginning. — 3–5. Antony and his troops should be held as public enemies: their cruelties at Parma, etc.: the city itself has been allotted among them. Cicero would extend the time of rejoicing, and salute the commanders as imperatores, to which their deeds entitle them. — 6, 7. Absurd charge against Cicero, of aiming at power. The career of honors is open, and the people rate men according to their deserts. — 8. His former counsel, that Antony be declared a public enemy. This is implied in the proposed supplicatio. — 9, 10. Exploits and eulogy of Pansa, Hirtius, and Octavianus. — 11, 12. A supplicatio of fifty days is recommended for the three commanders. Eulogy of the soldiers, the living and the dead. Special tribute to the Martian Legion. — 13. Let us console the relatives of the slain, and pay the promised reward to the families of the dead. — 14. Resolution of thanks and honor.

The Fourteenth Philippic consists of two parts, one argumentative and the other eulogistic. There is no lack of connection, however, for the argument is necessary as a basis for the eulogy. The substance of the speech may be stated in one sentence: "Antony is an enemy to the state (hostis), — hence the victory of the consuls should receive the honors regularly awarded only to successes in foreign wars." The opening passage (sects. 1–5) is, in form, an objection to the proposed vote to lay aside the military garb; but it is in effect an exordium, since it serves to introduce Cicero's first proposition, — that Antony is a public enemy. This proposition is established in sects. 6–25, and the rest of the oration is a tribute of honor to the generals and their soldiers. The sententia with which the address concludes (sects. 36–38) sums up all that Cicero has said, and takes the place of the usual peroration.

Sects. 13–20 form a digression in which Cicero defends himself from certain attacks on the purity of his intentions. But this digression is closely connected on the one hand with the rejoicings over the victory and on the other with the necessity of declaring Antony a hostis.

Sects. 1–5. If D. Brutus were safe, we might well lay aside the military garb. But until his safety is assured, such rejoicing would be a mockery. The war is not ended until he is relieved from siege.
Notes.

Page 242. Line 1. (Sect. 1.) si, with cognovisse (l. 5), prot. cont. to fact, with censerem (l. 7) as its apod. — ut, correl. with sic (l. 3). — ex litteris, i.e. despatches from the seat of war.

242 2 hostium, i.e. Antony's forces.

242 3 id quod, namely D. Brutum egressum ... esse (l. 4).

242 4 Brutum: D. Brutus, one of Cæsar's murderers, had been assigned by him to the government of Cisalpine Gaul, and took possession of the province after Cæsar's death. In the summer, Antony procured the passage of a law transferring this province to himself. Brutus, supported by the Senate, refused to give it up, and upon this issue hostilities broke out. Brutus was at this time besieged in Mutina (Modena), and the consuls, Hirtius and Pansa, had moved to raise the siege.

242 6 ad saga, etc., as we should say figuratively "to arms." The sagum (Fig. 51) was a simple woollen cloak, fastened over one shoulder with a clasp or buckle (fibula), while the toga had no fastening, but was wound in elaborate folds about the body. It was put on instead of the toga (the garment of peace: see note on p. 125, l. 17) in the city when there was war near home, as a sign that the citizens were called to arms.—issemus, subjunc. of subord. clause in indir. disc.—redeundum, etc.: to return to the ordinary garb of peace, the toga, would, under the circumstances, be a sign of rejoicing.

242 8 ea res, i.e. the liberation of D. Brutus from siege.

242 10 pugnae: the victory of Hirtius and Pansa at Bononia (see Introd., p. 241 of text).

242 12 (Sect. 2.) ista sententia, that proposition (one proposed by the Senator P. Servilius, and opposed by Cicero in this oration).

242 15 id agamus ut, etc., let us do so with the intention to retain it.

242 16 hoc, referring to discedere (l. 18). The point is that it would not be pleasing to the gods for the citizens to assume the garb of rejoicing merely for a day, and then, since their main prayer had not been granted, to return ad saga.

242 21 (Sect. 3.) redierimus, sc. ad vestitum.

242 22 ne ... prodatur, i.e. if they change their attire for this one day, it will appear that it was not on account of Brutus that the change was made, for he is not yet safe.

243. 2 tollite hanc, set aside this motive (a kind of protasis: § 310,§; G. 593, 4; H. 487, 3).
243 3 conservate, etc., maintain your dignity (by sustaining Brutus).
243 7 (Sect. 4.) legati: this was in January. At the head of the embassy was the distinguished jurist, Ser. Sulpicius Galba, who died on the journey.
243 8 hosti, i.e. Antony. — denuntiarent, order (with threats).
243 10 Hirtius, the consul (see Introd., p. 241 of text). — imbecillita-tem, infirm condition. Cicero had said of him before: "How feeble and worn he was! But the infirmity of his body did not check the vigor of his soul."
243 12 Caesar, i.e. Octavianus.
243 13 liberasset: Octavianus had taken an active part in the autumn in thwarting Antony's plans.
243 15 doletem aliqum domesticum, some private grief, i.e. for the death of Julius Cæsar, his adoptive father. It should be remembered that D. Brutus was one of the assassins of Cæsar.
243 15 (Sect. 5.) quid . . . egit, what object had Pansa? He had set out for Mutina some weeks after his colleague Hirtius.
243 17 faciendis, procuring (i.e. as presiding officer of the Senate).
243 21 necessitati victus, implying that the war brought distress in the provision market.
243 22 quod, i.e. the liberation of Brutus from siege.
243 24 et connects rei and evento.
243 25 praeripuisse, seized prematurely, if the news proved true; contempsisse, scorned, if it proved false.

Sects. 6–12. Antony should be declared a public enemy. His war against the state. His brother's cruelties at Parma. Honors should be voted to the generals who have defeated the enemies of the nation.
243 27 (Sect. 6.) significatio vestra, the indication you have given
(i.e. by signs of approval.)
243 29 propraetore: Octavianus, upon whom the Senate had specially conferred this rank early in January. He was left in sole command after the death of Hirtius and Pansa. — si . . . ante, as soon as.
243 30 pertineant: § 341, d' ; G. 508, 3; H. 528, 1.
243 31 exercituumque: this term is added, because the legions contained only Romans, while the consular armies had also auxiliaries.
243 32 duobus, sc. proelis. The battle was begun by Pansa, who was routed and mortally wounded — although the fatal character of his wound was not yet known at Rome; then the fortune of the day was retrieved by reinforcements led by Hirtius. Octavianus took no part in this engagement, but repulsed an attack upon the camp.
244. 1 hostium, civium: Cicero’s great point in the Philippics is to make out that Antony—like Catiline—is no citizen, but a public enemy. In the argument that follows, he shows that the proposition of a supplicatio (see note, Cat. iii., sect. 15, p. 133, l. 19), which had never been decreed except for a victory over foreign enemies, endorses this view by treating Antony as a hostis. — hostium, summa pietas; nefarium scelus, civium: observe the chiastic order.

244 6 (Sect. 7.) hostem: the proposition seems to have studiously omitted calling Antony’s troops enemies: this Cicero objects to.—vero, forsooth, marks the irony.

244 8 civium: if not hostes they were, of course, cives, whom it would be impious to kill.—improbis (sc. civibus), criminals.—inquit, the mover of the proposition which Cicero is combating is supposed to retort that, though citizens, these are criminals, and that Cicero’s sarcasm therefore misses fire.

244 9 clarissimus vir: P. Servilius Vatia, the proposer of the supplicatio, Cæsar’s colleague in his second consulship, B.C. 48.—quae, etc., i.e. these words are appropriate not to soldiers in arms against the state but to civil offenders.

244 15 (Sect. 8.) bellum, etc.: this is Cicero’s statement of the real facts as opposed to his ironical suggestion in the preceding sentence.—infert: used of offensive war.—quattuor consulibus, i.e. besides the consuls, the two consuls elect, Plancus and D. Brutus.— unus, i.e. Antony.

244 16 gerit, is actually carrying on.

244 18 sui cladibus, the evils he himself threatens.

244 19 Dolabella facinus: Dolabella, Antony’s colleague in the consulship, when on his way to the province of Syria, in February, 43, assaulted Smyrna by treachery, captured the procurator of Asia, C. Trebonius (one of the conspirators against Cæsar), and put him to death with indignities and torture.

244 22 hoc templo, i.e. that of Jupiter Capitolinus, where the Senate was now met (cf. Cat. i., sect. 1, and note).

244 23 Parmensium: Parma had been captured by L. Antonius, and treated in the manner here described.

245. 1 L. Antonius, the youngest brother of Mark Antony (cos. B.C. 41).

245 9 (Sect. 9.) oblita from oblinio.

245 10 crudelitatem: the cruelty of the Carthaginians was proverbial—at least among their enemies the Romans.

245 12 capta, surrepta: observe the antithesis. Violence which was excusable in the case of a city taken by storm, was, Cicero implies, disgraceful in the case of one taken by treachery.
245 16 (Sect. 10.) hujus urbis: sc. cum esse: urbis limits quid in the same sense in which coloniarum limits hostis. — explendas, replenishing.

245 17 latrocinii, gang of robbers.

245 18 Saxa, L. Decidius: a Celtiberian by birth, originally a land-surveyor, a creature of Cæsar’s and now of Antony’s. The reference here is to a law of Antony, passed in the June preceding, for the establishment of colonies of veterans. In peritus . . . decempeda Cicero alludes to Saxa’s humble origin and also implies that, in laying out confiscated territory, he habitually appropriated more than the forfeited area.

245 20 rumoribus, i.e. of the success of Antony’s arms.

245 22 larem: the lar familiaris was the protector of the family, and especially of the hearth.

245 24 a quibus, from whom (not by whom).

245 29 (Sect. II.) decreverit, has moved.

245 30 omnino numerum, the total number.

246. 4 cui, interrogative.

246 5 ut non, etc., without his being called.

246 9 (Sect. 12.) an si quis, etc.: equiv. to or, when, if any one had, etc., the Senate would have called him imperator, shall we take away, etc.? The Latin expresses the thought by two co-ordinate interrogative sentences, — appellaret senatus (with its protasis si quis occidisset) and adinemus (with its modifiers). In English it is more natural to make the first of these sentences subordinate. Cf. a similar construction in Manil. Law, sect. 58.

246 11 quae increbuit: in the later days of the republic, the title of imperator and the honor of a triumph were granted on much slighter grounds than in earlier times. — appellaret, would have styled (imperf. because of repeated action).

246 13 isti hostes domestici, i.e. the partisans of Antony remaining in Rome.

246 18 ovantem: evidently some informal demonstration of joy on the part of the citizens is referred to, in which Cicero, as a well-known champion of the Senate, was escorted to the Capitol to give thanks to the gods. Strictly the oratio was an inferior triumph, sometimes granted by the Senate in cases when the proportions or circumstances of the victory, or the rank of the commander, did not warrant the supreme honor of a triumph (see note, Manil. Law, sect. 8, p. 70, l. 17). The general did not wear the purple embroidered robe, or the laurel crown, but the ordinary tecta praetexta, and a wreath of myrtle. Moreover, he walked, or (in later times) rode on horseback, instead of riding in a chariot.
Sects. 13-21. Digression: Cicero defends himself against false charges and gives a history of the rumors circulated to his discredit. His tribute to his generous rivals of former days. The people know the purity of his sentiments. He has always opposed Antony.

246 22 (Sect. 13.) meritis, masculine gender.
246 26 tu igitur, sc. gloriaris. — dixerit, potential subjunctive.
246 29 gratiam non referri, that a favor should not be returned.
246 30 impietatis: the stories told charged Cicero with intended treason (see l. 10), which would be impietas against his patria.

246 32 (Sect. 14.) Parillisbus: the Parilia or Patilia (April 21) was one of the most ancient Roman festivals, in honor of Pales, a goddess of flocks. This day was regarded as the anniversary of the founding of the city. — qui dies, etc., which occur this very day.

247 1 cum fascibus descensurum, i.e. was coming down to the Forum with the insignia of usurped power, as if to assume the throne. — hoc esse conlatum, that this [intention] was attributed.

247 3 ne quid: § 319, a, N.; G. 553.
247 4 ut: if this word is retained, the expression is subj. of exclam. (§ 332, ε; G. 558; II. 486, ii, N.); if omitted, a rhetor. question (§ 268; G. 259; H. 486, ii).

247 5 existerem, etc., should turn out of a sudden another Catiline: imperf., as referring back to the time when his enemies said "descender." — quibus auspiciis, the whole Roman polity was based on the assumed approval of the gods, secured, in every case, by auspices (auspicia) taken by the proper authority. Only magistrates had the right to take the auspices (see note Cat. iv.; sect. 2, p. 142, l. 4). The augur was not in any sense a magistrate, though he had the power of interpreting the auspices. Hence Cicero, though an augur, would be unable to take the first step to any usurpation of power. A technical obstacle like this would not stand long in the way of a modern usurper; but the stress here laid upon it illustrates the degree to which the peculiar formalism of the Roman religion had become worked into the Roman mind, and, further, the power that lay in this formalism to protect the institutions of the state.

247 6 augur, I, an augur (emphatic): i.e. an augur would know his science too well for such an attempt. This was the latest of Cicero's official honors, received ten years before, and he fully appreciated the dignity of the priestly craft.

247 7 cui traderem: as the usurped authority would be illegal in its inception, so it could not be legally transferred to any successor. — quemquamne fuisse: § 274; G. 534; H. 539, iii.

247 10 (Sect. 15.) fama, i.e. of Antony's success at Mutina.
247 ii illam curiam, i.e. the Pompeian: this was to the north of the Capitoline, and was the scene of Cæsar’s death (hence the term infelicem). Fig. 52 shows the famous coin struck in commemoration of the murder of Cæsar. — furis suis, their own madmen. The MSS. have viribus or juris: Klotz’s conjecture partibus is adopted by Halm.

247 15 ad me, as being now the leading man in the state.

247 19 quasi, i.e. on the pretence that.

247 20 tyrannum: to the Romans rex and its Greek synonym tyrannus (τραπάρνας) meant a usurper or unconstitutional monarch, against whom violence would be a virtue. A dictator, though his power was practically absolute, was not a tyrannus, since his office was held in accordance with the ancient laws of the commonwealth.

247 21 quae is obj. and res is subj. of patefecit.

247 25 (Sect. 16.) jam inde, ever since.

247 27 contionem: see introd. to notes on Manil. Law.

247 30 declaravit, not by a formal vote, of course, but by spontaneous cries.

247 32 optatissimi nunti, etc., i.e. of Paûsa’s victory at Bononia.

248 3 auxerit, added to my dignity.

248 5 (Sect. 17.) male mecum ageretur (a common Latin idiom), I should fare hard. — parum . . . purgatus, i.e. if I needed any defence against so monstrous a charge.

248 7 jejunō animo et angusto, i.e. mean and small-souled.

248 8 id . . . fecissetem (§ 341, d; G. 628; H. 528, 1): translate, to do as I had always done, [namely to] think, etc.

248 9 campus, etc.: observe this ancient use of a figure still familiar to us.

248 10 Crassus: the great orator, who died B.C. 91 (Introductory, p. xxxiiii).

248 11 utinam, etc.: Cicero, by this wish, expresses his own sentiments of generous rivalry towards some of his great contemporaries, now dead, and in the same breath characterizes their feeling towards him as in like manner generous and noble. He is thinking of such great citizens as Lucullus, Hortensius, and Catulus.

248 12 cum . . . cederem, when I myself was ready to yield to them.

248 13 principem, the first man in the state. When a Roman had held the consulship, there was no higher political office in his reach, but, as a member of the Senate, he retained a dignified and authoritative position in the public counsels. The emulation here referred to by Cicero (contentione principatus, l. 19) was for the first place among such men (hence consularium in l. 14). — hoc vero tempore, i.e. now, in the dearth of strong leading men, like those just referred to.

248 15 quo . . . dolore, interrogative.
248 17 sententiam moderari, govern their views.
248 21 cursus, speed.
248 22 tu, though emphatic, does not here refer to a particular person: it merely addresses the whole opposing party as if it were a single individual. — optime sentiam: cf. male sentire (l. 15).
248 23 ad me . . . fieri, etc.: best rendered by changing the construction,—all good citizens gathering about me. This refers to such occasions as that of the gratulatio above (p. 246, l. 18).
248 24 nollem, I should regret that (i.e. I should be sorry if that were so): cf. § 267, c; G. 261, r.
248 27 optatus, i.e. than such a course of conduct on the part of the other side.

248 29 (Sect. 19.) haec, i.e. that I am the true champion of the people, and not those demagogues who are jealous of me.—In this section Cicero makes an easy transition back to the subject which he was discussing when he began to digress (at sect. 13), — the necessity of declaring Antony a public enemy and of honoring the generals for defeating him.

249. 1 maxime, sc. de nobis.
249 5 xiii. Kalendas Januarias (Dec. 20), the day when the third and fourth Philippics were spoken,—one in the Senate and one in the Forum,—declaring Antony a public enemy.
249 6 ex Kalendis Januariis, when, in the fifth Philippic, he urged that no negotiations should be had with Antony. The campaign against Antony may be said to have begun Dec. 20 (see preceding note); but no active measures were taken until the new consuls entered upon their office on the first of January.

249 10 meis sententiis, i.e. it was in consequence of Cicero’s expressed opinion in the Senate that negotiations with Antony were broken off. It was on the question of sending an embassy (see note, sect. 4, p. 243, l. 7) to him that Cicero delivered the fifth Philippic. The embassy was sent on Jan. 1, but came to nothing, and the Senate then declared war.

249 11 illum, sc. esse.
249 12 ut ego, just as I [thought].
249 13 huic, etc., [but] to this mere name, etc.
249 14 (Sect. 21.) P. Ventidium: an officer of Antony's army. He afterwards gained some important successes over the Parthians, B.C. 38.— † volu
tenem: the manuscripts here are hopelessly corrupt.

249 16 discisionem, "division" (as in the English house of Commons); see general Introd., p. lvii. — voluissent: the presiding consuls could put a question to vote in the Senate or not at their discretion, since they alone were regarded as having the initiative in deliberations (see general Introd., ibid.).

249 19 licuit, i.e. by the consuls (see last note).
249 21 verbis notari: spurious, and to be disregarded in translation.

Sects. 22–25. It is no longer possible to refuse to declare Antony an enemy: this is implied in the honors proposed for the generals.

249 23 (Sect. 22.) sustulerunt, i.e. refused to put that question.
249 27 imprudens, without knowing it.

249 30 (Sect. 23.) This and the following section give examples to prove Cicero’s assertion that a supplicatio had never been decreed for victory in a civil war, that is, for victory over persons who were not hostes.

249 32 bellum Octavianum: see Cat. iii., sect. 24 (p. 137, l. 26) and note.

250. 3 Servili: see note on p. 244, l. 9.
250 4 conlega, i.e. Julius Caesar.
250 6 de Alexandria: for a victory over the Egyptians; de Pharmace, son of Mithridates, King of Pontus (both victories, B.C. 47).
250 12 (Sect. 24.) ob conservationem: see Cat. iii., sect. 15.
250 15 Gabinium: he had claimed a supplicatio, which the Senate steadily refused, for some successes against Arab marauders in Syria.

250 18 re, in effect; verbo, in so many words.
250 22 (Sect. 25.) honoris amplissimi, i.e. the consulship.
250 23 alterum, i.e. consul; alterum, i.e. imperator.

250 28 a membris, etc.: Antony would not only cut their throats, but treat their bodies with indignity,—as was, in fact, afterwards done in the case of Cicero.

250 30 (Sect. 26.) With this section the formal eulogy begins. Sect.
25 is a transition from the argumentative part of the oration to the laudatory portion.

250 31 legione Martia: this was one of two legions that had gone over from Antony to the Senate the November previous. The other was the quarta, mentioned below (p. 251, l. 11).

251. 9 alterum, referring to the second alternative (victoria se, etc.), according to the favorite Latin chiastic order.
476

Notes.

251 14 (Sect. 27.) beneficia, i.e. grants of money and assignments of land to Julius Cæsar's veterans. — servassent, had saved, i.e. had not, like some others, wasted their property and become reprobates (cf. Cat. ii., sect. 20).

251 15 viginti cohortibus, i.e. two legions.

251 18 tribus: in point of fact, Antony had only two legions engaged; but full particulars had not yet reached Rome, and Cicero appears to have thought that a third legion, the Alauda, which he had with him, took part in the fight.

251 19 huic, etc., dep. on imminentis (l. 21).

252. 2 (Sect. 28.) aetas: Octavianus was now twenty years old, an age at which no person could regularly hold the imperium.

252 6 ejus nominis, that title (imperator). This, though connected with the imperium, was not conferred with that power, but followed some important success in the field, being given by acclamation of the soldiers.

252 9 castra, i.e. the camp of Hirtius.

Sects. 29–35. Devotion of the soldiers. Special tribute to the Martian Legion.

252 13 (Sect. 29.) decerno, I propose: note that this word often does not mean decree, but is used of a single Senator, — vote or propose. — quinquaginta, an unprecedented number. A ten days' supplicatio had been decreed for Pompey's victories in Africa, and fifteen for Cæsar's defeat of the Belgians.

252 16 est, it is due to. — fidei . . . declarare: § 214, d; G. 366, r.2; H. 403.

252 18 bello concocto (§ 255, d; G. 410; H. 431, i): notice the reference to fut. time.

252 21 conjungi, sc. cum honore imperatorum.

252 22 (Sect. 30.) omnibus, i.e. to all, both living and dead. To the living the full reward is due only on the completion of the war; to the dead, however, it can be paid at once by being given to their heirs (see the end of the decree, sect. 36).

252 24 victoribus, i.e. at the end of the campaign.

252 25 quam . . . secuti sunt, i.e. relying on which (the pledge of the Senate) they followed the cause.

252 26 consili sui, their course (i.e. their espousal of the cause of good order).

252 27 quibus, i.e. the living, whose silent presence is a reminder.

252 29 senatus sapientis: the Senate, as composed of the wisest citizens, would best appreciate the importance of encouraging patriotism.

253. 2 (Sect. 31.) occurrunt, suggest themselves.
The Fourteenth Philippic.

253 6 placet . . . mihi, my proposition is (an almost technical use of the phrase: see Vocab.).

253 10 Albam, sc. Fucensem: a town among the mountains, in the territory of the Marsi, which the Martian Legion took and held after revolting from Antony.

253 12 desiderat, has lost.

253 13 in ipsa victoria, at the moment of victory.

253 15 (Sect. 32.) vos: here he addresses the Martian Legion.

253 16 idem deus: Mars was not only the special patron god of Rome, but, being the father of Romulus, was regarded as the ancestor of the Roman race (hence urbem genuisse).

254. 18 (Sect. 34.) publice, i.e. by way of public eulogy.

254 24 bustis, burial-mounds. The bustum was properly the heap of ashes left after the body had been consumed with the rogus (Fig. 53); but the term was also applied to the mound erected on the spot where the body was burned. For an elaborate bustum see the round tomb of Cæcilia Metella in the view of the Appian Way (text, p. 169).

Sects. 36–38. Formal resolution of thanks and honor.

255. 6 (Sect. 36.) sententia, i.e. a formal proposition for a decree (analogous to "a motion reduced to writing" in a modern deliberative assembly). In the Roman Senate questions were proposed only by a magistrate; and this was done not in the form of a set motion, as with us, but the whole question was presented (de re referre) for discussion. The result of the deliberation might be several formal propositions for a decree, all, any, or none of which might be formally put to vote by the presiding officer. If one of these was carried, it would stand as the senatus consultum. (Cf. Introduction, p. lvii, above). — completar, i.e. my views on the whole question.

255 8 What follows is a somewhat rare example of a regular resolution of the Senate. The stately and formal character of the language is noteworthy. — cum, whereas.

255 15 occidione occiderit: notice the set phrase, not used in ordinary language. Translate, cut to pieces with great slaughter.

255 20 (Sect. 37.) senatum . . . judicare, indir. disc. depending on censeo (l. 7); in the decree it would be senatus . . . judicat.

255 25 uti . . . constitutat: in the decree this would depend on some word of commanding (like decernit) in the heading; hence it stands unchanged in Cicero's indirect statement.

255 26 alter ambove: the imperium of the two consuls was absolutely equal, and the power of neither was impaired by the special assignment of any duty to the other. Any such special assignment of functions was only made by mutual consent, and either had a legal right to interfere in the other's province. Of course, however, any such interference was regarded as unwarranted, and, in practice, the two colleagues either took turns in the administration, or agreed upon a division of functions between them.

255 28 pulvinaria: see note on Cat. iii., sect. 23 (p. 137, l. 14). A. Supplicatio was one of the few religious rites of the Romans in which the whole people took part. The proper temples were opened and the gods symbolically served with a feast (Fig. 37). The citizens repaired to these temples and paid their individual devotions to the gods in peculiar forms of humiliation not ordinarily observed in the public sacrifices.

255 29 (Sect. 38.) senatum . . . soluturum: here the statement returns to the form of the indir. disc., — in the decree, senatus . . . solvet.

255 33 cum . . . caederent, concessive.

256 5 locandum . . . curent: see note on Cat. iii., sect. 20 (p. 136, l. 8).

256 12 si vi vi resissent, if they had survived their victory.
VOCABULARY.

A., Aulus (wh. see).
    a. d., ante diem (wh. see).
    a., see ab.
    ab (ā, abs), [reduced case of
        unc. stem. akin to Gr. ἄρις, Eng. off, off], adv. (only in comp.), and prep.
        with abl., away from, from (cf. ex:
        out of, and de, down from, off from).
        — Of place, with idea of motion,
        from: rediens a cena.—With expressions of measure, off, away, at a distance of: procul a nobis; a sena-torio gradu longe abesse.—Of time, from, since: a kal. Jan.—Fig., from (with more or less idea of motion): ab hoste defendere; ab auro manus cohibere; urbs ab armis conquiscere; ab eo metuere (as in Eng.); secerne te a bonis; a república deficere.—When the idea is slightly different in Eng.: vacuus ab (desistute of); quaero a vobis
(I ask you); a seclere abhorreare (be inconsistent with); postulare ab (ask of); a vobis contendere (urge upon); ab isto poenas repetere (see poena).—Especially with passives and words of similar import, by (cf. accidere a Caesare, at the hands of, showing the origin of this meaning).—Especially (prob. as the place whence the impression comes), on the side of, on, at, on the part of:
a tergo interclusus (in the rear).
—In comp., away, off, apart.—Also with negative force, not, unaballēnē, āvi, ātus, āre, [abalieno], i. v. a., (put away to another), alienate.

abdicē, āvi, ātus, āre, [ab-
dico],
i. v. a., (assign away).—With reflex, abdictare: se praeturā (resign the pratorship).

abdō, -didi, -ditus, -dere, [ab-do (put)], 3. v. a., put away, remove, hide.—With reflex, conceal one’s self,
hide, bury one’s self (as littera);
sol (hide its face at sunset).—With in and acc. or abl., hide in, withdraw to (take refuge among), withdraw and hide away. — abdītus, -a, -um, p.p., hidden, remote, secluded.

abdūcē, -dūxi, -ductus, -ducere, [ab-duco], 3. v. a., lead away, draw away, take away, lead off, carry away (of persons or things which move of themselves).

abeō, -i, -itus, -ire, [ab-eo], irr.
v. n., go away, go off, retire, go (out of sight or away): abītus (he is gone, without regard to cause or manner).
—Fig., pass, go by: abīt illae annus (passed away).

aberrō, āvi, āturus, āre, [aberro], i. v. n., (wander away or off), go astray, wander away.—Fig., go astray, deviate from: studia aberrrantia a communi utilitate (at variance with, not in harmony with).

abhorrēō, -ui, no p.p., -ere, [ab-horrō], 2. v. n., shrink from.—Less exactly and fig., be at variance with,
Vocabulary.

be inconsistent with, be averse from, be indisposed to a tuo scelere; a meis moribus; a musarum honore; animi a causa (be estranged from) abiciō,-jēcī,-jēctus,-īcere,[ab-jacio], 3. v. a., throw away, throw down, throw (away from one's self).

Lit., cadaver in publicum (cast forth). — Esp. at one's feet as a suppliant, prostrate, throw one's self.
Fig., cast aside: humanitatem.
— abjectus, -a, -um, p.p. as adj., downcast, overwhelmed, abject, broken, worthless, fallen.

abēs,-étis (-ētis), [?] F., far or spruce (tree or wood), (prob. including all short-leaved coniferæ).

abjectus, see abiciō.

abjiciō, see better spelling abiciō.

abjūdicē,-āvi,-ātus,-āre,[ab-judico], 1. v. a., adjudge away, take away (by legal decision).

abjungō,-junxi,-junctus,-jun-gere,[ab-jungo], 3. v. a., disjoin, detach.

abnuō,-nui,-nūtus,-nūturos,
-nuere,[ab-nuo], 3. v. a. and n., (refuse by a nod). — Less exactly, refuse, decline.

abripīō,-ripui,-ripus,-ripere, [ab-rapio], 3. v. a., carry off (with violence), drag away, drag off.

abrogō,-āvi,-ātus,-āre,[abrogo], in its political sense, 1. v. a., pass a vote to annul, or take away: colleges magistratum (deprive of).

abrumpō,-rupi,-ruptus,-rumpere, [ab-rumpo], 3. v. a., break off. — With reflex., break away, withdraw (with violence).

abs, see ab.

abscendō,-scī,-scīs,-scīere,[abscaedo], 3. v. a., cut off, hop off, tear off, tear away.

absecdī,-dī,-dītus,-dīere,[abs-condo], 3. v. a., hide away. — absecditus,-a,-um, p.p. as adj., hidden, obscure, far to seek.

absēns, see absūm.

absimilis,-ē,[ab-similia], adj., unlike.

abstītē,-stiti, no p.p., -sistere, [ab-sītō], 3. v. n., stand away, withdraw. — Fig., leave off, keep aloof.

absolutē,-ōnis,[ab-solutio, cf. absolvō], F., (a setting free), an acquittal. — Also, a completion.

absolvō,-vi,-ius,-īvere,[abssolvō], 3. v. a., (loosen), acquit. —
Also, complete, perfect.

abstergeō,-ters-, -tersus,-tergēre, [abs-tergeo], 2. v. a., wipe off, wipe away: filētum.

abstinentia,-ae,[abstinent +
ia], F., self-restraint (abstaining from gratifying one's passions): innoentia et abstinentia.

abstīneō,-tinu,-tensus, tinere, [ab-steneō], 2. v. a. and n., hold off: manus animosque (keep, withhold).

abstrahō,-trux,-tractus,-trahere,[abs-traho], 3. v. a., drag off, drag away. — Fig., draw away.

absum,-fui (āfui),-futurus,-esse, [ab-sum], irr. v. n., be away, be absent, be off (at a distance). — Fig.: tantum abes a perfectione; flagitium a corpore (not be found on); haec a meo sensu (be unperceived by). — Esp. impersonally, be so far from, etc.: tantum abest ut videar (so far am I from seeing). — absēns, -ntis, p. as adj., in one's absence.

abundantia,-ae,[abundant + ia], F., abundance.

abundō,-āvi,-ātus,-āre,[tabundō], 1. v. n., overflow. — Fig., abound. — Transf. (of the place, etc., containing the thing), be rich in, be rich in, abound in.
Vocabulary.

abūtor, -ūsus, -ūtī, [ab-utor], 3. v. dep., misuse, abuse, take advantage of (by misuse).
āēc, shorter form for atque (wh. see).
accēdō, -cessi, -cessūs, -cessere, [ad-cedo], 3. v. n., move towards; draw near, approach, come up, come near, come to, advance to, advance.
— Fig., come to: huic causae (take up); litterarum lumen (shine upon).
— Esp., be added, where often an explanatory word is necessary in Eng.: illud no tis (we shall have also this advantage); so with quod (there is also the fact that, there is also the reason that, or simply, moreover, then again).
accēlerō (ade-), -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [ad-celerō], i. v. a. and n., hasten (towards something).
acciēs, -ūs, [ad-cessus, cf. accedo], m., an approach.
acciō, -cīdi, no p.p., -ciderēre, [ad-cedo], 3. v. n., fall upon, fall: tela gravius (strike). — Fig., happen, occur, present itself, turn out, arise. — Often euphemistically for death, defeat, etc.: si quid ipsi (of conviction).
acciō, -cīdi, -cīsus, -cidere, [ad-caedo], 3. v. a., cut into, partly cut.
acciō, -cīpī, -ceptus, -cipere, [ad-capio], 3. v. a., take, receive: bellum (take up). — Less exactly, receive, suffer, meet with, experience: injurias; dolorem. — Fig., accept, learn, hear, get, take.

Accius (Attius), -ius (?), m., a Roman family name. — Esp. L Accius, a tragic poet, born B.C. 170.
accommodā, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [ac-commodā, or ad-commodo-], 1. v. a., fit on, fit, put on, adjust. — Fig., adapt, suit, conform, accommodate. date (testis ad crimen). — accommodate, -āvitus, -āvium, p.p., fitted, adapted, well-suited.
accubā, -āre, [ad-cubo], i. v. n., lie at, lie near. — Esp., recline (at table).
accurātī [old abl. of accuratus], adv., with care, carefully.
accūsātūs, -ōnis, [accusā + tio], p., an accusation, a prosecution, an arraignment (speech of [prosecutor].
accūsātor, -tōris, [accusā + tor], m., a prosecutor, an accuser, a conductor of a prosecution.
accūsāvō, -āvī, -āitus, -āre, [ad-causō (cf. causor)], i. v. a., accuse, blame, find fault with. — Esp., conduct a prosecution against, prosecute, accuse, arraign, be prosecutor.
accēr, -crīs, -cre, [-acr (cf. acus), + ris (cf. -rus in purus)], adj., sharp. — Fig., keen, active, violent, energetic, spirited, severe, harsh: homo; duces; familia; sententiae; supplicia; acri animo (with great spirit).
acerbā [old abl. of acerbus], adv., bitterly. — Fig. (of the mind), with bitterness, severely: ferre (suffer severely from, etc.).
acerbītās, -ātīs, [acerbā + tas], p., bitterness. — Fig., harshness, severity, bitter feeling. — Concrete in plur. (with change of point of view in Eng.), sufferings.
acerbus, -a, -um, [acēr (treated as stem) + bus (cf. superbus)], adj., bitter (to the taste). — Fig. (to the mind), bitter, hard to bear, cruel; harsh: res; supplicium. — Transf. to the feeling subject, bitter, violent: adversarius; animus; imploratio.
acerrēmā (Acerrumē), superl. of acriter.
Vocabulary.

acervus, -i, [acer (as stem) + vus (cf. torus)], m., (pointed?), a heap, a pile.

Achäicus, -a, -um, [Gr. Ἀχαιός], adj., of Achaea, Achæan, — Grecian.

Achäius (Achäus), -a, -um, [Gr. Ἀχαῖος], adj. Achæan. — Fem. as subst., Achaea, a province of Greece. — Later, Greece, as a Roman province.

Achillēs, -is, (-ei, -ei, -i), [Gr. Ἀχilleς], m., Achilles, the hero of the Trojan war.

Achradina, -ae, [Gr. Ἀχράδινα], F., a part of the city of Syracuse.

acēs, -ēs, [√ac + ēs (cf. series)], F., point, sharp edge, edge, sharpness of the edge, keen glance, glare: auctoritatis (edge, fig.). — Esp., line, battle line, array, army (as in battle array, cf. agmen), rank (of an army in several ranks): in acie caderi (in battle array); Pharsalica (battle).

Acilius, -i, [unc. stem + ius, prop. adj.], m., a Roman gentile name. — Esp. M. Acilius Glabrio, who, as tribune of the people, carried a severe law against official extortion. — Hence, as adj., Acilian (lex).

acquirēō, see adquirēō.

acriter, [acro + ter (prob. neut. of -terus reduced)], adv., sharply. — Fig., actively, sharply, violently, with spirit.

acroāma, -atis, [Gr. ἀκράμα], N., an entertainment (musical or dramatic).

acitūs, -ōnis, [as if √ac + tio, prob. tācti + o], F., a doing (including all the performances expressed by ago). — Esp., political action, official conduct: Lentuli consulis.

Also, a civil action, a prosecution: perdullionis. — Also, a pleading (of a case), a hearing (changing the point of view).

āctor, -ōris, [√ag + tor], m., a doer (cf. actio). — Esp., a pleader (of a case, on the side of the plaintiff), a prosecutor, an advocate (of the plaintiff), an attorney: actor hic defensorque causae meae.

āctum, -i, [n. p.p. of ago], N., a proceeding (official), an act.

āctus, -ūs, [√ag + us], m., a driving, a doing. — Esp., an act (of a play).

acuō, -uī, -ūtus, -ure, [acu- (stem of acus)], 3. v. a., sharpen. — Fig., irritate, excite, spur on. — acūtus, -a, -um, p.p. as adj., sharpened, sharp, acute.

acus, -ūs, [√ac + us], F., a needle.

ad [?], adv. (only in comp.), and prep. with acc. With idea of motion, to, towards, against. — Where the idea of motion is more or less obliterated, to, towards, for, at, on, against, in, in regard to. — Of time, till, at, or on: ad vespasiam; quam ad diem (up to, as a limit). — Esp., of place, at (not exactly in nor on), around, near: ad Achillis tumulum (by); ad rhedam (around); ad curiam; quam ad summam (at the summit of which, city); ad inferos (in the world below); ad urbem (near the city, of a commander with the imperium, who could not enter the walls); ad populum (before the people, of official action); ad senatum illum (at the house of, etc.). — Also fig., to, towards, for: fatale ad permiciem (fated for); ad quietem; ad judicandum severum (in); momentum ad suspicionem (cause for, etc.); ad laudem contendere (strive for).—Esp. with gerund to denote purpose or tendency, to: audax ad conandum (in).—Also, in respect to, in accordance with, at: praeclarus ad aspectum (in appearance); ad severitatem lenius (in respect to); ad libidinem (at); ad nutum. — In comp. as adv., to, in, by, towards.
Vocabulary.

a. d., see ante.

adaequō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [ad-aequō], i. v. a., make equal to: cum virtute fortunam (match).—More commonly neuter, become equal to, equal.

adamō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [ad-amō], 1. v. a., fall in love with, take a fancy to, covet.

adaugeō, -auxī, -auctus, -augēre, [ad-augeō], 2. v. a., add to, increase.

ade-, see aec-.

addicō, -dīxi, -dictus, -dīcere, [add-dicō], 3. v. a., adjudicate, assign (by legal decision).—addictus, -a, -um, p.p. as adj. and subst., assigned (to one in satisfaction of a debt), bound, given over to, devoted.

addictīō, -onis, [ad-dictio, cf. addicō], f., an adjudging, an assignment (by legal decision).

addō, -didī, -ditus, -dere, [ad-do, put and give], 3. v. a., give to. — Also, put to, add.

adducēō, -duxi, -ductus, -ducere, [ad-duco], 3. v. a., lead to, draw to, bring in (of persons), bring, draw in (towards one), drive, force: in eas oras exercitum; in judicium; in invidiam (bring, expose); in oblivionem (consign); in spem (raise); pretio adducta civitas; amore ad ducti (fascinated). — Fig., induce, persuade, drive, lead.

1. adeō, -iī (-ivi), -itūrus, -īre, [ad-eō], irr. v. a. and n., go to, visit, get at, come to, come up, go to (a place), get in (to a place), advance (somewhere), attack, approach (speak with): with or without ad (visit). — Fig., encounter, incur, go into, take: periculum; ad rem publicam (take part in); hereditates (take).

2. adeō [ad-eō], adv., to that point. — Less exactly, to that degree, so much, so: usque adeo (to that degree).—Weakened, in fact, at all, exactly. — Esp. atque adeo, and, in fact, and even, or rather.

adfabrē (aff-), [old abl. of ad-faber], adv., skillfully.

adfectō (aff-), -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [ad-facto, cf. afficio], 1. v. a., (make for, cf. proficiscor), aim at, pursue: iter (run a course).

adferō (aff-), -tuli, -tātus, -ferre, [ad-fero], irr. v. a., bring to, bring. — Fig., cause, produce, bring forth, bring forward, allege, report, announce, bring about: moram; facultātis tantum (produce); lucem (cause to shine, bring); vim (apply, use); saltem; rei publicae motum; medicinam (apply); vim (offer); manus (lay upon).

adfiocō (aff-), -eci, -ectus, -ficere, [ad-facio], 3. v. a., do to, affect: quonam modo vos (treat). — With acc. and abl., affect with, inflict upon, produce in, cause to, visit with, fall with: praemiis (confer upon, honor with); populum laetitia (fail with). — In passive, suffer, receive, be in (a condition), be affected by, suffer from: calamitate; honore (receive); dolore (suffer); beneficiis (receive); turpitudine (incur); supplicio (be visited with); aetate afficius
Vocabulary.

(worn); vitius affectus (possessed by).

adfigō, -fixi, -fixus, -figere, [adfigo], 3. v. a., fasten to, crucify.

adfigō, -fixi, -fixus, -figere, [adfigo], 3. v. a., make up in addition, invent more, counterfeit besides.

adfinis, -e, [ad-finis], adj., bordering on. — Fig., akin to (by marriage). — Also, implicated (in anything): culpae. — As subst., kinsman (by marriage).

adfirmō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [adfirmo], 1. v. a., confirm, strengthen, corroborate. — Hence, declare, assert.

adfigō (aff.), -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [ad-ficto, cf. adfigo], 1. v. a., dash against, dash upon, dash to the ground. — Hence, overthrow, overwhelm, wreak. — Fig., afflict (with disease), prostrate.

adfligō (aff.), -fixi, -fixus, -figere, [adfigo], 3. v. a., dash upon. — Hence, overthrow, wreak, overturn: equestrem ordinem (ruin); consolare nomen; causam susceptam; Catilinam. — adfictus, -a, -um, as adj., cast down, broken, disheartened, laid prostrate, ruined (fortunae), overwhelmed.

adfluō (aff.), -fixi, no p.p., -fluence, [ad-fluo], 3. v. n., flow to. — Hence, with change of relation, flow (with anything), abundant in. — adfluēns, p. as adj., abundating in, full of, replete with: urbs studiis; unguentis (Gabinus).

adgregō (agg.), -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [ad-tgrego], 1. v. a., unite together, assemble, gather together.

adhaerēscō, -cre, [adhaeresco, cf. adhaereo], 3. v. n., adhere to, cling to.

adhibēō, -ūi, -itus, -ēre, [adhabeo], 2. v. a., have in. — Hence, call in, admit, bring with (one). — Fig., employ, use: vim (offer, use, employ); studium atque aures (afford, lend, furnish); orationem.

adhic [ad-hic], adv., hitherto (of place). — Of time, up to this time, till now, to this day, thus far, hitherto, so far.

adimō, -em, -emptus, -imere, [ademo, take], 3. v. a., take away (the action regarded as done to somebody), take from, deprive of, rob of, remove from (a person).

adipiscor, -eptus, -ipisci, [adapiscor], 3. v. dep., obtain, secure, attain: gloriām (win, gain).

aditus, -ūs, [ad-itus, cf. adeo (1)], M., approach, arrival, coming, coming forward, access. — Concretely, an avenue (of approach), access (excuse for approaching), means of approach, means of access, way of approach (in military sense), entrance: laudis (road to glory); faciles aditus ad eum privatorum (access); omnium aditus tenebant.

adjumentum, -i, [ad-tjumentum, cf. adjuvo], N., aid, assistance: adjumento esse (be of assistance). — Concretely, an aid, a means (of assistance).

adjungō, -junxi, -junctus, -jungere, [ad-jungo], 3. v. a., join to, unite to, attach, unite with, add: divinitus adjuncta fortuna (with the addition of fortune from above).

adjutor, -tōris, [ad-tjutor, cf. adjuvo], M., helper, assistant, abettor.

adjūtrix, -īcis, [ad-tjurtix, cf. adjuvo], V., a helper (female, or conceived as such in gender), an assistant, an abettor, accomplice.

adjuvō, -jūvi, -jūtus, -juvāre, [ad-
Vocabulary.

juvo], i. v. a., assist, help, help on, aid, be of advantage, be an assistance to, give assistance: causam (support).

adligō (all-). -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [ad-lego], i. v. a., commission (for some purpose), despatch, send (as agents).

adliciō (all-). -ēxi, -lectus, -licere, [ad-lacio], 3. v. a., entice, allure, draw, persuade: ad misericordiam.

adlīnō (all-). -ēvi, -ītus, -linere, [ad-līno], 3. v. a., besmear, smear on.

adluō (all-). -ūi, no p.p., -luere, [ad-luo], 3. v. a., wash (as of the sea, etc.).

administer, -trī, [ad-minister], m., a servant, an assistant, an abetor, a tool (of persons): seculerum.

administra, -ae, [ad-ministra], f., a servant (female), an assistant, a handmaid: virtutis.

administrō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [administrō-], i. v. a. and n., serve. — Also, manage, administer, carry on, conduct: bellum, rem publicam.

admiraōbilis, -e, [ad-mirābilis, cf. admiror], adj., admirable, marvellous, astonishing.

admiraōtō, -ōnis, [ad-miratio, cf. admiror], f., admiration, wonder, surprise, astonishment: ipsius adventus admiratioque (his arrival and the marvel at the man himself).

admiron, -ātus, -āri, [ad-miron], i. v. dep., be surprised, wonder at, admire. — admirandus, -a, -um, as adj., surprising. — admirātus, -a, -um, p.p. in pres. sense, being surprised.

admittō, -mīsī, -missus, -mittere, [ad-mitto], 3. v. a., let go to, admit, let go: in Tusulanum; ad concilia admissitur casus. — Fig., allow (cf. com- and permitto): in se facinus (commit a crime); deducus (permit to be incurred). — Also, without in se, commit.

admodum [ad modum], adv., to a degree. — Hence, very, very much, greatly, exceedingly, so (very) much.

admoneō, -nī, -ītus, -āre, [ad-moneō], 2. v. a., warn, urge, remind.

admonitus, -īsus, [ad-monitus, cf. ad-moneō], m., a reminder, a warning, a suggestion.

admoveō, -mōvi, -mōtus, -movēre, [ad-moveō], 2. v. a., move to, approach. — Less exactly, apply: ignis ceteroque cruciatus.

admururātīs, -ōnis, [ad-mururatio], f., a murmur (at something), murmurs of intelligence (or approval or displeasure).

adnumerō (ann-). -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [ad-numero], i. v. a., count out to.

adnuō (ann-). -nui, no perf. p., -nuere, [ad-nuo], 3. v. n., nod to, nod assent. — Less exactly, assent.

adolēscēnsa, see adulescens.

adolēscentia, see adulescentia.

adolēscō, -olēvi, -ūtus, -olēscere, [ad-olesco], 3. v. n., grow up (to maturity), mature. — adultus, -a, -um, p.p. as adj., grown up, mature.

— Fig., full grown, full developed. — See also adulescens.

adorōr, -ortus, -ōrī, [ad-ōror], 4. v. dep., (rise up against), attack, assail.

adornō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [ad-orno], i. v. a., adorn, furnish, provide, fit out: maria clausibus; hunc ad perficiendum (furnish with material, etc.).

adparātus (app-). -tūs, [ad-pa-
Vocabulary.

ratus, cf. adparo], m., preparation.
— Concretely, preparations, equipment, furnishings.

adparēō (app.), -ūi, -ītūrus, āre, [ad-parēo], 2. v. n., appear (see pareo).

adparō (app.), -āvi, -ātus, āre, [ad-parō], 1. v. a., (get for some purpose?), prepare, arrange, make preparations for (with a conception of the object from Eng.): bellum; iter. — adparātus, -a, -um, p.p. as adj., prepared (with effort), splendid, magnificent, elaborate.

adpellō (app.), -āvi, -ātus, āre, [adpellō- (ad-pellō, akin to bellō)], 1. v. a., accost, address, call to, appeal to, call upon: te nunc appellō. — Also, call, name: quae appellatur Insula; sanctos poētas.

adpendō (app.), -pendi, -pēnus, -penderē, [ad-pendo], 3. v. a., weigh out to.

adpetō (app.), -īvi, -ītus, -ere,[adpeto], 3. v. a. and n., seek to gain, desire, aim at: plus ornatus; regnum; inimicitias (voluntarily incur); vita ferro appetita (attempted). — adpetēns, -entis, p. as adj., desirous, eager for, covetous: gloriae.

adpōnō (app.), -posui, -positus, -pōnerē, [ad-pōno], 3. v. a., place near, put to, fit — apposītus, -a, -um, p.p. as adj., suited, fitted.

adportō (app.), -āvi, -ātus, āre, [ad-porto], 1. v. a., bring in, bring (to some place).

adprobō (app.), -āvi, -ātus, āre, [ad-probo], 1. v. a., approve of, agree with (an opinion or action).

adprōmitō (app.), -mīsī, -misus, -mitterē, [ad-prōmitto], 3. v. a. and n., promise in addition, promise as surity.

adproperō (app.), -āvi, -ātus, āre, [ad-propero], 1. v. a. and n., hasten towards, hasten in, hurry up, hasten (to something).

adpropinquō (app.), -āvi, no p.p., -āre, [ad-propinquo], 1. v. n., approach, come nearer, come near, be at hand.

adquirō (acq.), -quisīvī, -quisitus, -quirēre, [ad-quaero], 3. v. a. and n., (get in addition), acquire, gain: adquirere ad fidem (gain in credit).

adripiō (arr.), -ripui, -reptus, -ripere, [ad-rapiō], 3. v. a., snatch up, seize, catch.

adroganter (arr.), [adrogant- (stem of p. of adrogō) + ter], adv., with presumption, presumably, with insolence.

adrogō (arr.), -āvi, -ātus, āre, [ad-rogo], 1. v. a., (ask in addition), claim, demand. — adrogāns, -antis, p. as adj., arrogant, presuming.

adscendō (asc.), -scendi, -scensus, -scendere, [ad-scendo], 3. v. a. and n., climb up, climb, ascend, mount, rise: ad caelum.

adscūnans (asc.), -ūs, [ad-ascundos, cf. ascendo], M., a climbing up, an ascent, a going up. — Concretely, a way up, a means of ascent: adscīscū (asc.), -scivi, -scitus, -scircere, [ad-scisco], 3. v. a., attach (by formal decree), adopt. — Less exactly, attach to (one’s self), unite with (one’s self).

adscribō (asc.), -scripsi, -scripsum, -scribere, [ad-scribo], 3. v. a., write down (somewhere) enroll, assign (by enrolment): civitātibus (enroll as citizens of).

adsēnsī (ass.), -onis, [ad-sendo, cf. adsentior], F., assent. — Concretely, an expression of assent.

adsentīō, -sensi, -sensus, -sentīre, also deponent. — adsentior (ass-),
Vocabulary.

sensus, -sentiri, [ad-sentio], 4. v. dep., assent, give assent: voluntarius (defer to).

adsequor (ass.), secutus, sequi, [ad-sequor], 3. v. dep., follow after, overtake. — Fug., attain, secure, gain, accomplish (as an end).

adservo (ass.), avi, -atus, -are, [ad-servo], 1. v. a., guard, keep, keep under guard: hominem; tabulas.

adsidō (ass.), -sedi, -sessurus, -sider[e], [ad-sidó], 3. v. n. and a., sit down (near or by something).

adsiduē (ass.), [old abl. of adsiduus], adv., diligently, constantly.

adsiduitās (ass.), -tātis, [adsiduō + tas], F., diligence, assiduity, constancy, unremitting effort: molestiarum (constant pressure).

adsiduus (ass.), -a, -um, [ad-śiduus (ś/SED + uus, cf. residuus)], adj., sitting by, constant, continued, incessant, untiring, indefatigable: adversarius; adsiduus in praedīs (constantly employed).

adsignō (ass.), avi, -atus, -are, [ad-signo], 1. v. a., assign, attribute.

adspexit (assp.), -tus, [ad-śpexiūs, cf. adspicio], M., a looking at, a sight, a view. — Transf., an appearance, an aspect, a view (objectively).

adspernor, see better aspernor.

adspicio (assp.), -spēxi, -spectus, spicere, [ad-śpeciō], 3. v. a. and n., look upon, look at, look, see: altius (look, aim).

adsto (ast.), -stiti, no p.p., -stāre, [ad-stō], 1. v. n., stand by, stand near, stand (by or near).

adsequēs (ass.), -fēcē, -factus, -facere, [ādsequē (unc. case, akin to suēscō) -faciō], 3. v. a., accustom, train. — Pass., be accustomed.

adsum, -fui, -futurus, esse, [ad-sum], irr. v. n., be near, be by, be present, be at hand, be there (here), appear, attend (at a place): propter (be near by); animis (be attentive).

— Esp., be by to assist, assist, defend.

— Also, be close by, impend.

adtenē, see attendē.

adtingō, see attingō.

attribuo, see attribuō.

adulescēns, -entis, [p. of adolescere], adj., young. — As noun, a youth, young man. — With proper names, the younger (Jr., to distinguish one from his father).

adulescēntia, -ae, [adulescēnt- + ia], F., youth.

adulescentulus, -i, [adulescēnt- (as if adulescēnt- ) + lus], M., (often as adj.), a mere boy, very young.

adulter, -eri, [ad-ulter, cf. ulterior, ultra, one who roams abroad?], M., an adulterer, a paramour.

adulterium, -i, [adulter + ium], N., adultery.

advena, -ae, [ad-vena (VEN + a)], M., a chance comer (as opposed to a native), a stranger, a visitor.

advenīō, -veni, -ventūrus, -venire, [ad-venīō], 4. v. n., come to, come, arrive: Verri adventienti (on his arrival).

adventīclus, -a, -um, [ādventī-clus (advent- or clō + ius) + ius], adj., coming by chance (cf. adventa), foreign, external, additional (to one’s own resources).

adventus, -ūs, [ad-ventus (cf. adventus and eventus)], M., a coming, an arrival, an advent.

adversārius, -a, -um, [adversō- (reduced) + arius, cf. onerārius], adj., (turned towards), opposed. — As noun, an opponent, an adversary.
Vocabulary.

adversio, -onis, [ad-+versio, cf. adverto], F., a turning: animi (occupation, employment).—See animadversio.

adversus, prep., see adverto.

advertō, -verti, -versus, -vertere, [ad-vertō], 3. v. a., turn towards: animum (turn the attention, notice, see animadverto), turn against, turn (to anything).—adversus, -a, -um, p.p. as adj., in front, opposed, opposite, in opposition, adverse: prœ(lium (unsuccessful); res adversae (adversity, want of success).—adversi (those in front).—adversus, [petrified as adv. and prep., cf. versus], against.

advesperasceit, -ere, [ad-vesperasceït], 3. v. impers., grow dark, approach evening.

advocō, -âvi, -âtus, -âre, [advocœ, i. v. a., call (to one), summon. —advocatus, -i, p.p. as subst., a witness (called in to some transaction as witness and adviser), a supporter, a counsel (assisting one in a suit but not a pleader, cf. patronus).

advolō, -âvi, -âturus, -âre, [advolō], i. v. n., fly to, fly at. — Also, fig., fly, rush.

aedes, -is, [√aēdhes (cf. aestas) + es (cf. honos) and -is (cf. orbis)], F., (a fireplace), a temple (a regular edifice, cf. templum, a consecrated spot, and fanum, a shrine, generally ancient). — Also (only in plur.), a house, a dwelling.

aediculatio, -onis, [aediculatio, i. n., a building: portus in aediculatio: aspectuque urbis inclusi (the plan, the site).

aediculum, -i, [aediculu- (cf. artifex) + ium], N., a building.

aedificō, -âvi, -âtus, -âre, [aediculus, -i, -a, -um (cf. artifex)], i. v. a., build (of houses), erect, construct. — Less exactly, of ships.

aedillus, -is, [aedilis (as stem of aedes) + lis], M., belonging to a temple?, an adile, an officer at Rome. There were two classes of these officers, — the Curule, who had charge of the public games and were important civil magistrates, and the Plebeian, who had only the duties of police commissioners.

aedilicas, -tātis, [aedilis + tas], F., adileship (the office of aedile).

Aegaeus, -a, -um, [Aýsaes], adj., Aegaeon (of the Ægean Sea): mare (the Ægean).

aeger, -gra, -grum, [unc. root (?vgr, shake) + rus], adj., sick, disabled. — Also, fig., suffering, afflicted, enfeebled.

aegerrimus, superl. of aegre.

aegre [abl. of aeger], adv., feebly.

— Hence, with difficulty, hardly, scarcely, unwillingly (suffer from doing something).

Aegyptus, -i, [Aýpyptos], F., Egypt.

Aelius, -i, [?], M., a Roman gentile name (strictly an adj.). — Esp., Q. Aelius, cons. B.C. 148. — Plur., the Æli (members of the gens).

Aelius, -a, -um, [properly same word as last], adj., Ælian (belonging to the Ælian gens). — Esp., Ælian (belonging to Q. Ælius): lex (a law regulating the auspices of the comitia).

Aemilius, -i, [aemulō-(reduced) + ius], M., a Roman gentile name. — Esp., Marcus Aemilius Scænus, cons. B.C. 115.

aemulus, -a, -um, [?; cf. aequus?], adj., envious, rivaling, emulous. — Masc. and fem. as subst., a rival.
Vocabulary.

aequābiliter, [aequābili + ter], adv., uniformly, without distinction.

aequālis, -e, [aequō + alis], adj., equal, uniform.

aequālītas, -tās, F., equality.

aequālīter [aequali + ter (cf. acrīter)], adv., evenly, uniformly, equally, on an equality.

aequē, [old abl. of aequus], adv., evenly, in the same way, as much, just (as).

aequītās, -tās, [aequō + tas], F., evenness. — Hence (cf. aequus), fairness, justice. — Esp., aequitas animi (evenness of mind, contentment, resignation, equanimity).

aequus, -a, -um, [?], perh. akin to unus (toenos)], adj., even, level, equal. — Hence, fair, just, equitable, right: civitas aequissimo jure (on a perfect equality as to rights). — Esp., aequus animus (equanimity, contentment, resignation); aequo animo (with composure, with verb, be resigned to, be satisfied to, be content to); aequus animus est (I am content, resigned); aequo animo paratoque (with resignation and composure); aequo animo esse (be undisturbed).

aerōrius, -a, -um, [aer- (as stem of aces) + arius (cf. onerarius)], adj., (having to do with copper). — tribuni (see that word). — N. as subst., the treasury (cf. aces).

acerumna, -ae, [?], F., hardship, trouble, toil, suffering.

acerumnūs, -a, -um, [acerumna + osus], adj., toilsome, painful, full of suffering, wretched.

aces, aeries, [perh. akin to Eng. iron], N., copper (for the arts, or as money). — Hence, money. — Esp., alienum (debt, another man’s money). — Also, bronze (of which copper is a chief ingredient), a tablet (of bronze, used for perpetuating official documents).

Aesclapēs, -i, [Ἀεσχλῆς], M., the god of medicine among the ancients.

aestās, -tās, [stem akin to aedes + tas, or perh. aestā- (cf. Juventa) + tis (cf. virtus)], F., (heat), summer (the season for military operations).

aestimō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [aestīmō- (aestumus, tu in tuer? + mus, cf. aeditumus)], I. v. a., value, estimate, assess (of damages, by a process regular in Roman law).

aestus, -tūs, [root of aedes + tas], M., heat (plur. in same sense): aestu febrīquō (by the burning heat of fever). — Hence, boiling, tide.

aetēs, -tēs, [aēvo- (stem of aevum) + tas], F., age (of old or young), youth, old age, life: aetate adfectus (oppressed with years); aetas atque robur (youth and strength); aetatem degere (pass one’s life); nervos aetatis (sinew of youth); ab inuente aetate (from early manhood); aetatis tempus (time of life). — Also, age (time, generation).

aetētula, -ae, [aetēt + ula (as if aetato + la)], F., youthful age, early years (as a period of life).

aeternītās, -tās, [aeternō + tas], F., eternity, never-ending time, everlasting ages.

aeternus, -a, -um, [aēvo- (stem of aevum) + ternus (cf. hesternus)], adj., eternal, lasting, never-ending, everlasting.

Aetōlia, -ae, [Aetolā + ia, F. of -ius], F., a region of Greece north of the Gulf of Corinth, conquered by M. Fulvius Nobilior in B.C. 189.
Vocabulary.

Aetólish, -a, -um, [Αἰτωλός], adj., Aetolian (of Eetolia).— Plur., the Aetolians (the people of the country).
affr., see adf.

Africánus, -a, -um, [Africa + nus], adj., of Africa, African: bellum (of various wars, esp. one fought by Pompey against Domitius, a partisan of Marius, in B.C. 81).— Esp., as surname of various Scipios, Africanus. — So, 1. C. Scipio Africanus the elder, procons. B.C. 210, the conqueror of Hannibal; and 2. his adopted grandson (son of Aemilius Paulus) cons. B.C. 147, the destroyer of Carthage and Numantia.

Africus, -a, -um, [ Afrō-(stem of Afrer) + cus], adj., of Africa.— Africa, f. as subst., the country of Africa. — Esp. in a limited sense, the Roman province of that name, including the territory of Carthage and the regions to the west.
äfulisse, äfitūrus, see absum.

Agathocles, -is, [Ἀγαθοκλῆς], M., a tyrant of Syracuse (born B.C. 361) who long waged an active warfare against Carthage.
age, see ago.

ager, agri, [√AG (drive?) + rus, cf. Gr. ἀγρός, acre, m.], land (cultivated), fields, country (opposed to city), territory (country), cultivated lands, fields (as opposed to woods): fusis per agros (of rude men); ubertas agrorum (of the land, of the soil).— Esp., of the possession of a particular city, land, territory, country. A state in ancient times consisted of a fortified city or town (urbs, oppidum), the dwelling-place or refuge of all the citizens, and the lands cultivated by them around. Farms in the modern fashion were not common.— Cf. per agros atque oppida civium Romanorum; ager Tauromenitanus; ager Picenus et Gallicus.

agitō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [agitō- (as if stem of p.p. of ago)], 1. v.a., drive, chase.— Hence, rouse, stir up, excite, vex, trouble.— Fig., turn over (in mind), propose, discuss, purpose.

agnōscō, -nōvī, -nitus, -nōscere, [ad(g)nosco], 3. v.a., recognize (in some relation to one's self, cf. cognosco), recognize as one's own, claim, acknowledge.

agū, ēgī, āctus, agere, [√AG], 3. v. a. and n., drive (apparently from behind, cf. duco, lead).— With a wide range of meaning, do (esp. of official business, cf. conduct and carry on), act, treat, discuss, plead, manage, conduct, carry on, take part (in any business), deal with, take up, handle, take action.— In many phrases: cum aliquo bene [male] agere (treat one well or ill); secum praeclare agi (that he is lucky); mecum male agitur (I fare hardly); agam cun populo (lay before the people, of magistrates, who had this right); agam in magistratu (take up, deal with); non agam obscure (I will not treat the matter, etc.); sic tecum agam (address, deal with, plead with); ita quidam agebat (represent, urge, argue); agere causam (plead); ad agendum (to plead the case); res agetur (be treated); locus amplissimus ad agendum (for public business); aliquid agere (aim at something, work for something); id actum est (this is what was accomplished, this was the end and aim); quid agis? (what are you doing? what are you about? what are you aiming at?); quid gladius agebat? (what was it doing?); nihil agere (accomplish nothing, also, be idle, do nothing purposely); magnae res aguntur (great interests are at stake); quid agitur (what is the question?); res agitur (the question is, also, the case is tried, the cause is heard); de quo nunc agimus (is now in question); si moribus ageret (if he should make it a question of morals); actum est (it is all over with us); de vegetalibus agitur (the revenues are at stake); quid potest agi severius? (how can the case be conducted, etc.); quae tum agerentur (which were then under discussion, going on); negotium meum ago (attend to my own interests); festos dies (celebrate); triumphum (enjoy, celebrate); fundamenta (lay); gratias (render, pay, express, cf. habeo and refero): in cruce (drag, nail); age, age vero (come, come now, see, well).

agrāri, -orum, [agrō-], m. plur., agrarian partisans.

agrestis, -e, [unc. stem (from agrō-)] + tis (cf. caelestis), adj., of the fields, rustic. — Plur., rustics, farmers. — Hence, barbarous, rude, clownish, boorish.

agricola, -ae, [ag्रō + cola, cf. incola], m., a farmer.

agricultūra (often as separate words), -ae, [agrō-cultura or agricultura], F., land tillage, farming.

Ahāla, -ae, [?], m., a Roman family name. — Esp. C. Servilius Ahāla, who, in B.C. 439, killed Sp. Mælius on account of his popularity and his good will to the lower classes, shown by gifts of grain.

Ājāx, -ācis, [Ajax], m., Ajax, the name of two heroes of the Trojan war. — Esp., the more famous one, son of Oileus, who contended with Ulysses for the arms of Achilles, and was the subject of many literary and artistic works. — Hence, of a statue of him, as we say “Powers’ Eve.”

ājō, [?], 3. def. v. n., say, assert: aiunt (they say, they tell us).

alacer, -cris, -cre, [?], adj., active, eager, energetic, spirited.

Alba, -ae, [F. of albus, the white town], F., the name of several cities in Italy. — Esp.: 1. Alba Fucensis, a city of the Marsi; 2. Alba Longa, the supposed mother city of Rome.

Albīnus, -a, -um, [Alba + nus], adj., of Alba, Alban. — Neut. sing., Albanum, -i, an estate near Alba (in which region many Romans had country-seats), an Alban villa.

alea, -ae, [?], F., a die (for playing). — Also, dice (as a game).

aleātor, -tōris, [alea + tor, cf. viator], m., a diere, a gamester.

Alexander, -dri, [’Αλέξανδρος], m., a common Greek name. — Esp., Alexander the Great, son of Philip of Macedon.

Alexandria (-ēa), -ae, [’Αλεξάνδρεια], F., the name of several towns named for Alexander the Great. — Esp., the famous city built by Alexander on the coast of Egypt.

allēnigena, -ae, [alienō-tgena (gen + a, cf. incola)], m., a foreigner, foreign-bom.

allēnō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [alienō-], I. v. a., make another’s. — Also, make strange, estrange, alienate.

allēnus, -a, -um, [unc. stem akin to allius (prob. imitated from verb-stems of second conjugation) + nus (cf. egenus)], adj., another’s, of others, others’, other people’s: pecuniae; misericordia; in alieno (on another’s land). — Hence, strange, foreign, estranged, unfavorable (cf. suus), foreign to the purpose: tempus; ejectus ad alienos (strangers); iter (out of one’s way). — Superl., as noun, a perfect stranger.

alliquando [unc. form, cf. quando and alliquis], adv., at some time.
— Emphatically, at last (at some time, though not before).

alliquanto, see alliquantus.

alliquantus, -a, -um, [ali- (reduced stem of allius) -quantus (cf. allquis)], adj., considerable.— Neut., as noun, a good deal, a considerable part. — alliquantō (as abl. of measure), by considerable, considerably.

allquis (-qui), qua, quid (quod), [ali- (reduced stem of allius) -quis], pron. (more forcible than quis; not definite, like quidam; not universal, like quiaquam), some, some or other, any. — Emphatic, some (considerable), any (important). — As noun, some one, any one, something, anything. — Also, rarely, almost if not quite equal to quis alius (cf. derivation), some other; abire in alias teras, I. Cat. 8, 20.

allquō [old dat. of allquis], adv., somewhither, somewhere (in sense of whither).

allquot [ali- (reduced stem of allius) -quot], pron. indecl., several, some (more than one, but not conceived as many), several persons.

allquotiens [ali- (reduced stem of allius) -quotiens], adv., several times, a number of times.

aliter [ali- (reduced stem of allius) + ter (cf. acrier)] , adv., otherwise, differently: longe aliter est (the case is far otherwise).

allunde [ali-unde (cf. allquis)], adv., from another quarter, from elsewhere, from some other quarter.

allus, -a, -ud, [unc. root. (cf. else) + ius (Ἰούς)], adj. pron., another (any one, not all), other, different, else, another (of the second of three or more). — Repeated (either in separate clauses or in same), one... another, one another, one (thing) ... another another, some ... others: alius alia causa illata (alleging different reasons); alius ex alio (from different, etc., one from one, another from another); alius atque (see atque).

allātus, see adfero.

allēgō, see adlego.

allliciō, see adlicio.

allīnō, see allīno.

Allobroq, -ogis, [Celtic], M., one of the Allobroges. — Plur., the Allobroges (the tribe of Gauls living in Dauphiny or Savoy, about the upper waters of the Rhone, subdued in B.C. 121 by Fabius Maximus).

allūō, see allīuo.

alō, alui, alius, alerē, [ ScrollView, cf. adoleṣco], 3. v. a., cause to grow, feed, nurse, support (supply with food), foster, raise (of animals). — Fig., foster, foment, feed, increase: haece studia adolescementiam (are the food of).

Alpēs, -ium, [ScrollView, cf. albus] + is], F. pl., the Alps, more or less loosely used of the whole mass of mountains between Italy (Cisalpine Gaul), Gaul, and Germany.

Alsiēnis, -e, [Alsiio + ensis], adj., of Alsius. — As subst., a villa near Alsius (a town on the coast of Etruria).

altāria, -ium, [ScrollView, altō + aris], N. pl., the temporary structure on the altar for burning the victim(?). — Less exactly, an altar.

altī [old abl. of altus], adv., āgīt, deeply, deep: altius aspicere (look higher, look farther).

alter, -era, -erum, [√AL- (in allus) + ter (for -terus, comparative suffix)], pron. adj., the other (of two), one (of two): alter ambove (one or both). — In plur., the other party. — Repeated (cf. allus), one the other, another (of two), one ... the other. — In plur., one party ... the other. — Also, the second, another (the second of three): centesima et altera (hundred and second). — Also (esp. with negatives), another (beside one’s self, where all are conceived as two parties, one’s self and the rest).

alternus, -a, -um, [alter- (as stem) + nus], adj., alternate, reciprocal, mutual, alternating: versus (every second).

alteruter [alter-uter, cf. allquis], -tra, -trum, -tius, pron. adj., one of the two, one or the other.

altus, -a, -um, [p.p. of alo as adj.], high. — From another point of view, deep. — Neut. as noun, the sea, the deep: in alto (in deep water, on the sea).

alumnus, -i, [alō (stem of alō) + nus (cf. Gr. -μενός), the fostered], m., a foster child, a nursing.
alveolus, -i, [alveō + lus], m., a little basin. — Esp., a dice box, the dice box (as a symbol of gaming).
amāns, see amo.
ambo- [akin to ambo, åmphi], prep. only in comp., about.
ambitlo, -onis, [amb-þitio, cf. ambio], v., (a going round). — Esp., to canvass for office, a canvass- ing. — Hence, ambition.
ambitus, -tús, [amb-itus, cf. ambio], m., (a going round). — Esp., to canvass (cf. ambitio), but only of illegal means of canvassing, bribery (at elections), unlawful canvassing: de ambitu (on a charge of this crime).
ambō, -ae, -o, (-ōrum), [akin to amb-], num. adj., both (together, cf. uterque, both separately).
ambūrō, -ūssī, -ūstus, -ūrere [amb-uro], 3. v. a., burn around, scorch, half burn.

āmēns, -entis, [ab-mens], adj., (having the mind away), mad, crazy, insane: audaciissimus atque amertiissimus (of the greatest recklessness and madness).
amentia, -ae, [ament + ia], f., madness, frenzy, (mad) folly, insanity.
ameria, -ae, [?] f., an old city of Umbria, about fifty miles up the Tiber from Rome (now Amelia, but only a ruin).
amerinus, -a, -um, [Ameria (reduced) + inus], adj., of Ameria. — Plur. M., the people of Ameria.
amiciō, -icui (-i), -icis, -icere, [amb-jacio], 4. v. a., throw around (of clothing), wrap about. — Also, with object of the person, wrap, throw around, clothe (with outside garments): velis amicii non togis ( clad, wrapped).
amicitia, -ae, [amicō + tia], f., friendship, friendly relations, alliance (opposed to hospitium, wh. see), personal friendship.
amicus, -a, -um, [unc. stem from AM (in amo) + cus (cf. pudicus, posticu)], adj., friendly, well-disposed. — As noun, M., a friend, an ally.

āmissus, p.p. of amitto.
amiris, -i, [?], f., an important commercial city of Pontus, on the Sinus Amisos, a bay of the Euxine.
Vocabulary.

ämittō, -misi, -missus, -mittere, [ab-mitto], 3. v. a., let go (away), let slip, let pass.—Hence, lose (esp. of military losses): classes amissae et perditae (lost, by negligence, and ruined, by misdoing).

ämō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [ʔ], 1. v. a.
and n., love; amans (fond).

amoentās, -tātis, [amoenō + tas], F., beauty (as of scenery and the like), beautiful scenery, loveliness (only of things pleasant to the eye).

amor, -ōris, [√am (in amo) + or (for -os)], M., love, affection.—
Also, toward things, fondness for, delight in.

amplē [old abl. of amplius], adv.,
widely, largely.—amplius, compar., farther, more, longer: quid vis amplius (in such cases it may be regarded either as adj. or adv., see amplius).

amplector, -plexus, -pectī, [ambplectō], 3. v. dep., (twine around).
—Hence, embrace, hold in one’s arms.—Fig., include, contain.—
Also, favor, court the favor of.

amplexor, -ātus, -āri, [amplexō-(stem of p.p. of amplector)], 1. v.
derp., embrace.

amplificō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [am-plificō-], 1. v. a., increase, enlarge, extend, heighten, magnify.

amplitudō, -inis, [amplō-tudo], F., size, extent, greatness.—Esp., of station or fame, greatness, dignity, position, prominence.

amplus, -a, -um, [ʔ, perh. amb + stem akin to plus, plenus], adj.
Of size and extent, lit. and fig., large,
wide, great, grand: curia.—Esp., prominent, of consequence, splendid,
noble, distinguished, glorious: praemia (lavish, valuable); fortunae; patrui amplissimi (most distinguished); homo (great); amplum et praeclarum (a great and glorious thing); munus (noble); locus ad agendum (honorable); fructus (splendid, valuable); magnum aut amplum cogitare (have a great or noble thought); beneficia amplissima (highest); verba amplissima (strongest terms); laus amplior (higher).

amplius, neut. comp. as noun or adverb (see ample)(cf. plus), more,
a greater number, further, besides.

an [ʔ], conj. introducing the second member of a double question, or, or rather: ab eone an ab eis qui, etc., Gabinio ann Pompeo (or).—Often with the first member only implied, or, (is it not so?) or,
as an impossible alternative or:
urum ... an(whether ... or).—Esp., haud scio an, nescio an, I know not but, I am inclined to think, it may be, probably, perhaps, very likely.

—an vero, see vero.

anceps, -cipitis, [amb-caput],
adj., (having a head on both sides), double-headed. —Less exactly, twofold, double: contentio (i.e., with two foes).—Hence, double: fortuna (as looking both ways, and hence undecided).

ancilla, -ae, [anculō-(ancō+lua)
+ la], F., a maid-servant, a hand-maid.

angiportus, -ūs (and -ī), [tangō(√ang+us) + portus], M., a lane,
a narrow alley.

angū, anxi, no p.p., angere, [√ang,
cf. anxius, angustus], 3. v. a., throttle.—Fig., distress, make anxious: vehementer angebar (I was much distressed); tot curis vigilīsusque angi (distress one’s self).

anguis, -is, [√ang (cf. ango) +
is], M. and F., a serpent,
Vocabulary.

angulus, -i, [tangō- (cf. angiportus) + lus], m., a corner, an angle.

angustiae,-arum, [angustō+i-a], F. plur., narrow, straits: Ponti (i.e., the Dardanelles). — Fig., straits (cf. slang expression “in a tight place”), narrow bounds.

angustus, -a, -um, [angor (for angos) + tus], adj., narrow, confined: angustiora castra (less extensive); montes (confining, by which one is hemmed in). — Fig., animus (narrow, small).

anhēlō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [amb-?halo], i. v. a. and n., pant, breathe heavily, breathe (with force).

anima, -ae, [ani- (treated as root, fr. √AN, blow) + ma (F. of mus), cf. animus], F., breath. — Hence, soul, life: liberorum anima (the lives).

— Plur., the soul (of man, abstractly).

animadversīō, -onis, [animō (?) adversio (cf. animadvertō)], F., a noticing, attention (to a thing).

— Hence, punishment.

animadvertīō, -vertī, -versus, vertere (also animum adverter uncontracted), [animum advertero], 3. v. a., turn the mind to, attend to: in aliquem (punish, cf. the domestic “attend to”). — Less exactly, observe, notice, learn.

animōsus, -a, -um, [animō + osus], adj., spirited, courageous.

animus, -i, [ani- (stem as root, fr. √AN, blow) + mus (cf. Gr. hēmos, wind)], m., breath, life, soul (vital). — Usually (the above meanings being appropriated to anima, wh. see), soul (as thinking, feeling), heart, mind, feelings, feeling, intellect (but cf. mens), spirit, passion, desire: concitatio animorum (feelings); animi ad causam excitati; animum vincere (passions); animorum motus (the activity of the intellect); magnus animus (a great soul, a man of great soul); animo meliore (better disposed); quo animum intendit (at what he is aiming); animis providere (anticipate, provide in thought); cerno animo (in my mind’s eye); bono animo (with good intent); virtutes animi (moral virtues). — Also (in a good sense, often in plur.), spirit, constancy, courage, resolution: opes animique (resources and spirit). — Also: animus magnus (courage, magnanimity, lofty spirit); animi magnitudo (lofty spirit). — Esp. (as directly opposed to mens, wh. see), the moral powers, will, desires, affections, etc., the heart, the feelings, the disposition: animus et mens (heart and mind); ex animi mei sensu (the feelings of my heart). — For animus aequus, see aequus; for animum advertere, see animadvertō.

announcements, -e, [annō + alis], adj., yearly. — As noun (sc. libri), annals (books of history arranged in years), history.

Annius, -i, [?], M., a Roman gentile name. — Esp.: 1. T. Annius Milo, a supporter of Cicero, defended by him in the oration pro Milone; 2. Q. Annius Chilo, a fellow-conspirator with Catiline.

anniversarius, -a, -um, [anniversō + arius], adj., yearly, returning every year.

annōna, -ae, [stem akin to annus + na, cf. colonus, Pomona], F., grain crop (of the year). — Hence, grain market, price of grain: villitas annonae (cheapness of grain);
Vocabulary.

annonam levare (relieve the market, lower the price of grain).

annus, -i, [-?], m., a year (as a point of time, or as the course of the year, or as a period).

änsa, -ae, [-?], f., a handle.—Also, fig., sermones änsas dabant (handles, to get hold of).

ante [old antiquus, abl. of †anti-(cf. post and postis)], adv., before (of place or time), in front, in advance, beforehand, first (before something else): ante quam (earlier than, before, until, etc.); paulo ante (a little while ago); multís ante annis (many years ago); jam ante (already before, already).—Prep., before (of place or time), in advance of, in front of.—In dates: ante diem (a. d.) (on such a day before); ante diem xii Kal. Nov. (Oct. 21st).—In comp., before (of place, time, and succession).

antēs [ante eā (prob. abl. or instr. of eā, quā)] (cf. antēs, -ae, -ae, -arum), adv. (of time), before, previously, once, formerly, hitherto, once.

antecellō, -ere, no perf., no p.p., [ante-cellō], 3. v. n., surpass, excel.

anteferō, -tuli, -lātus, -ferre, [ante-ferō], irr. v. a., place in advance, prefer.—Pass., be preferred, be the first, have the superiority.

antelucānus, -a, -um, [ante-luc + anus], adj., before the light: cenae (late, prolonged till dawn).

antepūō, -posui, -positus, -pōnere, [ante-pūō], 3. v. a., place in advance (cf. antēfero), think of more importance, prefer, place before, value more highly.

antequam, see ante.

antestor, -ātus, -ārī, [amb(?)-testor], 1. v. dep., call to witness, appeal to.

antevertō, -verti, -versu, -vertere, [ante-verto], 3. v. a., turn in front (cf. antepone), prefer.—Also, anticipate, get in advance of.

Antiochia(-ēa), -ae, [’Antiochēa], F. The name of several ancient cities of the East.—Esp., a city of Syria founded by the son of Antiochus.

Antiochus, -i, [’Antiochos], M. The name of several Eastern potentates.—Esp., Antiochus the Great, king of Syria, who had a long contest with the Romans and their allies for supremacy in the East, but was conquered in B.C. 190 by the Scipios.

antiquitās, -tātis, [antiquō+tās], F., antiquity, ancient times.

antiquus, -a, -um, [†anti- (cf. ante) + cus (cf. posticus)], adj., old (existing from early times, not so much in reference to present age as to former origin, cf. vetus), ancient.—Less exactly, former: status (of a state that had existed only three years before, but was of great antiquity previous to that); illa antiqua (those ancient examples); antiqui (the ancients).—Hence, of the old stamp, old-fashioned: homines (of men still living).

Antōnius, -i, [-?], M., a Roman family name.—Esp.: 1. Marcus (Mark Antony), the famous triumvir; also, 2. his brother, Lucius, cons. B.C. 41.

ānulus (annus), -i, [anō + lus], M., a ring.

Ap., Applus (wh. see).

Āpeninus, -i, [Celtic], M., the Apennines, the great range of mountains which forms the backbone of Italy.

aperīō, -perī, -pertus, -perire,
Vocabulary.

[ab-paring (get off), cf. operio, cover], 4. v. a., uncover, open.—Fig., disclose, open, lay bare, lay open.—apertus, -a, -um, p.p. as adj., open, exposed, uncovered, unobstructed, unprotected, without concealment.

apertē [old abl. of apertus], adv., openly, unreservedly, without concealment, plainly, clearly.

Apinius, -i, [?], M., a Roman gentile name.—Esp., P. Apinius, a young man robbed by Clodius.

Apollō, -inis, [?], M., the son of Jupiter and Latona, and twin brother of Diana, god of the sun, of divination, of poetry and music, and president of the Muses. He was also god of archery, of pestilence, and, on the other hand, of healing. He is identified by Caesar with some Celtic divinity.

apparātus, see adparatus.
appāreō, see adpareo.
apparō, see adparo.
appellō, see adpello.
appendō, see adpendo.
appetē, see adpeto.

Appius, -a, -um, [Appius decl. as adj.], adj., Appian, of Appius.—Esp., referring to Appius Claudius Cæcus: via (the road from Rome to Capua made by him); Appia (without via in same sense).

Appius, -i, [?], prop. adj., M., a Roman first name.—Esp.: 1. Appius Claudius, cons. b.c. 54; 2. Appius Claudius, nephew of P. Clodius, and one of Milo’s accusers; 3. A brother of Clodius.

applicō, see adplicco appōnō, see adpono.
apportō, see adporto.
approbō, see adprobo.
apprōmitō, see adpromitto.

approërō, see adpropero.
appropinquō, see adpropinquo.
aptus, -a, -um, [√AP (in apliscor) + tus], adj., fitted, adapted, fit, apt.
apud [akin to ab and Gr. ἀποδέχομαι], prep., at, among, with, before, on one’s part, in relation to (a person), in one’s house (company, possession, among): apud Tenedum; adversarios (i.e., in their ranks); inlustre apud omnes nomen (with, among); apud vos in honore (with, among); populum Romanum et exterornationes; apud Laecam (at the house of).

Apuleius, -i, [Apulō + iēus?], M., a Roman gentile name.—Esp., P. Apuleius, a tribune of the people who supported the cause of the senate against Antony.

Apūlla, -ae, [Apulō + ia, f. of adj.], f., that part of Italy east of Campania and Samnium and north of Lucania, famous chiefly for its pastures.
aqua, -ae, [?], f., water, a watercourse: aqua atque igni interdicto (a form of banishment among the Romans).
aquilla, -ae, [f. of aquillus, dark gray, perh. remotely akin to aqua], f., an eagle.—Esp., the standard of the Roman legion, consisting of an eagle on a staff.
āra, -ae, [?], f., an altar.
arātor, -tōris, [ārā + tor], M., a ploughman.—Also, a landholder (a person who cultivated the public lands, paying tithes for the privilege).
arbitrer, -tri, [ad-biter (√BΙ, in bito, + trus, cf. -trum)], M., a witness.—Less exactly, a referee, an arbitrator.
Vocabulary.

arbitrātus, -iūs, [arbitrā-tus], m., a decision: arbitratu ejus (at his bidding).

arbitrium, -i, [arbitrō + ium (cf. judicium)], N., judgment, will, bidding, pleasure (what one sees fit to do or have done).

arbitror, -āus, -āri, [arbitrō-], i. v. dep., judge, think, suppose (judge).

arbōr, -oris, [?], F., a tree.

arca, -ae, [arc- (in arceo) + a], F., a chest, a box, a cell.

arcus, -ās, [?], M., a bow.

arceō, arcul, arcūs, arcēre, [arcō- (stem akin to arca)], 2. v. a., confinē. — Hence, by a change of the point of view, keep off, prevent, drive away: a templis homines (defend from).

··accessō, ··sīvi, ··sītus, ··serē, [akin to accedo, but the exact relation uncertain], 3. v. a., summon, invite, send for (persons), call in.

Archilās, -ae, [Ἀρχίλας], M., a poet of Greek extraction, whose claim to citizenship Cicero defended in a famous oration.

Archimēdēs, -is, [Ἀρχιμήδης], M., the famous mathematician of Syracuse, by whose assistance that city was long defended against the Romans.

architectus, -i, [prob. corruption of ἀρχιτέκτων], m., an architect, a builder.

ardeō, arsī, arsus, ardēre, [prob. aridō-], 2. v. n., be hot, be in a blaze, be on fire. — Fig., be excited, be in a blaze, burn, flash fire (of the eyes). — ardēns, -nis, p., red hot, blazing, flashing.

ardor, -ōris, [√ARD (in ardeo) + or], m., a blaze, heat, fire: caeli (a blazing sky). — Fig., fire, fury:

animorētum et armorum (fire of passion and fury of arms); animi (excitement).

argentārius, -a, -um, [argentō + arius], adj. Fem., (sc. res), money business, banking business. — Masc., a banker, a money-changer.

argentēs, -a, -um, [argentō + eus], adj. of silver, silver (as adj.).

argentum, -ī, [akin to arguo, the shining metal], N., silver (the metal). — Also, of things made of the metal, silverware, silver.

argumentor, -ātus, -āri, [argumentō-], 1. v. dep., argue, reason.

argumentum, -ī, [argu- (as if stem of arguo) + mentum], N., an argument, a proof (drawn from reasoning, as opposed to witnesses), an inference, a subject (in art).

arguō, argui, argūtus, arguere, [prob. † argu- (stem akin to Argus and argentum) + io (?)], 3. v. a., make clear, prove. — Esp., accuse (prove guilty), charge.

Aricia, -ae, [?], F., a town of Latium on the Appian Way, at the foot of the Alban Mount (now Riccia). Near by was a famous temple of Diana.

āridus, -a, -um, [ārō- (cf. areō) + dus], adj., dry. — Less exactly, meagre: victus.

Arīobarzānēs, -is, [Persian], M., a name of several Persian monarchs. — Esp., a king of Cappadocia, established on his throne by the Romans, several times driven out by Mithridates and Tigranes, and finally restored by Pompey, B.C. 65.

arma, -ōrum, [√AR (fū, cf. ar-]
Vocabulary.

mus, the shoulder-join[ of mus], n. plur., tools, (esp.) arms, equipment.
— Fig., arms (as symbol of war), war, conflict, forces: isdem in armis fui (on the same side, in a civil war); tua quid arma voluerunt (your armed campaign).

armātus, -a, -um, p.p. of armō.

Armenius, -a, -um, [Ἀρμενίων] treated as adj., adj., of Armenia (the whole country south of Pontus and Colchis, west of the Araxes and the Caspian mts., east of Cappadocia, north of the Niphates mts.). — Also, used of Lesser Armenia, the part west of the Euphrates. — Masc. plur.,
the inhabitants of the country.

armō, -āvī, -ātus, -āre, [armō-(stem of arma)], i. v. a., equip, arm. — Pass., in middle sense, arm (one's self). — armātus, -a, -um, p.p. as adj., armed, in arms, equipped.
arrīplō, see adriplo.

Arrius, -i, [?], m., a Roman genti-tile name. — Esp., Q. Arrius, a friend of Cicero.

arroganter, see adroganter.

arrogō, see adrogō.

ars, artis, [ār + tis (reduced)], F., skill, art. — Also, a quality (especially a good one). — Plur., the arts, the useful arts, branches of learning, branches (of learning, implied).

artifex, -icīs, [artī-ffex (facet stem)], m. and F., an artist.

artificium, -i, [artīfic- (stem of artifex) + -ium], n., workmanship, skill (of an artist), a skilful contrivance, an artifice, a trick. — Also, a trade (opposed to ars, a higher art). — Concretely, a work of art: opera atque artificiā.

arx, arcis, [ār + arc (in arceo, arca) + is (reduced)], F., a stronghold, a fortress, a citadel.

ascendō, see adscendo.

ascēnsus, see ascensus.

ascribō, see adscribo.

Asia, -ae, [Ἀσία], F., the country now called Asia Minor. — Esp., the Roman province of Asia, embracing Phrygia, Caria, Mysia, and Lydia.

Asiāticus, -a, -um, [Asiā-icus], adj., of Asia, Asiatic: pecuniae (in Asia, invested there).

aspectus, see adspectus.

asperē [old abl. of asper], adv., roughly.

aspernor, -ātus, -āri, [āaspernō-(stem akin to ab-aspernō)], i. v. dep., spurn.

aspiciō, see adspicio.

asportō, -āvī, -ātus, -āre, [abs-porto], i. v. a., carry off, carry away.

assiduē, see adsidue.

assiduitās, see adsiduitas.

assiduus, see adsiduus.

ассiēfasciō, see adsefacio.

astūtus, -a, -um, [asū + tus, cf.
barbatus], adj., cunning, crafty, estulate.

at [prob. form of adj], conj., but,
and, at least. — See also enim and vero.

Athēnai, -arum, [Ἀθηναί], F. pl., Athens.

Athēnlēnsis, -e, [Athena + ensis], adj., of Athens, Athenian. — Plur., the Athenians.

Attilus, -i, [?], m., a Roman genti-tile name. — Esp.: 1. M. Attilus, a Roman who, as judge, was found guilty of receiving bribes; 2. Attilus Cavianus, a tribune of the people at the time of Cicero's recall.

atque (āc), [ad-que], conj., and (generally introducing some more important idea), and even, and especially, and further, and moreover, and
now. — Also, as, than: par atque
Vocabulary.

(at the same as); simul atque (as soon as); similis atque (just like); aliter ac (otherwise than, different from what, etc.); contra atque (different from, etc.); atque adeo (and even, and in fact, or rather); pro eo ac (according as); perinde ac (just as).

atqui [at-qui (old abl. or instr.)], conj., (but somehow?), but yet, but, still, now.

atrium, -i [?, atrō + ium], N., the atrium (the hall of a Roman house).—Also, a hall (of a temple, prob. made in the fashion of a house).

atrōcitās, -tātis, [atrocīti (as if stem of atrox) + tas], F., cruelty: animi (savage disposition).—Also, of things, atrocity, enormity.

atrōcitēr [atrocī + ter], adv., savagely, cruelly: aliqüid atrocity fieri (some atrocious cruelty); nimis atrocity munitans (too violently); atrocity ferre (pass a cruel law).

atrōx, -ōcis, [stem akin to ater + cus (cf. colonus, aegrotus, and verax)], adj., savage, cruel. — Also, of things, atrocious, cruel, inhuman, monstrous.

attendō (adt-), -tendi, -tensus, -tendere, [ad-tendo], 3. v. a. and n., (stretch towards). —Esp., with animūni, turn the attention to, attend to, attend. — Also, without animūm, attend, notice: aequivque attenditis (are you paying any attention)? me tam diligenter (listen to); parum attenditis (you are too careless). — attenditus, -a, -um, p.p. as adj., attentive.

attenuō (adt-), -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [ad-tenuō], 1. v. a., thin out. — Fig., lessen, diminish, reduce.

attimo (adt-), -tini, -tensus, -tinere, [ad-teneo], 2. v. a. and n., hold out towards. —Esp., reach, touch, have to do with, make a difference, be of importance.

attingō (adt-), -tīgī, -tactus, -tingere, [ad-tango], 3. v. a. and n., touch, reach, set foot on, have to do with, come in contact with: auctoritatem (aspire to); Cimbricas res (touch upon in literary composition).

Attius, -i, [Attō + ius], m., a Roman gentile name. —Esp., P. Attiius Varus, prætor in Africa in the war between Caesar and Pompey.

attribuō (adt-), -būi, -būtus, -bure, [ad-tribuo], 3. v. a., assign, appropriate.

attuli, see adfero.

auctōriōnis [aug (as root) + tio], F., an increase. — Hence, (a raising of bids), an auction.

auctōniārius, -a, -um, [auction + arius], adj., of an auction, by auction: tabulae novae (liquidaion by forced sale).

auctor, -ōris, [√aug (in augeo) + tor], m., a voucher (for any act or statement), an authority, an adviser: scoeleiris (leader); auctor esse (approve, advise); auctore populo (with the approval of; supported by); pacis (counsellors).

auctorītās, -ātis, [auctor- (as if i-stem) + tas], F., influence, prestige, authority (not political nor military, cf. imperium and potestas, but proceeding from official character).

Concretely, an expression of opinion (as an authority): cum publicis auctoritatibus (with official expressions of opinion, on the authority of the state or city); summa cum auctoritate (with the greatest effect); circumstant te summæ auctoritates (the strongest influences); auctoritates contrarias (weighty opinions, etc.); auctoritates et gratis
Vocabulary.

(\textit{prestige} from official character, and \textit{influence} from private friendship and the like). — In technical phrase senatus (the expressed opinion, having no legal binding force, but carrying weight from its official character).

\textit{aucupor}, -\textit{ātus}, -\textit{āri}, [\textit{aucup-}].
1. v. dep., hunt birds. — Fig., search out, hunt for, watch for.

\textit{audācia}, -\textit{ae}, [\textit{audac} + \textit{ia}], f., daring, boldness, effrontery, recklessness, reckless daring, deeds of daring, desperate undertaking.

\textit{audāx}, -\textit{ācis}, [\textit{audā-} (as if stem of \textit{audeo}) + \textit{cus} (reduced)], adj., daring (in a bad sense), reckless, bold, desperate.

\textit{audīō}, -\textit{īvī}, -\textit{īvus}, -\textit{īre}, [prob. akin to \textit{aurīs}], 4. v. a., hear, hear of, listen to: \textit{audīta} dico (what I have heard); \textit{multīs audīentibus} (in the hearing of, etc.).

\textit{auferō}, abstuli, ablātus, auferre, [ab-\textit{fero}], irr. v. a., carry off, carry away, remove, take away.

\textit{augeō}, auxi, auctus, augēre, [\textit{aug} (causative or fr. unc. noun-stem)], 2. v. a., increase, magnify, enhance, add to (something). — Pass., be increased, increase.

\textit{augur}, -\textit{āris}, [\textit{avi} + unc. term.], m., an augur (one of the official soothsayers of the Roman state. They formed a college which decided all matters connected with the public auspices, and these auspices were very closely connected with the Roman polity; in fact, no important matter was ever begun without first consulting them).

\textit{augustus}, -\textit{ās}, -\textit{ārum}, [?], perch. \textit{fuguo-} (\textit{\sqrt{aug} + or}) + \textit{tus}, but the meaning is somewhat inconsistent with this etym.], adj., consecrated (either by augury or perhaps with the same sense that lies in \textit{auctor, auctoritas}), venerable, august.

\textit{Aulus}, -\textit{i}, [?], m., a Roman praenomen.

\textit{Aurelius}, -\textit{i}, [for Ausellus, akin to \textit{aurum, Aurora, and uro}], m., a Roman gentile name.

\textit{Aurelius}, -\textit{ās}, -\textit{um}, [same word as preceding, declined as adj.], adj., of \textit{Aurelius, Aurelian: Forum Aurelium} (a market town on the \textit{Aurelian Way} in Etruria, about 50 miles from Rome); \textit{via} (the old \textit{Aurelian Way}, the great military road leading from Rome along the coast of Etruria); \textit{tribunal} (a raised judgment-seat near the east end of the Forum).

\textit{aurum}, -\textit{i}, [akin to \textit{uro}], n., gold.

\textit{auspicium}, -\textit{i}, [\textit{auspic-ium}], n., an augury (an observation of the omens), auspices (in the plural).

\textit{aut} [?], but cf. \textit{autem}, conj., or (regularly exclusive, cf. \textit{vel}). — Repeated, \textit{either} . . . or.

\textit{autem} [?], akin to \textit{aut} post conj., but (the weakest degree of opposition, cf. \textit{sed}), on the other hand, however, then again, now (explanatory), again, whereas (in slight opposition to something preceding), and even (where not only has been implied before).

\textit{auxilium}, -\textit{i}, [\textit{tAuxilli-} (akin to augéo, cf. fusili[...]ius, N., assistance, aid, remedy, relief, help: ferre (to assist, to aid, to render assistance); adventicia auxilia (reinforcements, etc.); omnium auxilia (the aid of all); summum omnium gentium (source of help); auxilia sociorum (auxiliaries, reinforcements, as opposed to the regular troops of the Romans).

avärítia, -ae, [a[vr]ó + tie], F., greed, avarice, love of money, greed of gain.

avärus, -a, -um, [tavā- (stem akin to aveo) + rus (cf. gnarus)], adj., greedy of gain, miserly, avaricious: homo avarissimus (a man of the greatest greed, of the greatest avarice).

aveū, -er, no perf., no p.p., [prob. tavō- (√AV + us)], 2. v. a., desire, be eager.

äversus, -a, -um, see avertō.

ävertō, -verti, -versus, -verte., [ab-verte], 3. v. a., turn aside, divert, turn away, avert: mentem alicujus (deter). —aversus, -a, -um, p.p. as adj., averse to, indisposed to.

avidē [old abl. of avidus], adv., greedily, eagerly, with eagerness, with avidity.

avidus, -a, -um, [tavō- (cf. aveo and avarus) + dus], adj., eager, desirous.

avitus, -a, -um, [avō- (as if avi-) + tus], adj., of one's grandfather, of one's ancestors, ancestral.

avocō, -avi, -atus, -āre, [ab-vocō], i. v. a., call away, call off.

avunculus, -i, [avō- (as if avon,- or perh. through it as intermediate stem) + culus], M., an uncle (on the mother's side, cf. patrēus).

avus, -i, [perh. akin to aveo], M., a grandfather.

B.

bacchor, -ātus, -āri, [Bacchā-].

I. v. dep., join in a bacchanal orgy.

— Less exactly, rave, rum riot, revel.

Ballīāricus (Bale-), -a, -um, [Baleari + cus], adj., of the Balearic isles. — Esp., Balticus, as a Roman surname applied to Cæcilius Metellus, who conquered these islands (cf. Africanus).

baleum, -i, (plur., -ae or -a), [corruption of Baleaeor], N. and F. a bath. — Plur., public baths.

barbaria, -ae, [barbarō + ia], F., savageness. — Also, a barbarous nation (cf. heathendom).

barbarus, -a, -um, [prob. from the inarticulate sound of foreign speech], adj., strange, foreign, outlandish. — Also, savage, uncivilized, rude, barbarous, cruel. — Plur., barbarians, barbarous people.

barbātus, -a, -um, [barba + tus], as if p.p. of denom. verb barbo, cf. bearded], adj., bearded. — Esp. (of the old Romans), bearded ancients, unshaven old worthies.

bāsils, -iis, (-cos), [Bārais], F., a pedestal.

bellātus, -a, -um, [p.p. of beo], adj., blessed, happy, fortunate. — Esp. (in wealth), rich, well-to-do.

bellīcōsus, -a, -um, [bellicō + osus], adj., warlike.

bellīcus, -a, -um, [bellō + cus], adj., of war, in war.

bellō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [bellō-], i. v. n., fight, make war: bellandi virtus (excellence in war).

bellum, -i, [old duellum, from duo, a strife between two], N., war (as declared and regular; cf. latrocinium), a war: bellum inferre (make war, offensive); parare bellum (make warlike preparations).
Vocabulary.

bēlua, -ae, [?], f., a wild beast. — Fig., a brute, a monster, a wild beast.

bene [abl. of bonus], adv., well: bene gerere rem (be successful in, etc., see gero); ad res bene gerendas (for success in great exploits); bene sanum (thoroughly sound); bene sperare (have good hope).

beneficium, -i, [beneficio- (reduced) + ium (but perhaps bene-fici-um, cf. officium)], n., well-doing, a service, a favor, often rendered by Eng. plur., services, favors shown, services rendered: meo beneficio (thanks to me); in beneficiis (among the beneficiaries). — Esp., of the favors of the people as shown by election to office: vestrum jus beneficiumque (your rights and favors conferred); hoc beneficium populi Romani (this favor shown me by the Roman people).

beneficus, -ae, -um, [bene + ficus (\(\sqrt{f}ac + us\))], adj., beneficient.

benevolentia, -ae, [benevolent + ia], f., good-will, kindness.

benevolus, -a, -um, [bene-volus (\(\sqrt{vol} + us\))], adj., well-wishing, kindly.

benignitas, -tatis, [benignō + tas], f., kindness, favor.

bestia, -ae, [?], f., a brute (as opposed to a man, cf. belua, a monster or ferocious beast), a beast.

bibō, bibi, bibitus, bibere, [?], \(\sqrt{pa}\) reduplicated, 3. v. a. and n., drink.

biduum, -i, [\(\sqrt{dvi-dum}\) (akin to dies)], n., two days' time, two days.

bini, -ae, -a, [\(\sqrt{dvi} + nus\)], adj. plur. two each, two sets of, two (of things in pairs or sets).

bipartitō [abl. of bipartitus], adv., in two divisions.

bis [for dvls, unc. case-form of duo (cf. cia, uls)], adv., twice.

Bithynia, -ae, [Bithvnia], f., part of Asia Minor on the Propontis.

blandus, -a, -um, [?], adj., coaxing, persuasive, fascinating.

bonitas, -tatis, [\(\tau bonō + tas\)], f., goodness, kindness: praediorum (fertility).

bonus, -a, -um, [?], adj., good:

bona ratio cum perditā (sound reason with desperate counsels); bono animo esse (to be well disposed); optimum est (it is best); optimum judicium facere (express so high an opinion); Bona Dea (a goddess of Rome worshipped by women in secret); Optimus Maximus, official title of Jupiter. — Neut. as subst., good, advantage: tantum boni, (such an advantage). — Plur., goods, property, estate. — Masc. plur., good men (esp. of the better class of citizens), honest men, good citizens.

Bosporanus, -a, -um, [Bosporō + anus], adj., of Bosporus. — Plur., the people of Bosporus.

brevls, -e, [for \(\tau bregus, \sqrt{bragh} + us\)], adj., short (of space or time), brief.

brevitas, -tatis, [\(\tau brevi + tas\)], f., shortness.

breviter [\(\tau brevi + ter\)], adv., briefly.

Brocehus, -i [?], m., Rom. name. — Titus Brocehus, an uncle of Ligarius.

Brundusinum, -a, -um, [Brundusio + inus], adj., of Brundusium. — Plur., the people of Brundusium.

Brundesium (Brundisic), -i, [?], n., a port of Apulia (Brundisi).

Brütus, -i, [brutus, heavy], m., a family name at Rome. — Esp.: 1. Decimus Junius, Brutus Albinus, a legatus of Caesar. He distinguished himself in command of Caesar’s fleet off the coast of Gaul, and afterwards in the civil war on the side of Caesar. But he joined the conspiracy against Caesar with Marcus Brutus, and was one of Caesar’s assassins. He was afterwards killed in Gaul by order of Antony. 2. Decimus Junius Brutus, cons. B.C. 138, conqueror of Lusitania.

dicula, -ae, [bovi + cula], f., a heifer.

bullæ, -ae, [?], f., a bubble. — Also, a knob, a boss.

bustum, -i, [?], perh. n. p.p. of buro (cf. comburo)], N., a tomb.

C.

C, numeral for 100.

C., abbreviation for Gaius, usually called in English Caius.

cadaver, -eris, [?], unc. form akin to cadæo], N., a corpse, a body (dead).

caedā, cecidi, caesiurus, cadere, [√CAD], 3. v. n., fall, be killed. — Fig., happen, turn out, come to be.

Also, fail, cease, come to nought.

Caecilia, -ae, [F. of following word], f., the name of several women of the gens Caecilia (see following word). — Esp.: 1. Caecilia Metella, a daughter of Q. Caecilius Metellus Balbinus, and wife of Appius Claudius Pulcher.

Caecilius, -i, [?], caeculō + ius], m., a Roman gentile name. — Esp.: 1. L. Caecilius Rufius, prætor B.C. 57, who was instrumental in procuring the return of Cicero.

cæcicus, -a, -um, [?], adj., blind (also fig.). — Also, dark. — Esp., Caeus as a Roman name, see Claudius.

caedēs, -is, [+]caed (as root of caedo) + is], f., murder, massacre, slaughter, assassination, butchery, a deadly affray: maximam facere (commit wholesale murder).

caedō, cecidi, caesus, caedere, [prob. causative of caedo, cf. fall, fell], 3. v. a., strike, strike down, beat (as with rods), beat (as of an army), fell (of trees), cut down, slay.

Caecilius, -i, [?], m., a Roman gentile name. — Esp.: 1. M. Caecilius, a tribune of the people B.C. 52, and a protégé of Cicero, who exerted himself in behalf of Milo; 2. Q. Caecilius Latiniensis, a tribune of the people; 3. T. Caecilius, a gentleman of Terracina, mysteriously assassinated.

caelum, -i, [?], n., the sky, the atmosphere, the air, the heavens, heaven (as the abode of the gods): in caelum tollere (extend to the skies).

caementum, -i, [caed- (as root of caedo) + mentum], N., loose stones, rubble.

cænum, -i, [?], n., mud. — Applied to persons, man of filth.

caerimōnia, -ae, [?], f., a ceremony, a rite.

Caesar, -aris, [?], m., a family name in the gens Julia. — Esp.: 1. C. Julius Caesar, the conqueror of Gaul; 2. L. Julius Caesar, a kinsman of the former, acting as his legatus in Gaul; 3. C. Caesar, a name given to Octavius (Augustus) as adopted son of No. 1.

Caesōnius, -i, [?], cf. Caesar], m., a gentile name. — Esp., M. Cæsōnius, a colleague of Cicero in theaedileship, and one of the judices in the case of Verres.

Caēsarita, -ae, [?], f., a port on the coast of Italy (now Gaeta).

Caesius, see Gaius.
Vocabulary.

Cal., see Calendae.

calamistrātus, -a, -um, [calamistrāt- (as if verb stem in -ā), cf. barbatus] + tus, adj., with curled hair, crimped.

calamitās, -tās, [-tās, F., disaster (orig. to crops?), defeat, misfortune (also euphemistically for death), ruin.

calamitāsus, -a, -um, [calamitā- (ti?) + osus], adj., unfortunate: res calamitosa est (a matter of misfortune).

calceus, -ī, [calc + eus], M., a shoe.

Calendae, see Kalendae.

Calidius, -i, [?, calidō + iua], M., a Roman gentile name. — Esp., Q. Calidius, a Roman ex-prefector, condemned for extortion.

calidus, -a, -um, [†callō (cf. callum) + dus], adj., (tough?), shrewd, cunning, skilful.

calor, -ōris, [cal-(as root of caeleo) + or], M., heat.

calumnia, -ae, [?, †calumnō- (cf. alumnus) + iua], F., trickery (orig. in an accusation), falsity.

calx, -cis, [?, cf. calculus], F., (m.?), a stone. — Esp., lime.

campus, -i, [?], M., a plain. — Esp., the Campus Martius (the meeting-place of the Roman comitia, just outside the city proper, in the region now occupied by modern Rome). — Fig., a field (of activity).

candidātus, -a, -um, [candidō- (as if verb stem in -ā) + tus (cf. barbatus)], adj., clad in white. — Hence, a candidate (because these appeared in newly-whitened togas).

canis, canis, [?], M. and F., a dog, a hound.

canō, canī, canus, canere, [√can], 3. v. a. and n., sing, sound (with voice or instrument). — Hence (because oracles and prophecies were in verse), prophesy, foretell, predict, give warning beforehand.

cantō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [cantō-], 1. v. a. and n., sing, play (on an instrument).

cantus, -tūs, [√can + tus], M., a song, a tune, singing, playing, music.

capessō, -sīvi, -sītus, -sere, [akin to capio with unc. form], 3. v. a., seize, take hold of: rem publicam (engage in politics).

capillus, -i, [adj. form akin to caput], M., the hair (collective).

capiō, cepi, captus, capere, [√cap], 3. v. a., take, capture, take possession of, get, acquire, seize: arma (take up); urbes, legatos (take captive); consilium (adopt); magistratum (enter upon); vim (take up, adopt); fructus (reap); somnum (take, enjoy); mens aliquid (conceive); carcer aliquos (hold, contain); amentiam civitas (endure); vos oblivio (possess); captus equester ordo (taken captive); mente captus (stricken in mind, insane).

capitālis, -e, [capit + alis], adj., (relating to the head), chief, principal: hostis (deadly, cf. “arch enemy”).

Capitōlinus, -a, -um, [Capitoliō + inus], adj., of the Capitol: olivus (the hill of the Capitol, the road leading up from the Forum to the top of the Capitoline Hill): cohortes (the guards of the Capitol).

Capitōlīum, -i, [capit- (with unc. terminations and connection)],
Vocabulary.

N., the Capitoline Hill. — Also, the Capitol, the temple of Jupiter on this hill.

Cappadocia, -ae, [Καππαδοκία], F., one of the districts of Asia Minor, south of Pontus, west of the Euphrates, north of the Taurus range, and east of Phrygia.

Capua, -ae, [?], F., the chief city of Campania, famed for its wealth and luxury.

caput, capitis, [?], N., the head. — Hence, life, existence (as a citizen), civil rights: judicium de capite (capital trial). — Also, chief point, source, fountain-head, highest point, climax: caput urbis (centre, the senate-house).

Carbō, ōnis, [?], M., (coal). — Also, as a Roman family name. — Esp.: 1. C. Papirius Carbo, cons. b.c. 82, the last leader of the Marian faction; 2. C. Papirius Carbo, tribune of the people b.c. 89, one of the proposers of the Lex Plautia Papiria in regard to Roman citizenship; 3. C. Papirius Carbo, tribune, b.c. 128, father of 2. and uncle of 1., a demagogue attached to the party of the Gracchi, but afterwards opposed to them.

carcer, -eris, [prob. b. Gr. καταφαγον], M., a prison, a gaol.

careō, -uī, -iturūs, -ēre, [?], 2.v.n., be without, go without, be deprived of; lose, deprive one’s self of: aegrius (suffer from the want of); foro (stay away from).

cāritās, -ātis, [carō + tas], F., dearness, preciousness, high price. — Also, with change of point of view, affection, fondness.

carmen, -inis, [akin to cano], N., a song, a verse (of poetry), poetry.

cārus, -a, -um, [?], adj., dear, precious, valuable.

Cassianus, -a, -um, [Cassio- (reduced) + ānus (cf. Romanus)], adj., of Cassius: illud Cassianum (that saying of Cassius).

Cassius, -ī, [?], M., a Roman gentile name. — Esp.: 1. L. Cassius Longinus Ravilla, consul b.c. 127 (see Cassianus); 2. L. Cassius Longinus, one of the jurors in the case of Verres; 3. C. Cassius Longinus, another of the same family, who voted in favor of the Manilian law; 4. L. Cassius, one of the associates of Catiline.

castē [old abl. of castus], adv., with purity, purely, virtuously.

Castor, -orūs, [Καστόρ], M., the brother of Pollux, son of Jupiter and Leda, worshipped by the Greeks and Romans, with his brother, as a divinity. Their temple was in the forum: ad Castoris (to the temple of Castor).

castrensis, -e, [castro +ensis], adj., of the camp: laticinium (armed, open, as by a pitched camp instead of hidden crime).

castrum, -i, [Í/ΣKAD? (cover) + trum], N., a fortress. — Plur., a camp (fortified, as was the manner of the Romans): armis et castris dissipabimus (we were at variance in arms and in pitched battle).

cāsus, -ūs, [Í/CAD + tus], M., (what befalls), an accident, a chance (good or bad), a mischance, a misfortune: casus temporum (the exigencies of the times); casus humani (vicissitudes); casu (by chance, by accident, accidentally, as it happened).

Catullus, -ae, [?], M., a Roman family name. — Esp., L. Servius Catullus, who was charged by Cicero with an attempt to burn the city and overthrow the government (see Orations against Catiline).

Catilinærus, -a, -um, [Catilina + arius], adj., of Catiline.

Catō, -onis, [prob. catō- (stem of catus, cf. Catulus) + o], M., a Roman family name. — Esp.: 1. M. Porcius Cato, called the Censor (also Sapiens, Major, and Orator), of plebeian origin and a “novus homo,” but a violent supporter of the old Roman aristocracy. He began his military service as early as 217 B.C., and only ended his political career at his death in B.C. 149, having been one of the most prominent men in the state during the whole of that interval. 2. M. Porcius Cato, grandson of the preceding, a friend of Sulla, and father of Cato Uticensis. 3. M. Porcius Cato Uticensis, son of the preceding, and nephew of M. Livius Drusus, famous for the constancy (perhaps obstinacy) of his character and for his death at Utica, which he sought with his own hands rather than submit to Caesar. He was one of the judices in the case of Milo.

Catulus, -i, [catō + lus, little hound (?)], cf. Cato], M., a Roman family name. — Esp.: 1. Q. Lutatius Catulus, consul B.C. 78, one of the best and most eminent men of the aristocracy in the times following the retirement of Sulla. He was one of the opposers of the Manilian law. 2. Q. Lutatius Catulus, father of the preceding, consul B.C. 102 with Marius.

causa, -ae, [prob. akin to caveo], F., a case (at law), a cause. — Hence, a side (in a dispute), a party, a case, a situation, a claim, a reason, a motive, a purpose. — Esp., abl. causā, following a noun, for the sake of, for: sua causa (for his sake); monumenti causa (for a monument).

Causinus, -i, [?], M., a Roman name. — Esp., C. Causinus Schola, a man of Interamna, a witness in the case of Milo.

cautē [old abl. of cautus], adv., cautiously, with caution, carefully.

cautō, -onis [cavi- (as if stem of caveo) + tio], F., taking care, caution, a security (a means of taking care).

cautor, -ōris, [cavi + tor], M., one who takes care, one who guards against, a security (a person acting as such).

caveō, cāvi, cautus, cavēre, [?], 2. v. a. and n., take security (perh. orig. a legal word), be on one’s guard, guard against, take care, beware, look out for (something so as to prevent it). — Esp., cave with subj. in prohibitions with or without ne, do not, take care not to, see that you do not. — cautus, -a, -um, p.p. as adj., cautious, on one’s guard.

cēdō, cēssi, cēssurus, cēdere, [?], 3. v. n., make way (giving place). — Esp., give way, retreat, retire: possession (yield the possession). — Fig., yield, give way, retire, allow, permit: temporibus rei publicae.

celeber, -bris, -bre, [?], adj., crowded, frequent, much frequented: locus (public); urbs (populous); gratulatio (very general). — Hence, famous.

celebritās, -tātis, [celebr+tas], F., numbers, frequency, a crowd, populousness, publicity. — Hence (cf. celeber), celebrity: famae (widely-extended fame); supremi diei (public ceremonies, etc.).
celebrō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [celebrie-]. i. v. a., crowd, throng, frequent. — Hence, celebrate, talk of, spread abroad, noise abroad, extol, praise: festos dies; adventus; gloriam.

celer-, -eris, -ere, [√CÉL (in cello) + ris], adj., swif, quick, speedy, fast.
celeritās, -iās, [†celeri + tās], v., swiftness, activity, speed, promptness: quae celeritas reditus (how speedy a return).
celeriōtor [celirer + ter], adv., quickly, speedily, rapidly, in haste, very soon, soon.
celō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [ʔ, akin to clam and caligo], i. v. a., conceal, hide. — Pass., pass unnoticed.
cēna (coe-), -ae, [ʔ], F., a dinner (the principal meal of the day, eaten at various times in the afternoon).
cēnō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [cena-], i. v. n., dine. — cēnātus, -a, -um, p.p. in active sense, having dined, after dinner.

cēnseō, cēnsui, cēnsus, cēnsēre, [ʔ], 2. v. a., (perh. fine), review (of the censor), assess, enrol (as a citizen), reckon, estimate. — Less exactly, give one’s opinion, advise, decree (of the Senate), determine, think: censendi causa (for the census, to be reviewed by the censor).
cēnsor, -ōris, [cen- or cêt- (as root of censeo) + tor], m., the censor (the officer at Rome who enrolled and taxed the citizens): proximis censoribus (at the last census).
cēnus, -ūs, [akin to cēnseō], m., a numbering, a census, an enrolment (of citizens by the censor).
centēsīmus, -a, -um, [centō + esimus], adj., the hundredth.

centum, [ʔ], indecl. num. adj., one hundred.

centūria, -ae, [centō- (or centu-) + unc. term.], F., a hundred. — Esp., a century (a division of the Roman people in their elective capacity as originally organized in an army, in which a century was half of a maniple).
centuriātus, -iūs, [centuriā + tus], m., office of centurion, a centurionship.

centuriō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [centuria-], i. v. a., divide into centuries.

— centuriātus, -ā,-um, p.p. as adj., divided into centuries. — Esp., of the people: comitīa centuriātās (the chief election of the Roman people), see comitia.

centurīō, -ōnis, [centuria- (or kindred stem) + o], m., a centurion (a commander of one-half a maniple, answering nearly to a modern sergeant).

Cēpālius (Cae-), -i, [cepā + arius, onion-seller], m., a Roman gentile name. — Esp., M. Cēparius, one of the Catilinarian conspirators.

Cērōs, -eris, [ʔ, unc. root + es, the beneficent?], F., the goddess of grain among the Romans.
cernō, crēvi, crētus, cernere, [√CER], 3. v. a., separate. — Hence, distinguish, see, behold, discern, perceive, discern. — See also certus.

certāmen, -inis, [†certā- (in certo) + men], n., a struggle, a contest, rivalry.
certātim [certā + tim (as if acc. of certātis, cf. partim)], adv., (in a rivalry), eagerly.
certē [old abl. of certus], adv., certainly, surely, no doubt, at least (surely what is mentioned, if nothing more).

Vocabulary.

certō [abl. of certus], adv., with certainty: certo scio (I am perfectly sure, I am convinced, I am certain, I am well aware).

certō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [certō-], 1. v. n. (and a.), contend, struggle, vie (with one in doing anything).

certus, -a, -um, p.p. of cerno as adj., determined, fixed, certain (of the thing as well as the person), sure, established, tried, trustworthy, trusty, certain (in its indefinite use as a pronoun); some, a particular, a special, a certain: ratio (sound); mihi certum est (I am determined).

cervix, -icus, [prob. akin to cerebrum, cornu, cervus], F, the back of the neck, the neck, the shoulders (the back just below the neck, esp. in plur): molem a cervicibus depellere (throw off a weight from the shoulders); cervices dare (offer one’s throat to be cut, properly, lean forward to have one’s head struck off, esp. in fig. sense); furores a cervicibus repellere (repel a mad attack from one’s throat).

(cētērus), -ra, -rum, [cēce (in ecce, hie) + terus (cf. altrēs)], adj., the other, the rest of (cf. allēs, other, not including all). — Plur., the rest, the remaining, the others, everything else, others (meaning all others): ad ceteras res (in every other respect); ceteris (the rest) opitulari et alios (others, not all) servare; cetera tua (your other deeds).

Cethēgus, -ī, [?], M, a Roman family name. — Esp., C. Cethegus, one of the Catilinarion conspirators.

Chiliō, -ōnīs, [?], M, a Roman family name. — Esp., Q. Annius Chilio, one of the Catilinarion conspirators.

Chius, a., -um, [Xīos], adj., of Chios (an island in the Aegean). — Plur., the Chians (the people of the isle).

Chrysogonus, -i, [Xρυσόγονος], M., (gold-born), a favorite of Sulla, who enriched himself from the property of the proscribed.

cibus, -i, [?], M, food.

Cicerō, -ōnīs, [cicēr + ō, orig. a nickname, possibly from excrescences on the nose], M, a name of a Roman family from Arpinum. — Esp.: 1. Marcus Tullius, the great orator; 2. Quintus (Tullius), his brother.

Cilices, -cum, [Κιλίκες], M, plur., the people of Cilicia.

Cilicia, -ae, [Κιλίκία], F, the country of Asia Minor south of the Taurus, a favorite place of refuge for pirates.

Cimber, -bri, [?], M, used in the plural of the Cimbrī, a German tribe of Jutland, conquered at Vercellae by Marius and Catulus. — Also used as a Roman name, esp. Gabinius Cimber, one of the conspirators with Catiline.

Cimbricus, -a, -um, [Cimbrō + eu], adj., of the Cimbrī: res (the story of the Cimbrī, the history of their invasion and defeat).

cingō, cinxī, cinctus, cingere, [?], 3. v. a., surround, encircle.

cingis, cineris, [?], M, and F, ashes.

Cinna, -ae, [?], M, a Roman family name. — Esp., L. Cornelius Cinna, a colleague of Marius, and one of his adherents in the civil war with Sulla.

Cinnānus, -a, -um, [Cinna + annus], adj., of Cinna: dies (the day when Cinna slaughtered the adherents of the consul Octavius and re-established the party of Marius).
Vocabulary.

circum [acc. of circus, cf. circa,] adv. and prep., around, about: tribus (around, among).
circumclūdō, -clūsi, -clūsus, -clūdere, [circum-clando], 3. v. a., enclose around, encircle, place a band around, shut in, hem in.
circumdō, -dedi, -datus, -dare, [circum- 2.do], i. v. a., put around: ignes (set around); custodias (set).
—By a confusion of ideas, surround, encircle.
circumfundō, -fūdi, -fusus, -fundere, [circum-fundo], 3. v. a., pour around.—Pass. (as reflexive), pour in, rush around, rush in on all sides.—Also (cf. circumdo), surround: copiis circumfusus.
circumscribō, -scripsi, -scriptus, -scribere, [circum-scribo], 3. v. a., write around, draw around.—Hence, hold in check, limit, confine, cheat, defraud.
circumscriptor, -sēris, [circum-scriptor], m., a cheat.
circumsecēdō, -sēdi, -sessus, -secēre, [circum-sedo], 2. v. a., sit around, surround.—Hence, blockade, besiege.
circumspcēlō, -spēxi, -spectus, -spicere, [circum-specto], 3. v. a., look about for.—Fig., think over, consider, cast about for, survey.
circumstētī, -stēti, no p.p., -stāre, [circum-stō], i. v. a., surround.
circus, -i, [prob. for tēcius (unc. root + rus) cf. κόκλος], m., (round?), a circus (a building orig. oval, for races, etc.): Flaminianus (the Flaminian circus, one of the most famous of these buildings, situated by the Campus Martius, near the Capitoline and the river; used for meetings of the people); maximus (the Circus Maximus), the largest and most important of these buildings, between the Palatine and the river).
cistum, -i, [?], prob. a foreign word], n., a chaise (a light two-wheeled vehicle, something like a chaise without a top).
cisplus, -i, [?], m., a Roman gentile name. — Esp., M. Cispius, a tribune of the people at the time of Cicero’s return from exile.
cito [abl. of citus, p.p. of cito], adv., quickly.—citus, comp., sooner, rather.
citō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [cito-], i. v. a., urge on, hurry, set in motion.—Also, summon, cite.
citrō [dat. of citter (ci + ter)], adv., (to this side): ultra citroque (this way and that, back and forth).
civilis, -e, [civi + lis], adj., of a citizen (or citizens), civil, internat (in reference to the state), intestine: bellum (civil); causa (political); odium (partisan, political); jus (civil, as opposed to natural).
civis, -is, [√ct (in quies) + vis (weakening of -vus)], c., a citizen, a fellow-citizen.
civitās, -tās, [civi + tas], f., the state of being a citizen, citizenship. — Esp., Roman citizenship, the Roman franchise. —Less exactly, a body of fellow-citizens, the citizens (as a body), one’s fellow-citizens, a state (composed of citizens), a city (abstractly, cf. urbs, a city, locally), a nation, a tribe (politically): nomen civitatis (the name of citizen); fortunam hujus civitatis (of citizenship in this city).
clādēs, -is, [?], perh. akin to cladō, F., a damage, a disaster, loss, destruction, ruin. — Esp., in war, defeat, disaster.
Vocabulary.

clam [case of stem akin to call-go, etc.], adv. and prep., secretly.
clāmitō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [freq. of clamo, perh. clāmita-(cf. nauta)],
1. v. a., keep crying out, vociferate, cry out.
clāmō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [stem akin to καλεῖ, perh. clāma- (cf. fama)],
1. v. a. and n., cry out, exclaim.
clāmor, -ōris, [clam (as if root of clamo) + or.], m., a shouting, a shout, a cry, an outcry, clamor, shouts (as if plur.).
clārus, -a, -um, [√CLA (in clamo) + rus], adj., loud, distinct, bright, clear.—Fig., famous, distinguished, eminent, glorious.
clāssis, -is, [√CLA (in clamo) + tis], f., (a summoning).—Less exactly, the army (called out, cf. legio, a levy).—Esp., an army (called out for duty at sea), a fleet (the most common later meaning), naval forces.
Claudius, -i, [claudō+ius (prop. adj.)], m., a Roman gentile name.
claudō, clausi, clausus, claudere, [of unc. form, akin to clavis],
3. v. a., close, shut, fasten, shut up (of a prisoner), confine.
clāvus, -i, [prob. √KLU (in claudo, increased) + us], m., a nail.—Also (cf. clava), a tiller, a rudder, the helm.
clēmēns, -entis, [perh. √CLA (in clarus) + mens (cf. vehemens)], adj., (bright?), gentle (of weather).—Fig., gentle, kind, merciful, humane, gracious, kindly, clement.
clementer [clement+ter], adv., mercifully, graciously.
clemencia, -ae, [element + ia],
F., kindness, gentleness, humanity, clemency.
cliēns, -entis, [pres. p. of cluo], c., (a hearer), a dependant, a vassal, a retainer. (It was the custom at Rome for persons of humble origin to attach themselves to some prominent Roman in a kind of vassalage.)
clientēla, -ae, [client + ēla (imitating suadela, etc.)], F., vassalage (as condition of a cliens).—Also, a relation of clientage, a connection with a client: pro clientelis (in place of clients).
clīvus, -i, [√CLI (in clino) + vus], m., a slope, a declivity, an acclivity: Capitolinus (the road to the Capitol, the street in Rome which ascended from the Forum to the Capitol).
cloāca, -ae, [akin to cluo, cleanse],
F., a sewer:
Clodiānus, -a, -um, [Clodiō + anus], adj., of Clodius: crimen (made by him); leges (passed by him).
Clodiōs, -i, [the popular form of Claudius], m., a Roman gentile name, belonging to the plebeian branch of the gens Claudia.—Esp., 1. P. Clodius, a most bitter enemy of Cicero. He was killed in a fray by T. Annius Milo. 2. C. Clodius, another of the same family.
Cn., abbreviation for Gnaeus (cf. C. and Cajus).
Cnaeus, see Gnaeus.
Cnidius (Gn.-), -a, -um, [Κνίδος], adj., of Cnidus.—Masc. plur., the people of Cnidus.
Cnidus (Gn-), -i, [Κνίδος], F., a city of Caria, famous for a statue of Venus.
coāctus, -a, -um, see coago.
coaedificō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [con-
Vocabulary.

aedifico, i. v. a., build together, join (in building), build and join.

coarguo, -ui, -itus, -ure, [con-arguo], 3. v. a., prove, prove guilty, accuse.

cœmo, -emī, -emptus, -emere, [con-emo], 3. v. a., buy up.

cœtus, -ivi, no p.p., -ire, [con-eo], irr. v. n., come together, unite, form (by uniting).

cœpli, -isse, [con-tapi (perf. of tapo, cf. apiscor)], def. v. a. (have taken hold of), began, undertook, started: perge quo coepisti (have started). — coepus, -a, -um, p.p., used in same sense as active with passive infinitives.

coercē, -ercui, -ercitus, -ercēre, [con-areo], 2. v. a., confine, keep in check, put down, crush, coerce, repress.

cœtus, -tus, [con-itus], m., a meeting, an assembly (not regularly convened, cf. contio), an assemblage, a concourse.

cōgitatīō, -onis, [cogitā+atio], v., connection by birth, kinship, kindred, relationship: non gratia non cognitio (not by influence of personal friends or powerful relations).

cōgnitiō, -onis, [con-(g)nōtio, cf. cognosco], f., learning, study, becoming acquainted with, examination, acquaintance.

cōgnitor, -tōris, [con+t(g)nōtor, cf. cognosco], m., (one who investigates?), an attorney. — Less exactly, a defender, a supporter, an advocate. — Also, one who is acquainted with (a person), a voucher, sponsor.

cōgnōmen, -minis, [con-(g)nōmen], n., a name. — Esp., the personal or family last name, a sobriquet, a nickname.

coenοscō, -nōvi, -nitus, -nōscere, [con(g)nosco], 3. v. a., learn, find out, find, become aware, become acquainted with, recognize, hear (a thing read). — Esp., investigate, inquire into, learn about, study, consider. — In perfect tenses (cf. nosco), know, be aware, be acquainted with: cognitum est (was known); causa cognita (upon a full investigation, after trial); spectatus et cognitum (tried and proved); cognoscendi consuetudo (of investigation).

cōgō, coeμi, coeactus, cōgere, [con-agoe], 3. v. a., bring together, collect, assemble, get together. — Esp., of money, collect, exact. — Hence, force, compel, oblige: senatum (assemble of the consul, who could enforce attendance).
cohæreō, -haesi, -haesūrus, -haerēre, [con-haero], 2. v. n., cling together, cohere, be closely connected.
cohībeō, -hibui, -hibitus, -hibēre, [con-habeo], 2. v. a., hold together, hold in check, restrain, keep (from anything), control.
cohors, -hortis, [con-thortis (reduced), akin to hortus], F., an enclosure. — Hence, a body of troops, a cohort (the tenth part of a legion, corresponding as a unit of formation to the company of modern tactics, and containing from 300 to 600 men).
Loosely, soldiers, infantry, armed men. — Also, any body of infantry or persons conceived as such, a troop, a company, a band: praetoria (a body-guard, attending the commander, originally praetor).
cohortātiō, -ōnis, [con-hortatio (cf. cohortor)], F., an exhortation, an encouraging, encouragement. — Esp. (to soldiers), an address (almost invariably a preliminary to an engagement).
cohortor, -ātus, -āri, [con-horcor], 1. v. dep., encourage, rally, exhort, address (esp. of a commander).
collaudo, see conlaudo.
collectō, see consectio.
collēgā, see conlega.
collēgium, see conlegium.
colligō, see conligo.
collinus, -a, -um, [colli + nus], adj., of the hill. — Esp., of the tribe of that name, the Collina (a name of great antiquity and unc. meaning).
collōcō, see conlocō.
colloquor, see conloquor.
colluvio, see conluvio.
Vocabulary.

Nomina.

combūro, -ūssī, -ūstus, -ūrere, [con-有毒(?) relation to uro very uncertain, cf. bustum], 3. v. a., burn up, consume.

comes, -itis, [con-有毒(mi)ta (cf. semita)], c., a companion (esp. an inferior as attendant or follower), a follower, an adherent, an associate, an attendant.

cōmissātīō, -ōnis, [comissā + tīo], p., a revel (in the streets after a debauch).

comitātus, -ūsīs, [comitā + tūs], m., an accompanying, a company, a train, a following, followers, an escort.

comitium, -i, [?, perh. comit- (see comes) + ium, the assemblage of followers (cf. servitium)], n., a part of the Forum at Rome. — Plur., the assembly (of the people for voting), an election.

comitor, -ātus, -āri, [comit-], i. v. dep., accompany. — comitātus, -ās, -ātum, p.p. in pres. sense, accompanying; pass. sense, accompanied.

commēsātus, -ūsīs, [commēsātus, cf. commoeo], m., a going to and fro, an expedition (back and forth), a trip. — Hence, communications (of an army), communication (generally). — So also, supplies (of an army), provisions.

commemorābilis, -ēs, [commemorabilis (cf. commemoro)], adj., noteworthy, notable, praiseworthy, remarkable.

commemorātīō, -ōnis, [commemoratio (cf. commemoro)], p., a calling to mind, mention, commemoration (calling to mind with respect), a reminder, remembrance (putting in Eng. the result for the process).

commemorātus, -āvitus, -āre.

[commemorō], i. v. a., remind one of. — Hence, speak of, mention, state (in a narrative): judicia commemo-randa (noteworthy).

commendātīō, -ōnis, [commendatio (cf. commendo)], p., a recommendation.

commendō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [commendō], i. v. a., intrust, recommend, surrender, commend (for help or protection).

commīcēs, -scui, -stus, -scere, [commiscēo], 2. v. a., mingle, mix.

commīttō, -misīs, -missus, -mittere, [committō], 3. v. a., (let go (send) together or altogether). — Hence, join, unite, attach: proelium (engage, begin the engagement). — Also, entrust, trust: tabulas committere (put into the hands of, etc.); nihil his committere (place no confidence in, etc.). — Also, admit, allow (to happen), commit (suffer to be done, cf. admitto), perpetrate, do: committere ut possit (leave it possible); nihil committere (do nothing wrong).

commōdō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [commōdō], i. v. a., adapt. — Also (cf. commodus), loan, lend.

commōdum, see commodus.

commodus, -a, -um, [commōdus, see A. & G., 188 d], adj., (having the same measure with), fitting, suitable, convenient, advantageous.

commodissimum est (it is the best thing, most advantageous). — Neut.
Vocabulary.

as subst., convenience, comfort, advantage, interest: commodus nostro (at our convenience); commodus quibus utimur (blessings).

commoneō, -monui, -monitus, -monère, [con-moneo], 2. v. a., remind.

commoror, -ātus, -āri, [con-morör], 1. v. dep., delay, stay, wait.

commoveō, -mōvi, -mōtus, -mo-vēre, [con-moveo], 2. v. a., move, stir, agitate.—With reflex., or in pass., be moved, move (intrans.), stir.—Fig., disturb, agitate, affect, alarm, influence (with idea of violent feeling), move, trouble.

communīcō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [†communīcō- (communi + cus)], 1. v. a., (make common), share, communicate, consult (with a person about a thing, and so make it common), add (a thing to another), put in along with (something else): causam (confound with that of another); ratio cum illo communicatur (shared by him).

communītō, -ōnis, [communi+tō (cf. legio)], F., participation (in common), sharing: sanguinis (the ties of blood).

commūnis, -e, [con + munis (cf. munta, duties)], adj., (having shares together), common, general, in common: ex communi consensu (by general agreement); consilium (general plan, concerted action); jūra (universal, natural); quīd tam commune (universal).—Neut. as subst., a community, an association: a Cretensium communi (from the Cretans in common).

commūnīter [communi + ter], adv., in common, in general.

commūtābilis, -e, [commutā + bilis], adj., changeable.

commūtātīō, -ōnis, [con-mūta-tio (cf. commuto)], F., change.

commūtō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [con-muto], 1. v. a., change, exchange.

comparātīō, -ōnis, [con-parātio (cf. comparo)], F., a comparison, a preparation.

comparō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [con-paro], 1. v. a., get ready, prepare, win, secure, procure, gain, get together, prepare for (with a different view of the object in English), arrange, establish, ordain (of institutions): insidias (lay); uxor se (get ready).—Also (cf. confero), compare (possibly a different word).

compellō, -puli, -pulsus, -pellere, [con-pello], 3. v. a., drive together (or altogether), drive in, force, drive.

comperendīnō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [comperendinō-], 1. v. a. and n., adjourn (of a court).—Also, of one of the parties, close the case (so as to be ready for adjournment).

comperīō, -perī, -pertus, -perīre, [con-parīo], 4. v. a., (get together), find out (by inquiry), discover.

competitor, -tōris,[con-petitor], M., a competitor, a rival.

complector, -plexus, -plecti,[com-plector], 3. v. dep., embrace, include, enclose. —Less exactly, love, cherish: sententia (express concisely).

complexus, -ūs, [con-plexus (cf. complector)], M., an embrace.

complūres, -plūra (-ia), [con-plus], adj. plur., very many, a great many, a great number of.

compōnō, -posui, -positus, -pōtere, [con-pono], 3. v. a., put totether. — Also, settle, make a settlement. — compositus, -a, -um, p.p. as adj., settled, composed, arranged.
Vocabulary.

comportō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [con-porto], i. v. a., bring together.

compos,-otis, [con-potīa], adj., in possession of: hujus urbis (a citizen).

comprehendō, -hendi, -hensus, -hendere, [con-prehendo], 3. v. a., seize, catch, take into custody, arrest, capture, grasp (one by the hand or clothing). — Fig., take, catch (of fire), firmly grasp (of facts).

comprimō, -pressi, -pressus, -primere, [con-premo], 3. v. a., press closely, crush, repress, foil, put down.

comprobo, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [con-probo], i. v. a., approve, sanction, prove.

cōnātus, -ūs, [con- (stem of conor) + tus], m., an attempt, an effort, an undertaking.

concēdō, -cessi, -cessus, -cedere, [con-cedo], 3. v. a. and n., retire, go out of the way. — Also, give up (a thing to one), allow, grant, assign (leave, where the rest is taken away), permit, yield the palm (to a superior), yield, admit, concede.

concelebrō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [con-celebro], i. v. a., celebrate, attend in throns.

concertātīō, -onis, [con-certātio], f., rivalry, contention.

concertō, -āvi, -āturās, -āre, [concerto], i. v. n., contend.

concīdō, -cidi, -cāsūrus, -cidere, [con-cado], 3. v. n., fall down, fall. — Fig., fail, be impaired, collapse.

concīdō, -cidi, -cīsus, -cidere, [con-caedo], 3. v. a., cut to pieces, cut down (kill), cut up, mangle.

conciliātricula, -ae, [conciliatrica + ula], f., a little conciliator (female or conceived as such), an insinuating charmer, a flattering commendation.

concilīō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [concilīō] (stem of concilium), i. v. a., bring together (cf. concilium). — Hence, win over (originally by persuasion in council?), secure (even by force), win, gain: ferus inter sese (attach to each other).

concilium, -i, [con-cilium (ścal + ium, cf. Calendae)], n., a meeting. — Esp., an assembly (of war or state), a council, a conference, a united body (of merchants, farmers, or the like), the people (assembled in the comitia tributa). — Cf. consilium, which is often equivalent, but refers rather to the action or function than the body.

concipō, -cēpi, -ceptus, -cipere, [con-capio], 3. v. a., take up, take on, take in, get (maculum), incur (infamiam). — Of the mind, conceive, plan, devise.

concitātiō, -onis, [con-citatio (cf. concito)], f., excitement.

concitō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [concito], i. v. a., arouse, stir up, call out (and so set in motion), excite, agitate: mala (set in motion).

conclave, -is, [con-clavis], n., a chamber (originally locked).

concludō, -cūsī, -cūsus, -clūdere, [con-cludo], 3. v. a., shut up, enclose. — Also, conclude, finish.

concordia, -ae, [concord + ia], f., harmony, concord, unanimity. — Esp., Concord (worshipped as a goddess by the Romans, like many other qualities, and having a famous temple on the slope of the Capitoline looking towards the Forum).

concor, -ords, [con-or], adj., harmonious: frātres (mutually affectionate).
Vocabulary.

concupiscē,-ivi (-ií), -itus, -iscere, [con-τεπισκο], 3. v. a., covet, desire earnestly, long for.

concurrō,-curri (-currence), -currēre, [con-curre], 3. v. n., run together, rush up, rush in, rush (advance), flock to, hasten in: concurrē (there was a rush).

concursō,-āvi, -āurus, -āre, [concursō], 1. v. n., rush to and fro, run about.

concursus,-sūs, [con-cursus (cf. concurro)], M., a rushing to and fro, a dashing together (collision). — Esp., a charge, onset, a crowd running, a crowd, a crowding together, a concourse, an assembling (in a tumultuous manner), an assembly.

condemnō,-āvi, -ātus, -āre, [condamno], 1. v. a., condemn, find guilty. — Less exactly, condemn (not in a court).

condictō, -ōnis, [con-dieio (cf. condicio)], F., terms, condition, terms of agreement, terms (of fighting), state (of slavery), state, situation, a bargain, position.

condictū, see condicio.

condō, -didī, -ditus, -dēre, [condo], 3. v. a., put together, found, build. — Also, lay up, preserve (cf. condio).

condōnatō, -ōnis, [con-donatio (cf. condono)], F., a giving up, a donation.

condōnō,-āvi, -ātus, -āre, [condono], 1. v. a., give up, pardon for the sake of.

condūcē,-dui, -ductus, -duere, [con-duco], 3. v. a., bring together, bring up (soldiers). — Also, hire.

confectō, -ōnis, [con-factio (cf. conficio)], F., a finishing.

conficērō, -feri, -fertus, -fercire, [con-facēro], 4. v. a., crowd together.

confertus, -a, -um, p.p. as adj. (both of the thing crowded and the place), close, crowded, dense, closely crowded, in close order, in a solid body: confertus cibo (cramped with food).

confērō,-tuli, -lātus, -ferre, [confēro], 3. v. a., bring together, get together, bring in, gather, collect. — With or without culpam, lay the blame on, charge, ascribe. — With reflexive, betake one's self, remove, take refuge, devote. — So with other words, remove, establish. — Also, postpone, delay, devote, confer, contribute, set, appoint, compare. — Esp.: signa (join battle in a regular engagement); peestem (bring upon, visit upon); spem (set upon something); orationem (direct towards).

confertus, -a, -um, p.p. of confercio.

confessō,-ōnis, [con-τfessio (cf. confiteor)], F., a confession.

confestim [acc. of †confestis (cf. festino)], adv., in haste, immediately, at once.

conficērō, -feci, -fectus, -ficere, [con-facēro], 3. v. a., (do up), accomplish, complete, finish up, carry out, finish, perform. — Also, make up, get together, write up (of a document), work up (of skins tanned). — Also (cf. Eng. "done up"), finish up, exhaust, wear out, kill.

conficērō, -ōnis, [con-cfactio (cf. confingo)], F., a making up, an invention.

confidē,-fisus sum, -fidere, [confido], 3. v. n., be confident, trust, trust in, have confidence in, rely on, feel assured. — confisus, -a, -um, p.p. in active sense, trusting in.

confingō, -finxi, -fincus, -fingere, [con-fingo], 3. v. a., make up, manufacture, invent, imagine.
Vocabulary.

cōnfirmō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [confirmō], 1. v. a., strengthen.—Fig., strengthen, establish, encourage, confirm, re-establish, reassure.—Hence (of things and statements), confirm, declare, assert, assure (one of a thing), prove, support (a statement): Galliam praesidiis; causam auctoritatis; audaciam; conjunctionem; imbecillitatem (give strength to).

cōnīteor, -sessus, -fītērī, [con-fateor], 2. v. dep., confess, acknowledge, admit, make confession.

cōnīflagrō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [conflagro], 1. v. m., be on fire, burn, be burned.—Fig.: invidia (be consumed by a fire of indignation).

cōnfligō, -flixī, -flictus, -fīgere, [con-fligo], 3. v. a. and n., dash against, contend, fight.

cōnflō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [con-flo], 1. v. a., blow up (of a fire).—Fig., excite, kindle.—Also, fuse, melt.—Hence (Fig.), get together, gather, fuse: injuria novo scelere conflata (got up, devised).

cōnflūō, -fluxī, no p.p., -ere, [con-fluo], 3. v. n., flow together.—Less exactly (of persons), flock together: portus (unite their waters).

cōnformātiō, -onis, [con-formatio (cf. conformo)], F. (concretely), form, conformation, structure, forming, training.

cōnformō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [conformō], 1. v. a., form, mould, train.

cōnfringō, -frēgī, -fractus, -fringere [con-frango], 3. v. a., break up, shatter.

cōnfugīō, -fugi, no p.p., -fugere, [con-fugio], 3. v. n., flee, take refuge.

congerō, -gessī, -gestus, -geree, [con-gero], 3. v. a., bring together, heap together, mass together, heap upon.

congredior, -gressus, -grediō, [congradior], 3. v. dep., come together.—In peace, unite with.—Esp., in war, come in contact with, engage, fight.

congregō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [congrego], 1. v. a., bring together, gather together, collect.—With reflex. or in pass., assemble, gather.

congruō, -ūi, no p.p., -ure, [conjungo (con-grus), cf. flock together, herd together, dog one's footsteps, crane the neck]), 3. v. n., flock together (cf. example below).—Hence, harmonize, agree: multae causae convenisse unum in locum atque inter se congruere (combine).

cōncintō (-iicio), -iēci, -iectus, -icere [con-iacio], 3. v. a., throw together, hurl, cast, discharge, aim: se conciere (rush); sortem (cast, draw).—Less exactly, esp. in a military sense, throw (into prison), put, place, station (cf. military throw troops into, etc.), force.—Fig., put together (of ideas), conjecture, guess: in noctem se conciere (rush out into the darkness, rush out at night).

cōniveō (conn-), -nivi (-nīxi), -nivēre, no p.p., [con-niveo], 2. v. n., wink, (also fig. as in Eng.) shut the eyes, connive.

conjectūra, -ae, [con-actus, cf. coniecto], F., a guess ("putting two and two together"), a conjecture, an inference.

conjectō, see coniecto.

conjunctō, -onis, [con-junctio (cf. conjungo)], F., a uniting, a union, a connection.

conjunγō, -juxi, -junctus, -jungere, [con-jungo], 3. v. a., unite, connect, fasten together.—In pass., or with reflexive, unīte (neuter), connect one's self, join. — conjunctus, -a, -um, p.p. as adj., united, closely connected, in conjunction with: cum his (ludis) pleb eos esse conjunctos (follow immediately); quod (bellum) regem (unite to wage).
Vocabulary.

conjunx, -jugis, [con-þjux (ÞUG, as stem, with intrusive n from Jun- go)], c., a spouse. — Esp., f., a wife.

conjurato, -onis, [con-juratio, (cf. conjuro)], f., a conspiracy, a confederacy.

conjuratus, see conjuro.

conjuror, -āvī, -ātus, -āre, [conjuro], i. v. n., swear together, take an oath (together), swear mutual oaths. — Hence, conspire. — conjuratus, p.p. as subst., a conspirator.

conlatus (coll.), -a, -um, p.p. of confero.

conlaudō (coll.), -āvī, -ātus, -āre, [con-laudo], i. v. a., praise (in set terms).

conlecto, -onis, [con-lectio], f., a collecting, a gathering.

conlēga (coll.), -ac, [con-þlēga (ÞLEG + a)], m., a colleague (one of two or more persons holding an office with equal powers).

conlēgium (coll.), -i, [con-le-gium (?), or conlēga + ium], n., a body of colleagues, a body (composed of such persons). — Also, a corporation, an organized body, a club, a guild.

conligō (coll.), -lēgī, -lēctus, -ligere, [con-legeo], 3. v. a., gather, collect, acquire (by accumulation).

— With reflexive, collect one's self, recover, gather: naufragi conlecti (picked up).

conlocō (coll.), -āvī, -ātus, -āre, [con-locō], i. v. a., place, set, station (of troops, etc.), set up, lay: insidias.

— Esp. (with or without nuptum), give in marriage, marry (of a father or guardian). — Fig., settle, place (spem), invest (pecunias), locate (sedem).

conloquor (coll.), -locūtus, -lo- qui, [con-loquar], 3. v. dep., confer, hold an interview (or parley), parley, converse.

conlūvio, -onis, [con-þlūvio (akin to luo)], f., wash, dregs.

conniveō, see conniceo.

cōnors, -ātus, -āri, [?, con- stem akin to onus], i. v. dep., attempt, try, endeavor: conatum (an attempt).

conqueror, -questus, -quer, [conqueror], 3. v. dep., complain, make complaint.

conquēscō, -quēvi, -quēvīrus, -quēsce, [con-quiesco], 3. v. n., rest, repose, find rest, be quiet, be idle.

conquisitor, -ōris, [con-quaesitor], m., an investigator, a searcher, a detective.

Cōnsānus, (Compsa-), -a, -um, [Cons + anus], adj., of Consa (a city of the Hirpini). — Plur., the people of Consa.

cōnsceleratus, -a, -um, [con-sceleratus], adj., accused, criminal.

cōnscientia, -ac, [con-scientia, cf. conscientia], f., consciousness, privity, conscience, consciousness of guilt.

cōnscius, -a, -um, [con-scītus, γσι (in scio) + us], adj., knowing (with one's self or another), conscious, privy, a witness, a confidant.

cōnscribō, -scripsĭ, -scriptus, -scribere, [con-scribo], 3. v. a., write down. — Esp., enrol, conscribe, levy. — Esp.: Patres conscripti (senators, the senate).

cōnsccrō, -āvī, -ās, -āre, [con- sacrō], i. v. a., hallow, consecrate.

— cōnsccrātus, -a, -um, p.p. as adj., consecrated, sacred, hallowed: Aristaeus in templo (worshipped); viri ad immortalitatis et religio- nem et memoriam consecrantur (are held in reverence).

cōnsēnsīō, -ōnis, [con-σενσίο, cf. consentio], F., agreement, unani- mity, conspiracy.

cōnsēnsus, -sūs, [con-sensus, cf. consentio], M., agreement, consent, harmonious (or concerted) action, unanimous action.

cōnsentīō, -sēnsi, -sēnsūr, -sent- ire, [con-sentio], 4. v. n., agree, conspire, make common cause, act with (some one).

consequor, -secūtus, -sequi, [con- sequor], 3. v. dep., follow up, follow, overtake. — Hence, obtain, secure, attain, succeed in (some purpose); arrive at. — Also, follow close upon, succeed, ensue, result: quas- tum (get); fructum (reap).

cōnservātīō, -ōnis, [con-servā- tio (cf. conservo)], F., preservation.

cōnservātor, -tōris, [con-ser- vātor (cf. conservo)], M., a preserver, a saviour.

conservō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [con- servō], 1. v. a., save, preserve, spare, keep. — Also, observō (law, right), regard.

consessus, -sūs, [con-sessus (cf. consedeco)], M., a sitting together, a session, a body (sitting together), a bench (of judges).

considerō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [?], poss. considerō (from adj. stem of which sidus is neut., cf. deside- rium), 1. v. a., dwell upon, consider, contemplate.

Cōnsidius, i, [con-σίδιος (akin to sedeo)], M., a Roman name. — Esp., C. Considius Longus in Africa as praetor B.C. 50.

cōnsidō, -sō, -sēsūr, -sidere, [con-sido], 3. v. n., sit down (in a place). — Less exactly, take a position, halt, encamp, settle.

cōnsilium, -i, [con-σιλιον (cf. consult, akin to salio, in some earlier unc. meaning)], N., deliberation.

— Esp., wise counsel, advice, wisdom, prudence, discretion. — Hence, a plan, a counsel, design, purpose, course (as design carried out), measure, conduct, a policy, a stratagem.

— Esp., a deliberative body (more abstract and with more reference to the act or function of deliberating than concilium, which see), a coun- cil, a body of counsellors, a bench (of judges), a panel (of a jury), a court (consisting of a body of judges): causas ad consilium admittitur (chance is not admitted to council); privato consilio non publico (as a private not a public measure, by private and not by official action); par- tim consilia partim studios (partly with policy, partly with political feeling); publico consilio factum (as a state measure); uno consilio (with one continuous purpose or policy); consilium publicum (council of state, of the senate); ad consilium publicum rem defferre (the estab- lished council of state); non deser- re publicae consilium (a plan of action settled by the council of state); erat ei consilium ad factum ap- tum (power of planning); consilio malitiae occurrere (with wise measures); aliquod commune consilium (any consulting body).

cōnsistō, -stiti, no p.p., -stitere, [con-sisto], 3. v. n., take a stand, take a position, stand, keep one’s position, form (of troops). — In perf. tenses, have a position, stand.
Vocabulary

Hence, stand still, stop, halt, make a stand, hold one’s ground, run aground (of ships), remain, stay.—With in, occupy, rest on.—Fig., depend on, rest on.

cōnsobrinus, i, [con-sobrinus], m., first cousin (on the mother’s side).—Less exactly, (any) cousin german.

cōnsolātiō, -ōnis, [con-solatio (cf. consolor)], f., consolation, solace.—Also, as in Eng., a means of consolation.

cōnsōlor, -ātus, -āri, [con-solor], i. v. dep., console.—cōnsōlatūs, -a, -um, p.p. as pres., consoling.

cōnsōrs, -sortis, [con-sors], adj., associating, sharing, a sharer.

cōnspectus, -tūs, [con-spectus, cf. conspicto], m., sight, a view.

cōnspectō, -spēxi, -spectus, -spicerē, [con-∫specio], 3. v. a., look upon, see.

cōnspirātiō, -ōnis, [con-spiratio (cf. consipiro)], f., a conspiracy, a combination (not in a bad sense).

cōnsiprō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [con-sipiro], i. v. n., sound together.—Fig., harmonize.—Also, conspire, league together: consensus conspirans (a blended harmony).

cōnstāns, -ntis, p. of consto, which see.

Cōnstanter [constant + ter], adv., consistently, uniformly, steadily, with constancy, firmly.

cōnsstantia, -ae, [constant + ia], f., firmness, constancy, undaunted courage, strength of character.

cōnsstituō, -stitūi, -stitūtus, -stituere, [con-statuo], 3. v. a. and n., erect, set up, raise, put together, make up.—Hence, establish, station, arrange, form, draw up.—Fig., determine, appoint, agree upon, determine upon, ordain, fix, decide upon, establish a principle that, etc.: Jupiter constitutus (consecrated); colonias (plant); rationem salutis (base, found); spem (repose); suspicionem (make out); supplicium (decide upon, inflict); imperatorem (create, appoint); exercitum (set on foot); consulares ad caedium (destine, mark out).

cōnstō, -stiti, -stitūrus, -stāre, [con-sto], i. v. n., stand together.—Fig., agree, be consistent (esp. of accounts).—Hence, be established, appear, be agreed upon, be evident.—Also (from accounts), cost.—Also, depend upon, consist, be composed.—cōnstāns, -ntis, p. as adj., consistent, steady, firm, steadfast.

cōnstringō, -strinxī, -strictus, -stringere, [con-stringo], 3. v. a., bind fast, hold fast bound, bind hand and foot, hold in check, restrain.—In many fig. uses, the figure is retained in Latin where it can hardly be kept in English.

cōnsuēscō, -suevi, -suētus, -suēscere, [con-suessco], 3. v. n., become accustomed.—In perf. tenses, be accustomed, be wont. —cōnsuētus, -a, -um, p.p., accustomed, wont, used.

cōnsuētūdō, -ūnis, [con-∫suētudo (prob. ∫suētu + do, as in gravēdo, libido), cf. consuesco], f., habit, custom, habits (collectively), manners, customs, precedent, ordinary method, habitual intercourse, intercourse: victus (customary mode of living); incommodorum (the habit of enduring, etc.).

cōnsul, -ulis, [con-sul (cf. prae-sul, exsul), root of sallo in some earlier unc. meaning], m., a consul (the title of the chief magistrate of Rome, cf. consilium).—With proper names in abl., the usual way of indicating dates: M. Messala et M. Pisone consulibus (in the consul-ship of, etc.); se console (in his consulship, as a date or occasion);
pro console (see pro consul).

cōnsulāris, -ē, [cōnsul + āris], adj., of a consul, of the consuls, consular.—Esp. with homo, etc., or as subst., an ex-consul.

cōnsulātus, -ūs, [cōnsulā- (cf.
exsulo) + -ūs], M., consulship (cf.
cōnsul), the office of consul.

cōnsulō, -sulū, -sultus, -sulere, [prob. cōnsul, though poss. a kinddred or independent verb], 3. v. a.
and n., deliberate, consult, take counsel, decide.—With acc., consult, take one’s advice, ask the advice of.—
With dat., take counsel for, consult the interests of, consult for the welfare of, look out for, do a service to.
—See also consulto and other participial forms.

cōnsultō [prob. like abl. absolute p.p. used impersonally, cf. auspicato], adv., with deliberation, purposefully, designedly.

cōnsulum, -i, [N. p.p. of con-sulo], n., a decision, an order, a decree.—Esp., senatus consultum (an order of the senate).

cōnsūmō, -sūmptī, -sūmpτus, -sū-mere, [con-sumo], 3. v. a., (take out of the general store).—Hence, waste, consume, destroy, spend, exhaust, use up.

contāminō, -āvī, -ātus, -āre, [con-tamin- (stem of con-ţāmen, i.e. tag + men)], 1. v. a., bring into contact, unite.—Esp. with notion of contagion (cf. contagio), contaminate.
—Hence, defile, dishonor, disgrace.

cōntegō, -tēxī, -tectus, -tēgere, [con-tego], 3. v. a., cover up, cover, bury.

contemnō, -tempšī, -tempτus,
-temnere, [con-temno], 3. v. a., despise, disregard, hold in contempt.—
contemptus, -a, -um, p.p. as adj., despicable, contemptible.

contendō, -tendi, -tentus, -tendere, [con-tendo], 3. v. n., strain, struggle, strive, try, endeavor, exert one’s self, attempt, be jealous.—Esp., with verbs of motion, press on, hasten.—Also, fight, contend, wage war.
—With ad and in like constructions, press towards, hasten, march, start to go (in haste).—With ab, urge upon one, persuade, induce.—Also, compare, contrast.—Absolutely, maintain (that, etc.), contend (in same sense).

contentīō, -ōnis, [con-ţentio, ctendō], f., a strain, struggle, efforts.—Esp., contest, fighting.—
Also, comparison (cf. contendo).

contentus, -a, -um, p.p. of con-tendo and contineo.

conticēscō, -ticui, no p.p., -ticē-escere [con-ţacesco], 3. v. n., become silent, cease to speak, be hushed.

continēns, -entis, pres. p. of con-tineo, which see.

continenter [continent + ter],
adv., continually, without stopping,
continuously.

continentia, -ae, [continent +
ia], f., self-restraint.

contineō, -tinui, -tentus, -tinēre, [con-teneo], 2. v. a., hold together, connect, contain, hold in.—Hence,
in many fig. meanings, restrain, hold in check, keep (within bounds), kee in, retain (in something).—Pass.
or with reflex., keep within, remain, be included in, be bounded, consist in (be contained in), depend upon.
—continēns, -entis, p. as adj., (holding together), continual, contiguous,
Vocabulary.

continuous.— As subst., the continuous land, the continent.— Also, restraining one’s self, continent. — contentus, -a, -um, p.p. as adj., contented, content, satisfied.

contingō, -tigi, -tactus, -tingere, [con-tango], 3. v. a. and n., touch, reach, join.— With dat. (expressed or implied), happen, have the good fortune (of the person).— Rarely in a general sense, occur, be the case.

continuō [abl. of continuus], adv., immediately, straightway, forthwith.

continuus, -a, -um, [con-†tenuus (ten in teno + uus)], adj., continuous, successive, in succession.

contio, -onis, [prob. for conventio], f., an assembly.— Esp., the assembly of the people convened by a magistrate for discussing any public matter, but not for voting (cf. comitia), or a like assembly of soldiers before their commander.— Less exactly, a harangue (on such an occasion), an address: comes ad continentem (an associate to address the people); in continent (in harangues).

continentor, -ōris, [continenta + tor], m., a haranguer, a demagogue.

continentor, -ātus, -āri, [continent-], 1. v. dep., harangue, address (an assembly or an army).

contrā [unc. case-form (instr.?) of contrerus (con + terus), cf. superus, supra], adv. and prep., opposite, contrary to, against, in opposition, on the other hand, on the other side, to the contrary: contra atque (different from what, etc., contrary to what, etc.).

contractūs, -onis, [con-tractio (cf. contraho)], f., a drawing to-gether, a contraction: frontis (a frown).

contrahō, -traxi, -tractus, -trahere, [con-traho], 3. v. a., draw together, draw in, bring together, gather together, contract, narrow, make smaller, bring into smaller compass: aequilibrium (contract); amplus negotii (get one’s self into).

contrārius, -a, -um, [†conterō (see contra) + arius], adj., opposite (lit. and fig.), contrary, contradictory.

contrōversia, -ae, [contro-versō + ia], f., a turning against.— Hence, a controversy, a dispute: sine controversia (without question).

contrūcidō, -āvi, -āus, -āre, [con-trucido], 1. v. a., cut to pieces, slaughter, massacre.— Less exactly, tear in pieces (rem publicam).

contuberniālis, -is, [con-taberna + alis], m. and f., (prop. adj.), a tent companion, a messmate.

contumēlia, -ae, [?, cf. tumeo], f., an insult, an affront, an outrage.

convalēscō, -ui, no p.p., -ere, [con-valēscō], 3. v. n., get better.

convehō, -vexi, -vectus, -vehere, [con-vehō], 3. v. a., bring together.

convenīō, -vēni, -ventus, -venire, [con-venio], 4. v. a. and n., come together, meet, assemble, come in, arrive, agree upon, agree. — With acc., meet, come to.— Also, of things, be agreed upon, be fitting, be necessary (in a loose sense in Eng.).— Esp. impers., it is fitting, ought: qui convenit (how is it likely, how can it be); tibi cum sceleratis convenire (you be on good terms with, etc.); in aliquem suspicio (can fall).

conventiculum, -i, [conventō + culum], n., a little group.

conventus, -tus, [convenīntus (cf. convenio and adventus)], m., an assembly, a meeting. — Esp., an asīze (the regular assembly of Roman citizens in a provincial town on stated occasions, at which justice was dispensed), an association of merchants (in a province, who were united into a sort of guild).

conversus, -e, -um, p.p. of convertēre.

convertēre, -verti, -versus, -vertere, [con-verto], 3. v. a., turn about, turn. — Fig., divert, change, convert, appropriate: se convertēre (turn).

convictum (convertīc), -i, [tōn-vicc- (con-vox) + ium], n., a wrangle, wrangling.

convincō, -viči, -victus, -vincere, [con-vincō], 3. v. a., prove, make good (a charge, etc.): avaritia convicta (found guilty of avarice, changing the point of view for the Eng. idiom). — Also (as in Eng.), of the person, convict, prove guilty.

convivium, -i, [conviva + ium (cf. collegium)], n., a living together, a banquet, a carousal.

convocō, -avi, -ātus, -āre, [con-voco], i. v. a., call together, summon, call (a council or the like).

copla, -ae, [tōopj- (con-ops) + ia, cf. inopla, inops], f., abundance, plenty, supply (both great and small), quantity, number. — Esp., luxury (abundance of everything). — plur. (esp. of forces), forces, resources, supplies, armed forces, capital: dicendi (fluency); in dicendo (fullness of matter).

cōplōsāē [old abl.], adv., fully.

cōplōsus, -a, -um, [copia (reduced) + osus], adj., well supplied, wealthy, full of resources, well to do.
cōram [unc. case, formed from con and os], adv. and prep., face to face, personally, present, in person.

Corduba, -ae, [?], f., a city in Spain (Cordova).

Cōrdīlius, -i, [?], m., a Roman gentile name. — Esp., L. Cōrdīlius, a friend of Ligarius.

Corinthius, -a, -um, [Kōrophos], adj., of Corinth, Corinthian. — Masc. plur., the Corinthians.

Corinthus, -i, [Kōrophos], f., Corinth (the famous city on the isthmus between Greece and the Peloponnese, destroyed by Mummius, B.C. 146).

Cornelius, -i, [?], m., a famous Roman gentile name. — Esp.: 1. Cornelius Cinna (see Cinna); 2. L. Cornelius Sulla (see Sulla); 3. L. Cornelius Lentulus (see Lentulus).

Cornēlius, -a, -um, [same word as preceding], adj., of Cornelius. — Esp., Cornelian (of the laws passed by Sulla).

Cornificius, -ī, [tōn-ifico + ius], m., a Roman gentile name. — Esp., Q. Cornificius, one of the judges in the case against Verres.

Cornūtus, -i, [cornu + tūs (cf. barbatus)], m., a Roman family name. — Esp., M. Cornutus, prætor in B.C. 43.

corōna, -ae, [?], f., a garland.

— Fig., a circle (line, of soldiers), a circle of spectators.

corpus, -oris, [unc. root + us], n., the body, the person, the frame: petitionis corpore effugere (by dodging, a gladiator’s term).

corrigitō (corr-), -exi, -rectus, -rigere, [con-regō], 3.v.a., (straight Vocabulary.

en), correct, reform, amend: to corrigas (amend, as if intrans.).
corrípō, -ripū, -repus, -ripere, [con-rapio], 3. v. a., seize, seize upon,
plunder.
corrūborō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [con-trubor (roburo)], i. v. a., strengthen, confirm.
corrumpō, -rūpi, -ruptus, -rumpere, [con-rumpo], 3. v. a., spoil, ruin, tamper with (of documents or of a court), bribe (of a court, etc.).
—corruptus, -a, -um, p.p. as adj., corrupt, profigate.
corrū, -ru, no p.p., -ruere, [con-rūno], 3. v. a. and n., fall in ruins, fall. — Also, overthrow.
corruptēla, -ae, [prob. corruptō+ ela (cf. querela)], f., means of seduction, an enticement, an allure-ment.
corruptor, -tōris, [con-ruptor
(cf. corruptumo)], m., a corruptor, a seducer.
cotidiānus (quot-), -a, -um, [cotidie + anus], adj., daily.
cotidē (quot-), [quot-die, loc.
of dīes], adv., daily, every day.
Cotta, -ae, [-], m., a Roman family name.—Esp., L. Aurelius Cotta, consul b.c. 65, and later “Princeps Sena-tus.”
Cottius, -i, [-?], m., the name of two Romans from Tauromentum, who were witnesses against Verres.
Cous, -a, -um, [Kōs], adj., of Cos (the island in the Aegean).—
Plur. m., the Coans.
crās, [-?], adv., to-morrow.
Crassus, -i, [crassus, fat], m., a Roman family name.—Esp.: 1. Marcus (Licinius) Crassus, consul with Pompey b.c. 55; one (with Caesar and Pompey) of the combination called the Triumvirate. 2. L. Li-cinius Crassus, the great orator, censor b.c. 103. 3. P. Licinius Crassus, censor b.c. 89.
crātēra, -ae, [prob. from acc. of kphrōp], n., a vase (for mixing wine, corresponding to “punch-bowl”), a jar.
crēber, -bra, -brum, [crē- (in creo) + ber (cf. saluber)], adj., thick, close, numerous, frequent:
sermo (general).
crēbrō [prob. abl. of creber],
adv., frequently, constantly, in rapid succession, at short intervals.
crēdibilis, -e, [credī- (as stem of credo) + bilis], adj., to be believed, credible: non credibilia (impossible to believe).
crēdō, crēdidi, crēditus, crēdere, [cred (faith, of unc. formation) + do (place)], 3. v. a. and n., trust, entrust, believe, suppose, believe in.
—Esp. parenthetically, credo (I suppose, ironical): mihi crede (take my word for it, take my advice).
cremō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [-?], 1. v. a., burn, consume (esp. of the dead, perh. orig. only of flesh, cf. cremor).
crēo, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [unc. form., akin to cresco], 1. v. a., (cause to grow), create, generate.—Esp., elect, choose.
Creperējus, -i, [-?], m., a Roman gentile name.—Esp., M. Crepereius, a Roman knight, a judex in the case of Verres.
crepitus, -tūs, [crepi- (as stem of crepto) + tūs], m., a noise, a rattling, a sound.
Crēs, Crētis, [Gr. Kpēs], m., a Cretan.
crēscēō, crēvi, crētus, crēscere, [stem crē (also in creo) with -soo],
3. v. n., grow, increase, swell (of a river), be swelled, increase in influence (of a man), be increased.
Vocabulary.

Crētēnsis, -e, [Creta + ensis], adj., of Crete, Cretan.— Masc. plur., the Cretans.

crimen, -minis, [cri- (stem akin to cerno) + men], N., (a decision).
— Less exactly, a charge, a fault, a crime.

criminor, -ātus, -āri, [crimin-], i. v. dep., accuse, bring an accusation, charge, find fault with.

criminōsē [old abl. of criminōsus], adv., in the spirit of an accuser.

criminōsus, -a, -um, [crimin + osus], adj., criminal, ground for an accusation.

cruciātus, -ātus, [cruciā- (stem of crucio) + tua], m., crucifying.
— Hence, torture.— With a change of relation, suffering (of the person tortured).

cruciō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [cruci- (as if cruciō-)], i. v. a., crucify, torture.

crūdēlis, -e, [cruē- (in crūdescō, akin to crudus) + lis, cf. Aprilis, edūlis, animālis], adj., (bloody?), cruel (also of things suffered, as in Eng.).

crūdēlītās, -tātis, [crudelis + ta], f., cruelly.

crūdēlītēr [crudelis + ter], adv., cruelly, with cruelty, harshly.

cruentō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [cruentō-], i. v. a., stain with blood.

cruentus, -a, -um, [crue- (in crueor, crudus) + entus (cf. tantus)], adj., bloody, blood-stained.

crueor, -ōris, [crue- (in crudus) + or], m., blood (out of the body), gore.

crux, crucis, [?], f., a cross (the usual instrument for the punishment of slaves), death on the cross.

cubile, -is, [†cubī- (stem akin to cumbo) + lis (cf. crudelis), n. of adj.], N., a couch, a resting-place, a bed, a lair.

cubō, -iui, -itum, -āre, [√cub-], i. v. n., lie down, lie, lie asleep:
cubitum īre (go to bed).

cūleus (cull-), -i, [kūleos], m., a sack.

culpa, -ae, [?], f., a fault, blame, guilt.

cultūra, -ae, [cultu + ra (f. of -rus, cf. figura)], f., cultivation, culture: agri cultura or agricultura (the cultivation of the soil).

cum [?], another form of con-, prep., with, along with, in company with, armed with.

cum (quam), [case-form (prob. acc.) of qui], conj., when, while, whenever.— Often rendered by a different construction in Eng.: cum mulier esset (being a woman).—

Of logical relations (usually with subj.), when, while, since, inasmuch as, though, although.— cum... tum while... so also, not only... but especially, while... besides, not only... but also, not only... but as well, while... as well, while... so (in particular), both... and, as well... as; cum primum (as soon as, the first time).

cumulatō [old abl. of cumulatus], adv., in full measure, fully.

cumulō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [cumulō-], i. v. a., heap up, fill full, add to: alo scelere hoc soles (add to this, etc., another, etc.); ea quae promisimus studiōse cumulata reddemus (in the fullest measure).

cumulus, -i, [cumō- (akin to κυμα) + lus], m., (the swelling heap), a heap.— Hence, the last stroke, the last touch (added to something already complete), an extra weight, an increase.

cūnctus, -a, -um, [for costumetus?], adj., all (together, in a mass):

Vocabulary.

Italia (the whole of; etc.); urba (the entire).

cupidē [old abl. of cupidus], adv., eagerly, zealously, earnestly.

cupiditās, -tās, [cupidō + tās], F., desire, eagerness, greed, cupidity, greed of gain, selfish desire.

cupīdō, -inis, [unc. form akin to cuplo], F., desire.— Masc. (personified), Cupid (the god of desire).

cupīdus, -a, -um, [noun stem akin to cuplo + dūs], adj., eager, desirous, longing (for), fond of ambitious (for), with a passion (for), overzealous, greedy.

cupīō, -piō, -pītus, -pere, [partly root verb, partly from *cupi- (cf. cupidus)], 3. (and 4) v. a. and n., be eager (for), be anxious, desire (stronger than volo).— With dat., wish well to, be zealous for: quid cupiebas, quid optabas (desire, as a passive longing, wish for, as an active prayer or wish).

cūr (quōr), [perh. for qua re], adv., why (rel. and interr.).

cūra, -ae, [for *cavira, akin to caveo], F., care, anxiety, attention.

cūriā, -ae, [prob. akin to Quiria], F., the meeting-place of the old aristocracy of Rome.— Hence, a senate-house.— Esp., the curia Hostilia on the Forum.

Cūriō, -onis, [curia + o (priest of a curia)], M., a Roman family name.— Esp., C. Scribonius Curio, a friend of Cicero and a supporter of the Manilian law.

cūriōsus, -a, -um, [curia (cf. in-curia) + osus], adj., curious, prying.

cūro, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [cura], I. v. a. and n., take care, treat (medically).— With gerundive, cause (to be done), have (done): curare ut (see that, take care that).

currículum, -i, [from unc. stem akin to curro and currus, cf. vehiculum], N., a course, a running.

currō, curcurri, cursurus, currere, [? for *curso], 3. v. n., run.

currus, -ūs, [√cur (?) + us, cf. curro], M., a chariot.— Esp., a triumphal chariot.

cursus, -ūsus, [√cur (?) + tus, cf. curro], M., a running, running, speed, a run (in concrete sense), a course (space or direction run), a voyage, a career: celeritas et cursus (activity, as a quality, speedy passage, as the result accomplished); cursus sceleris (fig. as in English); quemcunque fortuna dederit (whatever wanderings); oratio- nis (flow).

curūlla, -e, [prob. curr + lia], adj., (of a chariot?).— Esp., sella curulis (the ivory chair of magistrates at Rome).

custōdia, -ae, [custod + ia], F., custody, guard (state of being guarded).— Plur. (concretely), guards, keepers.

custōdiō, -ivi, (-iī),-itūs, -ire, [custod- (as if custodi-)], 4. v. a. and abs. (as if n.), guard, do guard duty.

custōs, -ōdis, [unc. stem + dis (cf. merces, palus)], c., a guard, a watchman, a keeper, a guardian.

Cyρus, -i, [Kūpos], M., a common name among the Greeks.— Esp., an architect or builder employed by Clodius.

Cyzleēnus, -a, -um, [Kūkēnos], adj., of Cysicum (a city of Mysia, on the Propontis).— Plur., the people of the city.
Vocabulary.

D.

d., see a. d.
D [half of Φ, ClO = M], 500.
D., abbrev. for Decimus.

damnātīō, -onis, [damnātio], F., a finding guilty, a conviction.

damnō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [damnō-], I. v. a., (fine), find guilty, condemn, convict.

dē [unc. case-form of pron. stem DA (in idem, dum)], prep with abl., (down, only in comp. as adv.), down from, off from, away from. — Hence, qua de causa (for which reason); de aliquo meroer (deserve well or ill of; properly win from); de consilio (by, cf. ex); multa de nocte (late at night). — Esp. in partitive sense, out of, of: pauci de nostris. — Also (cf. Eng. of), about, of (about), in regard to, concerning, for: de regno despare; nihil de bello timere (have no fear of war); contendere, dimicare (about, for); triumphare (triumph over, triumph for a victory over); quid de te futurum est (what will become of you); de majestate (for); de improviso (of a sudden); de industria (on purpose). — In comp., down, off, away, through (and be done with).

da, ae, [F. of deus], F., a goddess. — Esp., Bona dea (see bona).

dēbeō, -bui, -bitus, -bēre, [dehabeo], 2. v. a., (have off of one's possessions), owe, be bound, ought, cannot help, should, be under obligation. — Pass., be due, be owing: non debēo (have no right); omnia debere (be bound to do everything). — debitus, -a, -um, p.p. as adj., due, deserved.

dēbillis, -e, [dehabilis], adj., weak, feeble, helpless, enfeebled.

dēbilītō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [debilī- (through intermediate stem)], I. v. a., cripple, weaken, enfeebles, break down (in health, etc.). — Fig., overcome, paralyse.

dēcēdō, -cessī, -cessūrus, -cessere, [dec- CDCO], 3. v. n., (make away off, cf. cedo), retire, withdraw, withdraw from, shun. — Esp. (from life), die: de officio (sacrifice, abandon); de jure (yield, give up).

decem [?], indecl. adj., ten.

December, -bris, -bre, [decem + unc. term, cf. saluber], adj., (tenth?). — Esp., of December.

decempeda, -ae, [decem-peda (F. of pedus?)], F., a ten-foot pole, a measure (of ten feet).

dēcernō, -crēvi, -crētus, -cernere, [de-cerno], 3. v. a. and n., (decide off, so as to clear away), decide, determine, decree, order (as a result of determination), vote (of a consulting body, or of a single member of it).

dēcerpō, -cerpsī, -cerptus, -cerpere, [de-carpo], 3. v. a., pluck off. — Fig., detract, take away.

dēcertō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [decerto], I. v. a. and n., contend (so as to close the contest), decide the issue, try the issue (of war), carry on war, fight (a general engagement): de fortunis descartari (one's fortunes are at stake).

dēcessus, -sūs, [dec-cessus, cf. decedo and Incessus], M., withdrawal, departure.

decet, -uit, no p.p., -ère, [?, cf. decus], 2. v. imper., it is fitting, it is becoming, it becomes.

decimus (decu-), -a, -um, [stem of decem + mus], adj., the tenth. — Esp., Decimus, as a Roman prænomen. — Fem., decuma (sc. para), a tithe (of the produce of land let by the state on shares).

dēclārō, -avi, -atus, -āre, [de-claro], i. v. a., (clear off), make plain, declare, show.

dēclinātiō, -onis, [declinātio], f., a leaning, a side movement.

dēclinō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [de-clino], i. v. a. and n., move aside, avoid (as if by a deviation of the body), elude, flinch.

dēcōctor, -ōris, [de-coctor (cf. decoquo)], m., (one who boils down), a spendthrift.

decorō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [decor-], i. v. a., adorn, embellish. — Fig., honor, praise.

dēcrētum, -i, [prop. n. of decretus], n., a decree, a decision, resolution.

decūma, see decimus.

decuria, -ae, [decem + unc. term. (cf. centuria)], f., a decury (a division of ten men of the original Roman heads of families, also more generally of cavalry and other bodies).

decurīō, -onis, [decuria+ō], m., a president of a decury, a decurion. — Also, a member of the senate in a provincial town, a provincial senator.

decurīō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [decuria-], i. v. a., divide into decuries.

decus, -oris, [dec- (as root of decept) + us], n., an ornament, an embellishment. — Fig., an honor.

dēdecus, -oris, [de-decus], n., a disgrace, dishonor, a stain.

dēdeco, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [de-dico], i. v. a., dedicate, devote.

dēdītiō, -onis, [de-datio, cf. dedo], f., surrender: spe s dēdictionis (hope that one’s surrender would be received).

dēdō, -didi, -ditus, -dere, [de-dō], 3. v. a., give over, surrender, give up. — In pass. or with reflex., surrender one’s self, submit: aures (listen to).

dēducō, -dūxī, -ductus, -dūcere, [de-duco], 3. v. a., lead down or off, lead away, withdraw, draw off (praesidia), take away (of men), bring away, lead (from one place to another), bring (into a situation). — Fig., induce, bring, lead. — Esp. of ships, launch (draw down); of women, marry (used of the man); of things, bring, draw, turn. So, raise (a man to fortune): rem huc (bring); de fide (seduce); de sententia (dissuade); de lenitate (drive); coloniam (plant); servos ex Apennino (bring down).

dēfatigātiō, see defetigatio.

dēfatigō, see defetigo.

dēfendō, -endi, -ensus, -endere, [de-fendo], 3. v. a., ward off, defend one’s self against. — Also, with changed relation, defend, protect, maintain (a cause), fight for.

dēfensō, -onis, [de-fensio, cf. defendo], f., a defence.

dēfensor, -ōris, [de-fensor, cf. defendo], m., a defender: necis (a preventer).

dēferō, -tuli, -lātus, -ferre, [de-fero], irr. v. a., carry down, carry away, bring, land (of ships). — Pass., be borne down or on, drift (of ships), turn aside: delati in scrobis (falling). — Fig., confer upon, put in one’s hands, report, lay before, devote: nomen alienius (accuse one); studium (tender).

dēfessus, -a, -um, p.p. of defetiscor.

dēfetisgātiō (dē-fat-), -onis, [defatigatio], f., exhaustion.
dēfectīgātus, -a, -um, p.p. of dēfectīgo.

dēfectīgio (dēfat-), -āvī, -ātus, -āre, [de-fatīgo], i. v. a., wear out, exhaust, worry, tire out.

dēfectāscor, -essus, -etsi, [de-factāscor], 3. v. dep., crack open. — Fig., become exhausted. — dēfessus, -a, -um, p.p. as adj., exhausted, worn out, wearied: accusatio (grown stale).

dēfectīō, -eci, -ectus, -ecerē, [defactīo], 3. v. a. and n., fail, fall away, revolt, fall off, abandon (with ab).

dēfigō, -ēxi, -ēxus, -ēgere, [de-figō], 3. v. a., fix (in or on down), plant, set, fasten, drive down: in oculis flagiōna (set before); curas (devote).

dēfinīō, -īvi, -ītus, -īre, [de-finīo], 4. v. a., set limits to, fix, appoint, limit, bring to a close, mark out.

dēflagrō, -āvī, -ātus, -āre, [dēflagro], i. v. n., burn up, be consumed: imperium deflagrātum (burned to the ground).

dēfluō, -ēxi, -ēxūrus, -ēuere, [de-fluō], 3. v. n., flow down, flow apart, divide (of a river), fall away.
dēfore, see desum.

dēformō, -āvī, -ātus, -āre, [dēformō], 1. v. a., deform, disfigure.

dēfungō, -unctus, -ungi, [de-fungō], 3. v. dep., perform, finish, be done with, get rid of.

dēgō, dēgī, no p.p., dēgere, [dēgō], 3. v. a., pass, spend.

dēlctō (delctō), -ēcī, -jectus, -icere, [de-jactō], 3. v. a., throw down, keep off, ward off, deprive, keep out (one from a thing), repel, eject, oust.

dēlīn [de-in (cf. deinde)], adv., then, next.

delinde [de-inde], adv., from thence, then, after that, then again.

dēlēcīō, see delicio.

dēlābor, -lapsus, -lābi, [de-labor], 3. v. dep., slip down, slip away: de caelo (fall, descend, come down).

dēlectātīō, -ōnis, [delectā+tio], F., delight, pleasure, enjoyment.

dēlectō, -āvī, -ātus, -āre, [delectō], cf. delicio and allcto, 1. v. a. and n., (allure), delight, please, give pleasure to. — Pass., take delight, delight (in a thing): Graecos delectat (the Greeks take pleasure).

dēlectus (di-), -ēs, [delectus (cf. delligo)], m., a choosing, an enrolment, a levy, a conscription.

dēlenīō, -īvi (-ii), -ētus, -ēre, [de-lēnīo], 4. v. a., soothe, soften, pacify.

dēleō, -ēvi, -ētus, -ēre, [de-ēleō (akin to lino)], 2. v. a., (smear out), blot out, wipe out (of a disgrace). — Fig., annihilate, destroy.

dēliberātīō, -ōnis, [deliberā+tio], F., a deliberation, a discussion, a decision (through deliberation).

dēliberātor, -tōris, [deliberā+tor], m., a deliberator. — Used sarcastically of one who reserves his decision in order to be bribed.

dēliberō, -āvī, -ātus, -āre, [de-libero], 1. v. a. and n., (disentangle?), decide. — Also, discuss, deliberate, weigh.

dēlicētus, -a, -um, [?], perh. p.p. of dēlēco, mean, (or abandon), cf. delicus, deliculus, adj., (“cosseted”?), pampered, luxurious.

dēlīctae, -ārum, [dēlīco- (cf. delicus) + ia], F., plur., (cosseting?), delights, allurements, luxurious pleasures.

dēlictum, -ī, [N. p.p. of delinquo], N., (something left undone), a failure, a fault, a wrong-doing, an offence.
Vocabulary.

déligō, -ävi, -ātus, -āre, [de-ligo], 1. v. a., bind down, fasten, bind, tie up (to a stake).

dēlīgō, -lēgi, -lectus, -ligere, [de-lego], 3. v. a., select, pick out, choose.

dēllinquo, -liqui, -lictus, -linquire, [de-linquo], 3. v. n., fail (in one's duty), do wrong: quid deliqui (what wrong have I done, cognate acc.).

Dēlos, -i, [Δήλος], F., an island in the Aegean.

Delphicus, -a, -um, [Δελφικός], adj., of Delphi (the seat of the most famous worship of Apollo), Delphic: mensa (a table made in the form of a tripod).

dēlubrum, -i, [de-ālubrum (+ brum)], n., an expiatory shrine, a shrine (cf. aedes, a temple generally; templum, a place consecrated by augury; fānum, an oracular (?) shrine).

dēlūdō, -lūsi, -lūsus, -lūdere, [de-lūdo], 3. v. a. and n., deceive, prevaricate.

dēmens, -entis, [dē-mens (cf. amens)], adj., mad, crazy, insane: scelere demens (maddened, etc.).

dēmenter [dement + -er], adv., madly, crazily, senselessly.

dēmentia, -ae, [dementia], F., madness, idocy, utter folly.

dēmergō, -mersi, -mersus, -mergere, [de-mergo], 3. v. a., sink, drown, submerge, plunge.

dēmigrō, -āvi, -āturus, -āre, [de-migro], 1. v. n., move away (change residence), move one's effects, move over.

dēminuo, -uī, -ūtus, -uere, [de-minuo], 3. v. a. and n., diminish, curtail, lessen, detract from: ne quid de summa republica deminueretur (that the supreme power in the state should suffer no diminution).

dēminutūs, -ūs, [de-āminutio, cf. deminuo], F., a diminution, a loss, a sacrifice (of lives, etc.).

dēmittō, -mitsi, -missus, -mittere, [de-mitto], 3. v. a., let go down (cf. mitto), let down, stick down.— In pass. or with reflex., let one's self down, descend, set one's self down.— Fig., despound (se amno), be discouraged.— dēmissus, -a, -um, p.p. as adj., low-hanging (bowed, of the head), downcast (of a person).

dēmōnstrātiō, -onis, [demonstra + tio], F., a pointing out, a showing, a manner of showing.

dēmōnstrō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [demonstrō], 1. v. a., point out, show, state, indicate, mention.

dēmoveō, -mōvi, -mōtus, -movere, [de-moveo], 2. v. a., remove, dislodge: de sententia (shake one in, etc.).

dēmum [acc. of dēmenus (superl. of de), nethermost, last], adv., at last, at length (not before).— Hence, only (not till a certain point is reached, not until).

dēnegō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [dennego], 1. v. a. and n., deny, refuse, say not.

dēnī, -ae, -a, [for decni, decem reduced + nus], adj. plur., ten each, ten (on each side), ten (in sets of ten).

dēnique [tēmenō (de + nus, cf. demum) que], adv., at last. — Of order, finally. — Of preference, at any rate (if no better, etc.): tum denique (not till then, then and then only); hora decima denique (not until, etc.).

dēnotō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [de-noto], 1. v. a., mark out, mark, appoint.

dēnūntiō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [denuntio], 1. v. a., announce (with déprecàtor, -tòris, [déprecàtor, cf. dépector], M., a mediator (to beg off something for somebody).
Vocabulary.

déprecor, -làus, -lùri, [déprecor], I. v. dep., pray to avert something, pray (with accessory notion of relief), beg, beg off, pray for pardon, pray to be spared, resort to prayers, save one's self from by prayers, remove by prayers: quo deprecante (by whose mediation); ad deprecandum valebat (had the force of entreaties).

déprehendò, -hendi, -hensus,
-hendere, [déprehendo], 3. v. a., capture, catch, seize, take possession of.— As in Eng., catch, (come upon), surprise, find, detect, discover: faclum (find, in the sense of catch one at something).—Fig., grasp, comprehend, understand.

déprimò, -pressi, -pressus, -primer, [dé-primo], 3. v. a., press down, sink.

dépromô, -prompsi, -promptus,
-pròmère, [dé-promo], 3. v. a., draw out, appropriate.

dépugnò, -ávi, -átus, -äre, [dé-pugno], I.v.n., fight out (decisively), resist with arms (so as to decide the issue).

dérélquò, -liqui, -luctus, -linquere, [dé-relinquo], 3. v. a., leave behind, abandon.

dérivò, -ávi, -átus, -äre, [perh. immediately fr. dé-rivus, prob. through adj.-stem], I. v. a., draw off (water), divert: crimen (shift upon another).

dérógò, -ávi, -átus, -äre, [dé-rogò, in its political sense], I. v. a., take away, withdraw.

déscendò, -scendi, -scendésurus,
-scendere, [dé-scando], 3.v.n., climb down, descend.—Fig., resort to, have recourse to, adopt: \textit{ad accusandum} (resort to a prosecution). — Esp., come down to the Forum (from the hills on which the Romans lived, cf. "go down town.
Vocabulary.

\textit{dēscēribō}, -scripsī, -scriptus, -scribere, [\textit{de-scribo}], 3. v. a., write down, set down (in writing), mark out, map out, describe, draw up (jur), reduce to a system.

\textit{dēsiderium}, -i, [\textit{?}], perh. \textit{tdesiderō} + ium (cf. \textit{desidero}), N., longing for, desire (of something lost), grief for loss (of anything).

\textit{dēsiderō}, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [\textit{?}, perh. \textit{desidero}, cf. \textit{considero}], 1. v. a., feel the want of, desire, miss, need, regret the loss of, lose (of soldiers).

— Pass., be missing (be lost): \textit{desiderat neminem (has not lost a man)}.

\textit{dēsīdia}, -iae, [\textit{desid}- (stem of deses, de-\textit{SED}) + ia], f., idleness, sloth.

\textit{dēsillō}, -siluī, -sultus, -silire, [\textit{desalio}], 4. v. n., leap down, leap (down), jump overboard: \textit{de rheda} (jump out, spring out).

\textit{dēsinō}, -sīvi (-sī), -situs, -sinere, [\textit{desino}], 3. v. a. and n., leave off, desist, cease.

\textit{dēsistō}, -stiti, -stiusus, -sistere, [\textit{de-sisto}], 3. v. n., stand off, cease, stop, desist from, abandon.

\textit{dēspērō}, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [\textit{despero}], 1. v. a. and n., cease to hope, despair, despair of. — \textit{dēspērātus}, -a, -um, as passive, despaired of.

— Also as adj., (hopeless?, perh. orig. despaired of), hence desperate. — \textit{dēspērandus}, -a, -um, fut. p.p., to be despaired of.

\textit{dēsplicō}, -spēxi, -spectus, -spicere, [\textit{de-specio}], 3. v. a. and n., look down, look down upon, look away. — Fig. (cf. Eng. equivalent), look down upon, despise, express one's contempt for.

\textit{dēstringō}, -strinxī, -strictus, -stringere, [\textit{de-stringo}], 3. v. a., strip off. — Also (cf. \textit{despollo}), strip, draw (of swords, stripping them of their scabbards).

\textit{dēsum}, -fui, -futūrus, -esse, [\textit{desum}], irr. v. n., (be away), be wanting, be lacking, fail. — Esp., fail to do one's duty by, etc. — Often, lack (changing relation of subj. and following dat.), be without, not have.

\textit{dētērreō}, -teruī, -teritus, -terrēre, [\textit{de-terreo}], 2. v. a., frighten off, deter, prevent (esp. by threats, but also generally).

\textit{dētestor}, -ātus, -āri, [\textit{de-testor}], 1. v. a., (call the gods to witness to prevent something), entreat (from a thing), remove by protest (call the gods to witness to avoid).

\textit{dētractō}, -trectō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [\textit{de-tracto}], 1. v. a., (hold off from one's self), avoid, shun.

\textit{dētrahō}, -trāxi, -tractus, -trahere, [\textit{de-traho}], 3. v. a., drag off, tear.
off, snatch (away). — With less violence, take away, take off, withdraw (with no violence at all).

détrectō, see detracto.

détrimentum, -i, [de- + trimentum (tri- in tere + mentum), cf. detero], N., (a rubbing off), loss, harm, injury. — Esp., defeat, disaster.

deus, -i, [akin to divus, Jovis, dies], M., a god. — Also, in accordance with ancient ideas, of a statue, in adjurations: di boni (good heavens); per deos immortales (for heaven's sake, heaven help us).

dēvehō, -vēxi, -vectus, -vehere, [de-vehō], 3. v. a., carry away, bring (away, e.g. on horseback), bring down (esp. by vessel).

dēvertō, -verti, -versus, -vertere, [de-verto], 3. v. a. and n., turn away, turn aside, turn off (the road to stop by the way), stop (turning aside from the way).

dēvincīō, -vīnxī, -vinctus, -vincere, [de-vincio], 4. v. a., bind down, bind, attach, firmly attach.

dēvincō, -vīci, -victus, -vincere, [de-vincō], 3. v. a., conquer (so as to prostrate), subdue (entirely).

dēvitō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [de-vīto], 1. v. a., avoid, shun, escape.

dēvocō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [de-vocō], 1. v. a., call down (or away).

— Esp., fig., invite, bring.

dēvōrō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [de-vōro], 1. v. a., swallow up, devour, gulp down: verbum (eagerly devour).

dēvoćeō, -vōvi, -vōtus, -vōvere, [de-voćeō], 2. v. a., vow (away). — Less exactly, devote, consecrate.

dexter, -tera (-tra), -terum (-trum) [unc. stem (perh. akin to digitus?) + terus], adj., right (on the right hand). — dextra, F., (sc. manus), the right hand (esp. used as a pledge of faith, as with us).

Diāna, -ae, [prob. F. of Janus (cf. Διόνυς)], F., a divinity of the Romans entirely identified with the Greek Artemis, the goddess of the chase and patroness of celibacy.

dicē, dixi, dicitus, dicere, [d dicē in dico and -dica], 3. v. a. and n., (point out,? cf. Gr. διδόμενον), say, tell, speak, name, speak of, mention.

— Esp., with authority, name, appoint, fix: jus (administer, cf. dico); sententiam (give, express).

— Special uses: dicunt (they say); causam dicere (plead one's cause, hence be tried, be brought to trial); facultas dicendi (power of oratory); dixi (I have done); incredibile dictu (incredible); quid dicam? (what shall I call it? why should I speak? what shall I say?); ad dicendum (for addressing the people); diem dicere (bring a charge, before the people).

dictātor, -tōris, [dictā + to], M., a dictator (a Roman magistrate appointed in times of danger by the highest existing officer, and possessing absolute power). — Also, a similar officer in a municipal town.

dictātura, -ae, [dictā + tura (i.e. tdictatu + ra, cf. figura)], F., the office of dictator, a dictatorship.

dictiō, -ōnis, [dico (as root of dico) + tio], F., a speaking, a pleading (cf. dico): causae (pleading one's cause, trial); juris (administration).

dictitō, -āvi, no p.p., -āre, [akin to dico, form unc., perh. ddictitā (dictō + ta)], 1. v. a., repeat, keep saying.

dictum, -ī, [N. p.p. of dico as Vocabulary.

\textit{dīnes}, -ēi, [prob. for dīves, \textit{dyu} + as], M. (rarely F. in some uses), a day (in all Eng. senses). — Also, time: in \textit{dies} (from day to day, with idea of increase or diminution); illis ipsis diebus \textit{at that very time}; noctes diesque \textit{night and day}; diem dicere (see dīco).

differē, distulī, dilātus, differre, [dīs-fero], irr. v. a. and n., bear apart, spread. — Also, postpone, defer, put off, differ.
difficulis, -ē, [dīs-facilis], adj., not easy, difficult.
difficultās -tātis, [dīflīcīlī-(weakened) + tās], F., difficulty, trouble, difficult circumstances.
diffīrō, -fus sum, -fidere, [dīs-fido], 3. v. n., distrust, not have confidence (in).
diffluō, -fluī, no p.p., -fluere, [dīs-fluō], 3. v. n., flow apart, become loose, become lax, run wild.
digitus, -ī, [?], M., a finger.
dignitās, -tātis, [dignō + tās], F., worthiness, worth, dignity, prestige, position (superior), claims (founded on worth), advancement (as the consequence of worthiness), self-respect, the dignity of one’s position.
dignus, -a, -um, [?], adj., worthy, deserving.
dijudicō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [dis-judico], 1. v. a. and n., decide (between two).
dijunctīō, -ōnis, [dis-junctio (cf. dljungō)], F., a separation.
dijungō (dlj-), -junxi, -junctus, -jungere, [dis-jungō], 3. v. a., disjoin, separate, divide.
dilābor, -lāpus, -lāhī, [dis-labor], 3. v. dep., glide apart, slip away, fall away.
dilacerō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [dīlacerō], 1. v. a., tear asunder, tear in pieces.
dilaniō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [dis-lanio], 1. v. a., tear in pieces.
dilātīō, -ōnis, [dis-latio], F., a postponement, an adjournment.
dilrectus (dēl-), -tus, [dis-tlectus, cf. dllingo], M., a choosing, a levy, a conscription.
dilīgens, -entis, p. of dllīgo, as adj., diligent, painstaking, careful.
diligenter [diligent + ter], adv., carefully, with care, with exactness, exactly, with pains, scrupulously.
dilligentia, -ae, [diligent + ia], F., care, pains, painstaking, diligence: remittere (cease to take pains, take less care).
dillīgo, -lēxi, -lēctus, -ligere, [dis-lego], 3. v. a., (choose out), love, be fond of. — See also dilljenis.
diluculum, -i, [di-]luculum (lucu + lus)], N., daybreak, dawn.
dilūō, -lūi, -lūtus, -luere, [dis-luo], 3. v. a. and n., dissolve away, dissolve. — Fig., refuse (tech. term).
dimicātiō, -ōnis, [dimicā-tio], F., fighting, a contest, a struggle.
dimicō, -āvi, -āurus, -āre, [dis-mico], 1. v. n., (brandish swords to decide a contest?), fight (a decisive battle), risk an engagement, contend.
diminuō, see deminuo.
dimmittō, -mīsi, -missus, -mittere, [dis-mitto], 3. v. a., let go away, let slip, let pass, let go, give up, relinquish, abandon: oppugnārem (raise); victoriae (let go, on purpose). — Also, send in different directions, send about, despatch, detail, disband, dismiss, adjourn, discharge.
direptīō, -ōnis, [dis-tractor, cf. diripio], v., plundering, plunder.
direptor, -ōris, [dis-raptor, cf. diripio], m., a robber, a plunderer.
diripīō, -ripui, -reptus, -ripere, [dis-rapio], 3. v. a., seize (in different directions), plunder, pillage.
dis-, di- (dir-), [akin to duo?], insep. prep. (adv.), in comp., asunder, in different directions. Cf. discendo, discerno, dirimo, diffundo.

Dis, Ditis, [akin to dives, as the earth is the source of riches], m., Pluto (the god of the underworld, and so of death).
discēdō, -cēsī, -cēsūrus, -cēdere, [dis-cedo], 3. v. n., withdraw, depart, retire, leave (with ab), go away.
discertātīō, -ōnis, [discertā + tio], F., a contest, a contention, a discussion.
discertātor, -ōris, [discertā- (stem of discerto) + tor], m., a judge, an arbiter.
discerto, -āvi, -āitus, āre, [discapto], 1. v. a., discuss, consider and decide, decide.

discernō, -crēvī, -crētus, -cernere, [dis-cerno], 3. v. a., separate, distinguish.
discessīō, -ōnis, [discessio, cf. discendo], F., a departure, a withdrawal, a division (as in Parliament), a vote: contionis (a division of opinion in, etc.); discussionem facere (take a vote).
discussus, -sūs, [dis-cessus, cf. discedo], m., a departure, a withdrawal.
discidium, -ī, [dis-ssidium (scid + ium)], N., a separation, a dissension.
disciplina, -ae, [discipulō- (reduced) + ina, cf. rapina], F., (pupilage?), discipline, instruction, training, a system (of doctrine, etc.), a course of instruction, education, a school (fig. as in Eng.): pueritia disciplinae (the studies of childhood); navalis (skill, as the result of discipline); majorum (strict conduct).
discipulus, -i, [akin to disco], m., a pupil.
discūdō, -clūsī, -clūsus, -clūdere, [dis-claudo], 3. v. a., shut apart, keep apart, separate, divide.

discīō, -didicī, discītūrus, discīere, [for *dlicēo (di + sco)], 3. v. a. and n., learn.
discolor, -ōris, [dis-color], adj., particolored, different-colored.
discordia, -ae, [discord + ia, cf. concursa], F., dissension, discord, disagreement.
discrīmen, -inis, [dis-crimen, cf. discerno], N., a separation, a decision. Hence, a moment of decision, a crisis, critical condition, danger, peril, a critical moment, a turning-point of one’s fortunes.
disjungō, -junxi, -junctus, -jungere, [dis-jungo], 3. v. a., disunite, separate: disjunctissimus (very far distant, very widely separated).
dispersō, -persi, -persus, -persgere, [dis-spargo], 3. v. a., scatter, disperse, separate.
dispersē [old abl. of dispersus], adv., in different places, separately.
dispersīō, -īvi, -īvus, -īre, also dispersīōr, as dep., [dispersīō], 4. v. a. and dep., divide, distribute.
displicēō, -ūī, -ūtus, -āre, [dis-placeo], 2. v. n., displease, be unsatisfactory, be disliked by.
disputō, -āvi, -āitus, āre, [dis-puto], 1. v. n. and a., discut (cf. puto), argue.
Vocabulary.

dissemintō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [dis-seminō], i. v. a., scatter, sow widely, spread, disseminate.

dissensīō, -onis, [dis-sensio (cf. dissentio)], v., difference of opinion, disagreement, dissonance.

dissentīō, -sensi, -sensūrus, -sentire, [dis-sentīo], a. v. n., differ in opinion, dissent, differ, be at variance.

dissideō, -sēdi, no p.p., -sidēre, [dis-sedēre], 2. v. n., sit apart.—Hence, disagree, have a dissonance.

dissimīns, -e, [dis-similīns], adj., unlike, different, various.

dissimillūdō, -inis, [dis-simīlītudo], r., unlikeness, unlike nature, different nature.

dissimulō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [dis-simulo], i. v. a. and n., (pretend something is not), conceal (what is), dissemble, conceal the fact that, pretend not to.

dissipō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [dis-sipō, throw], i. v. a., scatter, disperse, strew, spread abroad: dissipatōs congrægarunt (the scattered people).

dissolutiū, -onis, [dis-solutio, cf. dissolvo], r., a dissolving, abolition.

dissolvō, -solvi, -solutus, -solvere, [dis-solvo], 3. v. a., unloose, relax, separate.—dissolutus, -a, -um, p.p. as adj., lax, unrestrained, arbitrary (as unrestrained by considerations of policy or mercy).

distinēō, -tinēi, -tentus, -tinēre, [dis-teneō], 2. v. a., keep apart, hold asunder, keep from uniting, cut off (in military sense), isolate, distract.

distrāhō, -trāxi, -trāctus, -trahere [dis-traho], 3. v. a., drag asunder, tear asunder, separate.—Hence, distract, divide: distractae sententiae (widely divergent).

distribuo, -buī, -buītus, -buere, [dis-trībuo], 3. v. a., assign (to several), distribute, divide.

distringō, -strinxī, -strictus, stringere, [dis-stringo], 3. v. a., stretch apart, distract, engage, occupy.

disturbō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [dis-turbo], 1. v. a., drive away in confusion: contionem (break up).

distissimus, -a, -um, superlat. of dives.

dīlū, [prob. acc. of stem akin to dies], adv., for a time, a long time, for some time, long: tam dī (so long); quam dī (how long, as long); dītius (any longer).

dīturnus, -a, -um, [dīus- (akin to dīu and dies) + nus], adj., of the day, daily (as opposed to nightly): fur (by night).

dīus [akin to dīvus], m., only in nom. in phrase me dīus fīdīus (Heaven help me, as sure as I live, good heavens!).

diūturnitās, -ātis, [diūturnus + tas], r., length of time, long continuance, length (in time).

diūturnus, -a, -um, [diū + turnus, cf. hesternus], adj., long continued, long (in time); minus diūturna vita (shorter).

divellē, -vellī, -vulsum, -vellere, [dis-vello], 3. v. a., tear apart, rend asunder, tear (from).

diversus, -a, -um, p.p. of divertō.

divertō, -vertī, -versus, -vertere, [dis-vertō], 3. v. a. and n., turn aside (or apart), separate.—diversus, -a, -um, p.p. as adj., separate, distant, diverse, different, various.

dives, -itis, [?], adj., rich.

divitīdō, -visī, -visus, -videre, [dis-vidō, √vidh(?), cf. viduus], 3.v. a.
Vocabulary.

divide, separate, distribute. — divide, — sus, -a, -um, p.p. as adj., divided.

divinitus, [divino + tus, cf. caelitus], adv., from heaven, divinely, providentially, by the gods.

divino, -avi, -atus, -are, [divino-], 1. v. a., prophesy, conjecture, foresee, imagine (as likely to happen).

divinus, -a, -um, [divo- (as if divi) + nus], adj., of the gods, divine, providential, superhuman, more than human, transcendent, god-like: res divinae (religious institutions).

divisior, -oris, [dis-visor, cf. dividio], m., a distributer, a distributing agent, an agent (for bribery).

divitiae, -arum, [divit + ia], f. plur., wealth, riches.

1. do, dedi, datus, dare, [√da, cf. do-], 1. v. a., give, bestow, grant, furnish, vouchsafe, present, offer: excusationem (afford); cognitorem (furnish, bring forward); literas (write). — See also opera.

2. do [√dea, place, cf. tóma], confounded with 1. do, but appearing in comp., place, put.

doceo, docui, doctus, docere, [unc. formation akin to dico and disco], 2. v. a., teach, show, inform, represent, state. — doctus, -a, -um, p.p. as adj., learned, educated, cultivated, skilful.

docilitas, -atis, [docili- + tas], F., teachableness, aptness, capability (of learning).

doctrina, -ae, [doctor + ina (cf. medicina)], F., teaching, systematic instruction, education, training, study (changing the point of view), learning.

documentum, -i, [docu- (?) (as stem of doceo) + mentum], N., a means of teaching, a proof, a warning, an example.

Dolabella, -ae, [dolabra + ina, "little hatchet"], M. (orig. F.), a Roman family name. — Esp.: 1. Cn. Dolabella, in command of Cilicia in B.C. 80, under whom Verres was "legatus"; 2. P. Cornelius Dolabella, Cicero's son-in-law, who was Antony's colleague in the consulship, B.C. 44.

doleo, doli, doliurus, dolere, [perh. dol- (stem of dolus)], 2.v.n., feel pain, suffer. — Esp. mentally, be pained, grieved.

dolor, -oris, [dol- (as root of doleo) + or], m., pain (physical or mental), suffering, distress, indignation, chagrin, vexation, sense of injury: magnolo dolore ferre (be very indignant, feel much chagrin); magnus esse dolori (to be a great annoyance or sorrow); dolor et crepitus plagarum (cries of pain, etc.).

domesticus, -a, -um, [domo- (as if domes-, cf. modestus) + icus], adj., (of the house), of one's home, one's own, at home. — Hence, domestic, internal, intestine, within the state or city, private: dolor (personal); unus (at one's house).

domicellum, -i, [perh. domo + cellium (fr. root of colo)], N., an abode, a house, a dwelling-place, a house (as a permanent home), a residence (in a legal sense): imperium (seat).

domina, -ae, [F. of dominus], F., a mistress.

dominatio, -onis, [dominā + tio], F., mastery, control, tyranny, power (illegal or abnormal).

dominor, -atus, -ari, [dominō-], 1. v. dep., be master, rule, lord & over, tyrannise, dominate.
Vocabulary.

dominus, -i, [†domō (ruling, cf. Gr. διαυγός + nus], M., a master, an owner: esse (have control).

Domitius, -i, [domitō (reduced) + ius], M., a Roman gentile name. — Esp., Luctus Domitius Athenobarbus, consul in B.C. 54.

donitor, -tōris, [domi- (as stem of domo) + tor], M., a tamer, a queller.

donūs, -ōi, -ōius, -āre, [†domō- (cf. dominus)], i.v.a., tame, quell, subdue, master.

domus, -i (-iūs), [√DOM (build?) + us (-os and -us)], F., a house, a home, a house (a family): domi (at home); domum (home, to one’s home); domo (from home); domo exitre (go away, emigrate).

donātūlō, -ōnis, [donā + tio], F., a gift, a donation, a giving away.

donōs, -ōi, -ōius, -āre, [donō-], i.v.a., present, give (as a gift). — Also, honor with a gift, present (one with a thing); civitate aliquem donare (honor one with, etc., give one the rights of citizenship).

donum, -i, [√DA + nus], N., a gift.

dormiō, -ūvi (ji), -itum (supine), [prob. from noun stem], 4. v. n. sleep.

Drūsus, -i, [?], M., a Roman family name. — Esp., M. Livius Drūsus, tribune B.C. 91, who attempted some reform in favor of the Italians. He was assassinated by his opponents.

dubitātō, -ōnis, [dubitā- (stem of dubito) + tio], F., doubt, hesitation, question.

dubitō, -āvi, -āērus, -āre, [†dubitō- (partic. of lost verb dubō?, cf. dubitus)], i.v.n., doubt, have doubt, be in doubt, feel doubtful. — Also (ab-solutely, or with inf., rarely quīn), hesitate, feel hesitation, vacillate.

dubius, -a, -um, [†dubō (duō + bus, cf. superbus and dubito) + ius], adj., doubtful: est dubium (there is doubt, it is doubtful).

ducenti, -ae, -a, [duō-centi (plur. of centum)], adj., two hundred.

dūcō, dūxī, ductus, dūcere, [√DUC (in dux)], 3. v.a., lead, draw, bring (of living things), conduct, drag. — Esp. of a general, lead, march. — With (or without) in matrimonium, marry (of the man). — Fig., prolong, drag out, attract. — As mercantile word, and so fig., reckon, consider, regard: rationem (take account, also in fig. sense); spiritum (draw breath); causa ductur (springs); pueros (have with one); parietem (make, carry, run).

ductus, -ūs, [√DUC + tus], M., lead, command: suo ductu (in actual command, opposed to acting by a subordinate).

dūdum, see jamdudum.

duint, see do.

dulcedō, -dīnis, [dulē + edo], R., sweetness, charm.

dulcis, -e, [?], adj., sweet (also fig.): aqua (fresh).

dum [pron. √DA, prob. acc., et tum], conj. (orig. adv.), at that time. — Also, while, so long as. — Hence, till, until: dummodo, or separate (only so long, provided). — With negatives, yet, as yet: tam diu dum (so long as).

dummodo, see dum.

dumtaxat [dum taxat], adv., only, merely, at any rate.

duō, -ae, -ō, [dual, of stem †dvō, cf. bis], adj., two.

duodecim [duo-decem], indecl. adj., twelve.
duodecimus, -a, -um, [duo-decimus], adj., twelfth.

duplīcō, -āvī, -ātus, -āre, [duplīc-], 1. v. a., double, increase twofold.

dūrē [old abl. of dūrus], adv., hardly, harshly.

dūrus, -a, -um, [?], adj., hard. — Fig., hard, severe, difficult, harsh, rough.

duuvirātus, -tūs, [duuvir-ātus, cf. senatus], M., the office of duumvir (a magistrate of provincial towns corresponding to the consuls).

dux, ducis, [duc as stem], M. and F., a leader, a guide, a commander: Pompeio duce (under the command of, etc.); ducibus dis (under the guidance of, etc.).

E. ē, see ex.

ēā [instr. or abl. of ēa], adv., this way, that way, thus, there.

ēbriōsus, -a, -um, [ēbriō+osus], adj., given to drinking, a toper.

ēbrīus, -a, -um, [?], adj., drunk.

ēbūr, -ōris, [prob. Phenician?], N., ivory.

eece, [en-oe, cf. hēc], interj., lo, behold.

ecfr, see eff.

ecquīs (-quī), -qua, -quid (-quod), [en-quīs], interrog. pron., is (does, etc.) any one? any (in an interrog. sentence). — Esp., ecquīd, n. acc. as adv., at all.

ecuules (equu-), -ī, [equo+leus], M., a little horse. — Esp., as an instrument of torture, the horse.

ēdīcō, -dīxī, -dictus, -dicere, [ex-dīco], 3. v. a., issue an edict, proclaim, order.

ēdīctum, -ī, [n. p.p. of edīco], n., an edict, an order, a proclamation:

edīctum praetoris (an order of court, an execution).

ēdō, -dīdi, -ditus, -dere, [ex-do], 3. v. a., put forth, give forth, publish. — Also, raise up. — ēditus, -a, -um, p.p. as adj., elevated, raised, high, lofty.

ēdoceō, -docuí, -doctus, -docere, [ex-doceō], 2. v. a., show forth, explain, inform.

ēducātīō, -onis, [educā+tio], F., rearing, training, education.

ēducō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre [ēduco (cf. redux)], 1. v. a., rear, train, bring up.

ēduēcō, -dūxī, -ductus, -dūcere, [ex-duco], 3. v. a., lead out, lead forth, draw (a sword), bring out, march out (an army), take out.

effeminō (ecf.-), -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [ex-temino, or perhaps ūfemīnō or -ū], in either case from femina], 1. v. a., make into a woman. — Less exactly, (make like a woman), enervate, weaken. — effeminatus, -a, -um, p.p. as adj., effeminate, unmanly.

effferō (ecf.), extuli, ēlātus, efferre, [ex-fēro], irr. v. a., carry out, bring out, carry away. — Less exactly and fig., spread abroad, make known, publish abroad, puff up, elate (cf. Eng. “carried away”). — Also (cf. edo), raise up, exul, praise.

efficiēō (ecf.), -feci, -fectus, -ficere, [ex-facio], 3. v. a., make out, make, enable, accomplish, cause, produce, cause to be, make into, make out, bring about. — Esp. with ut or ne, bring it about that, cause (to be, or not to be), make (a thing to be, etc.).

effigies (ecf.-), -ī, [ex-figies (cf. figius)], F., an image, a statue, a portrait, a representation, a counterfeit presentment.
Vocabulary.

effingō (eef-), -finxi, -fectus, -fingere, [ex-fingo], 3. v. a., wipe up, mould, form.

eflāgitō (eef-), -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [ex-flāgitō], 1. v. a., demand earnestly, clamor for, Importunately demand.

eflō (eef-), -flāvi, -flātus, -flāre, [ex-flō], 1. v. a. and n., blow out, breathe forth: animam efflans (drawing the last breath, breathing one’s last).

effrēnātē [old abl. of effrenatus], adv., without restraint.

effrēnātō (eef-), -ōnis, [effrenā + tio], r., unbridled impulse.

effrēnō (eef-), -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [effrenō-], 1. v. a., unbridle, let loose.
— Esp., effrēnātus, -a, -um, p.p. as adj., unbridled, un restrained.

effūgitō (eef-) -fugi, -fugitūrus, -fugere, [ex-fugio], 3. v. a. and n., escape, flee (absolutely), fly from, get rid of, avoid.

effugium (eef-), -i, [ex-fugium, cf. effugio and refugium], N., a way of escape, an escape.

effundū (eef-), -fūdi, -fūsus, -fundere [ex-fundo], 3. v. a., pour out, shed: spiritum (breathe out).

effūsē (eef-) [old abl. of effusus], adv., profusely.

égēns, pres. p. of egeo.

egestā{s}, -tātis, [unc. stem (perh. egent- + tas)], r., poverty, destitution, want, need.

égō, mei, [cf. Eng. I], pron., I (me, etc.). — egomet, see -met. — Plur., nos, we, us, etc. — Often of one person, I.

ägredlor, -gressus, -redi, [ex-gradir], 3. v. dep., march out, go out, move beyond.

ägreglē [old abl. of egregius], adv., remarkably, finely, extremely well.

ägregius, -a, -um, [tēgregus (cf. exlex) + ius], adj., out of the common, remarkable, superior, excellent, uncommon, special, noble, very fine.

ēcīō, -jecci, -jectus, -icere, [ex-jacio], 3. v. a., cast out, drive out, expel, cast up (cf. edo). — With reflex., rush out, rush, hasten away. — Fig., disperse, out, turn out. — ējectus, -a, -um, p.p. as adj., cast up on shore, cast away, shipwrecked. ējectus, -a, -um, p.p. of elcio.

ējiciō, see elcio.

ējusmodi (often written separately) [eius modi], as adj. phrase, of this kind, of such a kind, such of a kind, of such a nature, in such a state.

ēlābor, -lapsus, -lābi, [ex-labor], 3. v. dep., slip out, escape, slip.

ēlabōrō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [ex-laboro], 1. v. a. and n., accomplish by toil, work out, effect, strive diligently, spend one’s efforts. — ēlabōrātus, -a, -um, p.p. as adj., wrought out, highly wrought.

ēlegāns, -antis, [pres. p. of tēlego (cf. relego)], adj., fastidious, choice, dainty, nice. — Transf., fine, choice, elegant.

elephantus, -i, [Gr. acc. ἐλέφας], m., an elephant.

ēllīcīō, -licui, -licitus, -licere, [ex-lacio], 3. v. a., entice out, draw out.

ēllōgō, -lēgi, -lēctus, -ligere, [ex-lego], 3. v. a., pick out, select, choose. — ēlēctus, -a, -um, p.p. as adj., picked (troops).
Vocabulary.

eloquentia, -ae, [eloquent+ia],
F., eloquence.
éludō, -ūs, -ūsus, -ūdēre, [exludo], 3. v. a. and n., play out, end (one's play).—Also "play off," parry
(a thrust), avoid, elude.—Fig., mock, be fool, deceive, make sport of,
baffle.—Absolutely, play one's game freely (dodging all opposition).
élūō, -lūi, -lūtus, -lūere, [ex-luo],
3.v.a., wash away, wash out, wash off.
émānō, -āvi, -ātūrus, -āre, [ex-mano], 1. v. n., flow out.—Fig., spread abroad, leak out, get abroad.
émementor, -itus, -īri, [ex-men-tior], 4. v. dep., get up a falsehood, forge a lie.
émergō, -mersi, -mersus, mergere, [ex-mergo], 3. v. a. and n., rise (from under water).—Fig. (of analogous situations), rise, come out of, emerge, get one's head above water.
—émersus, -a, -um, p.p. in act.
sense, emerging, having emerged.
émigrō, -āvi, -ātūrus, -āre, [ex-micro], 1. v. n., remove (permanently), emigrate.—With domo (in same sense).
émineō, -nī, -nīs, -nīre, [exmineo], 2. v. n., stand out, project.
—Fig., radiate (from), appear (in):
ex ore crudelitas (cf. the vulgar "stick out").
émittō, -mīsi, -missus, -mittere, [ex-mitto], 3. v. a., let go, drop,
send out, throw, hurl, discharge.
Pass., or with reflex., rush out: ex urbe vel ejeceimus (expel, as by force); vel emisimus (send out, as
by a mere order).
emō, ēmī, emptus, emere, [-ēm+, orig., take], 3. v. a., (take, only in compounds).—Esp., buy (cf. Eng.
sell, orig. give), purchase: intercessio empta (bribed).
émolumentum, -i, [ex-molimentum, cf. emolior?], N., gain, advantage.
ěmorior, -mori, (-morīri), -mortuus, [ex-morior], 3. (cf.inf.) v. dep., die off, die.
emptīō, -onis, [√em + tio], F.,
a buying, a purchase. [buyer.
emptor, -tōris, [√em + tor], m., a ěnarrō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [ex-narro], 1. v. a., tell, relate, recount.
enim [prob. e (in en, ecce) + nam], adv., really. —Esp., as explanatory, for, but, now: neque enim
(for of course... not); at enim
(but you say, of an objection); et enim (for... you see, for naturally, for you know).
enitor, -nisus (-nixus), -nī, [exnitor], 3. v. dep., struggle out (or up), struggle, strive, exert one's self.
Ennius, ī, [?], m., a Roman gentile name. —Only of Q. Ennius, the father of Roman poetry, born B.C.
240.
ěnumerō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [ex-numero], 1. v. a., count up.
ěō, ivī (īī), ilum, ire, [√i, cf. Gr.
elu, for AYAMI], irr. v. n., go, pass, march: ad saga ire (put on the garb of war, cf. "go into mourning").
ěō [old dat. of īs], adv., thither, there (in sense of thither).—Often translated by more def. expressions in Eng., to the place (where, etc.), on them (it, him, etc.).
ěō (abl.), see īs.
ěōdem [old dat. of idem, cf. eo, thither], adv., to the same place, in the same place (cf. eo), there also:
ěōdem convenire (to the same place);
ěōdem penetrare (there also).
Ephesus, -a, -um, [Ephus], adj., of Ephesus (a famous city of Asia Minor, famous for its temple of Artemis (Diana).—Masc. plur., the Ephesians.

epigramma, -atis, [ἐπιγράμμα], N., an epigram.

epistula (epistola), -ae, [ἐπιστολή], F., a letter.

epor, -ātus, -āri, [epulō-], 1. v. dep., feast, banquet, revel.

epulum, -i (-ae, -ārum), [?], N. and F., a feast, a banquet.

eques, -iitis, [equō + tis (reduced)], M., a horseman, a rider.—Plur., cavalry.—Esp. (as orig. serving on horseback), a knight (one of the moneys class at Rome, next in rank to the senate).

equester, -tris, -tre, [equit+tria], adj. of knights, of cavalry, equestrian.

equidem [ē in en, ecce] -quidem, adv., (particle of asservation), surely, at least, to be sure.—Often untranslatable in Eng. except by emphasis, change of order of words, or some similar device.—Usually only with the first person, I for my part, I certainly: dixi equidem modo (why! I said just now); laudabam equidem (I praised to be sure).

equitātus, -ūs, [equitā + tus], M., cavalry, horse (troops serving on horseback).

equitō, -āvi, -ātum, -āre, [equīt-], 1. v. n., ride, serve in the cavalry.

equus, -i, [√AK + vus, swift], M., a horse.

erga [prob. instr. of same stem as ergō], prep., towards (of feeling and conduct), in behalf of: benevolentia erga aliquem.

ergō (-ō rarely) [unc. form, perh. dat., cf. erga], adv. with gen., for the sake of.—Alone, therefore, then.

ērigō, -ēxi, -rectus, -rigere, [ex-rego], 3. v. a., set up straight (cf. rego), raise up.—Fig., rouse up, restore.—With reflex., get up.—ērectus, -a, -um, p.p. as adj., high, high and straight, roused.

ēripō, -ripui, -reptus, -ripere, [ex-rapio], 3. v. a., snatch away, tear, wrest (a thing from), deprive (one of a thing, changing the relation in Eng.), relieve, rescue, save, extort, rob, take from: erectam vitam ne-giligetis (the taking of life); pudicitiam (violate); se eripere ne, etc. (save one’s self from, etc.).

errātum, -i, [n. p.p. of erro], N., an error, a mistake.

errō, -āvi, -āturus, -āre, [?], 1. v. n., wander, go astray, err, be mistaken, make a mistake.

error, -ōris, [terr- (as if root of erro) + or], M., an error, a mistake.

Eructus, -i, [eruca (?) + ius], M., a Roman gentile name.—Only of the prosecutor against Sex. Roscius.

ēructō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [ē-ructō], 1. v. a., belch forth (lit. and fig.).

ērumpō, -rūpi, -ruptus, -ruptere, [ex-rumpo], 3. v. a. and n., burst out, sally out, make a sally, break forth (with violence), break out (of unexpected events).

escendō, -scendi, -scensus, -scendere, [ex-scando], 3. v. n. (and a.), climb up, ascend, go up.

et [akin to Gr. ἤτη], conj., and, even, also: et... et (both... and).

etiam, see enim.

etiam [et jam], conj., even now, still, even yet, even, also: quin etiam
Vocabulary.

(nay, even); etiam atque etiam (again and again); etiam si (even if, although).

etiam si, see etiam.

Etrūria, -ae, [†Etrus + ia (cf. Etruscus)], v., the country of central Italy north of the Tiber and west of the Appennines.

Etruscus, -a, -um, [†Etrus + cus (cf. Etruria)], adj., of Etruria, Etruscan, Etrurian. — Masc. plur., Etruscans.

etṣi [et si], conj., even if, although, though.

évādō, -vāsi, -vāsūrus, -vādere, [ex-vido], 3. v. n., escape, get away.

évellō, -vellī (-vulsi), -vulsum, -vel-lere, [ex-vello], 3. v. a., tear out.

évventus, -tūs, [cf. eventio], M., an event, an accident.

éversor, -sōris, [ex-versor, cf. everto], M., an overturner.

évertō, -vertī, -versus, -vertere, [ex-verte], 3. v. a., overturn, overthrow, utterly destroy, cut down.

évocātor, -ōris, [ex-vocatōr, cf. evoco], M., one who calls forth, a rallyer (servorum).

évocō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [ex-voco], 1. v. a., call out, call forth, summon, challenge, carry away, invite. — évocātus, -a, -um, p.p. as adj. and subst., veteran (of soldiers who have served their time and are only called out in emergencies), veterans (almost equal volunteers).

évolō, -āvi, -ātūrus, -āre, [ex-volo], 1. v. n., fly out, rush out.

évonū, -uī, -itus, -ere, [ex-vomo], 3. v. a., vomit out, vent, throw off, throw out.

ex (e) [?], adv. (in comp.) and prep., out of (cf. ab, away from), out. — Less exactly, from (lit. and fig.), of (made of): ex alacri erat humilis (from being, etc.). — Hence, after. — Also, on account of, by means of, in pursuance of, in accordance with, according to. — Also, above (raised from). — Also (cf. ab), in, on: una ex parte (on one side); e re publica (for the advantage of the state); ex caede vivunt (on, upon); ex aliqua parte (in some measure).

exaggerō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [ex-aggere], 1. v. a., heap up, enlarge.

exāminō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [ex-amīn- (stem of amāmen, tongue of the balance)], 1. v. a., weigh.

exānimātus, -a, -um, p.p. as adj., out of breath, exhausted, half dead (with fright, etc.), overwhelmed.

exardēscō, -arsi, no p.p. -ardē-scere, [ex-ardeascō], 3. v. n., blaze up. — Fig., become enraged, become excited, burst forth.

exaudīō, -ivi, -itus, -ire, [ex-audio], 4. v. a., hear (from a distance), overhear.

excedō, -cēsi, -cēsūrus, -cēdere, [ex-cedo], 3. v. n., go out, leave (with abl.), withdraw, retire, depart: ex puéris (outgrow one’s boyhood).

excellēns, see excello.

excīdō, -cīdi, no p.p., -cidere, [ex-cădo], 3. v. n., fall out, fall.

excīdō, -cīdi, -cīsus, -cidere, [ex-
Vocabulary.

caedo], 3. v. a., cut out, cut off, break down, raze.

exclūō, -cūī, -cētus, -cēre, [ex-capio], 3. v. a., take off, take up, pick up, receive, catch, take in. — Hence, follow, come after, come next. — Also, take out, reserve, except.

excūtūō, -āvī, -ātus, -āre, [ex-cito, cf. excētō], 1. v. a., call out, rouse, stimulate, induce. — Also, call up (esp. from the dead), raise, stir up, kindle, set in motion.

exclāmō, -āvis, -ātus, -āre, [ex-clamo], 1. v. a. and n., cry out.

exclūdō, -clūī, -clūsus, -clūdere, [ex-claudo], 3. v. a., shut out, cut off (from doing a thing), prevent.

ex cogitō, -āvī, -ātus, -āre, [ex-cogito], 1. v. a., think out, devise, invent.

exo lofty, -coluī, -cultus, -colere, [ex-olo], 3. v. a., cultivate (to some effect), train.

exerctūō, -āvī, -ātus, -āre, [ex-crucio], 1. v. a., torture, torment.

ex cubīae, -ārum, [-t]ex cubō+i-a], F. plur., a watch, sentinels, watchmen, pickets.

excurstūō, -ōnis, [ex-cursio, cf. excurro], F., a sally, a raid, an incursion.

exculsūtūō, -ōnis, [ex-tcausatio, cf. excusō], F., an excuse.

exclūō, -āvī, -ātus, -āre, [ex-tcauso], i. v. a. and n., give as an excuse, make an excuse, excuse one's self. — Also (with change of relation), excuse, excubate.

exemplum, -i, [ex-templum, √em (in emo) + lus (cf. querulus), with parasitic p], N., (something taken out), a sample, a copy, a specimen, a precedent, an example, an illustration: cruelissīmis exemplis (in the most cruel manner).

exō, -āvī (-ii), -itum, -āre, [ex-ēo], irr. v. n., go forth, go out, emigrate, march out, remove, depart, come out, get abroad, be drawn (of lots).

exercētūō, -cūī, -cētus, -cēre, [ex-arcoo], 2. v. a., train, practise, exercise, harass, fatigue: vectigalīa (collect); judicium (preside over).

exercitātūō, -ōnis, [exercitā (stem of exercito) + tio], F., practice, exercise, training: virtūtis (opportunity for the practice of, etc.).

exercitus, -tūs, [as if ex-tarctitus, cf. exercētō], M., (a training). — Concretely, (a body trained or in training), an army (large or small, acting independently), a force.

exhaurīō, -hauī, -haustus, -haurire, [ex-haurio], 4. v. a., drain off.
— Less exactly, carry off, get rid of.

exhibēō, -hibiū, -hibitus, -hibēre, [ex-habeo], 2. v. a., hold out, show, exhibit.

exigō, -ēgī, -ēctus, -igere, [ex-agō], 3. v. a., (lead out), pass, spend, finish, complete. — Also, collect, exact. — Esp., exacta vigilia, etc. (at the end of).

exiguus, -a, -um, [ex-taagus (√ag + uus), cf. exigo], adj., (exact ?), narrow, scanty, small, meagre.

eximīē [old abl. of eximitus], adv., especially, peculiarly, particularly.

eximīus, -a, -um, [ex-temius (√em + ius), cf. eximo], adj., (taken out), exceptional, remarkable, very high, very great, most admirable, very valuable.
Vocabulary.

eximō, ēmī, -emptus, -imere, [ex-emo], 3. v. a., take out (off), take off.
existimātō, -onis, [ex-aestimatio, cf. existimo], F., estimate, opinion, public opinion, less exactly, expectation. — From the other side, reputation, repute.

existimātor, -oris, [ex-aestimātor, cf. existimo], M., an appraiser, a judge: injustus existimātor rerum (unjust in his opinion of affairs).
existimō, -āvī, -ātus, āre, [ex-aestimō], i. v. a. and n., estimate, believe, think, suppose, imagine, regard, esteem, deem, judge: male, think ill of, have a poor opinion of.
exitiōsus, -a, -um, [existitō + osus], adj., destructive, ruinous, pernicious.
exitiūm, -i, [exitu + ium, perh. ex + tītium (cf. officium)], N., extinction, destruction, ruin, mischief.
exitus, -ītus, [ex-itus, cf. exeo], M., (a going out), a passage (out, concretely). — Hence, an end, the last part: quem habere exitum (what is the result of, etc.). — Fig., a result, a turn (of fortune), an issue, an event.

exolētus, -a, -um, [p.p. of exolēscō], as adj.], adult. — As subst., a creature of lust.
exoptō, -āvī, -ātus, āre, [ex-optō], i. v. a., desire earnestly, long for.
exorōr, -ortus, -orēri, [ex-orōr], 3. (and 4.) v. dep., rise up.
exornō, -āvī, -ātus, āre, [ex-orōno], i. v. a., array, adorn, fit out, embellish.
exorō, -āvī, -ātus, āre, [ex-orō], i. v. a. and n., entreat (and prevail).
exorsus, -sūs, [ex-torsus, cf. exordiōr], M., a beginning.

expectō and compounds of ex with s-, see ex-.

expedīō, -ivi, -ītus, -āre, [prob. expedī · (stem of adj. from ex-pes)], 4. v. a. and n., disentangle, disembower, set free (cf. impedīō). — Less exactly and fig., set in order, get ready, arrange, station (of troops): salutem (secure). — Also, be of advantage. — expeditus, -a, -um, p.p. as adj., unencumbered, easy (iter), not difficult, quick, active.

expellō, -puli, -pulsus, -pellere, [ex-pello], 3. v. a., drive out, banish, expel.

experior, -pertus, -perīri, [ex-perior, pass. of pario, cf. opperior], 4. v. dep., (get for one's self ?), experience, try, find (by experience).
expers, -pertis, [ex-paris], adj., without a share, without destitute: sensus (out of sympathy with).

expetō, -īvī (-iī), -ītus, -ere, [expeto], 3. v. a., seek for, desire, earnestly ask for, try to secure: poenas (inflict).

expilō, -āvī, -ātus, āre, [ex-polō], i. v. a., rob. — Also, plunder, steal.
explō, -āvī, -ātus, āre, [ex-pio], i.v.a., purify, expiate. — Transferred to the signs of divine wrath, expiate.

explēō, -plēvī, -plētus, -plēre, [expleō], 2. v. a., fill out, fill up, make up, satisfy, satiate, fill the measure of.

explicō, -ūi (-āvi), -ītus (-ātus), āre, [ex-plico], i. v. a., unfold, set forth. — Also (unfold something out of entanglement), disentangle, set free. — So esp. in argument.

explōrō, -āvī, -ātus, āre, [ex-ploro, prob. search by calling or crying], i. v. a., investigate, explore, search, examine, reconnoitre. — explōrātus, -a, -um, p.p., assured, certain.

expōnō, -posui, -positus, -pōnere,
Vocabulary.

[ex-pono], 3. v. a., place out, set out: exercitum (dismembark, also draw up, array). — Fig., set forth (in speech), expose.

exportō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [ex-porto], i. v. a., carry out, carry away, export.

exposcō, -possci, no p.p., -poscere, [ex-posco], 3. v. a., demand (with eagerness).

exprimō, -pressi, -pressus, -prīmēre, [ex-premo], 3. v. a., press out, force out, elicit, get out (of anything).

— Hence, represent: vestigia expressa (well marked).

exprōmō, -prōmpti, -prōptus, -prōmēre, [ex-premo], 3. v. a., deal out, bring out, display.

expūgnātō, -ōnis, [ex-pugnātio, cf. expugno], F., a storming (of a city), taking (of a city by storm).

expūgnō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [expugno], 1. v. a., take (by storm), capture (by storming a city, also fig.).

exquirō, -sivi, -sitūs, -scindere, [ex-quero], 3. v. a., search out.

exsanguis, -e, [ex-sanguis], adj., (with the blood out), bloodless, nerveless, feeble, lifeless.

excindō, -sci, -scissus, -scindere, [ex-scindo], 3. v. a., cut down, tear down, break down, destroy; overthrow.

exsecrātūs, -ōnis, [ex-excratiō], F., a curse, an oath (ratified by an imprecation), an imprecation.

exsequae, -ārum, [exsequō + ia, cf. pedessequus], F. plur., (a following out). — Esp. to the grave, a funeral, funeral rites.

exsilīo, -silii, no p.p., -silire, [ex-salio], 1. v. n., spring up, jump up.

exsilium (exsil-), -ium, [exsil + ium], N., exile.

existō, -stītī, -stītūs (?), -sister, [ex-sisto], 3. v. a., stand out, rise up, come out, ensue, break out, grow out, arise, come forward, show itself, be shown, appear, be performed (perpetrated, committed), turn out, be the result, be, exist.

exsolvō, -solvi, -solutus, -solvere, [ex-solvo], 3. v. a., unloose, acquit.

exspectātūs (exp-), -ōnis, [exspectatio, cf. expecto], F., a waiting for, expectation, anticipation.

exspectō (exp-), -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [ex-specto], i. v. a. and n., look out for, wait for, wait, wait to see (al, whether, etc.), expect, anticipate, be in expectation.

exspollō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [exspolio], 1. v. a., strip off. — Also, strip of (cf. despello). — Fig., deprive, rob (of abl.).

exstinctor (extinct-), -ōris, [ex-stinctor, cf. exstinguo], M., a destroyer, a suppresser.

exstinguo (ext-), -stīnxi, -stinctus, -stinguere, [ex-stinguo], 3. v. a., (punch out, as a fire in the woods?), extinguis (lit. and fig.), destroy, put an end to, stamp out, blot out.

exstō, -stītī, -stītūs (?), -stāre, [ex-sto], 1. v. n., stand out, be preserved.

exstructūs, -ōnis, [ex-structio, cf. exstruo], F., a building up, a structure.

exstruō, -strūxi, -structus, -struere, [ex-struo], 3. v. a., heap up, build up, pile up, construct, erect.

exsul (exsil), -ulis, [ex-\text{\textsubscript{sal}} (of salio, cf. praesul) as stem, with some lost connection of meaning, cf. consul], c., an exile.

exsulō (exsilō), -āvi, no p.p., -āre, [exsil], i. v. n., be an exile, be in exile.
Vocabulary.

exsultō (exult-), -āvi, no p.p.,
-āre, [ex-salto, cf. exsillio], i. v. n., (dance with joy, as in a war dance trampling on a prostrate foe, cf. Mil.
21), exult, rejoice.

extenuō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [ex-tenuo], i. v. a., extenuate, disperage, diminish, belittle.

exter, -tera, -terum, [ex+terus (reduced)], adj., outer, outside, foreign.—extrēmus, -a, -um, superl., farthest, extreme, last: in extrema oratione (at the end of, etc., and often in this sense); ad extremum (till the last, at last, finally); in extrema India (in farthest India);
in extremis atque ultimis gentibus (farthest in distance, and last in reckoning); extremum summum-que supplicium (the utmost and most extreme severity of punishment); fuit illud extremum (the last thing to be thought of); comites (farthest behind).

exterminō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [exterminō-], i. v. a., drive beyond the bounds, banish, get out of the way, expel, drive into exile.

exterminus, -a, -um, [exter-(as stem of exter) + nus], adj., outside, external, foreign, abroad.

extimescō, -timui, no p.p., -timē-scere, [ex-timesco], 3. v. a., dread, fear. vultu (show terror).

extollō, -tollere, [ex-tollio], 3.v.a., raise up.

extorqueō, -torsi, -tortus, -torquēre, [ex-torqueo], 2. v. a., wrench from, wrest from, force from.

extrā [abl. or instr. (?) of exter,
cf. supra], adv. and prep., outside,
out of, outside of.

extrahō, -traxi, -tractus, -trahere, [ex-traho], 3. v. a., drag out, draw out, draw (from).

exuō, -ui, -ūtus, -uere, [ex-tuo (of unc. meaning, cf. induo], 3.v.a., throw off, strip off, cast aside.
exūrō, -üss, -üstus, -üere, [ex-uro], 3. v. a., burn up, burn down, burn to the ground.

exuviae, -ārum, [exuō-(cf. exuō) +iæ], f. plur., spoils, cast-off clothes, trophies (as beaks of ships stripped off).

F.

Fablānus, -a, -um, [Fabio + anus], adj., of Fabius.—Esp., for-nix Fabianus (the arch of Fabius, which stood at the easterly end of the Forum).

Fabricius, -i, [+fabricō + ius],
M., a Roman gentile name.—Esp.,
Q. Fabricius, a tribune of the people the year of Cicero's recall.

fābula, -ae, [fā (as stem of for+bula (f. of bulum)], f., a myth, a story, a play.

facētē [old abl. of factetus], adv.,
wittily, facetiously, humorously, cunningly, neatly.

facilis, -e, [+facē- (cf. benefi-
cus) + lis], adj., easy (to do, cf.
habilis), convenient, without difficulty, easy (generally).—facile, n.
as adv., easily, conveniently, without difficulty, plainly, readily: facile primus (without question, etc.).

facilitās, -ātis, [+facili+tas], f., facility, ease, easy manners, courtesy.

facinorōsus, -a, -um, [facinor+
osus], adj., criminal.

facinus, -oris, [†facin- (as if root of †facino, longer form of facelo,
cf. prodino) + us], N., a deed (of any kind), an action.—Esp. (as in English), a deed (of crime), a mis-deed, a crime, guilt (referring to Vocabulary.

factum, see facio.

facilitas, -tatis, [facul (for facili, cf. simul) + tas], F., ease, facility.

— So, chance, power, opportunity, privilege: facultas ingenii (intellectual power, form of genius); oratio et facultas (power of oratory); manendi nulla facultas (no possibility).

faenerator (fēn-), -tōris, [fae- nerā + tor], M., a usurer.

Faesulae, -ārum, [prob. Etruscan, though the form is Roman], F. plur., an old Etruscan city north of the Arno, colonized by Sulla (Fiesole).

Faesulānus, -a, -um, [Faesula- nus], adj., of Fiesole.

falcārius, -a, -um, [falc+arius], adj., belonging to a scythe or sickle.

Masc., a scythemaker: inter falcarios (in the scythe-makers’ quarter, cutters’ street).

Falcidius, -i, [falcidō-(falc+ dus) + ius], M., a Roman gentile name. — Only, C. Falcidius, a tribune of the people.

fallāx, -ācis, [fall- (as if root of fallo) + ax], adj., deceitful, treacherous, fallacious.

fallō, fefelli, falsus, fallere, [? SPHAL, trip up], 3. v. a. and n., deceive, escape (one’s notice), disappoint. num me fefellit (was I mistaken in, etc., and often in that sense). — falsus, -a, -um, p.p., deceived. — Also (transferred to things), false, unfounded: lans undeserved).

— Abr. as adv., falsely.

falsō see fallo.

falsus, see fallo.

falx, -licis, [?], F., a scythe, sickle, or billhook (including many instruments with curved blades), a knife (with a curved blade, used by gladiators).
Vocabulary.

fāma, -ae, [√FA (in for) + MA], F., speech, common talk, reputation, fame. — Concretely, a rumour, a story.

famēs, -is, [♀], F., hunger, starvation: fame necatus (starved to death).

familia, -ae, (-ās), [famulō- (reduced, cf. famul) + ia], F., a collection of attendants, a household (including children), slaves, a gang of slaves. — Also, a family (in our sense). — mater familias, see mater.

familiāris, -e, [prob. familiā + aris, but treated as familiarius (cf. aequalis, animālis)], adj., of the household, friendly, intimate: res (estate, property), also, domestic life, household affairs. — Esp. as subst. (though compared), a friend, an intimate friend.

familiāritās, -ātis, [familiāri + tas], F., intimacy (with, genitive), a relation of intimacy.

familiāriter [familiāri + ter], adv., familiarly, intimately.

fānum, -i, [♀, √FA + nus, perh. orig. consecrated, cf. effātus], N., a shrine (cf. aedes), a temple (esp. a foreign one, templum being a word of Roman augury).

fās [√FA (in for) + as], indecl. N., right (in conscience, or by divine law), permitted, allowed. — Esp. with negatives expressed or implied.

fascis, -is, [♀, cf. fascia], M., a bundle. — Esp., in plur., the fasci, the bundle of rods with an axe, carried by the lictor before the higher magistrates.

fastidiō, -īvi (–ii), -itus, -ire, [tāfastidītās], 4. v. a. and n., disdain, be disgusted, take offence.

fāstus, -a, -um, [fas + tus], adj., secular (of days when the courts, etc., could rightly be held). — In plur. as subst., the fastī (the list of such days), the calendar. — Also, the list of consuls (originally kept in the calendar).

fātālis, -e, [fātō + alis], adj., fated, fatal, designed by fate.

fateor, fassus, fatēri, [prob. fatō-], 2. v. dep., confess, acknowledge, admit.

fātum, -i, [N. of fātus, p.p. of for], N., (what is spoken, cf. fās), destiny, fate, lot, a fatality. — Hence, ruin, death, destruction: fata Sibyllina (the Sibylline books).

fāuces, -iūm, [♀], F. plur. (also fœce, sing.), the gullet, the throat.

— Hence, of animals, the fœus (with a slightly different fig. from the Eng.). — So of any narrow entrance, a pass: fæuces Etruriae (the gates).

fāutor, -ōris, [fāv- (as if root of favo) + tor], M., a favorer, a partisan, a supporter.

fāux, see fauces.

faveō, favi, fœtūrus, favēre, [♀], 2. v. n., favor, be well disposed towards.

Favōnīus, -i, [tāfavonō- (cf. colōnus) + ius], M., the west wind. — Also, a Roman gentile name. — Esp., M. Favonius, a friend of Cato of Utica, and a violent opponent of Clodius. He was afterwards one of the assassins of Cæsar.

fāx, facis, [♀, F., a torch, a fire-brand, fire, a blazing fire (in the sky): omnes fœces invidiae subcere (use every means to kindle the flame of hatred).

fēbris, -is, [for tēferīris (poss. tēferīs), fōr + ris (or -ia)], F., fever.
Vocabulary.

Fedruarius. -a, -um, [febru + arius], adj., of February.

Felicitas, -tatis, [felic- (as if felici) + tas], F., good fortune, good luck, lucky star. — Plur. in same sense. — Esp., Good Fortune, worshipped as a divinity by the Romans.

Feliciter [felic- (as if felici-) + ter], adv., happily, successfully.

Felix, -icis, [akin to feo], adj., fruitful, fortunate.

Femina, ae, [fe (stem of feo) + mina], F., a woman, a female.

Fenator, see faen.

Feru, see ferus.

Ferox [?, abl. of stem ffero- (akin to fero, cf. Lucifer)], adv., almost, about. — Also, almost always, generally, usually, for the most part. — With negatives, hardly: nemo fere (hardly anybody).

Feritas, -tatis, [fero + tas], F., wildness, barbarous condition.

Fero, tuli, latus (for tlaus), ferre, [v/BIAR, bear, and vtol (TLA) in tollo], irr. v. a. and n., bear, carry, bring; endure, tolerate, stand; withstand, carry off, take, receive, win. — Often in a loose sense, translated by various special words in Eng., commit, offer, etc. — With reflex. or in pass., rush, pass, proceed, roll (of a river). — With advs. indicating manner of receiving anything, suffer, bear, take it, feel: indignare (feel indignant); molestare (take it hard, be annoyed by, etc.); gravitare (be annoyed, be vexed, take it ill). — Esp., of report, say, report. — Also, of laws, propose (to the people), carry, decide, propose a law, pass a law, bring an accusation (before the people): vestra voluntas (decide, turn that way); quaestionem (vote);

ita natura rerum (decree). — Also, facinus prae se (boast, vaunt).

Feroxitas, -tatis, [fero- (as if feroci-) + tas], F., fierceness, savage cruelty.

Ferramentum, -i, [as if ferr- (stem of verb from ferrum) + mentum], n., a tool (of iron), a weapon.

Ferrous, -a, -um, [ferrō + eus (-EUS)], adj., of iron, iron (made of iron). — Fig., iron-hearted.

Ferrum, -i, [?], n., iron, steel, the sword (as a symbol of war).

Fertilis, -e, [prob. fcri- (fer + tus, cf. fero) + lis], adj., fertile, fruitful, productive.

Ferus, -a, -um, [v/FER (DHVAR, rush) + US, cf. deer], adj., wild, cruel, ferocious. — Fem. as subst., a wild beast, game.

Festinatio, -onis, [festina+atio], F., haste.

Festus, -a, -um, [unc. root (cf. feriae) + tus], adj., festive, festival.

Fidellis, -e, [fidē (stem of fides) + lis], adj., faithful.

Fides, -ei, [v/FID (BHID, bind) + es], F., a promise, a pledge. — Also, good faith, fidelity, honesty. — Transf., confidence, faith (in), credit; fidem facere (gain credence, produce confidence). — Esp. of promised protection, protection, dependence, alliance. — Also, credit (in a mercantile sense).

Fidius (but only in nom.) [?, fiddo + ius], m., (of good faith?). — Only in me dius fidius (sc. adjutem) on my faith, as sure as I live, by Heaven.

Fiddo, fidsus sum, fidere, [v/FID, increased], 3.v.n., trust, have confidence.

Fiducia, ae, [fidue (fadu+eus) + ia (cf. audacia)], F., confidence. confident reliance. — Also, ground of confidence.
Vocabulary.

fidus, -a, -um, [fid (in fido) + us], adj., faithful.

figō, fixi, fixus, figere, [√fig?], 3. v. a., fasten (by insertion in something), fax, nail: crucem (plant); mucronem (plunge). — Also fig., memoria mentibus fixa.

figūra, -ae, [prefix (from figo, fingo, + us) + ra, F. of rus], F., shape, form.

filla, -ae, [F. of fillus], F., a daughter.

fillus, -i, [?], M., a son.

fīngō, finxi, fictus, fingere, [√fig, cf. figura], 3. v. a., mould. — Fig., invent, contrive, pretend, imagine, devise: fingite animis (imagine).

— fictus, -a, -um, p.p. as adj., false, trumped up, fictitious, imaginary.

finis, -is, [?], M., a limit, an end: quem ad finem (how far); usque ad eum finem dum, etc. (even up to the very moment when). — Plur., limits, boundaries, borders, territories, country.

fīnītimus (-tumus), -a, -um, [fini-timua, cf. maritimus], adj., on the borders, neighboring, adjacent, neighbors (of). — Plur. as subst., neighbors.

fiō, see facto.

firmamentum, -i, [firmā + mentum], N., support. — Fig., a bulwark, a corner-stone: ceterorum ordinum.

firmō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [firmō-], 1. v. a., make strong, strengthen, fortify, put in a state of defence.

firmus, -a, -um, [√dhar + mus], adj., strong (for resistance), firm, steady.

fiscus, -i [?], M., a wicker basket (used for carrying money), a money-bag (to imitate the figure in Eng.).

Flaccus, -i, [flaccus, flabby], M., a Roman family name. — Esp., L. Valerius Flaccus, cons. with Marius b.c. 100, and afterwards killed by Fimbria in the East.

flāgitōsae [old abl. of flāgitio-sus], adv., shamefully, disgracefully (with the added idea of criminality).

flāgitōsus, -a, -um, [flāgitio + sus], adj., shamefully criminal, infamous, disgraceful, scandalous.

flāgitium, -i, [prefix (from figo, fingo) + ium, cf. flagō], N., (a crime of passion?), a disgraceful crime, a burning shame, an enormity.

flāgitō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [as if flāgitō, p.p. of flāgo, burn? (cf. φλέγω), akin to flagrum], 1. v. a., ask (in heat?), demand earnestly, importune, insist upon, call for: severitatem (cry for); flagitans senatus (importunate); pacem flagitans (being importunate for).

flagrō, -āvi, -āurus, -āre, [flagrō, in an earlier sense of a burn?], 1. v. n., burn, blaze, consume, be on fire. — Also fig. as in Eng., be in a blaze of, be consumed in a fire of: invidia; infamia.

flāmen, -inis, [prob. flag (cf. flagro) + men], M., (the kinder of sacrificial fires?), a priest (of a particular divinity).

Flamininus, -i, [Flaminio + inus], M., a Roman family name. — Esp., T. Quinctius Flamininus, who defeated Philip of Macedonia at Cynoscephale, B.C. 197.

Flaminius, -i, [flamin + ius], M., a Roman gentile name. — Esp., Q. Flaminius, cons. B.C. 223. — Also, as adj., Flaminian (of this Flaminius); circus (the circus built by him as censor, B.C. 220).

flamma, -ae, [√flag + ma], F., flame, fire, conflagration.

flectō, flexi, flexus, sectere, [?]:
Vocabulary.

3. v. a., bend, turn.—Fig., change, affect, draw (from a course), change the minds of, etc.

fæðu, fæív, fætus, fère, [fæ-], 2. v. a. and n., weep: fläns (in tears).

fætus, -äus, [fæ- (stem of fæo as root) + tus], m., weeping, lamentation, tears.

flexibils, -e, [flexös- (as stem of flexus) + bilis], adj., flexible, changeable.

flörens, see floreo.

flöreō, -ü, no p.p., -ére, [flor-], 2. v. n., blossom, bloom.—Fig., be prosperous, flourish, be in power: accessus (he brilliant).—flörens, -entis, p. as adj., flourishing, prosperous, brilliant, highly favored, eminent (for wealth and the like), successful.

flöreōscō, flōrui, no p.p., flōrēscere, [flore- (as stem of floreo) + sce], 3. v. n., flourish, grow bright.

fōs, fōris, [fō-], m., a flower.—Fig., the flower (of troops).

fluctuō, -ävi, no p.p., -āre, [fluctu-], 1. v. n., float, drift, be tossed on the waves.

fluctus, -äus, [fluō(c) (in fluo, cf. fluxi) + tus], m., a wave (also fig.), waves (collectively).

flūmen, -inis, [fluō(c) (in fluo, cf. frumentum) + men], n., a river.—Fig., flow.

flūo, flūxi, fluxus (fluxūrus, fluctūrus, flūtūrus), fluere, [fluō(c), cf. fruor], 3. v. n., flow.

focus, -i, [fōv (as root of foveo) + cus], m., a brazier (a fixed or movable hearth, with coals for heating or cooking), a hearth.—Fig. (as a symbol of home), hearth, fireside.

foederātus, -a, -um, [p.p. of foedero], adj., federate, allied (by treaty on equal terms).—Masc. pl., allies.

foedes, -eris, [scening (in fides, cf. fidus) + us], n., a treaty, an alliance, a bond (of any similar kind), conditions (of a treaty), a compact, an agreement (of a serious or solemn sort).

foedus, -a, -um, [ʔ], adj., foul, unseemly, horrible, vile, dreadful.

fōns, fontis, [ʔ], m., a fountain, a spring.—Fig., a source, a fountain.

forās [acc. plur. of †fora], adv., (to the doors), outdoors, abroad (as end of motion).—Fig., forth, out, away.

fore, see sum.

forēnsis, -e, [forō+enis], adj., of the Forum, in the Forum (cf. various meanings of forum).—Also, every day, ordinary, of daily life.

foris, [abl. plur. of †fora, cf. foras], adv., out of doors (as place where), abroad, outside.

forma, -ae, [sahr (in firmus) + ma], F., shape, form, features, the person, an effigy, a likeness, an image.

formidō, -inis, [prob. formidō- (cf. formidō) + o (cf. cupidō), akin to formus? (from the hot flash of fear)], F., fear, dread, terror, alarm.

formidolōsus, -a, -um, [formidō- (formidō+lus) + osus], adj., formidable, alarming.

fornix, -icis, [fornō- (cf. fornax) + cus (? reduced)], m., (the arch of an oven?), an arch.

fors, fortis, [saher + tis (reduced)], F., chance.—Forte, abl. as adv., by chance, per chance, accidentally, as it happened, perhaps.
Vocabulary.

forsitan [fors sit an, it may be a chance whether], adv., perhaps, it may be, possibly.

fortasse [?, forte + unc. form, perh. sis (si vis)], adv., perhaps, possibly, it may be.

forte, see fors.

fortis, -e, [for †forctis, akin to firmus], adj., strong, sturdy, gallant, staunch, brave, dauntless, undaunted, able: vir (a man of courage, a man of constancy, and the like); sententia (firm).

fortiter [forti+ter], adv., bravely, stoutly, undauntedly, with courage, with constancy, with firmness.

fortitūdō, -inis, [forti + tudo], F., strength, courage, bravery, fortitude, steadiness, firmness.

fortūna, -ae, [†fortu- (for+tu, cf. fors) + na, F. of -nus], F., fortune, chance, fate. — Esp., good fortune. — Plur., fortunes, property, fortune, wealth. — Esp., Fortune (worshipped as a goddess by the Romans).

fortunātus, -a, -um, [p.p. of fortuno], adj., fortunate, blessed.

forum, -i, [akin to foras and foro], N., (an open place), a forum, a market-place. — Esp., the Forum (the great market-place of Rome, used also for all public purposes). — Esp., as a symbol of law and justice, the forum. — See also Aurelius.

fragillus, -e, [†fragō- (cf. foedere) + lis], adj., brittle. — Fig., delicate, sensitive, tender.

fragilītās, -āris, [fragilli+tas], F., brittleness, frailty.

fragmentum, -i, [√frag (in frango) + mentum], N., a broken piece, a fragment.

frangō, frēgi, fractus, frangere, [√frag], 3. v. a., break (as a solid body). — Esp. of ships, wreck. —

Fig., break down, crush, break the force of, exhaust.

frāter, -onis, [prob. √frēr + ter, cf. pater], M., a brother.

frāternī [old abl. of fraternus], adv., like a brother, fraternally.

frāternus, -a, -um, [frater + nus], adj., of a brother, fraternal.

fruadātīō, -onis, [fruad+tiō], F., cheating.

fruadō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [fruad-], I. v. a., cheat, defraud.

frus, fraudis, [?, akin to frustra], F., loss. — Ilence, treachery, deceit, wickedness.

frenités, -tis, [fremi- (stem of fremo) + tus], M., a murmur, a confused noise, a din.

frēnum (frae-), -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [frem-], I. v. a., bridle, curb. — Also fig.

frēnum (frae-), -i, [root or verb stem akin to firmus + num], N., a bridle.

frequēns, -entis, [orig. pres. p. akin to farcio], adj., crowded, numerous, in great numbers: conspectus vester (your crowded assemblage); senatus (full). — Also of time, as if adv., frequently.

frequentēr[frequent+ter], adv., in great numbers, popularly. — Also, of time, frequently.

frequentia, -ae, [frequent+ia], F., a throng, a crowd, a multitude, numbers (as great numbers); senatus (a full meeting of, etc).

frequentō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [frequent-], I. v. a. and n., assemble in great numbers, celebrate, resort to, visit.

freetus, -a, -um, [root akin to firmus + tus], adj., relying on, confident in (on account of).

frequēns, -tis, [?], M., and frequentēr, -i, [?], N., a strait. — Esp., the Strait.
Vocabulary.

(of Messina, between Sicily and the mainland).

frigus, -oris, [\sqrt{FRIG} (in frigeo, etc.) + us], N., cold. — Plur., cold (cold “snaps,” frosts).

frôns, frontis, [= akin to brow], F., brow, face, forehead.

fructuósus, -a, -um, [fructu + osus], adj., fruitful, fertile.

fructus, -tus, [\sqrt{FRU} (G) + tus], M., enjoyment, fruition. — Hence, (what one enjoys), fruit (of the earth, or of any kind of labor), produce, crops, income, advantages, emolument, reward: fructui esse (to be an advantage, to be beneficial, to be profitable).

frugálitas, -tatis, [frugali+tas], F., economy, frugality.

frumentârus, -a, -um, [frumentó- (reduced) + arius], adj., of grain: res (grain supply, provisions, grain); invidia (scarcity of grain). — See also su: sidia.

frumentum, -i, \sqrt{FRU} (G) + mentum, N., grain cf fructus.

fruor, fructus (fruiturus, frui, \sqrt{FRU} (G), cf fruges), 3. v. dep., enjoy, reap the benefit (fruit) of.

früstrā abl. or instr. of stem akin to fruas, adv., to no purpose, without effect, vainly.

früx, frúgis, [\sqrt{FRU}:] in fruor, as stem, F., fru (not only in the modern sense, but also all “fruits of the earth”’, grain, crops.

Fúius, -a, -um, [?], adj. — Masc., as a Roman gentile name. — Also, as adj., Fúian (belonging to one of that gens). — Esp., lex Fúia (a law in regard to the auspices at elections, giving power to certain magistrates to stop the proceedings).

fuga, -ae, [\sqrt{FUG} + a], F., flight.

fugtô, fugi, fugiturus, fugere, [\sqrt{FUG} (in fuga)], 3. v. a. and n., fly, fly from. — Fig., shun, avoid. — Also, escape the notice of, escape (in same sense).

fugitivus, -a, -um, [fugi- (stem of fugio?) + tivus], adj., runaway.

— As subst., a runaway slave.

fugtô, -ävi, -ätus, -äre, [fugi- (as stem of fugio) + to, but cf. agito], 1. v. a. and n., fly, flee from, avoid.

fulgeô, fulsi, no p.p., fulgere, [?], 2. v. n., shine (also fig.).

fulmen, -inis [fulg- (in fulgeo) + men], N., a thunderbolt, a lightning flash, lightning.

fumō, -ävi, -ätus, -äre, [fumō-]

1. v. n., smoke (also fig.).

fūmus, -i, [\sqrt{FU} (DHU) + mus, akin to dust], M., smoke.

fundamentum, -i, [fundā + mentum], N., a foundation.

funditus [fundō+tas, cf. divinitus], adv., from the foundation, utterly, completely.

fundō, -ävi, -ätus, -äre, [fundō-], 1. v. a., found, lay the foundations of.

fundus, -i, [akin to bottom], M., the bottom (of anything). — Also (cf. real-estate), an estate, a farm (including house and land).

fūnestō, -ävi, -ätus, -äre, [funes-tō-], 1. v. a., pollute (orig. by a death or the like?), desecrate: urbem (as orig. consecrated to the gods).

fūnestus, -a, -um, [funes (old G.

Gabinius, -i, [Gabinō (cf. Gabīl) + ius], m., a Roman gentile name. — Esp.: 1. Aulus Gabinius, consul with Lucius Piso in B.C. 58, the proposer of the two laws giving Pompey command in the East; 2. Cimber Gabinius, one of the conspirators with Catiline.

Gabinīus, -a, -um, [preceding word as adj.], adj., of Gabinius (esp. the one first mentioned), Gabinian.

Gāius (Cāius, C.), -i, [?], m., a Roman praenomen.

Galba, -ae, [Celtic, meaning fat], m., a Gallic and Roman family name.

Gallia, -ae, [f. of adj. in -ius, Gallo+ius], f., Gaul, including all the country bounded by the Po, the Alps, the Rhine, the ocean, the Pyrenees, and the Mediterranean, thus occupying all northern Italy, France, and Belgium.

Gallicānus, -a, -um, [Gallīcō + annus], adj., Gallic.

Gallicus, -a, -um, [Gallō +eus], adj., of the Gauls, Gallic; ager Gallicus (the Gallic territory in Cisalpine Gaul, taken from the Gauls by the Romans).

Gallus, -a, -um, [Celtic], adj., of Gaul, Gallic. — As subst., a Gaul, the Gauls. — Also, as a Roman family name (see Sertius).

Gānea, -ae, [?], f., a low tavern, a brothel.

Gāneō, -onis, [prob. gānea+o], m., a profligate, a spendthrift.

Gaudēō, gāvisus, gaudēre, [†gavidō- (?), cf. audeō], 2. v. n., be delighted, rejoice.

Gaudium, -i, [†gavidiō+ium, cf. gauδio], n., joy (expressed), pr-
Vocabulary.

joicing, an expression of joy. (Cf. laetitia, inward joy, but see Milo xxviii. 77.)

Gäviánus, -a, -um, [Gaviō + anus], adj., of Gavius. — Esp., Gaviánus as a Roman family name, see Atilius.

gāvisus, see gaudeo.

Gāvius, -i, [?, cf. gaudium], M., a Roman family name. — Esp., P. Gavius, a Roman citizen crucified by Verres.

gāzā, -ae, [Pers. through γας, F., treasure.

gelidus, -a, -um, [gelu+dus], adj., icy, cold.

gemitus, -īs, [gemi- (as stem of gemo) + tus], M., a groan, groaning, an outcry.

gener, -erī, [?], M., a son-in-law.

gēres, gentis, [√gen + tis (reduced)], F., a tribe, a clan, a people, a nation: jus gentium (the law of nations, universal law as opposed to the jus civile of any one nation); ubiquam gentium? (where in the world?).

genus -eris, [√gen + us], N., a generation, a race, a family (stock), a nation, a tribe. — Less exactly, a kind, a sort, a class. — Also, abstractly, kind, character, nature, method, way, manner, sort of things, class of things.

Germanā, see Germanus.

Germanānī, see Germanus.

Germanā, -ae, [F. of adj. in -ius, cf. Gallia], F., Germany, the whole country between the Rhine, the Danube, the Vistula, and the sea.

germanitās, -ātis, [germanō + tas], F., brotherhood.

Germānus, -a, -um, [?], adj., German (of the country of Germany or its people). — Plur., the Germans.

germānus, -a, -um, [?], adj., of full blood, own (brother or sister, etc.).

gerō, gessi, gestus, gerere, [√ges, of unc. kin.], 3. v. a., carry (indicating a more lively action than fero), carry on, manage, wage (war), hold (a magistracy), do (any business). — Pass., be done, go on (of operations); rem (operate successfully or otherwise, carry on operations, succeed well or ill); res gestae (exploits, operations, a campaign); se gerere (conduct one's self, act); rem publicam (manage affairs of state); magistratum (perform the duties of, act as a magistrate or the like); in rebus gerendis (in action, in the management of affairs); in ipsa re gerenda (while engaged in, etc.); in gestis rebus (in exploits actually performed); gesta (acts).

gestō, -ivi (-ii), no p.p. -ire, [tgesti- (ges + tis), cf. gestus], 4. v. a. and n. (express joy or longing by action), exult, rejoice. Also, yearn, long.

gignō, genui, genitus, gignere, [√gen, redupl.], 3. v. a., beget, produce.

Glabrīō, -onis, [tglabrīō + o], M., a Roman family name. — Esp., M. Glabrio, the pretor who presided at the trial of Verres.

gladiator, -ōris, [gladiā + tor], M., (a swordsman), a gladiator. — Less exactly, a ruffian, a cut-throat.

gladiātorius, -a, -um, [gladiator + ius], adj., gladiatorial.

gladius, -i, [?], M., a sword.

glaeba (glē-), -ae, [?], F., a clod (of earth), a lump.
Vocabulary.

Glaucia, -ae, [♀], m., a Roman family name. — Esp., C. Servitus Glaucia, a demagogue killed by Marius, B.C. 100.

glōria, -ae, [♀, for τελεοντα, cf. inclusus], f., fame, glory.

glōrior, -ātus, -āri, [gloria-], 1. v. dep., glory in, boast of.

glōriōsē [old abl. of gloriōsus], adv., boastfully, exultingly.

glōriōsus, -ās, -um, [gloria + osus], adj., glorious. — Also, boastful.

Gnaeus, (Cnēius, Cn.), -i, [akin to gnavus], m., a Roman prenomen.

gnāvus, -ās, -um, [√GNA, in nosco], adj., (wise), active, energetic, diligent.

Gorgōn, -onis, [Γόργων], f., a Gorgon (a fabulous monster, whose sight turned everything to stone).

Graccus, -i, [♀], m., a Roman family name. — Esp.: 1. Tiberius Sempronius Graccus, the great popular reformer, tribune, B.C. 133; 2. C. Sempronius Graccus, brother of the preceding, tribune, B.C. 121.

gradus, -ūs, [grad + us], m., a step, a grade (in a series), rank, position.

Graecia, -ae, [Graeco + ia, F. of -ius], f., Greece.

Graeculus, -i, [Graecō + ius], m., an affected Greek, a petty Greek, a Creekling.

Graeco, -a, -um, [Gr. Παρθός], adj., of the Greeks, Greek, Grecian, of Greece. — As subst., a Greek, the Greeks. Cf. Germanus for relation to Graeca.

grāmineus, -a, -um, [gramin + eus], adj., of grass: hastā (a spear of grass, probably bamboo or cane of great size, kept in a temple in the hands of a divinity).

grandis, -e, [♀], adj., tall, large (by growth, cf. magnus, generally):

pecunia (a large sum of, etc.).

grātia, -ae, [gratō + ia], f., (gratefulness, in all Eng. senses). — On one side (feeling grateful), grātitude, thanks (esp. in plur.). — On the other side (the being agreeable), influence (cf. auctoritas, official prestige), favor, popularity. — Phrases: agere gratias, return thanks, render thanks; habere gratiam (or gratias), feel thankful, feel gratitude, be grateful; referre grātiam, make a grateful return, repay a favor, requite reward; auctoritate et gratia, political and personal influence. — grātīa, abl. following a genitive, for the sake of, to.

grātīosus, -ās, -um, [gratia + osus], adj., influential, popular.

Grātius, -i, [grato + ius], m., a Roman gentile name. — Esp., the accuser against Archias.

gratulētō [abl. of gratulitus], adv., gratuitously, voluntarily.

gratulātiō, -onis, [gratulā + tiō], f., a congratulation (of others or one’s self), rejoicing, a vote of thanks.

gratulātor, -ātus, -āri, [gratulō- (gratō + ius)], 1. v. dep., congratulate: felicitate (congratulate one’s self for, etc.).

grātus, -a, -um, [p.p. of lost verb], adj., pleasing, grateful, agreeable: gratum facere (do a favor).

— Also, pleased, grateful (cf. gratia), appreciative.

gravis, -e, [for ëgarvis, for ëgarus, cf. Gr. ἐγαρος], adj., heavy.

— Fig., serious, severe, hard, heavy, of weight, dignified, strong, deep, potent, grave: legatio, infamia; vir; bellum; opinio; offendere: auctor; senatus consultum; consilium; judicium; morbus.
Vocabulary.

gravitās, -tātis, [gravi + tae], F., weight.—Fig., importance, power, weight, force, force of character, seriousness.

graviter [gravi + ter], adv., heavily, with great weight, forcibly, with force.—Fig., severely, seriously: graviter ferre (take to heart, be indignant at, suffer from); desiderata (earnestly); suspectus (grievously).

gravō, āvi, -ātus, -āre, [gravi-], I. v. a., weigh down, burden.—Pass. as dep., be vexed, be indignant, be reluctant.

grex, gregis, [?], M. (and F.), a herd, a flock.—Less exactly, a horde, a crowd, a band, a throng, a train, a troop.

gubernāculum (-clum), -i, [gubernā + culum], N., the helm, the rudder.—Often in plur., because anciently there were two.

gubernātūrī, -ōnis, [gubernā + tio], -i, steering, navigation.

gubernātor, -ōris, [gubernā + tor], M., a pilot, a helmsman.

gubernō, āvi, -ātus, -āre, [ku-βερ ω], I. v. a. and n., steer, pilot, navigate, direct.—Esp., of the “ship of state.”

gustō, āvi, -ātus, -āre, [gusto- (stem akin to gustus, Gr. γευω, Eng. choose)], I. v. a., taste, eat.

gymnasium, -i, [γυμνασιον], N., a gymnasium.

H.

H., see H. S.

habeō, habui, habitus, habēre, [?, habō- (cf. habills)], 2. v. a. and n., have, hold, keep, occupy, possess.—In various uses where we have a somewhat different conception: senatum (hold); comitia (hold); contionem (hold an assembly, make an address); honores (render); conjurationem (form); hominem clausum (keep); dilectum (hold, make); sic habetote (think thus); quid alium habet in se (what else is there in, etc.); aliquum animum (have); ita se res habet (this is the case); Italian tutam (possess in safety, keep safe).

—Esp. with p.p. as a sort of continued perfect (whence the perf. of modern languages), have, hold, keep.

—Esp.: rationem habere, keep an account, take an account of, have regard for, consider, regard, act in view of; satis habere (be satisfied, be content).

habitūs, āvi, -ātus, -āre, [habitū-], I. v. a. and n., live, dwell, inhabit, have one’s abode.

habitus, -īs, [habe- (as stem of habeō) + tus], M., (the act of holding), condition, character (way of holding one’s self), nature.

haereō, haesi, haesūrus, haerēre, [? for haeso], 2. v. n., get caught, stick, cling fast, cling, hang about or upon, be fastened.

haestīs, āvi, -ātūrus, -āre, [thaes- (cf. agito)], I. v. n., be caught, hesitate.

Hannibal, -alis, [Phoenician], M., the great general of the Carthaginians in the Second Punic war.

haruspex, -ēcis, -iscis, [unc. stem -espex, cf. auspex], M. and F., a soothsayer, a diviner.

hasta, -ae, [?], perh. akin to prehendo], R., a spear, a shaft.—See also gramineus.

hauď [?], adv., not (modifying a single word, cf. non); hauď dubi- tans (without hesitation).

haurītō, hausi, haustus, haurīre,
Vocabulary.

[? for hauslo], 4.v.a., drain, draw, drink, imbibe.

hebēsca-ere, [hebē+sco], 3.v.a., grow dull, be blunted.

Hēraclia (-clēa), -ae, ['Hraklēia], f., the name of several ancient cities (city of Hercules). — Esp., Harecla, a Greek city of Lucania.

Hēracliensis, -ες, [Heraclia + ensis], adj., of Harecla. — Plur., the people of Harecla.

Hērcules, -is, ['Hraklēs], m., the great divinity, son of Jupiter and Alcmena, originally of Phoenician origin, who presided especially over journeys and adventures. — Voc., Heavens!

hēreditās, -ātis, [hered- (as if hered-) + tas], f., inheritance, an inheritance.

Hērennius, -i, [?], m., a Roman gentile name. — Esp., C. Herennius, a senator convicted of embezzlement.

hēreis, -ēs, [?], m. and f., an heir, an heiress.

hēsternus, -a, -um, [hesi- (heri-) + ternus, cf. diurnus], adj., of yesterday, yesterday’s, yesterday (as if adv.); hesterno die (yesterday).

heus, [?], interj., look you, here! ho!

hibernāō, -āvi, -āurus, -āre, [hibernō-], i. v. n., pass the winter, winter: quem ad modum milites (conduct themselves in winter quarters).

hibernus, -a, -um, [hiem- + eros, cf. nocturnus], adj., of winter, winter (as adj.). — Neut. pl. (sc. castra), winter quarters, a winter encampment.

hīo [θlim (loc. of hōc, cf. interim) + cc], adv., here (cf. Me), in this place, there (of a place just mentioned), on this occasion, now, on this point.

Me, haec, hōc, hūjus, [θhi- (pron. stem) + cc, cf. ecce, cetera], pron., (pointing to something near the speaker in place, time, or interest), this, these, he, they, this man (woman or thing), the present, like this. — Referring to things before mentioned (but with more emphasis than is), this, these, etc. — Less commonly, of what follows, the following, as follows, these. — Often with a gesture, this, this here present, the one before me, my client: horum omnium (all these here present); pater hujus (of the one here, of my client). — Esp., hoo est (that is to say); huius imperio (this of ours); per hōc annos (these last years); huius pacis diebus (within a few days). — hōc, neut. abl., used adverbially, in this respect, on this account, by so much: hoo magis (all the more). — Often hic. . . ille, the one . . . the other, this (near by) . . . the other (farther off), this last (nearer on the page) . . . the other, the latter . . . the former. — hūjus modi, see modus.

hicine [hīc (hice) ne], adv., here (in emphatic question).

hiemps (?-ems), -emnis, [akin to χείμων], f., winter.

Hierō, -ōnis, ['Hērō'], m., the name of several kings of Syracuse. — Esp., Hiero II, the son of Hierocles, in the third century B.C., just before the Second Punic war.

hino [θlim (loc. of hōc, cf. interim) + cc], adv., from here, hence.

— Also (cf. ab and ex), on this side, here: hino . . . hino (on this side . . . on that).

Hirtius, -ii, [hirtō + ius], m., a Roman gentile name. — Esp., Aulus Hirtius, cons. B.C. 43, in the struggle against Mark Antony.
Vocabulary.

Hispānīa, -ae, [Hispanō + ia (f. of -ius)], F. (of adj., cf. Gallīa), Spain. — Plur., the two provinces.
Hispānīænsis, -e, [Hispānīa + ensis], adj., of Spain, Spanish.
Hispānus, -a, -um, [?], adj., Spanish.

die, [ho (abl. of hi-c, wh. see die], adv., to-day, now.
die, [hodie + ernus], adj., of to-day, to-day’s: hodiernus dies (to-day, this day).

Homōrus, -i, ["Oμορος"], M., Homer.

homo, -inis, [prob. humō + o], c., a human being (cf. vir, a man, as a male), a man (including women).
— Sometimes, since vir is the complimentary word, implying contempt, etc., fellow, creature, person.

honestās, -ātis, ["honos (stem of honor as adj.)"], F., honor, respectability, honorable position.

honestus [old abl. of honestus], adv., honorably, decently, with honor, with decency.

honestus, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [honesto]-, i. v. a., make honorable, honor: se (gain honor); currum (adorn as a captive).

honestus, -a, -um, [honos (orig. stem of honor) + tus], adj., esteemed, honored, respected, worthy, honorable, respectable, creditable. — Very often as an epithet of the middle class, cf. splendidus (used in reference to success and fortune), ornatus, amplus (used of dignitaries).

honor (honōs), -ōris, [M. of adj. (cf. honestas), unc. root or (orig. -os, cf. -nūs)], M., honor, a mark of honor, a source of honor, an honor. — Esp. of honors conferred by the people, a post of honor, an office, a dignity, a high position. — Phrases: in honore, quonō honore esse (be honored); gradus honoris, honorum (advancement); honoris causa (with due respect, an apology for mentioning a person’s name).

honōriscentissimus, superl. of following.

honōrisicus, -a, -um, [honor- (as if honori) + icus], adj., honorable, in honorable terms.

hora, -ae, ["epa, orig. season"], f., an hour. The Roman hours, being reckoned from sunrise to sunset, were not of equal length at all times of the year, but were always so many twelfths of the solar day.

Horātius, -i, [?], M., a Roman gentile name. — Esp., M. Horatius, the victor in the triple combat with the Curiatii, who was tried for killing his sister.

horreō, horrui, no p.p., horrēre, [horrō- (Horr, orig. hora) + us], prob. used orig. of the sensation called “goose pimples,” where the hair seems to stand on end. In Sk. the root is used of intense delight, which is sometimes accompanied by the same sensation], 2. v. n. and a., bristle (see above). — Hence, shudder at, dread.

horrībilis, -e, [horrō- (as if stem of horreo, but prob. stem of ἱθό-horrus, see above) + bilis], adj., to be shuddered at, frightful, dreadful.

horrīdus, -a, -um, [horrō- (wh. horreo)+ dus], adj., horrible, dreadful.

hortātus, -ēs, [hortā+tus], M., admonition, encouragement, exhortation.

Hortēnsius, -i, [prob. hortens + ius], M., a Roman gentile name. — Esp., Q. Hortēnsius Hortalus, the great orator, contemporary and rival of Cicero.
Vocabulary.

hortor, -ātus, -āri, [for horitor, freq. of old thoritor], i. v. dep., encourage, urge on, urge, address. — Less exactly, of things, urge, move, prompt.

hortus, -i, [?], m., a garden.

hostes, -tis, [prob. Ghas-patis, orig. host (lord of eating)], m., a host. — Also, a guest, a stranger, a visitor. — Hence, a guest friend (in the peculiar relation of hospitium, which was a kind of hereditary friendship between persons of different countries, not personal, but of a family or state), a friend (of the kind above mentioned): familiaris et hostes (a personal and family friend).

hospitium, -i, [hospit-ium], n., the relation of host (or guest). — Hence (cf. hospes), friendship, a friendly relation, a relation of friendship.

hostilis, -e, [hostil + lis], adj., hostile, of the enemy.

hostilis, -is, [prob. Ghas+tis], m. and f., a stranger, cf. hospes, an enemy (of the state, cf. inimicus), a public enemy. — Coll., the enemy. — Rarely, an enemy (in a general sense), a bitter enemy.

H S. [prob. for līs (duo sensibus, 2) asses], a sign for sestertii, sestertium, or sestertia.

hūc, [hō (dat. of hic) -ce], adv., hither, here (in sense of hither), to this (place, and the like, cf. eo), to this point.

hūcēna [hōcē (cf. huc) -ne], adv., hither, etc., as interrogative.

hūlūs modi, see modus.

humānitās, -ātis, [humanō + tan], f., humanity (as opposed to brutishness), civilization, cultivation, refinement, courtesy, human feeling, culture.

hūmānus, -a, -um, [stem akin to homo and humus(?)+nus], adj., human, of man, civilized, cultivated, refined.

humerus, see uumerus.

humilis, -e, [humō + lis], adj., low, shallow (cf. altus, deep). — Fig., low, humble, poor, humbled, abased, of low origin, obscure, mean.

humilitās, -ātis, [humilī + tas], f., lowness, shallowness. — Fig., humble position.

humus, -i, [?], cf. χαλας, f., the ground: humil (on the ground).

In.

Iacchus, -i, [iakhor], m., Bacchus.

Iālysus, -i, [Iaivos], m., the eponymous divinity of the city of Ialysus in Rhodes.

ibi [old case-form of is (cf. tihi)], adv., there (in a place before mentioned or indicated by a relative), thereupon, then.

ibidem [ibi-dem, cf. idem], adv., in the same place, there also.

icē, ici, ictus, icere, [?], 3. v. a., strike. — Esp. of treaties (prob. from the killing of a sacrificial victim), strike, make, solemnize.

ictus, -tūs, [āctō + tas], m., a blow, a stroke, a thrust.

idecirō [id (n. acc. of is) + circo (case-form of same stem as circē, cirrimum)], adv., for that reason, therefore, on this account.

idem, eadem, idem, [is-dem, cf. dām], adj. pron., the same. — Often as subst., the same thing (things), the same man, the same. — Often represented by an adverb, at the same time, also, as well.

identidem [prob. idem-ταδεμ
Vocabulary.

(.case-form of √Ta, in tam+dem.), adv., repeatedly, again and again.

ideō [id eo, this for this reason], adv., therefore, for this reason.

idoneus, -a, -um, [ʔ, akin to idem?], adj., fit, suitable, adapted, deserving.

ídus, -um, [ʔ, perh. akin to aestus], F. plur., the Ides (a day of the lunar month falling at the full moon, conventionally on the 15th of March, May, July, October, and the 13th of the other months, and used by the Romans to reckon dates).

igitur [prob. for agitur, the point aimed at is], conj., therefore, then, now, you see.

ignáurus, -a, -um, [in-gnarus], adj., ignorant, not knowing, without knowledge: ignarus rerum (without knowledge of affairs, inexperienced).

ignávula, -ae, [ignavō + ās], F., shiftlessness, cowardice.

ignávus, -a, -um, [in-gnavus], adj., shiftless, cowardly.

ignis, -is, [ʔ, same word as Sk. agnis, the god of fire], m., fire, flame.

ignobilitis, -e, [in-(g)nobilias], adj., not famous, obs.ure.

ignominia, -ae, [tignomin- (in-(g)nomen) + ās], F., want of fame, disgrace. — Almost concretely, a disgraceful defeat, a disgraceful blemish.

ignorātio, -onis, [ignorā+tio], F., ignorance.

ignorō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [ignaro-], 1. v. a., fail to notice, not know, be ignorant of: — Pass., be unobserved, be unknown: non ignorans (not unaware of).

ignoscō, -nōvi, -nōtus, -nōscere, [in- (unc. which meaning) (g)nosc-coe], 3. v. n. and a., pardon.

ignōtus, -a, -um, [in-(g)notus], adj., unknown, strange.

illās, -adas, [“λας”, F., the Isid. illātus, see inlatus.

ille, -a, -ud [old ollus, fr. √AN + lus (?)], pron., that (of something remote, cf. hie). — Often as subst. (opposed to some other emphatic word), he, she, it, they: hic...

ille (this... that, the other, the latter... the former, he... the other).

— Often of what follows (cf. hie), this, these, etc. — Of what is famous or well known, the, the great, the famous, etc. — Phrases: hic ille est (he is the one); ille ferreus (such a, etc.); ille consul (that kind of a consul). — Sometimes untranslatable, appended merely for emphasis, and accompanied by quidem.

illecebra, see inlecebra.

illine [illim-ea], adv., thence, from there. — Also (cf. ex and ab), on that side, there, on one side.

illūs, [illo-ea], adv., thither, there (in the sense of thither).

illūcescēs, see inlucesco.

illustris, see inlustris.

illustrō, see inlusto.

Ilyricus, -a, -um, [Ilyriō+eas], adj., of Illyria, Illyrian: mare (a part of the Adriatic).

imagō, -inis, [akin to imitor], F., an image, an effigy, a statue, a portrait, a representation, a picture (in the imagination), an ideal picture. — Esp. of the wax masks kept by the Romans of their dead ancestors, and used in funeral processions.

imbēcellitās (Inb-), -tās, [imbēcellō + tas], F., weakness, feebleness: animi (feebleness of purpose, pusillanimity).

imbēcallus (Inb-), -a, -um, [ʔ, in-bacillum, leaning on a staff?], adj., weak, feeble.
Vocabulary.

imber, imbris, [§, cf. Gr. ὑμβρός], M., a rain-storm, a rain.
imberbis (inb-), -e, [in-barba], adj., beardless.
imbuō (inb-), -bui, -būtus, -bure, [§, in-buo?, cf. bibo], 3. v. a., moisten, stain (also fig.); non institutional sed imbuti (not having learned, but drunken in).
imitātiō, -ōnis, [imitā + tio], f., an imitation.
imitātor, -toris, [imitā + tor], M., an imitator, a copier.
imitor, -ātus, -āri, [imitō, p.p. of ἰμιγό (cf. imago)], 1. v. dep., imitate, copy.
immānis (innm-), -e, [in-μανος (good) ?], adj., ("uncanny"?), monstrous, huge, enormous, wild, savage. — Also, barbarous, inhuman, brutal.
immāntās, -tās, [imman + tas], f., barbarity, ferocity, brutality, monstrosity.
immātūrus, -a, -um, [in-maturus], adj., unripe, immature, premature.
immineō (innm-), no perf., no p.p., -minere, [in-mineo], 2.v.n., overhang. project. — Fig., threaten, impend.
imminuō (innm-), -ui, -ūtus, -uere, [in-minuo], 3. v. a., diminish, impair, infringe, reduce, weaken.
immittō (innm-), -miši, -missus, -mittere, [in-mitto], 3. v. a., let in, let down (into), insert, throw (upon), let loose, set on (gladiatores).
immodo (imō), [§, abl. of immus (in-mus, cf. summus, demum)], adv., (in the lowest degree?), nay, nay rather, nay more. — Phrase: immo vero (nay on the contrary, nay rather, nay even).
immoderātus (innm-), -a, -um, [in-moderatus], adj., unrestrained, excessive, beyond bounds, violent.
immortālis (innm-), -e, [in-mortalis], adj., immortal, eternal. — As equivalent to an adv., eternally.
immortālītās (innm-), -tās, [immortal + tas], f., immortality.
imparātus (inpa-), -a, -um, [imparatus], adj., unprepared, not ready.
impedimentum (inped-), -i, [im-pedi + mentum], N., a hindrance: esse impedimento (be a hindrance, hinder). — Esp. in plur., baggage, a baggage train, a heavy train.
impedū (inpa-), -ivī, -itus, -īre, [imped- (in-pes, as if impedi-)], 4. v. a., entangle, hamper, interfere with. — Fig., hinder, embarrass, impede, hinder in the exercise of. — impeditus, -a, -um, p.p., hampered, entangled, occupied, difficult, impassable: nullo impediente (with no one to hinder).
impellō (inpa-), -puli, -pulsus, -pelle, [in-pello], 3. v. a., drive on. — Fig., instigate, urge on, force, drive.
impendeō (inpa-), -ēre, [in-pendeo], 2. v. n., overhang, hang over, threaten, impend.
imperātor, -tōris, [imperā + tor]. M., a commander (in chief), a general: Jupiter Imperator (Jupiter, the Supreme Ruler); dux et imperator (leader, in actual command, and commander, in chief).
imperātorius, -a, -um, [imperator + ius], adj., of a commander, of a general.
imperitus (inpa-), -a, -um, [imperitus], adj., ignorant, unacquainted with, unversed in, inexperienced.
imperium, -i, [imperā (whence impero, cf. opipara) + ium], M, command, supreme authority, control, supremacy, supreme power, power (military), rule, sway (both sing. and plur.), dominion, empire, rule, sway. — Concretely, an order, orders, a command, a position of command: imperium et potestas (military and civil power, power and authority).

Imperō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [imper- (in-parus, cf. opiparus)], i. v. a. and n., demand (make requisition for, prob. orig. meaning), require (in same sense). — Hence, order (in military sense), rule, command, give orders: me imperante (at my command); Lucullo imperante (under L’s command).

Impertīō (imp-), -īvī (-īi), -ītus, -īre, [in-partio, cf. partior], 4.v.a., impart, share (with one), give, confer, attribute, assign, bestow.

Impetrō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [in-patro], i. v. a., accomplish (anything by a request), succeed in (obtaining), obtain (a request), secure (a thing); impetra (a prevail upon, persuade); impetro ut, etc. (obtain a request, be allowed to, etc., succeed in having).

Impetus, ātus, [in-āpetus (āpet + us), cf. impeto], m., a rush, an attack, an onset, a charge, an assault, violence, vehemence, fury: facere (make an inroad, charge, or invasion, invade); is impetus (such fury, etc.); gladiorum (armed onset).

Impiētas, -tātis, [in-piētas], F., impiety.

Impius, -a, -um, [in-pius], adj., impious (offending divine law).

Impleō, -ēvi, -ētus, -ēre, [in-pleō], 2. v. a., fill.

Implicō, -āvi (-ui), -ātus (-itus), -āre, [in-plico], i. v. a., entangle, interweave, entwine, bind up, closely connect.

Implūrātiō, -ōnis, [implūrā + tīo], F., an entertainment.

Implūrō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [implūrō], i. v. a. and n., implure, beseech.

Impōnē, -posūi, -positus, -pōnere, [in-pono], 3. v. a., place upon, mount (men on horses), place, impose (fig.), saddle upon, fasten upon.

Importō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [importo], i. v. a., bring upon, import.

— Also (cf. incommodus), cruel, unrelenting, unfeeling, reckless, inhuman.

Imprimēs, [in primis, and often separate], adv., among the first, especially, particularly (more than anything else).

Imprimō, -pressī, -pressus, -primere, [in-premo], 3. v. a., impress.

Improbē, adv., wickedly.

Improbītās, -tātis, [improbō + tas, cf. probitas], F., wickedness, want of integrity, improbity, want of honesty, rascality, want of principle.

Improbō, -āvi, -ātus, -āge, [improb-], i. v. a., (hold as bad, cf. probō), disapprove, blame, censure.

Improbus, -a, -um, [in-probus], adj., inferior. — Hence, bad, unprincipled, wicked, rascally, dishonest. — As subst., a rascal, etc.

Imprōvidus, -a, -um, [in-providus], adj., improvident, imprudent, thoughtless, unthinking.

Imprōvisus, -a, -um, [in-provisus], adj., unforeseen: improviso (de improviso) (on a sudden, unexpectedly, unawares).
Vocabulary.

imprudēns, -entis, [in-prudēns], adj., not expecting, incautious, unsuspecting, off one's guard, unguarded, not being aware: aliquo imprudente (without one’s knowledge).

imprudentia, -ae, [imprudentia], F., ignorance, want of consideration, want of forethought, thoughtlessness, inattention.

impūbens, -eris (-is), [in-pubes], adj., beardless, immature, a mere boy.

impudēns, -entis, [in-pudēns], adj., shameless, impudent.

impudenter [impudent + ter], adv., shamelessly, with impudence.

impudentia, -ae, [impudentia], F., shamelessness, impudence, want of shame.

impudicus, -a, -um, [in-pudicus], adj., shameless, indecent, unchaste, immodest.

impūne [N. of impunis (in-poena, weakened and decl. as adj.)], adv., with impunity.

impūnitas, -tātis, [impuni+tae], F., freedom from punishment, impunity.

impūnitūs, -a, -um, [in-punitus], adj., unpunished, unchecked (by punishment).

imprūrus, -a, -um, [in-purus], adj., impure, rascally, vile, dishonest, unprincipled.

īmus, -a, -um, sup. of inferus.

1. in- [cf. Gr. α, av, Eng. un-], neg. particle, only in composition.

2. in [-, cf. Gr. ἀ, à, Eng. on; cf. also inde], prep. a. With acc., of motion, having its terminus within or on (cf. ad, with terminus at or near), into, upon, within, to, against, among. — Of time, for, to, till. — Fig., without actual motion, but only direction, to, towards, against, upon, over. — Often where Eng. has a different conception, in, on: in locum alicujus (in one’s place). — In adverbial expressions where no motion appears, in, according to, with, to: mirum in modum (cf. quem ad modum); in eam sententiam (to this purport); in speciem (with the appearance); in altitudinem (in height, cf. to the height of). — Esp., in potestatem esse (in the power, etc., a confusion of two constructions).

b. With abl., of rest (lit. and fig.), in, on, among, within, at: in tanta propinquitate (under circumstances of, in a case of). — Often, in the case of, in the matter of, in respect to: in eo (in his case, in regard to him, on that point, at that). — Esp., in odio esse (be hated, and the like). — In comp. as adv., in, upon, towards, and the like.

inānis, -e, [-], adj., empty, unoccupied. — Fig., empty, vain, idle.

inauditus, -a, -um, [in-auditus], adj., unheard of.

inaurātus, -a, -um, adj., gilded.

incautus, -a, -um, [in-cautus], adj., incautious, off one’s guard, imprudent, thoughtless.

incēdēs, -cessi, -cessūs, -cessere, [in-cedo], 3. v. n., proceed, walk: quam taeter incendebat (what a villanous spectacle as he walked).

incendium, -i, [in-creandum, cf. incendo], N., a burning, a fire, a conflagration. — In plur., the burning, etc., of buildings, each one being conceived as a separate burning, as is usual in Latin.

incendo, -cendi, -census, -cendere, [in-creando, cf. cendo], 3.v.a., set fire to, burn. — Fig., rouse, excite, fire, inflame.

incēnsīō, -ōnis, [in-creanzio, cf. incendo], F., a burning.
Vocabulary.

inceptum, -i, [p.p. of inciplo], N., an undertaking.

incertus, -a, -um, [in-certus], adj., uncertain, dubious, untrustworthy: itinera (obscure, blind).

incessus, -ūs, [in-tcessus, cf. indcdeo], M., a walk, a gait, the bearing (of one in walking).

incestus, -a, -um, [in-castus], adj., unchaste, impure, incestuous.

incestus, -ūs, [in-†castus, noun akin to castus], M., incest.

inchoō, see inchoe.

incidō, -cidi, -cārus, -cidente, [in-cado], 3. v. n., fall upon, fall (in any direction). — Less exactly and fig., fall in with, fall into, happen upon, meet, occur, happen.

incidō, -cidi, -citus, -cidente, [in-cado], 3. v. a., cut into, cut, engrave: leges (i.e., engrave for publication).

incipīō, -cēpi, -ceptus, -cipere, [in-capio], 3. v. a. and n., begin, undertake.

incipitamentum, -i, [incipit-amentum], N., an incentive.

incitō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [in-cito], 1. v. a., set in motion (in some particular direction) (lit. and fig.), urge on, drive, impel, excite, incite, rouse.

inclinātiō, -onis, [inclinatio], F., a leaning, an inclination, a tendency.

inclinō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [inclino], 1. v. a. and n., lean, turn, bend.

inclūdō, -clūsī, -clūsus, -clūdēre, [in-claudio], 3. v. a., shut up, enclose, include. — Inclūsus, -a, -um, p.p. as adj., secret, hidden.

incōgnitus, -a, -um, [incognitus], adj., unexamined, unheard, unknown.

incohō (inchoō), -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [?], i. v. a., begin, commence.

incolla, -ae, [incolla, cf. agricolla], M. and F., an inhabitant, a resident (not a citizen).

incolumis, -e, [?], akin to columna, adj., safe, unhurt, uninjured, unharmed, preserved (in the possession of one's power: quibus incolumibus (with whose preservation); quamdiu incolumis fuit (as long as he was in good fortune).

incōmmodus, -a, -um, [in-commodus], adj., inconvenient, unfortunate. — Esp. incommodum, N. as subst., disadvantage, misfortune (euphemism for defeat, loss, disaster), harm.

incōnsiderātus, -a, -um, [inconsideratus], adj., ill-considered, inconsiderate.

incorrumpē [old abl. of incorruptus], adv., without bias.

incorrupētus, -a, -um, [in-corrupētus], adj., unspoiled, unbrided, free from bias.

incrēbrisco ( difféō), -brui (-bui), -brēscere (-bescere) [in-crebresco], 3. v. n., thicken, grow frequent. consuetudo (spread, become common).

incrēdibils, -e, [in-credibils], adj., incredible, marvellous, extraordinary.

increpē, -crepui (-āvi), -crepitus, -crepāre, [in-crepo], i. v. n. (and a.), make a noise, sound, rattle: quidquid increpuerit (whatever noise is heard).

incultus, -a, -um, [in-cultus], adj., uncultivated, uncouth.

incumbō, -cubui, no p.p., -cum-bere, [in-cumbo], 3.v.n. (and a.), tie upon. — Hence, bend one’s energies.

incūnābula, -ōrum, [in-cunabula], n. plur., swaddling clothes (in which anciently the infant was wound up into a tight little bundle). — Hence, the cradle (as a symbol of infancy).

incurō, -cūrri, (-curri), -cursus, -curre, [-cūrro], 3. v. a. and n., run upon, rush at, make an assault: in navem (assail).

indāgō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [tīn-dagō, cf. Indago (-inis)], 1. v. a., track, chase, pursue, trace out, investigate.

inde [tim (loc. of is, cf. Interim, hinc) -de (form akin to -dem, dum, cf. indu, old form of in)], adv., from there, thence, from the place (which, etc.), from that point.

indemnātus, -a, -um, [in-damnatus], adj., uncondemned.

index, -īcis, [in-tēdex (v. dic as stem, cf. judex)], m. or f., an informer, an accuser (appearing as witness).

India, -ae, [India], f., all the country, vaguely conceived, beyond Sogdiana, Bactriana, and Asia, including modern India.

indiciō, -i, [indicium], n., information, evidence (making known a crime), an indication, a proof: per indicium (through an informer).

indico, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [Indicō],
1. v. a., point out, inform, make known, show, discover (as an in-former), betray, disclose, give information, inform against.

indicō, -dīxi, -ductus, -dūcere, [in-duco], 3. v. a., draw on, bring in, introduce. — Also, lead on. — Hence, induce, instigate, impel.

industria, -ae, [?], f., diligence, painstaking, industry: de industria (on purpose).

industrius, -a, -um, [?], adj., industrious, diligent, painstaking.

indo, -iavi, -iatus, -iare, [indo], irr. v. a., enter upon, go into. — Fig., adopt, make, begin, gain, secure. — Esp.: iniens setas or adulcentia (early youth); inenunci vero (at the beginning of spring).

inermis, -e (-us, etc.), [in-arma], adj., unarmed, defenceless.

iners, -eris, [in-ara], adj., shiftless, cowardly, sluggish, unmanny.

inertia, -ae, [inertia], f., shiftlessness, cowardice, slothfulness.

inexplibility, -ae, [inexplicabilis], adj., inexplicable. — Also, irreconcilable.

infaemia, -ae, [infaem + ina], f., dishonor, disgrace.

infāmis, -e, adj., infamous.

infāns, -antis, [in-fana], m. and f., an infant child, a child, an infant.
Vocabulary.

Infelix, -icus, [in-felix], adj., unfortunate, unlucky, unhappy, wretched, boding ill, ill-omened, ill-fated, ill-starred.

infero, -tuli, -latus, -ferre, [infero], irr. v. a., bring in, import, carry in, introduce, put upon: bellum (make, declare, of offensive war); signa (advance). — Fig., cause, inflict, commit, create, cause: spem (inspire); causam (adduce, allege, assign, fasten upon); vim et manus (lay upon); ignes (set); vim (use); signis inferendis (by a hostile attack).

inferus, -a, -um, [unc. stem (akin to Sk. adhas, down) + rus (cf. superus)], adj., low. — Superl., infinitus (-umus), imus, lowest, the bottom of, at the bottom: infimi (the lowest, the meanest). — Esp.: ab inferis (from the world below); ad (apud) inferos (in the world below).

infestus, -a, -um, [in-festus, fr. fendo], adj., hostile, in hostile array, pernicious. — Also, in danger.

in fidellis, -e, [i. in-fidelia], adj., unfaithful, wavering in faith, faithless.

infidelitas, -tatis, [infidelitatis], f., unfaithfulness, infidelity, treachery.

infimus, see inferus.

infinitus, -a, -um, [in-finitus], adj., unbounded, countless, endless, numberless, infinite, unlimited.

infirmitas, -tatis, [infirmitatis], f., feebleness, unsteadiness, inconstancy.

infirmus, -a, -um, [infirmus], adj., weak, feeble, helpless.

inflitator, -tōris, [inflitātor], M., a denier. — Esp. of debts, a slow debtor.

inficior (infic-), -ātus, -āri, [infitia-, stem of infitiae (in + stem akin to fateor)], i. v. dep., deny.

inflammō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [inflammo], i. v. a., set on fire. — Fig., fire, inflame, incense, kindle, infuriate.

infō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [inflo], i. v. a., blow upon, blow up. — Fig., inspire, puff up.

informō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [informo], i. v. a., form, train.

infringō, -frēgī, -fractus, -fringere, [in-frango], 3. v. a., break down, destroy.

infumus, see inferus.

ingenerō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [ingenero], i. v. a., implant. — Ingeniatus, inborn.

ingenium, -i, [in- genium, cf. genius], N., inborn nature, character, nature. — Hence, mental power, genius, intellect.

ingēns, -entis, [in-gens, not belonging to the kind (?)], adj., huge, enormous, very large.

ingenuus, -a, -um, [ingenuus, cf. gnōmus], adj. (born in the state or family, native?), freeborn. — As subst., a free person.

ingratōs, -a, -um, [ingratus], adj., ungrateful (in both Eng. senses), unpleasing.

ingravēscō, -escere, [ingrave- sco], 3. v. n., become heavier, grow serious, grow worse.

ingredior, -gressus, -gredi, [ingraddir], 3. v. dep., march into, enter, march in, go upon, go, enter upon: navem (go on board).
Vocabulary.

ingressus, -ūs, [in-gressus, cf. ingredior], m., an entrance.

inhaerē, -haesi, -haesūrus, -haerēre, [in-haereo], 2.v.n., fasten itself to, cling to, be fastened upon.

inhībeō, -hibuī, -hibitus, -hibēre, [in-habeo], 2.v.a., hold in, restrain.

inhiō, -āvi, no p.p., -āre, [in-hio], 1.v.n. and a., gape at: überibus (hold the open mouth to).

inhūmānus, -a, -um, [in-humanus], adj., inhuman, cruel.

inhumātus, -a, -um, [in-humatus], adj., unburied.

inlī in-ibi, adv., therein. — Less exactly, just there, just on the point of being done.

inlīō (inlēō), -ēciō, -jectus, -icere, [in-jacio], 3.v.a., throw into, throw upon. — Less exactly, place in, put on, bring upon. — Fig., inspire, cause.

inmīcticia, -ae, [inmicō + tia], F., enmity, hatred, a grudge, a feud, a quarrel, a cause of enmity.

inmīcicus, -a, -um, [i. in-amicus], adj., unfriendly, hostile. — As subst., an enemy (personal, or not in war, cf. hostis, an enemy of the state, or an enemy at war), a rival, an opponent.

inquinatūs, -ātus, [inquo + tas], F., inequality, irregularity, unevenness. — Fig., unfairness, injustice, iniquity: temporum (unfavorable nature).

inquisus, -a, -um, [in-aequus], adj., uneven. — Fig., unjust (of persons and things), unfair, unfavorable, disadvantageous.

initiō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [initiō-], 1.v.a., initiate, consecrate.

initium, -i, [in-titium (itō + ium), cf. ineo], N., a beginning, the first of, a commencement, a preface, a first attempt or event.

injurātus, -a, -um, [in-juratus], adj., unsworn, not on oath.

injurīa, -ae, [in-jus + ia, cf. juris], F., injustice, outrage, wrong, violence (as opposed to right), abuse. — Abl., injuriā (unjustly, wrongfully).

injurīosē [old abl. of injuriosus], adv., with outrage, abusively.

injustus, -a, -um, [in-justus], adj., unjust.

inlātus, -a, -um, p.p. of infere.

inlēcebra (III-), -ae, [inlēce- (as if stem of inlēcō) + bra, cf. latebra], F., an enticement, a blandishment, an allurement.

inlūcēscō (III-), -lūxi, no p.p., -lucēscere, [in-lucesso], 3.v.n., shine upon, shine, arise (of the sun, etc.).

illustri (-ill-) -e, [in-lustrō- (or kindred stem, cf. lustrō, light, conn. unc. with lustrum)], adj., bright, splendid, brilliant, illustrious, conspicuous.

inlustrō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [in-lustrō-, bright, see preceding word], 1.v.a., illuminate, light up, bring to light.

innāscor, -nātus, -nāsci, [innascor], 3.v.dep., grow in, spring up in. — Fig., be inspired, be excited. — Innātus, p.p., natural, innate, inborn: innata libertas (inborn spirit of liberty).

innocēns, entis,[in-noeoms (pres. p. of noceo), adj., harmless, guiltless, blameless, innocent, free from guilt (or corruption), doing no wrong. — As subst., an innocent man, etc., the innocent.

innocentia, -ae, [innocent+ia], F., blamelessness, innocence, blameless conduct (esp. in office).

innumerābilis, -e, [in-numerabilis], adj., countless, innumerable, numberless: innumerales pecuniae (countless sums of money).
Vocabulary.

inopla, -ae, [in-op-ia], F., scarcity, dearth, destitution, want, privation, want of supplies: inopla omnium rerum (every privation, utter destitution).

inops, -opis, [in-op-ae], adj., poor, destitute, in poverty.

inoratus, -a, -um, [in-oratus], adj., unpleaded: re inorata (without a hearing, changing the point of view).

inquam (inquiō), [ʔ], v. def., say, said I: inquam (said I); inquire (he says, said he).

inquirō, -quisivi, -quisitus, -quire, [in-quaero], 3. v. a. and n., enquire, investigate, make investigations.

inquisitor, -ōris, [in-quaesitor, cf. inquiro], m., an investigator, a detective.

inrēpō (irr-), -ēpsī, -reptūrus, -rēpere, [in-repo], 3. v. n., creep in, find one's way in, get in (surreptitiously).

inritō (irr-), -āvi, -ātus, āre, [in-rītō (of unc. kin.)], i. v. a., irritate, excite, provoke, arouse: vi (wantonly assail).

inrogō (irr-), -āvi, -ātus, āre, [in-rogō], 1. v. a., (propose a law against), propose (a law or fine against any one): multam (move, propose, of an accusation before the people for a fine).

inrumpō (irr-), -rūpi, -ruptus, -rumpere, [in-rumpo], 3. v. a. and n., break in, break down, break in upon, burst in: in nostrum fietum (break in upon and interrupt).

inruō (irr-), -ruī, no p.p., -ruere, [in-ruō], 3.v.n., rush in, rush upon: in aliquem (assail); in odium (force one's self needlessly).

inruptō (irr-), -onis, [in-pruptio, cf. inrumpo], F., an inroad, an attack, an invasion, an incursion, a raid.

insānia, -ae, [insanō + ia], F., insanity, madness, a craze: popularres insaniae (mad outbreaks of the people).

insāniō, -ivi (-ii), no p.p., -ire, [insanō-, as if insan-,], 4. v. n., rave, be insane, be mad.

insānus, -a, -um, [in-sannus], adj., (unsound).—Esp. in mind, insane, crazy, mad. — Also of things, crazy: subductiones (as indicating a craze).

inscitēns, -entis, [in-sciēnsa], adj., not knowing, ignorant. — Often rendered by adv., etc., unawares, without one's knowledge.

inscientia, -ae, [inscient + ia], F., ignorance, want of knowledge.

inscitia, -ae, [inscito + ia], F., ignorance, stupidity.

inscription, -scripsi, -scriptus, -scribere, [in-scribo], 3. v. a., write upon, inscribe.

insector, -ātus, -āri, [in-sector], 1. v. dep., pursue, follow up, inveigh against.

inssequor, -secūtus, -sequi, [insequor], 3. v. dep., follow up, pursue, attack, assail, harass, hunt down. — Also, follow, ensue.

inservīō, -ivi (-ii), no p.p., -ire, [in-servio], 4. v. n., be a slave to, yield to, follow the dictates of, devote one's self to.

insidēs, -ēdis, -esser, -sidēre, [in-sedeō], 2. v. n. (and a.), sit upon, cling to, lie, reside, lurk in.

insidiae, -ārum, [insula- (cf. praeceps) + ia], F. plur., an ambush, an ambush, a stratagem, a trick, a plot, a trap, treachery: per insidias (with deception, treacherously, cf. per).

insidiātor, -āris, [insidiātor], M., a plotter, a secret assassin, one in ambush, a liar in wait, a treacherous assailant: nullus insidiator viae (no one in ambush on the way).

insidiō, -ātus, -āri, [insula-], I. v. dep., lie in wait, make treacherous attacks, plot against, treacherously assail.

insidiōse [old abl. of insidiōsus], adv., treacherously.

insidiōsus, -a, -um, [insula + osus], adj., treacherous.

insidē, -ēdē, no p.p., -ēdere, [insula], 3. v. n. (and a.), sit upon, seat one’s self, sink in, settle upon, fasten itself upon, become settled in: macula (sink in, become fixed in).

insignis, -e, [insignē-, decl. as adj.], adj., marked, memorable, conspicuous, signal. — insigne, N. as subst., signal, sign, decoration (of soldiers), a mark, a symbol, insignia.

insimulō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [insimulo], I. v. a., charge, accuse.

insolēns, -entis, [insolēns], adj., unwonted, arrogant, insolent.

insolenter [insolent + ter], adv., in an unusual manner, insultingly.

insolentia, -ae, [insolent + ia], F., insolence, arrogance.

insolitus, -a, -um, [insolitus], adj., unwonted, unaccustomed.

inspectō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [inspecto], I. v. a. and n., look upon, look on: inspectantibus nobis (before our eyes).

inspērāns, -antis, [insperans], adj., unexpecting, not hoping, contrary to one’s expectations.

inspērātus, -a, -um, [insperatus], adj., unhoped for, unexpected, unlooked for.

instaurō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [instauro, cf. restaurō], I. v. a., renew, restore, repeat.

institūo, -tui, -tūtus, -tuere, [instituō], 3. v. a. and n., set up, set in order, array. — Also, provide, procure, get ready, plan. — Also, set about, undertake, instruct, begin to practise, start, set out, begin, adopt (a plan, etc.), resolve, determine, set on foot. — Also, teach, train, habituate, instruct. — Esp., ab instituto cursu (from one’s intended course).

institūtum, -ī, [N. p.p. of instituō], N., a habit, a practice, an institution, a custom.

instō, -stiti, -stāturus, -stāre, [insto], I. v. n., be at hand, be close at hand, press on, be pressing. — Fig., threaten, impend, menace.

instrumentum, -i, [instru + mentum], N., furniture, equipment, tools and stores (of soldiers), a means, stock (of a shopkeeper), stock in trade, means of subsistence: tribunatus (means of carrying on).

instruō, -struei, -structus, -struere, [instruo], 3. v. a., build, set up, array, draw up (of troops), furnish, equip.

insula, -ae, [akin to in-salio?], F., an island. — Esp., the Island (a part of Syracuse).

insultō, -āvi, -āturus, -āre, [insalto], I. v. n., leap upon, dance upon, trample on, trample under foot, insult, commit outrages, run riot, outrage, insult.

insum, -fui, -futurus, esse, [in-
Vocabulary.

sum], irr. v. n., be in, exist in, be present, be found.

insuō, -sui, -sūs, -suere, [in-suō], 3. v. a., sew up in, sew up.

integer, -gra, -grum, [in-tēger (black in tango, + rus)], adj., untouched, unimpaired, unworn, undiminished, uninjured, unbroken, entire, pure, fresh (as subst., fresh troops), inviolate. — Esp., undecided, not entered upon (of business): re integrā (new, afresh, before anything is done, before being committed to any course of action); id integrum (an open question). — Also, (untainted), upright, honest, honorable, unimpeachable.

integrē [old abl. of integer], adv., honestly, honorably.

integrātōs, -tās, [integrō+tas], f., honestly, integrity, blameless conduct, uprightness.

intellegō (-ligō), -lexī, -lectus, -legere, [inter-lego], 3. v. a. and n., (pick out [distinguish] between), learn, know, notice, observe, find out, discover, see plainly, be aware, observe, understand, be able to see, have intelligence, be a connoisseur.

intendō, -tendi, -dentus, -tondere, [in-tendo], 3. v. a. and n., stretch, strain, direct, aim (both active and neuter): arcum (aim); actionem (bring); animam (have in mind, direct one's thoughts).

intentō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [intento], i. v. a., strain, brandish.

inter [in + ter, cf. alter], prep. (adv. in comp.), between, among: inter falcarios (in the street of); constat inter omnes (by all); inter latera (about). — Of time, within, for: inter decem annos (within ten years, for the last ten years). — Often in a reciprocal sense: inter se (among themselves, with, to, from, at, etc., each other); diversi inter se (different); confingunt inter se (against each other).

Interamnās, -ās, [Interamna+tis], adj., of Interamna.

intercēdō, -cēsī, -cēsūrs, -cēdere, [inter-cedo], 3. v. n., come between, go between, lie between, intervene, exist between, occur between, be, pass (of time). — Esp. of the tribunes, veto, stay proceedings.

intercessīlō, -onis, [inter-cessio, cf. intercedo], f., a veto (cf. intercedo).

intercessōr, -ōris, [inter-cessor], m., (one who comes between), a surety. — Esp., a vetoing tribune (cf. intercedo).

interclūdō, -clūsī, -clūsus, -clūdere, [inter-cludo], 3. v. a., cut off, shut off, block (roads), put a stop to.

interdum [inter dum (orig. acc.)], adv., for a time, sometimes.

interē [inter ea (prob. abl.)], adv., meanwhile, in the mean time, meantime.

interēs, -īvi (-ii), -iūrus, -īre, [inter-oe (go into pieces?, cf. interficlo)], irr. v. n., perish, die, be killed, be destroyed.

interfētiō, -onis, [inter-ffatio (fa + tio)], f., an interruption.

interfector, -ōris, [inter-factor, cf. interficlo], m., a slayer, a murderer.

interficē, -fēcī, -fectus, -ficere, [inter-facio], 3. v. a., (cut to pieces, cf. interceu), say, kill, put to death, destroy.

interficēlō (-flēlo), -fēci, -fectus, -ficere, [inter-facio], 3. v. a., throw Vocabulary.

in (between).—Pass., lie between, intervene: tempore inter jecto (after an interval, etc.).

interim [perh. loc. of †interus (cf. inter, interior), but cf. interea, interībi], adv., meanwhile, in the mean time.

interimō, -ēmī, -emptus, -imere, [inter-emō], 3. v. a., kill (cf. interīcio), slay, destroy, put to death.—Less exactly, overwhelm.

interior, -us, [comp. of †interus (in-erus, cf. alter)], adj., inner, interior, farther in, more inland.—Superl., intimus (-tumus), -a, -um, [in + timus], inmost, most secret.—As subst., an intimate friend.

interitus, -tūs, [inter-itus, cf. interō], m., death, murder (changing the point of view), destruction, overthrow.

interjecīō, see interīcio.

intermortuus, -a, -um, [intermortuus], adj., faint, half dead, lifeless, still-born.

internecinus, see internecinus.

interneclō, -ōnis, [inter-nectio, same root as neco], f., extermination, annihilation.

internecinus (-cīnus), -a, -um, [inter-necticus], adj., utterly destructive: bellum (of extermination).—Also, interneclīvus.

interpellō, -āvī, -ātus, -āre, [interpellō, cf. appello, -āre], 1. v. a., interrupt, interfere with.

interpōnō, -posū, -positus, -posnere, [inter-pono], 3. v. a., place in between (lit. and fig.), interpose, introduce, allege (an excuse to break off something), thrust in, force in, put in: diebus interpositis (after an interval, etc.); se (act as go-between).

interpres, -pretis, [inter-pres

(akin to pretium?), c., a middleman, a mediator, an interpreter, an agent (for bribery).

interrogō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [interrogo], 1. v. a., (ask at intervals), question, interrogate, ask, put questions.

intersum, -fūi, -futūrus, -esse, [inter-sum], irr. v. n., be between, be among, be in, be engaged in, be present: nox interest (there is an interval of a night); rei (be engaged in, take part in).—Esp. in third person, it is of importance, it interests, it concerns: nihil interest (there is no difference, also, it makes no difference, it is of no importance); hoc interest (there is this difference); quid mea interest? (what is for my interest?); quid interest? (what is the difference?)

intervallum, -i, [inter-vallus, distance between stakes in a rampart], n., distance (between two things), distance apart, interval (of space or time), space, time: longo intervalllo (after a long interval, after a considerable time).

interventus, -tūs, [inter-ventus, cf. eventus and intervenio], m., a coming (to interrupt something), a coming in, an intervention.

intestinus, -a, -um, [?, perh. intus + tinus], adj., internal, intestine: pænicies (i.e., within the vitals of the state).

intimus, see interior.

intolerābilis, -e, [in-tolerābilis], adj., intolerable, unendurable, not to be borne.

intolerandus, -a, -um, [in-tolerandus], adj., not to be borne, unendurable.

intrā [instr. (?) of †interus, cf.
Vocabulary

| inter and extra[, adv. and prep. | inventory, -tōris, [in-+ventor, cf. inventio], m., a discoverer, an inventor, an originator. |
| into, within, inside. | investigō, -āvi, ātus, āre, [investigo], i. v. a. and n., trace out, investigate. |
| intrōduō, -dūxī, -ductus, -dūcere, [intro-duco], 3. v. a., lead in, bring in, march in (troops), introduce. | inveterāscō, -rāvī, -rātūrus, -rāscere, [in-veterasco], 3. v. n., grow old, become established, become fastened in or on, become rooted, become deeply seated or ingrained. |
| introitus, -tūs, [intro-itus], m., an entrance, an approach (means of entrance), a way of entrance: Ponti (mouth, i.e., the straits). — Fig., a door (as a way of entrance), an opening. | invictus, -a, -um, [invictus], adj., unconquered. — Also, unconquerable, invincible. |
| intueor, -tuitus (-tūtus), -tuērī, [in-tueor], 2. v. dep., gaze upon, gaze at, cast one's eyes upon, look upon, behold, look at, contemplate, study. | invideo, -vidī, -visus, -vidēre, [invideo, cf. invidus], 2. v. n. and a., envy, be jealous of, grudge, be envious. |
| intus [in + tus (an abl. ending, cf. divinītus)], adv., within. | invidia, -ae, [invidō + ia], f., envy, odium, jealousy, hatred, unpopularity. |
| nultus, -a, -um, [in-ultus], adj., unavenged, unpunished. | invidiosus [old abl. of invidiosus], adv., in a manner to excite odium. |
| inūrō, -üssi, -ustus, -ūrere, [inuro], 3. v. a., burn in, brand. — Fig., fix indelibly. | invidiosus, -a, -um, [invidia + osus], adj., causing odium: mihi est invidiosum (it is a ground of odium). |
| ināsitātus, -a, -um, [in-usitatus], adj., unwonted, unaccustomed, unusual. | invidus, -a, -um, [in-vidus (∩VID + us, wh. video)], adj., envious, jealous, ill-disposed, hostile, grudging. |
| inūtīlis, -e, [in-utilis], adj., of no use, unserviceable. — In a pregnant sense, unfavorable (positively disadvantageous), prejudicial. | invigilō, -āvi, no p.p., āre, [invigilo], i. v. n., (lie awake for), watch over, care for. |
| invādō, -vasi, -vāsūrus, -vādere, [in-vado], 3. v. n., rush in, attack, assail, make an attack, make a rush, make a charge. | inviolātus, -a, -um, [inviolatus], adj., inviolate, unharmed, uninjured. — Also (cf. invictus), inviolable: inviolata amicitia (without violating friendship). |
| invehō, -vēxi, -vectus, -vehere, [in-vehō], 3. v. a., carry in, carry against. — Pass. as dep., be borne, ride, sail in, assail (ride against). | invisus, -a, -um, [p.p. of invideo], as adj., hateful, odious, displeasing. |
| inventō, -vēnī, -ventus, -venire, [in-venio], 4. v. a., find (come upon, cf. reperio, find by search), learn, discover, meet with, invent, chance to have, originate. | invito, -āvi, ātus, āre, [?], i.v.a., invite. |
| inventus, -a, -um, [?], adj., un- |  | willing.—Often rendered as adv., against one's will, unwillingly.

ipse, a., -um, [ips- or optimus (?)]. intens. pron., self, very, himself, etc. (as opp. to some one else, e.g., sui, reflex. referring to the subject) he, etc. (emph.), he himself, etc.: tu ipse (you yourself); ipsius virtus (his own, etc.); id ipsum (that very thing); ad ipsum fornicem (just at, etc.); illis ipsius diebus (just at that very time); in his ipsis (even in these); Kalendaris ipsis (just at, etc.); ante ipsum sacram (just exactly before, etc.).

ira, a., -e, [i?], F., anger, wrath, resentment, rage.

irasundia, -ae, [irasundio+ia], F., wrath (as a permanent quality, cf. ira, a temporary feeling), irascibility, anger.

irasundus, -a, -um, [ira + cundus], adj., of a violent temper, passionate, irascible, wrathful, resentful, embittered.

irascaer, irātus, irāscī, [irā + sec], 3. v. dep., get angry, be angry.—

iris, iri, irae, a., -um, p.p. as adj., angry, in anger.

irr., see incr.

in, ea, id, [pron. ?1, pron. this (less emph. than hic), that (unemph.), these, these, etc., the, a, he, she, it, such, one, the man: id quod (which, omitting the demonstrative); atque is (and that too); in eo (in that matter); ex eo generis qui (of the kind, etc.); vacuus ab eis qui defenderent (of men to, etc.); vos qui . . . ei (you who . . . you); neque enim es, es, etc. (such a man, etc.); pro eo ac mareor (in proportion to what, etc.); is constitutus ex mare more (his statue, etc.); id aetatis filii (of that age, etc.).—Abl., N., eō, the (Old Eng. instrumental), so much, on that account, therefore: eo magis (all the more); eo atrocius (so much the more cruel).—See also ejusmodi.

iste, -a, -ud, [is-te (cf. tum, tantus, etc.)], pron., that, these, those, etc.—Esp. associated with the second person, with adversaries and opponents, that (you speak of), he (your client), those men (my opponents), that (of yours), that (by you).

ita [√ita (instr. of √ta)], adv., so, in such a way, under such circumstances, in this way, thus, as follows; often with limiting force, so (only): ut ... ita, ita ... ut (in proportion as, as); ita dictat (this).

Italia, -ae, [Italio- (reduced) + ia (f. of -ius)], F., Italy.

Italicus, -a, -um, [Italio + cus], adj., Italian: bellum (the Italic or Social war, B.C. 90).

itaque [ita que], adv., and so, accordingly, therefore.

item [√item (acc. ?, cf. idem)], adv., in like manner, so also, in the same way, also, likewise.

iter, itinera, [stem fr. ? (go) + unc. term.], N., a road, a march, a way, a route, a course, a journey.

iterum [√iter + terum, cf. alter], adv., a second time, again: semel atque iterum, iterum et saepius (again and again).

J.

Jaceō, -cui, -citurus, -cēre, [jāceō, cf. jaculum], 2. v. a., lie, lie dead, lie low, lie prostrate, be overthrown, fall to the ground.

Jacō, -ēcī, -ēctus, jacere, [jāceō, cf. jaceō], 3. v. a., throw, hurl, cast, throw out, bandy about.—Esp. of foundations, lay.

Jactō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [jaecē-],
Vocabulary.

i. v. a., (freq. of jaclo), toss, toss about, handy about (of talk); se jactate (insolently display itself, swagger, show one's arrogance or insolence), show oneself off.

jactāra, -ae, [jactu + ra (F. of rus)], F., a throwing away, a loss, a sacrifice (of men in war), expense, largesse, lavish expenditure.

jactus, -tus, [√jac + tus], M., a throw: fulminum (hurling, flash, stroke).

jam [acc. of pron. √ya], adv., now (of progressive time, cf. nunc, emphatic and instantaneous), by this time, at last, already, at length, still: non jam (no longer, not any more, etc.); nunquam jam (never more, never again); jam nemo (at last no one); jam ante, jam antea (already before, already before, also before, even before). — Of future time, presently, by and by. — Phrases, jam vero (now furthermore, then again, but: or com. partic. of transition); jam dudum, jam pridem (now for some time, long ago); nunc jam (now at last, now).

Janiculum, -i, [Janō + culum], N., the Janiculine hill.

Jānua, -ae, [ʔ, akin to Janus], F., a door. — Fig., gate.

Jānuarius, -a, -um, [ʔ, janua + arius], adj., of January.

jejūnus, -a, -um, [ʔ], adj., fasting. — Fig., meagre, poor, humble.

jubēō, īūsī, īūssus, īūberē, [prob. jus-habeo, cf. praebēo], 2. v. a., order, command, bid.

juccunditās, -tās, [jucco + tas], F., pleasantness, pleasure, charm.

juccundus, -a, -um, [ʔ, perh. for Juvicundus, akin to juvo], adj., pleasant, agreeable.

jūdex, -icus, [jus-tdex (F. DIC as stem)], M. and F., a judge, an arbiter. — Esp. in Roman jurisprudence, a jurymen (half judge and half jurymen, who decided Roman law cases), a judge: judices (gentlemen, i.e., of the jury).

jūdictālla, -e, [judiciō + alis], adj., judicial, of courts.

jūdicium, -i, [judic + ium], N., a judgment (judicial), a trial, a verdict, a prosecution. — As each trial made a court, a court, a panel of jurors, a bench of judges, the administration of justice, the judiciary, the judicial power. — Also, an expression of opinion (generally official), an opinion, a judgment, a decision.

jūdicō, -āvī, -ātus, -āre, [judic-], i. v. a., formally decide, decide, judge, be a juror, judge, think, consider, hold an opinion: equester ordo (hold the judiciary); subtiliter (be a connoisseur); de ingenīa (criticize, estimate); magna in hoc vis judicatur (is held to be, etc.).

jugulō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [jugulō-], i. v. a., cut the throat of, murder, assassinae, strangle (figuratively), put to death.

jugulum, -i, [jugō + ium], N., (a little yoke, the collar-bones), the throat, the neck.

jūlius, -ī, [ʔ], M., a Roman gentile name. — Esp., L. Julius Caesar, censor, B.C. 89.

jungō, junxī, junctus, jungere, [√jugō], 3. v. a., join, unite, attach, attach together. — In pass. or with reflex., unite with, attach one's self.

jūnīanus, -a, -um, [Junīs + anus], adj., of Junius: consilium (a jury of which one Junius was presiding prætor, and which had notoriously been bribed).
Vocabulary.

Jūnītus, -a, -um, [?], perh. akin to juvenis], adj., of June.

Jūpiter (Jūppr), Jovis, [Jovis-Pater], M., the god of the visible heavens and the atmosphere, who was regarded as the supreme divinity of the Romans, Jūpiter, Jove.—Identified with the Greek Zeus, hence with the adjective Olympus.

jūrō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [jur- (stem of jus)], I. v. n., swear, take an oath.—Jūrātus, -a, -um, p.p. in active sense, sworn, on oath.

jūs, jūris, [for j̄avus, yu (akin to yug + us)], N., justice, right, rights (collectively), rights over (anything, claims), law: communia jura (common rights of man); hoc juris constituiere (establish this as law); jure (with right, justly); praecipuo jure (with special justice); suo jure (with perfect right); optimo jure (with perfect justice).

jūsjūrandum, jūrisjūrandi, [see the two words], N., an oath.

jūsūs [abl. of j̄ussus], used as adv., by order: meo jussu (by my orders).

jūstitia, -ae, [justo-tia], F., justice (just behavior), sense of justice.

jūstus, -a, -um, [jus + tus], adj., just, lawful, reasonable.—Also, complete, perfect, regular: omnia justa solvere (all due rites).

juvenis, -e, [?], adj., young.—As subst., a young man (not over 45), a youth.

juvenītus, -ītīus, [juven (orig. stem of juvenis) + tus], F., youth.—Concretely, the youth, young men, the young.

jūvō, jūvi, jūtus, jūvāre, [?], I. v. a., help, aid, assist.

K.

Kal., abbrev. for Kalendae and its cases (wh. sec).

Kalendae (Cal.), -ārum, [F. pl. of cælendus, p. of verb akin to calo], F. plur., the Calends (the first day of the Roman month, when, as it would seem, the times of the moon were announced to the assembled people): pridie Kalendas Januarias (i.e., Dec. 31st).

Karthaginēnsis (Car-), -e, adj., Carthaginian.—Plur. as subst., the Carthaginians.

Karthāgō (Car-), -inis, [Punic, new city], F., Carthage.

L.

L., abbrev. for Lucius.

L. (L), [a corrupt form of the Greek letter γ (prop. γ), originally used for 50, and retained in the later notation], a sign for fifty.

labēfactō, -ēcī, -ēactus, -ēacere, [unc. stem (akin to labor) -ēacto], 3. v. a., shake, cause to totter.

labēfactō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [labē- (cf. labēfacto) -ēacto], 1. v. a., shake, cause to totter, weaken, undermine, overthrow, shatter, annul, invalidate, disturb.

lābēs, -is, [lab (in lābor) + es], F., a fall, ruin, a plague (fig.), a pest.—Also, a disgrace, a shame.

labō, -āvi, no p.p., āre, [?], akin to lābor], 1. v. n., totter, wave, give way.

lābor, lāpus, lābi, [?], akin to labo], 3. v. dep., slide, fall, slip, err. be imprudent.

labor, -ōris, [√lābē + or (for Vocabulary.

laetitia, -ae, [laetô + tia], F., joy, gladness (cf. laetus).
laetor, -ätus, -äri, [laetô-], I. v. dep., rejoice (cf. laetus), be glad, take delight: illud laetandum est (this is a cause of rejoicing).
laetus, -a, -um, [unc. root (perh. akin to glad) + tus], adj., joyful (of the inner feeling), rejoicing: me domus laetissima acceptit (with the greatest joy).

lamentatiō, -ōnis, [lamentā + tio], F., lamentation.
lamentor, -ätus, -äri, [lamento-], I. v. dep., lament, bewail.
lamentum, -i, [?], perh. √LU + mentum, cf. laedo, N., a lamentation.
lāmina, -ae, [?], perh. √LU + mina, F., a scale (of metal), a plate (esp. heated, used for torture).
languidus, -a, -um, [tlanguō-(whence langueo) + dus], adj., spiritless, listless, languid, stupid, sleepy, dozy: languidior (less active).
laniata, -ae, [?], M., a trainer (of gladiators).
lānuvinus, -a, -um, [Lanuvio + inus], adj., of Lanuvium. — Plur. M., the people of Lanuvium.

Lānuvium, -i, [?], N., a town of Latium, twenty miles from Rome on the Appian Way, famous for its worship of Juno Sospita.
lapidatiō, -ōnis, [lapidā + tio], F., a stoning, throwing stones.
lapis, -idis, [?], M., a stone.
laqueus, -i, [√lac (in laelo) + eus (? -AYAS)], M., a slip-noose, a snare. — Fig., the meshes (of the law, etc.).

Lār, Laris, [?], M., a household divinity: Lar familiaris (household gods, as a symbol of home), home, hearth and home.
large [old abl. of largus], adv., copiously, generously, lavishly.

largior, -itus, -iρί, [largō-], 4. v. dep., give lavishly, bestow upon, supply with, lavish upon, grant. — Also, give bribes, give presents.

largiōn, -ōnis, [largi- (stem of largior) + iō], F., lavish giving, bribery.

largitor, -tōris, [largi- + tōr], M., a lavish giver, a briber, a spendthrift.

lātē [old abl. of lātus], adv., widely, broadly: longe lateque (far and wide).

latēbra, -ae, [latē + bra], F., a hiding-place.

lātē, latēi, no p.p., latēre, [??], 2. v. n., lie concealed, lurk, be concealed, pass unnoticed, lie hid, work secretly.

Latiniāris (-ārīs), -e, [Lātīnō + arīs], adj., of Latium: Jupiter Latīniāris (the Jupiter worshipped on the Alban mount as the tutelar divinity of the old Latin union).

Latinēnsis, -e, [Latinē (?) + ensis], adj., of Latium, Latin.—Esp. as Roman proper name, Q. Cētius Latinēnsis, a tribune of the people.

Latinus, -a, -um, [Lātīnō + inus], adj., Latin.

Latium, -i, [prob. lātō + ium, N. of -ius, the flat land?], N., the country between the Apennines, the Tiber, and the Tuscan Sea, now the Campagna.

lātō, -tōris, [(t)la + tōr], M., a bearer, a proposer (of a law, cf. foro).

lātōn, -ōnis, [prob. stem borrowed fr. Greek + -o], M., a mercenary (?), a robber, a marauder.

lātōcinium, -i, [lātōcinō + iōn, cf. rātōcinō], N., freebooting, robbery, brigandage, marauding; a band of marauders, a marauding expedition (opposed to bellum, q. v.).

lātōcinor, -ānus, -ānī, [lātō-], F., a freebooter, act as a marauder: lātōcinnans (as a marauder).

lātus, -a, -um, [prob. for plātus, cf. Gr. πλάτος], adj., broad, wide, extensive.

lātus, lateris, [prob. lātō + rūs (reduced)], N., the side (of the body).

— Also, generally, a side, a flank, an end (of a hill).

lātus, -a, -um, [for plātus, πλάτος (cf. tollō, tollō) + rūs], p.p. of foro.

laudātiōn, -ōnis, [lādā + iōn], F., a eulogy, a funeral oration.

laudātor, -tōris, [lādā + tōr], M., a eulogizer, an extoller.

laudātus, -āvī, -āvī, -āre, [lādā-], 1. v. a., praise, commend, approve, eulogize, applaud.

laureātus, -a, -um, [laurea + tus, cf. robustus], adj., laurelled, crowned with laurel.

laus, laudis, [??], F., praise, credit, renown, reputation, glory, merit (thing deserving praise), excellence: in hac laude industriæ (in gaining this credit by, etc.); fructum istum laudis (the gaining of that credit).

lautumiae (lātō-, lātu-), ārum, [lārovlā], F. plur., a stone-quarry.

lectulus, -i, [lectō + lus], M., a couch, a sofa, a bed.

lectūs, -i, [??], M., a bed, a couch.

lectus, -a, -um, p.p. of legō, wh. see.

lēgātiō, -ōnis, [lēgā + iōn], F., a sending or commission, an embassy, an embassy (message of ambassadors), the office of legatus: qua in legatione (in which office); jus
Vocabulary

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Latin</th>
<th>English</th>
<th>Meaning</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>legationis</td>
<td>the rights of ambassadors.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>légátus, -i, [prop. p.p. of lægo], m., an ambassador. — Also, a lieutenant, a legatus.</td>
<td>To a Roman commander were assigned (legare) one or more subordinate officers capable of taking command in his absence or engaging in independent operations under his general direction. These were the legati, and with the questor composed a kind of staff.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>légítimus, -a, -um, [leg (as if legit) + timus], adj., lawful, legal, of law, according to law, at law.</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>légō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [†lega- (cf. collega)], 1. v. a., despatch, commission, commission as legatus, choose as legatus, assign (as legatus).</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>légō, légè, lectus, legere, [cf. Gr. λέγει], 3. v. a. and n., choose, collect, pick out. — Hence, read, read of. — lectus, -a, -um, p.p. as adj., choice, esteemed, superior.</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>lēniō, -ivi (-ii), -itus, -īre, [leni-], 4. v. a., soothe, mitigate.</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>lēnis, -e, [?], adj., gentle, lenient, mild.</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>lēnitās, -ātis, [leni + tas], F., gentleness, leniency.</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>lēniāre [leni+āre], adv., gently.</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>lēnō, -onis, [?], leni + o], m., a pander, a pimp, go-between.</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>lēnōcinum, -i, [†lenocinō (cf. lenocinar) + iūm], N., pandering.</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>lentē [old abl. of lentus], adv., slowly.</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Lentulus, -i, [lentō + lus], m., a Roman family name. — Esp.: 1. Cn. Cornelius Lentulus Clodianus, cons. B.C. 72; 2. P. Cornelius Lentulus Sura, cons. B.C. 71, one of the Catilinarian conspirators; 3. L. Lentulus, an unknown prætor; 4. P. Cornelius Lentulus Spinther, cons. B.C. 57, a supporter of Cicero; 5. The son of No. 4, of the same name.</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>lentus, -a, -um, [len (cf. lēnis) + tus], adj., flexible. — Also, slow.</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>lepidus, -a, -um, [lepō- (cf. lepor) + dus], m., graceful. — As a Roman family name. — Esp.: 1. M'. Ėmilius Lepidus, cons. B.C. 66; 2. M'. Ėmilius Lepidus, cons. B.C. 78, killed in a quarrel with his colleague, Q. Catulus; 3. Son of the preceding, of the same name, the famous triumvir whose house was robbed by the partisans of Clodius.</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>levīs, -e, [for †legevis, √lagh + us (with inserted i, cf. brevis), cf. Gr. ἅλβες, Eng. light], adj., light, slight, trivial, unimportant, of no weight. — Also (cf. gravis), inconstant, fickle, wanting in character, worthless, unprincipled.</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>levitās, -ātis, [levi + tas], F., lightness. — Also (cf. levīs), inconstancy, fickleness, want of principle, unsteadiness.</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>levīter [levi + ter], adv., lightly, slightly: ut levissime dicam (to say the least).</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>levō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [levi- (as if levō-)], 1. v. a., lighten. — Hence, free from a burden, relieve, alleviate, lessen: annum (relieve the market, lessen the price of grain).</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>lex, lēgis, [√leg (in lego)], F., a statute, a law, a condition.</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>libellus, -i, [librō + lus], m., a little book, a list, a paper.</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>libēns (lub-), see libet.</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Vocabulary.

libenter [libent-ter], adv., willingly, gladly, with pleasure. — With verb, be glad to, etc.: libertissimae audire (most like to hear).

1. liber, -bera, -berum, [tlibō (whence libet) + rus (reduced)], adj., free (of persons and things), unrestricted, undisturbed, unincumbered, independent.

liber, libri, [2], m., bark (of a tree). — Hence, a book.

2. liber, -erī, [same word as 1. liber, connection uncertain], m., an Italian deity of agriculture. — Hence identified with Bacchus.

Libera, -ae, [f. of preceding word], f., an Italian goddess identified with Proserpine (cf. Kǒn).

liberalis, -ēs, [1. liber + alia], adj., of a freeman, generous, liberal, noble (studia).

liberalitas, -tātis, [liberalis + tas], f., generosity.

liberaliter [liberalis+ter], adv., generously, kindly (respondit).

liberātīō, -onis, [liberā + tio], f., a setting free, a freeing, acquittal.

liberātōr, -tōris, [liberā + tor], m., a deliverer, a liberator.

liber [old abl. of liber], adv., freely, without restraint, with freedom.

liber, -erum, [prob. m. plur. of liber, the free members of the household], m. plur., children. — Sometimes even of one.

liberō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [liberō-], i. v. a., free, set free, relieve (from some bond), absolve, acquit: liberatūr Milo non profectus esse (is acquitted of having, etc).

libertās, -tātis, [liberō (reduced) + tas], f., liberty, freedom, independence. — Hence, Liberty (personified and worshipped as a divinity).

libertinus, -i, [libertō + inus], m., a freedman (as a member of a class, cf. libertus). Also as adj.

libertus, -i, [liberō (reduced) + tus], m., a freedman (in reference to his former master, cf. libertinus).

libēt (lib-), -uit (libītum est), -ēre, [?, cf. liber], 2. v. impers., it pleases, one desires, one is pleased to.

libēns, -entis, p., glad, pleased, gladly, with pleasure, with good will.

libidinosē (lib-), [old abl. of libidinosus], adv., arbitrarily, lawlessly, licentiously.

libidinosus (lib-), -a, -um, [libidin + osus], adj., arbitrary, lawless, licentious.

libidō (lib-), -inis, [akin to liber, cf. cupido], f., lawlessness, licentiousness, cuprice, lust, desire, lawless fancy, arbitrary conduct, wantonness.

librārium, -i, [libro + arium] (N. of librārius), N., a bookcase.

licentia, -ae, [licent + ia], f., license, lawlessness.

licet, licuit (licitum est), licēre, [tlicēb, cf. delicius, reliquus], 2. v. impers., it is lawful, it is allowed, one may, one is allowed, one is permitted. — licet, although, though.

Licinius, -i, [linīō + ius], m., a Roman gentile name. — Esp.: 1. A. Licinius Archias, the poet defended by Cicero; 2. Licinius, an obscure restaurant-keeper. Cf. Lucullus.

lector, -tōris [?, perh. úlcer + tor], m., a lictor (the attendant of the higher Roman magistrates).

Ligārius, -i, [?], m., a Roman gentile name. — Esp., Q. Ligarius, an officer in Pompey’s army in Africa, defended by Cicero before Caesar.

 lignum, -i, [?], N., wood, a log.

limen, -inis, [akin to manus, ob-
Vocabulary.

liquidus, N., (a crosspiece), a threshold, a lintel: omnis aditus et limen (all approach and entrance).

lingua, -ae, [?] F., a tongue.— Hence, a language.

litera (litt-), -ae, [?], F., letter (of the alphabet). — Plur., letters, writing, an alpē: a letter (an epistle), literature, a document.

literātus (litt-), -a, -um, [litera + tus], adj., educated, cultivated.

litūra, -ae, [litū- (li in lūno + tu)] F., an erasure.

locō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [loco-], I. v. a., place, station. — Hence, let, make a contract, contract for.

locōrensis, -e, [Locri + ensis], adj., of Locri (a Greek city of Italy near Rhegium). — Plur., the people of Locri.

locuplēs, -plēsis, [loco-pleis (ple + tus, reduced)], adj., (with full coffers?), rich, wealthy, responsible.

locupletō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [locuplet-], I. v. a., enrich.

locus, -i, [for tōlocus, /STLA + cus], M. (sing.), N. (generally pl.), a place, a spot, a position, a region (esp. in plur.), a point, the ground (in military language), space, extent (of space), room. — Fig., position, a station, rank, a point, place (light, position, character), an opportunity, a chance, condition, state of things, an occasion, point (in argument).

longē [old abl. of longus], adv., far, too far, absent, far away, distant.

longinquītās, -ītās, [longinquo + ās], ās, distance.

longinquus, -a, -um, [case-form of longus (perh. loc.) + ās], adj., long (in time and space), distant, long-continued.

longiusculus, -a, -um, [longior +culus], adj., rather long, a little longer.

longus, -a, -um, [?], adj., long (of space and time), far, distant: longum est commemorare (it is too long to, etc., it would take too long to, etc.); ne longum sit (not to be too long).

loquor, locūtus, loqui, [?], 3. v. dep., speak, talk, converse, express one's self, say (with neuter pron.): auctoritas loquentium (in words).

lubet, see libet.

lubidō, see lībido.

Luccējus, -i, [?], M., an Italian gentile name. — Esp., Q. Lucceius, a banker at Rhegium.

luciēs, -ōs, [lucēs (stem of lux)], 2. v. a., shine, beam. — Fig., be clear, be obvious, be conspicuous.

luctuōsus, -a, -um, [luctu + osus], adj., full of grief, sorrowful, distressing.

luctus, -ūs, [lug + tus], M., grief, sorrow, mourning.

Lūcullus, -i, [?], M., a Roman family name. — Esp.: 1. L. Licinius Lucullus, the able general of the third Mithridatic war; 2. M. Licinius Lucullus, brother of the preceding. The whole family was rich and cultivated.

Lucus, -i, [prob. √LUC (in lux + us), M., (an open grove, as opposed to the forest), a grove (commonly sacred).

Ludificatio, -onis, [ludificatio + tio], F., derision, mockery.

Ludus, -i, [-?], M., play, sport. — Also, a school, a training-school. — Plur., games (Roman festivals).

Lugeo, lœi, lœurus, lœgere, [lugo, cf. lugeo and lœrös], 2. v. a. and n., mourn, bewail, lament.

Lumen, -inis, [√LUC + mens], N., a light (also fig.): ipsa lumina (the brightest lights.)

Lunet, see inter.

Luo, lui, luiturus, luer, [√LU, cf. lamb], 3. v. a., loose. — Esp., pay. suffer (a penalty), atone for (a fault).

Lupa, -ae, [-?], cf. λοκος], F., a she-wolf. — Also, a prostitute.

Lupinus, -i, -um, [lupō + inua], adj., of a wolf, of the wolf (the nurse of Romulus and Remus).

Lustrā, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [lustrā-,], 1. v. a., purify. — Hence, go over (for purification), pass over.

Lustrum, -i, [unc. form from √LU + trum, cf. monstrum], N., a toga. — Hence, a brothel. — Hence in pl., debauchery.

Lutum, -i, [√LU + tum, N. of tus], N., ("the wash"), mud, mire.

Lūx, lucis, [√LUC (in luceo) as stem], F., light, light of the sun, sunlight, open light, daylight: ante lucem (before daybreak).

Luxuria, -ae (also -iēs, -iēn), [-luxuēris, -eis + ruus + ia], F., luxury, riotous living, fast lives (cf. Juvenatus, the youth).

Luxuriae, -ēi, see luxuria.

M.

M., abbreviation of Marcus.

M. [corruption of CIIO (orig. Æ) through influence of milie], 1000.

M., abbreviation for Manius.

Macedonia, -ae, [Macedonia], F., the country originally bounded by Thessaly and Epirus, Thrace, Paeonia, and Illyria; finally conquered by T. Quinctius Flamininus, B.C. 197.

Macedonicus, -a, -um, [Macedonius], adj., Macedonian.

Machina, -ae, [machine], F., a contriver, a manager.

Machinator, -ātor, -āris, [machinā + tor], M., a contriver, a manager.

Machinātor, -ātor, -āris, [machinā + tor], M., a contriver, a manager.

Macula, -ae, [-?], F., a spot, a stain.

Maculō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [macula-], 1. v. a., stain, pollute.

Maeffectō, -ēcī, -ēactus, -ēcere, [made- (stem akin to mædeo) + facio], 3. v. a., moisten, wet.

Maelius (Mælius), -i, [-?], M., a Roman gentile name. — Esp., Sp. Maelius, a Roman, killed, B.C. 439, by Servilius Ahala, on the charge of aiming at regal power.

Mæres (moe-), no perf., no p.p., -ère, [mæerō, cf. mæestus], 2. v. a. and n., mourn, grieve, be in sorrow, grieve for, mourn for.

Mæror (moe-), -ōris, [maes (cf. maeestus) + or], M., grief, sorrow, sadness.

Mæstitia (moe-), -ae, [mæstē + tia], F., sadness, sorrow.

Mæstus (moe-), -a, -um, [√mis? (in miser) + tus], p.p. of mæroo as adj., sad, sorrowful.
Vocabulary.

magis [\sqrt{MAG} (in magnus) + ius (N. comp. suffix)], adv., more, rather, more than usual, better.—See also maxime.

magister, -ṣtri, [magis + ter, cf. alter], M., a master, an instructor, a teacher.

magistra, -ae, [F. of preceding], F., a mistress, a teacher (female, or conceived as such).

magistrātus, -tūs, [magistrā- (as if stem of *magistro) + tua], M., a magistracy (office of a magistrate).—Concretely, a magistrate (cf. "the powers that be").

magnificē [old abl. of magnificus], adv., magnificently, handsomely, finely.

magnificus, -a, -um, [magnōtīcus (\sqrt{FAC} + us)], adj., splendid, grand, magnificent.

magnitūdō, -dinis, [magnō + tudo], F., greatness, great size, size, extent, stature, great extent, enormity, great amount, importance: animi magnitudo (lofty spirit, nobleness of soul).

magnopere, see opus.

magnus, -a, -um, [\sqrt{MAG} (increase) + nus, cf. magis], adj., great (in any sense, of size, quantity, or degree), large, extensive, important, serious, deep (ignominia), violent (minas), loud (clamor), rich (fructus), powerful (subsidiun): magni habere (to value highly, make much account of); magni interest (it is of great importance); magnum et sanctum (a great and sacred thing); magnum et amplum cogitare (have great and lofty ideas).—See also Magnus.—māior, comparative, in usual sense.—Also, māior (with or without natu), elder, older.—In plur. as subst., elders, ancestors: pecunia major (a greater amount of money).—māximus, superl., largest, very large, greatest, very great, very loud, most important, etc.—See also Maximus.

Māgnus, -i, [magnus], M., a Roman name.

mājstās, -tātis, [majos- (orig. stem of major) + tas], F., (superiority), majesty, dignity.—Esp. (for mājestas deminuta), treason.

mājor, see magnus.

male [old abl. of malus], adv., badly, ill, not well, hardly: loqui (abusively); existimare (ill, evil).

maledictum, -i, [male dictum], N., an insult (in words), abuse.

maleficium, -i, [maleficō + um], N., harm, mischief, a crime, a misdeed.

malitia, -ae, [malō + tia], F., wickedness, trickery.

malitiōsē [old abl. of malitiōsus], adv., by trickery.

malleolus, -i, [malleō + tua], M., (a hammer), a grenade, a fire-dart.

Mallius, -i, [?], M., a Roman gentile name.—Esp., Mallius Glauceia, a friend of T. Roscius.—See also Manlius.

mālō, mālui, no p.p., mālē, [mage- (for magis) volo], irr. v. a. and n., wish more, wish rather, prefer, will, etc., rather, choose rather.

malus, -a, -um, [?], adj., bad (in all senses), ill, wretched.—pējor, comp.—pejus, superl.—mālum, N. as subst., mischief, evil, harm, misfortune, trouble: malus civis (dangerous, pernicious).

Mamertinus, -a, -um, [Mamert + inus, of Mars], adj., Mamertine (belonging to a body of mercenary troops who seized the city of Messina).—Plur., the Mamertines (the inhabitants of the city Captured by these adventurers.

mancps, -ips, [manu-+cps, cf. princeps], m., a purchaser.
mancus, -a, um, [?], adj., maimed, crippled.
mandātum, -i, [N. p.p. of mando], n., a trust (given to one), instructions (given), a message (given).
mandō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [?], mandō- (manu-do), 1. v. a., put into one’s hands, entrust, instruct (give instructions to), commit, consign, confer (honores, imperia), order, command: ea animis (let sink, etc.).
mānē [abl. of mānālis (m. + nis, cf. matuta, maturus)], adv., in the morning, early in the morning.
mancē, mānsī, mansūrus, manere, [unc. stem akin to Gr. μάνω], 2. v.n., stay, remain, stay at home, continue, last, persist in, abide by.
mancētus, -a, um, [manica + tus], adj., long-sleeved, with sleeves.
mancētus, -a, um, red-sleeved, clearly, obviously.
mancētus, -a, um, [manica + tus, cf. infestus, caught by laying on the hand?], adj., caught in the act, proved by direct evidence (as opposed to circumstantial evidence), overt, clear, manifest, audacious, rampant: audacia (unblushing, as not attempting concealment).

Mānius, -i, [mahe(?) + ius], m., a Roman gentile name.—Sp.: 1. Q. Manlius, a juror in the case of Verres; 2. C. Manlius (Mallius), one of Catiline’s accomplices.
mansuetū [old abl. of mansuetus], adv., mildly, kindly.
mansuetūdō, -inis, [manu-+tudo], f., mildness, gentleness. mansuetus, -a, um, [manu-suetus], adj., (wonted to the hand), tame, gentle, kind.

manublæ, -ārum, [?, akin to manus], f. plur., money derived from booty, booty.

mansūmitā [also separate], -mis, -missus, -mittere, [manu-mitto], 3. v. a., (let go from one’s hand), manumit, free.

manus, -ūs, [?], f., the hand, violence.—Also (cf. manipulus), a company, a band, a troop.—Also, handwriting: in manibus habere (have on hand, have); manu factum (wrought by art).—Cf. also manumittere.

Mārcellus, -i, [Marculō- (Marco + ius) + ius], m., (the little hammer?), a Roman family name.—Esp.: 1. M. Claudius Marcellus, the conqueror of Syracuse, B.C. 212; 2. M. Claudius Marcellus, an unworthy member of the same great family; 3. M. Claudius Marcellus, cons. B.C. 51, defended by Cicero before Cesar; 4. C. Claudius Marcellus, cons. B.C. 50, cousin of the preceding.

Marcellus (Marlii?), -i, [?, Mart + ius?], m., a Roman gentile name.—Esp., C. Marcius, a Roman knight.

Mārcus, -i, [Marcius, (Marcius, etc.) + ius, the hammer?, the warrior?], m., a Roman prænomen.
Vocabulary.

mare, -is, [?], N., the sea, a sea: terra marique (on land and sea).

martimus (-tumus), -a, -um, [mari + timus, cf. finitimus], adj., of the sea, sea, maritime, naval, on the sea.

Marius, -i, [?], m., a Roman gentile name. — Esp., C. Marius, the opponent of Sulla and the champion of the popular against the aristocratic party. He conquered the Cimbri and Teutones (B.C. 101) and freed Rome from the fear of a Northern invasion. In his sixth consulship, B.C. 100, he killed the demagogues Saturninus and Glaucia: Mario consule et Catulo (B.C. 102).

marmor, -oris, [?], perh. √MAR reduplicated], N., marble.

marmoreus, -a, -um, [marmor + eus], adj., of marble, marble.

Mars, Martinus, [-, perh. √MAR (in morior) + tis, the slayer, but more probably of wolves than of men in battle], m., Mars, originally probably a god of husbandry defending the sheep, but afterwards identified with the Greek “Apis and worshipped as the god of war: Mars communis (the favor of the god of war); Martis via (the violence of war).

Martius, -a, -um, [Mart + ius], adj., of Mars. — Martia, the title of a legion active in the struggle against Antony.

Massilia, -ae, [?], F., Marseilles.

Massilenis, -e, [Massilia + ensis], adj., of Marseilles. — Plur., the people of Marseilles.

mater, -tris, [?], prob. √MA (create) + ter], F., a mother, a matron.

mater familias [see the words], F., a matron.

mater[i]a, -ae (-ca, -ci), [?], prob. mater + ia (F. of -ius), F., wood (cut, for material), timber (cf. lignum, wood for fuel). — Fig., source, instrument.

maternus, -a, -um, [mater + nus], adj., maternal, of one’s mother.

mattēr [old abl. of maturus], adv., early, speedily.

matūritās, -ātis, [maturo + tas], F., maturity, full development.

matūro[-], -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [matūr-], I. v. a. and n., hasten, make haste, anticipate, forestall.

matūrus, -a, -um, [matūrus], in mane, + tus] + rius], adj., early.

— Also (by unc. conn. of ideas), ripe, mature.

maximē, see magis.

maximus, see magnus.

Maximus, -i, [sup. of magnus, as subst.], m., a Roman family name.

Mēδēs, -ae, [Mḗδeua], F., the daughter of Aetês, king of Colchis, who eloped with Jason. She is often represented in works of art.

medeor, no p.p., -ěri, [tmedē- (whence medicus, remedium), root unc., cf. Gr. μαυρικόν, but also meditor], 2. v. dep., attend (as a physician), heal. — Fig., remedy, relieve, cure, treat, apply a remedy.

medicus, -a, -um, [medicō + inus], adj., medical. — Esp., medicina (sc. ars), medicine, the art of healing, a remedy.

mediciner, -cre, [mediō + oris, cf. iudicier], adj., middling, moderate, ordinary, tolerable, within bounds, small, trifling, slight.

mediocriter [mediocri + ter], adv., moderately, slightly, somewhat.

meditor, -ātor, -āri, [tmedīō- (as if p.p. of medeōr)], I. v. dep., (practise?), dwell upon (in thought), think of, meditate. — meditātus, -a, -um, p.p. in pass. sense, practised.
Vocabulary.

medius, -a, -um, [√MED (cf. Eng. mid) + ius], adj., the middle of (as noun in Eng.), medio in medio and in medium (abroad, in public, to public notice, to light, before the world, before you, etc.); ex media morte (from the jaws of death, from instant death); de medio (out of the way).

meherculē (mehercē, meherculēs, also separate) [me Hercules (juvet)], adverbial exclam., bless you! bless me! upon my word, good Heavens! as sure as I live, as I live, and the like.

mellor, see bonus.

membrum, -i, [?; prob. formed with suffix -rum (N. of -rus)], N., a limb, a part of the body.

memini, -is, [perf. of √MAN, in mens, etc.], def. verb a., remember, bear in mind, keep in mind.

Memmius, -i, [?; M.; a Roman gentile name. — Esp., C. Memmius, a worthy Roman, murdered at the instigation of Saturninus and Glau- cia.

memor, -oris, [prob. √SMAR reduplicated], adj., remembering, mindful.

memoria, -ae, [memor + ia], F., (mindfulness), memory, recollection, remembrance, power of memory: memoria retinere (remember); memoria pro- dere (hand down the memory, of something); memoria deponere (cease to remember); memoriae promitum (handed down by tradition); dignum memoria (worthy of remembrance); post hominum memoria (since the memory of man, within the, etc.); litterarum (testimony); publica (record).

mendaculum, -i, [mendacium], N., falsehood, a falsehood.

mendicitās, -tās, [mendicō + tas], F., beggary.

mēns, mentis, [√MAN + tis (reduced)], F., a thought, the intellect (as opposed to the moral powers, cf. animus), the mind, a state of mind, a change of mind, a purpose: mentes animique (minds and hearts); oculis mentibusque (eyes and thoughts); venit in mentem (it occurs to one).

mēnsa, -ae, [?], F., a table.

mēnsis, -is, [unc. form fr. √MA (cf. Gr. μῆν, moon, month)], M., a month.

mentō, -onis, [as if √MAN (in memini) + tio (prob. menti- (stem of mens) + o)], F., mention.

mentor, -itūs, -īri, [menti- (stem of mens)], 4. v. dep., lie, speak falsely.

mercātor, -ōris, [†mercātor], M., a trader (who carries his own wares abroad).

mercūnarius (mercennarius), -a, -um, [stem akin to merces + arius], adj., hired, mercenary, hireling, paid.

mercēs, -ēdis, [†mercē (akin to merx) + dus (reduced)], F., hire, pay, wages, reward.

mereor, -ītūs, -ēri, (also mereo, active), [†merō (akin to Gr. μερο- μα), 2. v. dep., win, deserve, gain. — Also (from earning pay), serve: quid merere ut, etc. (take to, etc.); bene meriti cives (deserving); bene mēri de, etc. (deserve well of, etc., serve well). — meritus, -a, -um, p.p. in pass. sense, deserved.

meretrīcius, -a, -um, [meretrīc + ius], adj., of a harlot, mercetricious.

meritō, see meritum.

meritum, -i, [N. of p.p. of mer- reo], N., desert, service. — meritō (abl. as adv.), deservedly.
Vocabulary.

merx, mercis, [√MERC + is, cf. merces], F., mercandise, wares.

Messina, -ae, [Μεσσήνη], F., a city on the east coast of Sicily, opposite the extremity of Italy (Messina).

-met, [unc. form of pron. √MA], intens. pron., self (appended to pronoun for emphasis), often untranslated.

mētātor, -ōris, [méta+tor], M., a measurer, a surveyor.

Metellus, -i, [M], M., a Roman family name. — Esp.; 1. Q. Caecilius Metellus Nepos, brother of Cecilia (which see) and father of Celer (3) and Nepos; 2. M. Metellus, pretor, B.C. 69, the brother of Q. Metellus Creticus (3); 3. Q. Metellus Creticus, cons. 69; 4. L. Metellus, pro- pretor in Sicily, B.C. 70; 5. Q. Metellus Celer, pretor, B.C. 63, consul, B.C. 60, son of (1); 6. Q. Metellus Baltaricus, cons. B.C. 123; 7. Q. Metellus Numidicus, cons. B.C. 109, cousin of (6); 8. Q. Metellus Pius, pretor, B.C. 89, son of (7); 9. Q. Metellus Nepos, cons. B.C. 98, son of (6).

metō, messuī, messuus, metere, [?], 3. v. a., cul, reap, gather.

metuō, -uī, -utus, -uere, [metu-], 3. v. a. and n., fear: aliquid (have any fear).

metus, -tūs, [unc. root (perh. √MA, think) + tus], M., fear, anxiety (about). — Often superfluous with other words of fearing: metu territare (terrify). — Esp.: hoc metu (fear of this).

meus, -a, -um, [√MA (in me) + ius], adj. pron., my, mine, my own: meo jure (with perfect right).

miles, -itis, [unc. stem akin to mille as root + tis (reduced)], M. and F., a soldier, a common soldier (as opposed to officers), a legionary soldier (heavy infantry, as opposed to other arms of the service). — Collectively, the soldiers, the soldiery.

militāria, -e, [milit + aris], adj., of the soldiers, military: signa (battle-standards); res militaria (military affairs, war, the art of war); usus militaris (experience in war); virtus (of a soldier, soldierly).

millia, -ae, [milli+ia], F., military service, service (in the army).

mille, ind. milla, -ium, [akin to miles], adj. (rarely subst.) in sing., subst. in plur., a thousand: mille passum (a thousand paces, a mile).

milleās (mille+ēs), [mille+ēs], adv., a thousand times.

Milo, -onis, [Μίλων], M., a famous athlete of Crotona. — Also used as a family name by T. Annius, which see.

minae, -ārum, [√MIN + a], f. plur., (projections), threats, threatening words.

Minerva, -ae, [prob. √MAN (in mens) + unc. term], F., the goddess of intelligence and skill among the Romans. — Also identified with Pallas Athene, and so more or less associated with war.

minimē [old abl. of minimus], adv., in the smallest degree, least, very little, not at all, by no means: minimē vero (not in the least).

minimus, -a, -um, [lost stem (wh. minuo) +imus (cf. infimus)], adj., superl. of parvus, smallest, least. — Neut. as subst. and adv., the least, least, very little.

minister, -tri, [minos (minor)
Vocabulary.

compose of (a mixture), get up (a disturbance), plan or make a disturbance, make confusion. — mixtus (mistus), -a, -um, p.p., made up of a mixture of, heterogeneous.

Milanum, -i, [Μίλανον], N., a town in Campania, on a promontory of the same name (cf. Virg. Aen. vi. 234).

miser, -era, -erum, [√mis (cf. maeréo) + rus], adj., wretched, pitiable, miserable, poor, unfortunate, in misery: ille miser (the wretched man); isti miseri (these poor creatures).

miserabilis, -e, [miserābilis], adj., pitiable, wretched, miserable.

miserandus, see miseror.

misereō, -ui, -itus, -ere, usually misereor, dep., [miser], 2. v. a. and dep., pity, show pity. — Esp., misereor, etc., impersonal (it pities one, etc.), one pities.

miseria, -ae, [miserī + ia], F., wretchedness, misery.

misericordia, -ae, [misericord + ia], F., mercy, pity, clemency, compassion.

misericors, -cordis, [miserō-cor, declined as adj., cf. concors], adj., merciful, pitying, compassionate.

miseror, -ātus, -āri, [miserō-], 1. v. dep., bewail, complain of. — miserandus, -a, -um, fut. p. in pass. sense, to be pitied, pitiable.

Mithradātēs (Μιθραδάτης), -is (also -i), [Μιθραδάτης], M., a name of several Eastern kings. — Esp., Mithridates VI., called the Great, king of Pontus, the adversary of the Romans in the Mithridatic wars, from B.C. 88 to B.C. 61.

Mithradaticus (Μιθραδατικός), -a, -um, [Greek], adj., of Mithridates, Mithridatic.
Vocabulary.

mitis, -e, [?], adj., (soft?), mild, gentle, compassionate.

mittō, misi, missus, mittere, [?], 3. v. a., let go (cf. omittō), send, despatch, discharge, shoot. — Also, pass over, omit, say nothing of: haec missa facio (I pass these by). — Esp., manu mittere (emancipate, set free).

moderatorē, -onis, [moderator-tio], adj., with self-control, with moderation.

moderatorēō, -onis, [moderator+tio], F., control, regulation, — Esp., self-control, moderation, consideration (in refraining from something).

moderator, -ātus, -āris, [†modes-(see modestus, and cf. genus, genero)], 1. v. dep., control, regulate, restrain, — moderatorēs, -a, -um, p.p. in pass. sense, moderated, self-controlled, well balanced, well governed.

modestia, -ae, [modestō + ia], F., moderation, self-control, subordination (of soldiers).

modestus, -a, -um, [†modes-(cf. moderator) + tus], adj., self-controlled, well balanced, well regulated.

modo [abl. of modus], adv., (with measure?), only, merely, just, even, just now, lately: non...modo (not only, not merely, to say nothing of, I do not say, etc.); qui modo (provided he, etc., if only he, etc.).

modus, -i, [mod (as root, cf. moderator) + us], M., measure, quantity, a limit, moderation, bounds. — Hence, manner, fashion, style, kind: hujus modi (of this kind, like this); ejus modi (of such a kind, such). — So other similar expressions: quo modo (how, as).

moenia, -ium, [√M1 (distribute?) + nis (cf. communis) (orig. shares of work done by citizens?)], N. pl., fortifications, walls (of a city, cf. paries); eisdem moenibus (the walls of the same city).

moerō, see maereo.

moeror, see maeror.

moestitia, see maestitia.

moestus, see maestus.

mōlēs, -is, [?], cf. molestus, adj., a mass, weight, a burden, a pile, a structure. — Esp., a dike, a dam.

molestē [old abl. of molestus], adv., heavily, severely; moleste ferre (take hard, be vexed at, be offended, be displeased, be annoyed).

molestia, -ae, [molestō + ia], F., annoyance, trouble.

molestus, -a, -um, [molestēs+tus], adj., burdensome, annoying, troublesome, disagreeable, unplesasing.

mōlōr, -itus, -īri, [mōl- (as stem of moles), 4. v. dep., (lift, struggle with a mass), struggle, pile up, exert one's self, plan, contrive, attempt, strive to accomplish.

mollis, -e, [?], adj., soft, tender.

— Fig., weak, feeble, not hard, not firm, sensitive, delicate, gentle.

mōmentum -i, [movi- (as stem of moveo) + mentum], N., means of motion, cause of motion. — Fig., weight, importance, influence: habere (be of importance, be effectual, be efficacious).

moneō, -ui, -itus, -cre, [causative of √MAN (in memini) or denominative fr. a kindred stem], 2. v. a., remind, warn, advise, urge.

montum, -i, [p.p. of moneō], N., a warning, an admonition.

mōns, montis, [√MAN (in mineo) + tis (reduced?)], M., a mountain.

mōnstrum, -i, [mon- (as if root of moneō) + trum, with s of uncertain origin, cf. lustrum], N., (a means of warning), a prodigy, a monster.
monumentum (moni-men-i), -i, [moni- (as stem of moneo) + mentum], N., a reminder, a monument, a memorial, a record.

mora, -ae, [prob. root of memor (smor?) + a'i], F., (thought?), hesitation, a delay, grounds of delay, reason for delay, a reproive, a postponement.

möratus, -a, -um, [mos + atus, cf. senatus], adj., with institutions (good or bad): bene (well regulated).

morbus, -i, [√mar (in morior) + bus (cf. turba)], M., sickness, illness.

morior, mortuus (moritūrus), mori (mori), [√mar (cf. mors), but prob. in part denominative], 3. v. dep., die. — mortuus, -a, -um, p.p., dead, in one’s grave.

mors, mortis, [√mar + tis], F., death. — Also, a dead body.

mortālis, -e, [mortā- (reduced) + alia], adj., mortal, of mortals.

mortuus, -a, -um, p.p. of morior.

mōs, mōris, [?], M., a custom, customs, a practice, a usage, a way (of acting), an institution, a precedent. — Plur., customs, habits, character (as consisting of habits, cf. ingenium and indolence, of native qualities); imperitus morum (of the ways of men); mōs majorum (the customs, institutions, or precedents of our ancestors). — O mores (what a state of things!)

mōtus, -a, -um, p.p. of moveo.

mōtus, -tus, [movi- (as stem of moveo) + tus], M., a movement, a disturbance, an uprising, commotion, activity, change: terrae motus (an earthquake).

moveō, movi, mōtus, movere, [?], [prob. denominative], 2. v. a., set in motion, move, stir, influence, affect, have an effect upon, dislodge (in military language), cause emotion in, shake.

muerō, -ōnis, [?], M., a point of a sword, a point, a blade, a dagger.

mulcō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [?], cf. mulceo?], 1. v. a., (soften?), roughly handle, maltreat.

mulcta, see multa.

multō, see multo.

mullebris, -e, [mulier+bris, cf. salubris], adj., womanly, a woman’s, effeminate.

mulier, -eris, [?], F., a woman. — Of an effeminate man, a mere woman.

mullicula, -ae, [mulier+cula], F., a little woman. — Hence with notion of affection, compassion, or contempt, a favorite woman, a mistress, a helpless woman, a poor woman.

multa, -ae, [prob. mulo (in muleco) + ta (F. of tās)], F., a fine.

multitūdō, -dinis, [multō + tuo], F., a great number, great numbers, number (generally). — Esp., the multitude, the common people, a mob, a crowd: tanta multitudo (so great numbers, this great multitude).

multō, see multus.

multō (mulcō), -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [multa-, for mulcio, freq. of multico], 1. v. a., punish (by fine), deprive (one of a thing as a punishment), punish (generally).

multum, see multus.

multus, -a, -um, [?], perh. root of mille, miles, + tus], adj., much, many, numerous: multo die (late in the day); ad multam noctem (till late at night); multa de nocte (early in the morning, long before day; satis multa verba facere (a sufficient number of, etc., enough); multa committere (commit many crimes). — multum, neut. as subst. and adv., much. — Also, plur., multa, much. — Abl., multo, much, far, by far: multo facilius. — Compar., plús, plúris, n. subst. and adv., more; plur. as adj., more, much, very. — As subst., more, many, several, many things, much. — Superl., plúrimum, -a, um, most, very many, very much: plúrimum posse (have most power, be very strong or influential, have great ability); plúrimum valere (have very great weight).
Vocabulary.

Mülvius (Mill.), -i, [?], m. of adj. Mülvián: pons (a bridge across the Tiber near Rome).

müniceps, -cips, [muni- (cf. moenia)], -ceps (v/cept as stem), m. and n., (one who takes his share of public duties), a citizen of a municipal town, a fellow-citizen (of such a town).

münicipium, -i, [municip + ium], n. (a collection of citizens, cf. municeps). — Esp., a free town (of citizens enjoying civil rights, though not always full Roman citizens), a municipality (perhaps including several towns, but under one government).

münů, -ivī (-ī), -itus, -ire, [muni- (stem of moenia)], 4. v. a. and n., fortify. — Less exactly, protect, defend, furnish (by way of protection). — Esp. (prob. original meaning), make (by embankment), build, pave: castra; iter.

münittō, -onis, [muni + tio], v., fortification (abstractly). — Concretely, a fortification, works, fortifications, defences, engineering (of a dam).

münítō, -avī, -äus, -äre, [munít-]. 1. v. a., fortify, make (a way), pave (fig.): quam viam munitet (whither he is paving the way).

münitus, -äum,[p.p. of munito], as adj., well fortified, strongly fortified, strong, well defended, well protected.

münus, -eris, [mun (as if root of moenia)] + us, orig. share (cf. moenia)], n., a duty, a service, a function, a task, an office. — Also, (a contribution), a tribute, a gift, a present. — Esp., a show (of gladiators, in a manner a gift of the presiding officer).

Mürēna, -ae, [murena, lamproy], m., a Roman family name. — Esp., L. Licinius Murena, who acted as propretor against Mithridates without success, and was recalled by Sulla.

mūrus, -i, [?], m., a wall (of defence in itself considered, cf. moenia, defences, and partes, a house wall).

Mūsa, -ae, [Mūsā], F., a muse. — Plur., the Muses (as patrons of literature).

mūtātīō, -onis, [mutā + tio], F., a change: vestis (putting on mourning).

Mutina, -ae, [?], F., a town in Cisalpine Gaul, famous in the war between Antony and the senatorial party in B.C. 43 (now Modena).

mūtō, -avī, -ätus, -ären, [prob. same as moto, for mutavitō-], i.v.a., change, change for the better (remedy), alter: vestem (put on mourning): veste mutata esse (appear in mourning).

mūtus, -a, -um, [?], cf. musso], adj., dumb, mute, voiceless, silent.

myopārō, -onis, [μυωπάρων], m., a cutter (? , a light piratical vessel).
Vocabulary.

Myrôn (Myrō), -ônis, [Greek], m., a celebrated Attic sculptor of the fifth century B.C.
mystagogus, -i, [μυσταγωγός], m., a hierophant, a custodian (one who shows sacred objects in a temple).
Mythilênæus, -a, -um, [Μυθιληναῖος], adj., of Mytilene.
Mythilênê, -ês (-ae, -ârum), [Gr.], f., a famous city of Lesbos.

N.

nae, see ne.
nam [case-form of *na, cf. tam, quam], conj., now (introducing explanatory matter), for.
nancisor, nactus (nactus), -isci,[*nàc, cf. nactus], 3. v. dep., find, get, procure, light upon, get hold of, obtain.
narrō, -âvi, -átus, -âre, [for gnarrigo, fr. ἄγναργιο- (gnarð-tagus, cf. navigo)], 1. v. a., make known, tell, relate, recount.—Absolutely, tell the story.
näscor, nàtus, nasci, [*nàc, cf. gigno], 3. v. dep., be born, arise, be produced, spring up, be raised: non scripta sed nata lex (natural, born with us); ei qui nascentur (those who shall come hereafter); Africa nata ad, etc. (made by nature); conjuratio naseens (at its birth).—Participle sometimes spelled gnatus.

Násica, -ae, [nasô + ica (f. of -icus)], m., a Roman family name.
— Esp., P. Cornelius Scipio Nasica Serafio, cons. B.C. 138, who led the attack by which Tiberius Gracchus was killed.
nàtālis, -ê, [natu- (or natê-)] + -alis], adj., of one's birth: dies (birth-day).
nàtīlē, -ônis, [*gna + tio, perh. through noun-stem, cf. ratio], f., (a birth), a race, a nation, a tribe, a clan.
naturâ, -ae, [nattu + ra (f. of -rus)], f., (birth), nature, natural character, character: naturam explore (the demands of nature); habitus naturae (natural endowments); natura rerum (Nature, as ruler of the world, the universe); naturâ (by nature, naturally).
nātūrâlis, -e, [natura-lis (perh. -alis)], adj., natural, of nature: jus naturale (natural law, the law of nature, as opposed to civil law).
nàtus, -ês, [*gna + tus], m., birth: majores natu (elders).
naufragium, -i, [naufragô + ium], n., a shipwreck.
naufragus, -a, -um, [navi-fragus (frag + us)], adj., shipwrecked, of broken fortunes, ruined; wrecked and ruined man, castaway.
nauta, -ae, [perh. Gr. ναύτης], m., a sailor, a boatman.
nauticus, -a, -um, [nauta-ius], adj., of a sailor (or sailors), naval.
nâvâlis, -ê, [navi- (reduced) + -alis], adj., of ships, naval, maritime.
nâvicularius, -i, [navicula + arius], m., a shipmaster.
nâvigâtiô, -ônis, [navigâ-tio], f., a sailing, a voyage, travelling by sea, a trip (by sea): mercatorum (voyages).
nâviglum, -i, [†navigô- (?), naví + agus] + ium], n., a vessel (generally), "a craft," a boat.
nâvigô, -âvi, -âtus, -âre, [†navigô- (see naviglum)], 1. v. n., sail, make voyages, take a voyage, sail the sea.
nâvis, -is, [*su(3)NU (increased), with added i, cf. Gr. vabs], f., a ship, a vessel, a boat, a galley.
Vocabulary.

1. nē (nae) [√NA, of unc. relation to the others], adv., surely, I am sure, most assuredly.

2. nē [√NA, unc. case-form], conj., lest, that . . . not, not to (do anything), from (doing anything), so that . . . not, for fear that, from (doing anything). — After expressions of fear and danger, that, lest. With indep. subj. as a prohibition, do not, let not, etc. — With quidem, not even, not . . . either, nor . . . either.

— Esp., videre, see to it that not, take care lest, see whether . . . not. See also necquis.

-ne (enclitic) [prob. same as nē, orig. = nonne], conj., not? (as a question, cf. nonne), whether, did (as question in Eng.), do, etc.— See also necne.

Neápolis, -is, [Νεάπολις], f., a part of the city of Syracuse. — Also, other cities of Italy and Greece.

Neápolitánus, -a, -um, [Neápoli + tanus], adj., of Neapolis (in Campania), Neapolitan. — Masc. plur., the Neapolitans.

nebulō, -ōnis, [nebula + o’], m., (a man of no substance), a worthless fellow, scamp, trickster, knave.

nec, see neque.

necêsaurius, -a, -um, [t’necessō (reduced) + arius], adj., (closely bound?), necessary, pressing, unavoidable, absolutely necessary, needful, indispensable. — Also, as subst., a connection (a person bound by any tie), a close friend, a friend. — Abl. as adv., necêsaurō, of necessity, necessarily, unavoidably.

necēsse [?, ne-cessō]-, indecl. adj., necessary, unavoidable. — With est, it is necessary, it is unavoidable, one must, one cannot but, one must inevitably.

necêsstās, -tās, [t’necessō + tās], f., necessity, constraint, compulsion, exigency.

necêsstūdō, -dōnis, [t’necessō + tūdo], f., close connection (cf. neces- sarius), intimacy (close relations), a bond, a relation (which creates a bond of union).

necne [nec ne], conj., or not (in double questions).

necō, -āvi (-ui), -ātus (-tus), -āre, [nec- (stem of nex)], i. v. a., put to death, kill, murder (in cold blood): fame (starve to death).

 nefandus, -a, -um, [ne-fandus], adj., unspeakable, infamous, detestable, abominable.

 nefāriē [old abl. of nefarius], adv., infamously, wickedly, abominably.

 nefarius, -a, -um, [nefas + ius], adj., wicked, infamous, abominable.

 nefās [ne-fas], N. indecl., a crime (against divine law), an impiety, a sacrilege.

 neglegenter . (necele-, negil-) [neglengent + ter], adv., carelessly, negligently.

 neglegō (neglegō, negligō), -lēxi, -lectus, -lege, [nec (= ne)-ego], 3. v. a., not regard, disregard, neglect, leave unavenged, leave unpunished, care nothing for, abandon, sacrifice.

 negō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [?, poss. ne-aio], 1. v. a. and n., say no, say . . . not, refuse.

 negotiator, -tōris, [negotiā+tor], m., a merchant. — Esp., a moneylender, a capitalist. Cf. mercator, a trader who goes with his wares.

 negotiōr, -ātus, -āri, [negotiō-], 1. v. dep., do business. — Esp., be a merchant, be a banker (cf. negotium).

negotium, -i, [nec-o-tium], N., business, occupation, undertaking.—Less definitely, a matter, a thing, an affair, a business (as in Eng.), an enterprise, one's affairs; meum negotium agere (attend to my own interests).—Also, difficulty, trouble.

nemō, -i, [nem-o], n., no one, nobody.—Almost as adj., no, — Esp., non nemo, one and another, one or two, one or more.

nempe [nam-īpe, cf. quippe], conj., to wit, namely, precisely, why! now, you see, you know, of course.

nemus, -oris, [√NEM + US, cf. veum], N., (pasture?), a grove (prob. open, affording pasture).—Esp., a sacred grove.

nepos, -ōris, [n?], m., a grandson. — Also, a spendthrift (orig. a spoiled pet of his grandfather).

Neptōs, -ōris, [same word as preceding], m., a Roman family name, see Metellus.

nēquām [prob ne-quam (how), cf. nequaquam], indecl. adj., worthless (opposed to frugi), good for nothing, shiftless.

nēquandō, see ne and quandō.

nēquāquam [nequaquam (cf. eā, quā)], adv., in no way, by no means, not at all.

nēque [ne-que], adv., and not, nor: nēque ... nēque (neither ... nor).—See also enim.

nē ... quidem, see ne.

nēqui(d)quam (nēquile-), [ne ... qui(d)quam], adv., to no purpose, in vain, not without reason.

nēquior, nequissimus, comp. and superl. of nequam.

nēquis (-qui), -qua, -quid (-quod), [ne-quis], indecl. pron., that no one, etc., and in all the dependent uses of ne: ut nequis (that no one).

nēquivitās, -ae, [nequi- (as if stem of nequam or nequis) + tia], f., worthlessness, shiftlessness, feebleness (in action).

nervus, -i, [prob. for tnevrus, cf. Gr. νέυρος, m., a sinew. — Fig., in pl., strength, vigor, sinews (as in Eng.).

nēsceō, -scivi (-i), -scitum, -scire, [ne-scio], 4. v. a., not know, be unaware. — Phrases: nescio an, I know not but, I am inclined to think, very likely; nescio quis, etc., some one, I know not who (almost as indef. pron.), some, some uncertain, some obscure; illud nescio quid praeclarum, that inexplicable something pre-eminent, etc.: nescio quo modo, somehow or other, I know not how (parenthetical), mysteriously, curiously enough.

neuter, -tra, -trum, [ne-uter], pron., neither. — Plur., neither party, neither side.

nēve (nēu) [nē-ve], conj., or not, and not, nor.

nex, necis, [n?], f., death, murder, assassination.

nihilum, -i, [ne-hilum?], N. and (nihil) indecl. nothing, none: nihil respondere (make no answer).

— nihilō, abl. as adv., none, no. — nihil, acc. as adv., not at all, no, not: nihil valet (has no weight, etc.); nihil interest (it makes no difference); nonnihil (somewhat, a little).

Nilus, -i, [Neilos], m., the Nile, the great river of Egypt.

nimirum [ni (= ne) mirum], adv., (no wonder), doubtless, of course, that is to say, unquestionably, no doubt (half ironical), I suppose, forsooth.

nimis [prob. comparative], adv.,
Vocabulary.

too, too much, over much: nimis urgeo (too closely).

nimius, -a, -um, [nimi- (? stem of positive of nimis) + ius], adj., too much, too great, excessive.—nimlum, N. as adv., too, too much.

Ninnius, -i [-], M., a Roman gentile name. — Esp., a tribune of the people, who proposed the law for Cicero's return.

nisi [ne-si], conj., (not ... if), unless, except: nisi si (except in case, unless).

nītīdus, -a, -um, [nītō + dūa], adj., shining, glistening, sleek.

nītor, nīsus (nīxus), nīī, [prob. genu], 3. v. dep., (strain with the knee against something), struggle, strive, exert one's self, rely upon, depend, rest.

nīx, nīvis, [-], F., snow.

nōbilis, -e, [as if (g)no (root of nosco) + bilis], adj., famous, noble, well-born (cf. “notable”).

nōblītās, -ātis, [nōbīli + tāa], F., nobility, fame. — Concretely, the nobility, the nobles.

nocēns, see noceo.

noceō, -ui, nocētūrus, nocēre, [akin to nex], 2. v. n., do harm to, injure, harm, harass.—nocēns, -entis, pres. p. as adj., hurtful, guilty (of some harm).

noctū [abl. of noctus (noc cf. noceo?) + tus]], as adv., by night, in the night.

nocturnus, -a, -um, [perh. noctu + urnus, cf. diuturnus], adj., of the night, nightly, nocturnal, in the night, by night: nocturno tempore (in the night).

nōlō, nōlui, nōlle, [ne-volo], irr. v. a. and n., not wish, be unwilling, wish not, not like to have, will not (would not, etc). — Esp. with inf. as (polite imperative, do not, do not think of (doing, etc.). — Also, nólem (I should hope not, I should be sorry).

nōmen, -minis, [√(G)NO (root of nosco) + men], N., a name (what one is known by), name (fame, prestige). — As a name represents an account, an account (à compite), an item (of an account): meo nomine (on my account); eo nomine (on that account); klassium nomine (under pretense, etc.).

nōminātīm, [acc. of real or supposed *nominatis (nominā+tīa)], adv., by name (individually), especially.

nōminō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [nomin-], i. v. a., name, mention, call by name, call: nominari volunt (to have their names mentioned).

nōn [ne-oenum (unum)], adv., no, not: non est dubium (there is no doubt); non mediocris (in no small degree); non poteram non (I could not but, etc.).

Nōnae, see nonus.

nōndum, see dum.

nōnne [non -ne], adv., is not? does not? etc.

nōnnēmō, see nemo.

nōnnihil, see nihil.

nōnnnullus, see nullus.

nōnnunquam, see nunquam.

nōnus, -a, -um, [novem + nus], num. adj., the ninth. — Esp., Nōnae, F. plur., the Ones (the ninth day, according to Roman reckoning, before the Ides, falling either on the fifth or seventh, see Idus).

nōs, see ego.

nōscō, nōvī, nōtus, nōscere, [\sqrt{(c)\text{NO}}], 3. v. a., learn, become acquainted with.—In perfect tenses, know, be acquainted with: sciant ei qui me norunt (they know who are acquainted with me); nec novi nee scio (I don't know the law before mentioned, nor do I know the fact).—nōtus, -a, -um, p.p. as adj., known, familiar, well-known.

noster, -tra, -trum, [prob. nōs (plur. nom.) + ter], adj. pron., our, ours, of ours, of us.—Often of one person, my, mine, of mine.

nota, -ae, [\sqrt{(c)\text{NO}} + ta (F. of -tus?)] F., a mark, a brand, a stain.

notō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre [nota-], i. v. a., mark, designate, brand, stigmatize.

novem, [?], indecl. num. adj., nine. Novembris, -e, [novem + bris, cf. salubris], adj., of November.

novicius, -a, -um, [novō+icius], adj., fresh, raw, untrained.

novus, -a, -um, [?, cf. Eng. new], adj., new, novel, fresh, unprecedented, strange: res novae (a change of government, resolution).

nox, noctis, [akin to noceo], F., night.

noxia, -ae, [\sqrt{(c)\text{NOC}} (in noceo) + unc. term.], F., crime, guilt.

nūdīus [num (?) -dius (dies)], undeclinable, only in nom., with tertius, now the third day, three days ago.

nūdō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [nudō-], i. v. a., lay bare, strip, expose.—Less exactly, clear, rob, despoil, strip (as in Eng.): nudavit se (stripped off his clothing).

nūdus, -a, -um, [?, root (akin to naked) + dōs], adj., naked, bare, unprotected, exposed.—Hence, stripped, robbed, destitute.

nūgae, -ārum, [?], F. plur., tri-fies, follies.—Esp. of persons, a man of follies, a frivolous person.

nullus, -a, -um, [ne-ulus], adj., not... any, not any, no, none of: quae nulla (none of which).—Often equivalent to an adverb, not, not at all.—nōnnullus, some.—As subst., some, some persons.

num [pron. \sqrt{NA}, cf. tum], adv., interrog., part., suggesting a negative answer, does, is, etc., it is not, is it? and the like: num dubitasti (did you hesitate?).—In indirect questions, whether, if.

Numantia, -ae, [?], F., a city of Spain, captured by Scipio in B.C. 133.

nümen, -inis, [\sqrt{nu} (in noo) + men], n., (a nod), will.—Hence, divinity, power (of a divinity).

numerō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre [numero-], i. v. a., count, account, regard.

numerus, -i, [\text{numero} (cf. numus, Numa, Gr. rôpos) + rus], m., a number, number: in hostium numero (as, etc.); ullo in numero (at all as, etc.).

Numidicus, -a, -um, [Numida- cuss], adj., Numidian (of Numidia, long an independent state west of the territory of Carthage).—Esp. as a name of Q. Cacilius Metellus, see Metellus, No. 7.

Numitorius, -i, [Numitor+ius], m., a Roman gentle name.—Esp., C. Numitorius, a Roman knight, one of the witnesses against Verres.

nūmus (nūmus), -i, [akin to numerus, Gr. rôpos], m., a coin.—Esp. for nummus sestertius, a sesterce (see sestertius).

numquam, see nunquam.

numquid (-qut), -qua, -quid (-quod), [num-quis], indef. interrog. pron., is (etc.) any one? with all senses of num, see quis.
Vocabulary.

_nunc_ [num-ce, cf. hie], adv., now (emphatic, as an instantaneous now, cf. iam, unemphatic and continuous); etiam nunc (even now, even then, still). — Esp. opposed to a false condition, now, as it is.

_nunquam_ (numquam), adv., never.

_nuntiō, -āvī, -ātus, -āre, [nuntiō-],
1. v. a., send news, report, make known.

_nuntius, -ī, [†novent- (p. of †noveo, be new) + ius], m., (a newcomer), a messenger. — Hence, news, a messenger: nuntium mittere (send word).

_nüpēr_ [for novi-per, cf. parumper], adv., lately, recently, not long ago, just now.

_nuptiae, -ārum, [nupta + ius],
F. plur., a wedding, a marriage.

_nūtus, -ūs, [prob. nui (as stem of nuo) + tus], m., a nod, a sign: ad natum (at one’s beck, at one’s command); nutu (at the command, by the will).

_nymphā, -ae, [Gr. νύμφη], F., (a bride). — Also, a nymph (a goddess of nature occupying some special locality, as a tree, or stream, or the like). — These goddesses were worshipped collectively at Rome.

O.

_O_, interj., _Oh!_: O temporal (what times!)

_ob_ [unc. case-form akin to Gr. ὁ], prep. (adv. in composition), (near), against: ob oculos (before my eyes). — Hence, on account of, for: ob eam rem (for this reason, on this account). — In comp., towards, to, against.

_obdūcō, -düxi, -ductus, -dücere, [ob-duco], 3. v. a., lead towards, lead against, draw over.

_obdūrēscō, -durui, no p.p., -dūrēscere, [ob-dureisco], 3.v.n., harden over, become hardened.

_obōdiō, see oboedio.

_obēō, -ivi (-ii), -ītus, -īre, [ob-eo],
ltr. v. a., go to, go about, attend to, go over, visit: facinus (commit); locum tempusque (be present at).

_obferō, see offero.

_obfundō, see offundo.

_obiectō (objic-), -jeići, -jectus, -icere, [ob-jacio], 3. v. a., throw against, throw in the way, throw up, set up, expose. — Hence, cast in one’s teeth, reproach one with.

_oblectāmentum, -i, [oblectā + mentum], n., diversion, enjoyment, a source of amusement.

_oblectō, -āvī, -ātus, -āre, [oblecto, cf. lacio],
1. v. a., give pleasure to, delight.

_obligō, -āvī, -ātus, -āre, [ob-ligo],
1. v. a., bind up, hamper, bind, mortgage. — _obligātus, -a, -um, p.p., bound, under obligation._

_oblinō, -lēvi, -litus, -linere, [oblino], 3. v.a., smear. — Fig., besmear, bedaub, stain.

_oblivīō, -ōnis, [ob-ūvīo, cf. obliviscor], F., forgetfulness, oblivion.

_obliviscor, -litus, -livisci, [ob-ūvīo, cf. līvēo], 3. v. dep., (grow dark against?), forget, cease to think of. — _oblitus, -a, -um, p.p., forgetting, forgetful, unmindful._

_obmūtēscō, -mutui, no p.p., -mūtēscere, [ob-mutesco, cf. mutus],
3. v. n., become silent, be dumb.

_obnūntīō, -āvī, -ātus, -āre, [obobnuntio], i. v. n., announce (in opposition). — Esp., announce unfavorable omens, stay proceedings by omens, hinder by omens.

Vocabulary.

oboediō (obēdio), -ivi (-īi), -iüm (N.), -īre, [ob-audio], 4. v. n., give ear to. — Hence, give heed to, obey, be obedient, be submissive.

oborior, -ortus, -orīri, [ob-orior], 4. (3.) v. dep., rise before, rise over.

obruō, -rū, -rūtus, -rūeru, [ob-ruo], 3. v. a., bury, overwhelm (with something thrown on), cover. — Also, overthrow, ruin.

obscūrō [old abl. of obscurus], adv., obscurely, darkly, covertly.

obscūritās, -ītās, [obscūrō + taēs], F., darkness, obscurity, uncertainty.

obscūrō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [obscūrō], 1. v. a., dim. darken, obscure, hide, conseed.

obscūrus, -a, -um, [ob-tāscūrus, √scūr+rus, cf. scutum], adj., dark, dim, secret, covert, disguised, hidden, obscure, unknown: non est obscurum (it is no secret).

obsecrō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [manufactured from ob sacram (near or by some sacred object)], 1. v. a., adjure, entreat.

obsecundō, -āvi, no p.p., -āre, [ob-secundo], 1. v. n., show obedience, yield to one's wishes.

observō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [observo], 1. v. a., (be on the watch towards?), guard, maintain, keep. — Also, be on the watch for, watch for, watch, lie in wait for.

obses, -idis, [ob-tēs, cf. praesēs and obsēdio], C., (a person under guard), a hostage. — Less exactly, a pledge, a security.

obsideo, -sēdiō, sessus, -sidere, [ob-sedo], 2. v. a., (sit down against), blockade, beset, besiege. — Also, block, hinder, lie in wait for, watch for.

obsidiō, -ōnīs, [obsidiō? (reduced) + o], R., a siege (cf. obsessor), a blockade. — Also, the art of siege.

obsignō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [obsigno], 1. v. a., seal up, seal. — Hence, sign as a witness, witness.

obstātō, -stitū, no p.p., -sistere, [ob-stāto], 3. v. n., withstand resist, contend against.

obsolēscō, -ēvi, -ētus, -ēscere, [obs-olesco], 3. v. n., grow old, become obsolete, get out of date, get stale.

obstipēscō (obstui-), -ūi, no p.p., -ēscere, [ob-stipesco], 3. v. n., become stupefied, be thunderstruck, be amazed: sio obstipuerant (they were so thunderstruck).

obstō, -stitū, -stātūrus, -stāre, [ob-stō], 1. v. n., withstand, stand in one's way, resist, injure, hurt.

obstreplō, -ūi, -iūrus, -ere, [ob-strepo], 3. v. n. and a., drowns (one noise by another), overwhelm by a din.

obstructō, -onis, [ob-structio, cf. obstruo], F., a barricade, an obstruction, a covering.

obstupēfaciō, -ēcī, -factus, -facere, [ob-stupēfacio], 3. v. a., daze, stupefy. — obstupēfaciō, -a, -um, p.p., taken aback, dumbfounded.

obstupēscō, see obstipescō.

obsum, -fui, -futūrus, -esse, [obsum], irr. v. n., be in the way, hinder, injure, be disadvantageous.

obtegō, -tēxi, -tectus, -tegere, [ob-tego], 3. v. a., cover up, protect.

obtemperō, -āvi, -ātūrus, -āre, [ob-tempero], 1. v. n., (conform to), comply with, submit to, yield to, comply.

obtestor, -āmus, -āri, [ob-testor], 1. v. dep., implore (calling something to witness), beseech, entreat.

obtineō, -tini, -tentus, -tineō, [ob-teneo], 2. v. a., hold (against something or somebody), retain, maintain, occupy, possess, get (by Vocabulary.

lot), hold (by lot, as a magistrate). —
Also, maintain, prove, make good.
obtingō, -tīgī, no p.p., -tīgerere, [ob-tango], 3. v. a. and n., touch upon. — Esp., fall to one's lot, fall to one, happen (esp. as euphemism for death or disaster).
obtrectō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [ob-tractō], I. v. a. and n., (handle roughly?), disparage, speak ill of.
obtuli, perf. of offerō.
obviam [ob viam], adv., in the way of, to meet (any one): obviam fieri (come to meet, fall in one's way, meet).
obvius, -a, -um, [ob-via, declined as adj.], adj., in the way of: obvius esse (meet).
occāsīō, -ōnis, [ob-cesio, cf. occidō], F., an opportunity, a chance.
occāsūs, -sūs, [ob-casus, cf. occidō], M., a falling, a fall, a setting (of the sun).
occedēns, see occido.
occidō, -ōnis, [perh. directly from occido, after analogy of legō, etc.], F., slaughter, great slaughter.
occidō, -cidi, -cāsūrus, -cidere, [ob-cadō], 3. v. n., fail, set, be slain.
occedēns, -entis, p., setting, as substb. the west.
occidō, -cidi, -cīsus, -cidere, [obcaedo], 3. v. a., kill, massacre, slay.
occidō, -cūsī, -cūsus, -clūdere, [ob-claudō], 3. v. a., shut up, close.
occultātor, -tāris, [occultā-tor], occultē [old abl. of occultus],
adv., secretly, privately, with secrecy.
occultō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [occul-tō-], I. v. a., conceal, hide.
ocultus, -a, -um, (p.p. of occul-tō), as adj., concealed, secret, hidden.
occupātīō, -ōnis, [occupā-tio], capō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [capoor capo- (cf. ancēpt), ob and stem akin to caplo], I. v. a., seize, take possession of, seize upon, occupy (only in military sense). — occupātus, -a, -um, p.p., as adj., engaged, occupied, employed.
occurrō, -curī (-cūrī?), -cursūrus, -currere, [ob-currō], 3. v. n., run to meet, meet, come upon, find,
fall in with, go about a thing, withstand, occur (to one's mind), suggest itself:
occursātīō, -ōnis, [occursā +
tio], F., a coming to meet, a sally,
an attack, a greeting (running to meet one with acclamation).
ōceanus, -i, [Gr. 'Oceanos'], M.,
the ocean (with or without mare).
ocriculum, -a, -um, [Oriculum + anus], adj., of Oriculum (a town of Umbria on the Tiber).
ocvālium, -a, -um, [Octaviō +
anus], adj., of Octavius.
ocvārius, -i, [octavō + ins], M., a Roman gentile name. — Esp., Cn.
Octavius, cons. B.C. 87 with Cinna, and killed as a partisan of the nobility by the partisans of Marius.
Others of the same family not named by Cicero were famous.
ocvās, -a, -um, [octo + vus
(cf. Gr. 'γεωργος'), perh. foctau + us], adj., eighth.
ocvēntī, -ae, -a, [stem akin to octo + centum], num. adj., eight hundred.
ocvō [?], num. adj., eight.
ocvōdecim [octo-decem], num.
adj., eighteen.
ocvōgintā [octo+?], adj., eighty.
ocvōni, -ae, -a, [octo+nus], adj.,
eight at a time, eight (at a time).
Vocabulary.

oculus, -i, [tocō (cf. eye) + lua], m., the eye.

ōdí, -o-disse, [perf. of lost verb (with pres. sense), akin to odlum], irr. v. a., hate, detest.

odiolūs, -a, -um, [odiō + osus], adj., hateful, troublesome, unrelenting.

odium, -i, [√VADH (spurn) + ium], n., hatred, odium, hate, detestation.—Plur., hate (of several cases).
—Of persons, the hatred, the detestation: odio esse (to be hated).

odor, -ōris, [√OD (ōsō) + or], m., an odor, fragrance (legum, adding, as it were, to make the fig. tolerable in Eng.).

offendō (obf-), -fendi, -sensus, -fendere, [ob-fendo], 3. v. a. and m., strike against, stumble, stumble upon, light upon, go wrong, commit an offense, take offense, offend, hurt (the feelings), give offense to.—offensus, -a, -um, p.p., offensive.

offensīō (obf-), -ōnis, [ob-†fensio, cf. offendō], f., (a striking against), a stumbling, an offense, a giving offense, dislike, a disaster, a defeat.

offerō (obf-), obtuli, oblātus, offerre, [ob-fero], irr. v. a., bring to, offer, furnish, afford, expose: se (present); mortem alicui (cause the death of, etc.).

officiō (obf-), -feci, -fectus, -ficere, [ob-facio], 3. v. a., work against, obstruct, hinder, stand in the way of.

officīōsus (obf-), -a, -um, [officiō+osus], adj., dutiful, in discharge of one's duty, conscientious (in the discharge of one's duty), serviceable.

officium (obf-), -i, [as if (prob. really) offficeō- (cf. beneficēus) + ium], n., (a doing for one?), a service, a duty, kind offices (either sing. or plur.), dutiful conduct, faithfulness to duty.

offundō (obf-), -fundi, -fusus, fundere, [ob-fundo], 3. v. a., pour over.
—Also, fill, pervade.

oleum, -i, [?, cf. oliva, òlavor], n., oil.

ōlim [loc. (?) of ollus, old form of illae], adv., (at that time), once, formerly.

Olympus, -a, -um, [Gr. 'Oλυμπός], adj., of Olympus (the fabled abode of the gods), Olympian.

ōmen, -inis, [?, but cf. old form osmen, and oscines], n., an omen.

omittō, -misi, -missus, -mittere, [ob-mitto], 3. v. a., let go by, pass over, leave unsaid, leave out, omit, say nothing of, abandon, cease.

omnīnō [abl. of tomnainus (omni+ nus)], adv., altogether, entirely, on the whole, only, utterly, in all, at all, any way, only just, whatever (with negatives).

omnis, -e, [?], adj., all, the whole of (as divisible or divided, cf. totus as indivisible or not divided).—In sing., all, every (without emphasis on the individuals, cf. quisque, each, emphatically).—Esp.: omnibus horas (every hour); omnia (everything).

onus, -eris, [unc. root + us], n., a burden, a load, a freight, a cargo.
—Abstr., weight.

opera, -ae, [oper- (as stem of opus) + a (F. of -us)], f., work, services, help, pains, attention, assistance: operam dare (devote one's self, exert one's self, take pains, try, take care).—Esp.: opera sua (by his own efforts); operam consumere (waste one's labor, waste one's time); operae pretium est (it is worth while).—Plur., laborers.
Vocabulary.

operarius, -i, [opera + arius], m. (of adj.), a day laborer.

opercō, -perui, -pertus, -perire, [ob-pario, cf. aperio], 4. v. a., cover up, cover.

Opimius, -i, [opimō + inus], m., a Roman gentle name.—Esp., L. Opimius, cons. B.C. 121, the champion of the senate against C. Crassus, in the fight in which the latter was killed.

opimus, -a, -um, [?], adj., fat, rich, fertile.

opinō, -onis, [opinō- (cf. nec opinus) + o], F., a notion, an expectation, an idea, a reputation, an opinion (not well founded, cf. sententia), fancy, a good opinion (of any one): latius opinione (more widely than is thought); mortis (a false idea of one's death).

opinor, -ātus, -āri, [opinō-, cf. necopinus], 1. v. dep., have an idea (not well founded or not sure), fancy, suppose, think (parenth. in its less def. meaning), imagine.— Cf. the use of such phrases as I fancy, reckon, guess, take it, should say.

opitular, -ātus, -āri, [opitulō- (opitulus, from ῥυτις, in tull, + us)], 1. v. dep., assist, aid, succor, give help.

opportet, -uit, no p.p., -ere, [noun-stem from ob and stem akin to porto, cf. opportunus], 2. v. imp., it behoves, it ought, one is to, one must.

oppetō, -ivī (-ii), -itus, -ere, [obpetō], 3. v. a., encounter, meet.

oppidum, -i, [ob-fpedum (a plain?, cf. Gr. πεδον)], n., (the fortified place which, according to ancient usage, commanded the territories of a little state), a stronghold, a town (usually fortified).

oppōnō, -posui, -positus, -pōner, [ob-pono], 3. v. a., set against, oppose (something to something else).

oppōsus, -a, -um, p.p. as adj., opposed, lying in the way, opposite, adverse.

opportūntās, -tais, [opportūnō + tas], F., timeliness, fitness (of time or circumstance), good luck (in time or circumstance), convenience, advantage.

opportūnus, -a, -um, [ob-portunus, cf. importunus and Portunus], adj., (coming to harbor?), opportune, advantageous, lucky, timely, valuable (under the circumstances).

oppositus, -tus, [ob-apositus, cf. oppono], m., a setting against, an interposition.

opprimō, -pressi, -pressus, -primere, [ob-premo], 3. v. a., (press against), overwhelm, crush, overpower, overtake (surprise), hold in check.

oppūgnātīō, -onis, [oppugnā + tio], F., a siege (of actual operations, cf. obsidio, blockade), besiegling, an attack (in a formal manner against a defended position).

oppūgnō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [obpugno], 1. v. a., attack (formally, but without blockade), lay siege to, carry on a siege, assail (a defended position).— Fig., attack, assail.

opus, opis, [?], F., help, aid, succor, means, protection.— Plur., resources, power, wealth, means.

optābilis, -e, [optā+bilis], adj., desirable, to be wished for.

optimās (optu-), -ātis, [optimō + as (cf. Arpinas)], adj., of the best.— Esp. plur., the optimates (the better classes, or aristocracy, at Rome, including all who held opinions opposed to the common people).
Vocabulary.

optimē, see bene.

optimus, -a, -um, [op (cf. ops?) + timus (cf. finitimus)], superl. of bonus, which see.

optō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [optō- (√op + tus, cf. Gr. ὄψωμαι)], i. v. a., choose, desire, wish (urgently), pray for, hope and pray for, hope for.

optātus, -a, -um, p.p. as adj., wished for, desired, desirable.

opus, operis, [√op + us], n., work, labor (as skilful or accomplishing its purpose, cf. labor, as tiring).

— In military sense, a work, works, fortifications.
— Also, as in English, of civil structures, etc., work, works, a work (as of art), a work of skill (cf. artificium, a work of art), workmanship: opere et manu factus (by handwork).
— In abl. quantō- (tanto, magnō, nimo)- opere.
— Often together, quantopere, etc., how much, so much, much, greatly, too much, how, so, too.

opus [same word as preceding], n. indecl., need, necessary: opus proereto (need of haste).

ōra, -ae, [?], f., a shore, a coast.

ōrātōr, -ōris, [ōra + tor], m., a speaker, an ambassador, an orator.

orbis, -is, [?], m., a circle (a circular plane): orbis terrarum (the circle of lands, the whole world).

orōr, orus, orīrī, [orō- (cf. ordo)], 4. v. dep., begin, start.

ordo, -inis, [akin to ordinār], m., a series, a row, a tier, a rank (of soldiers), a grade (of centurions, as commanding special "ordines" of soldiers, also the centurions them-olves, an arrangement, an order (esp. of citizens), a body (consisting of such an order), a class (of citizens).

orior, ortus, orīrī, [?], 3. and 4. v., arise, spring up, spring.

— orīrens, -entis, p. as subst., the east.

ornamentum, -i, [ornā + mentum], n., an adornment, a decoration, an ornament, an equipment, an honor (an addition to one's dignity), a source of dignity.

ornātē [old abl. of ornātus], adv., ornately: gravius atque ornātus (with more weight and eloquence).

ornātus, -ūs, [ornā + tus], m., adornment, ornament, ornaments (collectively).

ornō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [unc. noun-stem], i. v. a., adorn, equip, furnish, increase (by way of adornment), honor, add honor to.

— ornātus, -a, -um, p.p. as adj., furnished, well-equipped, well-furnished, decorated, finely adorned, well to do, prosperous, highly honored.

ōrō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [or- (as stem of os)], i. v. a. and n., speak.

— Esp., pray, entreat, beg.

ortus, -ūs, [√or (in orior) + tus], m., a rising: solis (rise, the East).

ōs, oris, [?], n., the mouth, the face, the countenance: Ponti (the mouth, the entrance); in ore omnium (in the mouths, on the lips).

os, ossis, [prob. reduced from tostis, cf. Gr. ἄρθρον], n., a bone.

ōscīōr, -āvi, no p.p., and ēscitor, -āri, [perh. os cīto], i. v. n. and dep., yawn.

ostendō, -tendi, -tensus, -tendere, (obs-tendo), 3.v.a., (stretch towards), present, show, point out, make known.
state, declare, indicate, exhibit, display. — Pass., appear, show itself.

ostentō, -āvi, -ātus, -ārē, [ostentō-], I. v. a., display, exhibit: se (make a display).

Ostiensis, -e, [Ostiaensi], adj., of Ostia (the port of Rome at the mouth of the Tiber), at Ostia.

ōstulum, -i, [akin to os], N., the mouth: Oceani (the straits, i.e., of Gibraltar). Also, a door.

ōtiosus, -a, -um, [ōtio + osus], adj., at leisure, quiet, peaceful, peaceful, undisturbed, inactive.

ōtium, -i, [?], N., repose, inactivity, quiet (freedom from disturbance), case, peace.

ovō, no p., -ātus, -āre, [?], I.v.m., rejoice. — Esp., ovāns, -antis, p., triumphant in an ovation (the lesser triumph, but also used figuratively).

[Possibly the technical meaning is the original one.]

P.

P., abbreviation for Publius.

pacieō, -ere, and pacieor, pacitus, pacisci, [paci- (as stem of pāco) + sco], 3. v. a. and dep., bargain. — Esp., pactus, -a, -um, p.p., agreed upon, settled, arranged. — See also pactum.

pācō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [pac- (in pax)], I. v. a., pacify, subdue. — pācātus, -a, -um, p.p. as adj., peaceful, quiet, subject (as reduced to peace), submissive, entirely conquered: civitas male pacata (hardly reduced to submission, still rebellious).

Pacōnius, -i, [cf. pācō], M., a Roman gentile name. — Esp., M. Paconius, a Roman knight.

pactum, -i, [p.p. of pacieor, pango?], N., (a thing agreed), an agreement, an arrangement. — Hence, a method, a way (of doing anything). — Esp. abl., in ... way: quo pacto (in what way, how); isto pacto (after that fashion, to that degree); nescio quo pacto (somehow or other, strangely enough); nullo pacto (in no way, under no circumstances).

Paeān, -ānis, [Gr. Παῦδος], M., the Healer, a name of Apollo, as god of healing.

paene [?], adv., almost, nearly, all but.

paenitet (poenitet), -uit, -īre, [† poenītō- (perh. p.p. of verb akin to punio)], 2. v. a. (imper.), it repents (one). one repents, one regrets: me paenitetit (I shall regret).

paenula (pēn-), -ae, [?], f., a cloak (probably like a poncho, sometimes also with a hood, at any rate put on over the head and worn in travelling or in rough weather).

paenulātus (pēn-), -a, -um, [paenula + tus, cf. robustus], adj., wrapped in a cloak.

Palacinus? (Palatinus?), -a, -um, [?], adj. only with balnaeae, a place of uncertain position.

palam [unc. case-form, cf. clam], adv., openly, publicly, without concealment.

Palātium (Pāl-), -i, [palaeto- (the arched roof of the mouth) + ium], N., (the round hill?), the Palatine (the hill of Rome which was the original site of the city).

Palladium, -i, [Pallātium], N., (the little Pallas), the Palladium (the little image of Pallas Athene, on which depended the safety of Troy, and which was carried off by Ulysses and Diomedes). — Hence, a palladium (any object of like importance).
Vocabulary.

Palma, -ae, [borrowed from Gr. παλάμη], f., the palm (of the hand).
— Also, a palm branch, a palm (esp. as symbol of victory), a victory (cf. "laurels" in Eng).

Pallus, ūdis, [?], F., a marsh.

Pamphylia, -ae, [Gr. Παμφυλία], f., the country on the south coast of Asia Minor, between Lycia and Cilicia, not included in the province of Asia Minor.

Panormus (Panormus), -i, [Πανόρμος], F., Panormus, the city on the north coast of Sicily, now Palermo, famous for its harbor.

Pansa, -ae, [?], m., a Roman family name. — Esp., C. Vibius Pansa, one of the partisans of Caesar, who was consul, B.C. 43, and was active in the fight against Mark Antony.

Papirius (old Papistius), -i, [cf. Papius], m., a Roman gentile name.
— Esp., M. Papirius Maso, killed by Clodius in a fight in the Appian Way.

Papilius, -a, -um, [Papa (or Ð) + ἵς], adj., (of Papa or Papus). — Masc., as a Roman gentile name.
— Also, of Papilius (esp. of C. Papilius, tribune, B.C. 65, proposer of a law in regard to Roman citizenship).

Păr, paris, [perh. akin to paro, parlo (through the idea of barter or exchange)], adj., equal, alike, like. — Esp., on a par with, equal in power, a match for, adequate to, sufficient for.

Paralh, i, [Gr. Πάραλης], m., an Athenian hero, after whom one of the sacred galleys was named.

Paratē [old abl. of paratus], adv., with preparation.

Paratus, see paro.

Paro, peperci (parai), parsurs (parciturus), parere, [akin to parus (\(\sqrt{\text{par}} + \text{us}\), acquisitive, and so frugal?)], 3. v. n., spare, be considerate for.

Parin, -entis, [\(\sqrt{\text{par}}\) (in parlo) + ens (cf. Gr. ἐνδώρ)], c., a parent, a father.

Pareo, pauri, pariturs, parēre.
[paro- (cf. opipurus)], 2. v. n., be prepared, appear, obey, follow, yield, consult (utilitati).

Paries, -ietis (jettis), [akin to περι?], m., a wall (of a house or the like, cf. murus).

Parilia (Palilia), -ium [Pali + illis], N. plur. (of Palillis), the feast of Pales (a divinity of shepherds). It was held April 21.

Parinus, -a, -um, an uncertain word in Mss. of Verres, v. 57.

Paro, peperi, partus (pariturs), parere, [\(\sqrt{\text{par}}\), procure (perh. orig. by barter, cf. par)], 3. v. a., procure, acquire, secure, win. — Esp., produce, give birth to (of the mother).

Parma, -ae, [?], F., a town of Cisalpine Gaul. It was treacherously taken by Antony, and its people barbarously treated.

Parmenias, -e, [Parmas-ensis], adj., of Parma. — Flur. as subst. the people of Parma.

Paro, -avi, -ātus, -āre, [paro-, cf. opipurus and paro], i. v. a., procure, provide, prepare, get ready, get ready for (bellum, med. concretely for the means of war), secure, arrange, engage. — paratus, -a, -um, p.p. as adj., ready, prepared, well prepared, skilful, well equipped: animo parato (with resolution).

Parricide, -ae, [patri- (as stem of pater) + cida (caed- + a, cf. homicide?)], m. and f., a parricide.
Vocabulary.

parreidium, -i, [parridia + ium], n., parrise. — Less exactly, murder: patrism (as the parent of her citizens).

pars, partis, [\sqrt{par} + tis (reduced), akin to portio, and perhaps to par (cf. also parlo), v., a (dividing), a portion, a part, a share, a side, a party (also plur.), a branch, a role (in a play). — Esp. in adverbial phrases, direction, way, degree: in omnes partes (in all directions, in all ways); in utraque parte (on both sides); in bonam partem (in good part); in utramque partem (in both directions, both ways); ad aliquam partem (to some part of my existence, to me in some respect). — See also partim.

parsimonia (parci), -ae, [parco (as stem of parco) or parad (stem of parsus) + monia, cf. sanctimonia], f., frugality, parsimony.

particeps, -cipis, [parti + ceps (\sqrt{cap} as stem, cf. princeps)], adj., participant, taking part. — As subst., a sharer, a participant, a participator, an associate.

partim [old acc. of pars], adv., partly, in part. — Esp., partim ... partim, some ... others, partly ... partly; quas partim ... partim (some of which ... others).

partio, -iv (ii), -ius, -ire, and partior, -itus, -iri, [parti-], 4. v. a. and dep., divide: partitis temporibus (alternately).

partitiio, -onis, [parti (stem of partior) + tio], f., a division, a partition.

partus, -tus, [\sqrt{par} (in parlo) + tus], m., a birth, the production of offspring.

parum [akin to parvus, perhaps for parvum], adv., not very, not much, not sufficiently, too little, ill.

parvulus, -a, -um, [parv+lus], adj., small, slight, insignificant, little.

parvus, -a, -um, [perh. for fpaurus, cf. paucus, and Gr. paupos], adj., small, slight, little, trifling: Romulus parvus (as a child); parvi ducere (of little account); parvi refert (it makes little difference, it matters little); parvi animi esse (mean-spirited, unambitious, unassuming).

pascō, pāvi, pāstus, pascere, [\sqrt{pa} (?) + sco], 3. v. n. and a., feed, fatten.

passus, -ūs, [\sqrt{pad} (in pando) + tus], m., (a spreading of the legs), a stride, a step, a pace (esp. as a measure, about five Roman feet): mille passuum (a Roman mile, five thousand feet).

pāstō, -onis, [pas (as if root of pasco) + tio], f., pasturing, feeding, pasturage.

pāstor, -tōris, [pas (as if root of pasco) + tor], m., a shepherd, a herdsman (a slave occupied in pasturing).

patefaciō, -feci, -factus, -facere, [noun-stem akin to pateo + facio], 3. v. a., lay open, open, lay bare, disclose, discover, make known, show clearly.

pateō, -uī, no p.p., -ēre, [\hat{p}atō- (noun-stem akin to Gr. ἀναφέρωμαι)], 2. v. n., be extended, lie open, spread, extend, be wide, be open, be exposed, be uncovered, be obvious, be patent. — patēns, -entis, p. as adj., open, exposed.

pater, -tris, [\sqrt{pa} (in pasco?) + ter], m., a father. — Plur., ancestors, senators, the senate: patres conscripti (senators, gentlemen of the paternus, -a, -um, [pater + nus], adj., of a father, paternal, of one's father, of one's fathers.
Vocabulary.

patientia, -ae, [patient + ia], F., patience, endurance, forbearance, long-suffering.

Patina, -ae, [patina], M., a Roman family name. — Only, T. Patina, a friend of Clodius.

patior, passus, pati, [?], 3 v. dep., suffer, endure, bear, put up with, tolerate, allow, permit. — patiens, en-tis, p. as adj., patient, long-suffering.

patria, see paterius.

patricius, -a, -um, [patricio + ius], adj., of the senate, the original nobility of Rome as opposed to the plebs, cf. pater, patrician (of this nobility). — Less exactly, noble (of the later nobility). — Plur., the nobles (not necessarily the original patricians).

patrimōnum, -i, [patri- (as if stem of pater) + monium (i.e., mo + on + ium)], N., a paternal estate, a patrimony, an inheritance, an ancestral estate.

patrius, -a, -um, [pater + ius], adj., of a father, ancestral, of one's fathers, paternal. — Esp., patria, F., one's fatherland, native country, country, native city.

patrōnus, -i, [ tpatro- (as if stem of tpatroo, cf. colōnus, aegrōtus) + nus], M., a patron, a protector, an advocate.

patruus, -i, [pat(e)r + nus?], m., an uncle (on the father's side, cf. avunculus, on the mother's).

paucus, -a, -um, [pauci- (cf. paulus and parvus) + cus], adj., almost always in plur., few, a few, some few (but with implied only in a semi-negative sense): paucia di-cere (a few words, briefly).

paulisper [paulis (abl. plur. of paulus?) -per], adv., a little while, for a short time.

paululum [acc. of paululus], as adv., a very little.

paulus, -a, -um, [pau (cf. pau-cus) + lus (= rus?)], adj., little, slight, small, insignificant. — Esp., paulum, N., as subst. and adv., a little, little, slightly. — paulō, abl. as adv., a little, slightly, little: paulo ante (a little while ago, just now).

pāx, pācis, [pāc as stem], F., (a treaty?), peace: pæce alicujus (by permission of, etc., if one will allow, an apology for some expression or statement): pæce tua, pætria, dixerim (pardon me, my country, if I say it).

peccātum, -i, [N. of p.p. of peccō], N., a fault, a wrong, a misdeed, an offence.

peccō, -avi, -āturus, -āre, [?], 1 v. n., go wrong, commit a fault, do wrong, err.

pectō, pēxi (-ui), pexus (pectitus), pectere, [-pec + to, cf. necto], 3 v. a., comb.: pexo capillo (with well-combed locks).

pectus, -oris, [perh. pect (as root of pecto) + us, from the rounded shape of the breast, cf. pectinatus], N., the breast. — Fig., the heart, the mind.

pecuārius, -ae, -um, [pecu+arius],
Vocabulary.

adj., of cattle. — Masc., a grazer. — Fem., pasturage, grazing.
pecūliatus, -tius, [peculi + tus], m., embezzlement.
pecūnia, -ae, [pecunio- (pecu + nus, cf. vacuna) + ia], f., money (originally cattle), wealth, capital, an amount of money, a sum of money: ratio pecuniarum (the matter of finance).
pecuniōsus, -a, -um, [pecunia + osus], adj., rich.
pecus, -udis, [pecu + dus (reduced)], n., a domestic animal (cf. pecus, -oris, a herd or flock), a brute (as opposed to man), a dumb beast.
pedester, -tris, -tre, [pedit+tiris], adj., of infantry, of persons on foot: copiae (foot, infantry).
pedetemptim (tentim) [pede temptim (cf. sensim)], adv. (feeling one’s way with the feet), cautiously, gradually.
pējor, see malus.
pējus, see male.
pellō, pepuli, pulsus, pellere, [?], 3. v. a., strike, beat, drive, defeat, repulse, drive out.
Penātēs, -ium, [pena- (cf. penator and penus) + tis (reduced, cf. Arpinas)], m. plur., (presiding over the household supplies?), the household gods (usually with Dī), the Penates (the tutelary deities of the household and of the city as a household). — Esp. as a symbol for the home.
pendō, pependi, no p.p., pendère, [pendi- (cf. altipendas)], 2. v. n., hang, depend.
pendū, pependi, pensus, pendere, [?], 3. v. a., hang, weigh, weigh out, decide. — Hence (since money was earlier weighed, not counted), pay, pay out. — Esp. with words of punish-, pay (a penalty), suffer (punishment, cf. dare and capere).
penes [prob. acc. of stem in -us akin to penitus], prep., in the power of, in the control of.
penetrō, -avi, -ātus, -āre, [pene-trō-, from pene- (in penitus, etc.) + terus (cf. inter, intrō)], 1. v. a. and n., (go in deeper), enter, penetrate, force one’s way in.
penitus [stem akin to penes, penus, etc., + tus, cf. divinitus], adv., far within, deeply, entirely, utterly, deep within.
pēnsitā, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [pensitā- (as if p.p. of penso, cf. dicitto)], 1. v. a., weigh. — Hence, pay (cf. pendo).
1. per [unc. case-form of stem akin to Gr. ἐπε], adv. (in composition) and prep., through. — Fig., through, by means of (cf. ab, by, directly), by the agency of: per me, etc. (by myself, without other aid); per se (of itself). — Often accompanied by the idea of hindrance: per anni tempus potuit (the time of the year would allow); per vos licere (you do not prevent, you allow, so far as you are concerned, etc.); per aetatem non audere (on account of). — Of time, through, for: per triennium. — In adjurations, by, for the sake of.
2. per [perh. a different case of same stem as 1. per], adv. in comp., very, exceedingly.
peradulēscēns, -entis, [?], 2. per-adulescens], adj., very young.
peragō, -ēgi, -āctus, -agere, [1. per-agō], 3. v. a., conduct through, finish, accomplish, carry through.
peragrō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [1. per-agro], 1. v. a. and n., traverse, travel over, go over, travel. — Fig., spread.
Vocabulary.

perangustus, -a, -um, [2. per-angustus], adj., very narrow.

perbrevis, -e, [2. per-brevis],
adj., very short, very brief.

percallēscē, -ui, no p.p., -ēscere, [2. per-callescē], 3. v. n., become thoroughly hardened.

percellē, -culi, -culus, -cellere, [per-celēlo (cf. celer)], 3. v. a., knock over, strike down, overturn,
dash to the ground.

perceptīō, -cēpi, -ceptus, -cipere, [1. per-capio], 3. v. a., take in (completely), learn, acquire, hear.—Esp.
of harvests, gather.—Hence, fig., reap, win, gain (but in Latin the figure is retained).

percitūs, -a, -um, [p.p. of per-citēo], as adj., excited, incensed.

percommode [2. per-commode],
adv., very conveniently, very oppor-tuneely.

percrebrēscē (-bēscē), -bruī (-bruī), no p.p., -brēscere (-bēscere), [2. per-crebrēscō], 3. v. n., become very frequent, become very common, spread very widely.

percutīō, -cussī, -cussus, -cutere, [1. per-quatīo], 3. v. a. and n., hiā, strike, run through, stab, strike a blow.—Fig., strike with fear.

perdē, perdīdi, perdītus, perdere, [1. per-dē], 3. v. a., destroy (cf. in-terficēo), ruin, lose.— perdītus,
-a, -um, p.p. as adj., ruined, desperate, abandoned, lost, overwhelmed.

perdūcē, -dūxi, -ductus, -ducere, [1. per-duco], 3. v. a., lead through,
lead along, bring over, carry along,
introduce.

perduellō, -ōnis, [perduellī+iō], F., treason (technical, and not strictly conforming to either our high or petit treason).

peregrinor, -ātus, -āri, [peregrī-nō-] 1. v. dep., travel abroad (also fig., studia); also, be abroad (out of sight or hearing).

peregrinus, -a, -um, [peregro +
inus], adj., foreign, outlandish.

perennis, -e [1. per-annus (weakened)], adj., (lasting for the year?), perennial, unfaíling, eternal.

pereō, -ii (-ivi), -itūrus, -ire, [1. pereō], irr. v. n., perish, be killed, die, be lost.

perexiguus, -a, -um, [2. perexiguus], adj., very small, very short.

perfacēlis, -e, [2. per-facēlia], adj., very easy.—Neut. as adv., very easily.

perfectūs, -ōnis, [1. per-factū,
 cf. perficīo], F., the accomplishment;
the completion.

perferō, -tuli, -lātus, -ferre, [1. perferō], irr. v. a., carry through (or over), bring over, bring, bear, carry.
—Also, bear through (to the end), endure, suffer, submit to.

perficiō, -feci, -fectus, -ficere, [1. per-facieo], 3. v. a., accomplish, effect, complete, finish, make (complete).—With ut (utā), bring it about, succeed in (doing or having done or getting done), accomplish, make (some one do something or the like).

perfidia, -ae, [perfidī+ia], F., perfidy, treachery; faithlessness.

perfringō, -frēgi, -fractus, -frin-gere, [1. per-frangō], 3. v. a., break through, break down, break the barriers of.

perfruor, -fractus (-frucēus), -frui, [1. per-fruor], 3. v. dep., enjoy to the full, enjoy without alloy, continue to enjoy, enjoy.

perfugīō, -fugi, no p.p., -fugere,
[1. per-fugio], 3. v. n., run away,
Vocabulary.

flee (to a place), escape to, take refuge in (ad portum).

perfugium, -i, [1. per-fugium, cf. refugium], N., a place of refuge, refuge.

perfugor, -fugae, -fugere, [1. per-fugor], 3. v. dep., fulfill, perform (to the end). - Hence, have done with, finish (and get rid of).

pergō, Gerrô, perrectus (?), pergerre, [1. per-regre], 3. v. n., keep one’s direction, keep on, continue to advance, advance, go on, proceed.

perhorreścō, -horrui, no p.p., horréscre, [1. per-horrescre], 3. v. n. and a., shudder all over, shudder at.

periclitōr, -ātus, -āre, [†periclitōr (as if p.p. of periculor)], 1. v. dep., try, make a trial, be exposed, be put in peril, imperil.

periculum, see periculum.

periculōsē [old abl. of periculōsus], adv., with peril.

periculōsus, -a, -um, [periculō + osus], adj., dangerous, perilous, hazardous, full of danger.

periculum (-clum), -i, [†perī (cf. experior) + clum], N., a trial. - Hence, peril, danger, risk. - Esp. of the defendant in a prosecution, jeopardy, prosecution (in reference to the accused), defence, trial (in court), accusation.

perimō, -ēmi, -emptus, -imere, [1. per-emō (take)], 3. v. a., destroy, put an end to.

perinde, [1. per-indē], adv., (straight through?), just, exactly.

periniquus, -a, -um, [2. periniquus], adj., very unfair, very unjust.

peritus, -a, -um, [†perī (cf. experior) + tus], p.p. as adj., (tried), experienced, skilled, skilful, of great experience.

perjūrium, -i, [prob. †perius, adj., from per (perh. a diff. case from 1 and 2) jus, + ium (cf. injurius). But possibly these are all abnormal formations], N., perjury, false swearing.

permāgnus, -a, -um, [2. per-magnus], adj., very great, very large.

permaneō, -mansī, -mansūrus, -manere, [1. per-maneō], 2. v. n., remain (to the end), continue, hold out, persist, stay.

permittō, -misi, -missus, -mittere, [1. per-mitto], 3. v. a., (give over), grant, allow, give up, entrust, hand over, put into the hands of.

permodestus, -a, -um, [2. permodestus], adj., excessively modest.

permoveō, -mōvi, -mōtus, -movere, [1. per-moveō], 2. v. a., move (thoroughly), influence, affect. - permōtus, -a, -um, p.p., much affected, influenced, overcome.

permultus, -a, -um, [2. permultus], adj., very much, very many, a great many: permultum valere (be very strong).

permūtātīō, -onis, [permūtā + tio], f., a change: rerum (revolution, upheaval).

perniciēs, -ēs, [-, akin to nex], f., destruction, ruin, injury, harm, mischief, a plague (used of Verres).

perniciōsus, -a, -um, [perniciō + osus], adj., destructive, ruinous, mischievous.

pernōbilis, -e, [2. per-nobilis], adj., very noble, most noble, very famous.

pernoctō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [1. pernocto], 1. v. n. (and a.), pass the night.

perōrē, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [1. peroro], 1. v. a. and n., finish arguing, conclude (a case).
Vocabulary.

perparvus, -a, -um, [2. perparvus], adj., very small, very little.

perpaucus, -a, -um, [2. perpaucus], adj. — Plur., very few, but very few, only a very few.

perpetitor, -pessus, -peti, [1. perpetior], 3. v. dep., suffer, endure.

perpetuus, -a, -um, [1. perpetuus (\textit{vet + vus})], adj., (keeping on through), continuing, continual, continued, continuous, without interruption, lasting, permanent, everlasting: in perpetuum (for ever).

perpolitūs, -a, -um, [p.p. of perplexō], as adj., refined, highly cultivated.

perrūrē [2. per-rūre], adv., very rarely, almost never.

Persa (Persēs), -ae, [Gr. Πέρσης], m., a Persian. — Plur., the Persians.

persaspee [2. per-sæpe], adv., very often, many times.

persaspenter [2. per-sapienter], adv., very wisely, with great wisdom.

perscrībō, -scripi, -scriptus, -scribere, [1. per-scribō], 3. v. a., write out.

persequor, -secūtus, -sequī, [1. persequor], 3. v. dep., follow up, pursue. — Hence, avenge, punish. — Also, follow out (a series of points), take up (in detail).

Persēs (Persa), -ae, [Gr. Πέρσης], m., (cf. Persa, the same word), king of Macedonia, son of Philip V. He was conquered in the third Macedonian war by Æmilius Paulus.

perseverantia, -ae, [perseverant + ia], f., persistence, perseverance.

persolvō, -solvi, -solūsus, -solvere, [per-solvo], 3. v. a., pay in full, pay: poenas (pay, suffer).

persōna, -ae, [1. per-sona, cf. dissonus], f., a mask. — Hence, a part, a role, a character, a personage, a party (in a suit).

perspicēō, -spēxi, -spectus, -spicere, [1. per-pectio], 3. v. a., see through, see, inspect, examine. — Also, see thoroughly. — Fig., see clearly, see, understand, learn, observe, find, discover.

perspicuō [old abl. of perspicuus], adv., clearly, plainly.

perspicuus, -a, -um, [1. perspicucus (\textit{spec + vus}, cf. conspicuus)], adj., obvious, plain, clear.

persuādeo, -suāsi, -suāsus, -suādere, [1. persuādeo], 2. v. n. (and a.), persuade, induce.

pertenui, -e, [2. pertenui], adv., very thin, very slight.

perterreō, -terrui, -territus, -terрев, [1. per-terreo], 2. v. a., terrify, alarm.

pertimēscō, -timui, no p.p., -timēscere, [1. per-timē + so], 3. v. a. and n., fear much, fear greatly, dread, be alarmed.

pertinācia, -ae, [pertinac + ia].

pertināx, -ācis, [1. per-tenax, cf. pertinace], adj., pertinacious, obstinate.

pertineō, -tinui, no p.p., -tinēre, [1. per-tenēo], 3. v. n., (hold a course towards), tend, extend. — Fig., have to do with, concern, tend: ad quem maleficium (belong, whose is, etc.); ad te non pertinere (to have no concern for you).

perturbō, -āvi, -ätus, -āre, [1. perturbo], 1. v. a., disturb, throw into confusion, confuse, throw into disorder, alarm, terrify, agitate, make anxious: turbata tempora (times of disorder).

pervādō, -vāsi, -vāsus, -vādere,
Vocabulary.

[1. per-vado], 3. v. n. and a., (proceed to), reach, spread to, extend to, enter, fill (of an idea).

pervagor, -ātus, -āri, [1. pervagor], i. v. dep., roam, scatter, diffuse itself. — So, pervagātus, -a, -um, p.p., widespread.

perveníō, -vēni,-ventum (N. imp.), -venire, [1. per-venio], 4.v.n., (come through to), arrive at, get as far as, reach, come, arrive: ad eum locum (come to this point); regnum (come, fall); ad laudem (attain, equal).

pervolgō (-vulgō), -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [per-volgo], i. v. a., spread abroad: pervolgatus honos (trite, common).

pervolō, -āvi, -āturus, -āre, [1. per-volo], i. v. n., fly through, fly over, hurry over.

pēs, pedis, [√pād as stem], M., the foot. — Also, as a measure, a foot.

pessime, superl. of male, wh. see.

pestifer, -era, -erum, [pesti-fer, cf. Lucifer], adj., pestilent.

pestis, -tis, [?, perh. pes (in pessum, pessimus) + tis], F., plague, pestilence. — Esp. fig. of persons and things, a plague, a pest, a bane, a scourge, a curse, a cursed thing. — Less exactly, ruin, destruction: una reipublicae pestis (convulsion).

Petilus, -i, [petiliō (akin to peto) + ius], M., a Roman gentile name. — Esp., Q. Petilus, one of the jury in the case against Milo.

petitiō, -onis, [peti- (as a stem of peto) + tio], F., a thrust, an attack. — Also, a seeking, a canvas (for office, cf. peto), a campaign (in politics).

petō, petivī, petitus, petere, [√petā], 3. v. a. and n., (fall?, fly?), aim at, attack, make for, try to get, be aimed at, seek, go to get, go to. — Hence, ask, request, look for, get. — esp. of office, be a candidate for.

petulantia, -ae, [petulant+ia], F., wantonness, impudence.

Pharamēs, -is, [Gr. Φαράμης], M., a son of Mithridates, king of Pontus, conquered by Cæsar, B.C. 47.

Pharsālia, -ae, [Pharsalō+ia], F., the region about Pharsalus in Thessaly, where the decisive battle between Cæsar and Pompey was fought, B.C. 48.

Pharsālicus, -a, -um, [Pharsalō + cus], adj., of Pharsalia.

philosophus, -i, [philosophos], M., a philosopher.

Picēnus, -a, -um, [ṭpice- (as a kindred stem to pieus) + nus], adj., (of the woodpecker). — Also, of Picenum (a region in eastern Italy, north of Rome). — Picēnum, N., the region itself.

pictor, -ōris, [√pig + tor], M., a painter.

picta, -ae, [ṭpictu (√pig + tus) + ra, cf. figura], F., painting, a painting.

piē [old abl. of pius], adv., dutifully, religiously, with dutiful affection.

pietā, -tās, [piō+tas], F., filial affection, affection (for the gods or one's country, etc.), patriotism, religion (as a sentiment), piety, dutiful affection.

pignerō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [pig-ner-], i. v. a., pledge. — Pass. as dep., take as a pledge, claim as one's own.

pignus, -oris, [ṭpign- (as stem of pango or pagino + us, cf. facinus], N., a pledge, a security.
— Fig., a hostage (reipublicae).

plae, -ae, (? but cf. pello], F., a ball, ball (as a game).

plum, -i, (?], N., a pestle. — Also, a javelin (the peculiar weapon of the Roman legion, with a heavy shaft 2 or 3 in. thick and 4 ft. long, and an iron head, making a missile more than 6 ft. long, and weighing over 10 lbs.).

pingō, pinxi, pictus, pingere, [√pic, cf. Gr. πικά], 3. v. n., (daub with a greasy substance?), paint.

plongis, -e, (?], possibly ping- (as root of plingo) + us (with inserted 1 as in leviris, cf. the early methods of painting with wax), adj., fat. — Hence, stupid, clumsy, coarse.

pirāta, -ae, [Gr. πιρατικος, an adventurer], m., a sea-rover (perhaps like the ancient Northmen, cf. prae- do, a pirate, more in the modern sense), a corsair, a freebooter, a pirate (without the above distinction).

plaeis, -is, (?], m., a fish. — Collectively, fish.

Plōs, -onis, [plō + o], m., (a man with a wart like a pea?), cf. Cteero), a Roman family name. — Esp., L. Calpurnius Piso Censorius, father-in-law of Cæsar, cons. B.C. 58 with Gabiniius.

Pius, -i, [pius], m., a name of Q. Metellus, given him for his dutiful conduct to his father.

plaeō, -ui, itus, -ere, [†plaeo (cf. Viriplaca, placio, and placidus)], 2. v. n., please, be agreeable. — Esp. in third person, it pleases (one), one likes, one approves, it is thought best, one thinks best, one determines, it is one's pleasure, one's vote is.

plaeō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [†plaeo (cf. Viriplaca)], or placō (cf. placidus)], 1. v. a., pacify, appease, reconcile, win one's favor.

plāga, -ae, [√flag (in plango) + a], F., a blow, a stroke, a lash, a stripe.

plānē [old abl. of planus], adv., flatly, clearly, plainly, distinctly, utterly, absolutely.

plānus, -a, -um, [unc. root + nus], adj., flat, level. — Fig., plain, clear:
plebeius, -a, -um, [plebe + ius], adj., of the common people, plebeian: ludi (a festival held Nov. 16, 17, and 18, under the direction of the plebeian ædiles; in honor of some uncertain advancement of the plebs);
purpura (a dark, dull red of a poorer quality than that worn by the magistrates and senators).

plēbs (plēbēa), -is (-ē), [plē- (in plenus) + unc. term., cf. ἑθος], F., the plebs, the common people (as opposed to the upper classes at Rome), the populace, the people, the commons.

plēnus, -a, -um, [plē- (in †pleo) + nus], adj., full: plena consensio (in perfect agreement).

plērumque, see plerumque.

plerusque, -aque, -umque, [√tre (in pleo) + rus + que (cf. -plē tus, plenus)], adj. only in plur., most of, very many. — Acc. sing. as adv., plerumque, generally, usually, for the most part, very often.

Plōtius, -i, [?, Plautō + ius], m., a Roman gentle name. — Esp., L. Plotius, a Roman teacher of rhetoric.

Plōtius, -a, -um, [same word as preceding], adj., of Plotius, Plotian: lex (a law of M. Plotius or Plautius Silvanus in relation to assault and battery or breach of the peace).
plürimus, see multus.
plüs, see multus.
pœna, -ae, [perh. ῥποβι- (√\textit{p}u) + na (cf. punio)], F., a penalty. — Hence, a punishment (see persolvo, repeto, constituo).
pœnico, see punico.
pœnitet, see paenitetur.
pœntor, see punctor.
Pœnus, -a, -um, [borrowed from a stem akin to Gr. Πουλιεω (poulieos)], adj., Carthaginian. — Plur. as noun.
póëta, -ae, [Gr. ποιητης], M., a poet.
pollō, -ivī (-ii), -itus, -ire, [?], 4. v. a., smooth, polish (also fig.). — Also, adorn, beautify.
polllecor, -licitus, -licēri, [t̂por- (= Gr. πορός, cf. portendo) -liceor], 2. v. dep., offer, promise (voluntarily, cf. promitto, by request, etc.), make an offer, propose.
polluo, -ui, -utus, -ure, [t̂por-luo], 3. v. a., (stain as by water?), pollute, defile, desecrate, violate.
pompa, -ae, [Gr. πομπή], F., a procession (esp. of a funeral).
Pompējus, -ī, [t̂pompe- (dialectic form of quinque) + inus], M., a Roman gentile or family name. — Esp., Cneus Pompeius, the great rival of Caesar.
Pompējus, -a, -um, [same word as preceding], as adj., of Pompey: via Pompeia (a street at Syracuse).
Pomptinus (Pont.), -ī, [cf. Pompeius], M., a Roman family name. — Esp., C. Pomptinus, praetor, b.c. 63.
pondus, -eris, [√\textit{p}endō (in pendo) + us], N., weight.
pōnō, posui, positus, pōnere, [prob. t̂por-sino (cf. polllecor)], 3. v. a., lay down, place, put, set, class, set before, station, lay. — Fig., place, lay, make depend on, base, rest, found. — positus, -a, -um, p.p., situated, lying, depending on, dependent upon.
pōns, pontis, [?], M., a bridge.
pontifex, -icis, [in form ponti- (stem of pons) t̂fex (√\textit{fac} as stem); connection uncertain, but perhaps from railings in temples, etc.], M., a pontifex (a kind of high priest, of which several formed a board, having in charge most religious matters): maximus (the chief of these).
Pontus, -i, [Gr. Πόντος], M., the ancient name of the Black Sea. — Less exactly, of the region around. — Esp., Pontus, the kingdom of Mithridates, on the south-eastern shore of the sea.
popa, -ae, [?], M., an inferior priest.
Popillus, -i, [?], cf. popa], M., a Roman gentile name. — Esp., C. Popilius, a senator, convicted of receiving money illegally.
popīna, -ae, [popa + ina, (r. of -inus), butcher's shop?], F., a tavern (of a low order), a cookshop, a brothel.
populāris, -e, [populō + aria], adj., of the (a) people, of the populace, popular. — Esp., popular (favoring the people), democratic.
populus, -i, [√\textit{pal} (in pleo) reduplicated + us], M., (the full number, the mass), a people (in its collective capacity), the people (the state), a nation, a tribe (as opposed to individuals): populus Romanus (the official designation of the Roman state). — Esp., the people (as distinguished from the higher classes, no longer opposed to plebs), the citizens (including all).

Porcius, -i, [†Pórcio- (porcus) + ins], M., a Roman gentile name. — Esp.: 1. M. Porcius Cato, the Censor, ædile, B.C. 199; 2. M. Porcius Laca, tribune, B.C. 199.

Porcius, -a, -um, [same word as preceding], adj., of Porcius (one of the two above mentioned), Porcian: lex (a law by one of the above, securing the freedom of Roman citizens from stripes and death except by judgment of their peers).

proligiō, -réxi, -rectus, -rigere, [†por- (cf. pollicere) -rego], 3.v.a., stretch forth, hold out to one, put in one’s hand.

proriō [?, akin to †por (cf. porrigo)], adv., furthermore, further, moreover, then again.

porta, -ae, [†po-r (cf. Gr. πόρος) + ta], F., (way of traffic?), a gate.

portentum, -i, [p.p. of portendo], N., a portent. — Hence, a monster, a prodigy (of crime or the like).

porticus, -iūs, [porta + cus, the declens. prob. a blunder, cf. senatio, etc.], F., a colonnade, a portico, an arcade.

portō, -avi, -ātus, -āre, [porta-?], 1. v. a., carry (perh. orig. by way of traffic), bring.

portus, -ūs, [†po-r (cf. porta) + tus], M., (a place of access), a harbor, a haven, a port: ex portu (from customs).

poscō, posposō, no p.p., poscere, [perh. akin to prex], 3. v. a., demand (with some idea of claim, stronger than peto, weaker than flagito), require, claim, call for, ask for.

possessō, -onis, [†por- †sensis (cf. obsessio)], F., possession, occupation. — Concretely (as in Eng.), possessions, lands (possessed), estates: de possessione detrahere (lands in possession); libertatis (enjoyment).

possideō, -sēdi, -sessus, -sidere, [†por-sedēo], 2. v. a., (settle farther on?), occupy, possess, hold possession of, enjoy.

possum, potū, posse, [pote (for potis) -sum], irr. v. n., be able, can (etc.), be strong, have power, have weight, can do, etc.: plurimum posse (is very strong, is very able, has the greatest advantage); si fieri posse (if it is possible); neque posse (it is impossible that he, changing construction to keep emphasis).

post [?, prob. abl. of stem akin to postis (cf. ante, antea, row, and antae, pilasters)], adv. and prep., behind, after, later than, afterwards, later, since: post diem tertium (three days after); post memoriam hominum (since); post conditionem Messanam (since the building of, etc.) — post quam, see postquam.

postēa [post ea (prob. abl. or instr.)], adv., afterwards, later, hereafter, by and by. — postea quam, see posteaquam.

posteaquam (often separate) [postea quam], conjunctive adv., (later than), after (only with clause).

posteritas, -ātis, [posterā-tas], F., aftertimes, future ages: in posteritatem (for the future, in the future, hereafter).

posterus, -a, -um, [post- (or stem akin) + rus (orig. compar., cf. superus)], adj., the next, later: posteri (posterity); postero die (the next dry); in posterum (for the future).
Vocabulary.

— postrēmus, -a, -um, superl., last, the lowest. — postrēmō, abl., lastly, finally.

posthāc [post haec (prob. abl. or instr.)], adv., hereafter.

postquam [post quam], conjunctive adv., (later than), after.

postrēmus, see posterus.

postrēmus, see posterus.

postrīdiē [posterī (loc. of posterus) -die], adv., the next day.

postulātiō, -onis, [postulātiō],
F., a demand, a request.

postulātiō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [?] 1. v. a., claim (with idea of right, less urgent than posco), ask, request, require, call for, demand, expect: postulante nescio quo (at somebody or other's request); nullo postulante (without any one's asking it).

potēns, -entis, [p. of possum as adj.], adj., powerful, influential, of influence: potentiores (men of influence).

potentia, -ae, [potent + ia], F., power (political influence), authority (not official or legal), domination, domineering.

potestās, -tās, [potent + tas],
F., power (official, cf. potentia, and civil, not military, cf. imperium), office, authority, power (generally), control, ability, opportunity, chance, permission (from a different point of view), privilege: imperium et potestas (military and civil power, power and authority); praedonum (the power, the hands).

potior, potitus, potiri, [poti-, cf. potis], 4. v. dep., become master of, possess one's self of, get the control of: rerum (gain supreme control).

potior, -us, -ōris, [compar. of potius], adj., preferable. — potius, acc. as adv., rather. — potissimum, acc. of superl. as adv., rather than any one (anything) else, particularly, especially, most of all, by preference (over all others), better than any other, best.

prae [unc. case-form of same stem as pro], adv. (in composition) and prep., before, in comparison with. — Esp. with words implying hindrance, for, on account of (some obstacle). — In composition, before others, very, before, at the head of:

praebēo, praebei, praebitus, praeberē, [prae-habeo], 2. v. a., (hold before one), offer, present, furnish, afford: crudelitati sanguis praebitus (sacrificed). — With reflex., show, display, act (in any manner).

praecipiō, -cipitis, [praecapit], adj., head-first, headlong, in haste, hasty, inconsiderate, driven headlong.

praecipuum, -i, [p.p. of praecipiō], N., an instruction, an order, a precept, instruction (in plur.).

praecipiē, -cēpi, -cepitis, -cipere, [prae-capio], 3. v. a. and n., take beforehand, anticipate. — Also, order, give instructions, give directions.

praecipūae [old abl. of praecipuus], adv., especially.

praecipuus, -a, -um, [praecapuus (\sqrt{cap} + vus)], adj., (taking the first place), special, particularly great: hoc praecipuum (this special advantage).

praecīlāre [old abl. of praeclastus], adv., nobly, gloriously, finely, in a fine condition, handsomely, very well.
praecellārus, -a, -um, [praecella-rus], adj., very noble, glorious, very famous, excellent, magnificent, pre-eminent, very fine, very beautiful, very striking, splendid: omnia praecella sentire (have all the noblest sentiments, etc.).

praecellūdō, -clūsi, -clūsus, -clūdere, [praecel-claudo], 3. v. a., (close some one or something in front), shut off, barricade, cut off.

praeeō, -onis, [?], M., a herald.

praeeōnius, -a, -um, [praeeoni-us], adj., of a herald. — Neut. as subst., heraldic.

praeeurrō, -cucurri (-curri), -cur-sūrus, -currere, [praee-currō], 3.v.n. and a., run on before, hasten on before, hasten in advance, hurry on before, outrun, outstrip.

praeda, -ae, [prob. praet-hida (root of -hendo+a)], F., booty, prey, plunder.

praedātor, -tōris, [praedā-tor], M., a plunderer, a robber.

praedāvātō, -onis, [praedā-vatio], F., a proclaiming, an assertion, a statement, commendation, celebrity (talk of people about one).

praedātō, -diō, -dictus, -dicere, [praedā-dico], 3. v. a., foretell, prophesy, tell beforehand, state first.

praedātō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [praedādicō- (or similar stem from praedā with -ādicō, before the world or one's self, cf. praedicātus, before the event)], 1. v. a. and n., make known (before one), proclaim, describe, boast, vaunt one's self, celebrate, report, say, tell us, state, declare: praedicari de se volunt (to be talked about).

praedītum, -i, [praed- (praes) + ium], N., an estate (orig. as a security).

praegō, -onis, [praega + o], M., a robber, a freebooter, a pirate (cf. pirata).

praeeō, -ivi (-ii), no p.p., -iere, [praee-eso], irr. v. n. and a., go before, precede. — Esp. of formulas, dictate.

— Hence, prescribe, dictate (generally).

praefectūra, -ae, [praefectu-as, stem of praeficēo] + tūra, cf. picture], F., the office of prefectus (see next word), a prefecture (?). — Also, the city governed by a prefect, a prefecture (as opposed to municiplum and colonia, wh. see).

praefectus, -i, [p.p. of praeficēo, as subst.], M., a captain (of auxiliary troops). — Also, a governor (sent from Rome to govern a city of the allies).

praefero, -tuli, -lātus, -ferre, [praefēro], irr. v. a., place before, hand to, place in one's hands, esteem above, prefer to (with dat. or quas).

praeficēō, -isci, -fectus, -ficere, [praeficēo], 3. v. a., put before, place in command of, set over.

praefinītō, -ivī (-ii), -itus, -ire, [praefinītō], 4. v. a., (set a limit before), limit, fix (as a limit).

praemittō, -imes, -missus, -mittere, [praemittō], 3. v. a., send forward, send on.

praemium, -i, [?, perf. prae-temium (√em, in emo, + ium)], (taken before the general distribution or disposal of booty?) N., a reward, a prize.

praemoneō, -ui, -itus, -ire, [praemoneo], 2. v. a., warn beforehand, forewarn.

Praeneste, -is, [?], N. and F., a city of Latium about twenty miles from Rome, strongly fortified, now Palestrina. praeparō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [praeparo], i. v. a., prepare beforehand, provide for, provide, prepare.
Vocabulary.

praeponō, -posui, -positus, -pōnere, [praepono], 3. v. a., put in command, put in charge, place over: praepositus est (presides over).
praeplō, -ripui, -reptus, -ripare, [praeraplo], 3. v. a., snatch away, seize in advance, forestall.
praerogātivus, -a, -um, [praerogā + tivus], adj., (asked first), voting first.—Fem. as subst., the first century (in voting).—Hence, a decisive vote (given first and so an omen of the result), an indication, an earnest.
prescribō, -scripsi, -scriptus, -scribere, [praescribo], 3. v. a., (write down beforehand), prescribe, order, direct, ordain: hoc beluis natura (impress upon).
presēns, -entis, p. of praesum.
presentia, -ae, [praesenti-ia], F., presence, the present moment: in praesentia (for the moment, at the moment).
presentiō, -sēnsī, -sēnsus, -sensire, [praesentiō], 4. v. a., see beforehand, find out in time, find out (beforehand), look forward to.
presertim [as if acc. of tpraesertis (+ser, in sero, + tis)], adv., (at the head of the row?), especially, particularly.
presideō, -sēdi, no p.p., -sidēre, [praesedeo], 2. v. n. (and a.), (sit in front of), preside over, guard.
presidium, -i, [praesidium ( phố tisdom, sēd + ium), cf. obsidium], N., (a sitting down before), a guard, a garrison, a force (detached for occupation or guard), an armed force, a defence.—Fig., protection, assistance, support, a defence, a safeguard, a bulwark, a stronghold, a reliance.
presābilis, -e, [praestā + bilis], adj., excellent, desirable.
presāns, see praesto.
praestō [?, perh. "praesto," I am here (as if quoted)], adv., on hand, ready, waiting for: praesto esse (be waiting for, meet).
presēs, -stiti, -status, (-stitus), -stare, [praesto], i. v. a. and n., stand before, be at the head, excel, be superior: praestat (it is better).—Also, causatively, (bring before), furnish, display, give assurance of, vouch for, maintain, assure, make good.—Esp. with pred. acc., guarantee, insure, maintain.—praestāns, -antis, p. as adj., excellent, superior, surpassing.
presēlor, -ātus, -āri, [?, but cf. stolidus and stolo], 1. v. dep., wait for, attend upon.
presum, -fūi, -esse, [praesum], irr. v. n., be in front, be at the head of, be in command, preside over, command (an army, etc.).—praesēns, -entis, p., present, immediate, in person, here present, present in person, with immediate action, acting directly, direct (of the interposition of the gods): animus (ready, or together, presence of mind).
praeter [compar. of prae (cf. inter)], adv. and prep., along by, past, beyond.—Fig., except, beside, contrary to, more than, beyond.
praetereā [praeter-ea (abl.?)], adv., furthermore, besides, and besides, and also: nemo praeterea (no one else); neque praeterea quicquam (and nothing else).
praetereō, -i, -itus, -ire, [praeter-ereo], irr. v. a. and n., go by, pass by, pass over, overlook. — præteritus, -a, -um, p.p. as adj., past. — Esp. N. plur., præterita, the past (cf. "by-gones").
Vocabulary.

praetermittō, -misset, -missus, -mittere, [praeter-mitto], 3. v. a., let go by, let slip, omitt, neglect, pass over.

praeterquam [praeter- quam], conjunctive adv., except, further than.

praetervectīō, -onis, [praeter- vectio], F., a sailing by, a course (where one sails by).

praetextātus, -a, -um, [praetexta + tus], adj., clad in the prætexta, in one’s childhood.

praetextus, -a, -um, [p.p. of praetexeo], p.p., bordered: in praetexta (the bordered toga worn by children and magistrates, a symbol for childhood).

praetor, -ōris, [praetitor (v. 1+tor)], M., (a leader), a commander. — Esp., a praetor, one of a class of magistrates at Rome. In early times two had judicial powers, and the others regular commands abroad. Later, all, during their year of office, had judicial powers, but, like the consuls (who were originally called prætors), they had a year abroad as proprætors: urbasus (the judge of the court for cases between citizens).

praetōrius, -a, -um, [praetorius + ius], adj., of a prætor (in all its senses): praetoria cohors (the body guard, of the commander, see prætor); comitia (for the election of prætors); homo (an ex-prætor). — praetōrium, n., the general’s tent, headquarter, the prætor’s house.

praetūra, -ae, [praetūtura? (ıt + ra, cf. plectura)], F.s., (a going before), the office of prætor, the prætorship.

prandeō, prandi, prānus, pran-
Vocabulary.

N., a beginning: principio (in the first place).

prior, -us, [stem akin to pro+ior], compar., former, before: nox (last night, night before last). — Neut. prius as adv., before, earlier, first. — Esp. with quam, before, first... before, sooner... than. — Superl., primus, -a, -um, [pae (+) mus (cf. summus)], first, of the first class, superior: decem primi (the ten select men, a board of ten magistrates in many ancient cities); in primis (see imprimis). — Acc. N. (as adv.), primum, in the first place (opp. to tum, deininde), first, the first time: cum primum (when first, as soon as); ut primum (as soon as). — Abl. N., primo (as adv.), at first (opp. to postea, etc.).

pristinus, -a, -um, [prius+inus, cf. diutinus], adj., former (previously existing), old, of old, oldtime, time-honored.

prius, see prior. prlusquam, see prior. privatus, p.p. of privo, which see.

prüvō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [prüfō-], i. v. a., (set apart?), deprive. — Esp., privatus, -a, -um, p.p. as adj., (set apart from the general community), private, separate, individual, domestic (as opposed to public). — Masc. as subst., a private citizen, a private individual, an individual, a private-person.

prü [for prōd, abl. of stem akin to prae, prior, etc.], adv. (in comp.) and prep., in front of, before (in place, time, or circumstance). — Hence, in place of, for, on behalf of, in return for, in view of, on account of, in proportion to, in accordance with, according to. — Esp. with names of officers, as, acting as, ex. — Often rendered by transference, proconsul, praetor. — In comp. as adv., before, forth, away, for, down (as falling forward).

proavus, -ī, [pro-avus], m., a great-grandfather.

probē [old abl. of probus], adv., honestly, virtuously, with integrity, well, very well.

probūs, -a, -um, [pro + bus, cf. morbus], adj., superior (perh. mercantile word), excellent, good, honest.

procella, -ae, [pro+cella, akin to cello], F., a tearing, rushing storm, a tempest, a storm, a hurricane.

processō, -onis, [pro+cessio, cf. procedo], F., an advance.

procrēstino, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [procrastinō- (as if, perh. really, pro-crastino)], i. v. a., put off till to-morrow, postpone, procrastinate.

procreō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [procreo], i. v. a., generate, produce, give birth to: procreatus (born).

procul [?, fr-occō (pro+icus, cf. reciprocus) + lus (reduced, cf. simul)], adv., at a distance (not necessarily great), away, far away.

procūrātiō, -onis, [procūrā + tio], F., a caring for, management, superintendence.

procūrātor, -ōris, [procūrā + tor], m., a manager, a steward.

prōdeo, -i [prōdi], -ītūrus, -īre,
Vocabulary.

prodicio], irr. v. n., go forth, appear abroad, appear (in the streets).

prōdigium, -i, [†prodigō (prodicus?) + ium], n., an omen, a portent. — Hence, a prodigy, a monster.

prōdigus, -a, -um, [prod-tagus ( >/AG + us, cf. agilis and Gr. λογα-γός)], adj., wasteful (cf. prodigo), prodigal, a spendthrift.

prōditor, -ōris, [pro-dator (cf. prodō)], m., a betrayer, a traitor.

prōdō, -didi, -ditus, -dere, [prodō], 3. v. a., give or put forth, give away, betray. — Also, publish, appoint, hand down, transmit.

prōducō, -duxi, -ductus, -ducere, [pro-duco], 3. v. a., lead forth, bring out, produce, bring forward, introduce.

proelium, -i, [?], n., a battle, a fight.

profānus, -a, -um, [prof-anum, decl. as adj.], adj., (outside the temple), not sacred, secular, common.

profectō, -onis, [pro-factio, cf. proficiscor], f., a departure, a starting, a setting out.

profectō [pro-facto], adv., (for a fact), certainly, surely, doubtless, undoubtedly, no doubt, I’m sure.

proferō, -tuli, -làtus, -ferre, [profero], irr. v. a., bring forth, carry forward, bring out, publish, bring forward, introduce, produce, adduce.

professō, -onis, [pro-fassio, cf. profiteor], f., a declaration.

proficiscor, -feci, -fectum (N.), -ficere, [pro-facio], 3. v. n., go forward, gain, make progress.

proficiscor, -fectus, -ficisci, [pro-fascior (fascio)], 3. v. dep., set out, start, depart, proceed, begin, arise: ratio profecta (proceeding).

profiteor, -fessus, -fieri, [profatior], 2. v. dep., profess, declare, offer, proffer, promise, make a declaration.

proficīgo, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [profligo], 1. v. a., dash down, overwhelm, lay prostrate, prostrate. — Exp., prōfligātus, -a, -um, abandoned, corrupt, unprincipled, profigate.

profugiō, -fugi, -fugīturus, -fugere, [pro-fugio], 3. v. n., flee away, escape, flee, take to flight.

profundō, -fundi, -fundus, -fundere, [pro-fundo], 3. v. a., pour forth, pour out, shed, waste.

profundus, -a, -um, [profundus], adj., deep. — Neut. as subst., an abyss.

prōgre∂ior, -gressus, -gredi, [prōgradior], 3. v. dep., advance, proceed, go: nihil progreditur (takes no step): quo tandem progressurus (how far he would go); quam in locum progressus (how far you have gone, how much you are implicated).

profibō, -ui, -itus, -ēre, [prohibeo], 2. v. a., hold off, hinder, forbid, prevent, shut out, cut off. — With a change of relation, keep (from some calamity, etc.), protect, guard.

prōloctō, -iectō, -ićci, -iectus, -icere, [pro-jacio], 3. v. a., cast forth, throw away, expose: foras (throw out, get rid of); insula projecta est (projects, runs out).

proinde [pro-inde], adv., (and so on?), just the same, just. — Also, therefore, hence: proinde quasi (just as if forsooth, ironical).

prōlātō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [pro-lato-], 1. v. a. and n., extend, put off, shillyshally, procrastinate.

promissionem, -i, [pp. of promitto], n., a promise.

prōmptus, -a, -um, [pp. of prompto], as adj., (taken out of the general store), on hand, ready, active.
Vocabulary.

prömulgō, -āvī, -ātus, -āre, [prob. promulgō (prō-mulgus, akin to mulgeo, multum)], i. v. a. and n., (post a fine?), give notice of (as a law), publish. — Absolutely, give notice of a bill.
prōnuntio, -āvī, -ātus, -āre, [prognuntio], i. v. a., proclaim, publish, declare, speak out.
prōpago, -āvī, -ātus, -āre, [propagō (stem of propagus), or kindred stem], i. v. a., (peg down, of plants, propagate by layers), propagate, extend, prolong, preserve: subolem (rear).
prope [pro-†pe (cf. quippe)], adv. and prep., near, nearly, almost.
— Comp. proplus, superl. proxime, as prep.: proxime deos (very near the gods).
propemodum [prope modum], adv., (often separate), nearly, very nearly, pretty nearly: prope modum errare (come near making a mistake).
properō, -āvī, -ātus, -āre, [properō-], i. v. a. and n., hasten: properiato opus est (there is need of haste).
propinquus, -a, -um, [case of prope†inus (cf. longinquus)], adj., near. — Esp., nearly related, related.
— As subst., a relative, a kinsman.
proplor, -us, [comp. of stem of prope], adj., nearer, closer. — Superl., proplus, -a, -um, [†proš†imus, cf. rectiprocus], nearest, very near, last, next, following. — As subst., a relative. — In plur., those nearest one, one's kindred.
prōsōnō, -posui, -positus, -ponere, [pro-pono], 3. v. a., place before, set before, set forth, set up, propose, pur-pose, imagine, conceive, set before as a model, offer, offer for sale, threaten, determine upon, present, bring forward: mīhi erat propositum (my purpose was).
prōpraetor, -ōris, [pro-praetor (corrupted from pro praetore and declined)], m., a praetor (one holding over in a province after the year of his praetorship).
proprī [old abl. of proprius], adv., properly, peculiarly, strictly, solely.
proprius, -a, -um, [?., perh. akin to prope], adj., one's own, peculiar, characteristic, indefeasible, permanent, appropriate, proper. — Often rendered by an adv., peculiarly: proprius est (peculiarly belongs); nos-te proprius (peculiarly ours); populi Romani (the peculiar characteristic of, etc.).
propter [prope†ter, cf. aliter], adv. and prep., near, near at hand.
— Hence, on account of, on behalf of, for the sake of, by means of, through (the agency of).
propterea, adv., on this account.
prōpudium, -i, [prō-pudium († pudō-, cf. pudet, + ium), cf. repudium], n., shameful conduct, a disgrace. — Also, of persons, a disgrace (one who causes shame).
prōpūgnāculum, -i, [propugnā + culum], n., a defence, a bulwark, outworks.
prōpūgnātor, -ōris, [pro-pugnator], m., a champion.
prōpulsō, -āvī, -ātus, -āre, [propulso, cf. propello], i. v. a., repel, ward off, averi: vim a vita (defend one's life against, etc.).
prōriplō, -ripui, -reptus, -ripere, [pro-rapio], 3. v. a., snatch away, drag forth, drag off.
Vocabulary.

prōscribō, -scripsi, -scriptus, -scribere, [pro-scribo], 3. v. a., advertise, publish (in writing). — Esp., proscribe (in a list of persons forfeiting their estates), outlaw.

prōscriptīō, -ōnis, [pro-scriptio, cf. proseribo], F., an advertising; a sale (on execution). — Hence, a proscription, outlawry, forfeiture of goods.

prōsequor, -secūtus, -sequi, [prosequor], 3. v. dep., follow forth, accompany out, escort, honor, pay respect.

proserē [old abl. of prosperus], adv., successfully, prosperously, with success.

prōspelō, -spēxī, -spectus, -spicer, [pro-specio], 3. v. a. and n., look forward, see afar, look out for, provide for.

prōsternō, -strāvi, -strātus, -sternere, [pro-sterno], 3. v. a., lay low, overwhelm, destroy, overthrow, lay prostrate, prostrate.

prōsum, prōsvi, prōsūtūrus, prōdesse, [pro-sum], irr. v. a., be of advantage, profit, do good, avail, benefit.

prōtrahō, -trāxi, -tractūs, -trahere, [pro-traho], 3. v. a., drag forth, drag out.

prōvidentia, -ae, [provident + ia], F., foresight, discretion, wisdom, prudence.

prūina, -ae, [?], F., hoarfrost, frost.

Prytanēum, (-ium), -i, [Πρυτανείον], N., a city-hall (a public building in a Greek city, where the magistrates met and lived at the public expense, and where public guests were entertained).

pubēs (puber), -eris, [?], adj., adult. — As subst., adults (collectively), grown men, young men of age, able-bodied men.

publicanus, -a, -um, [publici + anus], adj., connected with the revenue (publicum). — Esp. as subst., M., a farmer of the revenue.

publicātiō, -ōnis, [publicae + tio], F., a confiscation (taking private property into the publicum).

publicē [old abl. of publicus], adv., publicly, in the name of the state, as a state, on behalf of the state, officially: tumultus (of the people, general).

Publicius, -i, [publicō-+ius], M., a Roman gentle name. — Esp., an obscure Roman in the Catilinarian conspiracy.

publicō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [publicō-], I. v. a., (make belong to the public), confiscate.

publicus, -a,-um, [populō+cus], adj., of the people (as a state), of the state, public, official (as opposed to individual). — In many phrases, esp. res publica, the commonwealth, the public business, politics, control of the state, form of government, the affairs of state, the interests of the state; consilium, a state measure, the council of state, the official council; publico consilio, officially, as a state measure; consensus, the general agreement, the united voice of the people; litterae, official communications, despatches; tabulae, public or official records. — publicum, N., the public revenue. — Also, the streets, public appearance (going abroad, as opposed to seclusion), the sight of the people.

Publicus, -i, [prob. populō + ins, cf. publicus], M., a Roman prenommen.

pudet, puduit (puditum est), pudēre, [?], cf. propodium], 2. v., impers., (it shames), one is (etc.) ashamed (translating the accusative as subject).

pudicītia, -ae, [pudicō+tia], F., chastity, modesty (as a quality, cf. pudor, modesty in general or as a feeling).

pudor, -ōris, [∛pud (in pudet) + or], M., shame, a sense of shame, sense of honor, modesty, self-respect.

puer, -i, [?], M., a boy. — Plur., boys, children (of either sex): ex pueris (from childhood). — Also, a slave.

puerilis, -e, [puerō- (reduced) + illis], adj., of a child: aetas (of childhood).

pueritia, -ae, [puerō + tia], F., boyhood, childhood.

pūgna, -ae, [∛pug (in pungo) + na], F., a fight (less formal than proelium).

pūgnō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [pugna-], I. v. n., fight, engage. — Fig., fight, contend. — Often impers. in pass., pūgnātum est, etc., an engagement took place, they fought, the fighting continued, the battle was fought: hostes pugnantes (while fighting, in battle); pugnari videre (to see a fight going on).

pulcher, -chra, -chrum, [?], adj., beautiful, handsome, fine, attractive.

— Less exactly, glorious, noble.

pulchrē [old abb. of pulcher], adv., beautifully, honorably, successfully.

pulchritūdō, -inis, [pulchrō + tudo], F., beauty: haec pulchritudo (all this beauty).

pulsus, p.p. of pello.

pulvinar, -āris, [pulvinō+aria], N., a couch of the gods (where the images of the gods were feasted on solemn occasions).

punctum, -i, [p.p. of pungo], N., a prick, a point. — Hence, an instant (temporis).

pungō, pugugi, punctus, pungere, [∛pug, cf. pugnus], 3. v. a., punch, stab, pierce, prick.

Punicus, -a, -um, [Poenō+cus], adj., Carthaginian, Punic: bellum (of the wars with Carthage).

pūniō (poeniō), īvi (-ii), -itus,-īre, [poena- or kindred -ī stem, cf. im-
Vocabulary.

punis], 4. v. a., punish. — Also passive as deponent in same sense.

pūnitōr (poen-), -tōris, [puni + tor], m., a punisher, an avenger.

purgō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [purgō (purō + ūagus, cf. prodigious)], 1. v. a., clean, cleanse, clear. — Fig., excuse, exonerate, free from suspicion, exculpate, absolve.

purpura, -ae, [Gr. πορφόρα], f., purple (the dye, really a dark red).
— Also, purple cloth, purple garments, purple (in the same sense).

purpurātus, -a, -um, [purpura + tus], adj., clad in purple. — Masc. as subst., a courtier, a prime minister.

pūrus, -a, -um, [pu (clean) + rus, cf. plerus], adj., clean, pure, unsullied, unstained. — Also fig.: mens (honest, pure, unselfish).

puteal, -ālis, [puteō + alia], n., a well-curb. — Esp., the Puteal Libonis, an enclosure in the Forum like a well-curb. The vicinity served as a kind of Exchange.

putō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [putō (stem of putus, clean)], 1. v. a., clean up, clear up. — Esp.: rationes (clear up accounts). — Hence, reckon, think, suppose, imagine.

Pyrrhus, -i, [Gr. Πύρρος], m., a common Greek name. — Esp., the king of Epirus, who invaded Italy in B.C. 280.

Q.

Q., abbrev. for Quintus.

quī [abl. or instr.(?) of qui], rel. adv., by which (way), where.

quadrāgintā [quadra (akin to quattuor) + ginta(?)], indecl. num. adj., forty.

quadrīduum, -i, [quadra + duum (akin to dies)], n., four days' time.

quadrīgentī, -ae, -a, [unc. form (akin to quattuor) + genti (for centi)], num. adj., four hundred.

quadrīgentiēns (-īēns) [cf. tōtiēns], num. adv., four hundred times. — Hence (sc. centena millia), forty million.

quaerō, quaevi, quaevītus, quaerere, [?, with r for original s], 3. v. a. and n., search for, seek for, look for, inquire about, inquire, ask, try to get, get, find, desire, investigate, conduct investigations, preside over trials, hold an investigation, be president of a court: ex eis quaeritur (they are examined); quid quaeris amplius? (what more do you want?); invidia quaeritur (one tries to excite odium); in quaerendo (in or on investigation).

quaesitor, -tōris, [quaesi- (as stem of quaero, in 4th conj.) + tor], m., an investigator. — Esp., a president (of a court, who conducted the trial).

quaesō (orig. form of quaero, petrified in a particular sense), only pres. stem, 3. v. a. and n., beg, pray:
quaeso (I beg you, pray tell me).

quaestīō, -onis, [quaes (as root of quaero) + tīo], f., an investigation, an examination (of a case, or of witnesses, especially by torture), a trial, a court, a question (on trial).

quaestor, -tōris, [quaes- (as root of quaero) + tor], m., (investigator, or acquirer, perch. both), a quaestor, a class of officers at Rome or on the staff of a commander, who had charge of money affairs and public records. They also had charge of some investigations, and perhaps originally collected fines and the like: pro quaestore (acting quaestor).

quaestōritus, -a, -um, [quaestor
Vocabulary.

+ īus], adj., of a quæstor, of one’s quæstorship.

quæstūōsus, -a, -um, [quæstū + osus], adj., lucrative.

quæstūra, -ae, [quæstū + ra, cf. figura], f., (investigation or acquisition, cf. quæstor), a quæstorship, the office of quæstor.

quæstus, -ūs, [quæs (as root of quænero) + urs], m., acquisition, gain, profit, business (for profit), earnings: pœniam in quæstu relinquere (profitably employed, at interest or used in business).

quälls, -e, [quō- (stem of quis) + alis]. a. Interr. adj., of what sort? of what nature? what kind of a? what sort of? quae qualia sint (the character of which, etc.). — b. Rel. adj., of which sort, as (correl. with tails), such as (with tails omitted).

quam [case-form of quis and qui, cf. tam, nam], adv. and conj.

a. Interr. why? how? how much? — b. Rel., as, as... as, than: malle quam (rather than). — Often with superlatives, as much as possible, the utmost: quam maximas (the greatest possible); quam maxime (very much). — See also postquam, priusquam, which are often separated, but are best represented in Eng. together.

quamdū [quam dum], adv., see the parts, how long, as long as.

quam ob rem (often found together), adv. phrase: 1. Interr. why? — 2. Relative, on which account, for which reason.

quamquam [quamquam] [quam quam, cf. qualsquis], rel. adv., (however), although, though. — Often corrective, though, yet (where Eng. takes a diff. view), yet after all.

quamvis [quam vis], adv., as you please, however, no matter how. — Also, however much, although.

quandōquidem (often separate) [quando quidem], phrase as adv., (when at least?), since.

quantō, see quantus.

quantopere, see opus.

quantus, -a, -um, [prob. for ka- (root of qua) + vant + us], adj. a. Interrog., how great? how much? what? — b. Relative, as great, as much, as (corr. to tautus), as great... as (with tautus omitted), such... as, however great, however much.

— quantum, N. acc. as adv., how much (see above), as. — quantē, N. abl., as, as much... as.

quantuscumque, quanta-, quantum-, [quantus-cumque], rel. adj., however great.

quāpropter [qua (abl. or instr. of qui) -propter], adv., on which account, wherefore, therefore.

quārē [qua-re], adv., rel. and interrog., by which thing, wherefore, therefore, on account of which (circumstance, etc.), why. — The relative and interrogative senses are not always distinguishable.

quartus, -a, -um, [quattuor- (reduced) + urs], adj., fourth: quartus decimus (fourteenth).

quasi [quam (or qua)-si], conj., as if: quasi vero (as if forsooth, ironical). — Also, about, say, a kind of, as it were, like.

quassā, -āvi, -āvis, -āre, [quassā-], 1. v. a., shake violently, shatter.

quatenus [quatenus], adv., how far, how long.
Vocabulary.

quattuor [有兴趣，略去], indecl. num. adj., four.

-que (always appended to the word or to some part of the phrase which it connects) [unc. case-form of qui], conj., and. — Sometimes connecting the particular to the general, and in general, and other.

quem ad modum, phrase as adv., how, just as, as.

queō, -ivi (-ii), -itūs, -īre, [?] 4. irr. v. n., be able, can.

querēla, -ae, [unc. stem (akin to queror) + la, cf. candela], f., a complaint, a cause of complaint.

querimōnia, -ae, [†querō (cf. querulus) + monia (cf. parcelmonia)], f., a complaining, a complaint.

queror, questus, querī, [?, with r for original s], 3. v. dep., complain, make a complaint, complain of, find fault, find fault with, bewail.

qui, quae, quod, cūjus, [prob. quō + ē (demonstrative)], rel. pron., who, which, that. — Often where a demonstrative is used in Eng., this, that. — Often implying an antecedent, he who, etc., whoever, whatever, one who, a thing which. — Often expressing some relation otherwise denoted in English, in that, as, to, see grammar. — quō, abl. of degree of difference, the (more, less, etc.). — See also quis, quad, a. quo, b. quo, c. quo.

qui [old abl. or instr. of quis], adv., how?

qua [? , case-form of qui, perh. neuter plural of l-stem], conj., because, inasmuch as.

quicumque (quicunque), qua-, quod-, [qui-cunque (cf. quisque)], indef. rel., whoever, whichever, whatever, every possible, all who, etc.

quidam, quae-, quod- (quid-), [qui-dam (case of √da, cf. nam, tam)], indef. pron., a (possibly known, but not identified), one, some, a certain, certain, a kind of (referred to as belonging to the class but not exactly the thing spoken of): divino quodam spiritu (a kind of divine, etc.); alia quaedam (a somewhat different). — Often as subst., a man, something, a thing, etc.

quidem [unc. case-form of qui + dem (from √da, cf. tandem, Idem)], conj., giving emphasis to a word or strength to an assertion, but with no regular English equivalent, certainly, most certainly, and certainly, at least, at any rate, assuredly, I'm sure, let me say, I may say, by the way, you know. — Often only concessive, followed by an adversative, to be sure, doublet, no doubt. — Often emphasizing a single word: mea quidem sententia (in my opinion); mihi quidem ipsi (for my own part); quae quidem (and these things); nam e lege quidem (for by law). — Esp. : si quidem (if really, since); ne . . . quidem (not even, not . . . either).

quīēs, -ētis, [quiē (stem of quie-escor, etc.)] + ēs (reduced)], f., rest, sleep, repose.

quīēscō, -ēvi, -ētus, -ēscere, [†quies (cf. old abl. quie) + seī, cf. quies], 3. v. n., go to rest, rest, sleep, be quiet, do nothing, keep quiet: quiescens (while at rest, asleep). — quīētus, -a, -um, p.p. as adj., quiet, at rest, at peace, undisturbed, in quiet, inactive, untroubled, calm.

quilibet, quae-, quod-, [quilibet], indef. pron., who you please, any one whatever, what you please, etc.: alius quilibet (any other you please, any one whatever).
Vocabulary.

quid [qui (abl. or instr. of qui) + ne], conj., interrog., how not? nay, why! and relative, by which not: quid etiam (may even, in fact).—After negative verbs of hindrance and doubt, so but what, but what, but that, that, from (doing a thing), to (do a thing): non dubito quin (I doubt not that, also rarely, do not hesitate to); nemo est quin (there is no one but, etc.); non fuit recusandum quin, etc. (it was not to be avoided that); ne se quidem servare potuit quin (without, etc.); non quin (not that...not, not but what); quin sic attendite (come, etc.).

quinam, see quismam.

quindecim [quinque-decem], indecl. num. adj., fifteen.

quinquenti, -ae, -a, [quinque-centum], num. adj., five hundred.

quinqueintim [quinque + unc. stem], indecl., fifty.

quinque[?], indecl. num. adj., five.

quintus, -a, -um, [quinque+tus], adj., fifth, V.—Esp. as a Roman prænomen (orig. the fifth-born?), Q.

Quintus, -i, see quintius.

quippe [quid (?) + pe, cf. nempe], adv. (prob. what in truth?), truly, of course, no doubt.—Often ironical, forsooth.

Quiris, -itis, [?], perh. Curi + tis, but in the orig. meaning of the name of the town, cf. curia], M., a Roman citizen. — Plur., fellow-citizens (addressed by a Roman).

quis (qui), quae, quid (quod), cujus, [stem qui and quō]. a. Interrog. pron., who, which, what. — As adj. (qui and quod), what sort of, what: qui esset ignorabas (what he was, etc.). — Esp. neuter nom. and acc., what, why: quid est quod (why is it that, what is there as to which);

quid, quid quod, quid vero (what! tell me, moreover, and again, then again); quid tibi obsto (wherein); quid oppugnas (why); quid si (what if, how if).—b. Indef., one, any one, any thing, some, some one.

See nequis, numquis, ecquis.

quismam (qui-), quae-, quid- (quod-), [quis-nam], interrog. pron., who, pray who? who? (with emphasis), what (in the world)? what?

quismplam, quae-, quid- (quod-), cujus-, [quis-plam (pe-jam, cf. quippe, nempe)], indef. pron.; any, any one, any thing, some one (perhaps).

quismquam, quae-, quid- (quic-), cujus-, [quis- quam], indef. pron. used substantively (cf. ultius), only with negatives and words implying a negative, making a universal negative, any one, any thing, any man: taetrior quam quisquam, etc. (than, etc., implying a negative idea); quam diu quisquam (as long as any one, i.e., until nobody); neque servus quisquam neque liber (no one, either slave or freeman); neque vir bonus quisquam (no honest man).

quisque, quae-, quid- (quod-), cujus-, [quis-que], indef. pron. (distributive universal), each, each one, each man, every, all (individually). — Esp. with superlatives, implying that things are taken in the order of their quality: nobilissimus quisque (all the noblest, one after the other in the order of their nobility); primo quoque tempore (the very first opportunity). — With two superlatives, often with ut and ita, a proportion is indicated, in proportion as...so, the more...the more, most...the most, the most...most. — Esp. with unus, each one, each.
Vocabulary.

quisquis, quaequae, quidquid (quicquid), cujuscumque, [quis, doubled], indef. rel. pron., whoever, whatever, every one who, all who: quoquo modo (however, in any case).

quivis, quae-, quid- (quod-), cujus-, [qui-vis], indef. pron., who you please, any one, any whatever (affirmative), any (whatever), any possible, any man (no matter who).

a. quō, abl. of degree of difference, see qui.

b. quō [abl. of cause, etc.], as conj., by which, on which account, wherefore. — Esp. with negatives, not that, not as if. — Also, in order that (esp. with comparatives), that. — Esp., quōminus, that not, so that not.

c. quō [old dat. of quē], adv.

a. Interrog., whither? how far? quo usque (how long? how far? to what extent?). — b. Relative, whither, where (in sense of whither), into which, as far as (i.e., to what end): quo intendit (what he is aiming at); habere quo (have a place to go to, or the like). — See also quoad.

quoad [quo ad], conj., (up to which point), as far as, until, as long as: quoad longissime (just as far as).

quēcunque (cunque) [quōcunque], adv., whithersoever, wherewith, whichever way.

quod [N. of quē], conj., (as to which), because, inasmuch as, in that, as for the fact that, the fact that, that, as for (with clause expressing the action): quod si (now if, but if); quod sciam (so far as I know).

quom, see cum.

quōminus, see b. quo.

quâmodo, see quâls and modus.

quondam [quom (cum) -dam (vulgaris, cf. tam)], adv., once, formerly.

quotiam [quom (cum) -jam], conj., (when now), inasmuch as, since, as.

quoque [?] , conj., following the word it affects, (by all means?), also, too, as well, even. Cf. etiam (usually preceding).

quot [quō + tī (unc. form from /TA, cf. tam?)], pron. indecl.

a. Interrog., how many? — b. Relative, as many, as many as (with implied antecedent).

quotannis, often separate, [quotannis], adv., (as many years as there are), every year, yearly.

quotidiânis (cotid-), -a, -um, [quotidie (reduced) + anus], adj., daily.

quotidiē (cotid-), [quot dies (in unc. form.)], adv., daily.

quotiēns (quotiēns) [quotiēns], cf. quisquēns, adv. a. Interrog., how often? how many times? — b. Relative, as often, as often as (with implied antecedent).

quotiēscunque (quotiēscunque) [quotiēs-cunque], adv., as often as, just as often as, every time that.

quotus, -a, -um, [quo- (stem of quē) + tus, cf. quintus], adj., which in number (cf. fifth). — Esp., quōtus quisque, how many (every “how manieth”), what proportion of (men).

quoquesque, see c. quo and usque.

quovis [c. quo vis], adv., whither you please, anywhere (cf. qui vis).

quum, late spelling for cum, which see.
Vocabulary.

R.

rādix, -icis, [?], F., a root.—Plur., the roots (of a tree), the foot (of a mountain).—Fig., stock, stem.

Raeclius, -i, [?], M., a Roman gentile name.—Only L. Ræcius, a knight in business at Palermo.

rāeda, -arius, see rhe-.

rāpina, -ae, [rāpi- (stem akin to rapiō) + na (F. of -nus)], F., plunder, robbery, rapine.

rapiō, rapui, raptus, rapere, [cf. rapidus, Gr. ἀρπάξα], 3. v. a. and n., seize, drag off, drag.—Less exactly, hurry on, hurry.—Pass., hurry.

raptō, -āvī, -ātus, -āre, [raptō-], 1. v. a., drag away, drag as a captive, abuse, maltreat.

rārō [abl. of rarus], adv., rarely.

ratiō, -onis, [ratiō (ra, in reor, + ti) + o], F., a reckoning, an account.—A mercantile word shading off in many directions like Eng. business and affair.—Esp. with habeo or duco (cf. account), take account of, have regard to, take into consideration.—Less exactly, a calculation, a plan, a design, a plan of action, a method, an arrangement, a way, a course, a means, business, business relations, a consideration (a thing to be considered), manner: qua ratione (on what principle, in what way, how); salutis (plan, hope); criminum (nature); omni ratione (in every way, by every means); eadem ratione (of the same tenor); fori et judici (the business, what is to be done there); ratio pecuniarum (money affairs, state of the finances); vitæ rationes (plans, plan); studiorum (course); ratio honorum (the course of ambition); commoda ac rationes (plans of life, interests); in dissimili ratione (in different directions).—More remotely, science, art, a system, reason, a course of reasoning, sound reason, a view, theoretical knowledge: bona ratione (sound principles); facti et consili (rationale, principes).

ratōcinor, -ātus, -āri, [tratiōcīnō- (ration + cinus, cf. sermocinor)], 1. v. dep., reckon, reason, calculate.

re-, red-, [abl. of unc. stem, perh. akin to -rēs], insep. prep., back, again, away, out, un.—Esp. implying a giving or taking something which is due, or which creates an obligation by the taking, see reciplō.

rea, -ae, [F. of reus], F., a defendant (female, or conceived as such).

Reātīnus, -a, -um, [Reati+nus], adj., of Reate (a town of the Sabines about forty miles north-east of Rome).

recedō, -cessi, -cessūrus, -cessere, [re-cedo], 3. v. n., make way back, retire, withdraw: recessum est (recessimus) ab armis (the war ceased, we laid down our arms).

recēns, -entis, [prob. p. of lost verb *recceo (formed from recēs, cf. recipero)], adj., (? just coming back?), new, fresh, late, still fresh, still recent.

recēnsīō, -onis, [re-censio, cf. recenseo], F., the census (as taken and recorded).

receptor, -tōris, [re-capto, cf. reciplō], m., a receiver.—Fig., a haunt.

receprix, -icis, [F. of preceding], F., a receiver (female).

recēssus, -sūs, [re-cessus (cf. recedo)], m., a retreat, a recess (a place that withdraws).
recidō, -cīdī, -cāsūrus, -cidere, [re-cado], 3. v. n., fall again, fall back, fall upon, fall away, fall, be reduced.

reciperō, see recuperō.

recipīō, -cēpī, -ceptus, -cipere, [re-capio], 3. v. a., take back, get back, recover, take in, receive, admit, take upon (one's self), take up, undertake, promise. — With reflexive, retreat, fly, return, retire, get off, withdraw, resort.

rectlō, -āvī, -ātus, -āre, [re-cito], 1. v. a., read (aloud).

reclāmitō, no perf., no p.p., -āre, [re-clamito], 1.v.n., cry out against.

reclāmō, -āvī, -ātus (impers.), -āre, [re-clamo], 1. v. n. (and a.), cry out against (a thing).

recōgnōscō, -nōvī, -nītus, -nōscere, [re-cognosco], 3. v. a., review, go over again, recognize.

recolō, -colui, -cultus, -colere, [re-colo], 3. v. a., cultivate again.

— Less exactly, renew, review.

reconciliātiō, -onis, [reconciliā + tio], f., reconciliation, renewal (concordiae).

reconciliō, -āvī, -ātus, -āre, [re-concilio], 1. v. a., reconcile, regain, win anew, restore (gratiam).

recondō, -didi, -ditus, -dere, [re-condo], 3. v. a., put away again, put away, sheathe (a sword).—reconditus, -a, -um, p.p., concealed, laid away, hidden, secret.

recordātiō, -onis,[recordā + tio], f., a recalling to mind, a recollection.

recorder, -ātus, -āri, [record-[cf. concors], but perhaps made immediately from re and cor on analogy of concors], 1. v. dep., recall to mind (cor), recollect, remember (of a single act of memory, cf. memini, which is more permanent), recall.

recrēō, -āvī, -ātus, -āre, [re-creo], 1. v. a., re-create. — Hence, revive, restore, refresh, recover (esp. with reflex. or in passive).

rectē [old abl. of rectus], adv., rightly, properly, truly, with justice: recte factum (a right action, a good deed, a noble action).

rectus, see rego.

recuperō (-cipērō), -āvī, -ātus, -āre, [recipērō, from recē-, cf. recens, reciprocus] + parus (cf. opiparus), 1. v. a., get back, recover, regain.

recurrō, -curri, no p.p., -currere, [re-curro], 3. v. n., run back. — Fig., return, revert.

recusātiō, -onis, [recusā + tio], f., a refusal.

recusō, -āvī, -ātus, -āre, [re-cause (cf. excusu)], 1. v. a. and n., (give an excuse for drawing back), refuse, reject, repudiate, object, object to: de transñferandís júndiciís (object to, etc.) quin (refuse to); quominus (refuse to); periculum (refuse to incur); non fuit recusandum (it was to be expected, it was not to be avoided).

redactus, -a, -um, [p.p. of redī-go], as adj., brought back, reduced.

redarguō, -nī, -nītus, -nere, [redarguo], 3. v. a. and n., disprove.

reddō, -didi, -ditus, -dere, [re-(red-)do], 3. v. a., give back, restore, repay, pay (something due, cf. re), render, return: bene reddita vita (a life nobly lost). — Hence (as taking a thing and restoring in another condition), render, make, cause to be.

redemptiō, -onis,[red-emptio, cf. redlimo], f., a buying up, a purchase, a bargain for, a contract for.

redemptus, -a, -um, p.p. of redimo.
Vocabulary.

redeō, -ii (-iī), -itūrus, -ire, [red- (red-)eo], irr. v. n., go back, return, come back, be returned, be entered (in a record), be restored.

redimō, -iī (-iī), -itus, -āre, [red- (red-)emo], 3. v. a., buy back, redeem, purchase, buy. Esp., contract for, bid for (on contract), farm, lease.

reditus, -ūs, [re- (red-) titus], m., a return.

redoleō, -olui, no p.p., -olēre, [red-oleo], 2. v. a. and n., smell, smell of, be exhaled (of the odor itself).

reducō, -duxi, -ductus, -ducere, [re-duco], 3. v. a., lead back, bring back, draw back, escort back.

reundō, -āvī, -ātus, -āre, [reundo], 1. v. n., flow back, overflow.
— Also, overflow with, flow (with), reek (with blood): acervis et sanguine (be filled with).—Fig., spring up, flow, cover (as with a flood).

reduvia, -ae, [red + unc. stem, cf. exuviae], f., a hang-nail.

reduc-, -ucus, [re-dux-], adj., leading back.—Also passive, returning, restored (to one’s city, etc.).

refallō, -fellī, no p.p., -fellere, [re-fallo], 3. v. a., refute.

referō, -feri, -fertus, -fercire, [re-facio], 4. v. a., stuff up, stuff, cram full, cram, crowd full, crowd.

referō, -tuli, -lātus, -ferre, [re-fero], irr. v. a., bring back, return, bring (where something belongs), report, record (as an account), set down (in a record or to an account).
—Esp.: ad senatum (or absolutely), lay before (the senate for action), consult (the senate), propose; de re publica (consult the senate in regard to, etc.); gratiam (make a return, repay, show one’s gratitude).

refert, -tuli, no p.p., -ferre, [res or ō(r)ō(fert)], irr. v. impers. (cf. re and natura fert), it is one’s interest, it is important, it makes a difference, it is of account.

reficiō, -ēci, -fectus, -ficere, [refacio], irr. v. a., repair, refresh, recruit, relieve, revive.

reformidō, no perf., no p.p., -āre, [re-formido], 1. v. a. and n., dread, shrink from: non reformido (be free from alarm).

refrigerē, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [refrigero], 1. v. a., chill, cool down.

refugiō, -ūgi, -fugiōrēs, -fugere, [re-fugio], 3. v. n. and a., run away, escape, avoid.—Fig., recoil, shrink from.

refutō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [re-ftpoto, cf. conflatō], 1. v. a., check, repel.
—Hence, refute, disprove.

regālils, -ē, [rēg + alis], adj., of or like a king: nomen (of king).

rēgā, see regius.

rēgitō [old abl. of regitus], adv., royally, in a regal manner, tyrannically (like a rex).

rēgitō, -ōnis, [√ rēg + io, but cf. ratio], f., direction.—Hence, a direction, a line, position, place, a part (of the country, etc.), a boundary, a region, a country, a district (esp. in plur.): regio atque ora maritima (maritime region and coast).—In plur., bounds, boundaries, limits, regions, a country, a quarter.

Rēgium, -īnī, see Rhē-.

rēgius, -a, -um, [rēg + ius], adj., of a king, regal, royal, of the king.—Esp., rēgla (sc. domus), a palace, the palace (the Regia, the ancient house of Numa, on the Forum, kept for religious purposes.

reignō, āvi, ātūrus, āre, [regnō-],
i. v. n., rule, be in power, be a king, hold a regal power.

regnum, -i, [*regn + num (N. of -nus)], N., a kingdom, royal power, regal power, a throne, tyranny. — Plur., the royal power (of several cases), thrones.

regnō, réxi, rectus, regere, [same root as rex], 3. v. a., direct, manage, rule, have control of, control. — Esp., rectus, -a, -um, p.p., (directed), straight, right, just: rectā (straightway), directly.

regredior, gressus, -gredi, [reggradior], 3. v. dep., go back, return.

relloō (relloēō), -ēci, -ectus, -ice, [rejacio], 3. v. a., throw back, hurl back, drive back, throw off, throw away, drive off, repel, spurn. — Fig., repel, reject, put away: judices (challenge).

rejactō, -ōnis, [re-jectio, cf. relecto], f., a throwing away. — Esp., a challenge (of jurymen), empaneling.

relaxō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [relaxo],
i. v. a., relax.

relēgō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [relēgo],
i. v. a., remove, separate, banish, exile.

relevō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [relevo],
i. v. a., raise up again, lift up. — Fig., relieve.

religō, -ōnis, [? re-legio (cf. relego)], f., (the original meaning uncertain, see Cic. N. D., 2, 28), a religious scruple, a religious observance, the service of the gods, superstition, a superstitious terror, religion, sacredness, sanctity (changing the point of view), religious reverence, religious duty. — Esp., regard:

for an oath, conscientiousness, the sanctity of an oath. — Plur., sacred objects, sanctuaries, affairs of religion, religion (abstractly).

religiosus [old abl. of religiosus], adv., scrupulously, conscientiously, with regard to one's oath.

religiosus, -a, -um, [perh. religio- (more prob. †religō-) + osus], adj., religious (with much religio in its several senses), conscientious (with regard for an oath). — Also (in the other sense of religio), sacred, holy, revered, held in religious reverence, venerated, venerable.

reliquō, -liqui, -lictus, -linquere, [re-liquo], 3. v. a., leave behind, leave, abandon, leave off, omit, leave alone, leave undone, leave unavenged, disregard.

reliquus, -a, -um, [re-liquus (*liqu + us)], adj., left, remaining, the rest of, the rest, the other, other (meaning all other), the others, all other, future (of time, remaining), subsequent, after, intervening (before some other time): res (which remain for the future, future); reliquus est (is left, remains, etc.); reliqua (the future); nihil reliquis (nothing left); nihil (reliquum) reliquus fecerat (leave nothing).

remanēō, -māni, -mānūrus, manēre, [re-maneo], 2. v. n., remain behind, remain, stay, reside, be, continue, last.

remānēlō, -ōnis, [re-maneo, cf. remaneo], f., a remaining.

rēmex, -igis, [remē- with unc. term. (perh. ōgus)], m., an oarsman, a rower.

reminiscor, -miniscē, [re-minsicor (*man, in meminī, + isco)],
3. v. dep., remember, bear in mind.

remissō, -ōnis, [re-missio, cf.
Vocabulary.

remitto], F, a sending back, a relaxation, a diminution, a remission.

remittō, -misi, -missus, -mittere, [re-mitto], 3. v. a., let go back, send back, throw back.— Fig., relax, remit, give up.— remissus, -a, -um, p.p. as adj., slack, lax, remiss.

remoror, -ātus, -āri, [re-moror], 1. v. dep., stay behind, delay (act. and intr.), retard: aliquem poena (keep one waiting, give one a respite).

removeō, -mōvī, -mōtus, -movcre, [re-moveo], 2. v. a., move back, move away, send away, remove, draw away, get out of the way, separate, leave out of the question: poenam (set aside, take off, remove); remoto Catilina (with C. out of the way); remotus (remote, far removed, apart).

rēmus, -i, [?], M., an oar.

renovō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [re-novo], 1. v. a., renew.

renuntiō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [re-nuntio], 1. v. a., bring back word, bring news, report, proclaim.— Also, renounce, abandon.

reppellō, -puli, -pulsus, -pellecre, [re-pello], 3. v. a., drive back, repel, repulse, ward off, avert: te a consulatu (foil your attempt to gain, etc.); furores a cervicibus (defend one’s throat from, etc., rescue one’s life from, etc.).

repete [abl. of repens?], adv., (creeping on so as to appear suddenly?), suddenly.

repentinō, see repentinus.

repentinus, -a, -um, [repentinus], adj., sudden, hasty, unexpected: speculator (transient, non-resident); pecuniae (suddenly acquired).— repentinō, abl. as adv., suddenly.

reperīō, reperī, repetus, repere-reire, [re-(red-)pario], 4. v. a., find out, discover, find (by inquiry, cf. invenio, accidentally, and compere, in reference to the complete result), learn.

repetō, -petiō, -petitus, -petere, [re-peto], 3. v. a., try to get back, demand back, ask for, try again, look back (at something past), claim (as one’s due): poenam, poenas (demand a penalty, inflict punishment, wreak vengeance).— Esp. of money got by extortion, demand (restitution).— Hence, repetandae (with or without pecuniae), the suit for extortion (a process used against any official for property unlawfully acquired in his office), extortion (where the suit is implied in other words).

repleō, -plēvī, -plētus, -plere, [repleo], 2. v. a., fill up, supply.— repūtus, -a, -um, p.p., full, crowded.

reportō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [re-porto], 1. v. a., carry back, bring back.

reposcō, -poscere, [re-posco], 3. v. a., demand back, demand (something due).

reprehendō, -hendi, -hensus, -hendere, [re-prehendo], 3. v. a. and n., drag back, seize hold of, find fault with, blame, censure, find fault, object.

reprehensīō, -onis, [re-prehensio, cf. reprehendo], F, a finding fault, censure, criticism.

repressor, -ōris, [re-pressor, cf. reprimō], M., a restrainer.

reprimō, -pressī, -pressus, -primere, [re-premo], 3. v. a., check, thwart, foil: reprimi sed non comprimi (put back but not put down).

repudiō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [repudiō], 1. v. a., (spurn with a stroke, cf. tripulum], spur, refuse, reject.
republico, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [re-pugno], i. v. n., resist. — Fig., be in opposition.
reputo, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [re-puto], i. v. a., reckon up, think over.
requiēs, -ētis (-ētis), [re-quiēs], F., rest, repose.
requiescēs, -ēvi, -ētus, -ēscere, [re-quiēscēs], 3. v. n., rest, repose.
requirērī, -quisīvī, -quisītus, -quiērīcere, [re-quaērō], 3. v. a. and n., search out, enquire for. — Hence, ask, ask for, request, require, demand, need, miss, be in want of.
res, rei, [akin to reor], F., property (?), business, an affair, a matter, a thing (in the most general sense).
— Hence determined by the context, a fact, an occurrence, an event, a case, an action, an act, a measure, an object (aimed at), one's interest, an art, a science, a point, a lawsuit, a case (at law). — Esp. where no word corresponding to the English idea exists in Latin: res quae exportantur (exports). — Often where a pronoun is avoided: qua in re (in what, in which); eam in rem (for that); el quoque rei (for this also).
— Esp. of public matters, with publica (also without), see publicus: res maximae (power, glory, career); novae res (revolution, a change of government); summa potestas omnium rerum (of the whole state). — Also, rem, res gerere (perform exploits, carry on war, act, operate, conduct affairs); res populi Romani (deeds, exploits, history, career); res gestae (explicts, acts) ipsa res (the case itself, the circumstances of the case, the facts); re vera (in fact); re (by actions, as opposed to words, in fact); in suam rem convertit (in his own use); haec acta res est (this was the object aimed at, this is what was accomplished); res omnis tecum erit (all my business will be, etc., I shall have only to deal with you, etc.); in rebus judicandis (in trials); ob rem judicandam (for deciding a case); res magna aguntur (great interests, etc.); multarum rerum societas (many associations); res militaria (the art of war, war); privatarum rerum decus (private conduct); ita se res habet (the case is such, it is so).
rescindēdī, -scidī, -scissus, -scindere, [res-scindo], 3. v. a., cut away, tear down, break down, destroy. — Hence, rescind, annul.
ressecī, -ui, -ius, -āre, [res-seco], i. v. a., cut off, cut away.
reservō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [reservō], 1. v. a., keep back, reserve, hold in reserve, keep.
resideō, -sēdī, no p.p., -sidēre, [res-sedeō], 2. v. n., sit back, sit down, remain behind, remain, rest, stop.
resignō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [re-signō], 1. v. a., unseal, annul, destroy.
respicīō, -spēxi, -spectus, -spicere, [re-śpecio], 3. v. a. and n., look back, look back at, look behind one, see behind one, review.
respirō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [respiro], 1. v. a. and n., breathe out, exhale, breathe again, breathe, draw one's breath.
respondeō, -spōndi, -spōnsūrus, -spōndere, [res-spondeo], 2. v. n.,
Vocabulary.

reply, answer, make an answering argument or reply; esp. of an oracle or seer. — Fig., correspond, match.

responsum, i, [N. p.p. of respondere], N., a reply, a response. — Plur., a reply (of several parts), advice.

république, see res and publicus.

respúu, -spuí, no p.p., -spuere, [re-spúuo], 3. v. a., spit out. — Fig., spurn, reject.

restinguó, -stinxí, -stinctus, -stinguer, [re-stinguó], 3. v. a., extinguish. — Less exactly, destroy, annihilate.

restituó, -stítiú, -stíitus, -stituere, [re-stituou], 3. v. a., set up again, replace, restore, make anew, re-establish, revive, recall (one from exile).

restitúitor, -tórís, [restitu- (as stem of restituo) + tor], M., a restorer.

restó, -stí (in common with resto), no p.p., -stáre, [re-stó], i.v.n., remain, be left.

retardó, -ávi, -átus, -äre, [retardo], 1. v. a. and n., retard, check, delay, keep back: non sopítas sed retardata consuetudo (not put to sleep but dosing, or not lost but relaxed, abandoning the figure of dullness, cf. tardus).

reticentía, -ae, [reticent + ia], f., silence.

reticéó, -uí, no p.p., -ère, [re-taceo], 2. v. n. and a., keep silence, be silent, say nothing.

retineó, -tinuí, -tentus, -tiner, [re-teneo], 2. v. a., hold back, restrain (quin, from doing something), detain, retain, preserve, keep, maintain (by not losing); jura (observe, maintain); id memoria (keep, bear in mind).

retorqueó, -torsi, -tortus, -torquère, [re-torqueo], 2. v. a., twist back, hurl back, roll back, turn back.

retractátíó, -ónis, [retractá + tio], F., a drawing back: sine ulla retractatione (without any shrinking or hesitation).

retrahó, -tráxi, -tractus, -trahere, [re-traho], 3. v. a., drag back, bring back (a person), draw away.

retrundó, -tudi, -túsus, -tundere, [re-tundo], 3. v. a., beat back, blunt, turn the edge of.

reus, -i, [ré (as stem of re) + ius], M., (with a case in court), a party (to a case). — Esp., a defendant, an accused person, the accused. — Often to be rendered by a phrase, under accusation: reum facere (bring to trial).

reveló, -velli, -vulsus, -vellere, [re-vello], 3. v. a., tear away, pull away, pull off.

revertó, -verti, -versus, -vertere, [re-verto], 3. v. n., act. in perf. tenses, return (turn about and go back, cf. redeo, get back, come back). — Pass. as deponent in pres. tenses, return, go back, revert.

revincó, -vici, -victus, -vincere, [re-vinco], 3. v. a. and n., subdue.

— Fig., refute, confute, put in the wrong.

reviviscó (-escó), -vixi, no p.p., -viviscere, [re-vivisco], 3. v. n., come to life again, revive.

revocó, -ávi, -átus, -äre, [re-voco], 1. v. a., call back (either from or to something), call away, call off, recall, draw back, withdraw, try to withdraw, restore (call back to).

réx, régis, [√reg as stem], M., a king (esp. in a bad sense, as a tyrant).

rhédá (raeda, réda), -ae, [perh.
Celtic or Oscan form akin to rota], f., a wagon (with four wheels).

Rhédàrus (rēd-, rēd-), i, [rhe-da + arius], m., driver of rheda.

Rhégíni (Rég-), -őrum, [Rhegi-o + ūnus], m., plu., people of Rhegium.

Rhégium (Rég-), -ī, [Gr. Ἀρ-γειον], n., a city of Bruttium (Reggio).

Rhénus, -ī, [?] m., the Rhine.

Rhodus, -ā, -um, [Rhodō+īnus], adj., of Rhodes.— Plur., the Rhodians, the people of Rhodes.

Rhodes, -ī, [Gr. Ῥόδος], f., Rhodes, an island off the coast of Asia Minor, famous for its commerce and navigation.

ridiculus, -ā, -um, [tridō- (wh. rideo) + calis, cf. molliculus], adj., laughable, ridiculous, absurd.

ripa, -ae, [?], f., a bank.

rivus, -ī, [akin to Gr. ῥόω], m., a brook, a stream (not so large as flumen).

rōbur, -oris, [?], n., oak, tough wood.— Fig., strength (as resisting, cf. vis), vigor, endurance, vitality.
— Esp., the flower, the strength.

rōbustus, -ā, -um, [robos- (orig.
stem of rōbur) + tus], adj., endowed with strength, vigorous, strong.

rogātūs, -ōnis, [rogā + tio], f., an asking, a request.— Esp., (an asking of the people in assembly), a bill, a law (as proposed but not yet enacted).

rogātus, -ūs [rogā+tus], m., a request.

rogō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [?], i. v. a.
and n., ask, request, ask for.— Esp.,
ask of the people, propose (a law, etc.), pass (a bill, as the result of the asking).

Rōma, -ae, [?, perh. akin to Gr.
ῥήμω, the river city], f., Rome.

Rōmānus, -ā, -um, [Roma+nus],
adv., Roman.— As subst., a Roman:
ludi Romani (also magni?, a great festival of the Romans, beginning Sept. 4, and lasting some fifteen days).

Rōmulus (also Rōmuleus), -ā,
-um, [Romulō + īnus], adj., of Romulus, Romilian.— Esp., Romilla, f., as the name of one of the tribes of Rome, Romilian (sc. tribe).

Rōmulus, -ī, [prob. manufactured from Roma], m., the eponymous hero, the founder of Rome.— Also of a statue of him as an infant.

Roscius, -ī, [?], m., a Roman family name.— Esp.: 1. Sex. Roscius of Ameria, killed in the Sullan proscription; 2. Another of the same name, the person defended against the charge of this murder in one of Cicero’s orations; 3. Q. Roscius Callus, a famous actor and friend of Cicero, also defended by him in an extend oration; 4. T. Roscius Capito, a kinsman of Sex. Roscius; 5. T.
Roscius Magnus, another kinsman of the same.

rostrum, -ī, [√rod– (in rodo) + trum], n., a beak.— Esp. of a ship, the beak, the ram (used as in modern naval fighting).— Esp., ros-tra, plur. the rostra or rostrum, a stage in the Forum from which the people were addressed, ornamented with the beaks of ships.

Rudiae, -ārum, [?], f. plur., a town of Calabria, where the poet Ennius was born.

Rudinus, -ā, -um, [Rudia+nus], adj., of Rudiae.

rudis, -e, [?], adj., rude, rough.
— Fig., uneducated, unpolished, ignorant.

Rūfō, -ōnis, [t Rufō + o], m., a slave’s name.
Vocabulary.

Rāfus, i, [prob. dialectic form of rubus, red], M., a Roman surname.

ruina, -ae, [prob. trúō- (rū, in rūo) + na (f. of -nus), cf. rūes, rūdus], F., a falling, an undermining.—Fig., a downfall, a crash, a ruin.

rūmor, -ōris, [rum (cf. rumitō, as if root) + or], M., a rumor, a story (confused report), report, reputation (talk about one).

rumpō, rūpi, ruptus, rumpere, [rū (in rupes?)], 3. v. a., break (as a door, cf. frango, as a stick), burst.

ruō, rūti, rutus (ruitūrus), ruere, [rū (cf. ruina)], 3. v. a. and n., cause to fall, fall, go to ruin, be ruined, go to destruction.—Also (cf. fall upon), rush headlong, rush.

rūrsus [for reversus, petrified as adv., cf. versus], adv., back again, back, again, on the other hand.

rūs, rūris, [?], N., the country: ruri (in the country).

rūsticor, -ātus, -āri, [rusticō-], I. v. dep., go to the country.

rūsticus, -a, -um, [rus + ticus], adj., rural, rustic, country.—Masc. as subst., a countryman, a rustic.

S.

Sabinus, -a, -um, [unc. stem (cf. sabulum, sand) + inus], M., Sabine.—Plur. M., the Sabines.

sacer, sacra, sacrum, [sac (in sanctio) + rūs], adj., sacred.—Neut. plur., sacred rites, sacred objects, things sacred.

sacerdōs, dōtis, [sacrō-dos (sacred) + tis], M. and F., (arranger of sacred rites?), a priest.

sacrūmentum, -i, [sacrā+men-]
sagum, -ī, [prob. borrowed], N., a military cloak (of coarse wool);
ad saga ires (put on the garb of war, as was done at Rome in times of public danger); sumere saga (same meaning).

Salamīnīi, -ōrum, [Salamīn +
īs], m. plur., the people of Salamīn (the island off Attica, famous for the battle with the Persians, B.C. 480).

saltēm, [?], adv., at least, at any rate.

saltō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [as if saltō-after analogy of rapto, etc.], i. v. n., dance, leap.

saltus, -tūs, [?], perf. /sal (in saliō) + tūs], m., a wooded height,
a glade, a pass (in the mountains),
a pasture.

saliūs, -ūtis, [salvō(?)+ tis (cf.
virtus, Carmentis)], f., health,
well-being, welfare, safety, preservation, relief, deliverance, life (as sailed or lost), escape (safety in danger), aquittal (on a trial, the regular word), restoration (to citizenship):
ratio salutis (means of safety, chances of acquittal). — As a divinity, Health (implying also deliverance),
who had a temple at Rome.

saliūtāris, -ē, [saliūt-āria], adj., healthful, wholesome, beneficial, salutary, saving: civis (valuable, as aiding the welfare of the state); salutaribus rebus tuis (prosperous, not only for himself, but for the state).

salūtō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [salut-],
i. v. a., salut (wishing salus to one, cf. salve). — Esp., visit, call upon, a regular morning custom among the Romans.

salvus, -a, -um, [sαr (sal) +
rus, cf. δας], adj., safe, whole, sound, saved, unharmed, uninjured. — In many phrases: nisi salvo, etc. (unless all is well with you); salvus esse (survive, avoid ruin, flourish); salva urbe (so long as the city stands, in the city still standing); salva republica (without detriment to); salvos praestare (guarantee the safety of).

samos (-us), -ī, [Gr. zāous], f., a famous city on an island of the same name off the coast of Ionia.

sanctō, sanxi, sanctus (-itus), sancīre, [-sac (in sacer)], 4. v. a., bind (in some religious manner), make sacred; solemnly establish (by law), ordain. — sanctus, -ae, -um, p.p. as adj., holy, sacred, solemn, in-viable, pure, venerable, inviolate, revered, conscientious.

sanctē [old abl. of sanctus],
adv., piously, conscientiously.

sanctitās, -ātis, [sanctō + tās],
f., sacredness, sanctity, inviolability.
Also, piety, purity, conscientiousness.

sanctus, see sanco.

sānē [old abl. of sanus], adv.,
soundly, discreetly. — Usually, as weakened particle, no doubt, without question, certainly. — Often, giving a light tone to the idea, by all means, at any rate, I'm sure, enough, if you like: sane ne haec quidem mihi res placebat (very much), sane benevolo animo (I'm sure); Siculi sane liberi (pretty independent); dictur sane (if he likes); sane varius (motley enough); perseant sane (for all me); fines exigui sane (none too wide); quaedam sane (if you like); augeamus sane (by all means).

sanguis (-en), -inis, [?], m., blood (as the vital fluid, generally in the body, cf. crnus), the life-blood (also as just shed). — So also, bloodshed, blood, murder.

sānitās, -ātis, [sanō + tās], f.,
Vocabulary.

soundness, sound mind, ordinary discretion.

sanō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [sanō-],
I. v. a.: make sound, make good, repair, cure, heal.

salvus, -a, -um, [savl̩us (akin to salus)], adj., sound (in body or mind), sane, discreet: bene salvius (really wise).

sapiēns, -entis, [p. of sapio], as adj., wise, discreet, of discretion.—Esp. as subst., a philosopher.

sapienter [sapiēns + ter], adv., wisely, with wisdom.

sapiëntia, -ae, [sapiēns + ia], F., wisdom.

sapō, -i (-iī), no p.p., -ere, [?], sapo (akin to Gr. σαπεία), 3. v. a. and n., taste (actively or passively).—Hence, be wise, have intelligence.

Sappho, -ōs, [Gr. Σάπφος], F., the famous poetess of Mytilene in Lesbos. —Of a famous statue of her at Syracuse, stolen by Verres.

Sardinia, -ae, [?], F., the island still called by that name in the Tuscan Sea.

satelles, -itēs, [?], M. or F., an attendant, a tool, a minister, a minion.

satietās, -ātis, [satietō (cf. satīō) + tās (cf. pietas)], F., satiety, appetite (as satisfied).

satō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [satō (akin to satis)], cf. satietas], I. v. a., satiate, satisfy, sate, glut, feast.

satis [?], adv., enough, sufficiently, adequately. —Often with participle, equivalent to a noun or adj., enough, sufficient: satis late (pretty widely); satis habere (consider sufficient, be satisfied); satis facere, see below.

satisfacēō, -fēō, -factorūs, -facerē, [satis facio], irr. v. n., do enough for, satisfy.

satus [prob. compar. of satis], adj. and adv., better, preferable.

Saturnalia, -ium and -īorum, [Saturnō + alia], N. plur., the Saturnalia, the great feast of Saturn in December, beginning the 17th, during which the freedom of the golden age was imitated by all classes.

Saturninus, -i, [prob. Saturnīō + inus], M., a Roman family name. —Esp., L. Appuleius Saturninus, killed as a demagogue by Marius, B.C. 100.

Satyrus, -i, [Gr. Σάτυρος], M., a satyr, a half-human deity of the forests, personating the vital force of nature, a frequent subject for works of art.

sauces, -a, -um, [?], adj., wounded.

Saxa, -ae, [?], M., a Roman family name. —Esp., L. Decidius Saxa, a friend of Antony.

sAXum, -i, [?], N., a rock.

scaena (scē-), -ae, [Gr. σκηνή], F., (a bower), a stage (from the arched proscenium and background).

scaenicus (scē-), -a, -um, [scaenā + cus], adj., of the stage, scenic.

Scaevola, -ae, [scaevō + la, sc. manus], M., a Roman family name. —Esp., P. Mucius Scaevola, cons. B.C. 133.

scēlēae, -ārum, [scēlō (in scendo) + la], F. plur., a flight of stairs, stairs, steps.

Scantia, -ae, [?], F., a Roman woman of the gens of that name, in some way wronged by Clodius.

Scaurus, -i, [scaurus, "club-foot"], M., a Roman family name. —Esp., M. Æmilius Scaurus, cons. 116, long famous as princeps senatus, cons. a second time, and censor. He was father-in-law of M. Glabrio.
Vocabulary.

secelerātē [old abl. of secelera-tus], adv., criminally, wickedly, im-piously.

secelerātus, -a, -um, [as if (perh. really) p.p. of secelero (stain with crime)], adj., villainous, accursed.
— As subst., a scoundrel, a villain.

secelestus, -a, -um, [seclusus-tus], adj., (of acts), criminal, impious, wicked (cf. seceleratus, of persons).

seclusus, -eris, [?], cf. Gr. σκέλος, perh. orig. "crookedness," cf. pravus and wrong], N., crime, villany, wickedness, a heinous crime: tantum seclusus (such monstrous wickedness).

secla, see scena.

seclenicus, see scenicus.

Schola, -ae, [schola], m., a Roman name, see Causinlus.

scientia, -ae, [scienti + ia], F., knowledge, acquaintance with (thing in the genitive, or clause).

scilicet [prob. sci (imperative) licet], adv., you may know, of course, that is to say, in fact.— Often ironical, forsooth.

scitō, scivi, scitus, scire, [?], 4.v.a., (separate?), distinguish, know (a fact, cf. nosco), be aware: certo scio (I am very sure); scitote (you must know, be assured, you may be sure).— scitēns, -entis, p. as adj., having knowledge, well-informed, experienced, skilful: prudentes et sciens (with full knowledge, and with one’s eyes open); nec imperante nec sciente nec praesente domino (without the order or knowledge or presence of, etc.).

Seiplō, -ōnis, [seplio, staff], m., a Roman family name.— Esp.: 1.
See Africanus; 2. See Nasica;
3. P. (Cornelius) Seplio (Nasica), an influential, but not famous, member of the family, active on the side of Sex. Roscius.

sciscitor, -ātus, -āri, [as if sciscito, p.p. of scisco], 1. v. dep., learn, ask, examine, make enquiries.

scortum, -i, [?], N., a hide.—
Also, a harlot, a debauchee.

scriba, -ae, [√scrub + a], m., a clerk.

scribō, scripsi, scriptus, scribere, [?], 3. v. a. and n., write, give an account (in writing), inscribe, set down, draw up (of a law), write about, compose, record, appoint (in a written instrument), make (in writing).

scriptor, -ōris, [√scrub + tor],
m., a writer, an author.

scriptūra, -ae, [√scrub + tura,
but cf. plectura], F., a writing.—
Also (from the registering of the number of cattle pastured on the public lands), the public pastures, the pasture tax.

sculptor, -ātus, -āri, [scultra, rubbish], 1. v. dep., rummage, search, spy into.

sculptum, -i, [?], N., a shield, of the Roman legion, made of wood, convex, oblong (2¾ by 4 ft.), covered with leather.

Scyllaeus, -a, -um, [Gr. πυλαις], adj., of Scylla (the famous rock in the Strait of Messina on the Italian side, corresponding to Chary-bydus on the side of Sicily, dangerous to mariners), Scyllaean.

se- (sēd-)[same word as sed(?)], insep. prep., apart, aside, away, etc.

seeedō, cēssi, cēsum (impera-,
-cedere, [se-oedo], 3. v. n., withdraw, retire, go away.

seeernō, -cēvī, -cētus, -cernere, [se-ero], 3. v. a., separate.— Less exactly, distinguish.— Also, set aside, reject.
Vocabulary.

sēcessiō, -onis, [sēcessio, cf. secedo], F., a withdrawal, a secession (a withdrawal for political reasons).

sēclus, see secus.

secō, secui, sectus, secäre, [prob. caustive of √sec], I. v. a., cut, reap. — There is possibly another meaning, follow.

sector, -ōris, [√sec (follow or cut?, possibly two words) + tor], M., a cutter. — Also, a purchaser of confiscated estates (or of booty taken in war): de manibus sectorum (of the confiscation, harpies); sectores ac sicariī (sharpers and cut-throats).

sector, -ātus, -āri, [prob. sector- (√sequ + ta, cf. moneta), I. v. dep., pursue, chase after, be in one's train.

secundum, see secundus.

secundus, -a, -um, [part. in -dus, of sequor], adj., following. — Hence, second. — Also (as not opposing), favorable, successful: res secundae (prosperity). — Neut. acc. as prep., along, in the direction of, in accordance with, after.

secūris, -is, [√sec + unc. term.], F., an axe. — Esp., the axe of the lictor (as a symbol of the power of life and death): duodecim secures (i.e., two prätors).

secus [√seq (in sequor) + unc. term.], adv., (inferior), otherwise, less. — Compar., sēclus (sēlius), less: nihilio secus (none the less, nevertheless).

sed [abl. of unc. stem, cf. re], conj., (apart) (cf. seditio and securus), but (stronger than autem or at).

sedēō, sēdī, sessum (sup.), sedēre, [tōsēdō (√sed + us, cf. domisēdā and sedo)], 2. v. n., sit, sit still, remain seated, sit (here, there, etc.), sit by: ad portas imperator (be in arms, be).

sēdēs, -is, [√sed + es (M. and F. term. corresponding to N. -us)], F., a seat. — Hence, an abode (both in sing. and plur.), an abiding-place, a place of abode, a home, a seat (fig.).

sēditīō, -onis, [sedītīō (√s + tīō)], F., a secession, a mutiny, an uprising, a civil disturbance, an insurrection, a riot.

sēditioōsē [old abl. of seditioōsus], adv., reasonably, with seditious purpose, to excite a riot.

sēditioōsus, -a, -um, [sedition + osus (poss. as if tēseditioō + osus, cf. inītiō)], adj., seditious, factious.

sēdō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [caustive of √sed, or perhaps derivative of sedō, cf. domisēda], I. v. a., settle, quiet, allay, appease, repress, check, stop.

sēdulītās, -ītās, [sedulō + tas], F., assiduity, diligent attention, zeal, earnest endeavor, painstaking.

seges, -etis, [unc. stem (cf. seco?) + tis], F., a crop of grain (growing), a field (of grain): seges ac materiam gloriae (the fertile source and raw material).

sēgnis, -e, [?], adj., slow, inactive. — sēgnior (less active).

sēgniter [segni + ter], adv., slowly, sluggishly: nihilī segnus (no less energetically).

sēgregō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [segreg- (se-grex, apart from the herd)], I. v. a., separate, exclude.

sējungō, -junxi, -junctus, -jun gere, [se-jungo], 3. v. a., disjoin, separate.

sella, -ae, [√sed + la, cf. Gr. ἱζά], F., a seat, a bench, a stool, a work-bench (probably only a stool).
curulis (the curule chair, a camp-stool with ivory legs, used by magistrates).

semel [prob. N. of adj., akin to simillis, adv., once, once only: semel et saepius (more than once, again and again); ut semel (when once, as soon as).

sēmen, -inis, [ disemb (in sero) + men], N., seed. — Also, figuratively.
sēminārium, -i, [semín+a+ria], N. (of adj.), a nursery. — Also figuratively.
sēniūstulātus (sēniūs-), -a, -um, [p.p. of sēniūstulō], as adj., half-burned.

semper [sēmō- (?) (in semel) -per (cf. parumper)], adv., through all time, all the time, always, every time.

sēmpiternus, -a, -um, [sēmpeternus (weakened, for a stem) + ternus, cf. hesternus], adj., eternal, forever.

Sēmprōnius, -a, -um, [sēmprōnius (of the gens Sempronia itself the fem. of the adj.). — Esp. of C. Sēmprōnius Grachus (see Grachus): lex Sempronia (Sempronian law, of Grachus, securing the rights of Roman citizens).

sēnātor, -tōris, [sēnā- (as if verb-stem akin to sēnex, perh. really so, cf. senatus + tor], M., (an elder). — Hence, a senator (esp. of Rome), a member of the Senate.

sēnātōrius, -a, -um, [senator + ius], adj., of the senators, of the Senate, of a senator, senatorial.

sēnātus, -tūs, [sēnā- (as if, perh. really, verb-stem akin to sēnex)], M., a senate (council of old men). — Esp., the Senate (of Rome, the great body of nobles acting as an administrative council). (The word expresses the body as an order in the state, or as a council, and also a meeting of the body.)

sēnātūs consultum, see the separate parts of the phrase.

sēnectās, -tūtis, [sēnect (as stem of sēnex) + tus, cf. virtus], F., age (advanced), old age, riper years (not necessarily age in Eng. sense).

sēnex [sēni (stem of oblique cases) + eus (reduced)], sēnīs [, cf. seneschal], adj. (only M.), old. — Esp. as subst., an old man (above forty-five), the elder (of two of the same name), senior.

sēnīlis, -c, [sēni- (see sēnex) + lis (or -ilis)], adj., of an old man: corpus (aged).

sēnītum, -i, [sēni- (see sēnex) + iun], N., age (as a decline), senility. — Less exactly, weakness, sadness, torpor.

sēnsīm [as if acc. of tāsensūs, verbal of sēntio, cf. partim], adv., (perceptibly). — Hence (cf. subito and repente, its opposites), gradually, by degrees.

sēnsus, -ūs, [sen- (as root of sēntio) + tus], M., feeling (as belonging to humanity, etc.), sensation, a feeling, feelings (in both sing. and plur.), the senses (in both sing. and plur.), consciousness, the power of sense, a sentiment (a way of feeling).

— Hence, a sense, a meaning.

sēntentia, -ae, [tāsentent- (p. of simpler pres. of sēntio) + ia], F., (feeling, thinking). — Hence, a way of thinking, an opinion, a view, a determination, a sentiment, a feeling, a purpose, a design. — Esp., officially, a judgment, an opinion, a sentence, a vote, a decision, an expression of opinion, a ballot (a written expression of opinion). — Esp.: verba atque sententiae (words and ideas or expressions); divisa est sententia (the vote was divided); in eandem sententiam (to the same purpose); de sententia amicorum (by the advice, etc.); in eadem sententia (of the same mind). — sententiae, plur., a verdict, notes of a jury.
Vocabulary.

sentina, -ae, [?], F., bilge water.
— Fig., the dress, a cesspool.

sentiō, -sensi, -sensus, sentire, [?], 4. v. a., perceive (by the senses), feel, know, see, think (of an opinion made up), learn about, learn, find (by experience). — Hence, hold an opinion, take sides, side, hold a view (of some kind): cf. sententia. — Also absolutely, possess sensation, feel.

sēparō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [se-(sed-)] paro], 1. v. a., (get apart?), separate. — Esp. p.p., sēparātus, -a, -um, as adj., separate.

sepēlīō, -ivi (-ii), sepultus, -ire, [?], 4. v. a., bury. — Less exactly and fig., put to rest, destroy, end, ruin, bury in ruins.

sēpes, see saepes.

sēplō, see saepio.

Sēplāsia, -ae, [?], F., a place in Capua where ointments (i.e., perfumes) were sold.

septem [7, cf. seven], indecl. num. adj., seven.

Septimius, -i, [septimō + ius]. M., a Roman gentile name, cf. Octavius. — Esp., P. Septimius, an obscure senator, condemned for extortion.

septimus, -a, -um, [septem + mus, cf. primus], adj., the seventh.

sēptum, see saeptum.

sepulcrum (sepulchrum), -i, [†sepul (as if root of sepello, or a kindred stem) + crum (cf. lava- crum)], n., a tomb, a grave, a burial place.

sepultūra, -ae, [†sepultu (sepel, in sepello, prob. compound, + tus) + ra (f. of -rus)], F., burial, burying, burial rites, funeral rites (even in cremation).

sequester, -tris, [akin to sequor, prob. †sequit- (cf. comes, eques) + tris (cf. equester)], M., (a depository in a suit at law of the property in dispute). — Less exactly, a depository (of money for bribery).

sequor, secūtus, sequi, [√sequ], 3. v. dep., follow, accompany. — Fig., follow the dictates of, obey, be guided by, follow, adopt (an opinion), side with, aim at.

Sergius, -i, [perh. Sabine], M., a Roman gentile name, see Catilina.
— Also, T. Sergius Gallus (perh. Sextius or Sestius), an unknown person who had an estate at Bovillae.

sermō, -ōnis, [√ser (in sero, twine) + mo (prob. -mō-o)], M., (series?). — Hence, conversation (continuous series of speech), talk, intercourse, conversation with, common talk, speech. — Also, language.

sērō [abl. of serus], adv., too late.
— Comp., sērius, too late.

serpō, serpsi, no p.p., serpere, [√serp, cf. ērō], 3. v. n., creep. — Fig., wind its way, spread.

Sertōrīanus, -a, -um, [Sertorio + anus], adj., of Sertorius, esp. the one mentioned below.

Sertōrius, -i, [sertor(?) + ius], M., (garland-maker?), a Roman gentile name. — Esp., Q. Sertorius, a partisan of Marius, who held a command in Spain against the party of Sulla from B.C. 80 to B.C. 72.

sertum, -i, [p.p. of sero, twine], N., a garland, a wreath.

sērus, -a, -um, [perh. akin to sero], adj., late, long delayed.
Vocabulary.

servilis, -i, [servi (as if stem of servus or akin, cf. servio) + lis], adj., of slaves, of a slave, servile: in servilem modum (like slaves); bellum (the servile war, the revolt of the slaves under Spartacus in B.C. 73).

Servilius, -i, [servili + ins], m., a Roman gentile name. — Esp.: 1. P. Servilius Vatia Isanicus, cons. B.C. 79; 2. C. Servilius Ahala, see Ahala; 3. C. Servilius Glauceia, see Glaucia; 4. P. Servilius Vatia, son of i, cons. B.C. 48 with Caesar.

servō, -iī (-iī) (-ivi), -itūrus, -īre, [servi- (as if stem of servus or akin, cf. servilis)], 4. v. n., be a slave (to some one or something), be in subjection. — Less exactly, devote one’s self to, cater to, be influenced by, consult for, be subservient to, do a service to.

servitium, -i, [servō+tium (cf. amicitia)], n., (slavery). — Hence (cf. juventus), a body of slaves, slaves (esp. in plural).

servitūs, -tūtis, [as if tservitu (servō + tus) + tis, cf. juventus, sementis, perh. immediately servō + tus, -tutis], F., slavery, servitude.

Servius, -i, [servō + ins], m., a Roman praenomen.

servō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [servō-], I. v. a., watch, guard, keep, preserve, maintain. — Esp. in language of augury, watch (for omens): de caelo (see an omen, a process used to stop proceedings by one colleague against another).

servolus (-ulus), -i, [servō + lus], m., a little slave, a slave (with a suggestion of disparagement).

servus, -i, [unc. root (\sqrt{SER} bind?) + vus], m., a slave.

sesē, see suē.

sestertius, -i, [semis-tertius (two whole ones and) the third a half’?], m. of adj. (with nummus), two and a half asses, a sesterce (a sum of money, about five cents).

Sestius (Sext-), -i, m., a Roman gentile name. — Esp., P. Sestius, a Roman defended by Cicero in an oration still extant.

sestitius, see securus.

seu, see sive.

severē [old abl. of severus], adv., with strictness, with severity, harshly.

severitās, -tātis, [severō + tās], F., strictness, harshness, severity.

severus, -a, -um, [-?] adj., stern, strict, severe, harsh.

Sex., abbreviation for Sextus.

sexāgintā [sex + unc. term., cf. Gr. ἕξακορά], indecl. num. adj., sixty.

sextills, -c, [sextō + ilis], adj., (of the sixth). — Hence, of August.

Sextius, see Sestius.

sextus, -a, -um, [sex+tās], adj., sixth.

Sextus, -i, m., preceding as proper name (orig. the sixth-born).

si [locative, prob. akin to sē], conj., (in this way, in this case, so, cf. scil.), if, in case, on condition that, supposing. — Esp., to see if, whether. — See also at quis.

Sibyllinus, -a, -um, [Sibylla + inus], adj., of the Sibyl, Sibylline: fata (the Sibylline books, a collection of prophecies held in great veneration at Rome).

sic [si-ćē, cf. hic], adv., so, in this manner, in such a manner, in this way, thus: sic... ut (so... that, so well... that); sic accepimus (this). — sicut, sicut, as conj., just as, just as if, as.

sica, -ae, [prob. akin to seco], F., a dagger.
sicarius, -i, [sica+arius], m., an assassin, a cut-throat, a hired ruffian (one who commits murder for money).

Sicilia, -ae, [Gr. Σικελία], F., Sicily.

Siciliensis, -e, [Sicilia + ensis], adj., of Sicily, Sicilian. — As subst., a Sicilian.

Siculus, -a, -um, [Gr. Σικέλος], adj., Sicilian, of Sicily. — Plur. as subst., the Sicilians.

sicut (sicuti), see sic.

Sigéum, -i, [Gr. Σύγειον], N., a promontory near Troy, where was the supposed tomb of Achilles.

signifer, -feri, [signo-fer (♀fer + us)], m., a standard-bearer.

significatō, -onis, [significā + tio], F., a making of signs, a signal, a sign, an intimation, a warning, an indication, a signal.

significō, -avi, -ātus, -āre, [†significō- (signō-ficus)], i. v. n. and a., make signs, indicate, make known, spread news, give an intimation, give information, intimate, hint at, give an indication, show signs of.

signum, -i, [unc. root + num (N. of -nus)], N., (orig. a cut tally-mark?, a device), a sign, a mark, a signal. — Esp., a standard (for military purposes, carried by each body of men, consisting of some device in metal on a pole). — So often, signa militaria (to distinguish this meaning).

In phrases: conlatis signis (in a regular battle); signis inferendis (in battle array, with an armed force); see military expressions in Vocab. to Cesar. — Also, a statue, a seal, a constellation.

Silanōn (-īō), -onis, [?], M., a famous Greek sculptor of the time of Alexander the Great.

silentium, -i, [silent + ium], N., silence, quiet. — silentō, abl., in silence, silently.

sileō, -ui, no p.p., -ere, [?], 2. v. n. and a., be silent, say nothing, be silent about, pass over in silence.

silva, -ae, [?], F., a forest, woods, forests. — Plur. in same sense.

Silvānus, -i, [silva + nus], M., (of the woods). — A Roman family name. — Esp., M. Plautius Silvanus, tribune, B.C. 89, author of the Plautian Papirian law, see Ploitus.

silvester (-tris), -tris, -tre, [silva- (as if silves, cf. palustris) + trīs], adj., woody, wooded.

similis, -e, [†simō- (cf. simplex, semper, simitu) + lia], adj., like, similar, almost equal.

similiter [simili + ter], adv., in like manner, likewise, in like degree, in the same way.

similitudō, -inis, [simili+tudo], F., likeness, resemblance (to, genitive).

simplex, -asics, [sim- (in simillos, etc.)], -plex (♀plic, as stem)], adj., simple, without complication.

simpliciter [simplici- (as stem of simplex) + ter], adv., simply, with simplicity.

simul [N. of similis, cf. facul], adv., at the same time, as soon as: simul atque (as soon as).

simulācrum, -i, [simulā+crum], N., an image, a statue, a representation, a likeness.

simulātō, -onis, [simulā + tio], F., a pretence, a show.

simulō, -avi, -ātus, -āre, [similī- (as if, perh. orig., †simulō)], i. v. a., pretend, make a show of (something).
Vocabulary.

simultās, -tās, [simili- (cf. similum) + tas], f., (likeness?, equality?), rivalry. — Hence, a grudge, a quarrel, an enmity.

sin [si-ne], conj., (if not), but if.
sinocrus, -a, -um, [?], adj., pure, unmixed, unadulterated, uncontaminated.

sine [?], prep., without, free from.
singulāris, -e, [singulō + aris], adj., solitary, single. — Hence, unique, peculiar, special, extraordinary, unparalleled, unequalled, marvellous.
singuli, -ae, a, [sim- (in similis) + unc. term.], adj., one at a time, single, each, one by one, several (severally), every, individually, separately.
sinō, sivi, situs, sinere, [st (of unc. meaning)], 3. v. a. (lay down, cf. pono), leave. — Hence, permit, allow, suffer. — In orig. meaning, situs, lying: quantum est situm in nobis (so far as in me lies).

Sinopē, -ēs, [Gr. Σινόπη], F., a city in Paphlagonia.
sinus, -ūs, [?], M., a fold. — Hence, a bay, an inlet. — Esp., a fold (of the toga across the bosom), the bosom.

si quando, if ever, whenever. — Cf. si and quando.

si quidem, if at least, in so far as, since. — Cf. si and quidem.

si quis, see si and quils.
sis [si vis], phrase, if you please, will you: cave sis (look out now).
sistō, stītis, status, sistere, [sta, reduplicated], 3. v. a. and n., place, set, stand, stop. — status, -a, -um, p.p., set, appointed.
sitis, -is, [?], F., thirst.
situs, -tūs, [st (in sīno) + tus], M., (a laying; a leaving), situation, position.
sive, seu, [si-ve], conj., if either, or if: sive ... sive (either ... or, whether ... or).

Smyrnæus, -a, -um, [Gr. Σμύρναος], adj., of Smyrna (a city of Ionia in Asia Minor). — Plur., the people of Smyrna.
sobrius, -a, -um, [?}, cf. ebrius], adj., sober.
socer, -eri, [?}, M., a father-in-law.
socia, -ae, [F. of socius], F., a sharer, an associate.
societās, -tātis, [sociō + tas], F., a sharing, an alliance, an association, a partnership. — Esp., a joint-stock company (for great enterprises, as in modern times), a company: multarum rerum societas (many associations); in societatem venire, se offerre (to share, etc.).
socius, -i, [sequ + ius], M., a companion, an ally, a sharer, an associate, a partner.
sodālis, -is, [?], M. and F., a companion, a comrade, a crony, a boon companion.
sōl, sōlis, [?], M., the sun. — See also orienis, oecidens, and ortus.
sōlāciō, see solutum.
sōlūtium (sōlūtum), -i, [solōtō + ium], N., a consolation, a solace.
sōlemnis, see sollemnis.
soleō, solitus sum, solère, [?], 2. v. n., be wont, be accustomed, do commonly (with Eng. verb, as in context), be in the habit, etc., use (to, etc.): sic fieri solet (is commonly the case); sic putōtae solent (as is the habit of poets).
sōlitudō, -inis, [solō + tado], F., loneliness. — Hence, a wilderness, a desert, solitude, seclusion, a lonely place.
sōlemnis (sōlen-, sōllen-), -e, [sollus- (every) annus], adj., annual, yearly, stated, established. — Hence, (established by religious sanction), solemn, religious, sacred.

solicitisitātī, -ōnis, [solicitātā + tīo], F., (actively), a tampering with.
— Also, (passively), anxiety.

solicitō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [solicitō-], 1. v. a. and n., stir up, rouse, instigate, make overtures to, tamper with, approach (with money, etc.), offer bribes to. — Also, disturb, make anxious, trouble.

solicitūdō, -ūnis, [as if, perh. really, t’sollicitu- (stem akin to sollicitus) + do], F., anxiety, solicitude.

solicitūs, -a, -um, [t’sollicitūs, wholly roused], adj., agitated, anxious, uneasy, troubled.

sōlum, see solus.

solum, -i, [?], N., the soil, the foundation.

sōlus, -a, -um, [?], adj., alone, only, the only. — sōlum, N. as adv., alone, only.

solūtiō, -ōnis, [solvi- (as stem of solvo) + tīo, cf. solutus], F., a setting free. — Esp. (cf. solvo), a payment, payment.

solūtus, -a, -um, p.p. of solvo.

solvō, solvi, solvūs, solvere, [prob. se-luo], 3. v. a., unbind, loose.
— Fig., set free, exempt, acquit, absolve. — Also, pay (release an obligation), perform (a due). — Esp., solutus, -a, -um, p.p., set free, unembarrassed, remiss.

somnus, -i, [somp- (as if root of soplo, etc., with intrusive n, as in pingo) + nus], M., sleep, slumber.

sonō, -ui, -ātūrus, -āre, [partly sonō-, partly root verb], 1. v. n. and a., sound. — With cognate acc., sound with, have a sound (of a certain character), sound: pingue quiddam (sound somewhat coarse).

sonus, -ī, [sōn + us], M., a sound.

sōplō, -ivi (-ii), -itus, -āre, [causative of sōplō (cf. somnus), or denominative of kindred stem], 4. v. a., put to sleep: sopita consuetudo (put to sleep, asleep).

sordēs, -is, [sord+ (cf. swart) + es], F., dirt, filth. — Fig., meanness, dirty tricks, mean dishonesty.
— Also, wretchedness (of apparel in mourning), dust and ashes (?).

soror, -ōris, [?], cf. sister], F., a sister: soror ex mater (a half-sister).

sors, sortis, [perh. sēr (in sero) + tis, but the orig. sense is unc.], F., a lot (for divination), a designation by lot, a choice by lot, a drawing (of a jury), an allotment.

sortis, -itūs, -īri, [sortī-], 4. v. dep., cast lots, draw lots, draw a jury (by lot). — Hence, obtain by lot.

sortitiō, -ōnis, [sortī + tīo], F., a drawing by lot, an allotment, a division by lot, a drawing (of a jury by lot).

sortitus, -tūs, [sortī + tūs], M., an allotment, an assignment (by lot).

Sp., abbreviation for Spuriosis.

spargō, sparsi, sparsus, spargere, [sparg+], 3. v. a., scatter, spread about. — Fig., spread, extend.

Spartacus, -ī, [?], M., a famous gladiator, who roused a servile war in Italy, B.C. 73.

spatium, -i, [?], N., space, extent, a space, a distance. — Transf., time, space of time, lapse of time, a period.

specēs, -ī, [sēc + ies (akin
Vocabulary.

to -ia), F. (a sight, prob. both act. and pass.). — Passively, a sight, a show, an appearance, a spectacle, (a splendid action).

spectaculum, -i, [spectā + cul-], N. a sight, a show, a spectacle.

spectā, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [spectā-], I. v. a. and n., look at, regard, gaze upon, have regard to, look towards, aim at, be aimed at, tend. — spectātus, p.p. as adj., tried, proved, esteemed, estimable.

specula, -ae, [speca- (v/spec+a, cf. consplicor) + la], F., a watch-tower, a lookout: in speculis (on the lookout).

speculātor, -ōris, [speculā + tor], m., a spy, a scout.

speculor, -ātus, -āri, [speculō-], I. v. dep., spy, reconnoitre, satch : speculandī causa, (as a spy).

spērō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [spes-(prob. orig. stem of spes) with r for ṣ], I. v. a. and n., hope, hope for, expect, have hope for: bene sperare (have good hope).

spēs, -ei, [?], F., hope, expectation, hopes.

spirītus, -ūs, [spirī- (as stem of spiro) + ūs], m., breath, the air we breathe. — Also, spirit, inspiration. — Hence in plur., pride, arrogance.

spirō, -āvi, -āurus, -āre, [?], I.v.n. and a., breathe, blow: spirante república (still breathing); spirans (alive).

splendor, -ōris, [splend (as if root of splendo) + or (for -oe)], M., brilliance, lustre. — Hence, prominence, brilliant position, brilliant character.

spoliātiō, -ōnis, [spoliā + tio], F., a despoiling, a robbery, spoliation, unlawful deprivation.

spoliō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [spoliō-], I. v. a. and n., despoil, strip. — Fig., rob, deprive, despoil, plunder. — Absolutely, despoil one’s enemy, take the spoil.

spolium, -i, [unc., cf. Gr. πτωλον], N., (hide?). — Hence, spoil (of a slain enemy, also fig.).

spondeō, spopondi, spōnsus, spondere, [prob. formed from borrowed Gr. σώνθι, league], 2. v. a. and n., promise (solemnly), pledge one’s self.

spogula, -ae, [Gr. σωγγύδ], F., a sponge (used, as now, for cleaning).

spontis (gen.), sponte (abl.), [prob. akin to spondeo], F., only with pers. pron. or (poetic) genitive, of one’s own accord, voluntarily.

spuroī, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [spuroī-], I. v. a., desīla.

Spurius, -i, [spurius, bastard], m., a Roman praenomen.

squaleō, -uī, no p.p., -ēre, [sq-ule- (cf. squales, squallidus)], 2.v.n., be filthy. — Esp. of mourning (cf. sordidus), be in mourning, be in sorrow (in the garb of sorrow).

squālor, -ōris, [squal-(as root of squaleo) + or (for -oe)], M., squaler. — Esp. for mourning, mourning, wretched apparel.

stabilīō, -iī (iī), -ātus, -āre, [stabilī-], 4. v. a., make firm, establish, secure, firmly establish.

stabilitas, -ae, [stā + bilis, prob. through intermediate stem], adj., standing firmly, stable, enduring.
Vocabulary.

Fig., constant, consistent, unwavering.

stabilitas, -tatis, [stabilis + tis], f., steadiness, firmness, firm foundations.

Statillus, -i, [akin to sto], m., a Roman gentle name. — Esp., L. Statilius, one of the Catilinarian conspirators.

statim [acc. of *statis (sta + tis)], adv., (as one stands, on the spot), at once, forthwith, immediately.

Stator, -tantis, [sta + tor], m., the Stayer, a name of Jove as stayer of flight; also, the Stay, Supporter.

status, -ae, [statu + a (or -va)], f., a statute (usually of men, cf. signum, effigies of gods as well).

statuō, -ui, -ütus, -utere, [statu-], 3. v. a., set up. — Hence, establish, resolve upon, determine, decide, consider, make up one's mind, take measures, set up as, regard as: modum (set a limit); aliquid severe (take any severe measures); in aliquum (deal with one).

status, -tus, [sta + tus], m., (a standing or setting up), a position, a condition, a state.

status, -a, -um, see sisto.

sternō, straviō, strātus, sternere, [ster, cf. strangus], 3. v. a., scat-ter, strew. — Hence, lay low, prostrate: stratus (prostrate, lying low, grolvelling).

stimulus, -i, [stigmō- (stig + mus) + lus], m., a goad, a spur, Fig., a stimulus, a spur, an incentive.

stipendiarius, -a, -um, [stipendio +arius], adj., tributary, under tribute, subject to tribute (paying a fixed sum, cf. veetgallis).

stipendium, -i, [stipio- and stem akin to pendo (perh. *pendus, cf. pendulum) + ium], n., a tribute. — Also, pay (for military service), service, a campaign (as served and paid for).

stipō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [stipō- (cf. obstipus), akin to stipes], 1. v. a., crowd. — Hence, surround with a crowd, surround.

stirps, stirpis, [?] m. and F., a stock. — Fig., a race, a stock, the root (malorum).

stō, stetis, statūrus, stāre, [sta-], 1. v. n., (active meanings usually referred to sisto, the reduplicated form), stand, stand up: stans (standing, not overturned).

strepitus, -tūs, [strepi- (as stem of strepo) + tus], m., a noise, a rattling, a murmur (of approval or otherwise), a din.

studeō, studui, no p.p., studēre, [studō- (or studa-), cf. studium], 2. v. n., be eager for or to, be devoted to, pay attention to, attend to, desire, be bent on (doing something), aim at, be anxious (to, etc.).

studiōsē [old abl. of studiōsus], adv., eagerly, with care, with pains.

studiōsus, -a, -um, [studiō + osus], adj., zealous, fond of, devoted.

studium, -i, [prob. *studio-ium, cf. studeo], n., eagerness, zeal, interest, desire, devotion, fondness (for a thing), enthusiasm. — Hence, a pursuit (to which one is devoted), a profession, an occupation, a taste (for anything), a study. — Esp., a party, partisan zeal, party feeling, partisan favor: in eo studium partium (in favor of that party); consilia studia (measures and party spirit); studiiis prosequemur (acclamations).

stultē [stultus] adv., foolishly.
Vocabulary.

stultitia, -ae, [stultō + tia], F., folly, stupidity.

stultus, -a, -um [stul (in stolidus) + tus], adj., (stupified?), foolish, stupid, silly. — Often rendered by a noun, a fool, utter folly, etc.

stuprum, -i, [perh. akin to stupēo], N., rape, lewdness, debauchery.

suādeo, suāsi, suāsus, suādere, [causative of suvād, cf. suavis, but perh. partly denom., cf. suadus], 2. v. n. and a., (make agreeable to?), advise, persuade (without effect, cf. persuadeo), convince. — Esp. of laws, favor, support.

suavis, -e, [suvād + us, cf. levilis], adj., sweet, agreeable, pleasant.

sub (in comp. suba), [unc. case, prob. abl. (cf. suba) akin to super], adv. (in comp.) and prep. a. With abl. (of rest in a place), under. — Also, just by. — b. With acc. (of motion towards a place), under, close to. — Of time, just at, just before. — c. In comp., under, up (from under), away (from beneath), secretly (underhand), in succession, a little, slightly.

subactus, -a, -um, p.p. of subligo.

sube-, see succes-

subeō, -iī, -itus, -ire, [sub-eō], irr.v.a., go under, undergo, encounter.

subf, see suff.

subhorridus, -a, -um, [sub-horridus], adj., rather rough.

sublctō (sublcti-), -iī, -jectus, -icere, [sub-jactio], 3. v. a., throw under, place below, place under, subject, expose to. — Esp. of fire, set, use to light. — Also, palm off upon, forge (of wills). — Also, throw up, hand up.

subligō, -ēgi, -actus, -igere, [sub-age], 3. v. a., bring under, subject, subdue, crush.

subittō, see subitus.

subitus, -a, -um, [p.p. of subeō], adj., (coming up secretly from under), sudden, suddenly (as if adv. taken with the verb), quick, hasty. — subitō, abl. as adv., suddenly, of a sudden, all at once.

subjector, -tōris, [as if subj-tacor, cf. subjicere], M., a forger.

subjiciō, see subjicio.

sublātus, -a, -um, [sub-(t)latus], p.p. of tollō.

sublevō, -āvi, -āvus, -āre, [sublevo], 1. v. a., lighten up, lighten, relieve, raise, raise up, assist, render assistance.

subolēs (sob-), -is, [sub-olēs (sulla + es, cf. oleseo)], F., offspring.

subpp, see supp-

subsellium, -i, [sub-sellium (sella + ium)], N., a bench, a seat (esp. in the senate house or court).

subsidium, -i, [sub-sidium (sulla + ium)], N., (a sitting in reserve), a reserve, a reinforcement, help, relief, support, assistance, means, resources, a source of supplies (of any kind): patriae (stay).

subsidō, -sēdi, -sessūrus, -sidere, [sub-sido], 3. v. n., sit down, remain behind, stop, stay.

subsortior, -itus, -iri, [sub-sortior], 4. v. dep., draw in place of some one, have a substitute (drawn by lot).

substructūs, -onis, [sub-structio, cf. substruio], F., a foundation, a substruction.

subsum, -fui, -fūrus, -esse, [subsum], irr. v. n., be under, be underneath, be near, be close by (a certain distance off), be near at hand, approach.

subterfugiō, -fugi, no p.p., -fugere, [sub-ter-fugio], 3. v. n. and a, escape (from under something that impends).

subtilis, -e, [akin to sub and tela], adj., fine, subtle.

subtiliter [subtili + ter], adv., finely, acutely: judicare (be a shrewd judge).

suburbānus, -a, -um, [sub-urbe
+ anus], adj., suburban.—Esp. N.
as subst., a suburban estate, a villa.

succeedō, -cessi, -cessūrus, -cedē-re, [sub-cedo], 3. v. n., come up, advance, come in place of, succeed to, take the place of, come next.—Also,
be successful, prosper.

succeedēre, see suscenseo.

succurrō, -curri, -cursūrus, -curr-rere, [sub-curro], 3. v. n., rush to support, rush to one’s rescue, relieve, succor.

sufferō, sustuli, sublātus (referred to tollō), sufferre, [sub-sero], irr.
v. a., bear, suffer.

suffragātō, -onis, [suffragā +
tio], F., a support (for an office).
—Less exactly, a recommendation, a supporter.

suffragātorem, -tōris, [suffragā +
tor], M., a supporter (for an office).

suffragium, -i, [sub-fragium,
i.e. prob. suffragō + ium (cf. suffragor and suffringō)], N., (a pastern bone, cf. suffrago; or a potsherds, cf. Gr. βοστράκων; either used as a ballott), a ballott, vote.

sui (prop. gen. n. of suus), self,
sē, [sva], pron. reflexive, himself, etc.—Often to be translated by the personal he, she, it, etc., also each other.—Esp.: inter se (from, with,
by, etc., each other); per se (of himself; etc., without outside influence or excitement); ipse per se (in and of himself).

Sulla, -ae, [?], M., a Roman family name.—Esp., Lucius Cornelius Sulla, the great partisan of the nobility, and opponent of Marius, called the Dictator Sulla.

Sulpicius, -i, [?], M., a Roman gentile name.—Esp.: 1. P. Sul-pius Galba, prob. ædile, b.c. 69, one of the jury against Verres; 2. C.
Sulpicius Galba, pretor, b.c. 63; 3.
P. Sulpicius Rufus, tribune, b.c.
88, a partisan of Marius.

sum, fui, futūrus, esse, [vas, cf.
am, is,], irr. v. n., be (exist).—Also,
with weakened force, be (as a mere copula).—With many renderings according to the context: est de proscriptione (relates to); est in lege (is prescribed); est alcius (one has); quid alci cum aliquo est?
(what has one to do with? etc.; quid de aliquo futurum est? (what will become of?); qui nunc sunt
(now living); quae est civium (consists of); est alcius (it is one’s part, it is one’s place, it belongs to one, and the like); meliore esse sensu (to have, etc.); esse veste mutata (to put on mourning); esse cum telo (to go armed); fuerat ille annus (had passed); esto (be it so, well); fore uti (that the result will be).

summa, -ae, [F. of summus as noun], F., (the top), the highest place,
the sum, the total, the main part:
belli (the general management, the chief control); ad unam summam refferi (be set down to one account).

summus, see superus.

sūmō, sūmpsi, sūmptus, -śumere, [sub-emō (take)], 3. v. a., take away, take, get, assume: supplicium (inflict; cf. capere); laborem (spend); arma (take up); mihi (take upon); exempla (draw); sus-cepto bello (when the war was begun); saga (put on); nullis armis sumptis (when there was no war).

sūmptuōsus [old abl. of sumptuosus], adv., expensively, extravagantly: sumptuosus (with too much magnificence).

sūmptuōsus, -a, -um, [sumptuo+ osus], adj., expensive, costly.

sūmpus, -tūs, [sub-emptus, cf. sumo], m., (a taking out of the stock on hand), expense: sumptūbus (extravagant expenditure, extravagance).

superbē [old abl. of superbus], adv., haughtily, arrogantly, with arrogance, with insolence.

superbus, -a, -um, [super+bus, cf. morbus], adj., arrogant, haughty, proud, insolent.

superclītum, -ī, [super-cīlīum, (eyelid)], n., eyebrow, brow (as expressing emotions).

superior, see superus.

superō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [superō-], 1. v. a. and n., overtop. — Hence, get the upper hand of, overcome, conquer, defeat, be superior to, prevail, overmatch, survive (vita), surpass.

supersum, -fūi, -futūrus, -esse, [super-sum], irr. v. n., be over and above, remain, survive: sātiētati (remain in excess of).

superus, -a, -um, [super- (stem akin to sub, perh. same) + rus (cf. inferus)], adj., higher, being above.

— Compar., superior, higher, upper, preceding (of time), past, before, superior, earlier, former, elder: superiora illa (those former acts); superior esse (have the advantage).

— Superl., superēmus [supra- (?) + imus (?)], highest, last: dies (last, of a funeral). — Also, summus [sup + mus], highest, the highest part of: the top of. — Fig., greatest, most important, very great, most perfect, perfect, supreme, most violent, pre-eminent, in the highest degree, most severe, of the utmost importance: summā omnia (all the highest qualities); summā hiemē (the depth of winter); tempus (most critical); vir (very superior); quattuor aut summum quinque (at the most); summā respublica (the highest interests of the state, the general welfare of the state).

suppedītō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [?], cf. suppeto]. 1. v. n. and a., suffice. — Also, supply.

suppetō, -petīvi, -petītūrus, -petere, [suppeto], 3. v. n., (? but cf. sufficio and subvenio), be on hand, be supplied, be to be found: suppetitus nobis (we have a store).

supplex, -icis, [sub-plex (pletic as stem, cf. duplex)], m. and f., a suppliant.

supplicātō, -onis, [supplicā+ tio], f., a supplication. — Esp., a thanksgiving (prayer to the gods upon any signal success, decreed by the senate).

supplicium, -i, [supplic- (stem of supplex) + ium], n., (a kneeling). — Hence, a supplication. — Also, a punishment (usually of death).

supplicō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [supplic-], 1. v. a. and n., supplicate, entreat, pray for mercy.

suppōnō, -posui, -positus, -pōnere, [sub-pono], 3. v. a., put under, fraudulently introduce, introduce under cover of something.

supra [instr. (?) of superus], adv. and prep., above, before.

suppēmus, see superus.

surgeh, surgēxi, surrent, surgere,
Vocabulary.

[sub-rego], 3. v. a. and n., raise. — Also, rise.

surrípiō (subr-), -ripui, -reptus, -ripere, [sub-rapio], 3. v. a. (and n.), snatch privately, steal, take by treachery.

suscestē (suceo), -censui, -censūs, -censēre, [subs-(sub-)censeo], 2. v. n., be incensed, be slightly angry, be offended.

susclēō, -cēpī, -ceptus, -cipere, [subs-capio], 3. v. a., take up, take upon one's self (voluntarily, cf. receplo, as a duty), engage in, adopt, take in hand, undertake. — Also, undergo, suffer, experience (of feelings), bring upon one's self.

suspectō, -spectūs, -spicere, [sub-specio], 3. v. a. and n., look up, look up at, look askance at. — Hence, suspect: suspicatus (an object of suspicion).

suspicō (-spitō), -ōnis, [sub-]specio, cf. suspicto, -ere], F., suspicion.

suspicās (suspir-), [old abl. of suspiciosus], adv., in a way to excite suspicion.

suspicāsus (suspir-), -a, -um, [prob. *suspicō (sub-[t]specio, cf. extispicium) + osus], adj., suspicious.

suspector, -ātus, -āre, [suspicio (cf. auspec)], 1. v. dep., suspect, have a suspicion.

sustentō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [subs-tento (cf. sustineo)], 1. v. a. and n., maintain, sustain, hold out, endure, support: sustentando (by patience).

sustineō, -tinui, -tensus, -tineère, [subs-teneo], 2. v. a. and n., hold up under, withstand, endure, hold out, sustain, support, bear, stop.

susus, -a, -um, [√sva (in se) + ius], poss. pron. (referring back to subject), his, hers, its, theirs, etc. — Sometimes emphatic, his own, etc. — Often without subst., sui, m. plur., his (their) men, countrymen, friends, etc.; sua, n. plur., his (their) possessions, property, etc.: omnia sua (all he had).

symphōnīacus, -a, -um, [Gr. συμφωνικός], adj., musical: pueri (musicians).

Syrācusae, -ārum, [Gr. Συράκουσαι], Fl. plur., Syracuse, the famous city in Sicily.

Syrācūsānus, -a, -um, [Syracusa + anus], adj., of Syracuse, Syracusan. — Plur. m., the people of Syracuse, the Syracusans.

Syria, -ae, [Gr. Συρία], F., the country lying at the eastern end of the Mediterranean.

T.

T., abbrev. for Titus.

tablēa, -ae, [tabula + la], F., (a little board), a tablet, a ballot. — In plur., tablets (as two were used together), a document, a letter, a writing.

taberna, -ae, [?, cf. tabella], F., a hui (of boards), a booth, a shop.

tablā, -ae, [tablō (√ta + bus?), cf. taberna) + la], F., a board. — Hence, a record (written on a board covered with wax), a list, a document. — Also, a panel (on which pictures were painted), a picture, a painting: novae tabulae (a reduction of debts, a settlement of debts by legislation); duodecim tabulae (the laws of the Twelve Tables, the earliest collection of Roman laws).
Vocabulary.

tabulārius, -a, -um, [tabula + arius (-rius?)], adj., (of records, etc., see tabula). — Esp., N., a record office, a registry, archives.

taceō, taciui, tacitus, tacēre,[†tacō-(√tac + us)], 2. v. a. and n., be silent, be silent about, keep secret, keep silence, conceal, say nothing (about). — tacērus, p.p. as adj., silent, silently, in silence. — illis tactentibus (with their connivance).

tacētās [old abl. of tacētus], adv., silently, in silence.

tacturnitās, -tāis, [tacturnō + tas], F., silence.

tacturnus, -a, -um, [tacitō + urnus, cf. diurnus], adj., silent (as a personal quality), taciturn.

taedet, -uit (per tota tēm est), -ere,[†taedē-(cf. taedulum, taedulum)], 2. v. imp., it disgusts: aliquem (one is disgusted).

taeuter (tēter), -tra, -trum, [akin to taeutē?], adj., disgusting, horrible, loathsome, foul, abominable, shameful.

tālēris, -e, [talō+aris], adj., of the ankles. — Esp. with tunica, reaching to the heels (a sign of dandysm, cf. the modern “box-coat.”

tālēs, -e [√ta + alis], adj. pron., such, so great.

tam [unc. case √ta (cf. quam, nam)], adv., so (as indicated in the context), so much. — Often equal to this, that, etc.

tamen [unc. case-form of √ta (locat., cf. Sk. tasmin?)], adv., (introducing a thought opposed to some preceding concession expressed or implied), yet, nevertheless, still, however, for all that, notwithstanding, after all, at least.

tamen [tam? (but cf. tamen-etsi) -etsi], adv., (still although, anticipating the thought to which tam properly belongs), although, though, after all.

tamquam, see tanquam.

tandem [tamdem, cf. dēm], adv., (just so, even so?), at last, finally. — In questions, to add emphasis, pray, tell me, or translated only by emphasis: quo tandem? (where in the world?).

tangō, tētīgi, tactus, tangere, [√tag], 3. v. a., touch, border on, be close to, reach, find. — Esp. of lightning. — tactus (de caelo), struck (by lightning).

tanquam (tamquam) [tam quam], adv., as much as, as, just as, like, just like. — Also, just as if, as if.

tantō, see tantus.

tantopere, see opus.

tantulus, -a, -um, [tantō + lus], adj., so small, so little, so trifling:

tantuilo (at so small a price).

tantum, see tantus.

tantummodo [tantum modo], adv., (so much only), merely, only just.

tantus, -a, -um, [prob. √ta + vant], adj., so much, so great, so important, so large, this great, that great, great, like this, like that, such (of magnitude): tantī est (is of so much importance, is of so much weight, it is worth the price, it is worth while); tanta gratulatio (so warm); tantum civium (so many citizens); in tantum aequo alienum (so deeply in debt); pro tantis rebus (for such important, etc.). — Also, so much (and no more), only so much.

tantum, N. as adv., only, merely.

— tantō, abl., so much.

tardō [old abl. of tardus], adv., slowly, tardily, with delay, late.

tarditās, -tās, [tardō+tas], F., slowness, delay.
Vocabulary.

tardō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [tardō-], 1. v. a., retard, check, hinder, delay.
tardus, -a, -um, [†], adj., slow.

Tarracina, -ēs, [Tarraca + ūnis], adj., of Tarracina (a city of the Volsci on the borders of Latium). — As subst., a man of Tarracina.

Tauromeniānus, -a, -um, [Taurumēniō + tanus i.e., Gr. Taurōnevel- τυρενιος + anus], adj., of Tauromenium (a city on the eastern coast of Sicily, now Taormina).

taurus, -i, [perh. √tav- + rus, akin to steer], m., a bull.
tectum, -i, [p.p. of tegō], n., a roof, a house, a dwelling.
tegō, -īxi, tectus, tegere, [√teg], 3. v. a., cover, thatch, hide, protect: nocte tectus (under cover of night).
tēlum, -i, [†], n., a weapon (of offence), a missile, a javelin. — Also, vēnum (generally), a deadly weapon: cum telo (armed).

Temenitēs, -ōs, [Greek], m., an epithet of Apollo at Syracuse. temerārius, -a, -um, [†temerō + arius], adj., reckless, rash, hasty.
temere [old abl. of tēmerus], adv., blindly, without reason, without cause. — Hence, recklessly, hastily.
temerītēs, -ātis, [†temerō- (perhaps akin to temulentus) + tas], f., blindness, thoughtlessness, recklessness, heedlessness, hasty temper.

temperantia, -ae, [temperant- + ia], f., self-control, prudence.
temperō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [temper- (stem of tempus)], 1. v. a., (divide), mix properly. — Hence, control, control one’s self, refrain, moderate.
tempestās, -ātis, [tempesta- (stem of tempus) + tas], f., a season, weather. — Esp., bad weather, a storm, a tempest. — Also fig., a storm, a blast.
tempestivus, -a, -um, [tempesta- (cf. Intempestus) + ivus], adj., early, timely, seasonal, suitable: convivium (a daylight banquet).
templum, -i, [akin to tempus, prob. †temō- (√tem + us) + lumb, cf. Gr. τεμένος], n., (in augury), a consecrated spot, a temple.
temptō (tentō), -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [tentō-, p.p. of teneo], 1. v. a., handle. — Hence, try, make attempts upon, attack, assail, sound (try a man’s sentiments), attempt.
tempus, -oris, [√tem (cut, with root determinative or accidental p) + us], n., (a cutting). — Esp., a division of time, a time, the times, time (in general), a season, an occasion, an exigency, an emergency, a crisis, circumstances, a necessity (of the time), needs, the times, the circumstances of the time: omni tempore (at all times); ante tempus (before the time, prematurely); meum tempus (my appointed time); summo tempore (the most important crisis); procellae temporis (the storm of the times); O tempora! (what a time!); ex tempore (on the spur of the moment); cedere tempore (to the exigencies of the time); motus communium temporum (the general disturbance of the times); uno tempore (at one and the same time, at once).
temulentus, -a, -um, [†temō- (?), cf. abstemius] + lentus], adj., drunken, in a tipsy state.
Vocabulary.

tendō, tetendi, tēnus (tentus), tendere, [tēn + do (of unc. origin)], 3. v. a., stretch, stretch out.
tenebrae, -ārum, [?, perh. akin to temere], F. plur., darkness, obscurity.
Tenedos (-us), Ἔ, [Gr. Τένεδος], F., an island in the Ægean, near Troy.
teneō, tenuī, tensus, tenere, [tenō-(tēn + us)], 2. v. a., hold, hold fast, hold on to, retain, keep, possess, occupy, hold bound, bind: circumitus nilia (occupy, extend). Also, restrain, detain, understand, get at: legibus (bind).—Pass., be caught, be in custody, be detected, be possessed (by a feeling).
tener, -era, -erum, [tēn + rās], adj., (stretched, thin), delicate, tender, young, sensitive.
tentō, see temptō.
tenuis, -e, [tēn + us, with accidental i, cf. gravis], adj., thin, delicate, feeble, meagre, poor, slight, humble (in position), insignificant.
tenieuter [tenuī + ter], adv., thinly, slightly.
ter [prob. mutilated case of trea], adv., three times.
tergiversātiō, -onis, [tergiversā + tio], F., shuffling, a subterfuge, a false pretence.
tergum, -i, [?], N., the back: a tergo (in the rear, behind one).
terminō, -āvi, -āsus, -āre, [terminō-], 1. v. a., bound, limit, end, finish, set (limits).
terminus, -i, [tēr (?), cf. trans] + minus (cf. Gr. -μενος), M., a boundary, a limit.
terra, -ae, [tēr(?) + a, cf. torreo], F., (the dry land), the earth, the land. Also, a land, a region. Also, the ground. Also, the world: orbis terrarum (the whole world); terra marique (on land and sea).
terreō, terrui, territus, terrēre, [terrō-(?)], 2. v. a., frighten, alarm, terrify.
terrestrial, -e, [terra- (as if terr-), cf. equestra] + tris, adj., of the land, earthly (as opposed to heavenly).
terribilis, -e, [terri- (as if stem of terrae) + bilis], adj., dreadful, terrible.
terror, -ōris, [terr (as if root of terreo) + or], M., fright, alarm, terror, dread, panic.
tertius, -a, -um, [prob. tri-tius], adj., third (in order).
testamentum, -i, [testā + mentum], N., a will.
testimonium, -i, [testi + monium], N., proof, evidence, testimony, a testimonial.
testis, -is, [?], c., a witness.
testor, -āris, -āri, [testi-], I. v. dep., call to witness, appeal to, assert (solemnly).—testātus, p.p. in pass. sense, proved, substantiated.
tetrarchēs, -ae, [Gr. τέτραρχος], M., a tetrarch, a prince.
Teutoones, -um, (Teutōnī, -orum), [Teutonic], M. plur., a great German people in Jutland who overran Gaul in B.C. 113 along with the Cimbri. They were defeated by Marius in B.C. 102 at Aquae Sextiae (Aix).
theātrum, -i, [Gr. θέατρον], N., a theatre.
Themistoclēs, -is, [Greek], M., a famous Athenian commander in the time of the Persian war, the founder of the Athenian naval power.
Theophanes, -is, [Greek], M., a Greek historian of Mytilene, who wrote the exploits of Pompey.
Vocabulary.

Thespiæae, -ārum, [Gr. Θησπία], F. plur., a city of Boeotia.

Thespí enslis, -e, [Thespias + en sīs], adj., of Thespias. — Plur., the people of Thespias.

Thraex (Thrēx, Thrāx), -cis, [Gr. Θρᾴκη], adj., Thraic. — As subst., a Thraician.

Ti., abbrev. for Tiberius.

Tiberinus, -a, -um, [Tiberi + inus], adj., of the Tiber.

Tiberis, -īs, [?], M., the Tiber.

Tigrānēs, -is, [Persian, through Greek], M., king of Armenia, son-in-law of Mithridates.

Timeō, -ui, no p.p., -ēre, [†timō (cf. timidus)], 2. v. a. and n., be afraid, fear, be alarmed. — With dat., be anxious for, be anxious about: nihil (have nothing to fear, be in no danger); non timere (be free from fear, be without fear).

Timidē [old abl. of timidus], adv., with timidity: non timide (fearlessly).

Timiditās, -ātis, [timidō + tās], F., timidity, faint-heartedness. — Plur., same (of several cases).

Timidus, -a, -um, [†timō (cf. timeō)], adj., cowardly, timid.

Tīmor, -īris, [tim- (as root of timeō) + or], M., alarm, fear, apprehension.

Tirō, -ōnis, [?], M., a raw recruit, a beginner, a tiro.

Titus, -ī, [?], M., a Roman praenomen.

Toga, -ae, [†teg + a], F., a toga (the voluminous wrap worn by the Romans in their civil life): ad togas redire (resume the toga, as in peace); virilis (the virile toga, the garb of manhood); praetexta (the toga praetexta, the garb of childish, the robe of office, see praetextus). — Hence, civil life (as opposed to war).

Togātus, -a, -um, [toga + tus], adj., clad in the toga (as an emblem of citizenship or of peace). — Hence, unarméd, in the garb of peace, in peace: mihi togato contigit (a civil magistrate); togati (peaceable citizens).

Tolerābilis, -e, [tolerā + bilis], adj., endurable, tolerable.

Tolerō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [†tolver (†tol + us)], 1. v. a. and n., (raise up), bear, endure, hold out. — Tolerandus, -a, -um, as adj., endurable, tolerable.

Tollō, sustuli, sublātus, tollere, [†tol (with YA)], 3. v. a., raise, carry, elevate, extoll: in crucem (hang, nail). — Hence, carry off, remove, take away, destroy, put an end to, abolish, banish, get out of the way, put to death.

Tongillus, -ī, [?], M., a Roman gentile name. — Only an obscure friend of Catiline.

Tormentum, -i, [†torqu+mentum], N.ₜ., (means of twisting), torture, the rack. — Also, an engine (for throwing missiles by twisted ropes). — Hence, a shot from an engine, a missile.

Torquātus, -i, [torqui + atus], M., (wearing a collar), a Roman family name. — Esp., L. Manlius Torquatus, cons. B.C. 70.

Tortor, -ōris, [†tor (in tor- queo) + tor], M., a torturer.

Tot [†ta (in tam, etc.) + tī], indecl. adj., so many.

Tōtēs (totīs) [tot + iens], adv., so many times, so often.

Tōtus, -a, -um, [†ta + tus], adj., the whole, the whole of, all (as entire), entire. — Often translated
Vocabulary.

by an adverb, entirely, throughout, wholly.

tractō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [tractō],
I. v. a., handle, treat, conduct, manage: in periculis tractatus (engaged in, exercised in, drawn into).

trādō, -dīdi, -dītus, -dēre, [trans-do], 3. v. a., hand over, give up, give over, deliver up, surrender. — Also, pass along, hand down, teach, communicate.

trādućō, see transduco.

trāductō (trans-), -ōnis, [trans-ductio, cf. transduco], F., a transfer.

tragoedia, ae, [Gr. τραγωδία], F., tragedy. — Fig. (in plur.), a commotion, a "to-do."

trāhō, trāxi, tractus, trahere, [\sqrt{trah} (for ἔκτραγε)], 3. v. a., drag, drag along, drag in, draw. — Fig., captivate, drag out, protract.

tranquilītās, -ātis, [tranquilō + tas], F., stillness, calm, fair weather, a quiet state, a peaceable condition, tranquillity, peace.

tranquillus, -a, -um, [prob. akin to trans and connected with navigation], adj., calm, quiet, peaceable, undisturbed.

trāns [?], akin to terminus, termino, tererebra], adv. (in comp.) and prep., across, over. — Hence, on the other side of: ripam (on the bank opposite).
— In comp., over, across, through.

Trānsalpinus, -a, -um, [trans-Alpes + inus], adj., Transalpine (beyond the Alps from Rome).

transcendō, -scendi, -scensūrus, -sciendere [trans-scando], 3. v. a., climb across, cross (mountains).

transducō (trādućō), -dūxi,-duc-tus, -dūcere, [trans-duco], 3. v. a., lead over (with two accusatives), lead across, bring over, lead through, transport, draw over, win over, transfer.

trānsseō, -ii, -itus, -ire, [trans-seo],
irr. v. a. and n., go across, cross, pass over, go over, pass through, pass, migrate, pass by.

trānsferō, -tuli, -lātus, -ferre, [trans-fero], irr. v. a., carry over, transfer, change the place of, take (and put somewhere else): sese in proximum annum (transfer his canvass, etc.).

trānsigō, -ēgi, -ēctus, -igere, [trans-ago], 3. v. a., carry through, accomplish, manage, do, finish, carry out.

trānsmarinus, -a, -um, [trans-mar + inus], adj., across the sea, foreign.

trānsmittō, -misi, -missus, -mittere, [trans-mitto], 3. v. a., send over, send across. — Fig., transfer, devote, give over, hand over, entrust.

trānsversus (-vorsus), -a, -um, [p.p. of transvertō], as adj., across, athwart, transverse, cross.

Tremellius, -i, [?], M., a Roman gentile name. — Esp., Cn. Tremellius, one of the jury against Verres.

trēs, tria, [stem tri-], plur. num. adj., three.

tribunāl, -ālis, [tribunō + alis], n., (place of a tribune, in some early sense of the word), a tribunal (a raised platform where magistrates sat or generals addressed their troops).

tribunātus, -ātus, [tribunō + atus, cf. consulatus], M., a tribuneship, the office of tribune.

tribunicius (-iōs), -a, -um, [tribunō + cius (-cīus)], adj., of a Vocabulary.

tribune, of the tribunes (esp. of the people), tribunical.

tribūnus, -i, [tribu-nus], m., (a chief of a tribe). — With or without plebis, a tribune (one of several magistrates elected in the assembly of the plebs voting by tribes, to watch over the interests of the commons). — With millitum or millitaris, a tribune of the soldiers, a military tribune (one of six officers of each legion who had charge of the internal administration of the legion, and were also employed in various staff duties by the commander). — With aerarius, a dean of a tribe (?), one of certain officers of the treasury, orig. no doubt presiding officers of the tribes at Rome), a treasury warden (?), a tribunus aerarius.

tribuō, -ui, -ūtus, -uere, [tribu-], 3. v. a., (distribute by tribes), distribute. — Hence, grant, render, pay, assign, attribute, pay a tribute (of respect, etc.), confer, give, bestow.

tribus, -iūs, [tri (cf. tres) + unc. term. (perh. akin to ful?)], F. (as a third part?), a tribe (a division, originally local, of the Roman people), a ward (?).

tribūtum, -i, [N. p.p. of tribuo], N., a tribute (a stated sum, cf. vectigal).

tricēns (-īs) [triginta-iens], num. adj., thirty times: H. S. triciens (sc. centena millia, three million sesterces).

triduum, -i, [tri + stem akin to dies, cf. bdium], N., three days’ time, three days.

triennium, -i, [trienni (tri- annus) + ium], N., three years’ time, three years.

tristis, -e, [unc. root + tis], adj., sad, gloomy, dejected, stern. — Also as bringing sadness, melancholy, unfortunate, sad (as in Eng.): litera (dismal, cruel, of the vote for conviction).

triumphō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [triumphō-], i. v. n. and a., have a triumph, enjoy a triumph, triumph (also fig.): triumphans (in a triumphal procession, in triumph).

triumphus, -i, [prob. Gr. ὀλυμπιός, a hymn in honor of Bacchus, perh. a name of the god], M., a triumph (the entry of a general returning after a victory, celebrated with sacred rites). — Also, less exactly, almost as in Eng. even, but with a livelier figure.

tropaeum (troph-), -i, [Gr. τρόπαιον], N., a trophy.

trucidō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [?, akin to trux], i. v. a., butcher, slaughter in cold blood, massacre, cut down without mercy, slay without mercy.

truculentus, -a, -um, [truc- (as if trucu-) + lentus], adj., grim, savage, morose, churlish.

tū, tui, [tūva], plur. vōs [vēva], pron. 2d person, you (sing.), you (plur.), yourself. — Esp., tibi, in a loose connection with the sentence, for you (as in Eng.), often untranslatable. — tūte, you yourself, you.

tuba, -ae, [?], F., a trumpet (a straight instrument for infantry).

Tüberō, -ōnis, [tuber + oJ], M., a Roman family name. — Esp.: 1. L. Ælius Tubero, a distinguished jurist, a legatus of Q. Cicero in Asia; 2. Q. Ælius Tubero, son of 1, complainant against Ligarius.

tueor, tūtus (tuitus), tuēri, [?]
2. v. dep., watch, guard, protect, defend. — Also, preserve, maintain, keep, care for.

Tullius, -i, [Tullô + ius], M., a Roman gentle name. — Esp., M. Tullius Cicero, see Cicero.

Tullus, -i, [?], M., a Roman family name. — Esp., I. Volcallius Tullus, cons. B.C. 66.

tum [prob. acc. of /r/TA], adv., then (at a time indicated by the context), at that time, in that case: cum tum, see cum; tum vero (then, with emphasis, of the decisive point of a narrative or of an important condition); tum maxime (just then, but especially); tum ... cum (at a time when, when): quid tum f (what then?).

tumnantius, -iûs, [tumulôt- (perh. reduced) + tus], M., (a swelling, an uprising?), an uproar, confusion, a commotion. — Esp., an uprising, a commotion (of a revolt, or a war not regularly declared): servilis (the servile war, see servilis).

tunulus, -i, [†tuma- (wh. tumeô) + lus], M., (a swelling?), a hill, a mound. — Hence, a tomb.
	tunc [tum-ce, cf. híc], adj., just then, then, by and by (with cum), in that case.

tunica, -ae, [?], f., a tunic (the Roman undergarment, like a loose shirt, but usually of wool).

turba, -ae, [turr (cf. turma and Gr. ὑφοῦσα) + hâ (cf. morbus and Gr. ῥέψα)], f., a throng (as in confused motion, cf. turbo, -inis), a crowd, a mob, a riot.

turbanentus, -a, -um, [turba (as if turbô, perh. really) + lentus], adj., disorderly, disorganized, boisterous, stormy.

turma, -ae, [turr (cf. turba, turbo) + ma], f., (a throng?), a squadron (of horse, consisting of thirty men), a troop of cavalry.

turpis, -e, [?], adj., ugly (in appearance). — Hence, unbecoming, disgraceful, base, scandalous, vile.
	turbiter [turpi + ter], adv., dishonorably, with dishonor.

turpítdó, -inis, [turpi + tudo], F., baseness, base conduct, turpitude.
	Hence, disgrace, dishonor, infamy.

Tusculanus, -a, -um, [Tusculô+anus], adj., of Tusculum (a town of Latium). — Esp., N., a villa at Tusculum, a Tusculum villa.

te, see tu.

tü tô, see tutus.

tütor, -ātus, -āri, [tütô-], I. v. dep., guard, defend, protect.

tütus, -a, -um, [p.p. of tueor], as adj., protected, safe, secure, well fortified: victis nihil tutum (no safety for the conquered). — tä tô, abl. as adv., in safety, safely.

tuus, -a, -um, [tûV + ius], adj. pron., your, yours, of yours: omnes tui (all your friends).

Tyche, -ae, [Gr. θηξη], f., a part of the city of Syracuse, so called from a temple of Fortune in the neighborhood.

tyrranus, -i, [Gr. τραυρως], M., a tyrant (a usurping king), a tyrant (generally, in the modern sense).

U.

über, -eris, [perh. orig. subst., cf. Gr. ὑβαρ and vetas], adj., fertile, rich, productive.

über, -eris, [?], cf. Gr. ὑβαρ], N., a pop, a dug, a breast.

über-, -eris, [über + tas], f., fertility, productiveness.

ubi [supposed to be quo + bi,
Vocabulary.

unde [supposed to be for unde (cum, cf. unquam, + de, cf. inde)], rel. and interrog. adv., whence, from which, where: unde dare (through whom, as a banker from whom money is drawn).

undecimus, -a, -um, [unus-decimus], adj., eleventh.

undēquinquāgēsimus, -a, -um, [undequinquaginta+esimus], num. adj., the forty-ninth.

undique [unde-que, cf. quisque], adv., from every side, from all quarters. — Also (cf. ab), on every side.

unguentum, -i, [akin to ungo, exact form unc.], N., an ointment, a perfume (as the perfumes were used in oils instead of spirits).

ūnicē [old abl. of unicus], adv., especially.

ūnicus, -a, -um, [unō+cus], adj., sole, only, unique.

ūniversus, -a, -um, [unō-versus], adj., all together, all (in a mass), entire, in a body, in general, united, taken together.

unquam (umquam), [supposed to be for cum-quam (cf. quisquam)], adv., (with negatives, cf. quando, ali quando), ever: neque... unquam (and never).

ūnus, -a, -um; gen. -ius, [?, old oenus], adj., one, a single, the same, one only, only, alone: unus quisque (each one).

urbānus, -a, -um, [urbi- (reduced) + anus], adj., of a city. — Esp., of the city (Rome), in the city: praetor (the officer who had jurisdiction of suits between citizens); praetura (city praetorship, the office of this magistrate); praedo juris urbani (the plunderer of the rights of citizens, of malfeasance in the above office); quaestor (city, as opposed to those who were on the staff of some commander; opes (domestic, in the city, as opposed to provinces); lites (quarrels between citizens, settled in courts of law).

urbs, urbis, [?] f., a city.—Esp., the city (Rome): ad urbem (near the city).

ūstitor, -ātus, -āri, [tūsitō (as if p.p. of tūso), freq. of utor, cf. dicētītō], v. dep., practise.—ūstitātus, -a, -um, p.p. in passive sense, used, practised, customary, much practised, usual.

usquam [unc. case of quō (cf. usque)-quam], adv., anywhere (with negatives).

usque [unc. case of quō (cf. ubi and usquam) -que (cf. quisque)], adv., (everywhere), all the way, even to, all the time, till, even till, even to that degree, to that degree: usque ad eum finem (even up to, etc.); quo usque? (to what point? how far?); usque eo (to that degree, do).

ūstor, -ōris, [√us (of uro) + tor], m., (a burner).—Esp., an attendant at a funeral pile.

ūsūra, -ae, [usu + ra, cf. pictura], f., use, enjoyment.—Esp., use (of money).—Hence, interest, interest on a debt.

ūsūrpātūlō, -ōnis, [ususpā+tiō], f., a taking by use, a using: civitas (claim).

ūsūrpoō, -āvi, -āre, [tūsūrapō (usu-trapus, √rap + us, cf. bustirapus)], i.v.a., (appropriate), make use of, employ, use, practise, speak of, talk of.

ūsus, -ūs, [√ut (in utor) + tus], m., use, experience, exercise, practice, intimacy.—Hence, advantage, service.—Esp.: usus est, it is necessary, there is need.

ut (utt) [supposed to be for quoti (quo + ti?)], adv. and conj. a. Interrog., how? videre ut (see how).—b. Rel., as, so as, when, whenever, inasmuch as: ut primum (when first, as soon as).—Esp. with subj. (expressing purpose or result), that, in order that, to, so that, so as to, so as to. Often with object clause, compressed in Eng. into some other form of speech.—Esp.: id facere ut, do this (to wit, without “that”), see to it that, take care that; faciam hoc ut utar (I will do this, use, etc.); committere ut mutetur (allow to be); ut non trahant (so but what they, etc., without dragging); vereri ut (fear that not).—Also, though, although.

uter, -tra, -trum; gen.-trūs [quō (cf. ubi) + terus (reduced), cf. alter], adj. a. Interrog., which (of two): uter utri (which to the other).—b. Relative, whichever (of two), the one who(of two).—Neut., utrum, adv., (which of the two), whether.

uterque, utra-, utrum-, utrīus-, [uter-que, cf. quisque], adj., both, each (of two).—Plur., of sets: utraque castra (both camps); utrique (both classes, both parties).

utervis, utra-, utrum-, [uter vis], adj., which you please (of two), either of the two, either.

uti, see ut.

Utica, -ae, [?], f., a town in Africa near Carthage, capital of the Roman province.

ūtīlis, -e, [tutil- (stem akin to utor) + lis], adj., useful, of use, advantageous, of advantage: utile est (it is a benefit).
Vocabulary.

ūtilītās, -tās, [utili + tas], F., advantage, profit, expedition, advantages (things valuable, both in sing. and plur.).

utinam [uti-nam, cf. quisnam], adv., (how, pray?), would that, Oh that, I wish.

ūtor, īsus, ītī, [?], old octor, (akin to aveo?), 3. v. dep., avail one’s self of, use, exercise, practise, enjoy, adopt, employ, have (in sense of enjoy), possess, show (qualities which one exercises), occupy (a town), navigate (a sea), be intimate with: testibus (present); proelis (fight); studiis (pursue); qua usus est pluriolum (whose especial friendship he had enjoyed).—Esp. with two nouns, or a noun and adj., employ as, find in one, find one.

utrum, see uter.

uxor, -ōris, [?], F., a wife.

vāgō, -āri, [vagō-], 1. v. dep., roam about, wander: nomen (spread abroad).

vagus, -a, -um, [√vag(?)+us], adj., roving, fickle.

valde [old abl. of vallidus], adv., strongly, thoroughly, much.

valēō, valui, valērūs, valēre, [?], prob. denominative, cf. vallidus, 2. v. n., be strong, have weight, have influence, be powerful, assail.—Often with N. pron. or adj. as cogn. acc.: pluriolum valet (be very strong, have great weight, have great influence); valēre ad (be strong enough to, have power to, amount to); mihi valet ad gloriam (count to me for, etc.); ad laudem doctrinae valuit (be sufficient for); poēta natura valet (has his power from nature); auspicia (be in force, have effect).—Esp. (in imp. or subj.) as a parting wish, farewell, prosper.—valēns, p. as adj., strong, vigorous, stout.

V.

vacō, -āvi, -ātūrus, -āre, [prob. fr vacuus and vacūna], 1. v. n., be vacant, be free from, be unoccupied, lie waste.

vacuēfacīō, -fēci, -factus, -facere, [vacue- (stem akin to vacuus) -facio], 3. v. a., make vacant, vacate.

vacuus, -a, -um, [prob. √vac (cf. vaco) + vus], adj., free, unoccupied, vacant, destitute of (ab or abl.), free from: gladius vagina (stripped of, out of).

vadimōnium, -i, [vad- (as if vadi) + monium, cf. testimonium], N., bail, security, a surety.

vāgīna, -ae, [?], F., a sheath, a scabbard.

vagor, -ārus, -āri, [vagō-], 1. v. dep., roam about, wander: nomen (spread abroad).

vagus, -a, -um, [√vag(?)+us], adj., roving, fickle.

valde [old abl. of vallidus], adv., strongly, thoroughly, much.
Vānus, -a, -um, [√VAC (in vaco) + nus], adj., empty. — Hence, unfounded, false.

Varietās, -ātis, [variō + tas], f., diversity, variety, variation.

Vāriō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [variō-], 1. v. a. and n., vary, change. — Varītās, -a, -um, p.p., varied, varying, diverse.

Vārius, -a, -um, [prob. akin to vārūs], adj., various, diverse.

Vārus, -i, [varus, knock-kneed], m., a Roman family name. — Esp., P. Attius Varus, proprietor in Africa, b.c. 50 (?).

Vās, vāsis, plur. -a, -ōrum, [?], n., a vessel. — Hence, a utensil (of any kind, for household or camp use).

Vās, vādis, [√VADH, cf. wedding], m., (a pledge), security (a person going bail), a voucher, bail.

Vastātōs, -ōnis, [vasta + tiō], f., devastation (the act), laying waste.

Vastātās, -ātis, [vastō + tas] f., desolation (the state), devastation.

Vastō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [vastō-], 1. v. a., lay waste, devastate, ravage.

Vastus, -a, -um, [?], adj., waste, desolate, vacant.

Vātēs, -is, [?], m. or f., a soothsayer, a seer.

Vātēclōs, -ātus, -āri, [vaticinō (vati + cínus, cf. ratiocinor)], 1. v. dep., prophesy. — Hence, rave (from the wilderness of prophecy).

-ve, [?, cf. Sk. va], conj. enclitic, or (less exclusive than aut).

Vēctigal, -ālis, [N. of vēctigalis], n., a tax (in kind, or depending on products, cf. tributum), a revenue.

Vēctigālis, -e, [†vēctigō (vēcti + igus, cf. castigo) + alis], adj., (of a toll-gatherer, vēctigus, perh. orig. of tolls for transportation), of the revenue. — Esp., paying taxes, a tax-payer, tributary.

Vēctor, -ōris, [√VAGH+tor], m., a carrier. — Also (cf. vehor), a passenger.

Vehemēns, -entis, [?, prob. akin to vēho], adj., violent, impetuous, forcible, active.

Vehementer [vehement + ter], adv., violently, severely, strongly, hoity, exceedingly, very much, urgently, earnestly.

Vēhīculum, -i, [perh. vēhī (as stem of vēho) + culum, but as if vēhīcō + lūm], n., a vehicle, a carriage.

Vēhō, vēxi, vectus, vēhere, [√VAGH], 3. v. a., carry. — Pass., ride.

Vēl [prob. imperative of volō], conj., or (less exclusive than aut): vel . . . vel (either . . . or). — Also, even (if you like), often emphasizing superlatives (the very).

Vēlōx, -ōcis, [stem akin to vōlo (cf. colonus) + cus (reduced?)], adj., swift.

Vēllum, -i, [?, cf. vexillum], n., a curtain, a veil. — Also, a sail.

Vēlūt (vēlut) [vel-ut], adv., (even as), just as: velūt nī (just as if).

Vēna, -ae, [?], f., a vein, an artery (also fig.).

Vendītōs, -ōnis, [venum-datio, cf. vendo], f., a sale.

Vendītis, -āvi, -āus, -āre, [vendītō-], 1. v. a., try to sell, offer for sale, offer to sell, recommend.

Vendō, -dī, -ditus, -dere, [venum do], 3. v. a., put to sale, sell.

Venedicus, -a, -um, [vene- (stem akin to venenum) -icus], adj., poisonous. — Masc. as subst., a poisoner.
Vocabulary.

venēnum, -i, [†venē- (of unc. origin) + num (cf. egenus)], N., a drug.—Esp., a poison.

vēnēo, -ivi (-ii), -iūrus, -ire, [venum eo], 4. v. n., go to sale (cf. pereo), be sold.

veneror, -ātus, -āri, [vener- (stem of Venus)], 1. v. dep., (sometimes venero, act.), (seek favor?), worship, reverence, supplicate.

venla, -ae, [?], F., indulgence, favor, pardon, a privilege (as accorded or asked).

venō, vēni, ventūrus, venire, [for gveno, √GAM], 4. v. n., come, go, fall (into the hands of); in discrimen venire (incur the danger); tibi legis in mentem veniat (call to mind, remember).

Ventidius, -i, [?], M., a Roman gentle name.—Esp., P. Ventidius Bassus, an officer and partisan of Antony.

ventus, -i, [?], M., the wind.

Venus, -eris, [√VAN(?)+ us, cf. venustas, veneror], F., (perh. orig. N.), grace(?).—Esp., personified, Venus, as goddess of love, identified with the Greek Aphrodite.

venustās, -tātis, [venus + tās], √F., grace.

vēr, vēris, [prob. √VAS, for †vasar, cf. Gr. ιαπ], N., the spring.

†verber, -eris, [?], N. (usually plur.), stripes, blows, lashes, flogging.

verberō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [verber-], 1. v. a., whip, scourge, beat, flog.

verbūm, -i, [?, cf. morbus], N., a word, an expression.—Esp.: verbum, verba facere (say much or little, say anything, speak); his verbis (in these words, in this form); verbis amplissimis (the strongest terms); verbo (in words, in form);

verbī causa (for example).

vērē [old abl. of verus], adv., with truth (cf. vero, in truth, etc.), truly, rightly, justly, honestly, really, with justice.

verēcundia, -ae, [verecundō + ia], F., modesty.

vereor, -ītus, -īri, [prob. †verō (akin to wary)], 2. v. dep., fear, be afraid, respect.—veritus, p.p. in pres. sense, fearing.

verīsimilis (often separate), -e, [verī similis], adj., (like the truth), probable, likely.

verītās, -tātis, [verō + tās], F., truth.

verō [abl. of vērus], adv., in truth, in fact.—With weakened force, but, however, on the other hand, now, and.—Often untranslatable, expressing an intensive (emphatic) opposition, or pointing to the main time, circumstance, fact, or agent in a narrative: tum vero (then); nunc vero (but now, and now, now); quasi vero (as if, forsooth); an vero (or is it possible that? or tell me); jam vero (now finally, but further); immo vero (nay in fact); deum vero nullum violavit (and as to divinities, etc.); quid vero? (and then finally, and further); est vero (it is you see, it is in fact); ego vero (why I in fact, for my part I); at vero (but then, but on the other hand, but);

minime vero (no, not in the least); si vero (if however, if now).

Verrēs, -is, [verres, boar], M., a Roman family name.—Only C. Cornelius Verres, praetor in Sicily in B.C. 73 and after, accused of extortion in the famous orations against Verres.
versiculus, -i, [versu + culus], m., a short line, a verse.

vesta, -ae, [√vas (in uro) + ta, cf. Gr. 'Eorla], f., the goddess of the household fire, the same as Gr. 'Eorla.

vestālia, -c, [vesta + lia], adj., of Vesta: virgins (the Vestal virgins, who preserved the sacred fire of Vesta, and were held in special reverence).

vestor, -tra, -trum, [ves + ter (us)], adj. pron., your, yours: conspicuous (of you).

vestibulum, -i, [?], prob. vestibulum (orig. farm-yard?), n., a vestibule (an open space in front of a house-door). — Fig., a gateway, a doorway, an entrance, the doors.

vestīgium, -ī, [vestigō- (cf. vestigō) + ium], n., the footprint, the footprint, a track. — Esp.: e vestigio (forthwith, from one’s tracks?); eodem vestigio (in the same spot); in illo vestigio temporis (at that instant of time). — Hence, fig., a trace, an indication.

vestimentum, -i, [vesti + mentum], n., clothing.

vestītus, -tus, [vesti + tus], m., clothing, garments, dress.

vestītus, -tus, [vesti + tus], m., clothing, garments, dress: ad suum vestītum redire (ordinary clothing).

vetānus, -a,-um, [veterā- (as if stem of vētēro) + mus], adj., veteran (long in service).

vetō, vetui, vetitus, vetāre, [stem akin to vetus, cf. antīquus], i. v. a., forbid.
Vocabulary.

vetus, -eris, [?, cf. Gr. ἔτος], adj., old, former: milites (old soldiers, veterans); homines (of experience, also of antiquity).

vetustās, -ātis, [vetus-tas], F., age, antiquity, former ages, long continuance, future ages, time (long continued, either future or past).

vexātiō, -onis, [vexā + tio], F., persecution, harassing, outrage.

vexātor, -ōris, [vexā + tor], M., a trouble, a persecutor, a pursuer, a disturber.

vexō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [vexō - as if p.p. of vehō], I. v. a., (carry this way and that), vex, harass, annoy, commit depredations on, overrun (a country), ravage (lands), plunder, worry, persecute.

via, -ae, [for veha? (veh + a)], F., a road, a way, a route, a street.
— Fig., a course, a way.

vīātor, -ōris, [vīā- (as stem of vīo) + tor], M., a traveller.

Vibīēnus, -ī, [Vibīō + enus], M., a Roman family name.— Esp., C. Vibienus, a Roman senator killed in a riot.

vilbrō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [?], I. v. a. and n., to shake, to brandish.

vicātim [vicō + atim], adv., by wards, by districts.

vicēsimus (-ēnsimus), -a, -um, [viginti + ensimus], adj., twentieth.

vicinitās, -ātis, [vicino + tas], F., neighborhood, vicinity.

vicinus, -a, -um, [vicō + inus], adj., (belonging to the same vicus?), near.— As subst., a neighbor.

vicissim [acc. adv. akin to vicēs], adv., in turn, by turns.

vicissitūdō, -inis, [tviciissī- (in vicissim) + tudo], F., a change, a vicissitude, a succession (of changing events).

victimā, -ae, [akin to vinco, perh. going back to the sacrifice of prisoners], F., a victim (sacrificed).

victor, -ōris, [vīc (in vinco) + tor], M., a victor.— Often as adj., victorious, cf. victrix.

victoria, -ae, [victor + ia], F., victory, success (in war), a triumph (in the modern sense, cf. triumphant, the honor): in ipsa victoria (at the moment of victory).— Esp., Victory, worshipped as a divinity by the Romans: ludi victoriae (a festival established by Sulla in honor of his victory, held October 27 to November 1).

victrix, -ēcis, [vīc (in vinco) + trīx], F., a victor (female, or conceived as such).— As adj., victorious.

victus, -ūs, [vīc(?)(?) (cf. vixi) + tūs], M., living, life.— Also, means of living, food: necessitates victus (the necessaries of life); in victu arido (a dry and meagre way of life or style of living).— Esp.: consuetudines victus (the intimacy of daily life).

vīcus, -i, [vīc (enter?) + us, cf. Gr. ὕπερ], M., (a dwelling), a village (a collection of dwellings).— In cities, a quarter (more than a block, cf. insula), a row (of houses), a street (the houses on both sides).

vidēliicet [vide imper. of videō] liest], adv., (see you may, one may see), of course, doubtless, no doubt.— Often ironical, forsooth, I suppose, no doubt you see, of course.

videō, vidi, visus, vidēre, [vīd, perh. through a noun-stem (cf. invisus)], 2. v. a., see, examine (reconnoitre), observe, notice, take care (see that).— In pass., be seen, seem, seem best. — Esp.: ea cernimus quaes videmus (we distinguish what we see); plus videre (have a keener insight).

vigeō, no perf., no p.p., vigère,[?], prob. †vigeō- (vīGIS-ns, cf. vigil).
2. v. n., be strong, be active, have life, flourish.

vigilia, -ae, [vigil + ia], f., waking, wakefulness, watching. — Esp. in plur., vigilis, sleepless nights. —
Also (in plur.), watches, sentinels, watchmen. — From military use, a watch (one of the four divisions into which the night was divided).

vigilō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [vigil].
1. v. n. (and a.), watch, lie awake, watch by night, keep awake, be up (not sleep). — Fig., be on the watch be watchful, be vigilant, watch, look out for. — Esp., vigilāns, p. as adj., watchful, watchful, vigilant, on the watch, careful, active, wide awake.

viginti [dvi- (stem of duo) + form akin to centum (perh. the same)], num. adj., indecl., twenty.

villa, -ae, [?], adj., cheap, of little value, worthless.

villās, -tūs, [vili + tas], f., cheapness, low price.

villa, -ae, [?], f., a farm-house, a country house, a villa.

vincō, vincī, vincītus, vincere,[perh. akin to vincō], 4. v. a., bind, fetter, put in chains, restrain.

vinculum, see vinculum.

vincō, vicī, victus, vincere,[vincō], 3. v. a. and n. conquer, defeat, prevail, be victorious, prevail over, overcome, surpass, outdo.

vinculum (vinculum), -i,[vincō- (stem akin to vincō, perh. primitive of it) + lum (n. of -dus)], N., a chain. — Plur., chains, imprisonment, prison. — Fig., a bond, a connection.

vindex, -icis, [some forms of vis and dico, perh. wrongly formed like judex], m. and f., a claimant. — Hence, from technical use in law, a protector, a defender, an avenger.

vindicāre, -ārum, [vindic + ia], f. plur., a claim (technical in law), an action (of a peculiar sort).

vindicō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre,[vindic-].
1. v. n., claim, claim one's rights against, defend (cf. Galliam in libertatem, establish the liberty of, a phrase derived from the formal defence of freedom in a Roman court), rescue. — Also, punish, avenge, seek redress for, seek redress.

vinum, -i, [?, cf. Gr. ῥόος], ἦν, wine.

violō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [vīlus].
1. v. a., abuse, violate (a sacred object), profane, injure (a thing held sacred), outrage: si quid violatum est (any profanation done).

vir, virī, [f.], m., a man, a husband.

vis, see viā.

visō, -ae, f., a twist, a rod. —

Plur., floggings, stripes.

vīrgō, -inis, [?], f., a maiden, a maid, a virgin, a girl. — Esp., a vestal virgin (see Vestalis).

vīrīs, -e, [vīrin + ias], adj., manly, of a man: toga (the garb of manhood, the pure white toga assumed by Romans as a sign of manhood and citizenship).

virtūs, -tūs, [vīrin + ias], adj., merit, good qualities. — Also, a sense of virtue, a love of virtue.

vis, vis (?), [?], f., force, might, power, violence, energy, vigor, severity, a quantity, a supply: vim et manus (violent hands). — Also, force, effect, validity. — Technically, breach of the peace, violence (for which a special remedy at law was established). — Plur., strength, force, powers, bodily vigor.
Vocabulary.

viscus, -eris, also plur. viscera, -um, [?], N., the soft parts of the body, the flesh, the entrails. — Fig., the vitals, the bowels, the entrails.

visō, visi, visus, visere, [prob. old desiderative of video], 3. v. a. and n., (desire to see), go to see, visit, see (in reference to a sight or spectacle).

vita, -ae, [root of vivo + ta], F., life, the course of life.

vitium, -i, [?], N., a flaw, a blemish, a defect, a fault, a vice.

vítō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [vita-?], i. v. a., (escape with life, live through?), escape, avoid, dodge, shun.

vituperātō, -ānis, [vituperā + tio], F., abuse, fault-finding, an accusation, a charge.

vituperāō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [vituperā-], i. v. a., censure, find fault with.

vívō, vivi, victus, vivere, [-vig (vigor?), cf. victus], 3. v. n., live, pass one’s life.

vivus, -a, -um, [-vig(?) + us], adj., alive, living.

vix [poss. viic (in vino)], adv., with difficulty, hardly, hardly ever. — Also, of time, hardly (when scarcely yet, almost before, etc.).

vocō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [voc- (stem of vox)], i. v. a., call by name, call, summon, invite. — With in, ad, summon to, invite to, bring (into), attempt to bring (into) : in integritatem spe (attribute virtue to one in hope).

Volāterrae, -arum, [?], F. plur., a town of Etruria (Volterra).

volgāris (vulg-), -e, [volgō + aris], adj., common, ordinary.

volgō, see volgus.

volgus (vulgus), -ī, [√volg + us], N., the crowd, the common people, the mass; in volgus emanare (get abroad, spread abroad). — volgō, abl. as adv., commonly, generally, ordinarily, everywhere.

volitō, -āvi, no p.p., -āre, [as if volitā-, p.p. of volo, cf. agito], i. v. n., fit about, hover about.

volnerō (vul-), -āvi, -ātus, -ēre, [vulner-], i. v. a., wound, inflict a wound. — Also fig., wound, harm, offend.

volnus (vulnus), -eris, [prob. akin to vello], N., a wound.

volō, volui, velle, [-vol-], irr. v. a. and n., wish, be willing, want, desire, choose to have, choose, would like, mean, signify. — With perf. part., desire to have, desire to.

Volurctus (Vult-), -i, [?], M., one of the conspirators with Catiline.

volitus (vul-), -tus, [-vol- + tus], M., expression (of countenance), the countenance, the look, the face, the expression of countenance, the mien.

volūbillis, -e, [prob. volvi- (as stem of volvo) + bilis], adj., whirling. — Fig., changeable, inconstant.

voluntārius, -a, -um, [volent + arius], adj., voluntary. — As subst., a volunteer.

voluntās, -tātis, [volent + tas], F., willingness, will, good-will, desire, approval, consent, an inclination, a wish, a purpose, plans, desires, a disposition.

voluptās, -tātis, [volup- (akin to volo) + tas], F., sensual pleasure, pleasure, a sensation of pleasure, enjoyment.
Vocabulary.

†Volusēnus, -i, [?, cf. Volusius], M., a tribune of the soldiers in Caesar's army in Gaul. In Phil. xiv. 7, the reading is uncertain, and the passage is obscure.

volūtō, -āvi, -ātus, -āre, [volutō-], i. v. a. and n., roll, grovel.

vōsmet [vōs-met (akin to me)], intensive of vos, you yourselves, you (emphatic).

vōtūs, -a, -um, [vōtō + ivus (cf. captīvus)], adj., votive: ludi (a festival held in pursuance of some vow).

vōtum, -i, [N. p.p. of vō N., a vow, a prayer.

vōveō, vōvi, vōtus, vovēre vōx, vōcis, [√voc as stem: voice, a word, an expression, a —Collectively, cries, words, ta vulgāris, see vulgāris.

vulgō, see volgo.

vulgus, see volgus.

vulnerō, see vulnero.

vulnus, see volnus.

vultus, see vultus.